—Secs.319, 399 & 197 – INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.420, 467, 468 & 471 – Suo motu powers of Court u/Sec.319 – Prosecution of Public Servants – Sanction of Govt., - Magistrate allowed Application filed by appellant/accused to add R.2 as accused who is a public servant being drawing and disbursing officers who prepared false and forgery bills and misappropriated amount - Sessions Judge allowed Revision and set aside order of Magistrate – High Court confirmed order passed by Sessions Judge - Appellant accused contends that once an order was passed and summons was issued by Magistrate

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

he had no power, authority or jurisdiction to review said order or recall summons and that order of Magistrate adding 2nd respondent and summoning him was inconsonance with Sec.319 of Code and should not have been interfered and that Courts below were wrong in invoking Sec.197 of Code and in holding that sanction was necessary -Power u/Sec.319 can be exercised either on Application made to Court or by Courts suo motu – It is discretion of Court to take action under said section and Court is expected to exercise discretion judicially and judiciously having regard to facts and circumstances of each case - Offences punishable u/Secs.409, 420, 467, 468, 471 etc can by no stretch of imagination by their very nature be regarded as having been committed by public servant while 'action or purporting to act in discharge of official duty' – Orders passed by Sessions Judge and High Court, set aside and that order passed by Magistrate, restored – Appeal, allowed. Bholu Ram Vs. State of Punjab 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 168.

—Secs.320 & 482 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.120(b) & 420 r/w 34 Sec.149 - "Compounding of offences" - Quashing of proceedings - Sec.320 Cr.P.C. articulates public policy with regard to compounding of offences - It catalogues offences punishable under IPC which may be compounded by parties without permission of Court and composition of certain offences with permission of Court - Offences punishable under Special Statute are not covered by Sec.320 of Code - When an offences is compoudable u/Sec.320 abetment of such offence or attempt to commit such offence or where accused is liable u/Sec.34 or Sec.149 can also be compounded in same manner - A person who is under 18 years of age or is an idiot or a lunatic is not competent to contract compounding of offence but same can be done on his behalf with permission of Court - If a person is otherwise competent to compound offence is dead, his legal representatives may also compound offence with permission of Court - DISTINCTION BETWEEN COMPOUNDING OF OFFENCE U/SEC.320 AND QUASHING OF CRIMINAL CASE BY HIGH COURT IN EXERCISE OF INHERENT POWERS - STATED - Two powers are distinct and different although ultimate consequence may be same viz., acquittal of accused or dismissal of indictment - Power of High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from power given to criminal Court for compounding of ffences u/Sec.320 of Code - Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation, but it has to be exercised in accord with guidelines engrafted in such power viz. (i) to secure ends of justice or (ii) to prevent abuse of process of any Court - High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to interest of justice to continue with criminal proceedings or continuation of criminal proceeding would tatamount to abuse process of law despite settlement and compromise between victim and wrong doer and whether to secure ends of justice, it is appropriate that criminal case is put to an end and if answer to above questions is in affirmative, High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash criminal proceedings. Glan Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2012(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 187.

—Sec.320 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.498-A - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Sec.4 - While considering request for compounding of offences Court has to strictly follow mandate of Section 320 of Code - It is, therefore, not possible to permit compounding of offences u/Sec.498-A of Indian Penal Code and Sec.4 of Dowry Prohibition Act - However, if there is a genuine compromise between husband and wife, criminal complaints arising out of matrimonial discord can be quashed, even if offences alleged therein are non-compoundable, because such offences are personal in nature and do not have repercussions on the society unlike heinous offences like murder, rape. Manohar Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh 2014(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 105.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.320(6) – INDIAN PENAL CODE Secs.343, 376(2) (n), 313 and 506 – "Permission for compounding offences"- Basing on report given by defacto complainant FIR registered against accused for offence under said provisions of IPC - Defacto complainant is 1st year B.Tech student and accused completed B.Tech and they met during a marriage function and later intimacy developed between them and accused with his overtures of love, deceived her with a false promise of marrying her and had repeated sexual intercourse with her and eventually when she become pregnant, got her aborted and when she requested him to marry, he refused – Thus her complaint led police to investigate and file charge sheet - When investigation pending accused filed petition for quashing FIR and when said petition was pending parties filed petition u/Sec. 320 (6) Cr.P.C. seeking permission of High Court for compounding offence and to quash criminal proceedings - Both parties submit that parties are relations and keeping in view of future of defacto complainant and accused, at intervention of elders they entered into compromise and therefore, requested to accord permission to compound offence and filed memo of compromise stating that defacto complainant agreed o receive Rs. 14 lakhs for her education and future needs from family of accused and in return she agreed to compound criminal case and she further agreed that she will have no further rights of any sort against accused and his family members - In a case of this nature more than interest of individuals, interest of Society is at stake – Offence alleged cannot be simply regarded as an offence against an individual rather it should be treated as an offence against society – Therefore, Court must be circumspective and see whether according permission will sub-serve societal interest or not – If offence alleged is purely private in nature and parties want to burry hatchet and lead harmonious life, then Court may appreciate such action on part of parties – However on other hand offence alleged is one which shakes the conscion of Society, Court must be reluctant to accord permission.

It is so held by Hon'ble Apex Court in its judgment reported in Giansingh V. State of Punjab and another 2012 (10) SSC 3037. "…… However, before exercise of such power, high court must have due regard to nature and gravity of crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, cannot be fittingly quashed, even though the victim or victim's family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have serious impact on society".

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

So when above caution note of Apex Court is applied to present case in view of gravity of offence, permission cannot be accorded by High Court even exercising its plenary power u/Sec. 482 Cr.P.C - If terms of compromise are approbated by High Court, they would resonate a wrong message to Society to effect that a person can deceive a woman and get rid of prosecution by paying some amount - This by no means will sub-serve public good and interest of Society – Hence, High Court cannot give stamp of approval for such acts of parties though they wish to compromise and bury their mis-deeds under carpet-Criminal Petition dismissed - Petition filed u/Sec.482 to quash proceedings in F.I.R. also dismissed. Vermagiri Raviteja Vs. State of A.P. 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 316 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 133 = 2015(3) ALT (Crl) 392 (AP) = 2015 Cri. LJ 4255.

—Secs.348, 267, 268,269 & 270 - "Anticipatory bail" - Case registered against petitioners for offence under provisions of IPC and Exclusive Substance Act and were remanded, but no steps taken for obtaining 'production warrant' - Sessions Judge dismissing Anticipatory bail petition filed by petitioners - In this case, accused were involved in more than one case - Confessional statements of petitioners have been recorded - Material objects were already recovered at instance of petitioners - CR.P.C. SECS.267,268 & 269 - Main purpose of these provisions is that criminal proceedings must be completed as early as possible - A production warrant issued u/Sec.267 cannot be treated as a detention order - Powers under this section cannot be exercised for purpose of investigation in some other case and such course appears to be impermissible - Sec.267 Cr.P.C imposes a duty on Court to make an order requiring Officer-in-charge of prison to produce such person, whenever, in course of an enquiry, trial or other proceedings under Cr.P.C; it appears to Court production of such person in judicial custody in some other case is required - Even for computation of set off period under 428 Cr.P.C, immediate remand of accused in a criminal case becomes necessary - When accused in jail during period of investigation or enquiry i.e., before date of his conviction such period has to be given set off - Therefore, where it appears to Court that person already in judicial custody in one case is involved in some other case or cases, then such Court should take steps and issue P.T warrant u/Sec.267 - Admittedly in this case, confessional statements of accused were already recorded and whatever property is to be recovered in other case had been already recovered - So, no purpose would be served by refusing to grant anticipatory bail to petitioners - Criminal petition, allowed. Talari Ravi Vs. State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 133.

—Sec.354 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.326 - "Sentencing system" - Accused/ respondent charged for offence u/Sec.326 IPC - Trial Court convicted accused and sentenced them to undergo rigorous imprisonment for three years along with fine - High Court partly allowed appeal by maintaining conviction of respondents and reduced their sentence for period already undergone - Aggrieved by said judgment, State filed present Appeal - In operating sentencing system law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix - Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration - Courts must not only keep in view rights of victim of crime but also Society at large - While considering impossession of appropriate of punishment - Though in this case, it is stated that both parties have amicibally settled in view of fact that offence charged u/Sec.326 is non compoundable and also in light of serious nature of injuries and no challenge has to conviction, High Court not justified in reducing sentence to period already undergone - Order of High Court set aside and restore sentence imposed on respondents/accused - Appeal filed by State, allowed and respondent/accused (A1 to A3) are directed to surrender within a period of 4 weeks - Order of High Court, set aside. State of M.P. Vs. Najab Khan 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 120 = 2014(1) ALD (Crl) 873 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 4537 = 2013 Cri. LJ 3951 (SC) = AIR 2013 SC 2997 = 2014(1) SCC (Cri) 153 = 2013(9) SCC 509.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.357(3), 421 and 431 - Respondent filed complaint against appellant for offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Magistrate found accused guilty of offence and sentenced simple imprisonment for one year and directed to pay Rs.5 laksh to complainant u/Sec.357 (3) - In revision High Court while dismissing revision petition has observed that Courts below had appreciated facts correctly and there is no error, illegality, or impropriety in findings recorded by Courts below to set aside conviction and sentence - High Court After taking in to consideration pecular facts and circumstances, modified sentence imposed on accused to extent if petitioner pays compensation amount of Rs.4 laksh within period of five months, then he needs to undergo imprisonment only till rising of Court and if petitioner commits default in making payment aforesaid he shall undergo simple imprisonment for three months by way of default sentence - Complainant being aggrieved by sentce imposed on accused has filed SLP contending that sence imposed is very minimal and will defeat very purpose of Sec.138 of N.I Act - Further contention of accused that while exercising jurisdiction u/Sec.357(3) of Cr.P.C no direction can be issued that in default of payment of compensation, accused shall suffer simple imprisonment and further contended as regards factual error made by High Court where in High Court, stated that he had deposited one laksh towards compensation requirs to be accepted - It is to be noted accused has already deposited Rs.2 laksh towards compensation amount of Rs.5 lakhs before Magistrate in pursuance of orders passed by Sessions Court and High Court - Therefore appeal of accused allowed to extent that he needs to pay further amount of Rs.3 lakhs towards compensation of Rs.5 lakhs - Remaining part of sentence passed by High Court requires to be confirmed - Conviction and sentence against accused confirmed with modification - Appeal, partly allowed. K.A.Abbas H.S.A. Vs. Sabu Joseph 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 80.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.378 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.9 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.364, r/w 302, r/w 149 - 'Appeal against acquittal' - Accused faced trial for commission of offence u/Sec.364, r/w 302, pleaded that they have been falsely implicated because of land dispute, though they did not deny homicidal death of deceased - Trial Court accepted prosecution version and convicted accused persons - High Court directed acquittal of accused holding that there is no direct evidence and case was based on circumstantial evidence and that identification was not possible and that FIR filed at a different Police Station instead of filing at correct Police Station, which gives an impression that genesis of occurrence has been twisted and that evidence relating to kidnaping was inadequate - Generally order of acquittal shall not be interfered with because presumption of innocence of accused is further strengthened by acquittal - Paramount consideration of Court is to ensure that miscarriage of justice is prevented - A miscarriage of justice which may arise from acquittal of guilty is no less than from conviction of an innocent - IDENTIFICATION - In this case, there was light of moon as well as neighbouring houses and electric poles in lane and date of occurrence was 11th day of Lunar month and therefore identification was possible - Further a known person can be identified from distance even without much light - Hence trial Court justified in holding that identification was possible - Hypothetical conclusions of High Court which are based on surmises and conjectures on other hand are unsupportable - LAST SEEN THEORY - It comes in to play where timegap between point of time when accused and deceased were seen last alive and when deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than accused being author of crime becomes impossible - In this case, there is positive evidence that deceased and accused were seen together by witnesses. Basudeo Yadav Vs. Surendra Yadav 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 91.

—Sec.378 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 "Appeal against acquittal" - Powers of appellate Court - General principles – Stated - Appellate Court has full power to review, reappreciate and reconsider evidence upon which order of acquittal is founded and it may reach its own conclusion both on question of fact and law - In this case, trial Court failed to take note of relevant aspects and committed grave error in rejecting reliable material placed by prosecution - High Court as appellate Court enalyzed evidence as provided in Sec.378 of Cr.P.C and rightly reversed order of acquittal - Appeal, dismissed. Mookkiah Vs. State 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 79.

—Secs.378, 386 & 172 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.148,149 & 302 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.145 - Appellants/accused caused death of five persons suspecting them practising sorcery in village, by pouring kerosene and set them on fire - Trial Court acquitted accused holding that prosecution failed to establish guilt of accused for offence for which they were charged - High Court confirmed judgment of acquittal of some accused but convicted some persons for offence u/Sec.302, r/w 149 - CASE DAIRY - Criminal Court can use case dairy in aid of criminal enquiry or trial but not as an evidence - Court's power to consider dairy is not unfettered - In light of inhibitions contained in Secs.172(2), it is not open to Court to place reliance on case dairy as a piece of evidence directly or indirectly - In this case, High Court fell into grave error in using statements of P.Ws.2 to 4 recorded u/Sec.161(3) of Code; particularly for contradicting P.W.20 without affording opportunity to him to explain position - Course adopted by High Court is impermissible in law as Sec.172 of Code is not meant to be used for purpose it has been used by High Court to overcome contradictions pointed out by defence - Another grave illegality vitiating judgment of High Court is, conviction of appellants u/Sec.302 r/w Sec.149 IPC even though appellants/accused have been acquitted of offence u/Sec.149 - High Court not justified in interfering with judgment of acquittal - Judgment of High Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Md.Ankoos Vs. The Public Prosecutor, High Court of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 151.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.378(2), 374(2), 231 & 233 - Criminal Rules of practice and Circular orders 1990 made by High Court in exercise of powers under Art.227 of Constitution - "Criminal appeals against acquittal" - Condonation of inordinate delay in representing criminal appeals - In affidavit filed by Manager of Public Prosecutor's Office it is stated that on account of retirement of Manager and suspension his successor processing work could not be completed in time as office was shifted twice from one place to another and it took time to trace files in PP's office and in view of this, appeal papers could not be represented in time - In this case, plea that administrative reasons alleged in affidavit must weigh with Court in condoning delay in representing Appeal papers - It is true that ordinarily Court is lenient in extending time for complying with procedural requirements to avail remedy from High Court - But in a criminal case, especially an appeal by State u/Sec.378(2) & (3) of Cr.P.C., other considerations must and ought to weigh with Court, even while considering application by State condonation of delay in presentation or representation - After appeal is admitted High Court shall have to send for records of case and hear appeal with regard to validity of finding of guilt with regard to legality of sentence - Appellate Court may reverse finding and sentence and acquit accused in case appeal is from order of acquittal reverse order of Sessions Court and direct accused be retried - Therefore, hearing of an appeal so as to be effective must be with reference to evidence adduced by prosecution and defence in trial in accordance with Secs.231 & 233 Cr.P.C respectively - A belated appeal even if it is with leave of Court as contemplated u/Sec.378(3) without record would certainly be a futile exercise - In this case, except a copy of judgment of Court below no other record is available - Therefore inordinate delay in representing appeal to Registry cannot be condoned - Petitions dismissed. State of A.P. Vs. Avunoori Srikanth 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 304.

—Secs.378(4) & 372 (as per amendment) - NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, Sec.138 - Magistrate acquitting accused in complaint filed against them u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Complainant filed appeals against acquittal u/Sec.378 Cr.P.C before Addl. District Judge - Hence present Criminal Petitions filed by accused contending that as against acquittal remedy of complainant is to file appeal to High Court u/Sec.378 (4) Cr.P.C - Respondent/complainant contends that as per amendment to Sec.372

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

Cr.P.C introducing new proviso to that section, a victim is competent to file appeal to Sessions Court against acquittal recorded by Magistrate - Petitioners contend that Sec.378 (4) Cr.P.C is a Special Provison and it overrides general provision contained in Sec.372 Cr.P.C - After amendment, proviso to Sec.372 Cr.P.C makes inroads to original general provison contained in Sec.372 and after introduction of said proviso, field became enlarged clothing a victim also with right to file appeal apart from State or complainant as case may be - In case on hand, on plain, simple and proper reading of language employed in Sec.378 (4) Cr.P.C and proviso to Sec.372 Cr.P.C, there is no clash or conflict or inconsistency between two provisions - Against any order of conviction passed by Magistrate appeal lies to sessions Court - Intention of Parliament in introducing proviso to Sec.372 is to supplement to then existing remedies and to confer appellant jurisdiction to sessions Court also apart from High Court against an order of acquittal recorded by trial Court - Thus, on harmonious reading of Sec.378(4) and proviso to Sec.372 found that both provisions can be given effect to simultaneously and that both provisions can operate in field at one and same time and that there is no conflict or clash or inconsistency between these two provisions - In case criminal appeals are not maintainable before Sessions Court, in such an event proceedings in those criminal appeals are not liable to be quashed; but proper course to be adopted in such a case would be to return appeal memoranda to appellant for presentation to proper Court having jurisdiction, that is High Court - Other course open to High Court in these petitions would be to transfer pending appeals from Additional Sessions Court to High Court for disposal according to law - Since appeals presented in lower Court prior to Cr.P.C (Amendment) Act, 2008 came into force both appeals are not maintainable before Sessions Court - Criminal appeals are transferred from Addl. Sessions Judge to High Court. G.Baswaraj Vs. State of A.P. 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 425 = 2011(1) ALD (Crl.) 201 (AP) = 2011(1) ALT (Crl.) 88 (AP).

—Sec.385 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.394 - Trial Judge convicting accused (A1, A3, A4) for offence u/Sec.394 IPC - Appellate Court confirmed conviction on basis of available record without presence of appellants (A1, A4) and without hearing arguments of Counsel for accused - Hence A1 alone preferred present revision - Accused contends that it is imperative for appellate Court to dispose of appeal after hearing Counsel for accused and in event there was no Advocate for accused or Counsel representing accused either was absent or refused to advance submissions on behalf of accused, appellate Court was duty bound to appoint legal aid Counsel to represent accused and dispose of case after hearing Counsel for accused and that ex parte disposal of case, is not sustainable - In view of Sec.385((2), it is imperative for appellate Court to hear parties - Sec.385 Cr.P.C. does not contemplate situation where accused is absent and where accused is not represented by Counsel - There is no provision in Code to meet such contingency - In present case, A1, A4 were represented by Counsel engaged by them and not by a legal aid Counsel before appellate Court - As Sessions Judge disposed of appeal without hearing Counsel for accused, order of appellate Court is unsustainable and liable to be set, aside - Case remitted to appellate Court for fresh disposal according to law after affording opportunity to both sides to make their submissions - Judgment of criminal appeal, set aside. Cheekatimarla Satyanarayana Vs. The State of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 189 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 332(AP) = 2012(1) ALT (Crl) 32(AP).

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.386 & 313(1) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rules 23 to 26 - Sessions Judge remanding back C.C to Magistrate on ground that trial Court erroneously imposed sentence of imprisonment against a juristic person and that contents of Ex.P.15 were not put to accused in examination of accused u/Sec.313 Cr.P.C - If it is an error, it is open to appellate Court to rectify alleged error - Ex.P.15 is Memorandum of Understanding between parties and there is no admission of criminal liability therein - Taken by itself, it may not be said to be an incriminating document as such, and contents of Ex.P.15 are only supporting material for prosecution and cannot be said to be incriminating material against accused as such - Thus both grounds on which lower appellate Court remanded case to trial Court are unsustainable - There is no power for criminal appellate Court to remand a case, like a civil appellate Court under Or.41, Rules 23 to 26 CPC, and option open to appellate Court is to order retrial- Lower appellate Court should have acquainted itself with Sec.386 Cr.P.C about powers to be exercised as appellate judge on criminal side - Criminal Courts know about remanding an accused and not remanding a case - Order of Sessions Judge, set aside - Criminal revision petition, allowed. Maruthi College of Engineering &Technology Vs. Sate of A.P. 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 170.

—Sec.391 - NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, Sec.138 - "Permission to lead additional evidence in appeal" - Petitioner, accused convicted by trial Court u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Petition filed in appeal u/Sec.391 Cr.P.C, dismissed - Petitioner contends that cheque in question was not drawn by him on his account and that it was drawn on account of Firm which is a partnership Concern and that therefore requirements of Sec.138 of Act are not satisfied - Plea not taken by accused petitioner in trial Court and no endeavor was made by accused to prove that said fact when matter was pending before trial Court - Fact that petitioner wants to examine an additional witness to prove facts require for said plea itself indicate that it is not pure question of law - It is undoubtedly a mixed question of fact and law - No party can be permitted to raise a mixed question of fact and law for first time in appeal - It is discretion of appellate Court to permit production of additional evidence and it does not depend upon whether application was made by accused or by prosecution - Discretion of Court has to be exercised in a judicious manner and not in arbitrary manner - In this case, evidently petitioner/accused filed present petition in lower appellate Court u/Sec.391 Cr.P.C to fillup lacunae and without any bonafides - Rejection of petition filed by accused in lower appellate Court for permission to lead additional evidence - Justified - Petition, dismissed. Dasari Radha Krishna Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 24.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.391 & 311 - "Powers of appellate Court to take additional evidence" - P.W.1 filed private complaint against petitioners/accused, 1 to 5, husband, in-laws, brother-in-law and sister-in-law for harassing for additional dowry - Basing on complaint crime registered u/Secs.498-A,320 and 406 IPC and u/Secs. 4 & 6 of Dowry Prohibition Act - Trial Court convicting accused - Crl.M.P filed by petitioners in Appeal, to summon P.Ws.1 & 8 for further cross-examination to elicit certain omissions and contradictions , dismissed - Hence present Revision - Public Prosecutor contends that witnesses cannot be summoned for further cross-examination at appellate stage - Petitioners contend, Court is empowered to take additional evidence u/Sec.391 and even under Sec.311 Cr.P.C to recall witnesses already examined in interest of justice - If certain questions are not put to a witness and certain omissions and contradictions are not marked and if witnesses have to be recalled for further cross-examination, such further cross-examination cannot be treated as additional evidence - When there was an ample opportunity to cross-examine witness and to elicit omissions and contradictions and if accused failed to cross-examine witness even after witness was recalled for further cross-examination, accused cannot take advantage of his own lapse and there is no provision to recall witnesses at appellate stage - Normally power to recall a witness should be exercised either on same day or within reasonable time under exceptional circumstances - If power to recall a witness is exercised in casual or routine manner then there is every danger of accused trying to influence witness or trying to threaten witness and to make him hostile - Therefore power to recall a witness cannot be lightly exercised - In this case, since P.W.1 was cross-examined in 2007, it appears that there is no justification in recalling said witness after period of two years that too at appellate stage - Revision, dismissed. Ch.Ramakoteshwara Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 89.

—Secs.391 & 482 - Summoning of witness for further cross-examination and for recording additional evidence - Delay in filing application should not have been sole ground for rejecting appellant's application before High Court - When car in which justice A.N. Ray holding office of Chief Justice of India at that time was travelling along with his son, there was attempt on life of Chief Justice - Sec.391 Cr.P.C - Provision is not limited to recall of witness for further cross-examination with reference to his previous statement - Appellate Court may feel necessity to take additional evidence for any number of reasons to arrive at just decision in case - Law casts a duty upon Court to arrive at truth by all lawful means - As a matter of fact if some later statement has come to be made in some legal ways, it may be admissible on its own without any help from Sec.311 or Sec.391Cr.P.C - It is only such statement or development which is otherwise not within legal frame work that would need exercise of Court's jurisdiction to bring it before it as part of legal record - High Court was in error in refusing to summon P.W.1 for his further cross-examination as prayed for on behalf of appellants - Accordingly order of High Court set aside to that extent - Appeals, allowed. Sudevanand Vs. State through CBI 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 106.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.397,399,400 & 401 - Case filed against accused for alleged offence u/ Secs.325,324,323, r/w Sec.34 IPC - Magistrate acquitted accused A1 to A5 u/Sec.397 Cr.P.C after full trial - In C.R.P filed by de-facto complainant Sessions Judge found A2 guilty of offence u/Sec.325 and A3 guilty of offence u/Sec.324 and convicted them u/Sec.248(2) Cr.P.C and did not choose to pass any sentences - As per Sec.401(3) Cr.P.C., High Court has no power to convert finding of acquittal into one of conviction in Revision Petition filed u/Sec.397 Cr.P.C - Neither Sessions Judge nor High Court has any power to convert finding of acquittal recorded by Magistrate into one of conviction, while exercising jurisdiction u/Sec.397 Cr.P.C in a Revision petition - Impugned judgment passed by Sessions Judge converting finding of acquittal recorded by Magistrate into one of conviction in so far as petitioners A2 and A3 are concerned for offences punishable u/Secs.325 & 324 IPC, is without jurisdiction - Crl.P. allowed. Vavilapalli Ramesh Vs. Girada Rama Rao 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 194 = 2011(1) ALD (Crl.) 996 (AP) = 2011(3) ALT (Crl.) 38 (AP) = 2011 Cri. LJ 3988 (AP).

—Secs.397 and 401 - As per the provision of Sec.138 of NI Act, the learned Magistrate is competent to punish accused, who is convicted of offence punishable u/Sec.138 of the Act with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine which may extend to twice amount of cheque, or with both - Trial court has totally ignored victim and had failed to take note of rights of victim/complainant - Showing undue sympathy to the accused and imposing a sentence, which is not appropriate to gravity of offence, is not justified - Fact that a decree was obtained in a civil suit is no ground to impose a sentence, which is not commensurate to gravity of offence - It is not a case, where amount covered by cheque has been paid - Therefore, this Court holds that sentence imposed in this particular case against accused is grossly inadequate (less) - However, in view of finding that sentence imposed by trial Court is inadequate, this Court proposes to remand case to trial Court and hence it is not necessary to indicate what exactly should be appropriate sentence to be passed. Sardar Harvinder Singh Vs. Chobrolu Hutasana Rao 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 242 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 826 = 2015 Cri. LJ 3568.

—-Secs.406 & 311, r/w Sec.165 Evidence Act - "Transfer of case from one Court to another Court" - Sec.311 of Code and Sec.165 of Evidence Act confers vast and wide powers on Court to elicit all necessary material by playing an active role in evidence collecting process - In this case, record does not indicate that trial Judge had exercised power u/Sec.165 of Evidence Act which is in a way complementary to his other power - It is true that there must be reasonable apprehension on part of party to a case that justice may not be done and mere allegation that there is apprehension that justice will not be done cannot be basis to transfer - There is no manner of doubt that reasonable apprehension that there would be failure of justice and acquittal of accused only because witnesses are threatened by petitioner - Apprehension of not getting a fair and impartial enquiry are trial is required to be reasonable and not imaginary, based upon conjectures and surmises - If it appears that dispensation of criminal justice is not possible impartially and objectively and without any bias before any Court are even at any place, appropriate Court may transfer case to another Court where it feels that holding of fair and proper trial is conducive - In this case, on facts and circumstances of case that interest of justice would be served if transfer of case is ordered to some other Court. Vikas Kumar Roorkawal Vs. State of Uttarkhand 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 55.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.407 (5) - Petitioner/accused took a specific stand before trial Court that it has no jurisdiction to entertain complaint - Metropolitan Sessions Judge allowed Tr.Crl.M.P and transferred complaint to IV Addl. Chief Magistrate holding that belatedness is no ground for rejecting petition - Petitioner contends that 24 hours time ought to have been given by Sessions Judge before hearing application as required under Sec.407(5) Cr.P.C and that when accused had taken a specific stand that Court has no jurisdiction to entertain complaint, taking cognizance of offence and transferring criminal case from that Court to another Court having jurisdiction are illegal and caused prejudice to accused - It appears from fair reading of Sec.407 (5) of Cr.P.C that it is mandatory for Court to give at least 24 hours time before hearing application filed u/Sec.407 seeking transfer of case from one Court to another Court - In this case, notice to counsel for petitioner-accused was given at about 9.30 a.m and on same day, impugned order passed - If there is a mandatory provision Courts are bound to follow such provision - For non compliance of Sec.407 (5) impugned order is liable to be set aside - Sessions Judge directed to give sufficient time as required under law to both parties and hear matter afresh - Criminal petition, allowed. Kolli Venkateswara Rao Vs. Y. Venkateswara Rao 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 307 = 2011(1) ALD (Crl) 322 (AP) = 2010(2) ALT (Crl) 316 (AP) = 2010 Cri. LJ (NOC) 1183 (AP).

—Sec.437 - Cancellation of bail - Sessions Judge granting bail to petitioners imposing condition, directing petitioners to appear before SHO every day - Sessions Judge cancelled bail holding that petitioners have violated terms and conditions of bail - Cancellation of bail is a serious matter - Court has power to cancel bail, but it should be exercised sparingly and when same is absolutely necessary, in cases where it is alleged that petitioners have misued their bail, threatened witnesses, tampered with evidence or hampered investigation or stalled further proceedings of Court - It must be proved that accused have misused liberty granted to them - In this case, admittedly petitioners have signed in Register maintained by Police - It appears that there may be some misunderstanding between Police and petitioners and Police which might have resulted in not taking their signatures in attendance Registers maintained by Police - Impugned order, set aside - Criminal Revision Case, allowed. Lankalapalli Malleswara Rao @ Malli Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 174.

—Anticipatory Bail – Apex Court issued guidelines for granting/cancellation. Bhadresh Bipinbhai Sheth Vs. State Of Gujarat 2015(3) Law Summary (S.C.)22

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.438 - Anticipatory bail -Appellants, apprehending arrest in case registered u/ Secs.120-B and 420 IPC - Petitioner filed seeking relief of anticipatory bail - High Court passed order granting anticipatory bail on condition that in case of arrest, appellants shall be enlarged on bail on their depositing Rs.32 lakhs and also on their executing personal bond of Rs.1 lakh with two sureties each - In present case, High Court passed impugned order with intention of protecting interest of complainant in matter - Approach of High Court is incorrect as under impugned order a very unreasonable and onerous condition has been laid down by Court as a condition precedent for grant of anticipatory bail - Order of High Court, set aside - Matter remitted back to High Court to consider prayer for anticipatory bail of appellants in accordance with law taking into consideration facts and circumstances of case including gravity of offence alleged. Ramathal Vs. Inspector of Police 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 130.

—Sec.438 - "Anticipatory bail" - Appellant/accused arrested for offences u/Secs.403, 409,420,467 r/w 34 of Indian Penal Code - Sessions Judge enlarged appellant/accused on anticipatory bail by imposing certain conditions - High Court set aside order of Sessions Judge granting anticipatory bail - In this case, there is nothing on record that there has been interference or attempt to interfere with due course of administration of justice by appellant/accused - No supervening circumstances have surfaced nor shown justifying cancellation of anticipatory bail - Impugned order of High Court - Unsustainable - Appeal, allowed. Hazari Lal Das Vs. State of West Bengal 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 88 = 2009(2) ALD(Crl) 746(SC) = 2009(6) Supreme 564 = 2009 AIR SCW 5632.

—Sec.438 - "Granting of Anticipatory bail" - FIR registered against appellant u/Secs.420, 467,468& 120-B of IPC in connection with disputes relating to sale of Flat - Suit for specific performance also pending - Sessions Judge rejecting Application for Anticipatory bail - High Court also dismissed bail Application moved by appellant - Salutary provision contained in Sec.438 Cr.P.C was introduced to enable Court to prevent deprivation of personal liberty - It cannot be permitted to be jettisoned on technicalities such as "the challan having been presented anticipatory bail cannot be granted" - Anticipatory bail can be granted at any time so long as applicant has not been arrested - High Court erred in not considering Application for anticipatory bail in accordance with law and contention that dispute herein is purely of civil nature cannot be brushed aside at this stage - Anticipatory bail granted to appellant - Appeal, allowed. Ravindra Saxena Vs. State of Rajasthan 2010(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 42.

—Sec.438 - "Anticipatory bail" - Historical perspective - Ambit, scope and object of Sec.438 - Stated - Present petition filed against orders passed by High Court declining bail to appellant - Appellant belonging to Indian National Congress Party, contends that High Court gravely erred in declining anticipatory bail to appellant and that Sec.438 Cr.P.C was incorporated because some influential people are trying to implicate their rivals in false cases for purpose of disgracing them or for other purposes by getting them detained in jail for some days and that in recent times with accentuation of political rivalry, this tendency is showing signs of said increase and that entire prosecution story seems to be a cock and bull story and no reliance can be placed on such concocted version - In instant case, there is direct judgment of Constitution Bench of Supreme Court dealing with exactaly same issue regarding ambit, scope and object of concept of Anticipatory bail enumarated u/Sec.438 Cr.P.C - Impugned judgment and order of High Court declining anticipatory bail to appellant cannot be sustained and consequently, set aside - In event of arrest, appellant shall be released on bail on his furnishing a personal bond in sum of Rs.50,000/- with two sureties - Appeal, allowed. Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre Vs. State of Maharashtra 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec. 438 - Seeking anticipatory bail to the petitioner/A-5 for the offence under Secs. 403, 406,409, 420, 468 and 471 r/w 120-B of IPC - De facto compla-inant, a NRI, started a private company viz., M/s. Material Software System India (p) Ltd. And M/s. Material Soft Information Technologies for software development - De facto complainant filed complaint alleging that A-1 has indulged in several acts of omission and commission and embezzlement and caused huge loss to him to a tune of Rs. 40 crores as he had invested about 20 cr. In the business and more than 8 cr. was drawn by A-1 from different banks by mortgaging the properties of the de-facto complainant - A crime was registered by the PSCCS, Team 1 Hyder-abad in Crime no. 122/2015 against which the petitioner/A-5 filed this petition for anticipatory bail - Petitioner /A5 was appointed by A1 as auditor and A5 was part of the conspiracy for defrauding the complainant by manipulating the accounts - Held, taking into consideration of the nature of allegations, the status of the chartered accountant, his duties and responsibilities towards Company and the surrounding facts and circumstances of the case, it is not a fit case where the custodial interrogation of the petitioner/A5 will be required - In the result, criminal petition is allowed and petitioner/A5 is directed to be released on pre-arrest bail subject to certain conditions - Hence, the criminal petition is allowed. M.Nagaraj Vs. State of Telangana 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 293 = 2015(2) ALD(Crl) 1022.

—Sec.438 - "Anticipatory bail" - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.498-A - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Secs.3 & 4, r/w Sec.34 IPC - De facto-complainant, after her marriage, A1 husband-in-laws treated well for some time and thereafter started harassing her demanding for bring additional dowry and her husband along with in-laws necked her from their house demanding to bring R.10 lakhs additional dowry - Petitioners contend that petitioners no.3 & 4 are parents of mother-in-law of de facto complainant and petitioners 1 & 2 are relatives of petitioners no.3 & 4 and their case is that they are innocent and falsely implicated in this case - It is most unfortunate that Sec.498-A IPC has become a weapon in breaking families rather than in uniting them - Madras High Court in its order has observed some guidelines stating that "it must born in mind that object behind enactment of Sec.498-A IPC and Dowry Prohibition Act is to check and curb the menace of dowry and at save time to save matrimonial homes from destruction. Our experience shows that apart from husband, all family members are implicated are dragged to Police Station..."

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

It appears that there is every need to give similar directions in Andhra Pradesh under Domestic Violence Act, Protection Officer is required to assist Police and Court - Sec.498-A IPC is a cognizable and non compoundable offence - Following guide lines issued:

a) A fair and dispassionate investigation should be conducted. After completing investigation, the same should be verified by an officer not below the rank of Deputy Superintendent of Police.

b) During the course of investigation, if the investigating officer is satisfied that there is false implication of any person in the complaint then he may delete the names of such persons from the charge sheet after obtaining necessary permission from the Superintendent of Police or any other officer equivalent to that rank.

c) As soon as a complaint is received either from the wife alleging dowry harassment or from the husband that there is every likelihood of him being implicated in a case of dowry harassment, then, both the parties should be asked to undergo counselling with any experienced counsellor or counsellors. The report of such counsellors should be made as a part of the report to be submitted by the investigating officer to the Court.

d) The Superintendent of Police, in consultation with the Chairman, District Legal Services Authority, may prepare a panel of counsellors and such panel of counsellors along with their address and phone numbers should be made available at all the police stations.

e) Normally, no accused should be arrested, where the allegation is simple dowry harassment. If the arrest is necessary during the course of investigation, the investigating officer should obtain permission of the Superintendent of Police or any other officer of the equal rank in metropolitan cities. If arrest is not necessary, the police may complete the investigation and lay charge sheet before the Court without arresting the accused and seek necessary orders from the Court. However, in the case of dowry death, suspicious death, suicide or where the allegations are serious in nature such as inflicting of bodily injury etc., the police officer may arrest the accused. However, the intimation of such arrest should be immediately sent to the concerned Superintendent of Police who may give necessary guidance to the arresting officer.

f) No accused or witness should be unnecessarily called to the police station and as soon as the purpose of summoning them to the police station is over they should be sent back. There should not be any unnecessary harassment to any person i.e. either to the relatives of the de facto complainant or to the relatives of the husband.

g) The higher police officers should see that the parties do not make any allegations that they are forced to come to any settlement in police stations against their wish. However, this does not mean that the police officers should not make any effort for amicable settlement.

h) The advocates have to play their role in trying to unite the families. They must act as social reformers while dealing with these kind of cases, particularly, where the couple have children. Even when an accused is produced before the Magistrate, they should examine the matter judiciously and consider whether there are valid grounds for remanding the accused to the judicial custody. No accused should be remanded to judicial custody mechanically in routine manner. If the Magistrate feels that the accused cannot be released after taking bonds, necessary orders may be passed accordingly.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

Director General Police A.P. is requested to issue necessary instructions to all concerned in this regard - In this case, having regard to allegations made against petitioners and in facts and circumstances Anticipatory bail granted to petitioner - Criminal petition, allowed. T.Kaleem Vs. State of A.P. 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 113.

—Sec.438 - S.C. AND S.T. (PREVENTION OF ATROCITIES) ACT, 1989, Secs.3(i)(x) & 18 - "Anticipatory bail" - De facto complainant belonging to Brahmin community, married a person belonging to Schedule Caste professing Christianity - De facto complainant gave report to Inspector of Police against petitioner who is no other than maternal uncle requesting to register case against petitioner for abusing her and her husband in name of caste and religion - Police registered case u/Sec.3(i)(x) of Act and matter is under investigation - Hence petitioner filed a petition seeking anticipatory bail - In this case, de facto complainant merely said that she and her husband were insulted in name of caste and religion - She did not even mention in First Information Report actual words uttered by petitioner, who is no other than her maternal uncle - According to complainant entire incident took place inside house of petitioner where petitioner, de facto complainant and her husband were only present - Even if entire allegations mentioned in FIR are considered to be true, they do not attract ingredients of Sec.3(1)(x) of Act - When offence of provisions of Act not at all attracted, there is no legal impediment to Court to exercise its jurisdiction to grant anticipatory bail to petitioner not- withstanding bar u/Sec.18 of Act - Petitioner is granted anticipatory bail - Criminal petition, allowed. Paracha Mohan Rao Vs. The State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 188 = 2013(2) ALD(Crl) 535 (AP) = 2013(3) ALT(Crl) 190 (AP).

—Sec.438 & 82 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs. 302,120-B, & 134 - "Anticipatory bail" - Appeals filed against orders of High Court of Madhya Pradesh granting Anticipatory bail to respondents - FIR registered against respondents u/Secs. 302 r/w Sec.34 of IPC and subsequently charge-sheet also filed - Respondents/accused were absconding since very initiation of incident and since they are not traced proclamation u/Sec.82 of Cr.P.C issued against respondents/accused for their appearance to answer complaint - Appellant/State contends that charges filed against respondents/accused relate to Sec.302, 120-B and 34 IPC which are all serious offences and also of fact that both of accused being absconders from very date of incident, High Court is not justified in granting Anticipatory bail that too without proper analysis and discussion - Power exercisable u/Sec.438 of Code is some what extraordinary in character and it is to be exercised only in exceptional cases where it appears that person may be falsely implicated or where there are reasonsonable grounds for holding that a person accused of offence is not likely to otherwise misuse his liberty - CR.P.C. SEC.438 - SCOPE OF - STATED - Sec.438 is a procedural provision which is concerned with personal liberty of an individual who is entitled to plead innocence, since he is not on date of application for exercise of power u/Sec.438 of Code convicted for offence in respect of which he seeks bail - Provisions cannot be invoked after arrest of accused and a blanket order should not be generally passed - It flows from any language of section which requires applicant to show that he has reason to believe that he may be arrested - A belief can be said to be founded on reasonable grounds only if there is something tangible to go by on basis of which it cannot be said that applicant's apprehension that he may be arrested is genuine - If any one is declared as an absonder/proclaimed offender in terms of Sec.82 of Code he is not entitled to relief of anticipatory bail - In this case, respondents/accused are facing prosecution for offences punishable for serious offences and particularly accused being proclaimed offenders - Impugned orders of granting bail - Unsustainable - Impugned orders of High Court are set aside - Respondents/accused are directed to surrender before Court concerned within two weeks failing which trial Court is directed to take them into custody - Appeals, allowed. State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Pradeep Sharma 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 12.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.438, 207 and 208 - "Anticipatory bail" - Applicant must show that he has 'reason to believe' that he may be arrested in non-bailable offence - A belief can be said to be founded on reasonable grounds only if there is something tangible to go by on basis of which it can be said that applicant's apprehension that he may be arrested is genuine - Order u/Sec.438 is a device to secure individual's liberty, it is neither a passport to commission of crimes or a shield against any and all kinds of accusations likely or unlikely - If protective umbrella of Sec.438 is extended indefinitely result would be clear bypassing of what is mandated in Sec.439 regarding custody - Till applicant avails remedies upto higher Courts, requirements of Sec.439 become dead letter - No part of a statute can be rendered redundant in that manner - CASE DAIRY - In this case it is baffling to note that accused and informant referred to particular position of case dairy - At stage bail applications were heard by High Court, legally they could not have been in a position to have access to same - Papers which are to be supplied to accused have been statutorily prescribed - Courts should take serious note when accused or informant refers to case dairy to buttress a stand. Naresh Kumar Vs. Ravindra Kumar 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 21.

—Sec.439 - Case registered punishable for offences u/Secs.302,307,328 etc., of IPC and also under provisions of Bombay Prohibition Act - High Court dismissed applications filed u/Sec.439 seeking regular bail - Appellant contends that in Charge Sheet and connected material, there is nothing to show that appellant had any knowledge that illicit liquor was poisonous or that he had any intention to cause death of deceased persons at most it is case u/Sec.304 IP and not u/Sec.302 and that co-accused allegedly having grave role, have already been granted bail and therefore on ground of parity also, accused appellant deserves to be enlarged on bail on same terms and conditions - Appellant/accused is habitual offender and is facing more than 20 cases including similar cases under various provisions of IPC and Bombay provision Act and that there is every likely hood that if accused appellant is released onbail, he would threaten witnesses and again indulge in sale of spurious liquor - Merely because accused/appellant had spent three years as an under trial prisoner, taking notice of gravity of offence is not entitled for bail - Trial Judge is directed to proceed with trial on day to day basis avoiding unnecessary adjournments - Appeal of Ravindrasingh (A-11, dismissed. Ravindersingh @ Ravi Pavar Vs. State of Gujarat 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 185.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.439(2) - Bail - Cancellation of - High Court cancelling bail granted to appellants without assigning reasons - Considerations for grant of bail and cancellation of bail stand on different footings - When a person to whom bail has been granted either tries to interfere with course of justice or attempts tamper with evidence or witnessess or threatens witnesses or indulges in similar activities which would hamper smooth investigation or trial, bail granted can be cancelled - Rejection of bail stands on one footing, but cancellation of bail is a harsh order because it takes away liberty of an individual granted and is not to be lightly resorted to - Even though re-appreciation of evidence as done by Court granting bail is to be avoided, Court dealing with application for cancellatin of bail u/Sec.439 (2) can consider whether irrelevant materials were taken into consideration and that irrelevant materials should be of a substantial nature and not of trival nature - In this case, since High Court not indicated any reasons for directing cancellation of bail, impugned order not maintainable and hence set aside - Matter remitted to High Court to decide afresh. Manjit Prakash Vs. Shobha Devi 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 217 = 2008(2) ALD (Crl.) 269 (SC) = AIR 2008 SC 3032 = 2008 Cri. LJ 3908 = 2008(5) Supreme 265.

—Sec.439(2) – "Cancellation of Bail" – Case registered against accused (A1) u/ Secs.302,201 and 120(b) of IPC - Sessions Judge granted bail to accused – Hence, petitioner, father of the deceased wife of A1 filed petition u/Sec.439(2) for cancellation of bail - Petitioner contends that while granting bail Sessions Judge did not take into consideration submissions made by the Public Prosecutor that if he was released on bail he would interfere with process of investigation and despite fact, offence is a most heinous one, bail was granted ignoring relevant material - In this case Sessions Judge granted bail to second respondent/A1 on irrelevant considerations without applying his mind in facts of the case and ignoring relevant material, and that apart there is reasonable ground for petitioner to apprehend that if A1 is not taken into custody there is very likelihood of intimidating witnesses which would ultimately hamper prospects of trail - Hence bail granted to A1 by Session's Judge is hereby cancelled – Criminal petition allowed. Syed Chand Pasha Vs. State of A.P. 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 299 = 2014(1) ALD (Crl) 722 (AP) = 2014(2) ALT (Crl) 226 (AP).

—Sec.439 (2) – NDPS Act, Sec.37 – 'Cancellation of bail' – Basing on statement of two persons from whom alleged contraband recovered, appellant was arrested - Trial Court granted bail and subsequently cancelled – High Court dismissed revision filed by appellant - Appellant contends that a bail granted must be cancelled only if requirements contained in sub-sec.(2) of Sec.439 Cr.P.C are fulfilled – Further more, for purpose of cancellation of bail statutory requirements must be satisfied - It is therefore necessary for prosecution to show some act or conduct on part of appellant from which a reasonable inference may arise that witnesses have gone back on their statements as result of an intervention by appellant - Order of High Court cancelling bail, set aside – Appeal, allowed.Sami Ullaha Vs. Superintendent, Narcotic Central Bureau 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 210.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.439(2), r/w Sec.482 - "Cancellation of bail" - CBI Judge granted bail - CBI filed application contending that reasons given by Judge are not valid, judgment of Supreme Court pertaining 2G Scame has no application to facts of present case and that judge had not taken into consideration basic principles of granting of bail and consequently order of bail suffers from arbitrariness, non-application of mind and giving scope for defeating cause of further investigation and justice - Respondents contend that personal liberty of respondent is primary consideration and investigation is so far as respondent is concerned investigation is over and his detention in prison not warranted - In this case, bail was claimed and granted on ground that investigation is completed and charge-sheet is filed so far as respondent is concerned - It is to be noted that crime as it was registered relates to complicity of several persons having acted in conspiracy and if such is case, it is liability of all conspirators that has to be investigated in to and investigation in a crime is said to be completed only when entire final report is submitted in registered crime against all accused persons - In fact is claim of C.B.I that investigation is not yet completed against co-conspirators and charge sheet is not filed and therefore C.B.I. judge has erred in coming to opinion that investigation in this case is completed - Order of bail granted by CBI Judge is arbitrary without applying principles of law concerning case of this nature and drawing unnecessary inferences from other cases and therefore bail granted is liable to be cancelled - Criminal petition, allowed. State Vs. V.D.Rajgopal 2012(1) Law Summary 1 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 702 (AP) = 2012(2) ALT(Crl) 192(AP).

—Sec.439(2) & 54,55A, 56 & 57 and 167 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.22(1) - "Cancellation of bail granted to accused" - 1st respondent is accused of offences punishable u/secs.420, 323,506, 509 & Sec.3(1) (x) of S.C. & S.T. Act - When petitioner/de-facto complainant demanded to return certain amount alleged to have been obtained from complainant for securing Job, accused/respondent abused her in name of "Madiga" caste in filthy language and threatened her with dire consequences - Accused obtained bail from High Court in this crime by alleged misrepresentation of facts - Petitioner/de-facto comp-lainants contends that though accused was taken into custody by Police during course of investigation, he was neither arrested nor produced before Magistrate nor Magistrate remanded accused to judicial custody and when accused approached Sessions Court for bail u/Sec.437 & 439 Cr.P.C, Sessions Judge dismissed bail Application of accused on ground that he was not remanded to judicial custody by Magistrate - Any custody of accused beyond Twenty-four hours without production of accused before Magistrate becomes illegal as well as unconstitutional - It is not for Police Officer to admit arrested accused in hospital and to violate legal and constitutional mandate of production of arrested accused before Magistrate within 24 hours of his detention under arrest - Such action on part of Police Officers is likely to lead uncrupulous tendencies like in present case, where accused was allowed to remain in hospital more than one month after his arrest without production before Magistrate till accused was ordered to be released on bail by

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

High Court - Such activity on part of Police Officers will give wrong signals to Society and public at large that rich and influential person can manage uncrupulous Police Officers, so that they need not go either to Court or to a prison even after arrest while in custody - In this case, it was never stated in criminal petition that accused was in judicial custody - In that petition accused, also enclosed copies of remand report, medical certificates, of Doctors as well as order passed by Sessions Judge, refusing bail to accused on ground that he was not remanded to judicial custody - Therefor it cannot be said that accused obtained bail in High Court by making any misrepresentation - Petitioner/de-facto complainant who is seeking cancellation of bail to accused that without their being judicial custody - High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain bail petition u/Sec.439 Cr.P.C and that judicial custody of accused is a condition precedent for entertaining bail application u/Sec439 Cr.P.C - U/Sec.439 Cr.P.C High Court as well as Court of Session are empowered to exercise special powers for releasing on bail "any person accused of an offence and in custody" - Custody referred in Sec.439 Cr.P.C. need not necessarily be judicial custody given u/Sec.167(2) Cr.P.C - It can be either judicial custody or Police Custody u/Sec.167(2) Cr.P.C or detention in custody of an arrested person u/Sec.57 Cr.P.C - If Sec.439 Cr.P.C is to be read as judicial custody, then it amounts to adding something which parliament did not intend to add and which parliament did not intend to restrict power of High Court and Court of Session - Therefore order in criminal petition granting bail to accused not liable to be set aside or cancelled - Criminal petition, dismissed with certain directions to initiate Departmental disciplinary enquiry against Deputy Superintendent of Police for violating constitutional as well as legal provisions and take appropriate action against him. Alaparthi Chinna Vs. Kota Lakshmi Satyanarayana, 2012(1) Law Summary 94 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 770(AP) = 2012(1) ALT(Crl) 227(AP) = 2012 Cri.LJ (NOC) 547 (AP).

—Secs.473 & 482 - NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, Secs.138 & 142 - 1st respondent filed private complaint against accused u/Sec.138 of N.I Act alleging that cheque issued by accused dishnoured for want of sufficient funds - Magistrate condoning delay of 41 days in filing complaint and took cognizance of offence against accused - Petitioner/accused contends that order passed by lower Court condoning delay is not in accordance with law as it is an order without reasons and passed summary manner - Lower Court should have given notice to accused before passing order condoning delay of 41 days in presenting complaint - In this case, undisputedly lower Court passed order without giving notice to accused and without affording opportunity to accused to contest petition for condonation of delay and to dispute allegation contained therein - Notice to accused respondent is mandatory as per principles of natural justice before passing any order by criminal Court condoning delay in filing private complaint - Order passed by lower Court, set aside - Lower Court directed to consider petition afresh after giving notice to petitioner/accused. D.Shyam Sunder Vs. Nella Prabhu Lingamurthy 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 176.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—-Sec.482 - Basing on complaint charge-sheet laid against appellants u/ Secs.420,467,468 & 471 of IPC, alleging that in order to cause loss to complainant, interpolated Revenue Records and documents were forged and produced before Court in order to defraud Court - High Court dismissed Application filed by appellant for quashing proceedings arising out of charge-sheet - In this case, provisions of Secs.420,467,468 & 471 of IPC are not applicable to appellant - "Where a criminal proceedings is manifestly attend with mala fide and/or where proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge" - Prosecution is nothing but an abuse of process of law and therefore set aside, impugned judgment and quash prosecution case pending in Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate. Parminder Kaur Vs. State of U.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 165.

—Sec.482 - Case registered against petitioner/accused u/Secs.420, 463,192 & 199, r/w Sec.34 and 120-B IPC - Complaints are brother and sister and children of A1 - A1 executed registered deed of settlement for entire industrial Unit in name of complainants and delivered vacant possession - Subse-quently A1 created a registered deed of revocation with an evil intention wrongly mentioning that he was possessor of Unit which is not true - In this case, prima facie A1 got no criminal intention in executing revocation deed in respect of unit and he must have done so under compelling circumstances - If at all A1 and A2 had any criminal intention in creating document it would come within preview of Sec.363 and 364 IPC and corresponding penal sections - But When in fact and circumstances of case there is no prima facie evidence of existence of circumstances, question of prosecuting A1 and A2 were alleged offences does not arise at all - On other hand prosecuting them in respect of those offences is nothing but abuse of process of law - If complainants intend to get document cancelled, they can approach civil Court, because matter is purely civil in nature - Entire proceedings in CC on file of Magistrate are liable to be quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Motamarri Surya Kameswara Rao Vs. Motamarri Kiran Kumar 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 149.

—Sec.482- "Quashing of proceedings in CC" - Proceedings initiated in CC against petitioner/A4 and three others for offences punishable u/Secs.498-A and 325 IPC against A1, Sec.498-A of IPC against A2 & A4 and Secs.4 & 6 of Dowry Prohibition Act, against A1, A2 & A4 - Petitioner contends that even accepting allegations in charge-sheet at their face value, no offence much- less an offence u/Sec.498-A of IPC is made out against petitioner who is brother of A1 and residing in Karnataka State and in absence of any specific allegation in charge sheet continuation of proceedings against petitioner would be an abuse of process of law - Petitioner is alleged to have taken Rs.5 lakhs from father of respondent for starting a business, which by no stretch of imagination would amount to an offence u/Sec.498-A of IPC - 2nd respondent contends that statements of witnesses recorded u/Sec.161 Cr.P.C attribute specific role to petitioner in demanding Rs.5 laksh to start his business and said amount was paid with hope that family members of accused will not harass respondent, wife in future and said allegation constitutes an offence u/Sec.498-A IPC and hence it cannot be said that continuation of proceedings would be abuse of process of law - What is required to be brought to notice of Court is particulars of offence committed by each and every accused and role played by each and every accused in committing of that offence - In this case, reading of charge sheet alongwith statement of witnesses recorded u/Sec.161 Cr.P.C would indicate that petitioner is alleged to have taken Rs.5 lakhs from father of L.W.1 to start business - Admittedly, petitioner never stayed with A1 and his family at any point of time and allegations in charge-sheet and cause title clearly disclose that he was resident of Shemoga in Karnataka and that no specific allegation of harassment is attributed to petitioner except stating that amount of Rs.5 lakhs was paid by father of respondent for starting business with condition that other family members of petitioner would not harass respondent - "CRUELTY" - Word cruelty as defined in explanation - II Sec.498-A IPC contains two clauses, viz., (a) any willful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health of woman; or (b) harassment of woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her for any person related to her to meet such demand - In present case, there is no averment in charge sheet to show that petitioner harassed respondent and it is not even alleged that petitioner demanded father of respondent to pay Rs.5 lakhs for meeting a demand made against respondent - Said act of petitioner in taking money from father of respondent for starting business would not fall within meaning of cruelty as defined in Sec.498-A IPC, as there is no averment of any kind of harassment in hands of petitioner - Proceedings in CC, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Suresh Kumar Jain Vs. State of A.P. 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 32 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 700 (AP) = 2013(3) ALT (Crl) 196 (AP).

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.482 - Quashing of charge-sheets - Three First Information Reports were filed against NVRR, Supt., in Court of Junior Civil Judge, for offences u/Secs.487, 380 r/w Sec.511, 380 -0, 447 and 379 of IPC - Petitioner contends that Junior Civil Judge developed some grouse against petitioner who is Supt., of Court to take vengeance against him he got implicated petitioner in present cases - High Court while exercise jurisdiction u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C cannot adopt mechanical or casual approach - High Court is under duty to scrutinize allegations in complaint charge-sheet with care and caution - Therefore when obligations are so scrutiunized it would obviously appear that allegations are inherently improbable - Proper scrutiny and examination of facts of all cases would clearly reveal that for some oblique motu, petitioner who is Superintendent of Court was involved in cases - The way in which investigation proceeded with also indicates that it is biased and petitioner/accused is made to face trial of cases, it is nothing but obuse of process of law and it would result in miscarriage of justice

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

- All cases are liable to be quashed in exercise of power u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C. N.Venkata Rami Reddy Vs. The Sub-Inspector of Police, Kuppam P.S. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 146 = 2013(2) ALD(Crl) 367 (AP).

—Sec.482 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.21 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.409 - FIR - Quashing of - High Court refusing to quash FIR lodged against appellant u/Sec.409 IPC - Appellant/accused posted as LDC in the District Literarcy Education Office - As per report of Auditor General embezzlement of certain amount by appellant has been discovered - Therefore, on basis of report given by Auditor General FIR filed against appellant -In this case, during investigation inspite of Police informed that original copies of bills and another documents are not available and therefore no investigation would be made - Appellant also was exonerated from charges in Departmental enquiry - Appellant having waited for six years preferred present petition u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C before High Court to set aside FIR - High Court by impugned order chose not to interfere with FIR and left matter in hands of Authorities - Hence SLP filed by appellant - In this case, during investigation inspite of several requests made by Investigating Agency (Police) records in respect of allegations were not produced and no evidence came against appellant from file of Education Department - As apparent from enquiry report, original records not available for 9 years - There is nothing on record even by way of counter affidavit filed before Supreme Court to show that record has now been traced to make available to Investigating Agency - There is no probability of finding out original documents or evidence mentioned in counter affidavit - On other hand silence on part of respondent regarding availability of original records or other evidence before Investigating Agency shows delay caused due to inaction on part of respondent - Keeping investigation pending for further period will be futile as respondent, Director for State Literacy Programme is not sure whether original records can be procured for investigation and to bring home charges - Considering delay in present case, is caused by respondent, constitutional guarantee of speedy investigation and trial under Art.21 of Constitution is there by violated - As appellant has already been exonerated in Departmental proceedings for identical charges, keeping case pending against appellant for investigation, is unwarranted - FIR quashed. Lokesh Kumar Jain Vs. State of Rajasthan 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 221.

——-Sec.482 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.307 r/w Sec.34 - Cognizable offence - High Court Quashed F.I.R registered u/Sec.307 r/w Sec.34 of IPC - High Court could not have been quashed in such a serious case as against the public policy and administration of Criminal justice system

In this case, FIR discloses commission of cognizable offence u/Sec.307 r/w Sec.34 of IPC - Considering nature of the allegation, it is necessary to investigate further in facts and circumstances of instant case

"Offence u/Sec.307 r/w Sec.34 of IPC cannot be wiped out by compromise" - High Court erred in quashing FIR hence order passed by the High Court is set aside

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

- Appeal allowed. State of M.P. Vs. Rajiveer Singh 2016(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 28 = 2016(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 40 = AIR 2016 SC 2210 = 2016 Cri. LJ 2683 (SC) = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 58 (SC).

—Sec.482 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.409 - PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1988, Secs.13(1)(d), 13(2), 17(a), 19 - Petitioner, a retired employee - Case booked by a CBI Inspector u/Secs.13(1)(d), 13(2) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, and u/Sec.409 of IPC - Petitioner failed 1) in establishing that Investigation Officer had no power to investigate case u/Sec.17 of P.C. Act; 2) to show that offences under above Sections are not applicable to this case; and 3) to show that I.O. was complainant himself - But, petitioner succeeded in showing that prosecution failed to obtain approval and permission from concerned Government to prosecute him - Held, case against petitioner is not maintainable and is quashed - Criminal Petition allowed. V.Suryanarayana Vs. The State, 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 617.

—Sec.482 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.494, 495, 420, 417 & 498-A - Complaint filed against petitioner for alleged cheating of victim woman and her parents by stating that his first wife died after delivering two of his children who are studying by staying in Hostel, even though his first wife is very much alive and living with him and that by making said false and fraudulent representation, accused married victim woman - Petitioner contend that Sec.198(1) proviso (c) of Cr.P.C bars taking cognizance of case relating to offences punishable u/Sec.494 and 495 I.P.C - Admittedly, victim is second wife of petitioner who is said to have married hereby suppressing fact of his first wife living - Therefore prima facie marriage between petitioner and second respondent is void and therefore it cannot be said that alleged harassment and cruelty meted out by petitioner towards her attracts penal provision u/Sec.498-A IPC - Petition partly allowed quashing proceedings on file of Magistrate in so far as offence u/Sec.498-A IPC - Partly dismissed in so far as offences u/Secs.494,417 and 420 IPC. A.Subsh Babu Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 298.

—Sec.482 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.498-A - Appellant married second respondent who is his close relative and who lost her husband in year 1995 after having two sons through first marriage - Appellant working at Saudi Arabia and used to send money to second respondent and behaved with her very affectionately - Subsequently, believing wrong information sent by his parents, appellant stopped sending money and sending letters to second respondent and never used to come to her house whenever he came on leave - Due to such treatment meted out to her, respondent has been suffering both mentally and physically - Hence FIR by second respondent, basing on which case registered against appellant - High Court without issuing any notice, rejected petition filed u/Sec.482 of Code, holding that by no stretch of imagination it can be said that FIR and charge-sheet do not disclose commission of offence alleged against appellant -

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

SCOPE AND POWER OF QUASHING OF FIR AND CHARGE-SHEET - Stated - Power is exercised by Court to prevent abuse of process of law and Court but such a power could be exercised only when complaint filed by complainant or charge-sheet filed by Police did not disclose any offence or when said complaint is found to be frivolous, vexatious or oppressive - IPC, Sec.498-A - "Cruelty" - Meaning of - Provision would be applicable only to such a case where husband or relatives of husband of woman subjects said woman to cruelty - In order to understand meaning of expression 'cruelty' as envisaged u/Sec.498-A, there must be such a conduct on part of husband or relatives of husband of woman which is of such a nature as to cause woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health whether mental or physical of woman - In this case, on reading of FIR as also charge-sheet filed against appellant no case u/Sec.498-A is made our on face of record - Hence both FIR and charge-sheet are liable to be quashed in exercise of powers u/Sec.482 of Cr.P.C - High Court failed to appreciate facts in proper perspective and therefore committed an error on face of record - Proceedings initiated against appellant u/Sec.498-A, quashed - Appeal, allowed. Shakon Belthissor Vs. State of Kerala 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 12 = 2009(2) ALD (Crl) 497 (SC) = 2009(5) Supreme 281.

—Sec.482 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.498-A - Wife of petitioner filed Report to Inspector of Police alleging that her husband, retired Govt., Officer fell in trap of a lady who has been engaged as a caterer and she has been maintaining illicit relationship and basing on said report, crime registered for offence u/Sec.498-A IPC, and "man missing" - Petitioner contends that respondent/complainant lodge report with Police on some misgivings when petitioner left for other States to attend various Seminars and that even if entire allegations in complaint are taken into consideration, no ingredients of Sec.498-A IPC are made out and that mere illicit intimacy of husband does not amount to "cruelty" as described in terms of explanation appended to Sec.498-A IPC - Only allegation against petitioner in complaint presented by complainant/respondent is that he maintained illicit relationship with one lady and that word "cruelty" having been defined in terms of explanation of Sec.498-A, no other meaning can be attributed thereto - Living with another woman may be an act of "cruelty" on pat of husband for purpose of judicial separation or dissolution of marriage, but same would not attract wrath of Sec.498-A IPC - Therefore continuance of proceedings against petitioner in crime amounts to abuse of process of law - Proceedings in crime are quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Movva Raja Ram Vs. State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 168 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 334 (AP).

—Sec.482 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.498-A & 326 - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Secs.4 & 6 - Petitioner de-facto complainant lodged complaint against respondents, accused for harassing her physically and mentally and demanding additional dowry and FIR registered under said provisions - SHO filed final report after recording statement of complainant, her parents and brothers, stating that case of complainant is false with plea to close matter - Petitioner contends that without giving any notice to petitioner/complainant, final report was accepted by Magistrate and in fact no statements of her parents and brothers and herself were recorded by SHO and false statement was given by SHO and therefore final report and also taking cognizance of it by Magistrate are not tenable and hence matter is to be reopened and further requested to order afresh investigation of case through Women Protection Cell - It is quite emphatical that complainant is alleging without recording statement of her parents and brothers, SHO sent final report claiming that case of complainant happened to be nothing but false - When such a claim is made it is necessary to ascertain as to whether that fact is true or not - When complainant filed complaint before Magistrate and it was forwarded to SHO u/Sec.156(3) for necessary investigation and report and subsequently SHO filed final report, Magistrate should have given a notice to complainant and also give her opportunity of being heard before accepting final report - Therefore Magistrate committed error in doing so under such circumstances - Order of Magistrate accepting final report, set aside - Magistrate directed to give notice to complainant and to hear both parties and pass appropriate orders taking in to consideration representation made by counsel for complainant for conducting necessary investigation through Women Protection Cell - Criminal writ petition according disposed of. Ateyaka Fatima Khatoon Vs. State 2012(1) Law Summary 103 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 553(AP) = 2012(2) ALT (Crl) 58(AP).

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.482 - PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION ACT, 1954, Secs. 2(ia),(m) and Sec.7(i) r/w sec.16(1) and Sec.13(2) - Sample of ground nut oil was lifted from petitioner/accused on 7-7-2-004 - Public analyst Report dt:10-8-2011, shows that sample did not conform to standard of beliers test and complaint filed on 26-6-2006 - Petitioner contend that there is delay of more than about 1 year 10 month in filing complaint or launching prosecution from date of Analyst Report and nearly two years from date of lifting samples and therefore petitioners have lost their valuable right of getting second sample of ground nut oil analysed by Central Food Laboratory - According to sec.34 of Act, report of CFL Analyst supersedes report of SFL Analyst and report of former shows that there is no adulteration, prosecution cannot be launched and because of delay in launching prosecution second sample has become unfit for analysis by FSL and consequently case should be quashed as petitioners are denied valuable opportunity of getting second sample analysed by CFL as contemplated u/ Sec.13(2) of Act - Public prosecutor contends that petitioners can raise all their contentions in trial Court including plea for discharge and therefore High Court should not interfere in matter - Mere delay in launching prosecution is not by itself a ground for quashing case unless accused shows that prejudice has been caused to him on account of delay - In present case it is true that there is delay of two years in launching prosecution from date of lifting sample - However petitioners would not place any material before Court to show that second sample of ground nut oil has become useless or unfit for analysis by CFL - In view of law laid down in division bench decision of Hon'ble High Court of AP., it follows that this petitioner has to fail and same is, accordingly dismissed. J.Shravan Kumar Vs. State of A.P. 2012(1) Law Summary 313 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 569 (AP) = 2012(1) ALT(CrL) 168 (AP).

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Sec.482 - PROTECTION OF WOMEN FROM DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ACT, 2005, Secs.2 (q), 2-A, 18, 19 & 22 - 1st respondent/wife filed complaint against husband, parents-in-law, including sister-in-law, seeking reliefs of separate residence, compensation etc. - Contention that provisions of Act would not attract against petitioners 1 & 3 as u/ Sec.2 (q) of Act, women are not liable and reliefs that are not being claimed by petitioners can be granted against husband only, and not from any other member of family, including present second petitioner, father-in-law - "Respondent" - "Aggrieved person" - "Protection order" - Meaning of - Female members cannot be made respondents in proceedings under Act - Proceedings are liable to be quashed as far as petitioners nos.1 & 3 are concerned - Petition allowed to extent of petitioner Nos.1 & 3. Menakuru Renuka Vs. Smt. Menakuru Mohan Reddy 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 367.

—-Sec.482 – REPRESENTATION OF PEOPLE ACT, Secs.171(c), 188 and 127 – POLICE ACT, Sec.32 – Police filed proceedings against petitioners-accused that they are alleged to have conducted public meeting at 22.20 hours in view of ensuing fourthcoming elections 2009.

Petitioners-accused contend that allegations of complaint do not attract ingredients of offences alleged and that no unofficial witnesses nor any of members, who attended meeting was cited as witness in charge sheet and persons who filed complaint is neither competent person nor a public servant, who promulgated orders as required u/Sec.195 of Cr.P.C.

Held, persons who filed complaint is neither competent person nor a person, who promulgated orders, and therefore, complaint filed by Police Officer, who is not a competent person, is not maintainable – Complaint does not show whether there is any obstruction, annoyance or injury caused to person who lawfully empowered to promulgate orders or caused any disobedience or tend to cause danger to human life in view of conducting meeting, therefore in absence of establishment of any specific overt acts of offences alleged, no proceedings initiated against petitions-accused can be continued - Accordingly, proceedings initiated against petitioners-accused are quashed. Balineni Srinivasa Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 313.

—Secs.482, 125 and 127(2) - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.45,112,120 & 114 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.21 - "DNA Test" - Respondents 1 & 2 daughter and wife filed MC against petitioner/ husband to award amounts towards their maintenance - Petitioner/husband contends that 1st respondent/wife is guilty of adultery and 2nd respondent not born to him and she was born to 1st respondent by virtue of her adultery with different male person and by reason of which he got no responsibility to provide maintenance to 2nd petitioner - Family Court dismissed Cril.M.P U/SEC.45 OF EVIDENCE ACT, filed by petitioner/husband seeking to send 2nd respondent/ daughter for DNA Test for purpose of determining as to whether he happened to be her natural father for purpose of awarding maintenance to her as pleaded in MC - Petitioner contends that if 2nd respondent refused to submit her self for medical examination an adverse inference can be drawn against her within meaning of Sec.114 of Evidence Act - Respondents/wife and daughter contends that complling daughter/ 2nd respondent to undergo DNA Test against her consent is against principles of testimonial compulsion as guaranteed under Art.21 of Constitution of India - Sec.125 Cr.P.C provides a swift and cheap remedy against any person who, despite means, neglects wife, minor children - Having a social purpose, Sec.125 Cr.P.C and sister clauses in their interpretation must receive a compassionate expanse of sense that words permit - In this generous jurisdiction a broader perception and appreciation of facts and their bearing must govern verdic not chopping little logic or tinkering with burden of proof - Objection of section is to prevent destitution on public grounds and vagrancy and it is a summary procedure which does not cover entirely same grounds as civil liability of husband or father or son under his personal law to maintain his wife or child or parents - Thereby it is clear that proceedings are purely civil in nature for which relevant provisions of Cr.P.C are made applicable - Criminal petition, allowed. Soma Rama Chandram Vs. State of A.P. 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 19 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 397 (AP) = 2013 Cri. LJ 1351 (AP) = 2013(2) ALT (Crl) 101.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.482 & 156 - Complaint filed against accused for alleged offence u/Sec.498-A - Petitioners seek quashing of proceedings on ground that all alleged acts of ill-treatment and harassment have taken place only at Hyderabad and no part of cause of action arose at Vijayawada and therefore Police at Vijayawada have no jurisdiction to investigate - Sec.156(2) Cr.P.C contains an embargo that no proceeding of Police Officer shall be challenged on ground that he has no territorial power to investigate - In present case, matter is only at threshold stage of investigation and further investigation cannot be quashed on ground of territorial jurisdiction for police to investigate - Criminal petition, dismissed. Thota Sambasiva Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 61 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 948(AP) = 2009(2) APLJ 248 = 2009(2) ALT (Crl) 359(AP) = 2009 Cri. LJ 3679 (AP).

—Secs.482 & 156(3) - De facto complainant filed private complaint against her husband-in-laws and other close relatives - Magistrate forwarded private complaint filed by de facto complainant against petitioner's/ - Police after conducting investigation filed charge sheet against petitioners/ accused u/Sec.498-A, 506, 323 r/w 34 IPC - Petitioners/ accused contend that disputes are between, 2nd respondent and her husband 1st accused and other petitioners A2 to A6 are no way responsible but they are falsely implicated in present case by 2nd respondent/wife and that involving all close relatives of A1, husband is nothing but abuse of process of law - Petitioners further contend that Supreme Court expressed serious concern about genuine cases of dowry harassment deprecated practice of creating exaggerated versions of small incidents and also stressed need to scrutinize allegations in matrimonial matters need to be scrutinized with great care and circumspection, especially against husband's relatives who were living in different cities and never visited or rarely visited matrimonial home of complainant - It is duty of High Court while acting u/sec.482 Cr.P.C. to scrutinize allegations in complaint to find out whether there is a prima facie truth in allegations levelled against accused - In this case, petitioners are residents of different place and all of them went to place of de facto complainant at her parents house and allegedly assaulted at her parents house where she had several relatives and friends and this allegation obviously seems to be improbable and it would appear that to rope in all close relatives of her husband, 2nd respondent/wife invented incident and file complaint in Magistrate Court at her parent's place - Main incident in this case, which is alleged against petitioners appears to be unnatural and improbable and if case is allowed to be continued against petitioners and to face trial and it would cause substantial in justice and undue hardship to petitioners - Entire proceedings in CC are quashed, Criminal petition, allowed. Tummala Ramnarayana Vs. State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 3 = 2013(2) ALD(Crl) 293 (AP).

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.482 & 156(3) - Private complaint filed u/Secs. 420, 406 & 415 IPC against petitioners - Police investigated into matter and filed charge sheet against petitioners - Petitioners contend that even accepting allegations made in charge sheet to be true, no offence is made out against petitioners and it is purely a civil dispute and issue involved in present case is already decided by District Forum which was upheld by State Commission and that initiation of proceedings after judgment of State Commission is only with a view to wreck vengeance against petitioners and same has been instituted with a mala fide intention - When a complaint is sought to be quashed u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C it is permissible to look into material to assess what complainant has alleged, and whether any offence is made out even if allegations are accepted in toto - In these case, agreement of sale between 1st petitioner and 2nd respondent which is subject matter of dispute in present case, is dated 3-8-2005 - There is absolutely no explanation as to why complainant has not come forward with said complaint atlest after disposal of case by District Forum on 20-9-2007, wherein a categorical finding was given with regard to agreement of sale - Nearly three years after execution of agreement of sale, a private complaint is filed questioning very execution of agreement of sale in favour of 1st petitioner in year 2009 - Chagrined and frustrated litigants should not be permitted to give vent to their frustrations by cheeply invoking jurisdiction of criminal Court - Court proceedings ought not to be permitted to degenerate into a weapon of harassment and persecution - In this case, it is apparent that private complaint was filed only after meeting her waterloo in District Forum - Obviously it has been done with a view to harass petitioners and with a view to wreck vengence against them - Hence, continuation of proceedings against petitioners would amount to abuse of process of law - Criminal petition, allowed - Proceedings in CC are quashed. T.Suvarna Vs. State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 121.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.482 & 164 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.420 - "Quashing of criminal proceedings" - Basing on complainant given by 2nd respondent criminal cases registered against petitioners/employees of Bank for offences punishable u/Sec.468, 471,498,406,420, r/w Sec.109 IPC for alleged collusion and impersonation in availing credit facility in Bank by depositing fake title deeds - Petitioners contend that allegations made against them in complaint as well as charge sheet are only procedural lapses in discharging their official functions and so initiation of criminal proceedings against them in absence of any accusation or allegation of abetment on their part in commission of offence is an abuse of process of law - Averments made against petitioners either in report or in charge sheet, prima facie do not constitute any offence much less charges framed against them and if proceedings against them are allowed to continue, it is nothing but harassment and even abuse of process of law, and so same are liable to be quashed - Violation of any circulars and instructions and commission of administrative irregularities cannot be said to have been done by official concerned with any corrupt or dishonest intention and such irregularities are administrative lapses could only have resulted in a departmental action against officials but criminal prosecution is not justified - While deciding a petition u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C, High Court should not act as a trial Court and appraise evidence to be adduced by parties to find out if ultimately accused would be convicted or acquitted and that High Court has to go by allegations in complaint/ charge-sheet only and only if allegations in complaint/charge-sheet if taken to be true, do not constitute an offence, charge sheet can be quashed - In this case, statement of complaint and Chief Manager (Vigilance Department) recorded u/Sec.164 Cr.P.C are only procedural lapses in discharging their officials functions and so initiation of criminal proceeding against them in absence of any accusation or allegation of abetment on their part in commission of offence is abuse of process of law and if proceedings against them are allowed to continue, it is nothing but harassment and even abuse of process of law and so same are liable to be quashed - - Criminal petitions, allowed. J.Sri Ram Surya Prakash Sharma Vs. State of A.P. 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 18 = 2011(1) ALD (Crl.) 207 (AP) = 2011(1) ALT (Crl.) 185 (AP) = 2011 Cri. LJ 2027 (AP).

—Secs.482 & 188 - Respondent/wife married appellant/husband and lived with him for one month and eight days in India and USA - Allegation that respondent/wife was subjected to cruelty and harassment by husband and his parents - Appellant/husband charged for offences u/Secs.498-A and 406 IPC r/w Secs.3,4 & 6 of Dowry Act - Magistrate took cognizance of case - Appellants contend that proceedings are barred by time and in face of decree of divorce passed by Superior Court at USA and fact that respondent/wife contracted marriage with some other person and that alleged offences committed outside India cannot be enquired into or tried without obtaining sanction of Central Government - Single Judge of High Court refusing to quash proceedings holding that Magistrate had taken cognizance within three years - Appellant contends that single Judge committed error by refusing to quash proceedings ignoring fact that Magistrate took cognizance after almost four years of last act of alleged cruelty committed against respondent/wife and proceedings of criminal case of appellant amounts to abuse of process of law and that High Court is duty bound to quash proceedings which are barred by time - While deciding petition filed for quashing FIR or complaint or restraining competent authority from investigating allegations contained in FIR or complaint for stalling trial of case, High Court should be extremely careful and circumspect - If allegations contained in FIR or complaint discloses commission of some crime, then High Court must keep its hands off and allow investigating agency to complete investigation without any fetter - High Court should not go into merits and demerits of allegations and must also refrain from making imaginary journey in realm of possible harassment which may be caused to petitioner on account of FIR or complaint - In this case admittedly, after marriage respondent/wife lived with appellant/husband for less than one and half months and marriage was dissolved by Superior Court at USA and wife not challenged decree of divorce and in fact she married another person and has two children from second marriage and as on to day a period of almost nine yeas has elapsed of marriage of appellant and respondent and seven from her second marriage - Therefore at this belated stage, there does not appear to be any justification for continuation of proceedings - Order of single Judge, set aside and proceedings of criminal case pending in Court of Magistrate, quashed. Sanapareddy Maheedhar Seshagiri Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 157.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

—Secs.482 & 190 - "Maintainability of second complaint" - Complaint filed against accused for offences punishable u/Secs.482, 386, r/w Sec.34 - Further another complaint with same set of allegations but had withdrawan by filing Memo not pressing complaint - Accused contends that present complaint filed with same set of allegations is nothing but gross abuse of process of law and that complainant suppressed in present complaint which is filed with same set of allegations that earlier complaint was filed by him and same was withdrawn on his own volition - Complainant contends that earlier complaint was only withdrawan without disposing of it on merits which therefore cannot be taken as a bar to file subsequent complaint and if proceedings are quashed prematurely, lot of injustice would be caused to him - When complainant did not press first complaint, it amounts to that he ceased of matter once for all, unless he sought and obtained necessary permission giving reasons for filing second complaint - Prosecution of innocent persons without any basis is unnecessary harassment of them which cannot be permitted - It is cardinal principles of criminal jurisprudence that nobody should be prosecuted and subjected to harassment unless sufficient grounds are shown to do so in respect of any criminal charge - Complainant has to give reasons as to under what circumstances he had withdrawan first complaint, failing which second complaint filed on basis of same set of facts and circumstances is not maintainable - In this case, in fact no reasons are given for filing S econd complaint and no exceptional circumstances are shown in order to take second complaint on file - Criminal petition, allowed, proceedings in CC are quashed. Narni Sudhakar Vs. State of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 215.

—Secs.482,197 & 156(3) - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.332,186 and 506 r/w 32 - Petitioners/accused who are Officials of Municipality - Pursuant to orders of

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE:

Commissioner Municipality demolished compound wall which was constructed by 1st respondent/ de facto complainant by encroaching public road and since 1st respondent caused obstrution to duties of petitioners Report lodged by petitioners to Police and crime registered against 1st respondent for offences u/Sec.332 and 186 of IPC and ultimately he was convicted and sentenced to undergo RI for one year on Appeal sentence was modified to fine - 1st respondent in retaliation as counter blast lodged Report falsely alleging that petitioners trespassed in to his house and demolished compound wall beat him and caused injuries to him - Magistrate took cognizance of offence u/Sec.332,186,506, r/w 34 IPC against petitioners - Present petition filed to quash proceedings in saidcase - Petitioners contend that act complained of allegedly done by petitioners in discharge of their official duties, sanction u/Sec.197 Cr.P.C is required before taking cognizance of offence against them and therefore complaint is liable tobe quashed - 1st respondent/complaint conteneds that Magistrate took cognizance of offence against petitioners and also dismissed petition filed by petitioners seeking discharge and that respondnt/complainant was treated in hospital as inpatient for three days and case is required to be tried by Magistrate - While exercising jurisdiction u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C Court should not adopt a mechanical or causal approach, it is under a duty to scrutinize averments of complaint and statements of witness if any with a view to ascertain whether proceedings initiated to result in miscarriage of justice if allowed to continue - In this case, when petitioners with their men could be able to demolish compound wall inspite of obstruction caused by 1st respondent/ complainant there was no necessity for petitioners who are officials of Municipality either to abuse or beat - Version of petitioners that in process of obstruction caused by 1st respondent some briks fell on his feet and there by he received injuries appears to be truthful and convincing - If version of respondent that petitioners beat him with briks on his feet is found to be false and act of demolishing being made by petitioners on orders of Commissioner Municipality certainly sanction is required u/Sec.197 Cr.P.C to prosecute petitioners before taking cognizance - Therefore present complaint is bad for sanction required u/Sec.197 Cr.P.C - If case of this nature is allowed to continue and petitioners are made to face trial of case, it is nothing but abuse of process of Court and High Court is under a duty to prevent in exercise of power u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C otherwise it will ultimately result in due hardship to petitioners who are discharging official duties now at various places by virtue of their employment and it will result miscarriage of justice - Complaint filed by 1st respondent is false and frivolous which is liable to be quashed - Accordingly entire proceedings in CC on file of Magistrate are quashed. B.Vasudeva Chary Vs. K.Mohan Reddy 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 215 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 659 (AP) = 2013(1) ALT (Crl) 268 (AP).

—Secs.482 & 319 - 2nd respondent/wife de facto complainant fled complaint against 5 persons u/Secs.498-A IPC and Secs.3 & 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act - A1 is husband and other accused alleged by complainant are kith and kin of her husband - After due investigation Police considered that no case was made out against other accused and deleting their names and charge-sheet laid against A1 alone - Magistrate passing order taking cognizance against A1 only - While de facto complainant was deposing as P.W.1 and that she made allegations against petitioners, trial Judge considered it appropriate to array petitioners as A2 to A4 and consequently ordered summons to petitioners - Hence petitioners contend that Magistrate could not have and should not have issued summonses without prior notice to them - When Court proposes to include new parties as accused a reasoned order is expected by Court - In this case, order assailed is cryptic and without reasons and therefore order assailed deserves to be set aside - However, Trial Court may consider arraying petitioners as co-accused by passing reasoned order - Impugned order, set aside, on ground that it is not a reasoned order - Criminal revision case, allowed. Korla Triveni Sri Sankalalpa Vs. State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 183 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 379 (AP).

CRIMINAL TRIAL:

CRIMINAL TRIAL:

—"Interested eye-witness" - Credibility - Accused charged for offences u/Secs.147,148 & 302 IPC - Trial Court convicting accused placing reliance on evidence of P.W.6 who is brother of deceased - High Court dismissed appeals filed by appellants/accused - Appellants/accused contend that P.W.6 had not implicated appellants and he being only eye-witness on whose version conviction was recorded, trial Court and High Court should not have found them guilty - Merely because eye witnesses are family members their evidence cannot per se be discarded - When there is allegation of interestedness, same has to be established - Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of witness - Prosecution has clearly established accusation so far as accused No.1 is concerned - However prosecution has failed to establish accusation so far as accused No.7 and 6 are concerned - Appeal filed by A1 dismissed while appeal filed by A7 & A6 is allowed. Mohabbat Vs. State of M.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 119.

—Trial Court acquitted accused holding that charges framed against accused were not proved beyond reasonable doubt - High Court allowed appeal preferred by State and set aside judgment and order of trial Court and ordered for conviction of accused - If prosecution case supported by two injured eye-witnesses and if their testimony is consistent before Police and Court and corroborated by Medical evidence, their testimony cannot be discarded - Evidence of injured witnesses has greater evidentiary value and unless compelling reasons exist, their statements are not to be discarded lightly - In this case, there is no denial of fact that defence admitted genuineness of injury reports and post mortem examination reports before trial Court - Genuineness and authenticity of documents stands proved and shall be treated as valid evidence u/Sec.294 Cr.P.C - If genuineness of any document filed by any party is not disputed by opposite party it can be read as substantial evidence under sub-Sec.(3) of Sec.294 of Cr.P.C - Evidence adduced in this case, clearly established involvement of accused/ appellant on date of occurrence - Judgment and order passed by High Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Akhtar Vs. State of Uttaranchal 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 16 = 2009(2) ALD(Crl) 522 (SC) = 2009(3) Supreme 220 = 2009 AIR SCW 3831.

CRIMINAL TRIAL:

—Session Judge convicting accused for offences u/Secs.143,148,307,302 & 504 IPC - High Court acquitting some accused - In this case, there is over- whelming evidence to show that incident took place in village - Once genesis of occurrence is proved, contradictions which are minor in nature would not be sufficient to dispel entire prosecution case - It is true that all three prosecution witnesses we have been relied upon by Courts below are interested witnesses - It must, however be borne in mind that despite existence of their animosity, keeping in view relationship between parties, it is unlikely that they would be falsely implicated - All prosecution witnesses are natural witnesses - Essential ingredients to prove crime against accused have categorically been stated by them and both Courts below have placed implicit reliance on their testimonies - Only because other witnesses turned hostile, same should not by itself be a ground for coming to conclusion that incident has not taken place - Contention that only because some co-accused have been acquitted, same by itself should be a ground for recording a judgment of acquittal of appellants, cannot be accepted - Appeal, dismissed. Gurunath Donkappa Keri Vs. State of Karnataka 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 98 = 2009(2) ALD (Crl) 250(SC) = 2009(4) Supreme 302 = 2009 Cri. LJ 2995(SC) = 2009 AIR SCW 3540.

— and INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.302,148,149 and 323 - ARMS ACT, Sec.27- Evidence of prosecution witnesses - Conviction of accused - - Trial Court sentenced convicted A2 u/Sec.302 to suffer life imprisonment and acquitted A1, A3, A4, A5, & A6 - State filed appeal against acquittal of accused, A2 filed appeal against conviction - High Court modified conviction of A2 from Sec.302, to Sec.302 r/w Sec.149 - In this case, P.Ws.1, 4 and 8 are not only much interested in prosecution but they are enimically disposed towards accused party as well - To find out intrinsic worth of these witnesses it is appropriate to test their trust- worthiness and credibility in light of collateral and surrounding circumstances as probabilities and in conjunction with all other facts brought out on record - There are more serious infirmities in evidence of eye witnesses - Conviction cannot be based on uncorroborated, inconsistent evidence suffering from significant improve-ments and omissions - A1, A3, A4, A5 and A6 in crime beyond reasonable doubt as regards A6 State conceded that there was no reliable evidence to prove his involvement in crime - Hence, appellants are entitled to benefit of doubt - Judgment of acquittal passed by trial Court in their favour restored. Jalpat Rai Vs. State of Haryana, 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 22 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 185(SC) = AIR 2011 SC 2719 = 2011 AIR SCW 4222 = 2011 Cri. LJ 4295 (SC) = 2011(14) SCC 208 = 2012(3) SCC(Cri) 1285.

—First Information Report (FIR) - Delay of two days - Time of two hours delay cannot be said to be used to falsely implicate accused due to the previous enmity - Although defence has been able to point out certain discrepancies and omissions in deposition, such discrepancies and omissions in deposition of witness are only minor and not very material and in any case do not shake trustworthiness of witness - Concurrent findings of High Court and trial Court that prosecution evidence is sufficient to bring home guilt of A1 as well beyond very reasonable doubt - Hence need not be interfered - Evidence Act, Sec.154 - Evidence of "hostile witness" remains admissible evidence and it is open to Court to relay upon dependable part of that evidence which is found to be acceptable and duly corroborated by some other reliable evidence available on record - Judgment of High Court confirming conviction of A2 & A3 u/Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 IPC - Justified - Appeals, dismissed. Himanshu @ Chintu Vs. State of NCT of Delhi 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 39.

DISSOLUTION OF MUSLIM MARRIAGE ACT, 1939:

—-and EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.9 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.302 r/w Sec.34 & 120-B - ARMS ACT, Sec.27 - "Motive" - "Deficiency in investigation" - "Murder" - "Test identification period" - "Death penalty" - Deceased, sitting MLA while riding pillion seat of motorcycle was shot dead by appellants - Trial Court convicting appellants/accused to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life u/Sec.302 and 120-B IPC - High Court enhanced sentence imposed upon appellants/accused from life to death - MOTIVE - Proof of motive as an essential requirement for bringing home and guilt of accused - Even if prosecution succeeds in establishing a strong motive for commission of offence, but evidence of eye witnesses is found unreliable or unworthy of credit existence of motive does not by itself provide a safe basis for convicting accused - Absence of motive would not therefore by itself make any material difference - But would motive is proved it would lead support of prosecution version - TEST IDENTIFICATION PARADE - Cr.P.C does not oblige investigating agency to necessarily hold a test identification parade nor is their any provision under which accused may claim a right to holding of test identification parade - Failure of investigating agency to hold test identification parade does not in that view have effect of weakening evidence of identification Court - Failure to make a reference to Forensic Science Laboratory - Such deficiency does not necessarily lead to conclusion that prosecution case is totally unworthy of credit - Deficiencies in investigation by way of omissions and lapses on part of investigating agency cannot themselves justify total rejection of prosecution case - In a case where investigating Officer has reasons to be leave that a particular witness is an eye witness to occurrence but he does not examine him without any possible explanation for any such omission, delay may assume importance and require Court to closely scrutinize and evaluate version of witness - Mere delay in examine such a witness would not ipso facto render testimony of witness suspect or affect prosecution version - High Court not justified in imposing extreme penalty of death upon appellants - Trial Court did not find it to be a rarest of rare case and remain contends with award of life sentence only which sentence High Court enhance to death - Considering all circumstances, death sentence awarded to appellants deserves to be commuted to life imprisonment - Judgments and orders under appeal affirmed with modifications - Instead of sentence of death awarded by High Court, appellants shall suffers rigorous imprisonment for life - Appeal are allowed in part. Sheo Shankar Singh Vs. State of Jharkhand, 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 127 = AIR 2011 SC 1403 = 2011 AIR SCW 1845 = 2011 Cri. LJ 2139 (SC) = 2011(2) ALD (Crl.) 360 (SC).

DISSOLUTION OF MUSLIM MARRIAGE ACT, 1939:

—Sec.2(i) & 8(viii) - Appellant/wife filed O.P seeking dissolution of marriage on grounds of physial and mental harassment - Trial Court dismissed O.P - Hence present

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ACT,

Appeal - Appellant contends that respondent was also agreed for mutual divorce but he declined consent only when religious leaders informed him that he would be under obligation to return goods received at time of marriage with appellant and at negligence on part of respondent/husband to maintain appellant and their children for past several years would certainly constitutes basis for grant of divorce u/Sec.2(i) - In this case, record discloses that relationship between appellant and respondent was suffered strain for more than one decade and that one of ground pleaded by appellant/wife is that respondent neglected to maintain her and their children for period of exceeding two years - Though appellant is entitled to receive substantial amounts towards value of goods presented at time of marriage she does not intend to press for return of same - Appellant has made out a case for divorce under provisions of Act - Appeal, allowed. Dr.Syeda Fatima Manzelat Vs. Syed Sirajuddin Ahmed Quadri 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 265 = 2013(5) ALD 298 = 2013(5) ALT 675.

DIVORCE ACT:

—Sec.10 (x) - HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, Sec.13 (1) (ia) (ib) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.6, R.17 - Respondent-husband filed O.P against petitioner-wife seeking divorce u/ Sec.10(x) of Divorcee Act - Family Court allowed Application filed by respondent amending, provision of law, as Sec.13 (1) (ia) (ib) - Trial Court grossly erred in entertaining O.P itself when parties to proceedings are Hindus and enactment of Divorce Act is meant for those persons professing Christian religion - In fact trial Court should have rejected O.P at threshold - After coming to know of mistake respondent/husband filed present Application seeking amendment of provision which is not permissible under law - Impugned order, set aside - O.P filed by respondent is dismissed. V.Bhagyalaxmi Vs. V. Rahul Kuma 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 109.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ACT:

—AND PASSPORTS ACT, 1967, Sec.10(3)(h) - GENERAL CLAUSES ACT, 1897, Sec.27 - Petitioner filed Domestic Violence case against her husband/2nd respondent - Court below, after considering the oral and documentary evidence adduced on either side, awarded an amount of Rs.20,00,000/- towards compensation to petitioner and Rs.30,000/- per month towards maintenance against husband/2nd respondent, by an order - Aggrieved by same, husband/2nd respondent filed appeal before Metropolitan Sessions Judge, along with stay petition - Upon which, Metropolitan Sessions Court partly allowed appeal by staying execution of order for realization of compensation of Rs.20,00,000/- upon furnishing third party security, within a period of two weeks thereafter - As regards maintenance and costs are concerned, no stay was granted by appellate Court - However, 2nd respondent failed to pay same - When 2nd respondent had not attended Court proceedings and failed to comply orders, Non Bailable Warrant was issued against 2nd respondent by Metropolitan Magistrate - Thereafter, petitioner filed petition under Sec.10(3)(h) of Passports Act for revocation/ impounding passport of 2nd respondent - But said petition was returned on ground that it is not maintainable as Passports Act, 1967 has no application to domestic violence cases under DVC Act - Thereafter, petitioner approached 1st respondent for impounding passport of 2nd respondent through letter - Petitioner received letter from Passport Office stating that Sec.10(3) of Passports Act, 1967 is an enabling provision and not a mandatory one and requested petitioner to obtain orders from competent court to impound passport of 2nd respondent - Aggrieved by same, present writ petition is filed.

Held, As per Sec.10(8) of Act of 1967, an order of revocation under sub-section (7) may also be made by an appellate court or by High Court when exercising its powers of revision - But in present case, there is no conviction against 2nd respondent - However, non-Bailable Warrant was issued against him on 14.03.2014 but still 2nd respondent is not appearing, which is a serious matter and thus evading arrest - In instant case, since petitioner's case falls u/Sec.10(3)(h) of Act of 1967 as non-Bailable Warrant is pending against the 2nd respondent, it is for 1st respondent to consider case of petitioner in terms of Sec.10(3)(h) of Act and pass orders on application of petitioner.

Joint Secretary, Ministry of External Affairs issued Circular No.VI/401/1/1/2006, dated 04.06.2007 covering issue - In circumstances, 1st respondent cannot direct petitioner to obtain specific orders from Court for impounding passport of 2nd respondent - 1st respondent has not properly applied his mind when serious issue was brought to his notice, abdicating his power - The counter filed by respondent in D.Surendernath Reddy's case also supports petitioner's case - However, facts in D.Surendernath Reddy's case and in present case are different - Accordingly, letter No.30(454) Pol/2014, dated 20.10.2014 issued by 1st respondent is set aside - Following principle laid down in aforesaid decision of Hon'ble Apex Court, this writ petition is disposed of directing 1st respondent authority to reconsider application of petitioner for impounding passport of 2nd respondent by taking into account Sec.10(3)(h) of Passports Act, 1967, pass appropriate orders, in accordance with law, and communicate same to petitioner. K.Sowmya Vs. Regional Passport Officer 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 129 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 998 = 2016(6) ALT 327.

DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT,

DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, 1961 - Secs.2 to 4 & 6 - EVIDENCE ACT - Sec.113A - INDIAN PENAL CODE - Secs.107, 304, 304B, 306 & Sec.498A - CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE - Secs.174, & 319 - On a plain reading of Section 498-A, it transpires that if a married woman is subjected to cruelty by husband or his relative, offender is liable to be punished with sentence indicated in Section - But cruelty can be of different types and therefore what kind of cruelty would constitute offence has been defined under explanation. As per first definition contained in Clause (a) - It means a willful conduct of such a nature which is likely to drive victim woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injuries to health and life, limb or health (mental or physical) - The other definition of cruelty is in Clause (b) and is attracted when a woman is harassed with a view to coercing her or any of her relation to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure to meet such demand. Satish Shetty Vs. State of Karnataka 2016(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 31 = AIR 2016 SC 2689 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 247.

DRUGS AND COSMETICS ACT, 1940:

—Sec.6 - Dowry amount or articles of married woman was placed in custody of his husband or in-laws, they would be deemed to be trustees of same - Person receiving dowry articles or the person who is dominion over the same, as per Sec.6 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, is bound to return the same within three months after the date of marriage to the woman in connection with whose marriage it is given - If he does not do so, he will be guilty of a dowry offence under this Section - Section further lays down that even after his conviction he must return the dowry to the woman within the time stipulated in the order. Bobbili Ramakrishna Raju Yadav Vs. State of A.P. 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 21 = 2016 Cri. LJ 1141 (SC) = AIR 2016 SC 442 = 2016(3) SCC 309.

DRUGS AND COSMETICS ACT, 1940:

—Sec.18(a)(i), r/w Sec.16,27(d) & 34 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Drug Inspector collected sample of CLOXEM KID Tablets and sent same to Govt. Analyst - Since Drug was not of standard quality as per report of Analyst complaint filed against A-1, Firm and A-2, Managing partner and other partners, A3, A4 & A6 - Petitioners contend that A-3, A-4, A-6 are only partners and were not in-charge of day-to-day business or affairs of A-1, Firm and it was only A-2 who was in-charge of affairs of Firm and manufacturing process and therefore prosecuting petitioners is not in accordance with law - Public Prosecutor contends that all partners are entitled to participate in running business of Firm and therefore all of them are liable including A-2 who is managing partner - Even as per Sec.34 one of Act, it is apparent that only those persons who were in-charge of and responsible to Company for conduct of business of Company are liable to be punished - Petitioners, A-3,A-4 & A-6 who are mere partners of A-1 Firm who have nothing to do with manafacturing process cannot be impleaded in comlainant for punishing them - Proceedings against petitioners in so far as A-3,A-4 & A-6, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Tumu Venkateswara Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 26.

—Sec.25(3) & (4) - Drug Inspector took samples of drug on 20-10-2008 by name "FYTE" from petitioner/Manufacturer - Since analyst report received with endorsement "not of standard quality", complainant issued notice dt:24-8-2009 to petitioner/accused informing about outcome of analysis of sample which was received by petitioner on 7-9-2009 - Consequently accused sent letter dt:1-10-2009 to complainant notifying that he is intending to challenge analyst report u/Sec.25(3) of Act - Trial Court dismissing petition filed by accused to send second sample for analysis as it is filed at a belated stage - Petitioner/accused contends that by virtue of Cl.3 of Sec.25 of Act upon receiving copy of analyst report together with notice, accused got a right to notify in writing Complainant or Court about his intention to adduce evidence in controversion of report following which either complainant or Court got obligation to send second sample to Central Drug Labouratory for analysis and report for purpose of deciding complicity of accused in matter finally - Sec.25 of Act provides procedure for taking samples and also consequential steps to be taken and it lays certain obligations as well as provides safeguards for a person from whom a drug has been seized for analysis or testing - In this case, it is not in dispute that expiry date of sample was 29-10-2009 - Therefore, in any case, because of expiry of life period of product or because of failure of complainant to take measures, valuable right of accused to prove his innocence was last - Hence impugned proceedings against accused are untenable - Criminal petition, allowed. Seelam Koti Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 163 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 105 = 2013(1) ALT (Crl) 217 (AP) = 2013 Cri. LJ 1058 (AP).

(INDIAN) EASEMENTS ACT, 1882,

—Secs.27(d), 27(c) & 22(3) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Drugs Inspector launched prosecution against A-1 to A-4 for dealing with spurious drugs Primolut-N - A-2 is managing partner of A-1 Firm - A-3 is partner of A-1 Firm - A-4 is being partner and not managing partner of A-1 shop and since A-4 was not present in shop when Drugs Inspector inspected shop and obtained samples - A-4 is partner and Registered Pharmacist of A-1 Firm - A4 contends that he being a partner and not managing partner of A-1 shop and since he was not present in shop when Drugs Inspector inspected shop and obtained samples - Hence, he cannot be impleaded as one of accused for prosecution against A-1 Firm - Without there being a registered Pharmacist present in shops no medical business can be transacted in that shop - Therefore A-4 being registered Pharmacist cum partner of A-1 Firm, he is a person involved in day-to-day medical business of A-1 Firm - In case a partner is also a registered Pharmacist of Firm doing medical business then such partner is invariably liable to be prosecuted along with Firm and Managing partner and other partners - Writ petition, dismissed. B.Upender Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 114.

(INDIAN) EASEMENTS ACT, 1882:

—-Secs.7 and 15 & 17(c) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.100 - The plaintiffs filed the suit for two reliefs, viz., to let out collected rain water and for injunction to restrain defendant from interfering with such right - The appeal was made by defendants which was confirmed by first appellate court - Therefore, this second appeal was filed by defendants.

Held, Section17(c) of the Act does not prohibit acquisition of easementary right regarding trickling water from higher to lower plots in well defined channel as held by Privy Counsel in BASWANTAPPA V. BHIMAPPA - It is also clear from Section 17 (c) of Act that such right to discharge excess water or collected rain water to land of lower owner only for purpose of discharging surface water and not any other water - But here plaintiffs wanted to discharge or let out excess or collected rain water from their land, who is upper land owner to land of defendant, who is lower land owner without any defined channel or stream.

EDUCATION:

Therefore, in view of bar under Section 17(c) of Act, plaintiffs cannot acquire an easement by prescription under Section 15 of Act and both Courts did not consider requirement to prescribe right to let out or discharge collected rain water or excess water in proper perspective and committed an error - Therefore, Decree of trial court and first appellate court are liable to be set aside holding that in view of prohibition contained under Section 17(c) of Act, plaintiffs cannot acquire easementary right by prescription under Section 15 of Act - Hence, plaintiffs are not entitled to a decree as claimed in suit.

In view of foregoing discussion, the findings of trial court and first appellate court are in totally ignorance of law laid down by this Court, and provisions of Indian Easements Act, particularly, Sections 7 and 17 (c) of Act - Hence, appeal is liable to be allowed, answering substantial question of law in favour of defendants and against plaintiff - In result, appeal is allowed in part at stage of admission, setting aside Decree passed by District Munsiff and Decree passed by Senior Civil Judge, to extent of granting declaration of permanent injunction restraining defendant from obstructing discharge of collected excess water to his land from land of plaintiff. Medapti Nagi Reddy Vs. Sathi Satyanarayana Reddy 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 305.

EDUCATION:

—Circular Memo No.12901, Social Welfare, E & D 2/2003/14, dt.30-6-2006 - G.O.Ms.No.4, dt.6-1-2005, Social Welfare - G.O.Ms.No.299, dt.8-9-2007, Health, Medical and Family Welfare (K-2 Department) - "Reimbursement of tution fee paid by SC students" - Petitioners/SC Physiotherapy Students Association contend that Circular Memo No.12901 issued by 1st respondent/Govt., restricting reimbursement of fees to extent of tution fee payable in respect of Govt., seats only, is contrary to G.O.Ms.No.4, dt.6-1-2005 - G.O.Ms.No.4 is very clear that Govt., sanctioned reimbursement of tution fee by Scheduled caste students admitted either under Govt., quota or management quota - It is explicit from said G.O that tution fee paid by SC students either under Govt., quota or Management quota is to be reimbursed - Circular Memo No.12901 dt.30-6-2006 restricting reimbursement of tution fee at rate payable to Govt., seat only - Unsustainable - Writ petition, allowed. Scheduled Caste Physiotherapy, Students Association Prakasam District Vs.Government of A.P. 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 302 = 2009(2) ALD (NOC) 26.

—Dr.N.T.R. UNIVERSITY OF HEALTH SCIENCES RULES, Rules 10.4,10.5.1 and 10.5.2 - "Maternity leave" and "Sick leave" - Petitioners 1 to 3 admitted to M.D Courses and paid examination fee and their applications forwarded to University - University raised objection as regards eligibility of petitioners to take examination on ground of lack of required attendance to Course - Petitioner contend that even according to rules of admission, women candidates are entitled to avail maternity leave of 120 days and male candidates shall be entitled to avail sick leave of 30 days and that mere availment of leave does not disentitle petitioners to appear examination, though rules mandates that results would be declared only after completion of stipulated length of course - As per rules petitioners 1 and 2 are entitled to avail maternity leave of 120 days and third petitioner is entitled for leave upto a maximum of 30 days - If leave period is treated as absence and petitioners are treated as in eligible very provision contained in rules, conferring benefit of leaves, would be defeated - In this case, petitioners have already been permitted to appear in examination, in compliance of interim directions issued by Court - Hence respondents are directed to publish results of petitioners and issue Memorandum of Marks, Provisional Certificate, etc., for courses studied by them - Writ petitions, allowed. Dr.G.Supriya Vs. Dr.N.T.R. University of Health Sciences 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 375.

ELECTRICITY LAWS:

ELECTION:

—REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1951, Secs.33 (1), 33(4) & 100(1)(c) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.329(b) & 226 - Returning Officer rejecting petitioner's nomination on ground that serial numbers furnished by proposers not tallied with those in voters list of constituency, and thereby number of proposers fell below required number of 10 as prescribed - Petitioner contends that Sec.33(4) of Act states that Returning Officer shall permit any inaccurate description or clerical, technical or printing error in nomination or electoral roll to be corrected and shall be over- looked - Respondent raised preliminary issue with regard to maintainability of writ petition, stating that Art.329(b) of Constitution of India barred High Court from exercising jurisdiction under Art.226 of Constitution - Once nomination paper of candidate was rejected, Act of 1951 provides for only one remedy, being by way of an election petition to be presented after election is over and there is no remedy provided at any intermediate stage - Thus interference even by Election Commission is such a situation is without jurisdiction - Interference in matter at this stage would invariably have effect of interrupting election process, requiring election machinery to review entire eligibility process - High Court would not interfere in matters of present nature in view of constitutional bar under Art.329(b) - Writ petition, dismissed on ground of maintainability. Seshagiri Rao Talluri Vs. State Election Commission 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.)173 = 2009(4) ALD 621 = 2009(4) ALT 273.

ELECTRICITY LAWS:

—B.P.Ms.No.671, dt.10-6-1987, Cl.7 - Petitioner/Cement Factory entered into agreement with respondent/APSEB for Contracted Maximum Demand (CMD) of 15000 KVA - Respondent issued bill indicating recorded maximum demand was 16320 KVA in addition to levying penalty for exceeding CMD - Petitioner contends though respondents are entitled to levy double charges in terms of Cl.7 on demand in excess of CMD, there is no basis for levy of double charges on energy, since there is no agreement in that context and also challenged validity of Cl.7 in so far as it enables respondents to levy

ELECTRICITY ACT, 2003:

penal charges on energy consumption and that respondents are not put to any loss and are paid for every unit of supply that is availed by petitioner - Respondents contend that demand on one hand, and energy, on other, are two different concepts and said Clause 7 is legal and proper and no exception can be taken to levy of amount against petitioner - In agreement between petitioner and respondents only limits of maximum demand are mentioned and no restriction is placed as to consumption of energy - These two operate in different fields - Maximum demand obligates supplier of energy to maintain supply at a specified intensity - It has nothing to do with volume of energy that can be utilized by consumer - In name of penalizing petitioner for crossing limits of maximum demand, respondents cannot derive double benefit by levying penal tariff on energy also - Therefore Cl.7 of B.P.Ms.No.671 in so far as it permitted levy of peal tariff of energy, proportionate to demand in excess of contracted limits is unreasonable, illegal and irrerational - Writ petition, allowed. Sri Vishnu Cements Vs. APSEB 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 99 = 2009(3) ALD 29.

—Concept of imposition of minimum charges presupposes that the licencee is in a state of readiness to supply power to its consumers - When Electricity deportment has itself expressed its inability to supply power to the extent of contracted demand of the consumers, it is wholly unreasonable for Electricity deportment to claim minimum charges from the consumers whose services are under disconnection during the Restriction & Control period - Restriction & Control Order does not contain exemption from payment of minimum charges on the Contracted Maximum Demand in respect of disconnected units – Hence it is not justified to levy minimum charges from date of disconnection till date of termination of agreement – Accordingly write allowed. Patancheru Steels Pvt. Ltd. Vs. APCPDCL Ltd. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 58 = 2015(2) ALD 110.

——This Appeal was filed by APSEB authorities who have been aggrieved by common judgment whereby and whereunder compensation of Rs.80,000/- and Rs.1,24,000/- in two Original Suits was granted for death of one person due to electrocution by a live electric wire - Held, defendants before taking plea of vis major should satisfy Court that they have taken all necessary precautions and safety measures by conducting periodical checkups to live wires and ensured that they were properly maintained and despite (safety measures in place) incident had occurred due to act of natural elements - However, as observed by trial Court they have not produced any record to show that they used to conduct periodical checkups to electric wires and transformers at place of incident - In that view of matter, mere defence plea of vis major is of no avail to defendants - This appeal filed by defendants is dismissed by confirming judgment of trial Court. Chairman, APSEB Vs. J.Vittal Swamy 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 474

ELECTRICITY ACT, 2003:

—Secs.39 & 44 – ELECTRICITY RULES, 2005, Rules 12 (5) – Pilferage of electrical energy – Complaint filed against respondent/Industry for alleged tapping of energy -

ELECTRICITY ACT, 2003:

Trial Court acquitted respondent/Industry – Special Court took charge sheet on file straight away and that a wrong person was tried - Prosecution contends that Special Court empowered to take cognizance of offences committed by respondent straight away and question of committal for special enactment does not arise - Special Court can definitely take cognizance of offences committed after introduction of Rules, without there being a committal order by a competent judicial Magistrate – Order of trial Court – Justified – Criminal appeal, dismissed. State of A.P. Vs. Porlakayala Rangaiah 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 298 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl.) 37 (AP) = 2009(1) ALT (Crl) 120 (AP).

—Sec.126 - Petitioner is a consumer of electricity supplied by the A.P. Eastern Power Distribution Company Limited - The petitioner's service connection was inspected by the Assistant Divisional Engineer/DEP-2, on 30.12.2010, during which, it was found that the petitioner was collecting Rs.8/- per unit + service charges at the rate of 10.3% from its customers as against Rs.5.40 ps being levied by the respondents - Based on this finding, respondent No.1/ADE has provisionally assessed Rs.8,41,652/- as the loss of energy for the alleged unauthorized use of electricity - In reply to the show-cause notice, the petitioner has denied unauthorized use of electricity - It has sought to justify collection of higher amount than the rate at which the respondents supplied power to the petitioner on various grounds - The fact, however, remains that the petitioner has specifically pleaded that the act complained of by the respondents does not fall within the provisions of Sec.126 of the Act - However, rejecting these objections, respondent No.2/SE has passed final assessment order on 30.04.2011 for a sum of Rs.7,88,177/- - Feeling aggrieved by the same, the petitioner has filed an appeal before respondent No.3/CGR, who by his order, dated 13.09.2011, has confirmed the order of respondent No.2. Assailing these orders, the petitioner has filed this writ petition - Held, re-sale of energy pre-supposes the consumer supplying electricity to another person through a separate means to the latter's premises - In this case, the very purpose for which supply is received by the petitioner is to make it available for its customers who use its function hall - Therefore, by no means, it can be said that collecting higher charges from its customers by the petitioner on the use of electricity by them in course of using the function hall amounts to re-sale of energy - Under the above circumstances, the Court is of opinion that the very initiation of assessment proceedings under Section 126 of the Act by treating the alleged act of collecting higher amounts than at the rate at which the electricity is supplied to the petitioner as amounting to unauthorized use of electricity cannot be sustained and the final assessment order of respondent No.2 as confirmed by respondent No.3 in the appeal are accordingly set aside - For the above mentioned reasons, the writ petition is allowed. Sri Devi Associates Vs. Assistant Divisional Engineer (Operation), APEPDCL 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 120

—Secs. 142, 146 - Retail Tariff Rates fixed by Electricity Regulatory Commission without following procedure prescribed under provisions of Electricity Act, 2003 and Business Regulations framed thereunder and Respondents threatened to disconnect power supply to petitioners without issuing any notice and without following provisions of Electricity Reforms Act - Held, merely because the additional charges were shown in Annexure-D to the Tariff Order, no immunity can be given for such additional charges and for that matter, Tariff Order can also be subject to scrutiny in appropriate cases - When decision making process is vitiated, decision cannot be held to be legal - In view of this, decision of Commission cannot be upheld - On this point alone, these writ petitions are to be allowed - Respondents are ordered to either refund or adjust energy charges collected on excess energy in future bills of petitioners. Sri Dhanalakshmi Cotton & Rice Mills Vs. SPDCL Company of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 129 = 2015(3) ALD 45.

ELECTRICITY ACT, 2003:

—Sec.164 – TELEGRAPH ACT, 1885, Sec.10(d) & 16 – Respondent Power Grid Corporation proposed to erect Tower in midst of lands belonging to petitioners who are landless poor persons and will be deprived of land due to proposed construction of Towers in their lands - Hence petitioners filed present Writ petition seeking writ of Mandamus declaring action of respondent Corporation in erecting Towers in middle of petitioners' land as illegal and arbitrary - Petitioners contend that more than 30 families of their village will be deprived of their shelters due to erection of Towers and the petitioners' have invested lakhs of rupees in developing land and that without issuing notices and opportunity and hearing and without acquiring lands of petitioner's, respondent Corporation is going ahead with erection of Towers for lying transmission of lines which is illegal arbitrary and unconstitutional - Respondent/Corporation contends that it can exercise power to lay transmission lines accross property of petitioners, except claiming compensation petitioners cannot validly challenge the action of Corporation on ground that it affects his valuable rights – There is no provision in Act 1885 which mandate prior notice or any opportunity of hearing to be provided to owner/occupier of premises affected by laying of lines or posts and therefore there is no question of such owner/occupier being put on notice or demanding opportunity of hearing before grounding of Scheme - U/Sec.164 & 67 of Act of 2003 there is no provision in Act of 1885 which mandates prior notice or opportunity of hearing to be provided to owner/occupier of premises affected by lying of lines or posts and therefore there is no question of giving any notice to petitioner herein - However petitioners' have been given notice - Writ petition is dismissed - It is open to petitioners to claim compensation as per law. Bommireddy Narasimha Reddy Vs. Power Grid Corporation of India Ltd. 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 333 = 2014(1) ALD 697 = 2014(2) ALT 466.

—Secs.164,167 & 185 - G.O.Ms.No.115 - Energy PR III - INDIAN TELEGRAPH ACT, Sec.10 - ELECTRICITY (SUPPLY) ACT, 1948, Secs.28 & 29 - ELECTRICITY ACT, 1910, Secs.12 & 51 - Petitioners contend that action of respondents A.P. Transco, in proposing to erect poles and lay two Nos. 400 KV double circuit lines through lands of petitioners as arbitrary, illegal and violation of provisions of Electricity Act, 2003 and that they are bound to initiate appropriate proceedings for acquisition of lands or consent of owners ought to have been obtained by private negotiations before entering in to their lands - Respondents, A.P. Transco contend that Govt., issued

ELECTRICITY SUPPLY ACT:

G.O.Ms.No.115 authorising A.P. Transco to place electricity lines for transmission of electricity or for purpose of telephonic or telegraphic communications under provisions of Indian Telegraph Act and that they have followed procedure contemplated under provisions of Electricity Act, 2003 and that action of respondents is strictly in accordance with provisions of Electricity Act and acquisition of land as contended by petitioners is not provided under law - Prior to enactment of Electricity Act, 2003, consent of owner or occupier was necessary where there was no authorisation u/Sec.51 of Electricity Act, 1910 - Similarly u/Sec.28, r/w Sec.42 of Electricity (supply) Act, 1948, transmission towers or lines can be laid on any private land without giving any notice and without causing damage to property - However, if any damage is caused, compensation shall be paid for damages sustained as provided u/Sec.10 of Indian Telegraph Act - Both Indian Electricity Act, 1910 and Electricity supply Act, 1948 stood repealed under Electricity Act, 2003 which came into force w.e.f. 10-6-2003 - Powers u/Sec.10 of Indian Telegraph Act can be exercised without acquiring land in question, however only right that can be exercised is right of user in property and for purposes mentioned in that Section - Sec.164 of Electricity Act, r/w Sec.10 of Indian Telegraph Act recognized absolute power of A.P. Transco to proceed with placing of electric supply lines or electric poles for transmission of electricity on or over private lands subject to right of owner/occupier to claim compensation if any damage is sustained by him by reason of placing such electric poles - Neither acquisition of lands is necessary nor there is any need for consent of owner or occupier - Impugned action of respondents A.P. Transco - Justified. G.V.S. Rama Krishna Vs. A.P. Transco rep. by its M.D. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 18 = 2009(3) ALD 343 = 2009(2) APLJ 253 = 2009(3) ALT 502 = AIR 2009 AP 158.

ELECTRICITY SUPPLY ACT:

—Sec.26, 49 & 5 - ELECTRICITY ACT, Secs.3 to 11, 21, 23 & 27 and Cls. I to V, Cl.7 & 9 to 11 of Schedule to Act - B.P.Ms.No.1160 - Petitioners/appellant purchased sick Unit in auction which was availing 120 KVA HT power supply, conducted by APSFC alongwith all assets and applied for restoration of power supply - 1st respondent APSEB directed petitioner to execute fresh HT agreement and pay “service line charges” - Hence petitioner filed writ of mandamus declaring action of respondents in requiring petitioners to pay “service line charges” as illegal and arbitrary - Respondent/APSEB opposed writ petition contending that as Unit was supplied 220 KVA petitioner is liable to pay service line charges - Single judge allowed writ petition observing that if additional load is connected over and above 120 KVA it will be open to respondent/ APSEB to collect service line charges in accordance with rules treating it as new Unit, but collection of service line charges which are already collected from sick Unit are unjustified - Whether requirement to pay service line charges by consumers as pre-condition for releasing power supply is justified - In this case, Single Judge gave liberty to APSEB to levy and collect “service line charges” in case a requisition is made by respondent for additional load - As found, Board failed to place any material before Court in support of their contentions that additional load was connected over and above 120 KV - Accordingly writ appeal is dismissed and writ petition is allowed holding that it will not be necessary for petitioner to pay service line charges in event of not requisitioned additional load. Sithani Textiles & Fabrics Pvt. Ltd., Vs. The A.P. State Electricity Board, 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 120 = 2011(6) ALD 569 = 2011(6) 292.

ELECTRICITY SUPPLY ACT:

—Sec.78-A - G.O.Ms.No.108, Industries and Commerce (IP.II) Dept., dt.20-5-1996 - BPMS.No.1, dt.3-4-1997 - Petitioner purchased sick unit, Oil Mill in auction from APIDC and started business in manufacture of Egg Trays and sought for 25% rebate on power charges - Respondent/Transco rejected rebate to petitioner as they are not new Industries and are established in old premises, they are not entitled to benefit of 25% rebate envisaged by G.O.Ms.No.108 - Petitioners contend that in view of Sec.78-A of Electricity Supply Act, policy decision taken by Govt. prevails over Executive instructions issued by A.P. Transco, and so, BPMS No.1 does not come in way of enforcing G.O.Ms.No.108 - Specific case of Respondent, Transco is that inasmuch as Industries established by petitioners are not new Industries as they were established in old premises, they are not entitled to benefit of G.O. in view of BPMS No.1 - Merely because new Industry is established in a premises in which another industry was run there in earlier, it would not become an old industry - In this case, petitioners claim that after purchase of premises, dismantled earlier machinery and established new machinery- So, for all practical purposes they are newly established industries - Policy decision of Govt., prevails over executive instructions of Board, and so petitioners cannot be denied benefits, which is due to them under G.O.Ms.No.108 - Action of respondents, Transco in refusing request of petitioners for extending benefit of G.O.Ms.No.108 - Unsustainable - Hence, set aside - Respondents/Transco directed to grant benefit of G.O to petitioners by granting rebate of 25% for period of three years from date of establishment - Writ petitions, allowed. Ashwin Agro Tech Pvt. Ltd., Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 61 = 2008(3) ALD 665.

—and Rules framed thereunder – Accident due to electric shock – Petitioner claiming compensation of Rs.3 lacks for death of his wife and two she-buffaloes due to electric shock – Single Judge dismissed writ petition holding that merely because respondents have paid ex gratia on account of death of wife of petitioner and for death of she-buffaloes and same cannot constitute a ground for issuing Writ of Mandamus as prayed for - Appellant contends that L.T lines were cut off 8 days prior to accident but respondents have not taken any precautions to avoid danger to public and animals by said cut off lines – Had respondents removed L.T lines from field accident could not have occurred, therefore, there was gross negligence on part of Officials of respondents and therefore, respondents are liable to pay compensation - Respondent contends that accident occurred due to gale, but not due to negligence on part of Department and Department has taken all safety measures as provided under Electricity Act and amount of ex gratia for death of petitioner's wife and she-buffaloes was paid as provisions available in Board Rules and that accident happened only due to natural calamity by reason of heavy gale and wind and that there is no negligence on part of Department and its officials - In instant case, due to heavy wind and gale, GI wire touched one of live phase conductor on top of pole, thus GI neutral wire charged with electric supply and deceased was coming on way from field came in contract with said live GI wire and thus herself and her two she-buffaloes were electrocuted – Report of Divisional Engineer (Electrical) clearly discloses that there was negligence on part of Officials of Board as they have not removed fallen wire for period of 8 days and had they removed electrical wire in time, they could have avoided cause of death of deceased - Deceased was hale and healthy aged about 38 years and hence awarded tentative compensation of Rs.90,000 for death of deceased and Rs.2000 each for death of two she- buffaloes. P.Ramulu @ Ramulu Vs. S.E. Electrical, APSEB, Mahaboobnagar 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 271 = 2009(1) ALD (NOC) 9 = 2009(1) ALT 410.

EMPLOYEES STATE INSURANCE ACT, 1945:

EMPLOYEES STATE INSURANCE ACT, 1945:

—Secs.2 (9), (13) and 40 - 2nd respondent passed order demanding contribution in respect of employees engaged by contractors with whom appellant-Corporation entered into contract to transport petroleum products - Chairman Industrial Tribunal dismissed petition filed by appellant seeking declaration that they are not liable to pay contribution holding that petitioner is liable to pay contribution to workers engaged by contractors as a principal employer - Appellant/Corporation contends that workers engaged by contractors are not their employees and they have no control over said workers and therefore appellant cannot be termed as "principal employer" in respect of such workers - "Employee" and "Immediate employer" - Meaning of - Not only person employed directly by principal employer, but also a person employed by or through immediate employer on premises of factory or establishment or under supervision of principal employer or his agent on work, which is ordinarily part of work of factory or establishment is also included within meaning of expression "employee" - "Immediate employer" is a person who has undertaken execution, in premises of factory or establishment or under supervision of principal employer or his agent, of whole or any part of any work - Sec.40 of Act requires principal employer to pay contribution in respect of every employee whether directly employed or by or through immediate employer - In this case, workers engaged by contractors for purpose of loading and unloading - May be, they enter premises of depots for purpose of loading - Such entry on premises of appellant for limited purpose is only casual and occasional entry but not on regular basis - Said workers are amenable to control of contractor but not appellant - Engagement of workers is at option of contractors over which appellant-Corporation has no say ensuring proper execution of work - Such work is responsibility of contractor and liability to make good of loss, if any, arising out of improper execution or otherwise is also cast on contractor as per terms of agreement - Activity of appellant-Corporation is to manufacture, store and supply and supply is effected by means of transport through vehicles as per terms of agreement entered into with contractors - In present case, crew engaged by contractors or workers engaged by them for purpose of loading and unloading, do not, come within meaning of "employee" under Sec.2 (9) (ii) of Act r/w Sec.2(13) nor can appellant-Corporation be described as "principal employer" in relation to such workers - No liability can be fastened on appellant-Corporation to collect contribution in respect of such workers u/Sec.40 of Act - Finding of Tribunal, unsustainable - Impugned order, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn., Vs. Employyes State Insurance Corporation 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 287 = 2008(3) ALD 33 = 2008(1) ALT 654 = 2008(1) APLJ 22 (SN).

ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT:

ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT:

—Secs.2 (1) (a), (3), 6-A, 6-B& 15 - A.P. PROCUREMENT (LEVY) CONTROL ORDER, Clauses 9,12 & 16 - LICENSING CONTROL ORDER, Clauses 10 (1), 7(1) - Petitioner/Trading rice mill having capacity of 12.75 tons per hour, obtained FGL - 2nd respondent/Joint Director Civil Supplies inspected rice Mill and seized paddy, rice and broken rice for alleged contraventions of provisions of Levy Control Order and licensing Control Order - District Collector directed 3rd respondent to sell rice through Special Counters for public consumption at rate prescribed by Govt., and park sale proceeds in revenue deposits till final order passed u/Sec.6-A of E.C. Act - Petitioner contends that 2nd respondent h as no jurisdiction to seize as stocks are within permissible margin and on account of illegal seizure respondents tarnished image of petitioner and therefore, they are entitled for award of compensation and that show cause notice issued for cancellation of FGL is illegal - In this case, District Collector passed order u/Sec.6-A of E.C Act after detailed investigation, confiscating 25% of seized stock pending disposal of writ petition, basing on affidavit filed by petitioner in writ petition - Inspite of adequate opportunity, petitioner has not availed same and has not filed any explanation merely on ground that writ petition questioning jurisdiction are pending - Only in case of violation of Art.21 of Constitution of India alone, a citizen can seek adequate compensation from High Court notwithstanding availability of civil law remedy for enforcing tortuous liability - Sec.14 of E.C Act gives protection to authorities acting under E.C Act against personal action if a thing is done in good faith - Petitioner is at liberty to file Appeal u/Sec.6-C of E.C Act before Court of District & Sessions Judge against orders passed u/Sec.6-A and also to submit explanation against showcause notice for cancellation of FGL - Appeals, dismissed. Santhoshima Parboiled Modern Rice Mill Vs.District Collector, Nalgonda 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 400.

—Sec.3, 2(a) (v),5, 6-A & 7 – RICE PROCUREMENT (LEVY) ORDER, 1984, Secs.3,4,14 & 161 – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.165 (1) – INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.406, r/w Sec.7 (1) of Essential Commodities Act – Sub-Inspector of Police, Rural, raided petitioner's business premises and seized some bags of rice meant for PDS on ground that he purchased said rice from FP shop dealer and registered case against petitioner – Joint Collector directing petitioner to furnish Bank guarantee for certain amount for release of seized stock of rice - Petitioner contends that S.I of Police has no jurisdiction to search and seize and by virtue of Notification issued by Govt., of India there are no restrictions to stock and transport of paddy and rice and if any person or dealer indulging in purchase of FFW or PDS rice the only course left open to authorities is to initiate proceedings under Cr.P.C - Respondent contends that Notification issued by Govt. of India subsequently amended and that Notification would not affect operation of Levy Order issued by State Govt., and that Enforcement Officer is authorized to search and seize any Essential Commodity if there is any contravention - "Essential Commodity" – Meaning of - There cannot be any dispute that rice, after cooking is meant for human consumption and therefore it can be stated to be a 'food stuff' – Similarly, paddy is a food crop, which is a raw product of rice and therefore it can also be termed as food stuff within meaning of Sec.2(a) (v) of E.C Act – Therefore paddy or rice is a essential commodity - Levy Order 1984 is very much in force – Enforcement Officer can enter any premises search same and seize rice or paddy, he found in contravention of Levy Order – Under provisions of 165 (1) Cr.P.C Officer-in-charge of Police Station or a Police Officer making investigation after recording in writing grounds of his belief can search a thing - There is absolutely no bar for a Police Officer investigating a case under general laws to enter into premises to conduct search and seizure of rice and paddy - Proceedings in CCS Ref.No.PDS/II(3)/1240/2002, dt.12-8-2002 issued by Commissioner of Civil Supplies is contrary to provisions of Levy Order 1984 – Hence writ petitions are dismissed with following findings:

ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT:

a) The Andhra Pradesh Rice Procurement (Levy) Order, 1984 is in force;

b) 'Rice' and 'paddy' are essential commodities within the meaning of Section 2(a)(v) of the Essential Commodities Act, 1955;

c) The Officer-in-charge of a police station or a Police Officer making investigation under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, can search a premises and seize any essential commodity in any place within the limits of his jurisdiction, under general penal laws;

d) Any officer, within the meaning of Section 2(e) of the Andhra Pradesh Rice Procurement (Levy) Order, 1984 can search and seize rice or paddy or broken rice, including animal, vehicle, vessel or conveyance used for carrying the stock of rice or paddy or broken rice, if he is of the prima facie opinion that a dealer contravened any of the provisions of the said Order;

e)The clarification proceedings in CCS Ref. No.PDS/II(3)/1240/2002, issued by the Commissioner of Civil Supplies, Hyderabad, dated 12.8.2002 is contrary to the provisions of the Andhra Pradesh Rice Procurement (Levy) Order, 1984;

f) A dealer or miller or purchaser of paddy or any person, contravening the provisions of the Andhra Pradesh Rice Procurement (Levy) Order, 1984, is liable to be prosecuted under the provisions of the Essential Commodities Act, 1955. Elluru Chandra Obul Reddy Vs. The Joint Collector, Kadapa Dt. 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 158 = 2008(6) ALD 411 = 2008(6) ALT 538.

—Secs.3 & 6-A (1) (c) - "Seizure of vehicle" - Petitioners'/owners' vehicles are seized due to their involvment in illegal transportation of scheduled/essential commodities intended for public distribution - Owners of vehicles deployed for purpose of illegal transportation of essential commodity before confiscation can be provided an option to pay not exceeding market price at date of seizure of essential commodity sought to be carried by such vehicle or other conveyance - Owner of vehicle could be a different person from owner of essential commodities which have also been seized

ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT:

- Therefore, providing an option to him to pay up fine in view of confiscation has been contemplated and fine that can be imposed can be anything less but in no case it shall be in excess of market price at date of seizure of essential commodity and for determining market price, date of seizure becomes crucial and relevant date for purpose of providing an option to owner of vehicle or other conveyance, which is used or sought to be sued in matter of illegal trnasportation of essential commodities which has been seized initially and later on confiscated market value of such vehicle or other conveyance alone should be taken into account but not value of essential commodities carried thus - If competent authority is not very sure of determining such value, it is always open to him to solicit such assistance from any other assessor, such as a competent Officer of Motor Transport Department - Based thereon market value of vehicle shall be determined and that must be offered to avoid confiscation of vehicle - In this case, since confiscation proceedintgs are still pending, for regulating interim custody of vehicle, it would only be appropriate for authorities to ask for bank guarantee for a reasonable proportionate amount, or any immovable property security or any third party security and owner of vehicle must also give an undertaking not to alienate during pendency of 6-A proceedings. B.Pundarikam Vs.The District Collector, Medak atSangareddy, 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 32 = 2012(3) ALD 575 = 2012(4) ALT 370.

—Sec.6-A - A.P. STATE PUBLIC DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM (CONTROL) ORDER, 2008 - Petitioner's/FP shop authorisation kept under suspension apart from initiating proceddings u/Sec.6-A of E.C Act for alleged shortage of 3.60 qts out of total quantity of 162.75 qts - 1st respondent/Joint Collector while declining to interfere with order of 2nd respondent directed RDO to dispose of case within period of four weeks - Hence, present writ petition - Petitioner's authorisation has been suspended for alleged shortage of rice which appears to be within permissible limits - Except this allegation, no other allegation of omission and commission on part of petitioner has been made - Extreme action of suspension of authorisation on flimsy ground of negligable variation in quantity of rice constitutes patent arbitraness - Impugned order of RDO shows that petitioner has offered spot explanation that she has received quantity of PDS rice from MLS point without any weightment - But by no means allegation made against petitioner is so serious to warrant suspension of authorisation - Such unwarranted actions affect morale of even honest dealers - Reason given by 1st respondent/JC in declining to interfere with order passed by RDO, that suspension only interim in nature, he is not inclined to interfere with same, cannot be appreciated - Irrespective of whether order is interim or final in nature, appellate authority is under obligation to examine its sustainability or otherwise in law with reference to facts of case and he failed to apply this principle in disposing of appeal - Impugned orders of Joint Collector and RDO, are set aside - Petitioner shall be allowed to continue as FP shop dealer till enquiry is completed - Writ petition, allowed. Nune Varalakshmi Vs. Joint Collector (FAC) Kadapa District 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 136 = 2011(3) ALD 533 = 2011(1) ALT 626.

ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT:

—Secs.6-A - A.P. PULSES (L.S. AND R) ORDER 2007, Cl.3(2) & 3 - Seizure of red grams by Enforcement Authorities, belonging to petitioners/agriculturists from Cold Storages and CWC stored by them with a view to dispose of same when market conditions improve - 1st respondent/District Collector after hearing arguments of Counsel for petitioners without properly appreciating facts, passed order on 29-5-2009 ordering confiscation of entire seized stock - Subsequently Sessions Judge dismissed Appeal filed by petitioners on 10-8-2009 confirming order of 1st respondent - Hence present writ petitions challenging orders of Sessions Judge confirming order of 1st respondent/ District Collector - In this case, before District Collector as well as before Sessions Court a specific ground was taken that Investigating Officers have misconstrued provisions of sub-clauses 2 & 3 of Cl.3 of A.P. Pulses (L.S & R) Order, 2007 which was not at all applicable to petitioners who are admittedly neither dealers nor traders nor carrying on any business as contemplated under provisions of said Control Order - Supreme Court after considering Cl.3(2) of Order held that Cl.3(3) raises a statutory presumption when stock is found with any individual having 100 or more of specified food grains is ment for sale - In addition to said presumption prosecution has to show that store of food grains was for purpose of carrying on business - Element of business which is essential to attract provisions of Cl.3(1) is thus not covered by presumption under Cl.3(2) - It is held that it is not a solitary instance of storage or sale or sporadic actions of storage or sales that would amount to carrying on business but a course of conduct of either storage or sale that would lead to inference that he is dealing in them - Ultimately it is held that single instance of storage of food grains here would not constitute "carrying on business" and would not attract provisions of Cl.3 of Food grains dealers licensing order , for contravention of which penalty of confiscation as provided u/Sec.6-A of Act is attracted - In this case, neither 1st respondent nor Sessions Judge considered this aspect of matter and examined whether petitioners have stored food grains for purpose of business or only on a solitary instance of storage - When there is no finding that petitioners are carrying on business of such produce or sale or storage of red gram, seizure of stock and conviction under provisions of Essential Commodities Act cannot be upheld - Orders in Criminal Appeals confirming orders passed by 1st respondent/District Collector are set aside - Writ petitions, allowed - Bank guarantees furnished by petitioners pursuant to interim orders of High Court dt:25-8-2009, 1st respondent/Collector shall release them to the petitioners. Tolusuri Guravaiah Vs. Collector and District Magistrate 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 122.

—Secs.6-A & 6-B - A.P. SCHEDULE COMMODITIES DEALERS (LICENSING, STORAGE & REGULATION) ORDER, 2008, Clause 2 (4) - Vigilance and Enforcement Officials seized BPT/preferred varieties of paddy stored by appellant/petitioner in State Ware Housing Corporation and filed case u/Sec.6-A of E.C Act and issued show cause Notice u/Sec,6-B of E.C Act - After considering explanation filed by petitioner, Joint Collector ordered confiscation of 50% of seized paddy - District & Sessions Judge dismissed appeal - Petitioner contends that he is an agriculturist and he has produced paddy and stored same at SWC as a Farmer and not as a Trader and therefore order of confiscation is not tenable - Petitioner has not produced any evidence to show that he is an agriculturist and that he owned any wet land and produced paddy in his own land - Hence he cannot be treated as an agriculturist within meaning of Cl.2(4) of Control Order, 2008 - Order of confiscation modified and reduced to 25%. Utukuri Nagabraham Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 179.

ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT:

—Secs.6-A, 6-B,6-C,6-D, 6-E, 7 and 11 – Appendix-II to G.O.Ms.No.77 – A.P. STATE PUBLIC DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM CONTROL ORDER, 2001, Cl.5 – INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.21 – Petitioner/FP shop dealer involved in clandestine business of PDS rice and failed to maintain proper account and thereby indulged in clandestine business - Joint Collector passing order directing RDO, to initiate action for cancellation of authorization of petitioner and for initiation of action u/Sec.7 of E.C Act - Contention that it is not competent for Joint Collector to order prosecution and give direction to RDO to initiate action for cancellation of Authorization – A perusal of Sec.6-A (1) of E.C Act would make it clear that power of confiscation is independent of prosecution being launched – Sec.6-D further makes it clear that order of confiscation by Collector shall not prevent infliction of any punishment under E.C Act – Conspectus of Secs.6-A to 6-E and Sec.7 would show that decision to direct prosecution is nothing to do with the power exercisable u/Sec.6-A of E.C Act – In a given case even where Collector decides not to confiscate goods, he can order prosecution - Contention of petitioner that directions issued by Joint Collector are without jurisdiction is misconceived – General power of Collector to confiscate is always available even to order prosecution – Writ petition, dismissed. Y.Rama Devi Vs.The Joint Collector R.R. District at Lakdikapool, Hyd., 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 265 = 2009(1) ALD (NOC) 6 = 2009(1) ALT 314 = 2008(4) APLJ 142.

—Sec.6-A(1) and second Proviso of 6-A (1) - Bus as well as kerosene seized and proceedings initiated u/Sec.6-A for contravention of provisions of kerosene Control Order - Owner of Bus filed Application for release of vehicle - Collector concluded proceedings and passed order confiscating vehicle - However, in view of provisions contained in 6-A of Act directed respondent/owner of Bus to pay fine of Rs.20,000/- - Contention that Collector could not have concluded proceedings u/Sec.6-A (1) of Act and that if Collector concluded proceedings u/Sec.6-A(1) of Act there was no reason for him to impose conditions such as payment of fine and if fine is imposed in lieu of confiscation, same shall not exceed market price of essential commodity seized and said contention found favour with single Judge of High Court - Sec.6-A(1) of E.C. ACT - SCOPE AND OBJECT - STATED - Sec.6-A merely confers power of confiscation and not power of release, disposal, distribution, etc., except to limited extent permitted by Sub-Sec.(2) thereof - Of course second proviso to Sub-Sec.(1) of Sec.6-A permits grant of an option to pay in lieu of confiscation of any animal, vehicle, vessel or any other conveyance, a fine equal to its market price at date of seizure - Order of single Judge, set aside and remitted to High Court to consider matter afresh.Collector of Ganjam Vs. Ramesh Chander Pathi 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 124.

—Sec.6-A(2) - R3/Deputy Tahsildar, inspected petitioner's business premises and seized Q 345-75 of Rice on ground that there is variation of 84 bags of rice between stock register and ground balance – District Collector, directing Deputy Tahsildar to dispose of seized stock of Rice, through public auction - Petitioner filed representation to drop all further proceedings - However five months later R2/District Collector has issued impugned show cause notice u/Sec.6-B of E.C. Act to petitioner, while marking copy to R3/Deputy Tahsildar directing to dispose of seized sock through public auction and remit value thereof to Government exchequer in civil deposits - In this case procedure followed by R2/Collector, is improper as impugned show cause notice issued 5 months after rice was seized from petitioner's business premises - U/Sec.6-A (2) of Act, interim disposal of seized sock are ordered if Collector is of opinion that seized essential commodities are subject to speedy and natural decay or it is otherwise, expedient in public interest to do so - From language of Sub Sec.2 of Sec.6-A of Act, it is implied that Collector has to pass an order by recording his satisfaction within a reasonable time from date of seizure - In this case R2/Collector has not ordered sale of seized stock for 5 months after its seizure itself shows that he was not satisfied, that seized commodity was subjected to speedy and natural decay - If Collector felt that public interest warranted sale of seized stock, he should have passed an order in writing to that effect-without passing any such order Collector cannot issue a direction to his subordinates to sell seized stock - Collector not justified in issuing show cause notice at a leisurely pace i.e., 5 months after initiation of proceedings u/Sec.6-A of Act - Such delays not only cause serious prejudice to interest of trader but also to that of State - If a trader is innocent, he legitimately expects expeditious conclusion of proceedings u/Sec. 6-A of Act - In ordinate delays in completion of such proceedings severely jeopardize his interest - Directions issued by Collector to R3/Deputy Tahsildar to sell seized stock in public auction is set aside - W.P. allowed. Annapurna Rice Traders Vs. State of A.P. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 239 = 2015(2) ALD 213 = 2015(4) ALT 691 = AIR 2015 (NOC) 785.

ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT:

—Sec.6-A (2) - A.P. PULSES (L.S & R), ORDER, 2007 - Deputy Tahsildar seized Red Grams from Warehouse on ground that it was stored by some unknown persons in name of benami farmers violating provisions of Order, 2007 and E.C, Act - Collector passing impugned order directing to take possession of seized Red Grams and dispose of same through PDS by observing that he decided to get Red Gram sold so as to avoid natural decay - Single Judge rejecting writ petitions filed by persons who stored Red Grams in warehouse contending that they are all farmers and they had given red grams for storage to warehouseman - Appellant/petitioners contend that impugned order is unjust and improper and illegal for reason that Collector had not complied with conditions incorporated u/Sec.6-A (2) of E.C. Act and Collector did not come to a conclusion that seized Red Gram was subject to speedy and natural decay and that there is no observation or finding of whatsoever type that commodity seized was subject to speedy decay and if commodity so seized is not subject to speedy decay, no order with regard to sale of seized commodity can be passed as interim measure and that no opportunity was given to appellants to give any sort of explanation though it was known to respondent/ Govt. authorities that seized red gram belonged to appellants and that it is obligatory on part of respondent-authorities atleast to hear them so as to know whether Red Gram stored in Warehouse by genuine farmers - Govt., contends that pulses had been stored in Warehouse in benami names and that because of hording of pulses market price of pulses had gone up and that in interest of public at large, Collector had not only seized Red Grams but also directed said Red Gram to be disposed of through PDS and action has been taken in good faith so as to bring down market price of Red Gram and that action of Collector is just and in interest of public at large and that no principle of natural justice has been violated by Govt., authorities by sale of seized Red Grams at interim stage without hearing appellants - Once Collector came to know that names of persons who had given their commodity for purpose of storage were on record, he ought to have made some preliminary enquiry so as to find out whether persons whose names were found in record of warehouse were genuine owners of commodity seized - Without making atleast a preliminary enquiry, it is not proper on part of Collector to jump to conclusion that said commodity had been held by "unknown traders and benami farmers" and said conclusion could have been arrived at only after making some enquiry - When there is prima facie material before Collector that Red Gram belonged to some persons whose names and addresses were made available from record of Warehouse at time of drawing panchanama, so as to follow principles of natural justice he ought to have verified the genuineness of owners of Red Gram and Collector ought to have followed principles of natural justice in facts of this case - DOCTRINE OF NATURAL JUSTICE - Even in an administrative proceeding, which involves civil consequences doctrine of natural justice must be held to be applicable - Even if statute does not provide for hearing a party in clear terms, principles of natural justice need to be followed in administrative proceedings which involves civil consequences - In the instant case Collector did not exercise his power properly and in accordance with provisions of Sec.6-A (2) of Act and he did not follow principles of natural justice - Provisions with regard to sale of seized commodity are having serious civil consequences and therefore said provisions must be implemented strictly - Impugned order passed by Collector which has been confirmed by Single Judge is bad in law - Hence said orders are quashed and set aside - Appeals, allowed. A.Siva Reddy Vs. District Collector, Kurnool Dist. 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 106 = 2008(6) ALD 1 = 2008(6) ALT 145.

ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT:

—Secs.6-A & 6-C - A.P. SCHEDULE COMMODITIES CONTROLORDER, 2008, Clauses 2K(2) & Conditions 3(1)(a) to (d), 7(1), 9 and 10 of "B-Form" issued under Control Order, 2008 - Asst. Supply Officer conducted raid on petitioner's rice mill and verified registers and found variations in book balance and ground stock and seized entire stock available in rice mill and filed 6-A case against petitioners - District Collector held enquiry under provisions of Sec.6-A of E.C Act, order for confiscation of 30% of seized stock holding that petitioner violated provisions of Control Order, and also conditions of "B-Form" - In appeal Sessions Judge confirmed confiscation but reduced to 10% - In this case, in view of fact that prosecution failed to prove that petitioner was indulging in clandestine business, mere variation between book balance and ground stock cannot be a ground to order confiscation - In this case, value of whole of stock that was found in possession of petitioner was valued and District Collector proposed to confiscated 30% of value of stock found in possession of petitioners mill - Assuming that petitioner was guilty of violating provisions of Control Order, 2008 what can be confiscated is "variation of stock or value there of", but not entire stock that is found in possession of mill - In present case, facts and circumstances show that there was no violation of Control Order, 2008 and consequently, very order of confiscation of 30% of seized stock or 10% of seized stock, as case may be is void - Confiscation order passed by Sessions Judge, set aside - Petitioner is entitled to entire seized stock or its value - Writ petition, allowed. Kyasa Narayana Vs. State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 185 = 2013(2) ALD (2) ALD (Crl) 358 (AP) = 2013(3) ALT (Crl) 170 (AP).

ESTATE LAND ACT, 1908:

ESTATE LAND ACT, 1908:

—Secs.10,77, 17(3) & 3(1) – A.P. ESTATE ABOLITION ACT, 1948, Sec.2(1) & 9 – "Suo motu enquiry" – Petitioners/respondents purchased land from original grantees and by virtue of long possession and enjoyment acquired occupancy rights even prior to 1-7-1945 and were also granted pattas under provisions of Estate Abolition Act after holding enquiry relying upon preabolition records maintained by estate officers - Show cause notice issued proposing suo motu enquiry on ground that Adangal and Diglot are not available in pre-abolition record of concerned villages inspite of deligent search and in absence of that basic and vital records pattas granted in favour of petitioners not junuine - After considering various earlier proceedings, judicial and quasi judicial in detail single Judge came to conclusion that it is abundantly clear that petitioners and their predecessors were in possession and enjoyment of subject lands since over several decades and they acquired occupancy rights by 1-7-1945 which enable them to claim patta under provisions of Estate Abolition Act – Director of settlement not applied his mind before issuing show cause notice or is intentionally withholding best evidence in his possession - In view of production of pre abolition records in earlier judicial proceedings indicating that they were in fact taken by revenue Officials at time of survey and settlement subsequent upon taking over estate, alleged loss or non availability of said records does not afford a valid or substantial ground for ordering suo motu enquiry - Contention that huge extent of lands have been left uncultivated for several years and they were used as pasture lands by pattadars and is based only on surmises and suspicios – To enable occupants to claim ryotwari patta, land need not be under actual cultivation, but is enough if it is capable of cultivation or it has potentiality for cultivation - In present case, respondent/direct settlement sought to reopen issue by takingup suo motu enquiry almost 37 years after issuance of rough pattas that too without making any specific allegation of fraud or misrepresentation – Impugned show cause notice seeks to suo motu reopen issue of grant of pattas more than 37 years after their issuance without valid or justified grounds certainly amounts to exercise of power in unreasonable, arbitrary and oppressive manner – Observations of single Judge that a perusal of record would show that whole exercise was started with extraneous motive and under political pressure and without application of mind – Order of learned single Judge allowing writ petition holding that impugned notice cannot be sustained – Justified – Writ appeal, dismissed.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

Director of Settlements Hyderabad Vs. Lingreddy Ramakrishna Reddy 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 199.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Sec.3 - "Document" - Plaintiff filed suit against defendants who are his own brothers, for partition of plaint schedule property, basing on document containing typed and hand written block letters respectively - Documents also contains some statements - Since defendants have gone back and denying payments plaintiff has to establish contents of documents - Trial Court dismissed Application filed by plaintiff seeking direction to reopen suit and to direct defendant/D.W.1 to give his specimen handwriting for comparison with disputed handwriting on document and to send document to handwriting expert for examination along with specimen handwritings of 1st defendant, observing that document does not contain signature of executants and said document sought to be marked must be brought on record as per law - Since contents of documents cannot be proved by merely producing it for inspection of Court and therefore document is an inadmissible one by reason of which, petitions are not tenable - Plaintiff contends that document in question comes within purview of disputed document as per definition of document u/Sec.3 of Evidence Act and that contents of document can be proved to establish an issue before Court of a law even though actual executant of it did not sign - However question of genuineness of document or under what circumstances document got typed and remaining part was written in hand writing can be decided only basing upon necessary evidence to be recorded and observation of Court in rejecting document at outset is premature - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.3 - "Definition of document" - Stated - Execution or preparation of document can be decided some time even without there being necessary signature and therefore observations made by Courts below in dismissing plea of plaintiff to send document to hand writing expert for examination and report is not tenable - Defendants can be allowed to raise necessary objections after receiving relevant report from hand writing expert - Order passed by trial Court, set aside - Civil Revision, allowed. Syed Ali Moosvi Vs. Zainulabeddin Moosvi 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 14 = 2013(2) ALD 110 = AIR 2013 (NOC) 195 (AP) = 2013(3) ALT 419.

—Sec.3 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.498-A & 302, r/w 34 - "Circumstantial evidence" - Accused charged for offence u/Secs.498-A & 302 - Sessions Judge convicting accused and High Court dismissed appeal - Appellants/accused contend that case rests on circumstantial evidence and circumstances do not establish guilt of accused - Where a cases rests sqarely on circumstantial evidence, inference of guilt can be justified only when all incriminating facts and circumstances are found to be incompatible with innocence of accused or guilt of any other person - Where a case depends upon conclusion drawn from circumstances cumulative effect of circumstances must be such as to negative innocence of accused and bring offences home beyond any reasonable doubt - In this case, body of deceased was found in matrimonial home of deceased with injuries noticed by them which fit in evidence of Autopsy Surgeon and death took place within one year and four months of marriage in house of accused persons and dead body was found with injurious - According to doctor also death was due to asphyxia resulting from throttling which was ante mortem and homicidal in nature - Appeal, dismissed. Ghosh Vs. State of West Bengal 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.)1.

—-Secs.3 & 32 - "Circumstantial evidence" - Dying declaration - Sessions Judge convicting accused for offences u/Sec.302, r/w Sec.149 - Division Bench of High Court dismissed appeal and affirmed findings of trial Court - CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE - Five golden principles – Stated:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established. It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. 'Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions.'

(2) The facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say. they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty.

(3)Thecircumstances should be of a conclusive nature and ten-dency.

(4) They should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and 164

(5) There must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

DYING DECLARATION - In this case, after having consumed excessive liquor it would not have been possible for any one muchless to deceased to have written said dying declaration with so much of precision or with steady hand - Dying declaration should be such which should immensely strike to be genuine and stating true story of its maker - It should be free from all doubts and on going through it an impression has to be registered immediately in mind that it is genuine, true and not tainted with doubts and it should not be result of tutoring, but dying declaration in present case does not fulfill these conditions - Neither trial Judge nor Division Bench of High Court not considered this aspect of matter - Judgment and order of conviction passed by trial Court and upheld by High Court - Unsustainable - Hence set aside and quashed - Appeals, allowed. Nanhar Vs. State of Haryana 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 105.

—Secs.6 to 16 and 24 to 26, 30 and 32,35 and 80 and 132 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.302, 307, 324,120-B,121-A etc., - PROVISIONS OF EXPLOSIVE ACT -

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

PREVENTION OF DAMAGE TO PUBLIC PROPERTIES ACT - RAILWAYS ACT - Trial Court declined prayer made by accused for summoning witnesses at serial nos.63 to 66 - High Court allowed appeal filed by accused - Hence present SLP - Case relating to bomb blasts in first class compartments of local trains of Mumbai Suburban Railways, resulting death of 180 persons causing severe injuries to 829 persons - "Confessional statement" and its ''admissibility'' – ''Proof of'' – Permission to summon witnesses at serial nos 63 to 66 as defence witnesses - CONFESSIONAL STATEMENT - A confessional statement can be evidenced by person before whom it is recorded, has been rightfully adjudicated by High Court - An admission/confession can be used only as against person who has made same - Ordinarily a confessional statement is admissible only as against an accused who has made it - U/Sec.30 a confessional statement can be used even against a co-accused - For such admissibility it is imperative, that person making confession besides implicating himself, also implicates others who are jointly tried with him - In that situation alone, such a confessional statement is relevant even against others implicated - Admissibility of depositions of witnesses at serial nos 63 to 66 - According to petitioners that evidence of Police Officers would not be permissible u/Sec.11 of Evidence Act, because evidence of witnesses at serial nos. 63 to 66 all in later category of "a statement about existence of fact" - Moreover that it would be clearly hit by "rule of hearsay" - Sec.11 makes "existence of facts" relevant and admissible and not "a statement as to such existence" - SECS.60 & 11 OF EVIDENCE ACT - In order to determine truthful-ness of confessional statement which are sought to be relied upon by accused/respondents it is invitable in terms of mandate of Sec.60 of Evidence Act, that accused who had made said confessional statements must themselves depose before a Court for effective reliance, consequent upon relevance thereof having been affirmed u/Sec.11 of Evidence Act - By following mandate contained in Sec.60 of Evidence Act, it is not open to accused/respondents in view of expressed bar contained in Sec.60 of Evidence Act, to prove confessional statements through witnesses at serial nos.63 to 66 - Hence it is not possible to accept plea that advanced on behalf of accused that they should be permitted to prove confessional statements through witnesses at seral nos.63 to 66 - Sec.132 of Evidence Act clearly negates basis of submission adopted by accused/respondent for being permitted to lead secondary evidence to substantiative confessional statement made by some accused - Accordingly that confessional statements made by accused in case no.4 cannot be proved in evidence through statements of witnesses at serial nos.63 to 64 - In back ground of object sought to be achieved having been clarified by Court, it is apparent, that Sec.35 and 80 would be no avail to accused- respondents in facts and circumstances of case, since Court has already concluded that witness at serial nos.63 to 66 cannot be summoned as their evidence before trial Court should not fall within realm of admissibility with reference to "facts in issue" or "relevant facts" - Accused-respondents cannot be permitted to summon witnesses at serial no.63 to 64 as defence witnesses for specific objective sought to be achieved by them - Impugned order passed by High Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. State of Maharashtra Vs. Kamal Ahmed Mohammed Vakil Ansari 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Sec.32 - "Dying declaration" - Principles for testing its authenticity - Stated - Sessions Judge convicting appellant/accused u/Sec.302 for murder of deceased - High Court confirmed judgment of Sessions Judge - Appellants set ablaze young bride, merely 22 years of age because her parents failed to provide a Refrigerator and Television - DYING DECLARATION - Though dying declaration is entitled to great weight, it is worthwhile to note that accused has no power of cross-examination - Once Court is satisfied that declaration was true and voluntary, undoubtedly it can base its conviction without any further corroboration - Rule requiring corroboration is nearly a rule of prudence - Evidence of P.W.1 and P.W.5 is unflinching, coherent and consistent - Both witnesses have withstood lengthy cross-examination without any loss of credibility and their evidence cannot be discarded only on ground that they are close relatives of deceased - Course adopted by lower Courts cannot be said to be erroneous - Verdict recorded by trial Court as well as High Court in convicting appellants of murder - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Amit Kumar Vs. State of Punjab 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 102.

—Sec.32 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.378 - "Dying declaration" - Trial Court found accused guiltybasing on dying declaration - High Court found that dying declaration not reliable and not free from infirmity and directed acquittal of respondent - "DYING DECLARATION" - Principles governing dying declaration - Stated - After careful scrutiny, Court is satisfied that it is true and free from any effort to induce deceased to make a false statement and if it is coherent and consistent, their shall be no legal impediment to make it basis of conviction, even if there is no corroboration - POWERS OF APPELLATE COURT - Principles regarding powers of appellate Court while dealing with an appeal against order of acquittal - Culled out - If two reasonable conclusions are possible on basis of evidence and record, appellate Court should not disturb finding of acquittal recorded by trial Court - Appeal, dismissed. State of Rajasthan Vs. Yusuf 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 72 = 2009(2) ALD (Crl) 603 (SC) = 2009(3) Supreme 832 = AIR 2009 SC 2674 = 2009 AIR SCW 4109.

—Sec.32 - INDIAN PENAL CODE - Sec.498-A, r/w Secs.34, 302, r/w Sec.34 - Dying Declaration - Deceased was married to one RPT - After marriage she was staying at matrimonial home in joint family, since there was no issue from marriage and she was ill treated by her mother-in-law and sister-in-law and on that account they used to harass her - In order to get rid of deceased she was poured kerosene burnt to death - Deceased gave four dying declarations till she scumbed to her injuries - Trial Court convicted appellants/accused u/Sec.302 r/w Sec.34 of IPC - High Court dismissed criminal appeal filed by appellant/accused and confirmed their conviction and sentence passed by trial Court - When Court is satisfied that dying declaration is voluntary not tainted by tutoring or animosity, and is not a product of imagination of declarant that even there is no impedement in convicting accused on basis of such dying declarations - When there are multiple dying declarations each dying declaration has to be separately assessed and evaluated independently on its own merits as to its evidentiary and one cannot be rejected because certain variations in other - In this case, deceased was in fit state of mind to make dying declarations and her statements those dying declarations are consistent and truthful - Prosecution also examined witnesses as well as Doctors and I.Os and other witness in support of their claim - No infirmity found in order of conviction and sentence recorded by trial Judge and affirmed by High Court - Deceased died within three years of her marriage at instance ofr her mother-in-law and sister-in-law due to harassment meted out to her because of inability to conceive child and she was poured kerosene and burn to death - In view of clinching evidence led in by prosecution there cannot be any leniency in favour of appellants/accused who are sister-in-law of deceased and that whose instance deceased was burnt at hands of her mother-in-law - Conclusions arrived at by Trial Court and affirmed by High Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Ashabai Vs. State of Maharashtra 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 97 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 814 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 333 = AIR 2013 SC 341 = 2013(2) SCC 224 = 2013(1) SCC(Cri) 943.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Sec.32(1) - "Dying Declaration" - Its relevance - Approach to be adopted by Courts – Stated - Session Judge convicted appellant/accused/husband for offence of cruelty and murder u/Secs.498-A & 302 IPC, basing on Dying Declaration of deceased/ wife - Division Bench of High Court confirmed conviction of accused u/Sec.302 of IPC and set aside conviction u/Sec.498-A IPC - Evidence Act, Sec.32(1) - "Dying Declaration" - Legislature has accorded a special sanctity to statement made by Dying person as to cause of his own death and this is by virtue of solemn occasion when statement is made - Besides, when statement is made at earliest opportunity without any influence being brought on dying declaration there is absolutely no reason to take any other view for cause of his or her death and statement has to be accepted as relevant and truthful one, revealing circumstances which resulted in to his death - Absence of any corroboration cannot be taken away its relevance - With incidents of wives being set on fire, very unfortunately continuing to occur in our Society, it is expected from Courts that they approach such situations very carefully giving due respect to dying declarations and not being swayed by fanciful doubts - In this case, there are two dying declaration recorded at earliest opportunity and they contained motive for crime and reasons as to why deceased suffered burn injuries - As far as her statements viz., that appellant had poured kerosene and set her on fire is concerned, there is no reason to discard it considering fact that it was made at earliest opportunity and on solemn occasion - Prosecution undoubtedly proved its case beyond any reasonable doubt - Judgment and order rendered by Session Judge as modified and confirmed by High Court- Justified - Appeals, dismissed. Hiraman Vs. State of Maharashtra, 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 169 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 74 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 2134 = 2013 Cri. LJ 2191 (SC).

—Sec.32 (7) r/w Sec.13-A - Statements made in documents relating to transaction and its admissibility as evidence - Suit filed by wife and sons of deceased co-parcener of joint family, for partition of properties - Contention that properties shown in plaint schedule are self-acquired properties of "M" father of deceased co-parcener and were already alienated and that there were no properties belonging to joint family - Trial Court granted preliminary decree for partition of plaint schedule properties holding that suit properties are not self-acquired properties of "M" - Single Judge of High Court confirmed findings recorded by trial Court and upheld preliminary decree - Appellants contend that there was absolutely no evidence to establish that there was sufficient nucleus to acquire plaint schedule properties and findings recorded by trial Court as confirmed on appeal are erroneous and without any basis - Property cannot be presumed to be joint family property merely because of existence of joint family and burden of proving property to be joint family property always lies on person who so asserts - However, once he proves that family possessed sufficient nucleus with aid of which suit properties could be acquired, then presumption has to be drawn that properties are joint and consequently burden of proof shifts to person claiming them to be self-acquired - In this case, there is joint nucleus available under certain documents, sufficient to acquire suit schedule property - Hence trial Court rightly drawn presumption - Contention that recitals in documents in question executed by "M", karta of joint family by itself is sufficient evidence that suit schedule property is self-acquired property of late "M" - Recitals in deeds can only be evidence as between parties to conveyance and those who claim under them - At any rate, a recital by itself cannot prove assertion of fact contained by recital, but some other evidence must be available to substantiate same and such recital by itself does not constitute sufficient evidence to establish existence of fact - In this case, admittedly suit for partition was filed specifically pleading that alienations made by "M" under certain documents were not valid and not binding on plaintiffs - It is not necessary to coparceners to specifically seek setting aside alienations of joint family properties, but it is sufficient if suit is filed for partition after declaring alienations are not binding on them - Admissibility of such recitals u/Sec.32 (7) and 13-A of Evidence Act does not affect question of onus of proof so far as alienation of joint family property made by kartha affecting vested rights of other coparceners - Judgment and preliminary decree granted by trial Court as confirmed on appeal - Justified - LPA, dismissed. Kasaram Jayamma Vs. Jajala Lakshmamma 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 390 = 2008(3) ALT 104 = 2008(1) APLJ 164 = 2008(3) ALD 657.

—Sec.33 - 1st respondent filed suit against petitioners for relief of partition and separate possession against GGK, sole defendant - In course of trial GGK was examined in chief as D.W.1 and when his cross-examination was half way through he died and his LRs were brought on record - GGK filed RC against 1st respondent/plaintiff for eviction and same was dismissed and appeal filed against it is pending - 1st respondent/plaintiff filed Application with a prayer to receive cross-examination of

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

GGK in RC - Trial Court allowed Application - Petitioners contend that very prayer in Application to make cross- examination of GGK as P.W.1 in RC as cross-examination in present suit is untenable and that circumstances provided for u/Sec.33 of Evidence Act do not exist in this case, and that cross-examination of GGK also was not completed, only on account of lapses on part of 1st respondent/plaintiff - Respondent/ plaintiff contends that Sec.33 of Evidence Act creates a facility for making evidence of person in one set of proceedings as part of record in other set, in case circumstances mentioned therein are proved and that GGK died before conclusion of cross-examination and that itself is sufficient to make his deposition in another case, as part of record of present case and that no interference is warranted with order of trial Court - Though there is slight variation of opinions expressed by High Courts, common feature is that such evidence cannot be eschewed as a whole - Predominent view is that evidence of witness who expires half way through, cannot be eschewed altogether - If witness was alive after examination-in-chief, but did not offer himself for cross-examination, entire evidence needs to eschewed for consideration without any hesitation - If on other hand, witness was cross-examined in certain extent, but was not alive thereafter, evidence need not be ignored altogether - If party who was entitled to cross-examine witness, did not turn up, chief-examination itself becomes entire evidence of witness for all practical purposes - Evidence of GGK as D.W.1 in present suit cannot be treated as having been eschewed, though it can be said to be incomplete - Sec.33 of Evidence Act of certainly gets attracted and 1st respondent is very much entitled to make deposition of that very witness in another case as part of record in present suit - However depositing in another case cannot be treated as cross-examination of deceased witness and at most it can be marked as exhibit, so that it can be treated as relevant or may be commented upon by both parties - CRP, partly allowed modifying order in Application filed by 1st respondent/plaintiff as one for marking cross-examination of GGK in RC as one of documents in suit. G.Gopalakrishna Vs. G.Venugopal 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 17 = 2013(4) ALD 573 = 2013(4) ALT 295.

—Secs.33,63, 91,92 & 145 - Secondary evidence - Oral agreement - Admissibility - Suit for specific performance of agreement of sale - Decreed - Defendant directed to execute sale deed in respect of suit land - Appellant/defendant contends that respondent since not having sufficient funds could not pay amount due under agreement within stipulated time and was trying to take shelter that appellant not producing original title deed and that respondent cannot insist on its production as a condition precedent for payment of balance due under agreement because handing over of original title deed arises only at time of registration and that non-production of title deed not a ground to respondent to delay payment - In this case, respondent deposited entire balance sale consideration within extended time granted by trial Court - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.63,33 & 145 - During pendency of appeal, appellant filed CMP to receive certain documents as additional evidence viz., Xerox copy of certified copy of agreement executed by respondent in favour of 3rd party, deposition of respondent as DW.1 in some other suit and proceedings of Land Reforms Tribunal - Documents filed with petition are Xerox copies of certified copies and hence are copies of certified copies but not certified copies and they are not admissible in evidence, because they do not satisfy requirements of Sec.63 of Evidence Act - Deposition of respondent in a suit filed against him by purchaser of his land cannot be received in evidence, as it can only be used as contradiction as per Sec.145 of Evidence and deposition would be relevant only if it satisfies requirements of Sec.33 of Evidence Act and therefore these two documents cannot be received as additional evidence in this appeal - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.91 & 92 - Oral agreement - Appellant admitted in reply notice about measuring of land which fact clearly shows that term was agreed between appellant and respondent and which is not inconsistent with the terms mentioned in agreement is also in existence - Neither Sec.91 nor Sec.92 of Evidence Act apply to facts of this case, because what is mandated by Sec.91 is that contents of document should be proved only by primary evidence, except in case in which secondary evidence is admissible and as Sec.92 of Evidence Act deals with exclusion of extrinsic evidence to contradict, vary, add to or subtract from terms of such document - Second proviso to Sec.92 clearly lays down that separate oral agreement as to any matter on which a document is silent and which is not inconsistent with its terms, can be proved - Respondent is entitled to relief of specific performance - Judgment and decree of trial Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Beemaneni Mahalakshmi Vs. Gangumalla Apparao2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 164 = 2008(1) ALD 375 = 2007(6) ALT 401.

—Sec.34 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.302 - "Dying declaration" - Trial Court convicting accused basing on dying declaration - 'Dying declaration' - Principles governing dying declaration - Stated - Though a dying declaration is entitled to great weight, it is worthwhile to note that accused has no power of cross-examination and such a power is essential for eliciting truth as an obligation of oath could be - This is reason Court also insists that dying declaration should be of such nature as to inspire full confidence of Court in its correctness - Once Court is satisfied that declaration was true and voluntary undoubtedly, it can base its conviction without any further corroboration - It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that dying declaration cannot form sole basis of conviction unless it is corroborated - Rule requiring corroboration is merely a rule of prudence. Kalawati Vs. State of Maharashtra 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 101 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 914(SC) = 2009(1) Supreme 800 = AIR 2009 SC 1932 = 2009 AIR SCW 1548.

—Secs.34 & 134 - Trial Court found that evidence of two eye-witnesses was trustworthy, co-gent, consistent and reliable - Basing on testimony of said two eye witnesses trial Court convicted respondents/accused u/Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 IPC awarding capital punishment - District Judge sent documents to High Court under reference for confirmation of capital punishment imposed on respondents, accused - In appeal, High Court acquitted respondents and rejected reference made by trial Court for confirmation of death sentence - Hence, instant appeal by State - Minor omissions in Police statements are never considered to be fatal - Prosecution evidence may suffer from inconsistencies here and discrepancies there, but that is a short-coming from which no criminal case is free - Main thing to be seen is whether those inconsistencies go to root of matter or pertain to insignificant aspects thereof - These discrepancies are due to normal errors of observation, normal errors of memory due to mental disposition, shock and horror at time of occurrence and threat to life - It is not often that improvements at earlier version are made at trial in order to give a boost to prosecution case albeit foolishly - Therefore it is duty of Court to separate falsehood from truth - CHILD WITNESS - It would be doing injustice to a child witness possessing sharp memory to say that it is inconceivable for him to recapitulate facts in his memory witnessed by him long ago - A child of tender age is always receptive to abnormal events which takes place in its life and would never for get those events for rest of his life - Child would be able to recapitulate correctly and exactly when asked about same in future - Sec.134 of Evidence Act specifically provides that no particular number of witness shall, in any case, be required for proof of any fact - It is well known principle of law that reliance can be placed on solitary statement of a witness, if Court comes to conclusion that said statement is true and correct version of case of prosecution - Courts are concerned with merit and statement of particulars witness and not at all concerned with number of witnesses examined by prosecution - Time-honoured rule of appreciating evidence is that it has to be weighed and not counted - Law of evidence does not require any particular number of witnesses to be examined in proof of given fact - However, where, Court finds that testimony of solitary witness is neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable, it may, in given set of facts, seek corroboration but to disbelieve reliable testimony of a solitary witness on ground that others have not been examined is to do complete injustice to prosecution - EVIDENCE OF RUSTIC WITNESS - A rustic witness, who is subjected to fatiguing, taxing and tiring cross-examination for days together, is bound to get confused and make some inconsistent statements - Some discrepancies are bound to take place if a witness is cross-examined at length for days together - Therefore, discrepancies noticed in the evidence of a rustic witness who is subjected to grueling cross-examination should not be blown out of proportion - To do so is to ignore hard realities of village life and give undeserved benefit to accused who have perpetrated heinous crime - Basic principle of appreciation of evidence of a rustic witness who is not educated and comes from a poor strata of society is that evidence of such a witness should be appreciated as a whole - Rustic witness as compared to an educated witness is not expected to remember every small detail of incident and manner in which incident had happened more particularly when his evidence is recorded after a lapse of time - ORAL DYING DECLARATION - High Court committed serious error in disbelieving oral dying declaration made by deceased before his real brother implicating appellants as his assailants - Reason given by High Court for disbelieving oral dying declaration was that it was not mentioned by witness either in FIR or in his statement recorded u/Sec.161 of Cr.P.C - FIR need not be an encyclopedia of minute details of incident nor it is necessary to mention therein evidence on which prosecution proposes to relay at trial - Basic purpose of filing FIR is to set criminal law in to motion and not to state all minute details therein - Therefore, interest of justice would be served to respondent accused is sentenced to R.I for life - Commission of offence punishable

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

u/sec.302, r/w Sec.34 IPC - Judgment rendered by High Court, set aside - Judgment of trial Court convicting respondents, restored. State of U.P. Vs. Krishna Master 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 42.

—Secs.40 to 42, 45 and 112 - FAMILY COURTS ACT, Secs.7 & 8 - SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, Secs.34 & 35 r/w Or.2, Rule 2 CPC - Plaintiff filed suit claiming that 1st defendant married 2nd defendant as per Hindu Vedic rites and customs and they lived together as man and wife for sufficiently long period enough and as a result of which relationship plaintiff born to 2nd defendant - In view of denial of relationship by 1st defendant denying his marriage with 2nd defendant and consequently his relationship with plaintiff - Hence present suit - JURISDICTION OF FAMILY COURT - u/Sec.7(1) explanation (e) of Act, Family Court cannot entertain any suit or a proceeding for a declaration as to legitimacy of any person without establishing validly any claim of marital relationship of parents - In face of denial of marital relationship by petitioner between him and 2nd defendant in suit he cannot suggest that Family Court should try suit brought out by plaintiff for declaration about his ligitimacy - Civil Court's jurisdiction to entertain suit of plaintiff is not barred u/Sec.8 of Act as Explanation (e) to sub-sec(1) of Sec.7 of Family Courts Act is not attracted in instant case - For establishing relationship of man and wife between 1st defendant and 2nd defendant, impleading 1st wife of petitioner herein and son born to him through her are neither proper nor necessary parties - If they have been impleaded suit would have been hit by principle of misjoinder of parties - DNA FINGER PRINTING TEST - No doubt it is fairly advanced scientific test - Before petitioner herein is ordered to undergo this test, it would be really necessary to understand scientific principles behind this test - DNA finger printing test undoubtedly offers credible material for establishing paternity of person - Supreme Court has occasion to consider efficacy and legal force behind conducting DNA finger printing test in several cases - Principles on subject have been summarized by Supreme Court with the following manner:

''1. A matrimonial court has the power to order a person to undergo medical test.

2. Passing of such an order by the Court would not be in violation of the right to personal liberty under Article 21 of the Indian Constitution.

3. However, the Court should exercise such a power if the applicant has a strong prima facie case and there is sufficient material before the Court. If despite the order of the Court, the respondent refuses to submit himself to medical examination, the Court will be entitled to draw an adverse inference against him."

Therefore applying these principles to present case Court has erred in exercising its jurisdiction at present moment of suit in ordering for DNA test on petitioner - Present stage of suit is premature one for ordering DNA test - CRP.No.2961 allowed accordingly. Davu Gopal Lunani Vs. Sri Siva Gopal Lunani 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 22 = 2014(2) ALD 131 = 2014(1) ALT 396 = AIR 2014 29.

—-Secs.40 to 43 - INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT, Sec.168 - Allegation of forgery of "Will" - Civil suit filed questioning genuineness of Will - Criminal compliant filed alleging that appellant forged Will - Indisputably, in a given case, a civil proceeding as also criminal proceeding may proceed simultaneously, cognizance in a criminal proceeding can be taken by criminal Court upon arriving at satisfaction that their exists a prima face case - Ordinarily a criminal proceeding will have primacy over civil proceeding - Precedence to a criminal proceeding is given having regard to fact that disposal of a civil proceeding takes a long time and in interest of justice former should be disposed of as expeditiously as possible - In event of both are pending criminal matter should be given precedence - If primacy is to be given to a criminal proceeding, indisputably, civil suit must be determined on its own merit, keeping in view evidences brought before it and not in terms of evidence brought in criminal procee-ding - Axiomatically, if judgment of a civil Court is not binding on a criminal Court, a judgment of criminal Court will certainly not be binding on civil Court - Sec.43 of Evidence Act categorically stated that judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in Secs.40,41 & 42 are irrelevant, unless existence of such judgment, order or decree, is a fact in issue or is relevant under some other provisions of Act - Pendency of two proceedings whether civil or criminal however, by itself would not attract provisions of Sec.41 of Evidence Act - A judgment has to be pronounced - Genuineness of Will must be gone into - Law envisages not only genuineness of will but also explanation to all suspicious circumstances surrounding thereto besides proof thereof in terms of Sec.63(c) of Succession Act and Sec.68 of Evidence Act - Appeal, dismissed. Syed Askari Hadi Ali Augustine Imam Vs. State (Delhi Admn.) 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 110 = 2009(2) ALD (Crl) 358 (SC) = 2009(4) Supreme 222 = 2009 AIR SCW 3251 = AIR 2009 SC 3232.

—Sec.45 - DNA Test - Plaintiff filed suit for partition among herself and defendants 1 & 2 contending that herself and defendants born to one "V" who is owner of schedule property - 2nd defendant contends that plaintiff and 1st defendant are destitute children brought up by "V" and not entitled for any share in plaint schedule property - Trial Court allowed Application filed by plaintiff directing 2nd defendant to give his blood for DNA test and deposit amount in to Court for said test - Petitioner-2nd defendant con-tends that DNA test cannot be ordered in a casual way and this is not a fit case for ordering DNA test - In this case, since there is a conflict whether plaintiff and 1st defendant were born to "V", it is essential to order DNA test which will set at rest dispute between parties regarding partition of suit schedule property - Order of trial Court - Justified - Revision petition, dismissed. Marada Venkateswara Rao Vs. Oleti Varalakshmi 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 244 = 2008(2) ALD 293 = 2008(2) ALT 348 = AIR 2008 AP 195.

—Sec.45 - Suit filed for specific performance of agreement of sale - Trial Court allowed earlier application filed by petitioner/defendant to send agreement of sale to State Forensic Laboratory which had opined that it is not possible to offer any opinion on disputed portion in document - When matter posted for further evidence, petitioner/ defendant again filed petition to send document Truth Laboratory - Plaintiff opposed request contending that he not only had no faith in any private Agency accessible to one and all, and that successive applications for same relief ought not to be entertained - Trial Court passed impugned order holding that opinion of hand writing expert is not conclusive on any issue and second application for same purpose cannot be entertained - Revision petitioner contends that impugned order is vitiated, as earlier expert stated that he cannot give any opinion, due to which present request became necessary and that request is not one of seeking a second opinion after opinion was already expressed by expert - Unfortunately expert of State Forensic Laboratory expressed helplessness in expressing any opinion on reference made to laboratory - Successive applications u/Sec.45 of Evidence for same relief are impermissible merely because opinion of expert is not favourable to a party - But facts of present case, are clearly distinguishable in sense that first expert did not express any opinion at all even though whatever expert says may be an opinion, it may be of valuable assistance in appreciating probabilities arising out of other evidence on record - It is appropriate to refer document to Central Forensic Science Laboratory for examination by concerned expert and his opinion - Impugned order of Senior Civil Judge, set aside - I.A allowed directing forwarding document to Central Forensic Science Laboratory - CRP, allowed. S.Neelakantam Vs. Maharudraiah Swamy 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 388.

—Sec.45 - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale - P.W.2 scribe of agreement though supported version of petitioner/plaintiff, he appears to have stated some thing different in cross-examination - Trial Court dismissed IA filed by petitioner/plaintiff u/Sec.45 of Evidence Act to send document to hand-writing-expert on ground that no contemporaneous document signed by 1st defendant is available and that signature on Vakalath and written statement are at variance with one on document - Exercise to be undertaken u/Sec.45 of Evidence Act is some what typical and it is only an expert is conversant with niceties of writing etc., that can express his view as to whether a particular writing or signature sent for comparison is that of person, who is alleged to have subscribed to it and existence of contemporaneous documents would certainly be helpful to expert - Mere absence of such helpful circumstances cannot render whole exercise u/sec.45 of Act impossible or untenable - Grounds mentioned by trial Court while rejecting Application cannot be sustained - Impugned order, set aside - Trial Court directed to send document to expert together with specimen signatures of 1st respondent/defendant - CRP, allowed. Jonnalagadda Ravi Sankar Vs. Jakka Rama Krishna Rao 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 132 = 2013(1) ALD 213 = 2013(3) ALT 798.

—Sec.45 - Respondent filed suit against petitioner for recovery of certain amount on strength of promissory note executed in favour of father of respondent - Petitioner filed written statement contending that he paid amount in instalments and though father of respondent promised to destroy promissory note, present suit filed by putting fictitious date - Trial Court dismissed Application filed by petitioner to send promissory note to hand writing expert for determination of age of signature on document - Hence present revision - Mere determination of age even if there exists any facility for that purpose cannot, by itself determine age of signature - In a given case, ink, or for that matter pen, may have been manufactured several years ago, before it was used to put a signature - If there was a gap of ten years between date of manufacture of ink or pen and date on which, signature was put or document was written, document cannot be said to have been executed or signed on date of manufacture of ink or pen and it is only in certain forensic cases, that such questions may be come relevant - Order of trial Court justified - Petitioner is at liberty to adduce such evidence, as is in his possession to put forward his contention - CRP, dismissed. Kambala Nageswara Rao Vs. Kesana Balakrishna 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 64 = 2014(1) ALD 521 = 2014(1) ALT 636 = AIR 2014 AP 37.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Sec.45 - By order, learned Judge directed that C.R.P.Nos.1500 and 1572 of 2010 be placed before a Bench of two or more Judges for consideration - Division Bench that dealt with the matter opined that it should be considered by a Full Bench - That is how C.R.P.Nos.1500 and 1572 of 2010 along with connected C.R.P.Nos.4098 and 5008 of 2010 came to be placed before Full Bench.

In effect, question referred for decision by learned Judge was "whether the Court would be barred from sending disputed handwriting/signature to an expert if time gap between admitted signature and disputed signature was very long" - However, reference order passed thereafter by Division Bench, which led to matter being placed before Full Bench, went a step further - Significantly, very same learned Judge who had passed order presided over said Division Bench - It was brought to notice of Division Bench that another Division Bench of this Court had held in JANACHAITANYA HOUSING LIMITED Vs. DIVYA FINANCIERS that there can be no set time limit for filing an application for sending handwriting/signatures for comparison and expert opinion - This decision was interpreted by Division Bench to mean that even if there were no contemporaneous signatures, an application u/Sec.45 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872, could be moved - Referring to an earlier decision rendered by a learned Judge dating back to the year 1960 in ANNAPURNAMMA Vs. B.SANKARARAO, which held to effect that a belated application would be of no avail if there was a lapse of time between admitted signature and disputed signature, Division Bench opined that these two views needed to be reconciled, though they had no direct relation but had a bearing on question referred to Division Bench - This was basis for reference to a Full Bench.

Held, it is essentially within judicious discretion of Court, depending on individual facts and circumstances of case before it, to seek or not to seek expert opinion as to comparison of disputed handwriting/signature with admitted handwriting/signature u/Sec.45 of the Indian Evidence Act - Court is however not barred from sending disputed handwriting/signature for comparison to an expert merely because time gap between admitted handwriting/signature and disputed handwriting/signature is long - Court must however endeavour to impress upon petitioning party that comparison of disputed handwritings/signatures with admitted handwritings/signatures, separated by a time lag of 2 to 3 years, would be desirable so as to facilitate expert comparison in accordance with satisfactory standards - That being said, there can be no hard and fast rule about this aspect and it would ultimately be for expert concerned to voice his conclusion as to whether disputed handwriting/signature and admitted handwriting/signature are capable of comparison for a viable expert opinion - View expressed by Division Bench in JANACHAITANYA HOUSING LIMITED Vs. DIVYA FINANCIERS, as to stage of proceedings when an application can be moved by a party u/Sec.45 of Indian Evidence Act, continues to hold field and there is no necessity for this Full Bench to address that issue - Matters may be posted before Court concerned for adjudication on merits. Bande Siva Shankara Srinivasa Prasad Vs. Ravi Surya Prakash Babu 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 222 = 2016(2) ALD 1 = 2016(2) ALT 248.

—Sec.45 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.115 - Suit filed by 1st respondent basing on promissory note - Decreed - E.P filed for realization of decretal amount by sale of EP Schedule properties - Petitioner filed E.A claiming title to item II of E.P Schedule properties basing on registered Will - Pursuant to Application filed by 1st respondent/ DHR, Will sent to Private Hand-writing Expert who opined that Will was forged document - Executing Court dismissed E.A filed by petitioner with prayer to send very same document to any Govt. Handwriting Expert alleging that opinion of Private Handwriting Expert was incorrect and biased - Opinion expressed by Handwriting Expert is not conclusive on issue and it is always open to parties to raise their objections to findings/ conclusions recorded by Expert and it is also open to cross-examine expert and elicit information from him - In this case, revision petitioner instead of filing objections to said opinion wanted to send very same documents to another Handwriting expert for comparison - When there is direct evidence to prove a document Court need not refer to or relay upon opinion of Expert - Evidently, in this matter executant of Will is no more and decree holder alleging that document is not genuine, sought comparison of signatures on said document with admitted signatures of executant - This is a case where petitioner wanted comparison of signatures on very same set of documents which were earlier sent for opinion of expert to be sent for a second opinion by another Expert alleging that decree holder managed to get opinion in his favour - Such a course is impermissible under law - Application made by petitioner to send document for second time to another Expert rightly rejected by Court below - Impugned order, justified - CRP, dismissed. N.Sreenivasulu Vs. N. Prakash Reddy 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 80 = 2009(4) ALD 745 = 2009(2) APLJ 81 = 2009(4) ALT 543.

—-Secs.45 & 47 – Handwriting/signature/fingure impression – Comparison by Court without assistance of Expert – Aspect – Discussed – Suit for partition of joint family property by daughters of deceased, father – Defendant, son contends that daughters are not members of joint family and that father and his brother have executed Wills bequeathing joint family property in his favour – Trial Court decreed suit expressing doubt regarding execution of wills of deceased father and his brother, commenting that defendant has not taken any steps to compare signatures - Evidence Act, Sec.45 – Court can compare disputed handwriting/signature /finger expression such comparison by Court without assistance of any Expert has always been considered to be hazardous and risky – Further even in cases where Court is constrained to take up such comparison, it should make a thorough study, if necessary with assistance of Counsel, to ascertain characteristics, similarities and dissimilarities – Necessarily, judgment should contain reasons for any conclusion based on comparison of thumb impression, if it chooses to record a finding thereon - Court should avoid reaching conclusions based on a mere casual or routine glance or perusal – Finding reached by trial Court on said aspect of Wills, cannot be sustained, especially as Expert opinion was not before Court - Impugned judgment of trial Court, set aside – Suit remanded for fresh consideration – Appeal, allowed. Kovilapu Suryanarayana Vs. Jogi Thavitamma 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 17 = 2009(2) ALD 371 = 2009(2) ALT 644.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Secs.45 & 73 - Suit filed for specific performance of agreement to sell - Decreed and same confirmed by first appellate Court - Single Judge of High Court set aside decree passed by both Courts and remanded suit for trial afresh - After conclusion of evidence on either side, trial Court dismissed petition filed by petitioner/defendant u/Sec.45 to send signature of P.W.3 on his deposition alongwith signature of plaintiff on plaint - Respondents contend that Application was made with an evil design to protract litigation and to harass them - In this case, if really P.W.3 is fictitious person, said fact can be established by other means, such as cross-examining P.W.3, adducing positive evidence regarding false identity of P.W.3 and like - Even if opinion of expert indicates that signatures of P.W.3 on his deposition and signatures of plaintiff on vakalth and GPA are not identical, his evidence being only an opinion evidence, it is not obligatory on part of Court to relay on said evidence - That apart, Court can arrive its own opinion by comparing respective signatures in exercise of its power u/Sec.73 of Evidence Act - Whenever a signature is disputed, it is not obligatory on part of Court to send same for expert's opinion at request of a party, if there is possibility of establishing execution of a particular document or identity of an individual by some other means - Absolutely there are no bonafides on part of revision petitioners in filing Application seeking expert's opinion as per provisions of Sec.45 of Evidence Act - CRP, dismissed. Mohd. Abdul Hakeem Vs. Naiyaz Ahmed 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 9.

—Secs.45 & 73 - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit for specific performance basing on agreement of sale against petitioners/defendants contending that she is ready and willing to pay sale consideration, petitioners did not come forward to receive same and therefore, she has filed suit - After evidence of defendant closed and when matter adjourned for arguments, petitioner filed Application u/sec.45 of Evidence Act to send agreement of sale to Finger Print Expert for comparison, alleging that thumb impression appeared on it is not that of 2nd petitioner herein and that it is a forged one - Trial Court dismissed petition observing that no petition to reopen evidence of petitionrs(defendants) is filed and therefore, petition is not maintainable and that application filed u/Sec.45 of Evidence Act cannot be ordered as a matter of course and when Court feels that it is necessary to send document, then only Court may allow application and that even if there is expert's opinion, much importance need not be given to same - When signature or thumb impression on a document is denied, it has to be proved as a fact whether signature or impression is that of person who had alleged to have put his signature or thumb impression - While passing orders on interlocutory applications, generally, Court should avoid making comments on merits of case and as to whether evidence adduced by one party is trustworthy or not and whether evidence of any particular witness is shaken or not, such observations appear to be not necessary and more over, create a reasonable apprehension in mind of party and therefore it is always better to avoid such comments - Though power of Courts to send document to an expert u/Sec.45 of Act is discretionary power, Courts have to exercise discretion in a just and reasonable manner and if there are any lapses on part of party, Court may consider those lapses but merely because there are some latches or some delay on part of party, that should not come in way of rejecting their claim.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

In this case, respondent also could not show any provision to file an application to reopen case - When an application has been filed to adduce further evidence it is deemed that request is made to reopen matter and there is no need to file a separate application to reopen case.

Since it appears that by not sending document to hand writing expert, right of 2nd petitioner is held to be affected - Impugned order, set aside - Trial Court directed to send disputed matter to Handwriting Expert at an early date - Revisions, allowed. Kolli Ranga Rao Vs. Kolli Varalakshmi Janani, 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 349 = 2011(3) ALD 547 = 2011(4) ALT 252.

—Secs.45 & 73 - Suit for specific performance of agreement of sale - After completion of evidence petitioner/defendant filed Application u/Sec.45 of Evidence Act for sending agreement of sale for opinion of Handwritting Expert - Trial Court dismissed Application holding that according to certain judgments of High Court Expert's opinion does not bind Court and that Court can arrive at its own conclusion on genuineness or otherwise of documents based on evidence on record and also its own opinion on comparison of signatures u/Sec.73 of Evidence Act - Petitioner contends, placing reliance on judgments of Supreme Court that comparison of signatures by Court itself is a risky proposition and therefore trial Court ought to have sent said document for an expert - In this case, trial Court has observed that there is already evidence of P.Ws.1 to 4 available on record and from this it is clearly implied that trial Court does not want to relay solely upon comparison of signatures in adjudicating upon nature of document but it would like to appreciate evidence also before rendering conclusive finding on document - Trial Court exercised its sound discretion in declining to send document for Expert's opinion - Order of trial Court justified - CRP, dismissed. Chidara Uma Maheshwar Rao Vs. Methuku Janardhan 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 49 = 2013(6) ALD 314.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Secs.45 & 73 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.21, Rules 58 and 97 and Sec.115 - Respondents having obtained decree for possession in suit filed E.P for delivery of possession against respondents, JDRs - Petitioner filed claim petition claiming that he is tenant in decree schedule property, u/Sec.45 of Evidence Act to send documents to Expert for comparison of signatures, after completion of enquiry in so called claim petition when same posted for arguments - Lower Court while exercising discritionary jurisdiction, came to conclusion that there was no necessity for sending documents to expert as Court itself can undertake such comparison to come to opinion of its own in exercise of power u/Sec.73 of Evidence Act - Comparison of hand writing or signature is not a science at all much-less any scientifc approach in making such comparison and it is only an art which has to be acquainted by experience - So far as judicial Officers in State of A.P., are cocerned they are provided with subject of introduction to comparison of signatures and hand writing during their basic induction course at time of their induction into subordinate judiciary after their selection - Judicial Officers are taken to several premier forensic and scientific institutions for practical experience and also are provided with lectures by faculty on above subject in A.P. Judicial Academy, it is not as if Judicial Officers undertake power u/Sec.73 of Evidence Act in a gullible manner and they are provided with basic confidence in undertaking this subject - It cannot be said that lower Court which is a Court presided over by Senior Subordinate Judicial Officer cannot undertake work of comparison of signature in exercise of power u/Sec.73 of Evidence Act, particularly when that Court did not entertain any doubt on this aspect of matter - Judicial discretion exercised by lower Court in refusing to send disputed documents and admitted documents to expert for comparison of signatures - Justified - Revision petition, dismissed. J.Krishna Vs. Maliram Agarwal 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 360 = 2013(4) ALD 568 = 2013(4) ALT 393 = AIR 2013 AP 107.

—Secs.45,74,76,77 & 79 - BANKER'S BOOKS EVIDENCE ACT, 1891, Secs.2(3) & 4 - Petitioners filed suit seeking cancellation of three sale deeds executed by late A.V. and R. A alleging that defendants forged thumb impressions in said sale deeds and got them registered. - - Trial Court dismissed application filed by petitioners/ plaintiffs to re-open case after closure of their evidence - Pursuant to directions of High Court in CRP petitioners having got two Bank documents marked through Manager in evidence as Ex.11 & 12 and filed Application u/Sec.45 of Evidence Act, r/w Sec.151 CPC to send disputed sale deeds for expert opinion as to thumb impressions therein in comparison with those affixed by A.V and R.A in Exs.A.11 & 12 - Trial Court allowed Application and directed documents to be forwarded to finger print expert for opinion - Single Judge of High Court, allowed CRP, and set aside order of trial Court - Hence present Review petition filed by petitioner/plaintiff - Documents, Ex.11 and 12 being record of Bank's usual and ordinary business transaction, falls squarly within ambit of Bankers document as defined in Sec.2(3) of Act, 1981 in terms of Secs.4 of said Act - Respondents defendants contend that they denied execution of

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

Ex.A1 & A12 by A.V. and R.A and affixed their thumb impressions therein and once document records that transactiion reflected there in was between bank and person who affixed his/her thumb impression, prima facie a presumption would operate to effect that thumb impression was that of person who allegedly entered into transaction and this presumption however would be rebuttable in view of Sec.4 of Act - It is for respondent/defendants to adduce necessary evidence to rebut this presumption, but thumb impressions in these bank documents cannot be discarded on bald assertion of defendants that they disputed genuineness thereof - Single Judge while allowing CRP did not consider import and impact of presumption in law which attached to Bank documents, Exs.A11 & 12 , with which thumb impressions in disputed documents were sought to be compared - Consequently it was not a case, where request for examination by an expert could be rejected at threshhold on ground that opposite party disputed genuineness of thumb impressions in bank documents - No doubt presumption which attaches in his documents is not absolute and it would be open to opposite party to dislodge such a presumption by adducing evidence to contrary - However, such a party cannot shut out examination of these documents by expert by a bald assertion that it disputes genuineness thereof - Order under review reflected an apparent error - Review, allowed - CRP, dismissed. Anapalli Bhaskar Vs. Gudi Venkateswarlu, 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 75 = 2013(6) ALD 83.

—Secs.45 and 112 - Revision petitioner filed suit against respondent claiming a sum of Rs. 3,00,000/- towards educational and marriage expenses claiming herself as daughter born to the respondent through her mother Tulasi - Respondent resisted the suit questioning the paternity of the revision petitioner and he filed I.A. No. 191 of 2013 requesting the court to refer revision petitioner and her mother Tulasi for DNA Test - Trial Judge, on a consideration of contentions and rival contentions of both parties and also the law on subject, allowed the application and directed the revision petitioner and her mother to go for DNA test - Aggrieved by the decision, the present revision is preferred - Held, In Dipanwita Roy Vs. Ronobroto Roy case, when the Family court rejected the request of the husband for DNA Test of his wife, High Court of Calcutta in its civil revisional jurisdiction allowed the petition and ordered for DNA test and that was challenged in the Supreme Court and the Supreme Court upheld the order of Calcutta High Court - While directing for DNA test, Calcutta High Court put some conditions and the Honourable Supreme Court upheld those conditions - In view of the decision in the above case, the contention of revision petitioner with regard to Section 112 of Indian Evidence Act cannot be sustained - Second objection contended by the appellant is that the petition is hit by doctrine of estoppel - Revision petitioner submitted that mother of revision petitioner filed M.C.No. 18 of 1993 and in that M.C. a similar petition was filed by respondent herein and that petition was dismissed on 27-04-1995 and no revision was preferred against the said order by the respondent herein and therefore, he is estopped from again filing of such application - In the decision relied on by the advocate for revision petitioner, difference between estoppel and res judicata was interpreted and held that if an issue is decided against a party that party is estopped from raising the same in a later proceedings - As rightly pointed out by the respondent, that decision has no application herein and the facts and parties are entirely different - For these reasons, this Civil Revision Petition is dismissed as devoid of merits. Manjudari Neerada @ Radhi Vs. M.P.Narasimha Rao 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 452 = 2015(3) ALD 596 = 2015(4) ALT 157.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—-Sec.45, 112 &114 (h) – DNA Test - In this case, Petitioner and respondent are man and wife - Petitioner filed original petition before trial court for grant of divorce by dissolution of marriage between parties and in that original petition he had taken plea that he is not responsible for birth of male child by respondent and that he had no access to respondent who is mother of said male child and that respondent had conceived male child on account of illicit intimacy with one MS and that therefore it is in the interest of justice, to refer parties and male child and respondent to undergo DNA test – Respondent wife resisted said application filed by petitioner denying allegations and that respondent cannot compel to undergo DNA examination and that son is aged 3 years and after lapse of 3 years for first time the allegations are made - Trail court have considered pleadings dismissed applications of petitioners husband by following a decision of Supreme Court.

This court is in agreement with arguments of petitioner/husband, but for DNA test it would be impossible for petitioner husband to establish and confirm the assertions made in pleadings – Therefore this court is satisfied that a direction can be issued as prayed for in petition of husband - CRP allowed and impugned order is set aside - Trail court shall accordingly direct the petitioner and child of respondent to undergo DNA test. Govindula Sathaiah Vs. Govindula Manjula 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 86 = 2016(3) ALD 572.

—Secs.50 & 114 - Scope of presumption that could be drawn as to relationship of marriage between two persons living together - Stated - Provisions of Secs.50 & 114 refer to common course of natural events, human conduct and private business - It is clear that act of marriage can be presumed from common course of natural events and conduct of parties as they are borne out by facts of particular case - Law presumes in favour of marriage and against concubinage when a man and women have cohabited continuously for number of years - Partners lived together for long spell as husband and wife there would be presumption in favour of wedlock - Presumption is rebuttable, but a heavy burden lies on person who seeks to deprive relationship of legal origin to prove that no marriage took place - Law leans in favour of legitimacy and frowns upon bastardy. Tulsa Vs. Durghatiya 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 77.

—Secs.63,65 & 66 - “Secondary evidence” - Trial Court dismissed Application filed by petitioner/plaintiff seeking permission to mark Xerox copy of statement of son of respondent/defendant - Petitioner contends that trial Judge had not understood distinction between primary evidence and secondary evidence and that if a document is not hit by a provisions of Secs.35 & 36 of Stamp Act same to be received by way of evidence and to be given exhibit mark subject to any objection, which may be decide at stage of final hearing - Respondent/defendant contends that document in question being a Xerox copy containing some calculations, same being undated and unsigned, trial Judge arrived at correct conclusion in disbelieving same and holding it as inadmissible - Xerox copy of such statement or conclusions may be unsigned or undated definitely is not primary evidence and it is secondary evidence - It is true that respondent/ defendant specifically denied very existence of original document much less custody of such document - In every such case necessarily Court cannot come to conclusion that such secondary evidence is not genuine and not bona fide - It would be just and proper to go into these aspects at appropriate stage - Since parties are expected to let in oral evidence also in this regard and such parties also would be further cross- examined in this regard it may be just and proper to permit petitioner to mark document in question by way of secondary evidence subject to condition of trial Judge considering of other aspects at appropriate stage while deciding suit - Impugned order, set aside - CRP, allowed. M.Aruna Vs. Trilok Kumar Sanghi 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 140 = 2009(3) ALD 553 = 2009(1) APLJ 95(SN).

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Secs.63,65 & 66 - "Secondary evidence" - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale - When suit commenced for trial, respondent sought to file Photostat copy of agreement of sale, pleading that original document was handedover to Advocate for preparation of notice and for drafting pleadings and that inspite of repeated requests said Advocate did not return original - Inspite of objection raised by petitioner/defendant, trial Court overruled objection and paved way for marking of Photostat copies of agreement of sale and endorsements made thereon - Petitioners contend that Sec.66 of Evidence Act enables a party to adduce secondary evidence, only when a party, who, in natural course of events, is supposed to have custody of document in original, refused to furnish same, inspite of demand and that Advocate engaged by party cannot be said to be a person, to have natural custody of document, in relation to suit transaction - When there is serious dispute as to genuinity of fourth endorsement, on document, it becomes just impossible for Court, to verify plea, by examining photostat copy - From perusal of Sec.66, it is evident that normally a notice to produce original of document is to be issued to "party" - However, if one takes into account language employed in Sec.65 , it is possible that secondary evidence can be adduced even where person, in whose custody original is, not a party to suit - In this case, person who is said to be in possession of original of agreement of sale, is an Advocate who is not a party to suit - Mere statement by respondent/ plaintiff that a notice was issued to said Advocate for production of original, ad that he did not comply with request, does not suffice, to enable him to adduce secondary evidence and it becomes essential and necessary to secure presence by taking summons from Court - If party, who intends to adduce secondary evidence, is relieved of obligation to summon such person to prove factum of original being in custody of such person, very rigor against secondary evidence contained in various provisions including Sec.65, may get diluted - Nature of burden as regards issuance of notice for production of original, substantially differs from a case, where such a person is a party to suit, and one where he is not a party - Trial Court did not bestow its attention to this aspect Trial Court directed to consider matter afresh - Impugned order, set aside,Revision - allowed. Manepalli Venkata Sreerama Murthy Vs. Garlapati Lakshmana Swamy 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 447.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Secs.63,65, 68 & 69 – "Secondary evidence" - Petitioner filed suit against Respondents for partition and separate possession basing on partition deed and a Will – Respondents/ defendants filed written statement stating that originals of deed of partition as well as Will were lost on way to office of their Counsel and therefore enclosed Xerox copies of deed of partition and Will - Petitioner/plaintiff filed a Memo with a prayer to refuse to receive Xerox copies of deed of partition and Will for which respondent filed counter - Trail Court passed a detailed order holding that Xerox copies of deed of partition cannot be received as Certified copy thereof can be obtained, but Xerox copy of Will can be received as "Secondary evidence" by observing that respondents have laid adequate foundation in the written statement for receiving secondary evidence of Will – Hence petitioner/plaintiff filed present Revision - Sec.63 of Evidence Act defines types of secondary evidence and Sce.65 stipulates conditions under which secondary evidence of Document can be received, where parties seriously dispute very existence of original, of which, secondary evidence is sought to be adduced, thorough scrutiny and verification are to be undertaken - Way back 1954, Supreme Court held that laying of foundation for receiving secondary evidence would take in its fold, steps such as furnishing of contents of documents, persons who scribed it, persons who attested it and details of persons who had possession of document immediately before it was lost - If those tests are applied to present case, respondent/defendant would miserably fail - Will is Typical Document – It is required to be proved u/Secs.68 and 69 of Evidence Act and even if no opposition is offered by other party, it is only on examination of attestors, that document can be acted upon - In this case trail Court proceeded on assumption that certain paragraphs in written statement wherein disputed Will was referred to would constituted foundation – However same does not accord with judgment of Supreme Court - Order of Trail Court set aside - CRP Allowed. Suddapalli Lakshi Saroja Vs. Vishnu Bolla Murali Krishna, 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 296.

—Secs.63 & 66 - "Secondary evidence" - "Xerox copy of agreement" - Petitioners filed suit for relief of specific performance of agreement of sale - After commencement of trial in course of evidence on behalf of petitioners they intended to bring on record said agreement - Since respondents/defendants not acceded request of petitioners after receiving notice u/Sec.66 of Evidence Act - Application filed requesting Court to receive xerox copy of said agreement as "secondary evidence" - Trial Court dismissed said Application - Hence present Revision - If proposed secondary evidence conforms to tests u/sec.63 of Act, Application needs to be allowed - Once it is shown that preliminary steps contemplated u/Sec.66 are complied with, question as to whether document so received can be treated as relevant or is admissible, can certainly be decided at a subsequent stage - Question pertaining to custody of original and efforts made by consent party to procure same, can be subject matter of evidence - In this case, respondent/defendant does not dispute existence of agreement - Hence, impugned order of trial Court, set aside - Application allowed subject to proof of relevance and other conditions of parties - CRP, allowed. Koneru Srinivas Vs. G.Sarala Kumari 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 305.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Sec. 65 - This Revision Petition is filed challenging order in Court of Senior Civil Judge, City Civil Court, permitting respondent to mark photo copies of three documents.

Held, Court below, by impugned order, allowed said Application simply extracting Section 65 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 and holding that photo copies are admissible in evidence - No reference is made to Sec.66 of Act regarding procedure laid down therein, to be followed by a party, who wishes to produce secondary evidence, alleging that primary evidence is in custody of the other side.

Therefore, impugned order cannot be sustained and it is accordingly set aside - Civil Revision Petition is therefore allowed. B.Ahsok Vs. G.Balaji, 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 76 = 2016(2) ALT 694 = 2016(1) ALD 55.

—-Sec.65 - This appeal by special leave is directed against order passed by learned Single Judge of High Court who set aside order rendered by trial court permitting the defendant-appellant to lead secondary evidence in Civil Suit filed by respondent no.1 - Short question that arises for consideration by this Court is as to whether the High Court is justified in reversing the order passed by the Trial Court allowing defendant-appellant to lead secondary evidence of the contents of the documents.

Held, it is well settled that if a party wishes to lead secondary evidence, Court is obliged to examine the probative value of document produced in the Court or their contents and decide question of admissibility of a document in secondary evidence - At same time, party has to lay down the factual foundation to establish the right to give secondary evidence where original document cannot be produced - It is equally well settled that neither mere admission of a document in evidence amounts to its proof nor mere making of an exhibit of a document dispense with its proof, which is otherwise required to be done in accordance with law.

After considering entire facts of case and evidence adduced by the appellant for the purpose of admission of the secondary evidence, this Court in of the view that all efforts have been taken for the purpose of leading secondary evidence - Trial court has noticed that the photocopy of Exhibit DW-2/B came from custody of DEO and the witness, who brought the record, has been examined as witness - In that view of matter, there is compliance of provisions of Section 65 of the Evidence Act - Merely because the signatures in some of documents were not legible and visible that cannot be a ground to reject secondary evidence

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

- In our view, trial court correctly appreciated efforts taken by appellant for the purpose of leading secondary evidence.

For the reasons aforesaid, impugned order passed by High Court cannot be sustained in law - Appeal is accordingly allowed and order passed by High Court is set aside. Rakesh Mohindra Vs. Anita Beri 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 33 = 2015 AIR SCW 6271 = 2016(1) ALD 19 (SC).

—Sec.65 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.151 - "Secondary evidence" - Trial Court allowed Application permitting defendant to lead secondary evidence in respect of sale deed by producing only attested copy of sale deed as original was not traced in Tahsil office - Plaintiff/Revision petitioner contends that there was no sale deed in existence as claimed and report of MRO did not disclose loss or misplacements or destruction of original sale deed or where document so lost etc., - In this case, trial Court observed that unless original sale deed had been produced before Tahsildar, production of attested copy obtained from original document through mechanical process could not have been possible and it also observed that defendant himself never claimed that original sale deed was lost or destroyed in his custody to obligate him to explain such loss or destruction - Plaintiff contends that when he is contending document to be concoted and fabricated for purpose of suit in absence of any proof of submission of original sale deed before Tahsil Office, trial Court should not have permitted secondary evidence and that Sec.65 of Evidence Act has no application when MRO never stated that original sale deed was filed before him or that it was misplaced and when it was not proved that original document was compared with copy, any secondary evidence cannot be received - In this case, prima facie, conclusions of trial Court that there is justification for permitting defendant to lead secondary evidence of document cannot be considered to be unfounded and improper - Even trial Court in the application made it clear in its order that plaintiff is at liberty to question document, if marked during course of trial - Any evidence, which defendant produces by way of secondary evidence concerning existence, condition and contends of document will be subject to being questioned on all permissible grounds by plaintiff and will be further subject to appreciation by trial Court of admissibility, credibility and acceptability of such evidence sought to be produced as secondary evidence - No prejudice caused to petitioners - Impugned order, justified - CRP, dismissed. Syed Haji Pasha Vs. Syed Ahmed 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.)293.

—Secs.65 & 66 - REGISTRATION ACT, Secs.17 & 49 - STAMP ACT, Secs.2 (14) & 32 - "Secondary evidence" - Suit for eviction - When plaintiff wanted to mark Xerox copy of agreement, defendant resisted on ground that document is fabricated and cannot be marked without producing original and that plaintiff has to pay stamp duty and said document also requires registration - Trial Court receiving document as 'secondary evidence' subject to condition of payment of stamp duty and penalty - Sec.2(14) of Stamp Act defines "INSTRUMENT" as "instrument" includes every document by which any right or liability is, or purpose to be, created, transferred, limited, extended, extinguished, or recorded - Xerox copy document in question would not fall within meaning of instrument, said document cannot be received as evidence even on condition of Stamp Duty and Penalty for reason that there is no question of such document being sent either for purpose of impounding or collecting stamp duty and penalty on such document, since such document would not fall within definiton of instrument - Impugned order, set aside - CRP, allowed. Sunkara Surya Prakash Rao Vs. Madireddi Narasimha Rao 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 356 = 2009(3) ALD 388.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—- Sec.65(a) - A bare statement made on affidavit by a party would be sufficient proof of fact that document has been lost or not traced out - There can never be an absolute proof of fact that document had in fact been lost - A statement of the person that document was lost and inspite of his best efforts he could not trace out document would be sufficient evidence of fact that document had been lost - Learned Court below in my view has placed a high degree of proof on petitioners in respect of requirement u/Sec.65(a) of Evidence Act and order passed by learned Court below rejecting to receive photocopies of letters as secondary evidence in my view is not appropriate having regard to facts and circumstances of present case - Mere admitting secondary evidence cannot relieve petitioners from proving the contents of documents and the respondent can always take objection as to proof of the contents of the documents and their probative value - For foregoing reasons, order passed by learned Court below dated 01.11.2013 in I.A.No.740/2013 in O.S.No.1/2010 is liable to be set aside and accordingly the same is set aside - Civil Revision Petition is allowed. Ramakrishna Constructions Vs. The Singareni Collieries Co. Ltd. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 274 = 2015(1) ALD 427 = 2015(3) ALT 494.

—Sec.65(c) and 63 - NOTARIES ACT, 1952, Sec.8(1) (a) - "Secondary evidence" - Suit filed for specific performance of agreement of sale - Since plaintiff lost original agreement of sale while shifting his house, he filed petition seeking permission to receive notarized copy of agreement of sale as secondary evidence - Petitioner/Defendant filed counter stating that main suit for specific performance of contract filed basing on a fake, forged and created agreement of sale and that defendants neither sold schedule property to any body nor signed not put their impressions on any document and that they have not received any consideration nor issued any receipt and that when original agreement was misplaced and not traced, how Notary attested its copy without seeing original is not explained - Trial Court allowed petition holding that prima facie, petitioner had shown that original agreement has been lost beyond recovery while shifting his house - It is clear from Sec.8 (1) (a) of Notaries Act that a Notary can not only certify or attest execution of any instrument, but also verify and authenticate execution of instrument - Point, whether a Notary is competent to attest copy of document basing on original document, is a matter to be decided after adducing evidence but not at this stage - Opportunity shall be given to parties to produce necessary evidence with regard to leading secondary evidence - In this case, copy of agreement of sale is attested by Notary as photostat copy of original – Photostat copy of document is admissible in evidence, provided it is certified as true copy - Whether Xerox copy of document comes within meaning of Sec.63 (3) of Act is a matter to be decided and resolved after adducing evidence but not at stage of threshold - Trial Court rightly observed that Court is entitled to reject any document which is irrelevant and inadmissible at any stage of case - In this case, since document sought to be received as secondary evidence is suit document necessary requirements that are to be followed under law are required to be proved beyond preponderance of probability - It can be done ordinarily after adducing evidence - Trial Court allowing petition - Justified - CRP, dismissed. Sattamma Vs. Ch.Bhikshpati Goud @ Ch.Bhupal Goud 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 43.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Sec.68 - This appeal is filed by sole plaintiff in O.S.No.3 of 1977 on file of Subordinate Judge, - Suit was filed for relief of partition and separate possession in respect of items 1, 2 and 3 of plaint A schedule properties, against the defendants - Plaintiff presented suit as an indigent person, and after due enquiry, trial Court accorded permission - Trial Court passed a preliminary decree, through its judgment, dated 30.06.1989 - Aggrieved by that, defendant No.3, his sons - Defendants 7, 8 and 9 preferred A.S.No.1994 of 1989 - A learned Single Judge of this Court allowed appeal, through his judgment, dated 27.03.2000, and has set aside the preliminary decree passed by the trial Court - Hence, this L.P.A - Held, lawmakers have insisted that a Will must be attested and the proof thereof shall be through a separate mechanism - Section 68 of Act mandates that at least one of two attestors of Will must be examined - Even where such attestors were not alive, any person who is acquainted with writing or signature of such person can be examined as a witness - 1 st defendant did not take any steps, in this regard - Even if a person, who is contesting Will, does not dispute fact that it was in handwriting of testator and it was written and signed by testator, he can successfully oppose disposition made thereunder, if it is demonstrated that Will was not attested. Failure to take steps that are stipulated under Section 68 of the Act would leave Will in state of an unattested document - From this point of view also, Ex.B.5 cannot be said to have been proved - Excessive reliance was placed by learned Single Judge upon fact that Ex.B.5 was referred to with approval in the compromise decree in Ex.B.26. Admittedly, plaintiff was not a party to that suit - Added to that, no finding was recorded about Ex.B.5 in Ex.B.26 on touchstone of Section 68 of the Act - Viewed from any angle, Ex.B.5 was not proved - 1st defendant, however, projected a plea that the claim of plaintiff is on basis of succession and unless suit is filed within three years from the date, on which the succession opened, it is barred by limitation - Trial Court has rightly repelled that contention - In result, Letters Patent Appeal is allowed and judgment of learned Single Judge in A.S.No.1994 of 1989 is set aside - Preliminary decree passed by trial Court is upheld. Anantharaju Venkata Seshamma Vs. Rajupalem Seshavataram 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 460

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Secs.68, 69- Will - Signature of the executant is disputed and help of forensic lab is sought by the petitioner which was dismissed by the trial court - Held, examination of attestors would only bring about compliance with the requirement u/Sec. 68 of the Act, beyond that it does not add finality to the genuinity of the Will - Trial Court directed to send the Will along with document containing the undisputed signature of the executants of the said document to the Forensic Science Lab - Revision Petition Allowed. Mathangi Devasahayam Vs. Jetty Manikyamma 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 421 = 2014(5) ALD 741 = 2014(6) ALT 81.

—Secs.73 & 45 -Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit basing on sale deed contending that he purchased said property from defendant under document, sale deed, executed by defendant which is filed alongwith suit - Petition filed by plaintiff requesting to obtain thumb impressions and signatures of plaintiff/defendant in presence of their counsel in open Court and get them examined and compared by Regional Forensic Laboratory along with signatures and thumb impressions in sale deed - Defendant resisted request contending that alleged sale deed is a fabricated document and even if registered sale deed is proved to have been executed by him, still said suit is not maintainable - Trial Court dismissed petition by coming to a conclusion that Court itself can looking to disputed signatures and thumb impressions and come to a conclusion by its own knowledge as per Sec.73 of Evidence Act and mere filing of petition to send document alongwith signatures and thumb impressions of parties obtained in Court need not be followed at first instance - In this case, plaintiff asserts its execution by defendant, while defendant denies same and reliefs to which parties are entitled and questions in controversy in suit are solely based on proof or otherwise of execution of document in question - In a case, like present one, it cannot be said that Court itself can come to a just conclusion by comparing thumb impressions and signatures on disputed document and those obtained in open Court and any such comparison with naked eye by Court may be an unsafe experiment in attempting to arrive at truth - In present case, exercise u/sec.45 of Act has to be permitted to be undertaken to have comprehensive adjudication of questions in controversy between parties and any exercise u/Sec.73 Evidence Act may not meet requirements - Order of trial Court, set aside - I.A, allowed - Trial Court directed to obtain signatures and thumb impressions of plaintiff and defendant in presence of their counsel in open Court on an appointed date and forward to SFCL - CRP, allowed. Thumu Srikanth Vs. Akula Babu 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 85.

—Sec.92(4) - Let in evidence contrary to contends of registered title deed - Appellants/ plaintiffs filed suit for permanent injunction and declaration of title - 1st defendants contends that plaintiffs misrepresented and made him to believe that they have sold a particular plot - Trial Court dismissed suit - On appeal trial Court dismissed appeal - Hence plaintiffs filed present second Appeal - Appellants contend that Sec.92 proviso 4 of Evidence Act excludes evidence of oral agreement altering terms of registered sale deed Ex.A-10.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

"....Subsequent oral arrangement set up by defendant/appellant cannot be proved by perol evidence, such an evidence is not admissible in evidence".

High Court in second Appeal did not re-consider or reassess evidence let in by both parties in order to come to its own findings on facts - Even if concurrent findings on facts recorded by Courts below are acceptable on evidence, law does not permit such evidence in view of proviso (4) to Sec.92 of Evidence Act and that findings on facts recorded by Court below on such inadmissible and irrelevant evidence become illegal - Respondent further contend that having played fraud in drafting Ex.A10, sale deed in favour of 1st defendant, plaintiffs cannot take advantage on their own fraud - A person who is guilty of fraud cannot take advantage of his fraud in Court of law - In this case, it cannot be said that suit site of Ac.0-7.5 cents is unspecified - Plaintiffs have given boundary measurements for said Ac.0-7.5 cents and also appended plan which is now attached to decree with description, in order to localise suit land - Therefore it cannot be contended that decree becomes inexecutable even if it is granted as prayed for by plaintiffs - In view of discussion of material aspects of case and particularly legal position which follows that decisions of both Courts below are unsustainable in law - 1st defendant cannot have any legal difference to oppose plaintiffs claim of Ac.0-7.5 cents of suit land - Decrees passed by Courts below, set aside - Decree granted in favour of plaintiffs/appellants as prayed for in plaint. Mallu Venkatramana Reddy Vs. Gandluri Govinda Reddy, 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 201 = 2013(4) ALD 23 = 2013(2) ALT 550.

—Secs.100, 101,102,103 & 104 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.8, Rules 3,4,5 and Or.6, Rule 2 and Or.37, Rule 3 - "Burden of proof" - Suit based on Accounts - Plaintiff/Appellant/Firm filed suit against defendants/respondents/agriculturists for recovery of amounts taken by them from time to time and at all transactions were entered in books of Accounts acknowledged by defendants under signature in corresponding account entries in accounts books of plaintiffs - Since defendants refused to comply with request of plaintiffs to pay dues plaintiffs instituted suit against respondent/defendants - Respondents/defendants took preliminary objection that suit not maintainable and that Father of defendant was customer of plaintiffs Firm and that defendants had nothing to do with plaintiffs - Trial Court decreed suit - 1st appellate Court after considering contentions of both parties allowed, appeal and modified decree of trial Court - Defendants preferred 2nd appeal - Single Judge held that averments pleaded in plaint and evidence in support thereof at variance with each other and evidence did not substantiate claim and onus to prove Accounts having not been discharged judgments below were unsustainable - Hence present appeal - High Court observed that findings of Courts below are perverse and accordingly jurisdiction u/Sec.100 of CPC could be exercised - Perversity has been noticed on two counts, namely in correct placing of onus on defendant to prove that signatures had been forged more so when there was denial of same and second variance in pleadings and evidence amounts in question were not appositely taken note of - Hence it is required to see whether approach of Single Judge in annulling judgments of Courts below is correct on aforesaid grounds which according to him, reflect perversity of approach - There is no plea what so ever as regards denial of signature or any kind of forgery or fraud - High Court observed that plaintiffs should have examined handwriting expert - Plaintiffs had asserted that there was an acknowledgment under signature of defendant and there was no denial by defenant about signatures and further acknowledgment have been proven without objection - In present case, plaintiffs have examined witnesses, proved entries in books of accounts and also proved acknowledgments duly signed by defendants - Defendant, on contrary except making a bald denial of averments had not stated anything else - Thus High Court has fallen into error in holding that it was obligatory on part of plaintiffs to examine handwriting expert to prove signatures - Finding that plaintiffs had failed to discharge burden is absolutely misconceived in facts of case - Rules 3,4,5 of Or.8 of CPC dealing with manner in which allegations of fact in plaint should be traversed and legal consequences flowing from its non-compliance - It is obligatory on part of defendant to specifically deal with each allegation in plaint and when defendant denies any such fact he must not do so evasively but answer points of substance - It is clearly postulated that therein that it shall not be sufficient for defendant to deny generally grounds alleged by plaintiff but he must be specific with each allegation of fact - Defendants could not have been permitted to lead any evidence when nothing was stated in pleadings - In this case, Court below had correctly rested burden of proof on defendant but High Court in erroneous impression, has overturned said finding.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

"Accounts regularly maintained in the course of business are to be taken as correct unless there are strong and sufficient reasons to indicate that they are unreliable" - Applying this principle to pleadings and evidence on record, found no reason that Books of Accounts maintained by plaintiff/Firm in regular course of business should have been rejected without any kind of rebuttal or discarded without any reason - High Court has erroneously recorded that findings returned by Courts below are perverse and warranted interference - Therefore judgment rendered by High Court is legally unsustainable and accordingly set aside, appeal, allowed. Gian Chand & Brothers Vs. Rattan Lal @ Rattan Singh 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 61 = 2013(3) ALD 49 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 777 = AIR 2013 SC 1078.

—Sec.101 - LIMITATION ACT, Sec.5 - Hindu law - "Partition" - "Burden of proof" - Partition - LIMITATION - When a person after attaining majority, questions any sale of his property by his guardian during his minority burden lies on person who upholds/ asserts purchase not only to show that guardian had power to sell but further that whole transaction was bona fide - In view of Sec.101 of Evidence Act it is plaintiff who should have first of all discharge burden that sale deed had been executed for share which admittedly belong to appellant in order to discharge burden of debt for legal necessity and for benefit of appellant who admittedly was minor - Misplacing burden of proof would vitiate judgment - Suit has to be tried on basis of pleadings of contesting parties which is filed in suit before trial Court in form of plaint and written statement and nucleus of case of plaintiff and contesting case of defendants in form of issues emerges out of that - In this case, basic principle, seems to have been missed not only by trial Court but consistently by 1st appellate Court which has been compounded by High Court - Whole case out of which this appeal arises had been practically made a mess by missing basic principle that suit should be decided on basis of pleadings of contesting parties after which Sec. 101 of Evidence Act would come into play in order to determine and whom burden falls for proving issues which have been determined - PARTITION - In suit for partition it is expected of plaintiff to include only those properties for partition to which family has clear title and unambiguously belong to members of joint family which is sought to be partitioned and if someone else's property meaning thereby disputed property is included in schedule of suit for partition, and same is contested by third party who is allowed to be impleaded by order of trial Court, obviously it is plaintiff who will have to first of all discharge burden of proof for establishing that disputed property belongs to joint family which should be partitioned excluding some one who claims that some portion of joint family did not belong to plaintiffs joint family in regard to which decree for partition is sought - Appeal, allowed. Rangamal Vs. Kuppaswami 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 105 = AIR 2011 SC 2344 = 2011 AIR SCW 3428 = 2011(5) ALD 38 (SC).

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—-Sec.112 - Where petitioner is disputing and contending that he is not biological father of the 4th respondent and where 4th respondent is not entitled to the benefits under Sec. 112 of the Evidence Act, when respondents failed to prove their case, the 4th respondent is liable to be treated as not the biological daughter of the petitioner - Consequently, grant of maintenance in favour of the 4th respondent payable by the petitioner is certainly unjustified and cannot be permitted - Indian Evidence Act, 1872, Sec.112 - In event of conflict between Sec.112 of Evidence Act and DNA test, the DNA test takes precedence - Criminal Procedure Code, Sec.125 - So far as income of the 1st respondent (wife) is concerned, 1st respondent cannot be expected to adduce negative evidence that she did not have any income - It is for the petitioner to show that the 1st respondent has income of her own - Petitioner failed to prove same - Trial court is consequently justified in awarding maintenance in favour of the 1st respondent as she admittedly is wife of the petitioner - Grant of maintenance by the Trial court in favour of respondents 1 to 3 is quite justified whereas the award of maintenance in favour of 4th respondent by Trial court is unsustainable as the 4th respondent cannot be considered to be biological daughter of the petitioner - This revision is therefore liable to be allowed so far as the award of maintenance against the 4th respondent by the Trial Court is concerned and is liable to be dismissed in respect of the award of maintenance in respect of other respondents. Achugatla Raju @ A.B.V.Raju Vs.Smt. Achugatla Sujana @ Shoba 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 279 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 986.

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Sec.112 - Petitioner is husband of respondent - Respondent had given birth to a female child on 3-12-2008 - He filed the O.P. seeking dissolution of their marriage on the ground of cruelty and also on the ground that respondent had committed adultery - Pending O.P., petitioner filed I.A. before Family Court to direct the petitioner, respondent and the child to undergo a D.N.A. Test at Center for Cellular and Molecular Biology, Hyderabad by giving blood samples for conducting scientific investigation so as to decide paternity of the child and to submit a report - In the affidavit filed in support of this application, the petitioner contended that ever since they got married, respondent was reluctant to consummate the marriage, that she had been indifferent and had not evinced any interest to cohabit with him - According to him, when questioned, she replied that she did not like him on account of their difference in age and also on account of the fact that the petitioner was not looking smart and was having a bald head - He alleged that she also disclosed to him that her parents had forced her to marry the petitioner and so she did not want to cohabit with him - According to petitioner, in June, 2008 the respondent became pregnant and he was surprised about this fact because there was no cohabitation between himself and respondent - He alleged that respondent threatened him and then went away to her parents' house in October, 2008 - He alleged that a person, who was neighbour of respondent's parents' house, was coming to petitioner's house during his absence in the afternoon to meet the respondent and the said person, and to enable him to establish the said fact, a DNA Test is necessary - By order, Court below dismissed the said application - Court below observed that respondent had pleaded that during delivery period of respondent till her discharge from the hospital, petitioner daily visited the respondent and stayed with the respondent and the child, and after discharge also petitioner accompanied respondent to his in-laws house - If allegations made by petitioner are correct, he would have taken objection at the time of delivery itself, and so the present allegation made by petitioner is only to harass the respondent without any basis - It also observed that there were no specific allegations against respondent and that the allegations made against her are vague and false and appear to be made only to get rid of her - It held that there is a presumption in law that the child born through lawful wedlock is legitimate and that access existed between parents and this presumption can only be displaced by a strong preponderance of evidence and not by a mere balance of probabilities - It held that the petitioner should prove non-access with the mother of child during the relevant time in order to dispel the presumption u/Sec.112 of the Evidence Act, and a mere bald allegation that she was having illegal intimacy with the neighbor of her parents' house, whose name and particulars are also not mentioned, cannot be a ground to direct the parties to undergo a D.N.A. Test - Challenging the same, this Revision is filed - Held, marriage between petitioner and the respondent is sought to be dissolved on pleas of the respondent's adultery as well as cruelty - There is a specific plea that the respondent was not willing to consummate the marriage with the petitioner - In view of above facts similar to those in law laid down in Dipanwita Roy's case and having regard to the admission of respondent in her cross-examination that she was willing to undergo a D.N.A. Test, Sec.112 would not come in the way of a DNA test and the respondent cannot also plead violation of her right to privacy and object to undergoing it - So the Court of opinion that the Court below was not correct in refusing to direct the parties to undergo a D.N.A. Test - In this view of the matter, the Court opinion that the order passed by the Court below cannot be sustained - It is accordingly set aside and I.A. is allowed - Respondent is directed to submit blood samples of herself as well as that of her child for a D.N.A. Test at C.C.M.B., Hyderabad for conducting scientific investigation to decide about the paternity of the child at the cost of petitioner - Civil Revision Petition is allowed accordingly. K.Sugandha Kumari Vs. K.Vijaya Laxmi 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 525

—Secs.112 & 74 - "Legitimacy of children" - Presumption - It is undesirable to inquire into paternity of child when mother is married woman and husband had access to her - Adultery on her part will not justify finding of illegitimacy if husband has had access - It is undesirable to enquire into paternity of child whose parents "have access" to each other - Sec.112 of Evidence Act is based on presumption of public morality and public policy - If a man and woman have lived together for long years as husband and wife and a son having been born to them, legal presumption would arise regarding valid marriage, though such a presumption is rebuttable - Evidence Act, Sec.74 - "Admissibility of public document" - Trial Court admitting document holding it to be a public document without formal proof cannot be questioned by defendants in appeal since no objection was raised by them when such document was tendered and received in evidence - An objection as to admisibility and mode of proof of a document must be taken at trial before it is received in evidence and marked as an exhibit - HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, Secs. 4 & 30 - A male Hindu governed by Mitakshara System is not debarred from making a Will inrespect of co-parcenary/ancestral property. Shyam Lal @ Kuldeep Vs. Sanjeev Kumar 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 166 = 2009(4) ALD 106(SC) = 2009(4) Supreme 711 = AIR 2009 SC 3115 = 2009 AIR SCW 5006.

—Sec.114 - Drawing adverse inference - Suit for recovery of certain amount towards transport charges - Trial Court after recording evidence and marking Exhibits, decreed suit - Appellant/defendant contends that trial Court totally erred in passing decree and that question of drawing adverse inference as against defendants would not arise and that respondent as plaintiff may have to establish its case irrespective of fact whether defendants entered into witness box or not - EVIDENCE ACT, SEC.114 - Scope ambit and applicability - Stated - In this case that not only defendants not entered into witness box at all there is no response from them when specific demand made by plaintiff by issuing notice through Advocate - Though averments made in plaint had been denied in written statement, no evidence had been adduced at all by defendants - Trial Court arrived at correct conclusion and findings recorded may trial Court confirmed - Appeal, dismissed. Bharat Petroleum Corpn., Ltd. Vs.Srinivasa Transport,Visakhapatnam 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 379 = 2008(4) ALD 787 = 2008(6) ALT 199 = 2008(3) APLJ 14 (SN).

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

—Sec.114 - Presumption as to possession - Appellant/plaintiff filed sui for injunction restraining defendants from interfering with peaceful possession and enjoyment of suit property - Trial Court decreed suit - Lower Appellate Court dismissed suit holding that plaintiff failed to prove his possession over suit property on date of filing suit - Recitals in documents cannot be ignored - When recitals relating to delivery of possession are clear and categorical in title deeds, discrepancy, if any, in oral evidence cannot be taken as a ground to disbelieve factum of possession - Lower appellate Court ignored principles of law that possession follows title - Decree and judgment of trial Court restored - Second appeal, allowed. Veesam Mohan Reddy Vs. Rebba Pedda Agaiah 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 370 = 2008(2) ALD 304 = 2008(2) ALT 329 = 2008(1) APLJ 92.

—Sec.114(g) – "Adverse inference" – As per Docket order of Trail Court dated 26-12-2013, that there was no representation by Counsel for petitioner as well as Advocate-Commissioner - As per observations of the Court despite lapse of 6 months expert's evidence was not recorded and was no representation by petitioner's counsel and even petitioner also called absent – Hence lower Court directed return of warrant by 30-12-2013 and accordingly order passed for return of warrant - Petitioner contends that in view of Advocates, strike for cause of United Andhra Pradesh, Advocate-Commissioner has not executed warrant and Counsel for petitioner was not present - Conduct of Counsel for petitioner and Advocate-Commissioner is legally impermissible – Supreme Court repeatedly held that strike by lawyers is un-constitutional and same constitutes professional misconduct - In view of Authoritative pronouncements of Supreme Court irrespective of cause, lawyers cannot go on strike – Therefore, plea that because of lawyers' strike, Advocate-Commissioner could not execute warrant cannot be countenanced in law - By staying away form work, Court was left with no option other than directing return of warrant by Advocate–Commissioner - Approach of lower Court in passing order for return of warrant, justified - If petitioner suffered any damage on account of return of warrant by Advocate-Commissioner, he shall be free to claim such damages form his Advocate as well as Advocate-Commissioner by initiating appropriate proceedings – CRP disposed of accordingly. Thulluri Subba Rao Vs. Yelchuri Srinivasa Rao 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 304 = 2014(3) ALD 36 = 2014(4) ALT 67.

—Sec.114(g) - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.498-A & 302 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.313 - "Two dying Declarations" - Appellant/accused husband of deceased harassed deceased for wife additional dowry and poured kerosene on her body and set fire to on her - Sessions Judge having appreciated entire evidence found appellant/accused not guilty of offence u/Sec.498-A IPC and found him guilty of offence u/Sec.302 IPC, convicted and sentenced him for life imprisonment merely basing on Dying Declaration - Appellant/accused contends that there are two Dying declarations of deceased, one recorded by P.W.8 Magistrate and other recorded by P.W.13 Sub-Inspector and that dying declaration recorded by Sub-Inspector not produced by prosecution because it is in favour of accused and that non-production thereof amounts to denial of fair trial to appellant/accused and caused prejudice to him and that in view of non-production of Dying declaration of deceased adverse inference has to be drawn against prosecution u/Sec.114(g) of Evidence Act and that conviction based on dying declaration recorded by P.W.8 liable to be set aside and accused has to be acquitted - Prosecution contends that no adverse inference can be drawn against prosecution for non-production of Dying declarations recorded by P.W.13 Sub-Inspector, as P.W.13 in his evidence stated that statement of deceased recorded by him matched with contents of dying declaration of deceased recorded by P.W.8 Magistrate and that criminal appeal be dismissed confirming judgment of Sessions Judge, convicting accused - In this case, evidently, there is no eye witness to incident and entire case of prosecution based on circumstantial evidence of witnesses and that even though prosecution witnesses P.Ws. 1 to 7 and P.W.9 and 10 who are father and mother of deceased turned hostile but Sessions Judge relying upon Dying declaration recorded by P.W.8 found appellant/accused guilty of charge u/Sec.302 IPC - EVIDENCE ACT, SEC.114(g) - Scope of - If there are independent witnesses whose evidence is reliable and trust worthy to prove charge levelled against accused, infirmities arising out of non-examination of other independent witnesses will not be sufficient to put prosecution out of Court - Therefore, in such an event presumption u/Sec.114(g) of Evidence Act will not come to rescue of accused and that Courts have specifically look in to facts and circumstances of each case, other important evidence available on record, prejudice that is caused to accused and then only Courts have to come a definite conclusion whether to draw nor to draw adverse inference - In this case, admittedly prosecution on very same day after P.W.8 recorded dying declaration of deceased, P.W.13 also record dying declaration of deceased, but same not produced by prosecution and suggestions was also made to P.W.13 that they have suppressed dying declaration recorded by him because it was running contrary to case of prosecution and that by giving such suggestion to P.W.13 a doubt was created by defence at statement of deceased recorded by P.W.13 was in favour of appellant/accused and that appellant/accused in his examination u/Sec.313 has categorically stated that he was not available on day of incident and his deceased wife told him that three persons tutored her and forced her to give statement against accused, and non production of dying declaration of deceased recorded by P.W.13 certainly cause prejudice to accused and give rise to draw adverse inference against prosecution u/Sec.114(g) of Evidence Act - Therefore convicting accused merely basing on dying declaration of deceased recorded by Magistrate would not be proper and more particularly P.W.2 and P.W.9 who is father of deceased stated that when he enquired deceased told that she caught fire accidently while cooking food - Hence prosecution failed to prove guilt of appellant/accused for charge u/Sec.302 beyond all reasonable doubt - Conviction and sentence of appellant/accused basing on Dying declaration recorded by P.W.8/Magistrate cannot be sustained and is liable to be set aside - Criminal appeals, allowed. Sivagallu Sailu Vs. State 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 251 = 2013(2) ALD (Cri) 45 (AP) = 2013(1) ALT (Crl) 292 (AP).

(INDIAN) EVIDENCE ACT:

EXEMPLARY COSTS:

—Sec.118 - "Evidence of child witness" - A child witness is found competent to depose to facts and reliable one such evidence could be basis of conviction - Even in absence of oath evidence of child witness can be considered u/Sec.118 of Evidence Act provided such witness is able to understand questions and able to give rational answers thereof - There is no rule or practice that in every case evidence of child witness be corroborated before conviction can be allowed to stand - However as a rule of prudence Court always finds it desirable to have corroboration to such evidence from other dependable evidence on record - In present case not only evidence of child witness is reliable and not tutored, it is corroborated by other testimony - Hence all accused are rightly convicted and sentencd - Appeal, dismissed. Gul Singh @ Guliya Vs. State of M.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 43.

—Sec.126 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.320 - "Professional Communications" - A1 along with 3 accused caused death of deceased and A1 disclosed to JJK, Advocate, as to how he committed offence - During pendency of sessions case after examinationof P.Ws.1 & 2 Application filed by A1, seeking relief, restraining prosecution from examining JJK, contending that A1 being client disclosed many things to JJK and u/Sec.126 of Evidence Act information given to Advocate is confidential and it is not admissible in evidence - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.126 - Advocate is not supposed to disclose to any body communication, if any by his client to him during his professional employment, and it is protected from disclosure - In this case, A1 came to JJK while he was in Office and made a confessional statement as to how he killed deceased - JJK was never engaged by A1 either in this case, or any other case, previously to defend him and he went to Advocate to help him to surrender before Police by making extra-judicial confession to him - Surrendering client to Police is not duty of Advocate - It cannot be said that information given to JJK was during course of his employment - Ingredients of Sec.126 of Evidence Act, not attracted - Since accused sought for help of Advocate to surrender before Police, there is no need for any advice - Petitioners not entitled for any relief as prayed for. S.Kishore Kumar Goud Vs. State of A.P. 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 385 = 2008(2) ALD (Crl.) 221 (AP) = 2008(3) ALT (Crl) 33 (AP) = 2008(3) APLJ 45.

EXEMPLARY COSTS:

— Petitioner employee of Govt., factory not vacated residential quarters after transfer, inspite of order of eviction - Appellate Authority granted interim stay in regard to order of eviction and dismissed appeal after several years, holding that petitioner was under legal obligation to hand over possession of quarters on transfer and having failed to do so, order of eviction, justified - High Court while dismissing writ petition levied exemplary costs of Rs.50,000/- and said amount shall be placed in accounts of High Court Legal Services Committee, observing that conduct of petitioner in retaining accommodation for 10 years amounted to indiscipline and that cannot be tolerated and therefore he should be 'saddled with exemplary costs' - 'Exemplary costs' are levied where a claim is found to be false or vexatious or where a party is found to be guilty of misrepresentation, fraud or suppression of facts - Levy of exemplary costs on ordinary litigants, as punishment for merely for approaching Courts and securing an interim order, when there was no fraud, misrepresentation or suppression is unwarranted - In fact it will be bad precedent - Once other side is represented, costs levied by reason of any attempt by a party to delay proceedings, should normally be for benefit of other party who has suffered due to such conduct - Only where both parties are at fault, costs may be ordered to be paid to legal services authority - At all events, power to levy exemplary costs, should be used sparingly to advance justice and it should not be threatening and oppressive - Direction of payment of exemplary costs, deleted - Special leave petition, dismissed. Satyapal Singh Vs. Union of India 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 212.

FAMILY COURTS ACT:

FAMILY COURTS ACT:

—Sec.7 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.1, Rule 10, r/w Sec.151 - Revision petitioner/wife filed O.P against 1st respondent/husband for partition and separate possession of Schedule property in Family Court - 2nd respondent filed I.A under Or.1, Rule 10 to permit her to implead herself as 2nd respondent in O.P - Family Court allowed I.A - Hence present revision - 2nd respondent contends that there is collusion between revision Petitioner and 1st respondent who are wife and husband and they are her parents and schedule property gifted to her by revision petitioner under registered gift deed and she is absolute owner of said property and revision petitioner is not having any right over it - Revision petitioner contends that 2nd respondent has no locus standi to file Application for impleading in O.P filed by her against her husband for partition and separate possession of schedule property - Case of 2nd respondent does not fall under explanation u/Sec.7 of Family Courts Act, as such her application for impleadment is not maintainable and only disputes between parties as mentioned u/Sec.7 of Act, can be decided by Family Court - 2nd respondent being daughter, cannot agitate her rights in said O.P - If she has got any grievance against revocation of gift deed said to have been executed by revision petitioner in her favour it is open for her to file separate suit in respect of same - But as per explanation to Sec.7 of Act, she cannot herself implead in O.P filed by revision petitioner against her husband who is 1st respondent herein - Impugned order passed by trial Court to implead 2nd respondent as well as her husband is liable to be set aside - CRP, allowed. Racha Jana Bai Vs. Racha Gowreesham 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 158 = 2014(1) ALD 724 = 2014(2) ALT 220.

—Sec.7 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.125(1)(b) - HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT, 1956, Sec.20(3) - Respondent/daughter filed suit against petitioner/defendant/father for main-tenance - Petitioner/defendant contends that respondent/plaintiff is earning and file present suit against him falsely with a view to harass him while another suit filed by her is pending - Family Court held that Sec.125 Cr.P.C provides maintenance to children by father, whether they are Christians, Hindus or Muslims and suit is maintainable - Petitioner/defendant contends that respondent/plaintiff being Christian is not entitled for maintenance without their being such enactment in her favour - U/Sec.125 Cr.P.C, maintenance of children is obligatory on father (irrespective of his religion) and that as long as he is in a position to do so and children have no independent means of their own, it remains his absolute obligation to provide for them - On perusal of Sec.125 Cr.P.C, and Sec.20(3) of Maintenance Act that an unmarried daughter can claim maintenance from parents irrespective of religion to which she belongs even after attaining majority - Respondent/plaintiff can maintain suit against petitioner/defendant - her father - CRP, dismissed. Thadisina Chinna Babu Vs. Thadisina Sarala Kumari 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 274.

FAMILY COURTS ACT:

—-JURISDICTION – u/Sec.7(1) Explanation (b), Family Courts Act, 1984, a suit or a proceeding for a declaration as to the validity of both marriage and matrimonial status of a person is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Family Court, since u/Sec.8, all those jurisdictions covered u/Sec.7 are excluded from the purview of the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts - In case, there is a dispute on the matrimonial status of any person, a declaration in that regard has to be sought only before the Family Court - It makes no difference as to whether it is an affirmative relief or a negative relief - What is important is the declaration regarding the matrimonial status. Balram Yadav Vs. Fulmaniya Yadav 2016(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 14 = AIR 2016 SC 2161 = 2016(4) ALD 49 (SC).

—Sec.19 - HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, Secs.9, 13(1)(i-a), 13(1-A)(ii) - CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCUDURE, Sec.125 - Cruelty as a ground for dissolution of marriage by husband - Wife in her counter specifically mentioned that brother of her father-in-law also gave evidence in the maintenance case and he admitted about illicit intimacy of her husband with a woman - In her cross-examination, she admitted that she has not mentioned about her husband's illicit intimacy in her legal notice or her pleadings in maintenance case - When the cross-examination of the husband as P.W. 1 is scanned, nothing was confronted to him touching that aspect of case leaving apart making any suggestion therefor to him - When evidence of junior paternal uncle of husband is perused, strangely, he was not cross examined on that aspect of case at all - Held, when a definite allegation is made in counter by wife that this witness (husband's junior paternal uncle) in maintenance case has admitted illicit intimacy of her husband with a woman, certainly, searching cross-examination of this witness on that aspect of the case, is expected or at least a certified copy of his evidence in the maintenance case ought to have been filed and got marked as document in this case, and then resorted to confronting it, if any such admission did really occur as required u/Sec. 145 of the Indian Evidence Act - Therefore, on ground of cruelty, in view of reckless and scandalous allegation levelled against the husband that he maintained illicit intimacy, we are of view that he is entitled to dissolution of marriage by grant of decree of divorce u/Sec.13(1)(i-a) of Act - Somehow, court below went wrong omitting to this aspect of the case in the light of not only the plea but also the evidence on record and, therefore, the finding of the court below that the husband did not depose as to how he was subjected to cruelty through physically and mentally by his wife is perverse and has to be reversed - Family Courts Act, Sec.19, Hindu Marriage Act, Secs. 9, 13 (1) (i-a), 13 (1-A) (ii), Code of Criminal Procedrure, Sec.125 - So, at outset we would like to observe that the direction given by court below while granting decree for restitution of conjugal rights on 14-9-2006 directed that wife should join husband within three months from that day - This apart even till 30-09-2008, that order of the court below was in force as it was stayed only on 30-09-2008 - Thus, it is clear that only one year ten months after passing of decree for restitution of conjugal rights by court below, interim suspension order was granted by this court - She admits that she did not get issued any legal notice or lodge any complaint with regard to the quarrels and threats by her husband, for which reason she was not joining him - Her father, who was examined as R.W.2 admits that they did not give any notice for restitution of conjugal rights and also for willingness to send his daughter - It is thus, clear from evidence of the wife and her father that they did not abide by direction given by the court below and made no attempts to see that the wife joins conjugal society of her husband and only reason they have reiterated was that they obtained interim suspension of the order passed by court below in an attempt to show that they did not disobey the orders of the court below - Wife has not brought out any circumstances from which it could be gathered that husband was trying to take advantage of his own wrong - Family Courts Act, Sec.19, Hindu Marriage Act, Secs.9, 13 (1) (i-a), 13 (1-A) (ii), Code of Criminal Procedrure, Sec. 125 - It is therefore, clear that even in the absence of any attempt being made by way of resorting to execution proceedings under the Code of Civil Procedure, husband is entitled to dissolution of marriage by grant of decree of divorce when once the period mentioned in clause (ii) of Sec.13(1-A) of Act lapses, unless there are such circumstance to stamp him as wrongdoer in terms of Sec.23(1) of the Act - Family Courts Act, Sec.19, Hindu Marriage Act, Secs.9, 13 (1) (i-a), 13(1-A) (ii), Code of Criminal Procedrure, Sec.125 - Wife converted to Christianity without the permission of her husband - When viewed that conduct of wife, certainly, she has no legitimate ground to resist the request of her husband for grant of relief of decree of divorce as we found in above that husband has not committed any wrong as explained within provisions of Sec.13(1)(1-A)(ii) of the Act - For aforesaid reasons, FCA No.60 of 2010 is to be allowed as husband is entitled to the relief of decree of divorce by dissolution of marriage between the parties, consequently FCA No.176 of 2008 preferred by the wife becomes infructuous. K.Kavitha Vs. Shiva Shankar 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 245 = 2014(6) ALD 552 = 2014(6) ALT 162.

FAMILY COURTS ACT:

—-Sec.19-A - Spouse claiming permanent alimony must come forward by disclosing all necessary facts, with regard to her income, properties etc., in petition filed - In this case, petitioner-wife has suppressed material facts with regard to her investments in shares and mutual funds - When same was confronted to her in the cross-examination, she categorically admitted the same - In addition to her disentitlement having regard to her conduct, further, it is to be noted that petitioner-wife is having sufficient income as a medical practitioner, working as freelance consultant and in view of shares and debentures held by her apart from LIC policies and other assets, that she is not entitled for any amount towards permanent alimony from respondent-husband. Dr.Aneel Kaur Vs. Dr.A.Jaya Chandra 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 418 = 2015(1) ALD 478 = 2015(1) ALT 176.

FERTILIZER CONTROL ORDER, 1985:

—Sec.19 (1) & (2) - HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, 1955 - Sec.13(1) (ia), 13-B & 25(1) & (2) - HINDU ADOPTION AND MAINTENANCE ACT, 1956, Sec.25 - Wife filed petition before Family Court against husband seeking divorce on ground of cruelty - Proceedings ended in compromise - Pursuant to Memorandum of Settlement Court allowing O.P filed by wife and grant a decree of divorce directing husband to pay maintenance and permanent alimony - Subsequently wife filed O.P u/Sec.25 of Hindu Marriage Act, seeking maintenance @ Rs.4,000/- p.m or in alternative for payment of Rs.5 lakhs towards permanent alimony and thus prayed for enhanced maintanance in changed circumstances - Family Court dismissed O.P considering Settlement whereunder it was agreeed between partes that there should not be any future claim against each other and held that Sec.25 of Hindu Marriage Act has no application - Appellant/wife contends that a decree for maintenance in terms of compromise between parties is not a bar to maintain application u/Sec.25 (2) of Hindu Marriage Act - Grant of maintenance u/Sec.25 (1) is incidental to decree granting substantial relief under Act - Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.25 provides that if Court is satisfied that there is a change in circumstances of either party at any time after granting maintenance under sub-sec.(1) Court may at instance of either party vary, modify or riscind such order passed undr sub-sec.(1) - On combined reading of sub-secs.(1) & (2), it is clear that right of maintenance is a continuing right even after a decree is granted uder Act and quantum of maintenance is variable from time to time if there is change in circumstances of either party - Discretion conferred on Court under Sec.25(2) to vary maintenance awarded u/Sec.25(1) in changed circumstances cannot be restricted and substantive right conferred under statute cannot be denied to a party merely on ground of agreement contra between parties - Such agreement defeating right of maintenance provided under statute being contrary to public policy is not valid contract and therefore cannot operate as a bar to exercise jurisdiction confer u/Sec.25 (2) - Dismissal of OP filed by wife at threshold without making enquiry into correctness of her plea as to change of circumstances, merely on basis of Settlement - Erroneous - Impugned order, set aside - Appeal, allowed. P.Archana @ Atchamamba Vs. Varada Siva Rama Krishna 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 216.

FERTILIZER CONTROL ORDER, 1985:

—Clauses 8 (2) 26-A & 27- Cl.(5) of Terms and Conditions of Form A-1 - Respondents insisting petitioners/Fertilizers Dealers to submit separate Form A-1 intimations to different Notified Authorities in respect of their storage points - Petitioners contend that in view of composite nature of intimation prescribed under Form A-1 there is no reason or justification for respondents in insisting to have different acknowledgments under Form A-2, by filing different intimations by sale points and to that of storage points - Govt., contends that having regard to very objective of Control Order for equitable distribution of Fertilizers to Farmers and to monitor stocks available with various dealers, it is necessary to have required information with all Notified Authorities - As terms and conditions are part of Form A-1, which is part and parcel of Clause 8 of Control Order itself, it cannot be said that Cl(5) of Form A-1 is contrary to provisions of Control Order - From reading of Cl.(5), it is clear that if a dealer is having both sale depot as well as storage point in local area of same Notified Authority, he need not file a separate Memorandum of Intimation for such storage point - Requirement of filing separate intimation is applicable only in case if dealer is having sale depot within local area of one Notified Authority and storage point outside area of that Notified Authority - Sale and storage points as mentioned in Form A-1 are only with regard to points within same local area but cannot be stretched to storage points outside local area of Notified Authority - Insisting upon a separate intimation in cases where storage points are located outside local area of sale point, it cannot be said to be either illegal or arbitrary - Writ petition, dismissed. Fertilizer Wholesale Dealers Welfare Assn., Vijayawada Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 58.

FOREST CONSERVATION ACT, 1950,

FOREST CONSERVATION ACT, 1950,

—-Secs.2 and 2(iii) - G.O.MS 185, Dated 11/03/1997 - "Assignment of Forest land to Freedom Fighter" – State Government allotted an extent of 10 acres to petitioners father vide, proceedings R-2/M.R.O dated 16-02-1997 – During life time of his father he was cultivating said land and after his death petitioner has been cultivating same by raising different crops - Petitioner averred that 3rd respondent / Forest ranger along with other persons came to his land and damaged standing crop as well as existing bore-well without prior notice claiming that said land to be a part of reserve forest.

In this case, Joint survey held by Revenue and Forest Departments revealed that assigned land forms part of protected forest and that under section 2(iii) no forest land or any portion thereof can be assigned by way of lease or otherwise to any private person or to any authority, corporation, agency or any other organization not owned, managed or controlled by Government.

It is regrettable to note that when petitioners father was chosen for assignment, R-2/Tahsildar assigned land which is admittedly a part of protected forest - By assigning such land, assignee as well as his family members faced serious difficulties interfering their position with forest land – Ín opinion of this court, surely this is not a way a Freedom fighter and his family must be treated - Petitioner cannot be made to suffer on account of mistake of Tahsildar deliberate or bona fide in assigning forest land.

With regard to the submission of Govt. Pleader for revenue the petitioners family owns six acres of dry land and that he has been running a fair price shop besides his wife being member of Z.P.T.C. all this facts do not disentitled family of petitioner to assignment of alternative land because assignment was not made to petitioner or his wife but, to his father in recognition of his services as freedom fighter.

GREATER HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT:

In light of the above facts and circumstances of the case, Respondents 1 and 2 (Collector & Tahsildar) are directed to assign alternative agricultural land in petitioners native village or Mandal – Till such alternative land is assigned to petitioner he shall not be evicted from land assigned to his father – Writ petition disposed of with above directions. Padi Pratap Reddy Vs. District Collector, Warangal 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 76 = 2016(1) ALT 731 = 2016(2) ALD 417.

GREATER HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT:

—Sec.21(B) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.26, Rule 10(A) and Sec.151 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.45 - Second petitioner is a stranger to the election dispute - Thus, she cannot be compelled to undergo medical examination against her will - Certainly subjecting second petitioner to medical examination would offend her personal liberty, privacy and dignity of person that is bestowed on her as a woman - There can be many reasons where woman would genuinely wish to keep the issue of giving birth to a child not disclosed - By virtue of subjecting her to medical examination at instance of petitioner in election petition, factum of giving birth to or otherwise would be in public domain and would be against the conscience and will of the person concerned and can have deleterious effect which cannot be repaired - Consequence of such medical examination can be far and wide - CRP allowed. Md Majid Hussain Vs. Md Aqueel 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 481 = 2015(2) ALD 195 = AIR 2015 AP 21.

—Secs.21(B), 71, 72 - A.P. MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS (CONDUCT OF ELECTION OF MEMBERS) RULES, 2005, Rule 100 (3); Section 75(1) of the Act read with CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Order VII, Rule 10, 10-A (3) and 11(d) - REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1951, Secs.81, 82 and 117 - Revision petitioner was declared as elected for the Division/ward on having secured highest number of votes among nine contested rival candidates for the said Division/ward of Municipal Corporation, Nizamabad - 1st respondent among other contested candidates who secured second highest votes in said election filed petition challenging election of revision petitioner on ground that he was disqualified under Section 21 (B) of the Act to contest in election as he was blessed with more than two children as on date of filing nomination, thereby not entitled to continue as member of said Division/ward - Revision petitioner filed counter in main election petition denying same - Specific contention of petitioner is that there were totally 10 contested candidates on fray for Division/ward No.29 of Nizamabad Municipal Corporation in said election – But 1st respondent filed election petition without impleading all other contested candidates for said ward and though they are necessary parties to election in view of Sections 71, 72 and 74 of the Act and Rules framed thereunder. Therefore, for non-compliance of mandatory provisions of Sections 72 read with Section 74, the petition is liable to be dismissed in limini without any trial as per Rule 100 (3) of Election Rules, 2005, prayed to dismiss election petition pending on the file of Election Tribunal.

GREATER HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT:

Held, a close analysis of legal position in plethora of decisions referred above makes it clear that if defect in election petition is curable, an opportunity shall be given to cure defect, if failed to cure, petition shall be dismissed as per Order VII Rule 11 or strike out pleadings as per Order VI Rule 16 of C.P.C; defect of non joinder of other candidate is incurable defect, even otherwise petition filed by 1st respondent/Election Petitioner under Order I Rule 10 of C.P.C was dismissed by Tribunal and same was confirmed by this Court and attained finality - Therefore by applying law declared by various Courts, referred above, this Court has no option except to reject contention of 1st respondent/Election Petitioner, holding that election petition is not maintainable for non-compliance with Section 72 read with 74 (b) of the Act.

If petition is allowed to be tried, result at conclusion of trial would be same i.e. dismissal in view of patent defect in petition which is incurable - Acceptance of such request is nothing but allowing malicious abuse of process to waste valuable judicial time of Court and parties to petition - Tribunal without considering expected result at conclusion of trial, postponed decision about maintainability, till conclusion of trial adopting nonchalant approach, committed a prejudicial error in dismissing petition - Keeping in view of law referred above, view of Court that order of tribunal is liable to be set aside to palliate pang of parties to face ordeal of trial, since, result will be same even after conclusion of trial of Election Petition in view of legal, incurable infirmity - Accordingly order is set aside, allowing revision, dismissing Election Petition, as Tribunal did not exercise jurisdiction which vested on it - In result, Civil Revision Petition is allowed setting aside order of Tribunal. M.A.Faheem Uddin Vs. Shaik Nayeem 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 24 = 2016(3) ALD 548.

—- Secs.373,421(1) & 124(a) - Writ petition filed seeking to declare action of respondents to remove traffic signals and hoardings erected as arbitrary and illegal and in violation of principles of natural justice - 3rd respondent/Cantonment Board, with a view to protect Cantonment area had planed complete systematic traffic control system in entire Cantonment area and was accorded permission to take up work under supervision of concerned departmental officers - 2nd respondent requested petitioner to stop all works on said roads with immediate effect, remove advertisement gantries installed in various places as they were obstructing visibility of approaching motorists and causing accidents - Petitioner contends that 3rd respondent could not have entered into any agreement for erecting advertisement hoardings over traffic signals falling in GHMC area, since permission granted by 1st respondent is still in force and their action in issuing notice is illegal - Having permitted petitioner to instal traffic signals and erect hoardings it is not open to 2nd respondent to now turn around and contend that traffic signals and hoarding should be removed on ground that there was no permission - Respondents contend that petitioner was earning huge revenue from advertisement hoardings; not a single paise had been paid to GHMC and that petitioner could not take advantage of his own wrong in installing traffic signals and erecting hoardings and contend that he would and suffer irreparable loss if they were removed - Evidently, no written permission for erection or exhibition of any advertisement upon any land within limits of GHMC has been communicated to petitioner - Till its communication order cannot be regarded as anything more than provisional in character - PRINCIPLES OF NATURAL JUSTICE - Principles of natural justice are not embodied rules and cannot be put in a straight jacket - It depends upon facts and circumstances of each case - To sustain allegation of violation of principles of natural justice one must establish that prejudice has been caused by non-observance thereof - It is not possible to lay down rigid rules as to when principles of natural justice are to apply, nor as to their scope and extent - There must have been some real prejudice to complainant and there is no such thing has a mere technical infringement of natural justice, its application depends upon nature of jurisdiction conferred on administrative authority, upon character of rights of persons affected, scheme and policy of statute - Petitioner cannot take advantage on his own wrong, in installing traffic signals and erecting advertisement hoardings without prior written permission of commissioner GHMC - Hence Challenge to impugned proceedings on ground of violation of principles of natural justice must fail - While revenue generated on these advertisement hoardings has benefited petitioner, GHMC has suffered a huge loss on that score - Writ petition, dismissed. Stan Power Vs. Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corpn., 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.)S 230.

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

—Sec.428, Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, A.P. Urban Areas (Development) Act, 1975, Secs. 17, 18 - Since according to 2nd respondent, 40' out of the petitioner's land is required for road widening leaving only balance of 5', and petitioner cannot put to use such small area for construction, it is obligatory on the part of 2nd respondent to acquire the entire property of the petitioner - Otherwise, it would amount to legitimizing the arbitrary and expropriatory action contrary to the provisions of the GHMC Act as well as the AP Urban Areas (Development) Act, 1975 and the law declared by the Supreme Court in the above decisions - Similar view has also been taken by this Court in its judgment dt. 02-09-2014 in W.P. No. 1995 of 2012 and in judgment dt. 16-10-2014 in W.P. No. 24427 of 2014 - Therefore the respondents are directed to initiate proceedings under Section 18 of AP Urban Areas (Development) Act, 1975 in accordance with the provisions of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, for acquisition of the entire land owned by the petitioner for road widening and pay compensation to the petitioner - Writ Petition is allowed accordingly. G.Usha Rani Vs. State of A.P. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 278 = 2015(4) ALD 35 = 2015(2) ALT 741.

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

—Secs.4(1)(2)(3) & 6,7,8,10,11,12,48 & 49 - HINDU MINORITY AND GUARDIANSHIP ACT, 1956, Sec.6 - Respondent filed O.P seeking relief to order for appointing petitioner

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

as guardian by directing respondents to handover ward to petitioner and also direct to produce minor before Court and appoint petitioner as guardian for minor for interim protection of petitioner - Respondent filed I.A in O.P, contending that petitioner is widow of father of minor - After death of her husband his parents drove her out of their house and since then she is residing with her parents - Subsequently she married another person and residing with him and petitioners became old and if ward is allowed to remain in custody of paternal grand parents future of ward would be ruined and her present husband is prepared to take ward in adoption and to meet future education for bright future of ward and that paternal grand paents are illiterates and cannot maintain ward decentluy and paramount consideration is welfare of ward rather than other circumstances and inspite of number of requests paternal grand parents bluntly refused to handover ward and that they have no right to act as parents, nor they have right to keep ward in their custody - Petitioners filed counter in I.A denying allegations that they drove away respondent from house after death of their son and that she left house within one month after death of their son she voluntarily opted to severe relationship with petitioners and left house by taking Rs.22000/- by executing a document wherein she categorically admitted to give custody of boy with them in event of contacting second marriage - Trial Court allowed petition appointing her as guardian ward and directing petitioners to handover custody of child to respondent and that petitioners are permitted to visit child during week ends - Aggrieved by present order present revision petition filed contending that trial Court erred in granting interim custody and that respondent lost her right over child moment she got remarried and that trial Court ought to have seen dominent factor for consideration of Court is welfare of child and petitioners as grand parents are entitled custody of children and that trial Court ought not to have grant interim custody though not prayed and by granting interim custody to respondent there will be disturbance to education and it is not desirable to grant interim custody during academic year - Respondents contend that trial Court is perfectly justified in passing impugned order and respondent being natural guardian of minor child she is entitled for custody of child u/Sec.6 of Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, and that second marriage of respondent would not disentitled her from having custody of minor child and that petitioners are old aged and they cannot look after welfare of child and they cannot give good education to ward - Desire of ward and congenial atmosphere for proper upbringing of child play a prominant role while deciding issue of custody of ward and that Apex Court held that while deciding aspect of custody of minor child, Court should keep in mind relevant statute and rights flowing from them and such cases cannot be decided solelly by interpreting legal provisions and since it is human problem it is required to be solved with human touch - In this case, it is allegation of petitioners, grand parents that second husband of respondent has brought another child from his relative's side and he is bringing up child and that minor boy is studying in school where his grand parents are residing and now middle of academic year, in event of giving custody to respondent at this stage education of boy will be disturbed and as per wish of minor boy Court deems it proper to continue minor boy in custody of his paternal grand parents who are petitioners herein - Revision accordingly, allowed by setting aside, order of trial Court in I.A - Keeping in view, delicate feelings of respondent, mother she is permitted to visit child during week ends. Kotholla Komuraiah Vs. Kotholla @ Bikkanuri 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 235 = 2014(1) ALD 362 = 2014(1) ALT 138.

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

—Sec.7 - Custody of female minor child - Respondent got married appellant's daughter who gave birth to female child and died in hospital and thereafter child is in custody of appellant/maternal grand mother - Respondent/father filed Application for custody of child contending that child was not properly looked after by appellant and it was perilous for child to continue custody of appellant - Family Court passed order to give custody of minor to respondent/father - High Court passing order holding that there are no compelling reasons on basis whereof custody of child should be denied to father/respondent and that appellant has lost her husband and therefore suffered a great financial set back and therefore for better upbringing and welfare of child her custody should be entrusted to her father - Child is staying with appellant's family and she is also studying in one of reputed school and she is with appellant right from her childhood which has resulted into a strong emotional bonding between two and appellant being a woman herself can very well understand needs of child - Natural guardians of child have right to custody of child, but that right is not absolute and Courts are expected to give paramount consideration to welfare of child - Appellant got married second time and has a child too and minor child might have to be in care of step mother - Child remained with appellant, grand mother for a long time and is growing up well in an atmosphere which is conducive to its growth - As such it may not proper at this stage for diverting environment to which child is used to - Therefore it is desirable to allow appellant to take custody of child - Impugned order, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Anjali Kapoor Vs. Rajiv Bajjal 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 180.

—Secs.7,8,10 & 47 - HINDU MINORITY AND GUARDIANSSHIP ACT, 1956, Sec.6 - LEGAL SERVICES AUTHORITY ACT, 1987, Sec.2,3 & 19(5) and 20 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rule 22 - "Custody of minor children" - "Custody battle between paternal grant parents and mother for person and properties of minor children" - "Award of Lok Adalat" - On account of sudden death of her husband, respondent wife and her children are under protection of her father-in-law/1st appellant who also assumed management of properties belonging to her under her late husband - Respondent filed GOP u/Sec.10 of Act 1890 seeking custody of children and also their property and to render account of income and expenditure in respect of children's property - 1st appellant/father-in-law contends that he obtained decree from Lok Adalat regarding custody of children and their property and no need to send children to respondent, mother - Respondent contends that family settlement and compromise giving up her rights with regard to custody and property are false and that same were brought into existence using her signed blank papers and that Award passed by District lok adalat has no legal sanctity and not binding on her or on children - Appellant contends that respondent read contents of petitions filed before Lok Adalat and that she attended Lok Adalat and only thereafter signed on terms of compromise and therefore Award was binding on her and that District Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a challenge against Award passed by Lok Adalat as same was final, binding and unassailable - Trial Court allowed OP holding that Lok Adalat has no jurisdiction to go into custody of minors - Admittedly there is no case pending between parties as on date of institution of complaint before Legal Services Authority and it is therefore a pre-litigation case - As per Sec.6 of Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act,1956, natural guardian of Hindu minor are father and after him, mother - Therefore in normal scheme of things, after death of father respondent was natural guardian of children and that appellant had no right to represent interest of minors before Lok Adalat - Sec.19(5)(ii) of 1987 requires that a pre-litigation case, should be heard by a Lok Adalat organised for Court which had jurisdiction to hear matter had it been instituted - Provision speaks of "jurisdiction" generally and it cannot therefore be construed in narrow sense to mean "territorial jurisdiction" only - Issue of guardianship over person and properties of children in present case, fell squarely within jurisdiction of District Court alone - Therefore, once jurisdiction with regard to deciding issues of guardianship stood vested in District Court, pre-litigation case, pertaining thereto could only be referred to a Lok Adalat organised for a District Court - In light of statutory environment of Sec.19 as it stand presently, though Legal Services Authority can organize Lok Adalat for an area, jurisdiction of such Lok Adalat for determining particular cases by way of compromise or settlement would be with reference to jurisdiction of Court for which Lok Adalat is organized - In present case also, subject matter of complaint before Lok Adalat was with regard to declaration of guardian for children - Such a declaratory relief did not fall within realm of Lok Adalat and at that a petition fled by paternal grant parents portraying themselves as guardians of children against their natural guardian and this aspect was completely over looked by Lok Adalat - Lok Adalat presided by Junior Civil Judge has no jurisdiction as per Sec.19(5)(ii) of Act 1987 and award passed by said Lok Adalat is non-est in eye of law and it is null and void for want of jurisdiction - Natural guardian of minor child according to Hindu law being father in next place guardian of child is mother - Mere fact that respondent/mother entered into matrimony again after death of her first husband would not, by itself, be sufficient to disentitle her to seek custody of her children to first marriage - In this case, after discussing in camera both children expressed desire that they wish to stay with this mother and they desire to stay together and incustody of mother and therefore custody of children should be with mother in their best interest - In this case, what ever be differences between appellant and 1st respondent, children can neither be denied their mother's love and care nor grand parents affection and benediction - As children's strong desire is to remain together and in control and protection of their mother, their custody should be with her - As Award of Lok Adalat found to be null and void, recitals therein to effect that respondent waived her rights in properties stand nullified - Since properties are maintained by 1st appellant till now, he is under legal duty to account for income and expenditure in relation thereto to extent of shares of respondent and children till date of handing over their shares in said properties. Karuturi Satyanarayana Vs. K.Krishnaveni Durga Kumari, 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 381 = 2011(1) ALD 174 = 2011(2) ALT 111 = AIR 2011 (NOC) 129 (AP).

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

—Secs.7,9,12 & 17 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.39, Rules 1, 2 & 4 - Respondents/ grand father and maternal aunt and uncles of minor children initiated proceedings against appellant/father of children before Family Court after death of mother of children - Family Court disposed of Application u/Sec.12 r/w Or.1 & 2 of CPC passing ex parte interim order restraining appellant from interfering with custody of children of appellant - Appellant filed Application for vacation of interim order of injunction contending that he is natural guardian and that 1st respondent is aged about 72 years and mentally retarded peson and unfit to be guardian of his children and that motive of respondents is only to gain property that appellant purchased in favour of his deceased wife - Family Court vacated injunction granted observing that respondents did not approach Court with clean hands - As against orders of Family Court respondents filed writ petition contending that in absence of mother, maternal grand parents shall be guardian of minor children and that second marriage of appellant disentitles him to custody of children - High Court set aside order of Family Court with certain directions that appellant father will have visiting rights and directing Family Court to conclude proceedings within six months, observing that children had developed long standing affection towards their maternal grand father and uncles and it will take a while before they develop same towards their step mother and that sex of mior girl would soon face difficulties of attaining adolescence is an important consideration and she will benefit from guidance of her maternal aunt if custody is given to respondents and that there is special bondage between children and it is desirable that they stay together with their maternal grand father, uncles and aunt - In this case, custody of minor children with respondents is lawful and has sanction of order of High Court granting interim custody of children in their favour - Hence, custody of children should not undergo an immediate change prevails - Children are happy and are presumbly take care of with love and affection by respondents, judging from reluctance on part of girl child to go with her father - She might attain puberty at any time and it may not be in interest of children to separate them from each other.

"A Court while dealing with custody cases, is neither bound by statutes nor by strict rules of evidence or procedure nor by precedents. In selecting proper guardian of minor the paramount consideration should be welfare and well-being of child. Thus the strict parameters governing an interim injunction do not have full play in matters of custody" - Order of Family Court vacating its injunction order, set aside - Appeal, dismissed. Athar Hussain Vs. Syed Siraj Ahmed 2010(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 28.

—Sec.7 & 12 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.227 - "Interim custody of minors" - Respondents 1 & 2 were blessed with twins and as Doctor advised to keep them separately to avoid infection and as petitioners are not having children they were given custody of their minor ward temporarily - Petitioners also executed a document admitting that stay of minor ward with them is temporary and they will handover to respondent when ever they request - Since petitioners avoiding to handover their minor ward to them, respondents have filed application for interim custody and also for visiting rights, alleging that petitioners have not bestowing proper care to their daughter - Petitioner filed counter denying allegations of respondent contending that minor was born in year 2001, on 9th day after birth, custody was given to them with complete willingness and consent and they have been looking after child with care and she is aged nine years and not willing to join respondents/parents - District Judge allowed application partly permitting respondents to have visiting rights on child by recording finding that paramount consideration for grant of custody is welfare of minor who has bluntly refused to go with respondents - Petitioners contend that Court below has committed serous error by permitting respondents to have visiting hours and as minor ward is not willing to spare any time even for visiting rights and inspite of blunt refusal when she was examined - In normal course when visiting rights are given to natural parents High Court is slow in interfering in such orders during pendency of proceedings - However it is case of respondents that she was tutored not to go with respondents - But conduct of child when examined to go to show that she has developed that some sort of fear and is unwilling to spare any time with respondents - It is not in dispute that natural parents have preferential right for custody of child in normal course, they cannot be denied visiting rights of child, but, claim for visiting rights and custody of child are to be examined keeping in mind welfare of child, which is a paramount consideration - In this case, it is to be noticed that when wishes of minor child were enquired into even by Court she has bluntly refused to go with respondents - Even with regard to grant of visiting rights same are not absolute and paramount consideration is to be given to welfare of child - Instead of seeking custody of their child though competent Court of law, it is clear that respondents made a futile attempt to have custody forcibly by making false allegations of kidnap and demand of money by petitioners and obtained search warrant- When respondents filed writ of Habeas Corpus before High Court, same too ended in dismissal - When her wishes were enquired, she started crying inconsolably - Therefore, it cannot be said that she was tutored by petitioners not to go with respondents - Hence allowing visiting right of minor ward by respondents as ordered by court below will definitely have an adverse impact on welfare of minor ward - Therefore respondents are not entitled for any visiting rights of minor ward unless a congenial atmosphere is developed - CRP, allowed. Mohd. Haleem Vs. Dr.Shafiuddin, 2012(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 20 = 2012(2) ALD 67 = 2012(2) ALT 4.

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

—Secs.8 &17 – HINDU MINORITY AND GUARDIAN ACT, Secs.6 &13 – HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, 1956, Sec.26 – Custody of minor child - District Judge permitting custody of minor child to mother - High Court granted vistitation rights to father.

Appellant/father contends that Court below not held that he suffers from any disability in his role as father, and therefore, there was no comprehensive reason for

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

Court to direct custody of child to be entrusted to respondent/mother and that minor was abandoned when he was about one year and nine months old and thereafter in garb of seeking custody several rounds of litigation were unleashed – With reference of Sec.6 of Act father is legal guardian and welfare of minor child lies with him and that primary focus being welfare of child, respondent/wife should have brought on record as to how with her meager income she would be able to provide good education to child

Respondent contents that child's welfare cannot be weighed in terms of money, facilities, area of house, or financial might of either father or mother and that respondent/ wife had no option but to reside with her parents – Merely because she was residing with parents cannot disqualify her from looking after her child – She may not be as financially sound as appellant,/father has no fixed residence and that High Court took note of Sec. 13 of Act which is foundation for Custody of child – Welfare of minor is paramount consideration.

In present dispute, child has become victim - In determining question as to who should be given custody of minor child paramount consideration is welfare of child, and not right of parents under statute for time being in force – Merely because there is no defect in his personal care and his attachment for his children - Which every normal parent has, he would not be granted custody – Simply because father loves his children and is not shown to be otherwise undesirable does not necessarily lead to conclusion that welfare of children would be better promoted by granting their custody to him – Children are not mere chattels nor are they toys for their parents – Sec.6 of Act constitutes father as natural guardian of a minor son – But that provision cannot supersede paramount consideration as to what is conducive to welfare of minor.

Order passed by District Judge and High Court modified and accordingly visitation right also – Appeal, dismissed. K.Shaik Mahaboob Basha Vs. Shaik Ameer Saheb 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 233.

—Secs.10 & 25 - MULLA'S PRINCIPLES OF MAHOMEDIN LAW, Art.352 - "Right of mother to custody of minor children" - Family Court dismissing petition filed by husband seeking custody of minor son on ground that mother is natural guardian - Appellant/ husband contends that respondent wife herself got married after obtaining divorce and therefore lost her right as natural guardian - Respondent contends that since appellant also married, it is not safe to give custody of child to appellant and thus lower Court rightly dismissed petition filed by appellant - In this case, both appellant and respondent have married again - Once mother marries she loses her right as natural guardian and guardianship to have custody of child - Factually the child is hardly about 3 years old and admittedly he is in custody of respondent mother - However, circumstances that would be required to be considered for purpose of appointment of guardian is sine quo non to welfare of child, which will prevail over all other aspects - Appellant's 2nd wife not examined to show as to how best interest of child is protected when he seeks custody of child - Matter requires enquiry afresh and disposal on merits considering various facts and circumstances to see what would be best course for welfare of child, for purpose of appointment of guardianship - Matter remanded for fresh disposal on merits - Arrangement made earlier in respect of appellant's visiting rights shall continue to remain in force - Appeal accordingly, allowed. Syed Asadullah Vs. Rasheeda Begum 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 389 = 2008(5) ALD 216 = 2008(4) ALT 765.

GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890:

—Sec.25 and 17 (3) – CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.226 – "Custody of minor child" - Appellants/Maternal grand parents of minor child filing application for custody of minor child contending that respondent/father and his mother tortured their daughter deceased mother of minor child, for not bringing more dowry – Trial Court and High Court directed appellants to handover child in custody of his father with visiting rights to appellants - Appellants contend that both Courts are wholly wrong in granting custody of minor child to respondent-father and approach of Courts below was technical and legalistic rather than pragmatic and realistic – In such matters paramount consideration which is required to be borne in mind by Court is welfare of child and nothing else and that child's mother was killed and criminal proceedings were initiated against respondent and his mother which are pending - Respondent/father contends that both Courts below considered relevant provisions of law, position of respondent as natural guardian being father of child and held that there is no earthly reason to deprive him of custody of minor child – Approach of both Courts below is not in accordance with law and consistent with view taken by Apex Court in several cases – Both Courts also emphasized that father has right to get custody of minor child and he has not invoked any disqualification provided by 1956 Act - On facts and in circumstances case both Courts are duty-bound to consider allegations against respondent/father and pendency of criminal case further offence punishable u/Sec.498-A IPC – In instant case, on overall considerations Courts below are not right or justified in granting custody of minor child to respondent/father without applying relevant and well-settled principle of welfare of child as paramount consideration – Trial Court ought to have ascertained wishes of child as to with whom he wanted to stay - When asked, the child unequivocally refused to go with father or to stay with him and also stated that he is very happy with his maternal grant parents and would like to continue to stay with them - Application filed by respondent/father for custody of his son minor child, dismissed. Nil Ratan Kundu Vs. Abhijit Kundu 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 121 = 2008(6) ALD 105 (SC) = 2008 AIR SCW 5769.

—Secs.25(3), r/w Sec.17(3) - UN Convention, Arts.2 & 41 - Family Court allowed OP filed by petitioner/mother seeking custody of son from respondent No.1/mother of petitioner and maternal grand mother of minor, on ground that petitioner being natural mother is entitled to custody of minor child - 1st respondent/grand mother contends that Sec.25(3) r/w Sec.17(3) of Act are attracted on facts and circumstances of case as minor child is old enough to form an intelligent preference; his preference for staying with grand mother may be taken into consideration by High Court and that trial Court has ignored aforesaid provision and it has also not kept in mind decision of Supreme Court - Even parents do not have preferential unlimited right to custody without reference to welfare of minor child - Sec.25 of Act - Term "welfare" used in prevision has been interpreted in several decisions of High Court as well as of Supreme Court "…the welfare of the child is not to be measured by money alone nor by physical comfort only. The word 'welfare' must be taken in its widest sense. The moral and religious welfare must be considered as well as its physical well-being. Nor can the ties of affection be disregarded." - Object of Guardians and Wards Act is not merely physical custody of minor but due protection of rights of Wards health, maintenance and education - Power and duty of Court under Act is welfare of minor - In present case, minor is now aged 16 years - Material welfare of child includes stability, security, living environment and understanding care and guidance with which minor child in acquainted for last 16 years - It is also on record that child is showing consistently good performance in education and he got 556 out of 600 marks in SSC examination - Minor child is now studying intermediate and intermediate examination being crucial for shaping career of a student, ensuring that minor child is not disturbed from his environment at home appears to be crucial circumstance with respect to his welfare - In cross-examination he states that "he is grand mother will look after and take care of his interest even though she is old - After I grow I take care of my self and my grand mother has not brought any pressure or given any threat to me not to join my natural mother I do not want to go my natural mother" - In this present case, minor child's intelligent preference deserves to be given weightage, it would not be in interest of minor to disturb him from grand-mother's custody and environment to which he is well accustomed to during past 16 years - Trial Court has not approached issue from proper perspective - Hence, impugned order, set aside - Appeal, allowed. G.Vishnudevendramma Vs. G.Padmaja 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 114 = 2011(2) ALD 435 = 2011(2) ALT 100 = AIR 2011 AP 70.

HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT:

HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT:

—It has to be held that even though 3rd defendant went in adoption in 1940, he did not lose his right in coparcenary property in natural family which had vested in him on day he was born - Therefore, 3rd defendant would also be entitled to a share in the A1 schedule properties along with defendant Nos. 1 and 2 and plaintiff - Therefore, Plaintiff cannot now contend that 3rd defendant would not be entitled to a share in A1 schedule properties and he, ie., plaintiff should get 1/3rd share - In any event, plaintiff had not amended the plaint and sought 1/3rd share in A1 schedule properties and he has claimed only 1/4th share therein - Therefore, appeal is allowed. Madala Yathirajulu (Died) by his LRs Vs. Madala China Ananthaiah 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 213 = 2015(2) ALD 284 = 2015(1) ALT 67 = AIR 2014 Hyd. 32.

—Sec.7 - "Consent wife for adoption" - Suit for declaration partition and possession - Term "consent" used in proviso to Sec.7 and explanation appended thereto not defined in Act - it would reasonable to say that consent of wife envisaged in proviso to Sec.7

should either be in writing or reflected by affirmative/positive act voluntarily and willingly done by her - If adoption of Hindu Male becomes subject matter of challenge before Court, party supporting adoption has to adduce evidence to prove that same was done with consent of his wife - Presence of wife as spectator in assembly of people who gather at place where ceremonies of adoption are preformed cannot be treated as her consent - Court cannot presume consent of wife simply because she was present at time of adoption - Wife's silence or lack of protest on her part also cannot give to an inference that she had consented to adoption - In this case, trial Court and appellate Court held that there is valid adoption and adopted person became coparcener of adoptive father - Single Judge declined to interfere with concurrent findings recorded by two Courts - Interference is warranted only when Apex Court is convinced that finding is exfacie perverse - A finding of fact can be treated as perverse if it based on no evidence or there is total misleading of pleading - In this case, trial Court, lower appellate Court and single Judge of High Court misdirected themselves in deciding issue relating to consent to adoption and that all Courts held that consent can be presumed because wife was present in ceremonies of adoption - Unfortunately all Courts completely ignored that presence of wife in ceremonies of adoption was only as a mute spectator and not as an active participant -Evidence of important person who played most pivotal role in adoption was not examined despite fact that he was not only actively involved at various stages of adoption but also instrumental in admitting adopted boy in school - Trial Court did not take cognizance of omission but brushed aside same with cryptic observation that no objection was raised from side of defendants that plaintiff was not given in adoption by his natural father - Lower appellate Court and single Judge of High Court did not even advert to this important lacuna which would have made any person of reasonable prudence to doubt bona fide claim of adopted person that he was adopted with consent of wife - Wife succeeded in proving that adoption not valid because her consent had not been obtained as per mandate of proviso to Sec.7 of Act - Findings recorded by trial Court and lower appellate Court approved by single Judge of High Court that adoption was with the consent of wife is perverse inasmuch as same based on unfounded assumptions and pure conjectures - Judgments and decrees passed by trial Court, lower appellate Court and High Court, set aside. Ghisalal Vs. Dhapubai (Dead) by L.Rs. 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 71 = AIR 2011 SC 644 = 2011(3) ALD 117(SC) = 2011 AIR SCW 592.

—-Secs.8 & 8(c) and 7 - A crippled Lady left by her husband soon after marriage living with her parents, adopted appellant - Since Sub-Divisional Officer disbelieved claim of adoption in Land Ceiling proceedings, crippled lady filed suit seeking declaration that appellant is her adopted son - Trial Court decreed suit - First Appellate Court dismissed appeal and affirmed judgment and decree of trial Court - High Court allowed second appeal holding that in view of Sec.8(c) stipulated that so far as female Hindu is concerned, only those falling within enumerated categories can adopt a son - High Court also noted that there is great deal of difference between a female Hindu who is divorced and who is leading life like a divorced woman and as such claimed adoption is not an adoption and had no sanctity in law and suit filed by Lady liable to be dismissed - A married woman cannot adopt at all during subsistence of marriage except when husband has completely and finally renounced world or has ceased to be a Hindu or has been declared by Court of competent jurisdiction to be of unsound mind - If husband is not under such disqualification, wife cannot adopt even with consent of husband whereas husband can adopt with consent of wife. Brijendra Singh Vs. State of M.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 108 = 2008(2) ALD 105 (SC) = AIR 2008 SC 1056 = 2008 AIR SCW 652 = 2008(1) Supreme 354.

HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT:

—Sec. 11 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, Sec. 13 - Defendants in Original Suit No.108 of 1988 on file of Court of Additional Subordinate Judge, Ongole preferred this Appeal challenging decree and judgment dated 06.03.1996, wherein suit filed by plaintiff, for partition of schedule property into 2 equal shares and allot one such share to plaintiff, for rendition of true and correct accounts and grant mesne profits, was decreed. Plaintiff filed suit for aforesaid reliefs alleging that plaintiff, 1st defendant and one Angalakurthy Ramulu are natural children of Angalakurthy Subbaiah and Rosamma- 2nd defendant is daughter of 1st defendant and wife of Ramulu - After obtaining permission from Angalakurthy Subbaiah, Angalakurthy Papayya and Ammakkamma adopted Ramulu on 10.05.1943, as per Hindu rites and customs, under a registered adoption deed - Angalakurthy Subbaiah is no other than the brother's son of Papayya. Since date of adoption, Ramulu ceased to be member of his natural family and has been living with Papayya and Ammakkamma as their natural son - Angalakurthy Subbaiah, who own and possessed a thatched house in village and as same became dilapidated and fell down, shifted his residence to the house of Ramulu - Subsequently, Ramulu married 2nd defendant. As Subbaiah became old, Ramulu used to assist and manage property of Subbaiah - After death of Subbaiah in year 1964 suit schedule property devolved upon his widow Rosamma and his two daughters, plaintiff and 1st defendant, and since then they are jointly enjoying schedule property with assistance of Ramulu - Later, after death of Rosamma, in year 1977, plaintiff and 1st defendant together became entitled to entire schedule property and have been enjoying the same jointly but, as the 1st defendant is living in village where schedule property situate, 1st defendant is in management of routine work relating to cultivation etc., and plaintiff used to visit the village in connection with cultivation like raising crops, harvesting etc., occasionally - Thus, possession of schedule property by plaintiff and 1st defendant is joint as they are co-sharers; moreover, the 2nd defendant, who is resident of same village, also used to assist her mother, 1st defendant. While matter stood thus, the plaintiff requested 1st defendant to co-operate for partition of schedule property but she refused; thereupon, elder by name Tulluri Venkaiah was sent to mediate but no purpose was served; hence, the suit for the aforesaid reliefs.

Held, from various principles laid down by different High Courts, it is obvious that a person who was adopted by another family, adopted boy ceases to be member of natural family and unless any property is vested prior to his adoption either in partition or otherwise, he is disentitled to claim share in the natural family property; if any property is vested on him, it cannot be divested on account of his adoption - Regarding contention that prior to un-codified law on Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance, adopted boy is entitled to claim share even in natural family property, being a coparcener, this view is against principles of law laid down by various High Courts - Therefore, contention of learned counsel is without any substance and does not merit consideration. Hence, this Court hold that Ramulu, adopted son of Papayya and Ammakkamma, was not entitled to claim share in the property of his natural family - Unless there is a custom or an agreement between two families to constitute a composite family, the plea of a composite family by custom is not acceptable. Hence, by applying the principles laid down in the decision referred supra, and for lack of sufficient pleading and evidence to establish that Ramulu and his natural family constituted as composite family, this plea is only an after-thought or an invention made for the first time during Appeal without any plea and evidence before trial Court - Hence, it is not open to defendants to claim half share in the property of his natural family, as a member of composite family - Therefore, it does not merit consideration and the 2nd defendant being the wife of Ramulu is not entitled to claim any share in natural family of Ramulu as a member of composite family.

HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT:

In view of consistent principles laid down by Apex Court and this Court entries in revenue records are only for fiscal purpose and such long continuous possession as per entries in adangals etc., would not create or confer any title in immovable property and therefore long continuous possession of property by Ramulu is not sufficient to claim title by adverse possession in absence of proof of continuous possession of Ramulu for over a statutory period of 12 years after setting up adverse or hostile title - After adoption of Ramulu by his adopted parents, he ceased to be a member of his natural family and no property was vested on him before his adoption in property of natural family - Therefore, plaintiff and 1 st defendant alone remained as members of family and they are entitled to claim entire property in equal shares being legal heirs of deceased Subbaiah and Rosamma - In view of the undisputed relationship between the plaintiff, 1 st defendant and Ramulu, trial Court rightly concluded that plaintiff and 1 st defendant alone are entitled to equal share being daughters of Subbaiah and Rosamma and this finding of trial Court is free from any legal infirmity warranting interference of this Court - Hence, finding of trial Court is hereby confirmed holding that plaintiff and 1 st defendant are entitled to equal share in suit schedule property, except Item 4 of schedule property since it was admittedly separate property of Ramulu, husband of 2 nd defendant, as per the admissions made by PW.1 in her evidence and supported by documentary evidence EXs.B-1 to B-3. Hence, well reasoned judgment of trial Court is free from irregularities and illegalities and same is hereby confirmed holding this point in favour of the plaintiff-respondents 1 to 3 and against defendants-appellants - In view of above, Court find no merit in Appeal and, accordingly, Appeal Suit is liable to be dismissed. Angalakurthy Venkata Narayanamma Vs. Molakapalli Lakshmamma 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 496.

HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT:

—Sec.11(vi) - Suit for partition - "Delegation of power of adoption" - "Conditions for valid adoption" – Stated - Plaintiff/adopted son filed suit for partition against adopted father - 1st defendant/adopted father requested natural parents of plaintiff to give plaintiff in adoption - Natural parents agreed and gave plaintiff in adoption by handing over him to 1st defendant who brought him to his house - Formal adoption Ceremony took place and deed of adoption also executed - 1st defendant contends that there was no adoption on 10-3-1982 and that plaintiff was brought to his house only to bring him up and actually adoption has taken place on 22-5-1983 and it was not valid and that adoption not valid as plaintiff was aged more than 15 years by date of adoption and as there was no proper taking and giving and therefore suit is liable to be dismissed - Trial Court accepted contention of plaintiff that there was adoption on 22-5-1983 and there is also a custom in "Vysya community" where boy aged 15 years can be validly given in adoption and also accepted decisions of High Court and consequently accepted customary adoption - Having considered so, trial Court found that adoption was in contravention of Sec.11(vi) of Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act,1985 - A reading of Sec.11 of Act unambiguously shows that power to deligatge is available to both persons giving and also to persons taking in adoption and as such delegation can be either by person giving or person taking - Evidently in this case, 1st defendant could not have taken boy in adoption as he has no wife and consequently it has to be delighted to his brother P.W.4 and his wife - Adoption found valid and all aspects and consequently findings of lower Court on this aspect has to be set aside and held that plaintiff is adopted son of 1st defendant - Appeal is allowed holding that plaintiff is adopted son of 1st defendant and there shall be partition of plaint A schedule items. Thavva Venkata Punna Rao Vs. Tavva Sriramulu 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 211 = 2013(4) ALD 19 = 2013(2) ALT 529.

—Sec.16 - Serial Circular No.24/97 - "Presumption of adoption" - Compassionate appointment - Termination - Deceased Railway employee, working as Senior Gangman, during his life time executed affidavit stating that he had adopted 1st respondent and submitted registered adoption deed seeking permission to recognize R.1 as his adopted daughter and subsequently included name of her adopted daughter in family declaration form and submitted for drawing privilege pass - After death of deceased employee 1st respondent was appointed as Ticket Collector on compassionate grounds as Ticket Collector and also paid pensionary benefits and later promoted to post of Senior Travelling Ticket Examiner - Subsequently basing on anonymous complaint, as per instructions of Central Vigilance Commission 1st respondent was terminated from service - Central Administrative Tribunal after considering matter in detail allowed O.A filed by 1st respondent, setting aside termination order - Assailing Tribunal order S.C. Railways filed present writ petition - Petitioner, S.C. Railway contends that statutory presumption under Sec.16 of Adoption Maintenance Act is rebuttable presumption and mere producing registered adoption deed is not conclusive proof of adoption and same stood rebutted in facts and circumstances of case rendering R.1 not entitled for appointment and that Tribunal committed serious error in not going into factual matrix and entire proceedings of R.1 in securing appointments on compassionate grounds consequent to death of deceased employee, is void ab initio and R1 was rightly terminated from service - 1st respondent contends that contention of S.C Railway that adoption deed is brought into existence for purpose of claiming compassionate appointment is absurd, as Railway Department itself issue proceedings during life time of deceased employee to effect that adoption is agreed to by administration and adoption deed had taken place for getting compassionate appointment after several years and that it cannot be said that appointment was secured by fraudulent means i.e. by making misrepresentation by playing fraud on administration - 1st respondent also contends that she was appointed on basis of registered adoption deed, but not on mere adoption deed as contended by Railway Authorities and that in view of statutory presumption available u/Sec.16 of Act SC Railway has no right to file writ, challenging impugned order of Tribunal and that Railway Authorities shall not take any action basing on anonymos complaint and as per instructions of Central Vigilance Commission Railway Authorities cannot terminate her from service and impugned order of termination is liable to be dismissed - In this case, deceased employee was issued with privilege pass in favour of his adopted daughter, 1st respondent, which goes to show that said adoption was accepted by competent authority - No misrepresentation or fraud committed by R1, adopted daughter of deceased employee in securing job on compassionate grounds - Merely because name of adopted father not changed in school/colleges records, it cannot be said that R.1 is not adopted daughter of deceased employee - Appointment of 1st respondent cannot be terminated on basis of report of Vigilance Inquiry Report made on basis of anonymous complaint - Registered adoption deed has to be declared void only by competent authority - S.C. Railway is not competent to declare registered adoption deed as void for any reason whatsoever - It is not mentioned under which provision of law 1st respondent is terminated - Therefore termination order has been issued without jurisdiction - A perusal of Sec.16 of Act shows that whenever any document registered under law for time being is produced before any Court purporting to record adoption made and signed by person giving and person taking child in adoption, Court shall presume that adoption has been made in compliance with provisions of Act, unless and until it is disproved, employment of 1st respondent cannot be terminated on basis of report of Vigilance Department - There are no grounds to allow writ petition - No irregularity or illegality in impugned order and Tribunal rightly set aside termination order of 1st respondent - Writ petition, dismissed. Union of India Vs. C.Aruna Devi 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 198 = 2011(6) ALD 130 = 2011(5) ALT 757.

HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT:

—Sec.18 - HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, 1955, Sec.13(1)(ia) - Wife filed O.P before Family Court u/Sec.18 of (HAM) Act, for grant of past and future maintenance - Husband filed another O.P under provisions of HM Act for dissolving his marriage with respondent/ wife - On basis of evidence adduced by both wife and husband in respective O.Ps.,

HINDU LAW:

Family Court came to conclusion and passed common Order that husband substantiated his claim where as wife failed to substantiative her claim that she deserted husband by reason of which husband suffered mental agony which it amount to cruelty where as at end on those grounds allowed O.P filed by husband granting relief prayed by him while dismissing O.P filed by wife rejecting plea of providing maintenance to her - By virture of observations of Supreme Court, Family Court came to conclusion that due to behavior of wife, husband suffered mental agony which amounted to mental cruelty which is not acceptable in view of admission made by husband that wife never treated him with cruelty - But what is significant is that admittedly there has been no cohabitation between wife and husband since 2006, where as petition for divorce was filed in 2008 and it is not in dispute that petition was filed after gap of two years from 2006 - What is important is that mandate of relevant provision that there should be a desertion for continuous period of two years immediately preceding presentation of petition for divorce on that ground is complied with who ever may be at fault - Desertion is willful termination of existence of cohabitation without consent express or implied of party alleging desertion and against his or her wish - Therefore without any hesitation it is held that she has abandoned matrimonial house once for all marital bond has been irrtrievably broken down - Hence husband is entitled for divorce - Sec.18 of HAM Act, does not specifically speak of granting maintenance to divorced wife - In fact significancy clause 2(a) thereunder provides that Hindu Wife shall be entitled to live separately from her husband without forfeiting her claim to maintenance if she is guilty of desertion, that is to say of abandoning her without reasonable cause and without her consent or against her wish or of wilfully neglecting her - It infers that if wife alone is guilty of desertion of husband she is not entitled for any maintenance from him - In context of observations awarding maintenance to wife because of whose fault marriage between her and husband has been broken is against concept of marriage - How can one of spouses who got no respect for marital bond to be granted maintenance - Wife or husband will have obligation of maintaining other spouse when other spouse is neglected by him or her without lawful excuse having got sufficient means while other spouse got no means to maintain her self or him self having entered into wedlock - Thus it is not proper to uphold plea of wife to provide maintenance to her in circumstances enumerated as against husband - In result both appeals are dismissed confirming orders passed by Family Court. Guntamukkala Naga Venkata Kanaka Durga Vs. G.Eswar Sudhakar 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 291 = 2013(2) ALD 148 = 2012(6) ALT 618 = AIR 2013 AP 58.

HINDU LAW:

—— "Joint Family property" - "Powers of Kartha of joint family to sell away share of other coparcener" - Respondents filed suit for partition and to declare judgment and decree in O.S.813/81 as un enforceable, void and illegal - Trial Court granted both reliefs even though decree in O.S.813 becomes final on ground that 1st defendant who is father of defendant No.2 and kartha of joint family has no power to sell away shares of other coparceners and his power of alienation is only restricted to his share - As regards legal position with regard to powers of alienation by Manager of Hindu Joint Family, there is no manner of doubt what so ever that so long as debt contracted is not for immoral or illegal purpose, it not only binds manager of joint family, but also other coparcener - In this case, entire litigation fought by deceased-1st defendant had been well within knowledge of other coparceners - Therefore by no stretch of imagination can it be said that there was collusion between deceased, D-1 and D-3 in filing O.S.813/81 - In fact it can be held that there is collusion between deceased D-1 and other coparcener of joint family for which D-1 admittedly Kartha - Therefore, view taken by trial Court that 1st defendant cannot bind his sons and grand sons in respect of alienations made by him to extent of their shares, is contrary to settled legal position and same liable to be set aside - Appeal, allowed. Y.Kesava Sharma Vs. K.Venugopal Rao (died per LR.s) 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 108.

HINDU LAW:

—-Gifts - Only if the consent of the other coparceners is taken, a gift of undivided interest in the coparcenary property by a coparcener, either to another coparcener or to a stranger, is valid - Admittedly, consent of the 1st defendant (first son of deceased) was not obtained by deceased during his lifetime before executing Gift Deeds in favour of the 2nd defendant (2nd son of deceased) - Therefore, said Gift Deeds are void-not only because they were executed by deceased without consent of 1st defendant but also because they comprised specific joint family properties of family and not just his undivided interest in entire joint family properties - Hindu Succession Act, 1956, Sec.30 - Will - Will contained a recital that there was a partition in 1964 between executant and defendants, but there was no such partition in 1964, and that a sham partition was set up to ensure that a collusive decree which was passed, in support of that partition to defeat rights of first wife of 2nd defendant - Signature of executant on second page of said Will is not put horizontally but at an angle and Will itself was executed on two stamp papers each of value Rs.5/- - DW.5 is stated to be familiar with writing of documents/agreements and is a businessman and he would have been aware that Wills need not be executed on stamp paper - Iniquitous bequests under Ex.B.12 i.e. giving nothing to 1st defendant, giving only one property to plaintiff (surviving wife of executant) and giving two properties to 2nd defendant, also create a suspicion about its authenticity - It is unthinkable that a more substantial provision would not have been made by executant in favour of his wife, plaintiff, for her maintenance and security in her old age, and she would be left to the mercy of defendants-Held, there is no satisfactory explanation from 2nd defendant on these matters - Hence both Wills cannot be believed. Agina Chandra Mouli Vs. Agina Varamma 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 305 = 2014(6) ALD 430 = 2014(5) ALT 473.

—Partition – "Coparcenary property" – "Burden of proof" - Plaintiff filed suit for partition of family property – Partition effected by family arrangement – High Court placed burden on petitioners/defendants – In this case Trial Court as well as High Court held that there is complete partition – Therefore presumption would be that there is complete partition of family property - Consequently, burden of proof that certain property was excluded from partition would be on party that alleges same to be Joint Family Property - High Court committed error in placing burden of proof on petitioners/ defendants – Appeal allowed. Kesharbai @ Pushpabai Eknathrao Nalawade Vs.Tarabai PrabhakarraoNalawade 2014(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 7.

HINDU LAW:

— Partition Suit – Trial Court dismissed suit - First appeal CCCA.No.9 of 1997 is filed against judgment and decree dated 15.03.1996 passed by the V Additional Judge, City Civil Court in O.S.No.1468/88, wherein Court below dismissed suit filed by appellant/plaintiff, for partition and separate possession along with mesne profits in respect of A, B, C, and D suit schedule properties - Held, Court below has erroneously held that Ex.B4 and B5 show that plaintiff has relinquished his share in 'A' schedule property - Even as per the defendants, if plaintiff has relinquished his share through Exs.B4 and B5, question arises as to why defendants have not evicted plaintiff from 'A' schedule property, till today - In view of above, the findings of trial Court on issues Nos.1 and 2 which are relevant for purpose of 'A' schedule property are erroneous and same are required to be set aside - Since it is admitted case of both parties that 'A' schedule suit property is joint family property, the plaintiff and respondents were unable to establish that the appellant/plaintiff relinquished his share in 'A' schedule property, the appellant/plaintiff is entitled for share in the property - Further, any relinquishment of immovable property has to be by way of relinquishment deed and Exs.B4 and Ex.B5 cannot be termed as relinquishment deed as the same are not registered - In view of findings in first appeal, no substantial question of law is involved in this Second appeal - In view of the facts and circumstances and law laid down in judgments referred, this Court do not see any merit in the judgment of the trial Court and the same is set aside to the extent of 'A' schedule suit property - In view of the findings given in CCCA.No.9 of 1997, Second Appeal No.495 of 2008 stands dismissed. Yadguni Vs.Yadguni 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 462 = 2015(6) ALD 315 = 2015(5) ALT 497.

—and CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.6, Rule 17, Or.20, R.6 & Or.8, Rule 5 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.17 - LIMITATION ACT, Arts.110 & 113 - "Ancestral property" - "Self acquired property" - Determination - "Amendment of plaint" - SUIT FOR PARTITION - In suit for partition whether parties are arrayed as plaintiffs or defendants, but each party has to be treated as plaintiff - 1st respondent/plaintiff wife of late S.R filed suit for partition against appellant/2nd defendant and other respondents - Plaintiff contends that there was earlier partition - Admittedly defendant themselves have taken specific plea that there was no partition - Or.8, Rule 5 CPC envisages that every allegation of fact in plaint if not denied specifically or by necessary implication, or stated to be not admitted in pleading of defendant, shall be taken to be admitted except as against a person under disability - There is no other provision in CPC imposing such a condition on plaintiff to deny allegations of fact made by defendants in their written statement - PRIOR PARTITION - Plaintiff has admitted there was earlier partition - Mere pleadings or a version of a party cannot be considered as admission and admission means admitting fact which is asserted by other party - When a party pleads that there is partition and when other side dispute same, it becomes a disputed that fact and when it is a disputed fact, Court has to give a finding on said disputed fact - Of course at a subsequent stage, a party cannot be permitted to take contra stand to earlier stand taken by said party - It is also settled law that an admission made by an person cannot be split up and part of it can be used against him - ADMISSION - Correct meaning of word "admission" appears to be when a party to proceedings had made a statement or taken a stand and when other side has admitted same as true, same amounts to admission - Thus even when party admits plea or stand of a party in earlier proceedings, same also can be treated as an admission - AMENDMENT OF PLAINT - Once an amendment is allowed and plaintiff carried amendment in original plaint, amendment relates back to date of original plaint - SUIT FOR PARTITION OF JOINT FAMILY PRPERTIES - LIMITATION - Applicability of Arts.110 & 113 of Limitation Act - Art.113 is applicable to suits for which there is no prescribed period of limitation - Under said Article, suit has to be filed within a period of 3 years when right to sue accrues - Art.110 of Limitation Act is applicable when a person is excluded from joint family property and when he seeks to enforce right to share therein; and 12 years period is prescribed from date when exclusion becomes known to plaintiff - In this case, amendment application has been filed in year 1993, i.e. admittedly within a period of 12 years from date of death of late SR - Admittedly suit has been filed in year 1989 - In circumstances it can be safely held that Art.110 of Limitation is relevant provision and Art.113 has no application to facts of case and therefore amendment is not barred by limitation - Appeal filed by 2nd defendant and Cross-objections filed by 1st defendant are liable to be dismissed - As far as writtens statement scheduled properties are concerned, defendants cannot seek partition of same - Judgment and decree passed by Court below, stands confirmed. Reddi Radhakrishna Vs. Reddy Lakshmi 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 132 = 2013(5) ALD 683 = 2013(5) ALT 312.

HINDU LAW:

—and HINDU SUCCESSION (AMENDMENT) ACT, 2005, Secs.6&8 - "COPARCENARY PROPERTY" - "Ancestral property" - "Self Acquired property" - Meaning of - Only when property which is received by a person from his ancestors by survivorship can be held to be ancestral/coparcenary property and any other property which although, might have been received from ancestors by means of will or consent decree or a father partitioned property, will loose its character as that of coparcenary property and will become self acquired property in hands of person receiving it - Sec.6 of Act as it stood at relevant time provided for devolution of interest in coparcenary property - Sec.8 lays down general rules of secession that property of male dying

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

intestate devolves according to provisions of Chapter as specified in clause (1) of schedule - In Schedule appended to Act natural sons and daughters are placed as clause (1) but a grand son, so long as father is alive has not been included - Sec.19 of Act provides that in event of Succession by two or more heirs they will take property per capita and not per strips, as also tenants, and not joint tenants - "COPARCENER OF PROPERTY" - Meaning of - Coparcenary property means property which consists of ancestral property and a coparcener would means a person who shares equally with others in inheritance in estate of common ancestor - Coparcenary is a narrower body than joint Hindu Family - A coparcenary has no definite share in coparcenary property but he has an undivident interest in it and it enlarges by deaths and diminishes by births in family and it is not static - So long on partition an ancestral property remains in hands of single person, it has to be treated as a separate property and such a person shall be entitled to dispose of coparcenary property treating it to be his separate property but if a son is subsequently born, alienation made before birth cannot be questioned - But moment a son is born, property becomes coparcenary property and son would acquire interest in that and become a coparcener. Rohit Chauhan Vs. Surinder Singh 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 279 = 2013(5) ALD 149 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 4715 = AIR 2013 SC 3525.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Maintenance - "Determination of paternity" - DNA test - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.112 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.21- Respondents filed suit to declare the 1st respondent as legally wedded wife and 2nd respondent as legitimate son of revision petitioner and for grant of maintenance to them - In said suit, they filed an interlocutory application to send blood samples of 2nd plaintiff and defendant to Forensic Science Laboratory, Hyderabad for purpose of conducting DNA test to decide the paternity of 2nd plaintiff - Said I.A., was allowed by learned trial Court - Feeling aggrieved, defendant filed the present revision - Held, petitioner contended that he has no sort of any relationship with the respondents, he has a legally wedded wife and has a female child through her. In view of the total denial of relationship by petitioner and making wild allegations against the 1 st respondent touching her moral character, the right of respondents to establish their relationship has to be adequately protected by trial Court - If trial Court refuses prayer made by respondents to direct petitioner to undergo NDA test, it would be in considered view of this Court is nothing but refusal to protect the rights of respondents - Learned trial Court upon considering relevant materials before it, arrived at conclusion that directing the petitioner to undergo NDA test is proper. Having regard to facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is of the opinion that learned trial Court exercised discretion properly and allowed the petition filed by respondents - As this Court is of view that the DNA test proposed to be conducted is essential to establish rights of respondents, order passed by trial Court does not require any interference in the revision - For foregoing, civil revision petition fails and accordingly the same is dismissed. Chinta Madhu Sudhana Rao Vs. Chinta Naga Lakshmi 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 257 = 2015(4) ALD 595 = 2015(5) ALT 580 = AIR 2015 Hyd. 131.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

— Sec.5 - INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT, Sec.372 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.50 & 114 - INSURANCE ACT, Sec.39 - "LIC Policy' - "Nomination" - Disputes between beneficiaries of deceased policy holder - Deceased took insurance policies nominating his mother/ appellant as beneficiary and subsequently married 1st respondent - 1st respondent, wife and respondents 2 & 3 sons of deceased policy holder filed Application for Succession Certificate - Appellant/mother contends that deceased was not married at all - Trial Court granting succession certificate basing on number of documents including photographs showing performance of marriage cermany and held that presumption of valid marriage should be drawn - 1st appellate Court while upholding judgment and order of trial Court, held that appellant is entitled to 1/4th share in estate of deceased - High Court dismissed Revision - Nomination of policy only indicated hand which was authorised to receive amount on payment of which insurer got a valid discharge of its liability under policy - Policy holder continued to have an interest in policy during his life time and nominee acquired no sort of interest in policy during lifie time of policy holder - On death of policy/holder, amount payable under policy became part of his estate which was governed by law of succession applicable to him - Such succession may be testamentary or intestate - A nominee could not be treated as being equivalent to an heir or legatee - Amount of interest under policy could, therefore, be claimed by heirs of assured in accordance with law of succession governing them - 1st appellant as one of heirs of deceased, policy holder is entitled to 1/4th share in estate of deceased - Appeal, dismissed. Challamma Vs. Tilaga 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 104.

—Secs.7 & 12 - Nullity of marriage - Respondent/wife filed petition before Family Court seeking annulment of marriage on account of fraud played by appellant/husband contending that statements made by him, basing on which she married him were incorrect - Appellant/husband filed counter making a counter-claim for restitution of conjugal rights stating inter alia, that allegations levelled against him are absolutely false and that he sincerely and honestly disclosed about himself and his caste to respondent /wife and she having been convinced with his honesty and sincerity liked him and expressed her love towards him, though he belongs to SC community and that marriage was performed with free consent of wife and marriage consummated - Family Court declared that marriage as null and void and wife is entitled to decree and that husband is not entitled to relief of restitution of conjugal rights - Family Court did not go into aspects of nullity of marriage u/Sec.12 of Act, however it went into ingredients of Sec.7 of Act and granted a decree of nullity of marriage on ground that required rites and ceremonies were not followed, nor there was any proof with that effect - Findings recorded by Family Court not sufficient to grant decree in favour of wife and it ought not to have taken into consideration or relay much upon ingredients of Sec.7 before granting relief of declaration of marriage as null and void - Court ought to have relied upon ingredients of Sec.12 of Act - Facts relating to social status, financial status and other material aspects if concealed, or wrong statement of facts, which were made in order to encourage other partner to marry and such conduct would certainly entitle other spouse to seek a decree of nullity of marriage - Reasoning given by Court on aspects of applicability of Sec.7 and fulfillment of ingredients of such provision, not relevant to present case - Family Court ought to have gone into aspects of fraud and misrepresentation on part of husband while granting decree as sought for - Unfortunately those aspects have been ignored and Court drifted into other area, which is actually not in dispute - Even after marriage, Application can be made u/Sec.12 of Act pleading fraud and misrepresentation and in such a case, Courts are not precluded from interfering with such marriage with little hesitation and to pass a decree declaring marriage as null and void - Present case is eminently a fit case where decree for declaration of marriage as null and void is absolutely warranted - Appeal, dismissed - Cross objections, allowed. M.Devender Vs. A.Sarika 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 44 = 2008(4) ALD 728 = 2008(5) ALT 183.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—-Secs. 9 & 13(1) ((ia) - "Restitution of conjugal rights" - "Dissolution of marriage" - Respondent/wife filed petition for restitution of conjugal rights before Family Court u/Sec.9 - Appellant/husband filed petition seeking dissolution of marriage on ground of cruelty and desertion - Family Court dismissed petition filed by wife for restitution of conjugal rights and granted decree of divorce - High Court allowed appeal filed by respondent/wife and set aside decree of divorce granted in favour of appellant/ husband, observing that finding of Family Court that lodging complaint with Police against husband amounts to cruelty is perverse because it is not a ground for divorce under Hindu Marriage Act and that further held that husband and wife did not live together for long time and therefore question of treating with each other with cruelty does not arise and conclusion that wife caused mental cruelty to appellant/husband is based on presumptions and assumptions - High Court wrongly held that because appellant/husband and respondent wife did not stay together there is no question of parties causing cruelty to each other - Staying together under same roof is not a pre-condition for mental cruelty - While staying away a spouse can cause mental cruelty to other spouse by sending vulgar and defamatory letters or notices or filing complaints containing indecent allegations - In this case, conduct of respondent-wife in filing complaint making unfounded, indecent and defamatory allegations against her mothr-in-law and she made all attempts to ensure that her husband and his parents were put in jail and he was removed from his job and this conduct of wife caused mental cruelty to appellant/husband and that apart appellant/huband/respondent wife were living separately for more than 10 years - As such, marriage having irretrievably broken down, dissolution of marriage would relieve both sides of pain and anguish - Marriage between appellant and respondent was dissolved by decree of divorce - Appellant/ husband working as Asst. Registrar in High Court of A.P. and getting good salary and respondent, wife fought litigation for more than 10 years and she is entirely dependent on her parents - Therefore her future must be secured by directing appellant husband to give permanent alimony of Rs.15 lakhs - MEDIATION - Court recognize "mediation" as an affective alternative dispute resolution in matrimonial matters and parities are wanted to explore possibility of settlement through mediation.

Following directions issued to Courts dealing with matrimonial matters:

a) In terms of Section 9 of the Family Courts Act, the Family Courts shall make all efforts to settle the matrimonial disputes through mediation. Even if the

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

Counsellors submit a failure report, the Family Courts shall, with the consent of the parties, refer the matter to the mediation centre. In such a case, however, the Family Courts shall set a reasonable time limit for mediation centres to complete the process of mediation because otherwise the resolution of the disputes by the Family Court may get delayed. In a given case, if there is good chance of settlement, the Family Court in its discretion, can always extend the time limit.

b) The criminal courts dealing with the complaint under Section 498-A of the IPC should, at any stage and particularly, before they take up the complaint for hearing, refer the parties to mediation centre if they feel that there exist elements of settlement and both the parties are willing. However, they should take care to see that in this exercise, rigour, purport and efficacy of Section 498-A of the IPC is not diluted. Needless to say that the discretion to grant or not to grant bail is not in any way curtailed by this direction. It will be for the concerned court to work out the modalities taking into consideration the facts of each case.

c) All mediation centres shall set up pre-litigation desks/clinics; give them wide publicity and make efforts to settle matrimonial disputes at pre-litigation stage - Appeal disposed of accordingly. K.Srinivas Rao Vs. D.A.Deepa 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 155 = 2013(3) ALD 11 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 1396 = AIR 2013 SC 2176 = 2013(5) SCC 226 = 2013(2) SCC (Cri) 963.

—Secs.9, 13(1), (ia) & (ib) - Respondent/husband filed O.P against appellant/ wife for divorce alleging grounds of desertion and cruelty - Trial Court decreed O.P and rejected counter claim of appellant-wife - Hence present appeal filed by wife - Appellant contends that respondent/husband did not prove grounds of desertion or cruelty and still trial Court granted decree of divorce and that disputes in family arose, ever since sister of respondent/husband started living separately from her husband in house of her parents and allegation that appellant dislike respondent on ground that he is deaf and his father was suffering from leprosy is totally baseless and that O.P was filed at instigation of respondent's sister and that same woman was instrumental in filing of suit for cancellation of gift deed executed by father of respondent's in favour of his son - Respondent/husband contends that appellant wife is living separately from 1991 onwards and that itself is sufficient to prove grounds of diversion and that is not at all desirable to set aside decree of divorce granted way back in year 1999 - Desertion of one spouse by other is recognized as a ground for divorce under Act - Basically, if a spouse live separately from his or her life partner, for a period, exceeding to years it is treated as desertion - However, if very reason for spouse to live separately is harassment or ill-treatment, one, who is accused of such acts, cannot take plea of desertion - It is only when husband or wife leaves matrimonial home out of his or her own volition, with an inten-tion to live separately from other spouse, that act of desertion can be said to have taken place - Circumstances that led to living of parties separately, need to be taken into account in entirety - In this case, on the basis of evidence it is difficult to come to conclusion that appellant left matrimonial home on her own accord - Acrimony on part of respondent and his other family members, towards appellant and her son is evident from fact that O.S was filed with a prayer to set aside gift executed by father of respondent in favour of his grand son - At every place appellant/wife emphasized that disputes in family arose on account of presence of their sister-in-law in their house, deserting her husband - Plea of appellant/wife that respondent and her sister have beaten up her on a particular day and attempted to throw her in to well by pushing a peace of cloth in her mouth and that she was rescued by villagers, cannot at all be ignored - It is under circumstances that appellant had to leave house of respondent and all the same she expressed her willingness to live with respondent in a rented house if there is no interference by her sister-in-law and that respondent in his evidence expressed his disinclination to live with appellant/wife under any circumstances - When this is state of affairs, it is just impossible to assume that respondent proved ground of desertion on part of appellant - One of tests to know mind of a party complaining desertion of his or her spouse, is, to see whether he/she made an effort to joint Company of other spouse and these steps may include issuance of notice, requiring other spouse to come and join or filing of O.P u/Sec.9 of Act - In this case, there is not even an iota of evidence to suggest that appellant had expressed her dislike towards respondent, or his father at any point of time - Hence ground of cruelty not proved by respondent - Order of decree passed by trial Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed - Counter claim allowed and there shall be decree for restitution of conjugal rights. Narra Susheela Vs. Narra Srinivasa Reddy 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 191.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

——Secs. 9, 13 (i) (a), (i) (b) - The appellant in both these appeals filed O.P. under Hindu Marriages Act under Sec.13(i) (a), (i)(b) for dissolution of marriage - The respondent filed O.P under Sec.9 for restitution of the conjugal rights - They both developed differences and are living separately for 14 years.

Held, in light of undisputed fact that parties have been living separately for nearly 14 years there may be no escape from conclusion that marriage has irretrievably broken down - As held by Supreme Court, a long time separation itself would lead to mental cruelty - Therefore, irrespective of findings of lower court on failure of appellant to prove mental cruelty, she is entitled to a decree for dissolution of marriage on sole reason that there is no possibility for reunion of parties in order to live together - Since marriage between parties has irretrievably broken down, any attempt to force parties to live together would tantamount to causing mental cruelty and would only prolong mental agony of parties for rest of their lives.

In aforementioned facts and circumstances of case, OP filed by wife/Appellant is decreed and O.P. by respondent/husband is dismissed. Both appeals are allowed. Kalapatapu Lakshmi Bharati Vs. Kalapatapu Sai Kumar 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 289.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

\—Secs.9,13(1),(ia), 26 & 27 - Appellant/wife filed O.P u/Sec.9 before Family Court, Chennai for restitution of conjugal rights - Respondent/husband filed O.P u/Sec.13(1)(ia),26 & 27 for dissolution of marriage, custody of child and return of jewellery and other items - Family Court dismissed Application for restitution of conjugal rights and allowed petition filed by husband for dissolution of marriage and held that child would remain in custody of mother on principle that welfare of child was paramount and further husband not entitled jewellary or any items from wife - Family Court also while passing decree for dissolution of marriage directed to pay permanent alimony of Rs.5 lakhs each wife and her minor son - Division Bench of High Court concurred with conclusion as regards decree of dissolution of marriage, however directed respondent/husband to pay maintenance of Rs.12,500/- to appellant, wife and her son - Hence present appeals assailing common judgment passed by High Court in both appeals - In this case, husband clearly deposed about constant and consistent ill-treatment metedout to him by wife in as much as she had shown her immense dislike to his "Sadhana" in Music and she has also made allegations about conspiracy in family of husband to get him remarried for greed of dowry and there is no iota of evidence on record to substantive same and that Family Judge as well as High Court has clearly analysed evidence and recorded a finding that wife treated husband with mental cruelty - Findings returned by Family Judge which has been given stamp of approval by High Court relating to mental cruelty cannot be said to be in ignorance of material evidence or exclusion of pertaining materials are based on perverse reasoning and said conclusion clearly rests on proper appreciation of facts - DESERTION BY WIFE - As factual matrix would reveal both Courts have proceeded on basis that wife had not endeavored to unite herself with husband and there had long lapse of time since they had lived together as husband and wife - To test tenability of said conclusion on perusal of petition for divorce from which it is evident that there is no pleading with regard to desertion and it needs no special emphasis to state that a specific case for desertion has to be pleaded - Interestingly that petition was not filed seeking divorce on ground of desertion but singularly on cruelty - In absence of prayer in that regard conclusion as regards desertion by Family Judge which has been concurred with by High Court is absolutely erroneous and accordingly same is overturned - However, it is established that husband has proved his case of mental cruelty which was foundation for seeking divorce - Therefore despite discharging finding of desertion, respondent/husband has rightly been granted decree of divorce - PERMANENT ALIMONY - In this case, husband had made out a case for divorce by proving mental cruelty - As decree is passed, wife is entitled to permanent alimony for her sustenance - While granting permanent alimony, no arithmetic formula can be adopted as there cannot be mathematical exactitude and it shall depend upon status of parties, there respective social needs, financial capacity of husband and other obligations - While granting alimony, Court is required to take note of fact, that amount of maintenance fixed for wife should be such as she can live in reasonable comfort considering her status and mode of life she was used to when she lived with her husband and at same time amount so fixed cannot be excessive or affect living condition of other party - Considering status of husband, social strata to which parties belong and further taking note of orders of Apex Court on earlier occasions it is appropriate to fix permanent alimony at Rs.50 lakhs and out of which Rs.20 lakhs shall be kept in F.D in name of son in Nationalized Bank which would be utilized for his benefit - Decree for dissolution of marriage is affirmed only on ground of mental cruelty which eventually leads to dismissal of appeals. U.Sree Vs. U. Srinivas, 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 17 = 2013(1) ALD 162 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 44 = AIR 2013 SC 415 = 2013(2) SCC 114 = 2013(1) SCC (Crl) 858.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Secs.9,13(1) (ia),13(1) (iii) and 23(2) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Sec.142 - Matrimonial offences - Dissolution of marriage - Appellant/husband married respondent in year 1997 at age of 22 years and age of wife is 19 years at time of marriage and present age of husband is 35 and age of wife is 32 - Since wife developed serious medical complication after giving birth to two children she underwent surgeries and suffered brain damage consequently that respondent wife would wake up in middle of night, and thereafter would not allow appellant, husband to sleep and she has been shouting and screming without any reason - Respondent wife claims to be hale and healthy before Family Court and she expressed that she was ready and willing for any medical evaluation at Court's behest - It is her assertion after second pregnancy appellant/husband did not extend any emotional or moral support to her rather than taking care of her, she was shiftes to her parents house in year 2002 and her parents took good care of her - Appellant/husband filed OP before Family Court for dissolution of marriage under Sec.13(1) (ia)(iii) - Respondent filed OP seeking restitution of conjugal rights u/Sec.9 of Act - Family Court arrived at conclusion that respondent/ wife did not suffer from any mental disorder or unsoundness of mind - She merely suffered from cognitive deficiency acquired during second pregnancy and she could have improved even further had there been moral and emotional support by her husband and concluded that appellant/husband had failed to establish that mental unsoundness of mind or mental disorder of respondent wife was of such degree, that he could not be expected to live with her - Said conclusion of Family Court dismissed OP filed by appellant/husband and allowed OP filed by respondent/wife holding that respondent wife is entitled to relief of restitution of conjugal rights and accordingly directed appellant/husband to receive her back in to his house within three months and to give her moral and emotional support and on his failing to do so, he was directed to pay interim maintenance amount fixed by Family Court - High Court dismissed both appeals preferred by husband by accepting and re-endorsing each finding of fact recorded by Family Court - Efforts of parties to convince to one and another of setting matter amicabally, did not yield any truthful results - In this case, a perusal of grounds on which divorce sought u/Sec.13(1) of Hindu Marriage Act would reveal that same are grounds based on "fault" but fault of party against whom dissolution of marriage is sought - In matrimonial jurisprudence, such provisions are founded on matrimonial offence theory or fault theory - Under this jurisprudence it is only on ground of "opponents" with fault - That a party may approach a Court for seeking annulment of his/her matrimonial alliance - In other words eithr of parties is guilty of committing matrimonial offence, aggrieved party alone is entitled to divorce - In this case, husband himself is at fault and not wife - Claim of wife is in actuality appellant is making out a claim for a decree of divorce on basis of allegations for which he himself is singularly responsible - On said allegations it is wife who deserves to be castigated - Therefore he cannot be allowed to raise an accusing finger at respondent on basis of said allegations, or to seek dissolution of marriage - Party seeking divorce has to be innocent of blame - In this case, that grounds/facts on which claim for divorce can be maintained u/Sec.13(1) of Act are clearly not available to appellant/husband in facts and circumstances of case and as such the payers made by appellant must fail - Appellant contends that Court would be justified in annulling marriage between parties, specially when parties have lived apart for more than 12 years and that there was no liklihood of parties ever living together as husband and wife and accordingly Court should consider annulment matrimonial ties between parties on ground of irretrievable break down of marriage - In this case, on reversal of roles husband without any fault of his own would have never accepted as just dissolution of his matrimonial ties, even if couple had been separated for a duration, as is case in hand, specially his husband had right from beginning, fervantly expressed desire to restore his matrimonial relationship with his wife and to live a normal life with her - Plea advanced by appellant/husband not accepted - Appeal filed by husband, dismissed. Darshan Gupta Vs. Radhika Gupta 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 239 = 2013(5) ALD 1 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 5505.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Secs.9, 28 & 13 - Restitution of conjugal rights - Family Court allowed O.P filed by respondent/wife for restitution of conjugal rights - Appellant/husband contends that O.P filed by wife not at all sustainable by any tenable evidence and criminal compliant filed by wife against husband for offence of bigamy ended in acquittal and that wife herself disliking husband since date of marriage and used to pick up quarrels without any reason and in fact wife herself deserted her husband without any reason - It is case of appellant/husband that wife herself left society of husband without reasonable excuse - Whereas it is case of wife as there was a reasonable excuse to leave company of husband as he addicted to bad vices, she left company of husband and thereafter she made several attempts to join society of husband, but he rejected all attempts and requests of wife - Wife is not entitled for restitution of conjugal rights if she left society of husband without any reasonable excuse - If there is reasonable excuse for leaving society of husband and if there are no legal grounds to deny decree of restitution of conjugal rights, then she is entitled for restitution of conjugal rights - Unless there is legal ground, request to grant a decree of restitution of conjugal rights cannot be rejected - In instant case, it is not case of husband before trial Court that he is ready and willing to join society of wife - Restitution of conjugal rights can be refused only on ground that spouse has left company without any reasonable cause and that there are legal grounds to refuse for restitution of conjugal rights - In instant case, as husband was demanding money and got addicted to bad vices and tortured her, she left company, but thereafter, she made several attempts through elders to join company of husband, but all her requests were rejected - Hence, it cannot be said that wife left company of husband without any reasonable cause - No grounds to refuse restitution of conjugal rights - Appeal, dismissed. Pilli Venkanna Vs. Pilli Nookalamma 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 103 = 2009(2) ALD 300 = 2009(2) ALT 397 = AIR 2009 AP 69.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Sec.10(2), 13(1-A), 23(1)(a) – Decree for judicial separation – No resumption of cohabitation between appellant/husband and respondent/wife – Appellant sought for divorce on that ground - Defendant contended that there was no effort by appellant to resume cohabitation and becomes 'wrong' within meaning of Sec.23(1) and hence he is not entitled to divorce – Held, mere disinclination or not taking steps either for his (appellant) transfer from Hyderabad to Chennai, nearer to place of working of respondent or not making further effort cooperate with respondent for her transfer from Nellore to Hyderabad, cannot be construed as 'wrong' - Also appellant was sending maintenance amount to his daughter every month – Hence, reasoning of Court below that there were no efforts from appellant for cohabitation by itself is immaterial to negate relief of decree of divorce as sought by appellant – Appeal, allowed - Hindu Marriage Act, Sec.10(2),23(1-A), 23(1) (a) – Cohabitation does not necessarily its depend on whether there is sexual intercourse between husband and wife – Sexual intercourse is strong evidence and may be conclusive evidence that they are cohabiting but it does not follow in its absence that they are not cohabitating - Hindu Marriage Act, Sec.19(2), 13(1-A), 23(1)(a) - Mother and father are employees – Mother/respondent getting Rs.11,000/- and appellant getting Rs.18,000/- per month – Maintenance by appellant of Rs.2500/- ordered by court below to child just and reaasonable – Appeal against order dismissed. A.Venkata Ramanaiah Vs. Ch.Lavanya @ Alahari Lavanya 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 182 = 2014(5) ALD 1 = 2014(4) ALT 686.

—-Secs.12 and 28 - HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT, 1956, Sec.2(1)(c) - Appellant who was respondent in O.P. filed this appeal u/Sec.28 of Hindu Marriage Act, aggrieved by order and decree passed by Senior Civil Judge, filed by his wife u/Sec.12 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 to declare her marriage performed with the respondent as null and void - Petitioner is a Hindu, by birth and brought up and even as on date, is not in dispute - Respondent is a Muslim by birth, so also his parents, brother and family members - According to him, he was converted into Hindu religion in order to marry petitioner - He is major by the year 2008 itself and even prior to the so called marriage, he also claims that he was adopted to Chaluvadi Venkata Subba Rao and Kameswari - So called conversion and so called adoption are in dispute from petitioner, including from evidence on record that of P.Ws.1 and 2 and from the cross-examination of the respondent as R.W.1.

Held, once there is no valid and voluntary conversion and its recognition as a Hindu of respondent-husband from parent Muslim religion, because of bar under

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

Sec.2 and 5 of the H.M. Act, marriage is ab initio void - Even otherwise, it can be annulled u/Sec.12(1)(c) of the H.M. Act and matrimonial Court u/Sec.23(1)(c) and (e) of H.M.Act for lesser relief, including by this Court while sitting in appeal can grant divorce under Sec.13(2)(a)(iv) of H.M.Act as so called ceremony of marriage of petitioner and respondent was performed on 15-8-2008, petitioner was born on 28-11-1991 according to her and on 25-8-1991 according to him and even taken earlier date as her birth date of 25-8-1991, by 15-8-2008 she did not complete 17 years to say by time of her marriage she did not complete 18 years and u/Sec.13(2)(a)(iv) from causes omissa supplied to read 15 years as 18 years and 18 years as 21 years, for she can repudiate within 21 years, when by time petition for annulment filed on 15-7-2010 she did not attain 21 years.

Having regard to above, without even any necessity for this Court while sitting in appeal to invoke, Sec.23(1)(c) and (e) of H.M. Act to a lesser relief for divorce under Sec.13(2)(iv) of H.M. Act with causus omissus supplying by reading with Sec.5(iii) of 15 and 18 years as 18 and 21 years respectively to dissolve their marriage, from the very marriage is null and void ab initio for no valid conversion of respondent husband by voluntarily and with faith in Hinduism and to acceptance of Hindu neighbourhood and otherwise from force proved against her to maintain claim within one year after its cessation as one of grounds to annul besides fraud regarding his qualifications and employment which are part of deliberate false representations regarding his status, qualifications, properties etc., and from within one year of said fraud detected, petition is maintained by her in this regard and also in relation to material facts and circumstances regarding him discussed supra that entitles her to seek annulment of marriage - Thus, even from said re-appreciation of pleadings and evidence on record on factual matrix with reference to law, for this Court while sitting in appeal, there is nothing to interfere but for dismissal of appeal - In result, appeal is dismissed. Shaik Mahammed Rafi Vs. Grandhi Poorna Seetha Manoja 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 83 = 2016(6) ALD 520 = 2016(4) ALT 302.

—Secs.12(1)(c), 12(2)(a), 13 & 27 – Respondent filed OP in Family Court against Appellant husband for annulment of marriage and for return of dowry, Gold and Silver Articles presented at the time of marriage contending that appellant and his family members suppressed vital information about appellant at the time of marriage that he is suffering from “Psoriasis” and that she has been subjected to serious harassment ever since marriage on ground that she did not bring adequate dowry - Appellant/husband contends that himself and respondent were living happily, respondent became pregnant but she got it terminated, despite his opposition – Trail Court allowed OP filed by respondent -Appellant/husband contends that OP not maintainable in law, since ingredients of Sec.12 of Act are totally absent in it and that “Psoriasis”, even if exists in a spouse is not a ground for divorce and that plea as to suppression of vital information was not at all proved and that OP is barred, since it is not presented with in time stipulated, are because spouse lived together even after respondent is said to have noticed “Psoriasis” on appellant - Respondent contends that though “Psoriasis” may not be a disease that warrants divorce, plea raised by respondent that a time of settlement of marriage, vital information about health conditions of appellant was suppressed and that itself is sufficient for annulment of marriage - A perusal of Sec.12 makes it clear that two important words, namely, "Force" and "Fraud" are employed in it and word suppression does not occur in this – Nowhere in OP, it was mentioned that any force was exerted upon respondent or her parents for consent to marriage with appellant and it appears that failure on part of appellant to inform that he is suffering from "Psoriasis" was treated as an act of fraud – Sec.12(1)(c) of Act gets attract only when consent was obtained through force are by playing fraud – Content of these words can be better understood if one takes into account, purport of Sec.12(a) of Act and in relevant of clause words used are "force has ceased to operate or as case may be fraud discovered" - This provision cannot at all be operated vis-à-vis suppression of information – Therefore respondent cannot be said to have made out a case u/Sec.12(1)(c) of Act - In this case petitioner filed the OP u/Sec.12(1)(c) with his or her full consent lived with other party to marriage after force, ceased or fraud has been discovered, Court cannot entertain O.P - In present case, even according to respondent wife, fact that appellant is suffering from "Psoriasis" came to her knowledge in May 2005, even if her consent is said to have been obtained by fraud she can maintain OP if only she stopped living with him and filed OP thereafter – In this case evidence discloses that she lived with appellant till July 2005 and that disentitles respondent to maintain O.P – Decree passed by Trail Court set aside. S.Mahender Vs. Shalini, 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 275 = 2014(2) ALD 741 = 2014(2) ALT 369 = AIR 2014 AP 43.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Sec.13 & 13(1) (i) - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.497 - Family Court "adultery" "cruelty" "dissolution of marriage" - Family Court upheld plea of respondent/petitioner/husband and allowed O.P filed by husband and dissolved marriage between appellant/respondent/wife holding that husband could prove adultery between respondent/wife and one RNR and also her cruelty against respondent-husband - In this case, Family Court mainly accepted evidence of P.W.2, neighbor of respondent/husband, who stated that on date of incident she found respondent raising hue and cry that his wife was not opening doors of their house even though he called her then she got woke up and then found one person running in front of her carrying clothes and rushing to ground floor of house and also leaving said place - Respondent/wife in O.P contends that when there is plea of adultery, adulterer is a necessary party whereby non-adding him as a party in is fatal to proceed with case - On other hand petitioner/husband contends that in view of amendment of Sec.13 (1)(i), adulterer need not be added as a party in the case - In context of adding alleged adulterer as a party in divorce O.P; what is required to be considered is as to whether any alleged finding of adultery would adversely affect interest of adulterer by reason of which opportunity should be provided to him to defend himself to disprove claim of adultery applying concept of principles of natural justice - As a matter of fact presence of adulterer in divorce proceedings helps better to effectively and completely adjudicate controversy and also safe guard his interest - Findings of Family Court that there is no need to add

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

adulterer as a party to divorce proceedings are unacceptable - Verdict of Family Court, set aside which results in dismissal of plea of petitioner to dissolve marriage by decree of divorce without going to merits of evidence adduced - Family Court appeal, allowed. Ch.Padmavathi Vs. Ch. Sai Babu 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 242.

—Secs.13 and 13(1) (ia) - Divorce - Husband filing Application against wife for divorce stating that wife is quarrel some, rude ad illmannered and constantly threatening him as well as his family that since she and her two uncles are advocates they would make lives of husband and his family meserable and that she has been making basis complainants to his superiors which has affected in Army - Wife contends that husband-in-laws had wilfully and cruelly treated her and had spared no efforts to cause her mental harm and inflected grave injuries and that they had pressurised her to meet not only their unlawful demands of money but also spurious reasons - Trial Court held although circumstances mentioned clearly reval that it is a case of broken marriage however there is no ground given in Sec.13 of Act, where decree of divorce can be founded on proof of irretrievably broken marriage and also held that petitioner has been unsuccessful in proving respondent to have treated him with cruelty of nature as to entitle him to decree of divorce - Single Judge of High Court granted alternative relief to husband by passing a decree for judicial separation u/Sec.10 of Hindu Marriage Act - Division Bench held that findings of single Judge in granting partial relief and that of trial Judge in declining relief of divorce cannot be sustained and accordingly set aside both judgments and held that cruelty alleged by respondent/ husband stands proved - As result appeal dismissed and modify judgment of single Judge and that decree of divorce prayed by respondent, husband granted - In this cae trial Court as well as appellate Court have both concluded that behviour of husband as well as wife falls short of standard required to establish mental cruelty in terms of Sec. 13(1)(ia) - It is not a case, where it is necessar for Division Bench of High Court to correct any glaring and serious errors committed by Court below which had resulted in miscarriage of justice - There is no compelling necessity, independently placed before Division Bench to justify reversal decree of judicial separation - It is wholly in- apropriate for Divison Bench of High Court to have granted a decree of divorce to husband - Judgment and orders passed by Division Bench, set aside - Order passed by Single Judge restored - Appeal, allowed. Manisha Tyagi Vs. Deepak Kumar 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 12.

—Secs.13(i-a) - Divorce - Irretrievable break down of marriage - Respondent/husband hails from Hyderabad, settled down at New York city in 1981 and became citizen of U.S.A, married appellant, lecturer in Hyderabad City, in 1989 - Appellant was suffering from Bronchial Asthma and on account of cold climatic condition, she returned to India and that appellant and respondent are living separately in India and USA respectively from 1991 - Family Court decreed O.P instituted by respondent/husband, dissolving marriage of parties - Respondent/husband contends that appellant suppressed important piece of information relating to state of her health - Since cold climatic conditions are considered to be adverse to interest of Asthmatic patients, if information about health of appellant is known to respondent/husband well before, surely it would have provided him certain opportunity and assess carefully suitability of engaging appellant in a holy wedlock - In that context, perhaps respondent has been alleging that appellant had concealed this vital information - When appellant returned to India, parties had hardly any opportunity to lead conjugal life happily - There relationship is marred by Asthmatic attacks suffered by appellant/wife - Career chosen by respondent/husband at New York is one of a kind of its own, and it is a creative art of dance - It is therefore improper to make a demand on respondent to pursue his career at some other geographical location, which would be more suitable for appellant/wife to lead a life together with him - In such circumstances, it is wholly appropriate to consider marriage to have broken down irretrievably - Conclusion of Family Court that marriage between appellant and respondent had been irretrievably broken down - Justified - Respondent/husband directed to provide permanent alimony to appellant wife - Appeal, dismissed. Varalaxmi Charka @ Renuka Vs. Satyanarayana Charka 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 452 = 2008(2) ALD 785 = 2008(2) ALT 474 = AIR 2008 AP 134.

—Sec.13(1)(a) – Petitioner, wife filed petition against husband/respondent for dissolution of their marriage on ground of "cruelty" and for refund of marriage expenses and gold ornament etc - Family Court upon appreciation of evidence and contentions raised by both rival parties dismissed O.P filed by petitioner for dissolution of marriage with respondent and grant of divorce holing that petitioner failed to prove that respondent treated with her cruelty entitling her to seek dissolution of marriage with respondent - Appellant/wife contends that family Court failed to properly appreciate evidence and that P.Ws 1 to 3 categorically deposed that respondent treated petitioner with cruelty and Family Court ought to have dissolved marriage of petitioner with respondent and granted divorce - CRUELTY – Meaning of – "Their must be danger to life, limb or health, (bodily or mentally) or reasonable apprehension of it to constitute cruelty" - In this case, admittedly petitioner is a deaf and dumb girl and petitioner and respondent were lived happily for six month after marriage and thereafter respondent started ill-treating her – Admittedly parents of petitioner are welltodo having substantial properties and as such parents of petitioner take respondent as their illatom son-in-law- Respondent started harassing petitioner under influence of alcohol - In this case petitioner having waited patiently all-through, filed present petition for dissolution of marriage with respondent and grant of divorce - No lady, much less a lady at teen age and that too with disability of deaf and dumb, will dare to file a petition seeking divorce against her husband knowing fully well that no body will marry her in future considering disability being suffered by her - Respondent also admitted that he filed paper publication against petitioner demanding grant of his life maintenance for Rs.25 lakhs and said paper publication is nothing but admitting his incapacity to earn – Character and conduct of respondent can be read with this paper publication and it can be said without any slightest doubt that he is crave and greedy for property of his wife and not for love – Conduct of respondent from beginning of marriage shows that he has been harassing petitioner on one pretext or other and such conduct of respondent definitely amounts to cruelty, though not physically, but mentally which made petitioner to file present O.P for divorce as last resort - Therefore, in any view of matter conduct of respondent towards petitioner amounts to cruelty and accordingly petitioner entitled for grant divorce u/Sec.13(1)(ia) of Hindu Marriage Act – Finding recorded by Family Court that petitioner failed to prove that respondent treated her with cruelty cannot be sustained – Petitioner is entitled to dissolution of her marriage with respondent and grant of divorce – Order of Family Court passed in OP, set aside - FCA, allowed. Mandavelli Hema Vs. Mandavelli Bhimasankara Prasad 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 329 = 2011(4) ALD 583 = 2011(4) ALT 521.

—Sec.13(1)(ia) - "Dissolution of Marriage" - Respondent /wife filed petition before Family Court seeking dissolution of marriage with appellant, husband on ground that appellant was addicted to vices like alcoholism and drugs and in such mental and physical state, he was abusing her in filthy language and was beating her rudely as result of which she is apprehending danger in his hands - Appellant filed counter denying allegations made in petition stating that wife not amicable to him and to his parents and because of illegal advice of her parents, she used to pickup quarrels frequently and that he was put to mental agony at instance of respondent/wife - After going into merits of case and also basing on evidence both oral and documentary, Family Court granted decree of divorce - It is always not necessary that all averments shall be made only during course of evidence - In matrimonial disputes, conduct of parties some times will be spoken by parties themselves and some times could be perceived from statement made in petition or counter filed before Court - In this case, obviously appellant, husband instead of supporting his case by adducing evidence or making statements in counter, had resorted to make some serious allegations against his wife - In normal course, though initial responsibility is on petitioner who makes allegation seeking divorce, it is equally, responsibility of opposite party spouse to repel such allegations and substantiate same through oral or documentary evidence - In this case, appellant/husband spending time with hotels without paying bills and same being paid by father-in-law would prove disrespect of husband to family and wife and same amounts to causing mental agony, which is other words to be treated as mental cruelty - There is sufficient material to point out mental cruelty on part of husband towards wife - Hence dissolution of marriage and consequential decree of divorce is only solution - Conclusions arrived at by Court below - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Kamma Damodar Rao Vs. Kamma Anuradha 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 316 = 2011(1) ALD 41 = 2011(1) ALT 636 = AIR 2011 AP 23.

—Secs.13(1)(ia) - Appellant/petitioner wife filed O.P before Family Court to grant divorce dissolving marriage between herself and respondent/husband on ground of cruelty - Lower Court upon appreciation of evidence in light of contentions raised by rival parties, came to conclusion that petitioner, wife failed to prove cruelty on part of respondent/husband and accordingly dismissed O.P - Hence petitioner-wife filed present appeal - Petitioner/appellant contends that judgment of lower Court is purely based on surmises and conjectures and failed to appreciate abundant evidence available on record with regard to series of incidents made by respondent/husbands in his cross-examination about his cruelty and came to wrong conclusion that petitioner did not mention any specific dates of instances alleged in petition and also failed to consider that respondent through his harassing conduct created a compulsion situation to petitioner to seek assistance of parents along with minor children after which respondent/husband instead of making attempt to take petitioner back left her to her fate and started harassing her more and as such petitioner left with no option and filed petition for dissolution of marriage and that petitioner made out a case u/Sec.13(1)(ia) of act for grant of divorce - Respondent contends that after filing O.P, petitioner filed a case against respondent for offence u/Sec.498-A of IPC and that evidence of petitioner coupled with respondent shows that petitioner wanted to get rid of respondent by hook and crook and wanted to occupy flat of respondent and that there are no grounds to maintain petition for divorce and allegations made by petitioner are common in day to day life and after 12 years of marriage and having two children, petitioner filed O.P. - In this case, according to petitioner, marriage of herself and respondent is inter caste and love marriage - There were many occasions where she had black scars on her arms and face due to respondent's act of violence only, because he did not approve her dressing style and right from beginning from marriage, she was warned by respondent to stay away from social activity - Further respondent/husband has been creating lot of mental tension by making derogatory, cheap and vulgar comments for every thing petitioner does - Therefore, as behavour of respondent was becoming more aggressive and torturous day by day and as being unable to bear with cruelty meted out by her physically and mentally in hands of respondent, she filed present petition to dissolve marriage - Respondent in his evidence states that petitioner by filing present O.P humiliated and abused respondent and bet him and filed false 498-A case after filing present O.P only to pressures respondent to give divorce - But still he has got no complaint against petitioner and he wants to continue marital knot - Respondent also contends that petitioner is not cooperative for sex - But fact remains that they were blessed with two children during their wedlock and unless either of spouse is interested party for sex, there is not possibility of conception and conception of two children by petitioner clearly shows that she was a consented party for conception - Respondent did not show any instances of reluctance by petitioner towards sex therefore it cannot be said that petitioner is reluctant for sex as pleaded by respondent and said plea is unsustainable - In this case, it is very important to note that respondent /husband admitted that he has not made any attempt for restitution of conjual rights or filed any petition for same against petitioner and that respondent also admitted that he had received Rs.3.48 lakhs from petitioner's father for period of three years - It is case of the petitioner that respondent was also making some imputations against her which amounts to character assassination and from beginning

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

respondent entertained suspicion about her conduct and was closely watching her movements - When there is a doubt of intergrity of character by spouse vice-versa, no conjual life will be smooth and happy as petitioner felt embarrassed about suspicious conduct of her husband, waited all through and filed petition for divorce on ground of cruelty - In instant case, defaming women's modesty by making serious allegations as a counter blast to petition filed by her throws light of respondent's suspecting nature towards his wife - Petitioner has given sufficient proof and evidence against cruel behavour, suspicious nature, mental and physical torture meted out in hands of respondent and has established that respondent treated her with cruelty and as such petitioner is entitled to decree of divorce - In this case, conduct of respondent towards petitioner amounts to "cruelty" and petitioner established ingredients of Sec.13(1)(ia) of Act and accordingly she is entitled for grant of divorce thereunder by dissolving her marriage with respondent - Impugned order of Family Court, set aside - Family Court appeal is allowed. Devi Niket Pillai Vs. Niket N Pillai, 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 58 = 2012(4) ALD 502 = 2012(3) ALT 772.

—-Sec.13(1)(i-a) - The court below rightly observed that the acts complained by the appellant are usual bickering on account of differences between the spouses and common in the domestic life and not of such serious nature to entitle the appellant for dissolution of marriage by grant of decree of divorce - Therefore, the order under challenge does not at all warrant interference as it does not suffer from any illegality - Mere fact that the court below did not discuss in detail touching each act of alleged cruelty is no ground to set aside the impugned common order and decrees. Gopalakrishna Surapaneni Vs. Anuradha Surpaneni Maiden 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 453 = 2015(2) ALD 408 = 2015(1) ALT 125.

—-Sec.13(1)(1A) – Divorce by mutual consent – Suit filed for dissolution of marriage – Settlement between parties - Contract to dissolve the marriage, Court has to satisfy itself that the contract is legal and valid in the eye of law. Vennangot Anuradha Samir Vs. Vennangot Mohandas Samir 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 6 = 2015 AIR SCW 6524 = 2016(1) ALD 51 (SC).

—Secs.13(1)(ia) & 9 – "Divorce" – Respondent, husband filed O.P., for divorce stating that appellant wife is not cooperating with him in family life and various acts and omissions on her part would constitute 'cruelty' - Appellant, wife contends that ever since marriage, not only respondent but also her family members, including his sisters used to harass her and she was forced to swallow sleeping pills – Appellant, wife filed O.P., u/Sec.9 of Act for restitution of Conjugal Rights – Trial Court passed decree of divorce and dismissed O.P., filed by Appellant - In this case the appellant narrated nature of suffering undergone in hands of respondent - Trail Court arrived at conclusion that respondent and appellant are living separately since several years and even with short time from date of marriage petitioner established that respondent protested for sex and it amounts to 'cruelty' - This finding of the Trail Court is totally perverse and contrary to Provisions of Act and cannot be sustained either on facts or in law - Tone and tenor of judgment is contrary to very letter and sprit not only of provisions of Act, but also Family Court Act - Appeal allowed, by imposing costs of Rs.10,000/- payable by respondent/husband to appellant/ wife - Decree of divorce set-aside. Devika (Bhagya Lakshmi) Vs. N.Narasing Rao 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 249 = 2014(2) ALD 630 = 2014(3) ALT 669.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Sec.13(1)(a) and 9 - "Cruelty" - Respondent/husband filed O.P for divorce against wife pleading that through her acts and omissions she caused cruelty to him and same constituted a ground for divorce - Appellant, wife filed M.Cand same was allowed awarding a sum of Rs.2000/- per month - Though, respondent/husband filed another O.P with a view to procure presence of appellant wife and oabta-ined decree, appellant did not joined him - Trial Court allowed O.P filed by respondent, husband and granted decree for divorce - Hence present Appeal by wife - Appellant/wife contends that trial Court did not appreciate evidence on record properly and erroneously passed decree for divorce and even if grounds pleaded by respondent/husband are taken as true at most, they constitute desertion and there was absolutely no basis for trial Court to come to conclusion that ground of 'cruelty' is proved and that none other than daughter of parti es deposed as R.W.1 and categorically stated that her self, her mother and her brother had to leave house of respondent on account of physical assault by respondent/husband - In this case, respondent filed O.P for divorce on ground of 'cruelty' and trial Court framed only one point for its consideration viz., "whether responfent is entitled to decree for divorce as prayed for" - CRUELTY - Act recognizes 'cruelty' as one of grounds for dissolution of marriage and to consider a ground for dissolution, cruelty need not be one manifested through any external injuries or physical assault - If one of spouses caused mental agony or continued harassment to other, through his or her acts and omissions beyond point of tolerance, Court can certainly grant divorce - In this case, appellant and her children left house of respondent is not in dispute - While respondent pleaded that appellant left house abruptly and without any justification, appellant pleaded that she was forced to go out on account of fact that respondent has ill treated and had beaten her - In instant case, finding was recorded to effect that respondent neglected to maintain appellant and accordingly, granting maintenance and said finding became final - This is a rare case, which a grown up child of spouses deposed as a witness in divorce proceedings, R.W.2, daughter of parties, narrated her experience vis-a-vis quarrel between parties and she stated that in 1997 respondent has driven away appellant and children and he did not even permit them to take away clothes with them and also stated that respondent has neglected to maintain them throughout -Respondent miserably failed to prove ground of cruelty - Trial Court was mostly impressed by fact that though there exists a decree for restitution of conjugal rights and appellant did not join respondent - Decree passed by trial Court set aside and award costs of Rs.10,000/- payable directly to appellant by respondent - Appeal, allowed. Vytla Ailvelu Manga Devi Vs. Vytla Venkata Lakshmi Narasimha Palla Rao 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 92 = 2014(1) ALD 719 = 2014(1) ALT 408 = AIR 2014 (NOC) 310 (AP).

—Secs.13(1) (ia), 11 & 12 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec/125 - HIGH COURT OF A.P. FAMILY COURTS (COURT) RULES, 2005, Rule 5(d) - Respondent/petitioner/

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

husband filed O.P against appellant wife in Family Court seeking direction that there marriage is null and void and for relief of divorce - In this case, respondent/husband is Hindu by religion and appellant wife is Christian by religion and it is love marriage and marriage was solemnised at Ramaalayam as per Hindu rites and both are employed - Husband sought relief against wife on grounds of cruelity and desertion and they have also adopted a female child from a Missionary Charity of Mother Theresa - Family Court passed order dissolving marriage between respondent and appellant giving visiting rights to appellant/wife to see minor child whenever she desired to see - Appellant/wife contends that adopted child is also Christian and she has got complaints of cruelty against respondent/husband - Lower Court observed that though wife belongs to Christian religion, both parties married as per Hindu rites and religion and she joined him and lived like Hindu woman and adopted child following norms under Hindu Law and lived like Hindu and it follows that all practical purpose the parties are governed by Hindu Marriage Act - There is no pleading on part of husband that his wife has got faith in Hinduism and was following Hindu customs in her life - In absence of valid plea in evidence finding of lower Court on this aspect is baseless - Even after marriage, both parties were following their own religions and following respective religious customs - Marriage between Christian lady and Hindu male is not valid marriage under 1955 Act and as under that Act marriage can be solemnised only between two Hindus and that for purpose of claiming maintenance u/Sec.125 Cr.P.C., marriage between parties cannot be said to be invalid - Rule 5(d) of High Court of A.P. Family Rules provides for filing Application before Family Court under 1872 Act as well as Indian Divorce Act, it is for both parties to approach Family Court once again to get their disputes finally determined in appropriately framed proceedings under appropriate law applicable to both parties - Since marriage between parties in this Appeal is not valid under 1955 Act, respondent could not have approached Family Court for divorce or for nullity u/Sec.13(1) of 1955 Act - Order passed by Family Court, set aside - CMA, allowed. K.Hema Kumari Vs. D.P.Yadagiri 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 129 = 2012(4) ALD 604 = 2012(4) ALT 119.

—-Secs.13(1)(1a),13-B & 23 - Respondent-husband filed petition at Bombay for dissolution of marriage on ground that petitioner-wife had committed various acts of cruelty – Petitioner-wife moved an Application before Supreme Court for transfer of divorce case pending from Bombay to Hyderabad.

Pending transfer petition, both parties entered settlement Agreement, that respondent-husband agreed to pay Rs.12,50,000/- towards full and final settlement of claim of petitioner-wife.

Both parties filed application u/Sec.13-B of Act, with a prayer to treat divorce petition pending before Bombay Court as an Application u/Sec.13-B of Act and treat present petition as second motion and grant divorce by way of mutual consent.

Held, petitioner-wife needs money for treatment of her breast cancer, hence it cannot be ruled out that in order to save her life by getting money, she agreed for settlement of dissolution of marriage.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

Hindu Marriage is a scared and holy union of husband and wife by virtue of which the wife is completely transplanted in the household of her husband and takes a new birth.

Supreme Court held, petitioner-wife is suffering from such a disease which has compelled her to agree for mutual consent divorce - It is a duty of respondent-husband to take care of health and safety of petitioner-wife.

In present case, by settlement agreement, respondent-husband is promising to do something which he is already duty bound, is not a valid consideration for settlement.

Petition is ordered to be transferred from Family Court Bombay to Family Court at Hyderabad and respondent-husband shall pay amount to petitioner-wife immediately for her treatment – Family Court at Hyderabad shall dispose of petition in accordance with Law. Vennangot Anuradha Samir Vs. Vennangot Mohandas Samir 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 51 = 2015 AIR SCW 6524 = 2016(1) ALD 51 (SC).

——Secs.13(1)(ia) & 25 - C.M.A. is filed by appellant husband against order passed by Principal Senior Civil Judge, in O.P., dismissing his petition seeking dissolution of marriage under Section 13(1)(ia) of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 - Petition, in C.M.A. M.P. No.200 of 2014 in C.M.A. No.1056 of 2006, is filed by petitioner-wife against respondent-husband under Section 25 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 for grant of Rs.25,00,000/- towards her permanent alimony and Rs.20,00,000/- to Kumari K. Navya, (the daughter of petitioner and respondent), towards her maintenance, education and marriage expenses - Held, Sec.25 of the Hindu Marriage Act, which enables a charge to be created on immovable property, does not explicitly provide for a charge being created on movable property. Ordinarily conferment of power, by a specific statutory provision, is a pre-requisite for its exercise - However, exceptional circumstances may justify exercise of power in absence of any statutory prohibition - In absence of any prohibition in Section 25 of Act, and as held by the Punjab and Haryana High Court in Durga Das v. Tara Rani, this Court direct that permanent alimony, payable by respondent to petitioner in terms of order now passed by this Court, shall be secured by way of a charge over retiral/terminal benefits of respondent - Charge shall, however, be limited only to such of those retiral benefits for which there is no statutory prohibition for creation of a charge or attachment - Both C.M.A. No.1056 of 2006, and C.M.A.M.P.No.200 of 2014 in C.M.A.No.1056 of 2006 are disposed of accordingly. K.Narasinga Rao Vs. K.Neeraja @ Rajini 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 427 = 2015(5) ALD 25 = 2015(5) ALT 166 = AIR 2015 Hyd. 163.

—-Secs.13(1)(a), 13(1)(b) and 28 - Appellant has married respondent after death of his first wife - A son and a daughter were born out of their wedlock - Appellant specifically alleged that respondent has left his company without intimation, at instigation of her brother - He has further alleged that respondent was always insisting for transfer of properties in her name, and, as appellant turned down demands of respondent,

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

she left his company and filed maintenance case wherein an order was passed rejecting claim for maintenance - It is his further case that there was no matrimonial relationship between himself and respondent after birth of their daughter and son and till date of filing of petition for dissolution of marriage - Respondent filed a counter-affidavit denying allegations made by appellant.

Held, though it appears from pleadings of parties that rejection of claim of respondent for maintenance under Ex-A-1 was, subsequently, set aside by this Court and, on remand, respondent was granted maintenance, fact however remains that respondent continued to live separately since 1995 till appellant has filed O.P for divorce in 2004 and even thereafter also she was living separately - Except taking a stand in her cross-examination that she was necked out, no evidence was placed by her in order to prove this plea - She appeared to be rest content with securing maintenance and living separately - She has not made any attempt, whatsoever, to join company of appellant, at least after she succeeded before Court in claiming maintenance - This conduct of respondent, in Court opinion, clearly proves that she is living away from appellant without any justifiable reason - A long and continuous separation by respondent without any attempt to reconcile with appellant gives rise to a reasonable presumption that she has deserted appellant forever.

In aforementioned facts and circumstances of case, and in view of principles laid down by Supreme Court in decisions referred supra, this Court of opinion that lower Court has committed a serious error in dismissing petition for divorce - Hence order of lower Court is set aside - Civil Miscellaneous Appeal, is, accordingly, allowed. S.Brahmanandam Vs. S.Rama Devi 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 366.

—Secs.13(ia) (ib) - "Cruelty" - "Desertion" - Petitioner/husband earlier filed O.P for restitution of conjugal rights and obtained decree and inspite of decree responent/ wife did not join for one year - Having become vexed with cruel attitude of respondent/ wife and desertion for more than two years he filed O.P for divorce on groundof cruelty and desertion - Family Court dismissed O.P and hence petitioner preferred present C.M.A - "CRUELTY" AND "DESERTION" - Interpreted - Though factum of separation of petitioner and respondent was occasionally proved, there are instances when petitioner respondent lived together as is clear from evidence, at that juncture there is not even inclination of anmius deserendi on part of wife to permanently cease co-habitation and marital relation - Allegation of husband in claim petition adverted to by Family Court while recording finding that they tantamount to cruelty by husband to wife, cannot be said to be perverse - On appreciation of entire evidence on record as well as findings of Family Court, there is no evidence on part of husband to establish desertion within essential ingredients - Petitioner miserably failed to establish allegations of cruelty meted out by his wife by adducing substantial legal evidence - Findings recorded by Family Court - Justified - CMA, dismissed. K.S.V.V.L.Narasimha Rao Vs. Kamisetty Suguna 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 213.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Secs.13(1)(ia) & (ib) - Petitioner's wife filed O.P to grant divorce by dissolving marriage between herself and respondent-husband - Lower Court on appreciation of evidence came to conclusion that petitioner was able to prove that respondent treated her with cruelty entitling her to seek divorce and allowed O.P filed by wife - Respondent/appellant contends that lower Court failed to properly appreciate evidence and gave erroneous finding granting divorce and that appellant is very much affectionate towards petitioner and always treated her with love and affection, and that petitioner deserted respondent at instance of her parents and therefore conduct of petitioner amounts to desertion and respondent's conduct could not amount to cruelty and that petitioner failed to prove ingredients of Sec.13(1) (ia) & (ib) of Act to grant divorce on ground of desertion and cruelty - Petitioner/respondent mainly contends that from beginning of marriage - Respondent/appellant suspecting fidelity of petitioner on one pretext or other ad same was continued stage by stage and reached its peak by attributing unchastity against petitioner, making enquiries about her character at her working place, beating her on one pretext or other and therefore finding of lower Court is totally unsustainable - Provision in Cl. (ia) of Sec.13 (1) was introduced by Marraige Laws Amendment Act, 68 of 1976 simply states "treated the petitioner with cruelty" - Object, it would seem was to give a definition exclusive or inclusive , which will amply meet every particular act or conduct and not fail in some circumstance - In case of this nature burden lies on person alleging cruelty - In this case, petitioner wife filed petition against respondent/husband seeking divorce on ground of cruelty and therefore it is for petitioner to prove that conduct of respondent towards her amounts to cruelty - Instances narrated by petitioner in her evidence clearly bring out cruel conduct of respondent towards petitioner - Except denying averments made by petitioner, respondent did not adduce any rebuttal evidence - There cannot be any straight jacket formula or fixed para meters for determining "cruelty" in matrimonial matters - It is not required that physical violence along with mental torture are essential to constitute cruelty, even conduct of inflicting mental agony and torture in giving circumstances may constitute cruelty - Therefore, in any view of matter, conduct of respondent towards petitioner amounts to "cruelty" and petitioner established ingredients of Sec.13(1)(ia) of Act, she is entitled for grant of divorce - Findings of lower Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. K.R.Srinivas Vs. Dharmavaram Sridevi 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 99 = 2012(3) ALD 759 = 2012(4) ALT 491 = AIR 2012 AP 131.

—-Sec.13(1)(ia) and (ib) - Petitioner/husband filed O.P. No.396 of 2000 on file of Judge, Family Court, against respondent/wife for dissolution of their marriage dated 26.06.1997, performed as per Hindu rites and customs at under Section 13 (1) (ia) and (ib) of Hindu Marriage Act on the grounds of cruelty and desertion - After contest, trial Court dismissed petition with costs on 11.09.2003 - Impugning the same, petititioner/husband preferred appeal - Held, Having regard to referred judgments as rightly concluded by trial Court, husband cannot take advantage of his own faults, for no fault of wife in driving out her from marital home and for the sake of record having filed restitution of conjugal rights with no mind and even wife expressed her willingness to join and even after restitution of conjugal rights petition allowed, he did not execute much less served any notice to her to come and join and further even not allowed her to join and even case registered for offence under Section 498-A IPC from his demands to part with property having driven out when she tried to join by proceeding with her mother (RW.2) and PW.3 (that is proved from their evidence) he beat her and demanded to part with her property in his name to alienate and further when she was attending Court to give evidence she was way laid and beaten for which another case registered where he was convicted - Thus, there is neither desertion nor cruelty on the part of wife, but for cruelty and desertion on the part of the husband - In view of above, there is no illegality or irregularity or impropriety in appreciation of evidence and to conclusions and findings arrived by lower Court, for this Court while sitting in appeal to interfere - It is needless to say that it is one of contentions of appellant/husband that after December, 1997, parties are living separately and that is a ground for divorce - As held in expressions supra, irretrievably broken down of marriage is not a ground for divorce - It is needless to say even amendment proposed after Naveen Kohli and Samar Ghosh to make it a ground for divorce and that was even recommended by law commission, it could not fructify in Parliament - In result, appeal is dismissed. Anchuri Subbaraju Vs. Anchuri Sunitha 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 331 = 2015(4) ALD 614 = 2015(5) ALT 564.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Sec.13(ia) & (ib) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.142 - Divorce - Respondent/husband filed O.P before Family Court seeking annulment of marriage on ground of desertion - Appellant/wife suffering from mental illness and living with her parents - Complaint of dowry harassment filed against respondent was closed - Appellant/wife contends that respondent harassed her and dropped her at her parents house - Considering documentary evidence brought on record by both parties and after hearing their respective counsel allowed O.P on ground that marriage between parties is irretrievably broken down and respondent directed to pay amounts towards maintenance of appellant and towards maintenance and marriage of their daughter - Appellant contends that Supreme Court alone has exclusive power to declare a marriage between parties as irretrievably broken down in exercise of power under Art.142 of Constitution - Court below is not empowered to grant decree of divorce on ground that marriage between parties irretrievably broken down - In this case, respondent has not established ground of desertion and cruelty as there is allegation that respondent contracted plural marriages and said fact was proved in preliminary enquiry conducted by disciplinary authority against respondent - Observations of Court below that complaint lodged by appellant against respondent was closed as false, cannot be a ground to hold that there was cruelty on part of appellant - Filing of criminal cases per se cannot be treated as an important ground for granting divorce since same does not amount to cruelty - Impugned order of O.P stands dismissed - CMA,allowed. M.Pushpalatha Vs. M.Venkateswarlu 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 52.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Secs.13 (1) (ia) and (ib) - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.498-A - "Willful desertion" - "Cruelty" - Petitioner/husband filed OP seeking dissolution of marriage on ground of willful desertion and cruelty - Family Court dismissed petition holding that petitioner failed to prove that respondent wife deserted him without any reasonable cause or ill treated him - Appellant/husband contends that from very beginning, respondent demanded separate residece and when petitioner could not take a separate residence near to house of her parents, she started going to parents house without informing him - Respondent/wife remained in her parent's house for about one year and then join petitioner and gave birth to female child in 1993 and finally left house of petitioner in 1995 and lodged false complaint against him u/Sec.498-A - Respondent contends that since never deserted petitioner and that it is petitioner who had ill-treated respondent and beat her and driven her out of his house and that ingredients of Sec.13(1) (ib) of Hindu Marriage Act are not proved since there is no willful desertion and that there is no evidence to show that respondent had ill-treated petitioner - Admittedly petitioner and respondent have been residing separately and whole trouble started when respondent lodged a complaint a police u/Sec.498-A IPC and petitioner was arrested and he was remanded to judicial custody - Conduct of parties has to be taken into consideration to know intention of parties - Some times even subsequent conduct also speaks about intention of parties - In this case, on critical analysis of evidence on record though demand of separate residence of respondent/ wife may not amount to treating petitioner with cruelty and allegation that respondent treated petitioner with cruelty is not proved, but since allegation of petitioner that respondent deserted him without any reasonable cause is proved petitioner is entitled for decree as prayed for - Impugned order of Court below, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Methuku Suresh @ Suresh Vs. Methuku Anuradha, 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 170 = 2011(3) ALD 154 = 2011(2) ALT 389 = AIR 2011 (NOC) 213 (AP).

—Sec.13(1)(ia)(ib) and (ii) and 5 – "Divorce" - Petitioner/husband filed OP against his wife/respondent for divorce on ground that after giving birth to four children out of their wedlock and after birth of 4th child respondent/wife got herself converted into Christianity – Though appellant/petitioner husband asked respondent to come back to fold of Hinduism, she was adamant and also deserted him and has resorted to various acts of cruelty and subjected him to mental agony – Trail court dismissed OP - Hence present appeal - A valid Hindu Marriage can take place only between a man and a woman professing that religion, as on date of marriage and that first sentence in Sec.5 of Act made this aspects clear - It reads, " a marriage may be solemnized between two Hindus, if the following conditions are fulfilled namely ……"

In this case it is clear that respondent/wife got herself converted into Christianity after her marriage with appellant – Act recognizes conversion of spouse into another religion is a valid ground for other to seek divorce - In this case it is not in dispute that respondent/wife left company of appellant, husband soon after 4th child born and other developments in this case constitute a clear case of desertion as well as cruelty - Order and decree passed by Tail Court, set aside - CMA allowed. Madanam Seetha Raulu Vs. Madanam Vimala 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 310 = 2014(3) ALD 468 = 2014(5) ALT 461 = AIR 2014 (NOC) 412 (AP).

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Secs.13(1)(ia), (ib) & 10 - "Desertion" and "cruelty" - Respondent/husband filed O.P seeking divorce on ground of cruelty and desertion contending that petitioner/wife not only deserted him for continuous period of three years but also subjected him to cruelty and torture and that she had no intention to return to matrimonial home, but managed to stay in house of petitioner with assistance and pressure from Police - Petitioner contends that respondent and his parents started harassing to bring more money from her parents and that respondent's parents refused to provide food to petitioner and even on date of filing of O.P, petitioner was with respondent - Basing on evidence of parties, both oral and documentary, trial Court allowed O.P filed by respondent/husband - ESSENTIAL INGREDIENTS OF OFFENCE OF DESERTION - STATED, (i) factum of separation (ii) intention to bring cohabitation permanently to an end-animus deserendi (iii) element of permanence which is a prime condition requires that both these essential ingredients should continue during entire statutory period of two years immediately preceding presentation of petitioner for divorce - As prescribed in law, desertion means living separately for a period not less than two years preceding date of filing of O.P - Even according to legal position laid down in cases cited in this matter, mere living apart by parties is not desertion - Desertion indicates a state of mind in which a party who is guilty of act must indicate either in express words or by conduct to put an end to relationship - But in instant case, petitioner and husband lived together for considerable period of time and even now they are willing to live together - In this case, there are instances when petitioner and respondent lived together as his clear from evidence both oral and documentary, and at that juncture there is not even an inclination of animus deserendi on part of wife to permanently cease cohabitation and marital relation and these facts and circumstances would also probablize there is no love lost between spouses - Ingredients of mental cruelty as stated above are not at all attracted to grant divorce on ground of cruelty on part of petitioner/wife - Respondent/husband failed to establish grounds of "cruelty" alleged to have been meted out by his wife - Findings recorded by trial Court - Not justified - Impugned order, set aside - CMA, allowed. Adigarla Venkata Lakshmi Vs. Adigarla Venkata Satya Sreenivasulu 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 122.

—Secs.13(1)(i-a) & (i-b) and Rule 8 - Appeal by wife against grant of divorce by Family Court sought by husband on grounds of adultery and cruelty - Alleged adulterer not made a co-respondent by husband amounts to infraction of Rule 8 of the Rules framed under Act - On merits too, there is absolutely no tenable ground to conclude that wife was living in adultery and consequently causing mental cruelty to husband - Held, impugned order passed by Court below is unsustainable - Order set aside - Appeal, allowed. Radhika @ M.Lavanya Vs. M.Lokender 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 215 = 2014(5) ALD 340 = 2014(4) ALT 627.

—Sec.13(1)(ia) & (i-b) – Cruelty and Desertion, grounds for – Lower Court is unjustified in granting a decree of divorce on mere ground that appellant (wife) filed a criminal case against respondent (husband) under Sec.498-A IPC and a maintenance case u/Sec.125 Cr.P.C - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, Sec.13(1)(i-b) – Granting of divorce on ground of cruelty basing on interested evidence rather than on disinterested evidence of respondent (husband) – Contrary to well established principles of law - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, Sec.13(1)(i-b)- Grounds of desertion – Husband's contention that from day on there was no cordiality between him and his wife and he was not allowed to see his child was disproved in face of photos to contrary and constant communication and correspondence between them for more than one year – Decree and decretal order set aside. Katada Baby @ Kollati Baby Vs. Katadi Sri Venkata Satya Raja Sekhar 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 156 = 2014(4) ALD 531 = 2014(4) ALT 708.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Sec.13-B - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.142 - "Divorce by mutual consent" - On account of differences between appellant/husband and respondent/wife, they took decision to obtain a decree of mutual divorce - Joint petition filed for divorce filed u/Sec.13-B - District Judge dismissed joint petition on account of withdrawal of consent by respondent/wife - Single Judge of High Court while dismissing Appeal observed that appellant would be free to file a petition of divorce in accordance with law which would be decided on its own merits - Supreme Court can in exercise of its extraordinary powers under Art.142 of Constitution, convert a proceeding u/Sec.13 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, into one u/Sec.13-B and pass decree for mutual divorce without waiting for statutory period of six months, none of other Courts can exercise such powers - Other Courts are not competent to pass a decree for mutual divorce if one of consenting parties withdraws his/her consent before decree is passed - In this case respondent wife made it very clear that she will not live with petitioner, but, on other hands he is also not agreeable to a mutual divorce - Parties are living separately for more than seven years - As part of agreement between parties, appellant transferred valuable property rights in favour of respondent and it was after registration she withdrew her consent for divorce - She still continues to enjoy property and insists on living separately from husband - Stand of respondent-wife that she wants to live separately from her husband but is not agreeable to mutual divorce is not acceptable - Impugned judgment and order of High Court, set aside - Petition for grant of mutual divorce u/Sec.13-B of Act, accepted - Appeal, allowed. Anil Kumar Jain Vs. Maya Jain 2010(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 45.

—Sec.13(b) - GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, Sec.7 (1) (a) - Petitioner and respondent are wife and husband, filed O.P in Family Court at Visakhapatnam seeking divorce on mutual consent - Wife along with child has been staying at Hyderabad - Family Court passed ex parte order in O.P filed by husband under Guardians and Wards Act to appoint him as guardian of minor son - High Court allowed CMA filed by wife and remanded matter to Family Court Visakhapatnam - Wife filed present Application seeking transfer of O.P from file of Family Court Visakhapatnam to Family Court Hyderabad - In fact O.P filed by respondent/husband is pending adjudication - Minor boy is residing with petitioner at Hyderabad and that petitioner is working at Hyderabad and it is very difficult for her to get leave so as to attend Court at Visakhapatnam

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

- Further, Supreme Court held that it is wife's convenience that must be looked at for trial of matrimonial proceedings - O.P filed by husband is transferred to Family Court, Hyderabad - Transfer CMP, allowed. Anmika Vs. Annamneedi Raja Sekhar 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 187.

——Sec.13-B – FAMILY COURTS ACT - This revision has been preferred by the 2ND petitioner in Family Court O.P.No.1547 of 2014, Family Court, - Sole respondent herein is the 1st petitioner in above O.P - Petitioner herein is husband and respondent is his wife - Both of them have filed aforesaid O.P.No.1547 of 2014 under Section 13-B of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, for dissolution of their marriage performed on 22.08.2010 by a decree of divorce by mutual consent - Petition was returned as not maintainable - Learned Family Court Judge, in her communication dated 28.04.2015 addressed to Registry has set out that the O.P. was moved on 08.10.2014 and it was posted to 09.04.2015 for appearance of both parties after six months and that since the 1st petitioner was present and 2nd petitioner was not present, matter was posted to 22.04.2015 and that on 22.04.2015, counsel for 2nd petitioner filed a chief affidavit of PW.2, which was notarized in Australia and on that day neither GPA Holder of 2nd petitioner nor the 2nd petitioner was present and hence, same is returned - Held, therefore, Family Courts are justified in seeking assistance of any practicing lawyer to provide necessary skype facility in any particular case - For that purpose, parties can be permitted to be represented by a legal practitioner, who can bring a mobile device. By using skype technology, parties who are staying abroad can not only be identified by Family Court, but also enquired about free will and consent of such party - This will enable the litigation costs to be reduced greatly and will also save precious time of Court - Further, other party available in Court can also help Court in not only identifying other party, but would be able to ascertain the required information - Accordingly, I direct Family Court to entertain I.A. as it is maintainable and permit GPA of 2nd petitioner in O.P. to represent and depose on behalf of 2nd petitioner in O.P. and Family Court shall also direct such GPA or any legal practitioner chosen by him to make available the skype facility for Court to interact with 2nd petitioner, who is staying at Melbourne, Australia and record consent of 2nd petitioner and proceed with matter thereafter as expeditiously as is possible - Accordingly, civil revision petition is allowed. Dasam Vijay Rama Rao Vs. M.Sai Sri 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 413 = 2015(4) ALD 757 = 2015(5) ALT 150 = AIR 2015 Hyd. 191.

—Sec.13(1)(ib) - A.P. HIGH COURT RULES TO REGULATE PROCEEDINGS UNDER HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, Rule 6(1) (i) - "Desertion" - Respondent/husband filed O.P seeking divorce with his wife on ground of desertion, contenting that wife demands unquestioned freedom and that marriage between respondent and petitioner had broken down irretrievably since both are living separately and are not even in talking terms - Petitioner/ wife denied all allegations and that respondent having bad habits and a man of suspicious nature and right from date of marriage she had treated respondent with love and affection; but he changed his attitude and neglected her as well as children and causing mental agony and she is only maintaining her two sons and that he has been insisting to sell away her property and give sale proceeds - In this case, respondent filed O.P seeking divorce on ground of 'desertion' alone - DESERTION - Meaning of - Explained - Desertion of respondent by other party to marriage without reasonable cause and without consent or against wish of such party and includes wilful neglect of petitioner by other party to marriage - Respondent has to establish that his wife has deserted him without any reasonable cause or without his consent and that such desertion by wife is wilful and with a view to neglect to avoid marital life for respondent - In this case, there is no averment at all as to when wife deserted him and what was reason for such a desertion - Pleading and evidence of respondent/husband are not specific with regard to desertion - Evidence of other witnesses goes to show that what they have stated is out side ambit of pleadings and evidence of respondent- Lower Court erroneously relied upon evidence of P.Ws.2 to 4 and recorded in judgment stating that case of respondent/husband as seen from evidence and also from pleadings that petitioner/wife developed illicit intimacy with another person, which lead them to live separately - But there is no such averment about wife developing illicit intimacy with another person - Under Rules framed by High Court specific action of adultery and occasion when and place where such acts were committed together with name and address of person with whom such adultery was committed shall be contained in petition - Therefore, Court below ought not to have allowed P.Ws. 2to 4 to speak about adulterous life of wife as so-called adulterer is not at all made a party and no particulars have been furnished in evidence - No such ground of irretrievable break down of marriage is provided by legislature for granting a decree of divorce, but Court cannot add such a ground to Sec.13 of Act as that could be amending Act, which is a function of Legislature - Therefore, only ground taken by respondent/husband that marriage has been broken down irretrievably cannot be considered at all for grant of divorce - Judgment and decree of lower Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. M.R.Thulasi Kumari Vs. K. Krishnan 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 412.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Secs.15 and 28 – CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.XLIII Rule 1(d) – LIMITATION ACT, Art.127 - Wife preferred appeal under Sec.28 of Hindu Marriage Act and under Order XLIII Rule 1(d) of Code of Civil Procedure, impugning order dated 19.07.2004 dismissing her application filed under Order 9 Rule 13 CPC in I.A.No.928 of 2003, to set aside ex-parte divorce decree dated 24.04.2002 in H.M.O.P.No.86 of 2001 on file of Senior Civil Judge, obtained by her husband - Held, despite re-marriage by the act of a party who obtained decree of divorce or annulment of marriage, other party's right and remedy to seek for setting aside exparte decree or to file appeal against decree as per statutory provisions no way be taken away - Once it is shown that she has no knowledge of proceedings and not served with summons in filing application within one month from date of knowledge as per Article

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

127 of the Limitation Act, which says substitute service is no proper service so to construe and even otherwise filed application to condone delay as a caution and delay is once condoned in I.A.No.745 of 2003 apart from the exparte decree set aside petition in I.A.No.928 of 2003 is entertained for the same not a bar from remedy of appeal also provided under Sec.28 of the HM Act r/w, Or.XLI - Order XLI CPC, for Order IX Rule 13 CPC is a parallel and other efficacious remedy to avail without going for appeal, to file application and seek to set aside the exparte decree, apart from such rejection prone to miscellaneous appeal remedy under Order XLIII Rule 1(d) and Rule 2 and Order XLI CPC r/w. Section 28 of the HM Act. It is also for what is the bar provided under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC is maintainability of an application under Order IX Rule 13 CPC where before maintaining such application if invoked already the doors of appellate Court by appeal remedy also provided - In the result, the appeal is allowed with no costs and the impugned order of the lower Court dated 19.07.2004 in I.A.No.928 of 2003 is set aside and consequently the said application is allowed by setting aside the exparte decree of divorce dated 24.04.2002 by restoring the HMOP No.86 of 2001 to the file of the Senior Civil Judge, to decide the same preferably within six months and on merits by receiving counter of the respondent-wife therein and by recording the evidence afresh of both sides. Maganti Krishna Durga Vs. Maganti Anil Kumar 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 444 = 2015(5) ALD 375 = 2015(5) ALT 346.

——Sec.16 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, 1872 Sec.68 - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, Sec.3 - Trial Court framed issues based on contentions of both the parties - Trial Court agreed with defendants and held that suit schedule properties are self-acquired properties of late Anandi Bai - Trial Court ultimately held that plaintiffs are not entitled for partition and accordingly dismissed suit.

Appeal is preferred by plaintiffs aggrieved by judgment of Trial Court.

Held, second marriage between first plaintiff and Vasudeva Rao was solemnized long prior to HM Act, 1955 and hence, said Act had no application to parties - Appellants/plaintiffs submitted that even provisions of provincial enactment i.e. Madras Hindu (Bigamy Prevention and Divorce) Act,1949 which introduced strict monogamy among Hindus even prior to HM Act, 1955, have no application to parties because though marriage took place during existence of Madras Act, 1949 but the parties belong to Telangana area in Hyderabad State which is a Part-B State and their marriage took place at Hyderabad and hence provisions of Madras Hindu (Bigamy Prevention and Divorce) Act, 1949 have no application to them.

Cardinal principle of Hindu law is that there is a marked distinction as to presumption in case of acquisitions in names of male members and female members of the joint family - Acquisitions in name of male member of a joint family is concerned, there is a presumption that if joint family had sufficient ancestral nucleus, properties standing or acquired in name of male members are joint family properties unless presumption is rebutted by showing properties are separate properties of a particular member or members in whose names properties stand or were acquired - However, there is no presumption in case of properties standing in name of female members - In such case, it is for party who claims properties as joint family properties to specifically plead particulars and details in pleadings and establish same by adducing necessary evidence - In absence of which, there is no need for detailed scrutiny as to how female members acquired property in question - If plaintiffs adduced no evidence, no further question arises and female member in whose name property stands must be held to be beneficial owner of property in question.

Plea of plaintiffs was that Khande Rao being Kartha of joint family advanced joint family funds, his earnings and also the earnings of his two sons and acquired suit properties covered by Exs-B2 but in name of his wife-Ambu Bai - However, except taking such a plea plaintiffs have not adduced any proof positive showing that joint family of Khande Rao and his sons had sufficient nucleus and details of income fetching properties and method and manner of advancing amounts from joint family nucleus by Khande Rao to acquire suit properties in name of Anandi Bai - What all established was that during relevant period Khande Rao was an Engineer and Anandi Bai was only house wife, but it could not be shown that two sons were employees by date of purchase of suit properties - So, there is no strong evidence from plaintiffs' side to establish that joint family nucleus comprising sufficient properties to advance funds to purchase suit properties - On other hand, contention of defendants is that father of Anandi Bai was a businessman and with gold, silver and cash presented by her parents as Stridhana, Anandi Bai purchased suit properties - As laid down in above principle, when plaintiffs failed to prove factum of flow of funds from joint nucleus to acquire suit properties by cogent evidence, there is no need to go deep into whether Anandi Bai had obtained Stridhana property and with same she purchased suit schedule properties - Trial Court was right in holding that suit schedule properties were the self-acquisitions of late Anandi Bai.

So, having regard to Section 68 of Evidence Act and Section 3 of Transfer of Property Act and above observation of Honourable Apex Court, it is clear that in proof of due execution of Will and its attestation, attesting witnesses shall clearly spell out that executant had either signed or put thumb impression in their presence and they in turn have attested in presence of executants - If they failed to state these crucial facts, it cannot be held that execution of Will was duly proved.

Thus, as rightly contended by Appellants/plaintiffs, these two witnesses have not deposed about crucial facts relating to attestation i.e., executant signing in their presence and thereafter their attesting Will in her presence - No such connotation can be given to their evidence and going by the law of execution and observation of Honourable Apex Court it can be said in instant case, defendants failed to prove due execution of Will and its attestation - So, for all above reasons, it can be held that the defendants on one hand failed to prove due execution of Will and on other, failed to dispel suspicious circumstances - Therefore, it is held Exs.B1-Will is not a genuine document and it will not bind plaintiffs.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

In result, this appeal is allowed and judgment and decree of Trial Court is set aside and a preliminary decree is passed in favour of plaintiffs, directing partition of Plaint-A schedule property into two equal shares and allot one such divided share to them with costs throughout. Sushila Bai Vasudev Rao Bodhanker (died per LRs) Vs. Govind Rao Bodhankar 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 90 = 2016(3) ALD 1.

—Sec.16 & 5(1) - Plaintiff, minor represented by mother, wife of D2 filed suit for partition against D1 step mother and D2 father contending that he is entitled for half share and that registered partition deed bewteen D1 and D2, is collusive and not binding on plaintiff - D3 and D4 contends that plaintiff, his mother and D2, father are in collusion and filed present suit to defeat rights of these defendants and that registered partition deed is bona fide transaction effected between co-owners and that suit properety is not ancestral property and that plaintiff not entitled to any partition - Trial Court decreed suit declaring that plaintiff is entitled to half share in properties - Contention that in pursuance of Sec.16 of Act, even though plaintiff is a legitimate son born to D2, he does not acquire any right to property, but acquires right to his parents, for which parent has a share - Appellants/ D3 and D4 contends that an illegitimate child cannot claim share in joint family, but such illegitimate child can only be entitled to share in self acquired properties of parents - When properties ceased to be joint family property and when property remains in hands of single person though it is a coparcenary property, it cannot be treated as separate property and in such a case, by virtue of Sec.16 (1) of Act, illegitimate children are entitled for a share on properties of father though not they have any right in ancestral property - As regards registered partition deed, trial Court recorded finding that it is not binding on D2 and plaintiff - There cannot be any partition of ancestral property between wife and husband - There can be a partition of property in lieu of maintainance of any pre-existing right that can be conferred on partition deed upon a wife - In this case no evidence to show that partition deed executed in pursuance of pre-existing right - A share was given to D1 who is first wife of D2 and therefore said partition deed is not binding on defendant - Judgment and decree of trial Court, confirmed - Appeal, dismissed. Vempati Anasuyamma Vs. Gouru Venkateswarloo, 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 307 = 2008(4) ALD 759 = 2008(5) ALT 104 = AIR 2008 AP 207.

—Sec.24 - Petitioner-husband filed O.P against 1st respondent, wife for dissolution of marriage - 1st respondent-wife and 2nd respondent minor son aged 8 years filed Application u/Sec.24 of Hindu Marriage Act for interim maintenance and litigation expenses pending disposal of O.P - Senior Civil Judge after enquiry granted interim maintenance to 1st respondent @ Rs.5000/- per month and to 2nd respondent son @ Rs.3000/- per month and also granted litigation expenses of Rs.10000/- - Revision petitioner working as Manager of SBH - Revision petitioner contends that wife working as Teacher in private school and getting salary of Rs.4000 to Rs.5000 per month which is sufficient for her to maintain her self and also to maintain 2nd respondent son, but petitioener did not adduce any evidence in proof of said fact and he also did not file his salary certificate to prove that his salary is not Rs.40000 as pleaded by respondents - If salary of petitioner is Rs.40000 per month and in view of fact that revision petitioner did not adduce any evidence in proof of 1st respondent-wife getting income and also in view of price rise in present days and also fact that 2nd respondent is school going boy and as such maintenance granted is not on higher side and granting litigation expenses of Rs.10000 is also reasonable - In view of judgment of Supreme Court that not only wife but minor children are also entitled for interim maintenance in an Application u/sec.24 of Act - Contention raised by revision petitioner/husband that minor son is not entitled for interim maintenance under Sec.24 of Act has no substance - Impugned order passed by lower Court - Justified - Revision petition, dismissed. Meka Prakash Vs. Smt Meka Deepa Rani 2012(1) Law Summary 196 = 2012(3) ALD 48 = 2012(3) ALT 16 = AIR 2012 AP 96.

—Secs.24 & 26 – Divorced wife filed Application against husband claiming maintenance for minor children – Senior Civil Judge allowed Application granting interim maintenance to children - Petitioner/divorced husband contends that Application claiming interim maintenance and educational expenses for minor children, Sec.24 is not applicable and even if Sec.26 of Act to be made applicable, wishes of children to be ascertained first and without ascertaining wishes of such minor children granting interim maintenance or educational expenses may not be just and proper - Sec.24 of Act no doubt talks of maintenance of wife during pendency of proceedings but this Section, cannot be read in isolation and cannot be given restricted meaning to hold that it is maintenance of wife alone and no one else – order of civil Judge granting interim maintenance to children - Justified – CRP, dismissed. Lanka Venkatapathi Rao Vs. Smt.Lanka Vijayasree 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 194 = 2009(1) ALD 737 = 2008(6) ALT 218.

—Sec.24 r/w Sec.151 CPC - Respondent/husband filed O.P seeking divorce on certain allegations - Petitioner/wife filed Application seeking interim maintenance of Rs.5,000/- p.m and legal expenses of Rs.10,000/-, contending that respondent/husband is an employee in University, earning Rs.8,000/- p.m and getting Rs.20,000/- per annum on landed property - Respondent/husband contends that petitioner/parents possessed landed properties worth corers of rupees - Trial Judge dismissed Application holding that there is no material to show that petitioner has no indenpendent source of income especially when parents possess substantial property and she is unable to maintain herself and meet legal expenses - Wife's own income vis-a-vis income of husband is sina qua non to justify claim and both ways it requires to be positively established by cogent, legal and acceptable material - Therefore as long as woman not owns or possesses property in her own right title or interest of whatsoever nature or has no income and as source thereof to maintain herself, Court can grant maintenance as well as expenses of proceedings - There is no valid legal and acceptable basis for Court below to reject claim of petitioner/wife for grant of interim maintenance and expenses of proceedings - I.A filed by wife, allowed, directing respondent to pay arrears of interim maintenance at Rs.2,500/- p.m and Rs.5,000/- towards legal expenses - C.R.P, allowed. Eada Aruna Vs. Eada Nagi Reddy 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 57.

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT:

—Sec.25(2) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.125 - Appellant, divorced wife awarded maintenance of Rs.1000/- per month and also Rs.400/- per month u/Sec.125 Cr.P.C - Husband filed Criminal M.P for cancellation of order of awards contending that wife constructed house and getting monthly rent of Rs.1500 and also getting income of Rs.5000 per month by running Beauty Parlour - Taking into consideration, evidence on record, trial Court concluded that wife was in an affluent condition and due to change of circumstances disclosing that wife was in a position to maintain herself, earlier order granting Rs.1000/- per month should not be continued and consequently cancellation of order of maintenance, ordered - Sec.25 of Act clearly provides for award of maintenance to either spouse only with reference to income and other property of applicant and respondent, conduct of parties and other circumstances of case, it may seem to Court to be just, and any such payment may be secured, with necessary, by a charge on immovable property - In this case, it is clear that subsequent to grant of monthly maintenance of Rs.1000/- by earlier order wife had come in to possession of such property as would enable her to derive independent and sufficient income from same for her own maintenance in ordinary and natural course of human events - Wife is not entitled to seek any reconsideration even on own merits of material on record - Appeal, dismissed. Polavarapu Sri Devi Vs. Polavarapu Gangaraju 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 258.

—Sec.27 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.494, 498-A and 304-B - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Sec.2 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Case registered against appellant and two other accused for alleged commission of offence under Sec.498-A r/w Sec.34 of IPC - Appellant/A1 filed Application stating that complainant not to be his legally wedded wife as she was already married and therefore Sec.498-A has no application to facts of case - High Court dismissed Application on ground that disputed questions of fact are involved - Appellant contends that in view of acquittal of co-accused persons, proceedings against appellant should not proceed -Concept of marriage to constitute relationship of 'husband' and 'wife' may require strict interpretation where claims for civil rights, right to property etc., may follow or flow and a liberal approach and different perception cannot be an anatheme when question of curbing a social evil is concerned - Wife is absolute owner of stridhan of property u/Sec.27 of Marriage Act - Property presented to husband and wife at or about time of marriage belongs to them jointly - DOWRY - Defined - Any property are valuable security given or "agreed to be given" either directly or indirectly by one party to marriage to other party to marriage "at or before or after the marriage" as a "consideration for marriage of the said parties" would become 'dowry' punishable under Dowry Act - Property or valuable security so as to constitute 'dowry' within meaning Dowry Act must, therefore, be given or demanded "as consideration of marriage" - Voluntary presents given at or before or after marriage to bride or bridegroom, as case may be, of a traditional nature, which are given not as a consideration for marriage but out of love, affection or regard, would not fall within mischief of expression 'dowry' made punishable under

HINDU MINORITY AND GUARDIANSHIP ACT,1956:

Dowry Act - IPC, Secs.304-B & 498-A - Absence of definition of 'husband' to specifically include such persons who contract marriages ostensibly and co-habitate with such woman, in purported exercise of his role and status as 'husband' is no ground to exclude them from purview of Sec.304-B or 498-A IPC, viewed in context of very object and aim of legislation introducing those provisions - Order of High Court in rejecting Application u/Sec.482 of Code holding that disputed question of fact are involved - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Koppisetti Subbharao @ Subramaniam Vs. State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 63.

—AND INDIA PENAL CODE, Secs.498-A & 494 - "Divorce" - Respondent/husband filed petition against petitioner/wife seeking divorce on grounds of desertion and cruelty - On appreciation of of oral and documentary evidence Court allowed petition by granting decree of divorce by dissolving marriage of petitioner and respondent - Appellant/wife contends that order of Court is erroneous and that there is no evidence on record to show that she is unfit for marital life and that she was suffering from mental disorder and on that ground alone respondent/husband had left her at her parents house and that he never tried to bring back appellant from her parents house and that mere filing of cases against husband by wife when she was harassed or when husband remarired another women, does not amount to cruelty - Admittedly in this case there is no medical evidence to substantiate allegation that appellant, wife is unfit for marital life - If at all appellant, wife had any health problem, respondent/husband ought to have taken her to competent doctor and got her examined - Merely because wife had some health problems that cannot be ground for granting divorce and that mere filing of criminal cases cannot be treated as treating husband as cruelty - Mere filing of criminal cases relating to matrimonial disputes cannot be treated as an act of cruelty by wife - While dealing with matrimonial cases, Family Court has to examine all aspects thoroughly and Court should examine as to which party is at fault and who is responsible for trouble and whether a party is justified in living separately - In this case, main contention of respondent/husband in seeking divorce appears to be excessive white discharge and his opinion that appellant, wife is unfit for sexual intercourse - Trial Court also failed to consider that there is no evidence to prove that it is appellant/wife who deserted respondent/husband - Impugned order of lower Court, unsustainable and is liable to be set aside - CMA, allowed. Goka Kameswari Vs.Goka Venkataramaiah, 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 312 = 2011(5) ALD 96 = 2011(5) ALT 181.

HINDU MINORITY AND GUARDIANSHIP ACT,1956:

—Secs.6 to 8 and 13 - GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT,1890, Sec.7 & 25 - Respondent's wife, daughter of appellant died after giving birth to son who is residing with appellant, maternal grandfather - Appellant filed Application u/Sec.7 of Guardians and Wards Act for appointing him as guardian and respondent filed Application u/Sec25 for custody of his son - District Judge allowed Application filed by appellant appointing him as guardian till minor attains age of 12 years, directing appellant to allow respondent/ father to meet minor son once in a month and dismissed Application filed by respondent/ father with liberty to file such Application after completion of age of 12 years by minor - High Court allowed Application filed by respondent/father and directed appellant to handover custody of child to respondent - It is true that under Act 1890, father is guardian of minor child until he is found unfit to be a guardian of minor - In deciding such question Supreme Court consistently held that welfare of minor child is paramount consideration and such a question cannot be decided merely on basis of rights of parties under law - Though father is natural guardian in respect of minor child, taking note of fact that welfare of minor to be of paramount consideration in as much respondent-father got married within a year after death of his first wife and also having a son to second marriage, residing in a rural village, working at distance of 90 kms and of fact that child is all along with appellant maternal grandfather and his family since birth and getting good education and hence District Judge is justified in appointing appellant as guardian of minor child - Order of High Court modified with certain conditions about visitation rights of father - Impugned order accordingly modified permitting appellant/maternal grand- father to continue custody of child till age of 12 years. Shyamrao Maroti Korwate Vs. Deepak Kisanrao Tekam 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 95.

HINDU SUCCESSION (ANDHRA PRADESH AMENDMENT) ACT, 1986:

—Sec.13 - GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, Sec.17 - Custody of 10 years old male child - It is trite that while determining question as to which parent care and control of child should be committed, first and paramount consideration is welfare and interest of child and not rights of parents under statute - It is no doubt true that father is presumed by statutes to be better suited to look after welfare of child, being normally working member and head of family, yet in each case, Court has to see primarily to welfare of child in determining question of his or her custody - Better financial resources of either of parents or their love for child may be one of relevant considerations but cannot be sole determining factor for custody of child - In this case child's interest and welfare will be best served if continues to be in custody of father - However it will be open to parties to move Court for modification of order or for seeking any direction regarding custody and well being of child, if there is any change in circumstances - Appeal, dismissed. Mausami Moitra Gangulu Vs. Jayant Gangulu 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 57.

HINDU SUCCESSION (ANDHRA PRADESH AMENDMENT) ACT, 1986:

—Sec.29-A - HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT, 1956, Sec.12, proviso (b) - Respondent is natural daughter of appellant was given adoption on 4-2-1985 and Court held that adoption is valid - Respondent as coparcener filed suit for partition of family properties against natural father - Trial Court dismissed suit holding that a woman is not coparcenar on date when respondent P.W.1 was given in adoption and therefore she cannot claim any right in ancestral properties of her natural father with other coparcenars and also held that from date of adoption for all purposes she will be daughter in adoptive family as she was not coparcenar in natural family on date of adoption and she is not entitled for partition in properties of her natural family - Appellate Court reversed finding arrived at by trial Court holding that since respondent by virtue of Sec.12, proviso (b) of Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act, 1956, shall not be divested of property of natural family, she can claim partition of properties of natural family - In instant case, respondent is not a coparcenar on date of adoption and if that is so it cannot be said that any right is vested in her as a coparcenar on said right - When once she has no right on crucial date to claim partition in capacity of coparcenar it cannot be said that she cannot be divested of right to claim partition in properties of natural family after she was given in adoption of adoptive family - After adoption for all purposes she is considered to be daughter having all rights in adoptive family and she cannot claim any right which was not vested in her on date of adoption - First appellate Court is in manifest error in holding that respondent can exercise her right as coparcenar after she was given in adoption to adoptive family - Decree and judgment passed by first appellate Court liable to be set aside - Second appeal, allowed. Avula Jayarami Reddy Vs. Yerrabothula Nagarathnamma 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 297 = 2012(1) ALD 292 = 2012(1) ALT 356.

HINDU SUCCESSION (ANDHRA PRADESH AMENDMENT) ACT, 1986:

--Sec.29(A) - HINDU ADOPTION AND MAINTENANCE ACT, 1956: —Sec.12 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.7, Rule 11 and Or.43 CPC, r/w Sec.104 - Appellant/plaintiff filed suit for partition of plaint schedule property claiming 1/6th share in it and also for future mesne profits and costs contending that she is adopted daughter of defendants/ respondents 1 & 2 and she is a coparcener of joint Hindu Family consisting of herself and defendants 1 to 6 by virtue of Sec.29-A of Hindu Succession Act and that she is in joint possession of plaint schedule property which belongs to joint family and that she is entitled to 1/6th share of suit schedule property, Trial Court did not number suit and at S.R stage returned plaint by docket order holding that only a daughter by birth would become a coparcener in view of language contained in Sec.29(A) of Hindu Succession Act, and as plaintiff is claiming to be adopted daughter she cannot become a coparcener and that Sec.12 of Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act cannot help appellant/plaintiff - In this case, true effect of order passed by trial Court has to be looked into (and not nomenclature used by it-the word “plaint returned” or “plaint rejected” or not conclusive) if effect of order of trial court is in fact, a “rejection” of plaint (although order of trial Court says it is “returned”) only, an appeal u/Sec.96 CPC lies and not CRP u/Sec.115 CPC - On perusal of order of trial Court, it is clear that although said order states that plaint is “returned” since trial Court did not state (i) that it is returned on ground of want of jurisdiction (either territorial or pecuniary or with regard to subject matter), or (ii) in which Court suit should have been instituted, or (iii) that some other Court/Forum is proper Court/Forum, it has to be held that it has actually “rejected” plaint - Appellant/plaintiff has rightly filed appeal u/Sec.96 CPC and contention of respondents 3 to 6 that appeal is not maintainable u/Sec.96 CPC and appellant/plaintiff ought to have filed C.R.P u/Sec.115 CPC, is rejected - Rejection of plaint can only be made in accordance with Or.7, Rule 11 CPC - It is not finding of trial Court that any one of clauses mentioned in Or.7, Rule 11 CPC, was attracted warranting rejection of plaint - Therefore trial Court erred in returning plaint/rejecting it at threshold even without numbering suit and also erred in going into tenability of plaintiff's claim for partition as adopted daughter at stage of numbering suit and rejecting plaint at said stage on ground that an adopted daughter cannot invoke Sec.29 A of Hindu Succession Act - Trial Court ought to have numbered suit, issue notice to respondents - Matter remitted back to trial Court and decide suit itself on merits - Appeal, allowed. Vallapureddy Geeta Bhavani Vs. Nallu Narasimha Reddy 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 3.

HINDU SUCCESSION (AMENDMENT) ACT 2005

—and CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.XXXIX, RULE 4 - u/Sec.29A added by Amendment, daughter shall by birth become a coparcener in her own right in a joint Hindu family governed by Mitakshara law, and shall have the same rights and be subject to the same liabilities as if she would have been a son - In event of partition, she shall be allotted same share as that of son, and if she is dead at time of partition, her children will be allotted her share - Hindu Succession (Andhra Pradesh Amendment) Act, 1986 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, O.XXXIX, RULE 4 - It is clear that in Andhra Pradesh, there is a State Amendment under Chapter-II A to Hindu Succession Act, 1956 and it came into force w.e.f. 05.09.1985 after the State Legislation has received the approval of President - Therefore, argument of learned Counsel for defendant No.8 that as per the proviso to sub-section (1) of Sec.6 of the Hindu Succession (Amendment) Act, 2005, disposition or alienation including any partition made before 20th day of December, 2004 shall not affect, has to be negative in view of the fact that no partition has taken place even till now and coparceners are not made parties to Exs. A.1 (Agreement of Sale) and A.2 (G.P.A) - Hindu Succession Act, 1956 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, O.XXXIX RULE 4 - Certainly defendant No.8, who is a agreement of sale-cum-GPA holder, will alienate Ac.11.38gts and also change the nature of property and if it is allowed to happen, interest of plaintiffs and defendants 5 and 6 as well as innocent purchasers will be jeopardised - Therefore, order of trial court to vacate status quo order, dated. 28.01.2014, passed in I.A. No. 113 of 2014, is to be set aside - In the result, the Civil Miscellaneous Appeal is allowed. C.Anitha Vs. Narne Constructions Pvt., Ltd. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 234.

HINDU SUCCESSION (AMENDMENT) ACT 2005

-—is prospective in nature – Rights under the amendment are applicable to living daughters of living coparceners as on 9th September, 2005 irrespective of when such daughters are born - Disposition or alienation including partitions which may have taken place before 20th December, 2004 as per law applicable prior to the said date will remain unaffected - Any transaction or partition effected thereafter will be governed by the Explanation. Prakash Vs. Phulavati 2015(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 53 = 2015(6) ALD 180 (SC) = 2015 AIR SCW 6160.

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

—"Partition" - Plaintiff filed suit for relief of partition and allotment of one-fourth share in suit property - Suit contested by first defendant/appellant with plea of ouster - Trial Court decreed suit - In this case, relationship of parties not disputed - 1st defendant and his brother one B purchased an extent of 2472 sq. yards in year 1955 and they are entitled to equal shares of property - No relief is claimed by plaintiff vis-a-vis share held by first defendant, her claim is only in relation to share of B - 1st defendant taken plea to claim share in property left by her brother B stood ousted in view of, fact that she had been given gold and silver held by her mother - In this case, neither value nor quantity of gold jewellary much less point of time at which it was given were suggested and that there was not even a suggestion that so-called giving of gold silver ornaments was in lieu of share of plaintiff or that she has agreed for that course of action - Defence offered by defendant/appellant is not acceptable and claim of plaintiff must be accepted - In written statement as well as in course of evidence, it was mentioned that an extent of about 400 sq. yards was effected in widening of road and if that is so, it needs to be taken into account while determining property that is available for partition and that would be possible only in final decree proceedings - Trial Court not correct when mentioned extent of share of plaintiff in preliminary itself - Therefore preliminary decree needs to be modified to that extent - Appeal, dismissed with a slight modification in preliminary decree to extent that area that is available for partition and extent of share of plaintiff shall be determined in final decree proceedings. G.V.Deena Dayal Vs. A.Bhagirathgi 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 172 = 2013(4) ALD 650 = 2013(4) ALT 683.

—-Will - Proof of - Executant of the Will was a paralytic patient at the time of execution of Will - Defendants not filed medical reports relating to condition of late executants during entire period of his illness - DW3 stated that DW1 had read over contents of Will to executants before he obtained his thumb impression on it but according to DW4 and DW2 the executants of the Will was fully conscious and was able to read the newspapers also - Also evidence of DW1 contradicts the evidence of DW3 - DW1, a scribe was brought to write Will from a different village, 5 km away from the village of executants where enough document writers would be present - DW2 was taking more than active interest in proceedings in suit also suggests that he was made to attest the Will by DW4 who was one of main beneficiaries under Will - Held, evidence of DW2 is interested testimony biased in favour of defendants and he is not a trustworthy witness - Trial court's finding that the defendants failed to prove that the late executants of the Will was of a sound mind at the time of its execution was correct - Civil Procedure Code, Order 1 Rule 9 - Will - Non-joinder of parties - Plaintiff had no knowledge about beneficiary under the Will since it was suppressed ten years after filing of suit - No plea was raised in written statement about non-joinder of that person by the defendants and no issue was got framed by them on point of non-joinder - Defendants cannot raise the said plea for the first time in appeal since they cannot be allowed to take advantage of their own wrong in not disclosing about that person being a beneficiary under the Will to the plaintiff either in their reply legal notice or in the written statement - Held, the appellants cannot invoke Order 1 Rule 9 of CPC and contend that suit is liable to be dismissed on the ground of non-joinder of said party - Hindu Succession Act, 1956 - Gift Deed - Allegedly executed on 15-01-1982 was not sent to plaintiff along with written statement and it was also not filed in suit - No mention of settlement deed in reply notice by defendants - Neither original nor certified copy of it was filed by defendants - Only a photocopy of it was filed - Also, no evidence as to soundness of health of executants of said deed -Attestors of the deed have not been examined and no explanation given for it - Held, the execution of Gift Deed by the late executants cannot be accepted - Trial Court Judgment upheld and Appeal Dismissed. Ravi Raja Babaiah Vs. Vemulapalli Rajeswari Devi 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 444 = 2014(5) ALD 642 = 2014(5) ALT 8.

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

—Sections 4, 6 (before 2005 amendment) and 8 –Suit for partition filed by son against his father and father's 3 brothers in respect of grandfather's property after the death of grandfather but during life time of father, claiming 1/8 share in co-parcenary property – Suit held not maintainable as grandmother, who is class I heir of grandfather was alive at the time of death of grandfather – In such situation as per proviso to section 6, father's share in co-parcenary property devolves as per section 8 and not Rule of survivorship. Uttam Vs. Subhag Singh 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 67 = AIR 2016 SC 1169 = 2016(4) SCC 68 = 2016(3) ALD 152 (SC).

—Secs.6 as amended by Act,39 of 2005, Secs.6(3) & 6(5) - Plaintiff/respondent son of late N.P., filed suit for partition against 1st defendant mother and sisters, defendants 2 to 6 - Plaintiff and defendant succeed to estate of NP and they are entitled to plaint A and B schedule properties and that NP has got half share in schedule properties and same has to be devided between plaintiffs and defendants - Hence the suit - After considering evidence on record trial Court decreed suit of plaintiff with regard to A schedule properties except item no.5 and suit with regard other property was dismissed - Aggrieved by said judgment present Appeal filed - Appellants contend that in view of amendment to Sec.6 of Succession Act,1956 by Act, 39 of 2005 daughters are also copercenars and they are entitled for equal shares since no final decree for partition or partition of properties was effected after death of N.P. and that benefit of Act should be given to appellants - Plaintiff contends that since NP died in year 1975 his succession has opened and devolution of his share by virtue of notional partition has already been decided and consequently late NP along with plaintiff will be entitled to two equal shares and therefore contention of appellants not correct - DEVOLUTION OF INTEREST IN COPARCENARY PROPERTY - According to appellants u/sec.6(5) of Act, only exception is to a partition which has been effected before 20-12-2004 under deed of partition which was duly registered and also a partition

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

finally affected by a decree of Court and that provisions u/Sec.6(3) of Act where under it was held for determination of share of Hindu father who dies after commencement of Act, notional partition is taken into consideration and therefore, theory of notional partition cannot be accepted and even if NP died in year 1975 still Benefit of Act 39 of 2005 has to be extended - If a Hindu dies prior to Act 39 of 2005, devolution can only by theory of notional partition and not otherwise - In this case, trial Court has not properly considered factum of possession - It is not case of plaintiff that he has been in possession of property - In fact suit itself was filed for possession and therefore merely because for some years name of late NP was considered in Revenue records, it cannot be said that settlement deed executed by NP is not true or not acted upon - Appeal, allowed in part. Bashyam Anjamma Vs. Narra Satyanarayana 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 88 = 2013(5) ALD 788 = 2013(4) ALT 445.

—Sec.6 - Plaintiffs, who are partly aggrieved of preliminary decree in so far as it related to the allotment of smaller extents of shares in plaint 'A' and 'B' schedule properties, had preferred this appeal against said preliminary decree and the judgment dated 30.06.2006 of learned V Additional District Judge (Judge, Fast Track Court), passed in O.S.No.140 of 2003 - Held, as held by Hon'ble Supreme Court, declaration in Section 6 that daughter of coparcener shall have same rights and liabilities in coparcenary property/ancestral property as she would have been a son is unambiguous and unequivocal and thus, on and from September 9, 2005, daughter is entitled to a share in ancestral property and is a coparcener as if she had been a son - Therefore, findings of trial Court in instant suit that son/the 1 st defendant is entitled to 5/8 th share and that daughters i.e., plaintiffs 2 and 3 are entitled to 1/8 th share each along with the 1 st plaintiff, mother, are not correct as the trial court had failed to take note of amended new provision of Section 6 of the Act - 1 st plaintiff who is wife of Bhupathi Reddy is entitled to 1/16 th share in plaint 'A' and 'B' schedule properties and that the plaintiffs 2 and 3, who are the daughters and the 1 st defendant, who is the Son, of Bhupathi Reddy are entitled to 1/4 th + 1/16 th share each (5/16 th share each) in plaint 'A' and 'B' schedule properties - As a sequel, it must be held that the preliminary decree granted by the trial Court is to be modified accordingly in respect of shares of the plaintiffs and 1 st defendant - In result, appeal is allowed in part and the preliminary decree passed by the trial Court insofar as it related to determination of shares of the sharers is set aside by holding that plaintiffs 2 and 3 and the 1 st defendant are entitled to a 5/16 th share each and that the 1 st plaintiff is entitled to a 1/16 th share in both the plaint 'A' and 'B' schedule properties. M.Sujutha Vs. M.Surender Reddy 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 213

—Sec.6 and 2005 Amendment Act - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.20, Rul 18 and Sec.97 - "Coparcanery property" - Rights of daughter - From 9-9-2005 new Sec.6 provides for parity of rights in coparcenary property among male and female members of joint Hindu Family - According to new section daughter of a coparcener becomes a coparcenery by birth in her own rights and liabilities in same manner as son - Thus daughter is entitled to a share in ancestral property and is a coparcener as if she had been a son - Partition of a joint Hindu Family can be effected by a registered instrument of partition and by decree of Court - In present case admittedly, partition has not been effected before 20-12-2004 either by registered instrument of partition or by decree of Court - Only stage that has reached in suit for partition filed by 1st respondent is determination of shares vide preliminary decree dated 19-3-1999 which came to be amended on 27-9-2003 - A preliminary decree determines rights and interest of parties - Suit for partition is not disposed of by passing of preliminary decree - It is only by final decree that immovable property of joint Hindu Family is partitioned by meets and bounds and after passing of preliminary decree suit continues until final decree is passed - A suit for partition continues after passing of preliminary decree and proceedings in suit get extinguished only on passing of final decree and rights of parties in a partition should be settled once for all in suit alone and not in other proceedings - Judgment of High Court, set aside and order of trial Court, restored - Appeal,allowed. Ganduri Koteshwaramma Vs. Chakiri Yanadi 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 148 = 2012(2) ALD 50(SC) = 2011 AIR SCW 6163 = AIR 2012 SC 169.

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

—Secs.6 & 8 - Deceased, S.V got properties through partition of joint family as well as through settlement from 1st wife of his father - 1st appellant is wife, 2nd appellant and 2nd respondents are daughters and 1st respondent is mother of S.V - Respondents 1 & 2 mother and daughter of S.V. filed suit for partition and separate possession of suit property contending that 1st appellant wife of S.V. is trying to alienate property on assumption that she is absolute owner and that by operation of law property has devolved upon all Class - I heirs - Suit resisted by appellant contending that suit property was self acquisition of S.V. and same is not available for partition - Trial Court dismissed suit - District Judge allowed appeal filed by respondents 1 & 2 by taking view that on death of S.V property has devolved by succession on all his Class-I heirs - Appellants contend that suit properties are self acquisition in hands of S.V. and that trial Court has taken correct view of matter and lower appellate Court has reversed judgment on wrong assumption of fact - Respondents 1 & 2 contend that though property may have partaken character of self-acquired property during life time of S.V., after his death it is available for partition among Class-I heirs and that matter is covered by Sec.8 and not Sec.6 of Hindu Succession Act - Sec.6 gets attracted whenever a Hindu Male who was a member of coparcenary dies before any partition in family has taken place - In such event, his interest in coparcenary property would devolve by survivorship and not by succession - Sec.8 operates in cases where a Hindu Male not being member of coparcenary but holding property in his own right dies and in such event devolution would be through succession in favour of Class-I heirs and in their absences Class-II heirs and so on - In this case, S.V. died holding suit properties in form of self acquisitions - On his death

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

a substantial change takes place be it as regards persons who can claim share in it, or nature property - Property loses its character of self-acquisition and would be available for partition - View taken by lower appellate Court, justified - Second appeal, dismissed. Sadhineni Rajani Vs. Sadhineni Hymavathi 2012(1) Law Summary 142 = 2012(2) ALD 777 = 2012(3) ALT 628.

—Secs.6 & 8 - Suit for declaration of right and title over plaint schedule property and consequential perpetual injunction - Trial Court dismissed the suit - First appellate Court set aside the decree of trial Court and allowed for declaration of right over suit property in favour of plaintiffs/respondents - 2nd Appeal filed by sole defendat/appellant and died during pendency of Appeal - In 2nd Appeal, High Court finds that trial Court is right in holding that defendant/appellant is entitled to 1/7th share in property of his father and therefore 4th plaintiff (wife) has no exclusive absolute right to gift away the property to her daughters - Held, Sec.8 of Act operates that devolution would be through succession in favour of Class-I heirs, defendant/appellant being son is entitled to 1/7th share - Wife (4th plaintff), who has got share in property of her husband along with her children and she has no right to gift the entire property to her daughters and sons, and therefore gift deed is void in so far as the shares of other sharers - High Court allowed the 2nd Appeal by setting aside decree and judgment of Court below, Consequently decree and judgment of trial Court, restored. Divireddy Suryanarayana Reddy (died) per L.Rs. Vs. K.Kasturamma 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 332

—Secs.6 & 23 - HINDU SUCCESSION (AMENDMENT) ACT, 2005, Sec.4 - Plaintiff/ appellant and 3rd defendant/3rd respondent are sisters and defendants 1 & 2/respondents 1 & 2 are brothers - All are being children of late OD & V - Plaintiff filed suit for partition of “A” schedule property into four equal shares and “B” schedule properties into 12 equal shares and for allotment of one such share each to her and for possession - Plaintiffs contend that during life time of OD there was partition of landed properties among OD and defendants 1 & 2 and plaint “A” schedule property fell to share of OD - Plaint “B” schedule consists of vacant site - Late OD left his last Will and testment bequeathing life estate to his wife V and vested remainder to plaintiff - Since V, mother died intestate possessed of plaint “A” schedule land all parties are entitled to 1/4th share each therein - Defemdamts 1 & 2 contends that there was no partition among OD and defendants 1 & 2 and that Will is forged and after death of their father defendants 1 & 2 partitioned their family properties in 1971 and that house portion “B” schedule properties combined together forms part of dwelling house of defendants 1 & 2 and therefore not liable partition at instance of plaintiff - Trial Court granted preliminary decree for partition of “A” schedule and denied partition of plaint “B” schedule - Lower appellate Court dismissed appeal holding that plaintiff is not entitled to any share in “B” schedule since defendants 1 & 2 are living jointly in said house and therefore suit becomes premature - Hence present second Appeal - Appellant/plaintiff contends that admittedly plaintiff is residing in portion of joint family house and that plaint "B" schedule cannot be construed as house property which is in occupation of members of joint family for their residence jointly and therefore Sec.23 of Act is not applicable to said property - Appellant/plaintiff further contends during pendency of second appeal Hindu Succession Amendment Act came into force and Sec.4 there of omitted Sec.23 of 1956 Act resulting taking away of restriction contained in Sec.23 of 1956 Act - Respondents/defendants 1 & 2 contends that Sec.4 of 2005 Act which omitted Sec.23 of 1956 Act can only be prospective in nature and it has not retrospective operation and it cannot be applied to pending civil proceedings which were commenced prior to 2005 Act coming into force on 9-9-2005 - In view of discussion of subject relating to Sec.23 of 1956 Act and its deletion by 2005 Act and after restrictive provision u/Sec.23 of 1956 Act was omitted in 2005 Amendment Act, it is not necessary for High Court to apply said restriction now in present second appeal - In any event items 1 to 3 of plaint "B" schedule are all vacant sites and not dwelling houses, even though they are stated to be apurtenant sites for dwelling house - Therefore second appeal is liable to be allowed by applying amended provision of Hindu Succession Act, 1956 Act, as it stands to day - 2nd appeal allowed granting preliminary decree in favour of plaintiff/appellant for partition of "B" schedule properties. Prathipati Jogayyamma Vs. Vobhilineni Veera Venkata Satyanarayana 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 12.

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

— Secs.8,19 & 6 - Applicability of Sec.8 - "B" owner of property died in 1972 leaving behind one son "SR" and three daughters who partitioned properties of their deceased father "B" and their names also mutated in revenue records of rights - Subsequently "SR" transferred properties fell to his share to respondents by way of sale deed - Appellant/ SR's son born in 1977, filed suit for setting aside alienations made by SR contending that property of "B" was joint family property and that consideration for transaction is very meager and not for legal necessity - Suit decreed - First appellate Court reversed findings of trial Court, holding that upon death of "B" son SR became co-sharer of property and he, along with his three sisters, having inherited same in equal shares, property lost character of ancestral property in terms of Sec.8 of Hindu Succession Act - Respondents contend that in view of Sec.8, as son of B and his daughters inherited his property and not appellant as a grand-son - Having regarding to Secs.8 & 19 of Act properties is ceased to be joint family property and all heirs and legal representatives of "B" would succeed to his interest as tenants in common and not as joint tenants and that joint coparcenary did not continue - In terms of Sec.19 of Act, as SR and his sisters became tenants and common and took properties devolved upon them per capita and not per stirps, each on of them was entitled to alienate their share - Impugned judgment of first appellate Court - Justified. Bhanwar Singh Vs. Puran 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 220.

—Sec.14 - PARTITION ACT, Sec.4 - SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, Sec.12 - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY, Sec.44 - Vendor entered into agreement of sale with vendee in respect of house representing that he was absolute owner of property - Subsequently vendor's wife sent to notice to vendee as well as vendor calling upon them to cancel agreement as she held half share in property having devolved upon her on death of her son as she was not willing to sell her share - Thereafter vendor informed vendee that he is unable to execute sale deed in his favour and take back advance amount paid by him - Hence vendee filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale against vendor and his wife - Trial Court decreed suit - High Court allowed appeal preferred by vendor wife to extent of half share in property and judgment and decree of trial Court was confirmed to extent of half share of vendor in property - Findings of two Courts as to whether property is ancestral property or not, is divergent - Trial Court held that property not ancestral property, but High Court did not agree with that finding - High Court considered that u/Sec.14 of Hindu Succession Act, share devolved upon mother would become streedhana property, in absence of any express authority from wife he cannot alienate or otherwise dispose of streedhana property of his wife - Hence view taken by High Court - Justified - Finding of High Court that vendee is not entitled to seek specific performance of agreement to extent of half share of vendor's wife – Justified - Sec.12 of Specific Performance Act prohibits specific performance of a part of contract except in circumstances under sub-sections 2,3 & 4 - Agreement is binding on vendor for his half share only - It is only after sale deed executed in favour of vendee that right under Partition Act may be available - Vendee has no right to apply for partition of property and get share demarcated only after sale deed is executed in his favour - Decision of High Court - Upheld - Appeals, dismissed. Kammana Sambamurthy (D) By. Lrs. Vs. Kalipatnapu Atchutamma (D) 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 159.

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

—Sec.14(1) - A female Hindu was given right of enjoyment of lands in lieu of maintenance and possession was given - By virtue of Sec.14(1) she acquired absolute rights over lands in respect of which she was given right of enjoyment and she became full owner thereof without any restriction on her right to deal with property in manner she liked as rights get enlarged to full ownership u/Sec.14(1) of Act. Subhan Rao Vs. Parvathi Bai 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 83.

—Secs.14(1) and 14(2) - Deceased, KCSR gifted property to his kept mistress (concubine) towards maintenance by creating life interest in her and vested reminder with donor and his heirs - Subsequently kept mistress gifted property to plaintiffs under registered gift settlement deed - Trial Court decreed suits holding that plaintiffs have proved gift deed executed by KCSR to his kept mistress and also gift deed executed by kept mistress in favour of plaintiffs as KCSR has executed gift deed in favour of concubine in lieu of her right to maintenance during her lift time and said limited interest gets enlarged u/Sec.14(1) of Hindu Succession Act - 1st appellate Court came to conclusion that life interest granted to kept mistress under gift was not a pre-existing right and it was a grant in first instance and as such Sec.14(2) of Act would apply and consequently held that limited right of maintenance granted to kept mistress under said gift deed does not get enlarged into absolute estate u/Sec.14(1) of Act - Hence, second appeal - Sec.14(1) of Act clearly reads that any property possessed by Hindu female shall be held by her as full owner thereof and not as limited owner - Therefore, Hindu Women's pre-existing right of maintenance gets enlarged in to an absolute estate - In view of settled legal proposition as kept mistress was gifted property in view of her maintenance through gift, her limited right under said document gets enlarged as absolute right in view of her pre-existing right when Act came into force - In this case, said kept mistress alleged to be concubine of KCSR, has a pre-existing right of maintenance from her paramour - A curse reading of Sec.14 of Act, there is no word concubine or kept mistress, but it clearly reads that any female Hindu - According to 14(1) of Act if any female Hindu has a pre-existing right of maintenance on date of said Act, such limited right of maintenance during life time gets enlarged into absolute estate - Therefore, a concubine has a pre-existing right of maintenance from her paramour or after him from his estate and grant of such limited right by paramour to her during life time of her paramour gets enlarged into absolute estate u/Sec.14(1) of Act - Trial Court rightly decreed suit - Lower appellate Court on erroneous view of matter, held that issue in controversy is based u/sec.14(2), but not u/Sec.14(1) of Act - Both second appeals are allowed. Singamsetty Narayana Vs. Kontham Lakshmmam 2012(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 51 = 2012(2) ALD 74 = 2012(2) ALT 27 = AIR 2012 AP 54.

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

—Secs.14(1) & 14(2) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.15(3) - Hindu woman executing Will bequeathing suit schedule property in favour of her daughter, which she got from her husband under partition for her maintenance - Trial Court came to conclusion that woman was given suit schedule property under Ex.A.1 with restrictive right and therefore she would not become absolute owner as result of which she could not have bequeathed properties to her daughter under Will - ANALYSIS OF SECS.14(1) & 14(2) OF ACT - Principles in so for as property given to female Hindu in lieu of maintenance or in lieu of arrears of maintenance - Stated - If property is given to widow under a deed or instrument or devise like partition deed or settlement deed or a will or award in recognition of her sastric rights to maintenance or arrears of maintenance would become absolute property after coming into force of Hindu Succession Act - When in a family partition between father and sons, mother, wife or daughter or widow of predeceased son of kartha/manager of family had given property towards maintenance - without anything else; same shall have to be considered in light of language of document, conferring such right - In his case, wife was given absolute right only for certain extent of land to enforce her pre-existing right to maintenance and limited or restrictive estate was given in respect of other item - Therefore she had no right to bequeath suit schedule property under will - Contention of appellant that wife died in year 1973 and suit filed in the year 1984 is barred by limitation is misconceived - A right to partition of property held jointly is a continuous cause of action and therefore question of limitation does not arise - Appeal, dismissed. Kallakuri Pattabhiramaswamy Vs. Kallakuri Kamaraju 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 219 = 2009(5) ALD 410 = 2009(5) ALT 150.

HINDU SUCCESSION ACT, 1956:

—-Sec.14(1) & (2) - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.52 - "Property of female Hindu" - "Lis-pendens" - Sec.14 of Hindu Succession Act undoubtedly declares in sub-sec(1) thereof that property of female Hindu is her absolute property, but it creates an exception in sub-sec.(2) which provides that sub-sec.(1) will not apply to any property which is given away by instruments such as by way of gift or under a will - Life estate given to female Hindu under a will cannot become an absolute estate under provisions of Sec.14(2) of Hindu Succession Act - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.52 - Broad principle under laying Sec.52 of T.P Act is to maintain status quo uneffected by act of any party to litigation pending its determination - Even after dismissal of suit, a purchaser is subject to "lis pedendens", if an appeal is after wards filed - Doctorine of lis pendens is founded in public policy and equity, and if it has to be read meaningfully a sale until period of limitation for second appeal is over will have to be covered u/Sec.52 of T.P Act. Jagan Singh (Dead) through L.Rs. Vs.Dhanwanti 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 64.

—Sec.15 (1) & (2) - "Self acquired property of woman" - Law is silent with regard to self-acquired property of a woman - Sec.15(1) however apart from exceptions specified in sub-sec.(2) thereof does not make any distinction between self-acquired property and property which she had inherited from her parents - Self acquired property of female would be her absolute property and not property which she had inherited from her parents - u/Sec.15(1) of Hindu Succession Act a self-acquired property of widow dying intestate cannot be inherited by succession but it would go to heirs of her pre-deceased husband. Omprakash Vs. Radhacharan 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 192 = 2009(5) ALD 1 (SC) = 2009(5) Supreme 181.

—Sec.15(2) - "Property of female Hindu dying intestate" - Succession - Stated - 1st respondent filed suit for partition of suit schedule property - Admittedly properties belong to wife of 1st respondent/plaintiff - Appellant grand son of father-in-law of 1st respondent pleads that wife of plaintiff has inherited property from her father, Sec.15(2) Hindu Succession Act gets attracted and therefore plaintiff cannot claim entire property - From Sec.15, it is evident that property of female Hindu dying intestate shall devolve firstly upon sons and daughters and husband - Sub-sec.(2) however, carved out an exception in respect of property inherited by female Hindu from her father or mother in which case property devolves upon heirs of her father - It is not in dispute that father-in-law of plaintiff has executed a Will in favour of plaintiff's wife, which, in fact was exhibited as a document on appellant's side - Thus plaintiff's wife had become owner of property through testamentary succession and not by inheritance - Sec.15(2) gets attracted only in a case of inheritance and not that of succession - Therefore with her death her husband that is, plaintiff succeeded to property by virtue of Sec.15(1)(a) along with his sons and daughters including children of any pre deceased son or daughter - In instant case, plaintiff and his wife did not have issues - Accordingly property devolved upon plaintiff alone - Judgments of Courts below - Justified - Appellant failed to make out any substantial question of law - 2nd appeal, dismissed. Goraka Anjaneyulu Vs. Gunti Tatayya Naidu 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 127 = 2011(4) ALD 283 = 2011(4) ALT 45 = AIR 2011 AP 120.

HPCL DEALERSHIP, LICENCE:

—Sec.30, Ch.II of Part VI of INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT, 1925 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.67 & 68 - Suit for partition of plaint schedule properties and allotment of shares after ejecting defendants therefrom for determination of future profits from date of suit till possession delivered and also for past profits - Lower Court held all the issues in favour of respondents 1 and 2/Plaintiffs - Aggrieved by same, defendants 1 and 4 have filed this AS - Held, Indeed, a perusal of Ex.A-5-Will would show that testatrix referred to Will dated 11-3- 1990 and rescinded the same - From evidence of appellant No.1, who was examined as DW-1, it is clear that he had admitted signature of testatrix while denying the execution of Ex.A-5 Will - In face of evidence of PW-3 to PW-5, which remained unshaken, it needs to be held that respondent Nos.1 and 2 are able to prove Ex.A-5-Will as true and valid. Even if PW-1 and PW-2 did not have personal knowledge of manner in which Vasantha Devi executed the Will, the same would not in any manner affect its genuineness - On contrary, their non-involvement in execution of Will strengthens its genuineness as it was the testatrix who obviously wanted to bequeath property to her only surviving blood relations, namely, her natural sister and her daughter - Appeal is dismissed. Ravada Appala Reddy Vs. Kadambari Sarojini Devi 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 509

HPCL DEALERSHIP, LICENCE:

—- "Termination" - Corporation terminating licence of respondent/dealer for alleged malpractices found during inspection of outlet of petitioner/dealer - Inspite of comprehensive explanation of respondent/dealer, Corporation passed impugned order of termination of licence basing on report of Inspection Officers - Single Judge allowed writ petition and set aside impugned order on ground that in absence of any Rules regarding inspection and conducting enquiry and termination of licence, Authorities shall act in a fair manner and in consideration of principles of natural justice, observing that mere charge and explanation were not sufficient to hold respondent/dealer was guilty of alleged act - It could have been fair on part of Corporation if inspecting officer was called and examined in matter and writ petitioner/dealer was given an opportunity to cross-examine him to elicit truth or otherwise of allegations - While seeing implementation or compliance of contractual obligation, if authority like Corporation proceeds on footing that writ petitioner/dealer had committed some irregularities or found some lapses, it cannot unilaterally resort to take extreme step of terminating licence - Any such extreme action should be preceded by reasonable enquiry, at least appearing as fair and reasonable - Standard of enquiry to be conducted by judicial authority, or a Court or a quasi-judicial authority, is different from standard of enquiry that is expected to be conducted by an authority like Corporation - It does not mean that Corporation can proceed and resort to terminate licence by simply calling upon writ petitioner, dealer to offer an explanation and without assigning any reason can reject and can proceed further - Findings recorded by Single Judge - Justified - Writ appeal, dismissed. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn., Ltd. Vs.Haji Abdul Rehman HajiAbdulla, HPCLDealers, 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 153.

HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT:

HYDERABAD METROPOLITAN DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY ACT, 2008:

—-Sec.32 - Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 - If the respondents are allowed to insist that petitioner must surrender the land to them free of cost if he wants respondents to consider his application for building permission, it amounts to coercing the petitioner to part with his property without compensation - It would be unjust to make the petitioner suffer in this manner - Petitioner cannot be compelled to give up valuable land purchased by him free of cost to respondents on pain of denial of permission for construction in the rest of land which is not required for road widening - Otherwise it would amount to legitimising the arbitrary and expropriatory action of respondents contrary to provisions of Act and law declared by the Supreme Court in many decisions - Writ petition allowed accordingly. Mohammed Ahmed Ali Vs. State of Telangana, Hyderabad 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 447 = 2015(3) ALD 35 = 2014(6) ALT 427.

HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT:

—Sec.146 - When petitioner's property was sought to acquired by respondent/MCH, he filed writ petition which was disposed of by Single Judge that demolition can be effected only after following due process of law - Single Judge allowed Contempt Case, sentencing respondents to pay fine of Rs.10,000/- each to petitioner for depriving him of his livelihood and causing mental agony, in default to suffer simple imprisonment for period of 7 days as demolition effected by issuing notice on wrong person which amounts to deliberate violation of order of Court and hence contemptuous - MCH contends that since petitioner is, as per records, not said to be true owner of disputed property, notices were issued to registered owners as defined in Municipal records - Therefore issuance of notices to registered owners and agreements obtained by such registered owners for demolition of property for public purpose, cannot be termed as violation of order of Court - Since respondent/MCH followed procedure as contemplated u/Sec.146 of Act, it is neither deliberate nor wilful and accordingly sought to be excused - Due process of law should be understood and procedure must be followed by respondents with due diligence and then arrive at correct conclusion with regard to title and then they have to proceed with demolition - As matter of fact, whole exercise cannot and need not be taken by respondents - Respondents having identified registered owners, followed list and served notices on them and they cannot go into question of title - Prima facie, procedure contemplated u/Sec.146 had been followed by respondents

HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT:

- Since there is serious question of title involved and since respondents have followed procedure as contemplated u/Sec.146, and as there is no deliberate deviation in issuing notices to true owners, action of respondents does not amount to violation of order of Court, either deliberately or wilfully - Impugned order of learned single Judge, set aside - Contempt Appeal, allowed. Dr.C.V.S.K. Sharma Vs. Mohd. Moinuddin 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 71 = 2009(5) ALD 516 = 2009(4) ALT 796.

—-Sec.146 – LAND ACQUISITION ACT, Secs.3(b) & 4(1) – CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.300-A - Question referred to this Bench is "whether in case of acquisition of land by Municipal Authorities, for road widening, on consent of the landlord of a shop any notice is necessary to be given to the tenant in the shop?"

Held, this Court of considered opinion that judgment of Full Bench in Ushodaya Publications states correct position of law and that Court do not find any reason to take a differing view - Court hold that a notice to tenant in a shop is necessary in case of acquisition of land by Municipal authorities for road widening even if landlord/ owner of premises has given his consent. Raisunnisa Begum Vs. Premsukhalal Jain 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 8 = 2016(1) ALD 749 = 2016(1) ALT 424.

—-Secs.148(2), 93 & 97 - MUNICIPAL CORPORATION OF HYDERABAD (ACQUISITION AND DISPOSAL OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY) RULES, 1970, Rule 6 - G.O.Ms.No.408 - Pursuant to tender-cum-auction notice issued by Vijayawada Municipal Corporation for grant of lease hold rights of vacant shops, petitioner participated and his offer was accepted relating to shop no.7/A - Petitioner obtained DDs for amount payable towards rent and goodwill - 1st respondent refused to receive DDs, orally informing him that issue had to be ratified by higher authorities - Hence writ petition seeking declaration that action of respondents in not giving effect to proceedings and thereby depriving petitioner benefit confirmed on him pursuant to tender notice, is arbitrary and illegal - Corporation contends that petitioner had offered one Rs.1,97,000 as goodwill and Rs.1800 as rent and that other tenderer offered Rs.1,98,000 towards goodwill and Rs.2000 towards rent and that Standing Committee passed fresh resolution to effect that shop no. 7/A shall be allotted to highest bidder after conducting negotiations - Petitioner did not attend and other tenderer attended negotiations and offered Rs.2,20,000 as goodwill and Rs.2,000 towards rent and that Standing Committee has right to approve or reject or cancel tenders and therefore impugned action cannot be held to be arbitrary or illegal - In instant case, tender-cum-auction notice admittedly issued by Commissioner of Corporation in exercise of powers u/Sec.148 of H.M.C Act, and auction was conducted and thereafter matter placed before Standing Committee for necessary sanction and by Resolution it was resolved by Standing Committee to accept petitioner's offer and same was also acted upon and accordingly petitioner was informed to remit amounts - Sanction granted by Standing Committee in its meeting was conclusive for grant of lease in favour of petitioner and same was communicated to petitioner and he had also taken DDs - Contract in favour of petitioner stood concluded and therefore it is not open to respondents to modify Resolution - Since sanction of the Standing Committee was already acted upon and there was concluded contract in favour of petitioner - Respondents are bound to implement proceedings - Writ petition, allowed. P.Sambasiva Rao Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 243 = 2009(5) ALD 33 = 2009(3) APLJ 91 = 2009(6) ALT 68.

HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT:

—Secs.148 (3), 124 & 679-A - G.O.Ms.No.299 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.14, 21 & 226 - 2nd respondent/Municipal Corporation granted lease of school premises in favour of petitioner-Educational Society for period of 20 years for locating Women's College, with approval of 1st respondent/Govt. by G.O.229 - While petitioner running college respondent/Corporation terminated lease and called upon petitioner to vacate premises for alleged violation of conditions of lease - Hence, present writ petition filed seeking declaration that Memo issued by 1st respondent and consequential termination notice issued by 2nd respondent-Corporation as arbitrary and illegal - Petitioners contend that alleged violation of conditions of lease is absolutely false and without any basis and having considered petitioner's explanation, the then Commissioner ordered that no further action was required and as matter of fact, after granting sanction vide G.O.229 u/Sec.148, 1st respondent has become functus officio and therefore question of cancellation of lease does not arise - In this case specific plea of petitioner is that most of allegations made in impugned order related to period prior to execution of lease deed which were already explained by petitioner in its replay and having accepted same further proceedings were dropped - With regard to other allegations relating to violation of conditions of lease there is no prior notice to petitioner giving opportunity to meet said allegations - Undisputedly impugned termination not preceded by any notice affording opportunity to petitioner to explain allegations - Since admittedly no such opportunity was given to petitioners on face of it, order of termination is in violation of principals of natural justice and liable to be set aside - Before taking action u/Sec.679-A of Act Govt., is bound to give opportunity for explanation to authority or person concerned - Orders of Govt., as well as termination of lease by Corporation are in violation of principles of natural justice - Impugned orders, set aside. B.R.G.K.S.V. Educational Society Vs. Government of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 203 = 2008(2) ALD 417 = 2008(2) ALT 297 = 2008(1) APLJ 60.

Sec.456 – "Demolishing old structures - Both writ petitions are filed by owner and tenants respectively questioning notice of respondent corporation, one for inaction in demolishing building premises based on structural stability report of JNTU, Kakinada and another directing tenants to vacate Kowtha complex - As they are interconnected and as counsel appearing for parties had requested for disposal of main cases itself, both matters were heard together and being disposed of by a common order - After receipt of JNTU, Kakinada report, and in compliance with orders of Court in Writ Petition, Corporation issued final notice u/Sec.456 of Act to owner and tenants - After considering explanation submitted on behalf of tenants and after providing personal hearing, final orders were passed - Questioning said order, appeals were filed before Senior Civil Judge, invoking Sec.654 of Act - The tenants were again directed to approach JNTU, Kakinada to obtain report - After taking into consideration of report, present impugned order is passed - Question same W.P. No. 34551 is filed.

HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT:

Held, in context of exercise of powers by Commissioner in terms of Sec.456 of Act, an absolute primacy is to be given to opinion of Commissioner except in exceptional circumstances where power itself is being exercised malafidely or for extraneous consideration - It also cannot be said that a detailed investigation and technical evaluation is required to be carried out in every case before a structure is directed to be pulled down, very purpose of entrusting emergency powers in Sec.456 of Act would get defeated – Sec.456 of Act provides for different modes of exercising power depending on facts arising in a particular case.

In circumstances, writ petitions are disposed of, leaving it open to Corporation to carry out task of demolition of building Nos.1 to 3 either by itself or by owner/ tenants ensuring necessary precautions that are required to be taken in terms of Sec.456(2) of Act - However, considering fact that tenants are in occupation, reasonable time of two weeks may be allowed for vacating premises making it clear that if any untoward incidents happen in interregnum period, tenants shall be solely responsible in all respects, both civil and criminal consequences. K.Lalith Manohar Vs. Vijayawada Municipal Corporation 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 339.

—Secs.521 (1) (e) (ii) - PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION ACT, Rule 50, Clauses (A) (2) (T) - G.O.Ms.No.1997, dt.3-7-1977 - Municipal Corporation issued Notification enhancing licence fee from Rs.400 to Rs.1900 on shops of silver and gold Ornaments - Petitioners contend that shops dealing with sale of gold and silver Ornaments will not come under category of trade or operation and therefore no licence fee can be levied or collected and that Sec.521 (1) (e) (i) has no application to business of petitioner association and therefore levy and collection of licence fee in pursuance of Notification is illegal and arbitrary - Respondent/Corporation contends that said shops come under category, which creates nuisance to public by throwing waste material on roads by shop owners and customers for which Corporation has to clean every day - Corporation provided all amenities like sanitation, lighting, water supply etc., and services have to be considered as services to traders with a view to facilitate and stream line their business operations - Hence increase of licence fee for gold and silver jewellery shops, not arbitrary - In the instant case, admittedly members of petitioner association have taken trade licence and they are paying licence fee but only on enhancement of licence fee they have chosen to question same - Nature of business in which members of petitioner Association are involved with regard to sale of gold and silver ornaments, they are also indulging in repairing, making ornaments through their workers directly or indirectly, and therefore it cannot be said that nature of business of petitioners will not come u/Sec.521 (e) (ii) of Act - Enhancement of yearly licence from Rs.400 to 1900 - Not arbitrary, illegal or excessive - Writ petition, dismissed. Gold and Silver & Diamond Merchants Association, Kurnool Vs. M.C.H. Kurnool 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 19 = 2008(5) ALD 239.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT:

IMMORAL TRAFFIC (PREVENTION) ACT, 1956:

—Secs.3 to 5 and 18(1) – "Closure of Brothel House" - Inspector of Police raided lodge of petitioner and registered Crime u/Secs.3,4 & 5 of Act, without considering explanation submitted by the petitioner to the notice issued under Sec.18(1) Act, and passed impugned Order of attachment - "CLOSER OF BROTHEL HOUSE" – Magistrate on receipt of information from police or otherwise that a house is being run as a brothel house after issuance of notice to the owner or lessor, he may pass orders directing eviction of occupier of house - In this case Sec.18 provides for issuance of notice of attachment for improper use of premises and Magistrate was not given any power for attachment of premises directly - In this case, 1st respondent/sub-divisional Magistrate ordered closure of 2nd and 3rd floors of lodge with immediate effect - In view of Sec.18(1) order passed by 1st respondent is illegal – Order set aside – Writ petition, allowed. M.Ramakrishna Vs.The Sub-Divisional Magistrate and RDO, Vijayawada 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 198.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT:

—Sec.2-A (2) - Management of Factory dismissing workmen from service basing on alleged letters of resignation - Workmen contend that during course of unloading a truck in factory premises, Timekeeper picked up quarrel and forcibly collected their signatures on blank papers and they did not entertain any idea of resignation, when their employment is only source of their livelihood - Labour Court passing award directing reinstatement of workmen with back wages - Management contends that workmen submitted their resignation voluntarily, and that Labour Court proceeded as though it was a wrong retrenchment or dismissal of workmen from service - Appointing authority has power and competence to terminate services of an employee, either on disciplinary grounds, or otherwise, in accordance with relevant Rules or Standing Orders - Either way, appointing authority would not be under obligation to hear or examine concerned employee, in person - But acceptance of resignation, stands on a different footing - In such cases, proposal to bring about cessation of employment emanates from employee himself and therefore heavy duty rests upon appointing authority to ensure that letter of resignation is submitted by employee himself, and that there is no element of coercion or threat, in process - In present case, no Official of management much less appointing authority had made an endeavour to inquire from workmen, personally, as to whether they submitted their resignations, at all - Reasons mentioned in alleged letters of resignation also are some-what abnormal - Proceedings in Labour Court resisted as though workmen were removed on disciplinary grounds - Finding of Labour Court that workmen did not submit resignation, at all - Justified. Andhra Sugars Ltd., Vs. Labour Court,Guntur 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 130 = 2008(4) ALD 527 = 2008(3) ALT 770 = 2008(2) APLJ 21(SN).

—Sec.2-A(2) - Charge-sheet issued against petitioner/Conducter in APSRTC for alleged irregularities in cash and ticketing - Enquiry Officer found petitioner guilty of charges and was terminated from service - Labour Court passing award directing APSRTC to reinstate petitioner in service but, without continuity of service and back wages - Petitioner contends that labour Court not discussed merits of matter and merely refer to evidence adduced before Enquiry Officer - No reasons were recorded as to why petitioner was being denied benefit of continuty of service and back wages and that matter deserved reconsideration and case should be remanded to Labour Court for fresh disposal on these aspects - APSRTC contends that material on record clearly demonstrated culpabulity of petitioner and that in any event, entitlement to back wages and continuity of service was not automatic upon direction of reinstatement - In this case, petitioner has specifically raised an allegation with regard to validity of domestic enquiry, Labout Court necessarily ought to have considered matter on merits and come to decision as to whether proper case had been made out for interference - Labour Court merely confirmed finding recorded in domestic enquiry and thereafter, went on to apply doctrine of "proportionality" - Award is devoid of cogent reasons not only vis-a-vis denial of consequential reliefs but is equally so even for justifying grant of relief of reinstatement - However, award in present case must stand or fall in its entirety - Petitioner having taken advantage of unreasoned awared in respect of one relief cannot decry it in respect of reliefs denied on very same ground - Grant of back wages was no longer considered to be an automatic or natural consequence of reinstatement - "Doctrine of proportionality" would have to be applied stringently in cases involving trust, honesty, integrity and where employee concerned deals with public money, financial transactions or acts in a fiduciary capacity - In present case, no such exercise was undertaken by Court in application of doctrine - Award of Labour Court, unsustainable under facts and law - Hence, set aside - Matter remitted to Labour Court - Writ petition, allowed. A.Ramaiah Vs.The Hon'ble Industrial Tribunal-Cum-Labour Court 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.)109.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT:

—Secs.2-A(2), 25-F and 25(O) - Payment of retrenchment compensation - Petitioner joined as wage labourer in year 1992 in K.C.P.S.I.C. Ltd., and did clerical work till 2001 - Subsequently transferred to work shop of 1st respondent at Tada and worked their for about one year - Thereafter 1st respondent issued retrenchment order alleging that work shop at Tada incurred huge losses - Labour Court came to conclusion that retrenchment of petitioner is not in accordance with provisions of Sec.25-F and 25(O) of I.D Act and proceeded to award compensation instead of retrenchment - Petitioner contends that labour Court having recorded finding that retrenchment is not in accordance with provisions of Sec.25-F and 25(O) of I.D Act, committed serious error in not granting reinstatement and instead awarding a paltry sum of Rs.20,000 as compensation - Petitioner worked in 1st respondent establishment for about 10 years and received Rs.60,000 as retrenchment compensation - Nerely seven years have elapsed from date of retrenchment as on this day - Award of compensation in lieu of reinstatement is justified - Compensation enhanced to Rs.1,00,000 from Rs.20,000 as awarded by labour Court in lieu of reinstatement. S.Narayana Rao Vs. K.C.P.S.I.C. Ltd. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 251 = 2009(5) ALD 440 = 2009(6) ALT 699.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT:

—Sec.11-A - Petitioner driver of APSRTC, while driving bus which met with fatal accident and consequently 1st respondent/Corporation placed him under suspension and after considering explanation submitted by petitioner he was removed from service since charges levelled against him held proved - Revision filed by petitioner before Regional Manager, rejected - Labour Court while deriving power from Sec.11-A of I.D Act adjudicated matter by re-appreciating entire evidence adduced in domestic enquiry held that finding of Enquiry Officer not on material evidence, but made on basis of report of preliminary Enquiry Officer who based his finding on basis that young boy died in accident while crossing road and as no cogent reasons were given by Enquiry Officer to come such conclusion finding found to be perverse and therefore charges levelled not found to be established and consequently Labour Court ordered reinstatement of petitioner with continuity of service but without back wages - Single Judge allowed writ petition filed by petitioner by directing 1st respondent/Corporation to pay 50% of back wages from date of removal till date of reinstatement - Hence Corporation filed present Appeal - Petitioner/appellant contends that having accepted validity of domestic enquiry Labour Court would not have interfered with order of punishment imposed by Enquiry Officer as findings of enquiry are not perverse and are based on material evidence - Since introduction of Sec.11-A of Act, Labour Court/ Industrial Tribunal is equipped powers to reappreciate evidence led in domestic enquiry and satisfy itself whether said evidence relied upon by employer establishes misconduct alleged against workman and Labour Court should interfer only when punishment was shockingly disproportionate to gravity of charge established - BACK WAGES - Awarding back wages depends upon facts and circumstances of case, even if Court finds that it is necessary to award back wages, question would be whether back wages should be awarded fully or only partially (and if some percentage) - Now back wages are no longer considered to be automatic or natural consequence of reinstatement.

Factors which are to be taken into consideration while awarding back wages - Summarized:

a) Manner and mode of selection & appointment,

b) Nature of employment, adhoc, daily wage contract labour, temporary, permanent

c) Length of service, which the workman had rendered. If the workman had rendered considerable period of service, he may be awarded full or partial back wages keeping in view the age and qualification passed by him and that he may not be in a position to get another employment.

d) Whether he was gainfully employed during the period of suspension / termination.

e) Payment of full back wages cannot be the natural consequence of reinstatement. It depends upon the facts and circumstances.

In present case as writ petitioner exonerated of all charges, he is entitled reinstatement and also to back wages basing on limitation and guidelines indicated above - Petitioner has also discharged his burden at earliest point of time by stating that he was not gainfully employed during period when he was out of service and even in counter filed by Corporation in ID it is not even alleged that petitioner was employed gainfully during period of his termination - Petitioner is entitled to full back wages - W.A filed by employee seeking total back wages, allowed - W.A filed by Corporation, dismissed. M.Ch.Subba Rao Vs. Depot Manager, APSRTC, Chilakaluripet Depot 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 154 = 2012(6) ALD 707 = 2012(6) ALT 459.

INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT (STANDING ORDERS)ACT, 1946:

—Secs.11-A - A.P.S.R.T.C (CONDUCT DISCIPLINE AND APPEAL) RULES, R.8 - 1st respondent/Conductor was removed from service for alleged attempt to defraud Corporation by allowing bus to commence its journey without issuing tickets to all passengers - Labour Court passing award directing reinstatement of Conductor back to duty with all attendant benefits, but denied payment of back wages completely - Petitioner/ Corporation contends that Labour Court had unduly taken into account and consideration fact that fare collected from three passengers i.e. Rs.1.50ps each being too marginal a money, whereas Courts have been consistently pointing out that irrespective of quantum of money misappropriated, punishment should be severe - In this case, only at time surprised check was undertaken there were 65 passengers carrying tickets on board, obviously bus is full - Only three more passengers remained to be issued tickets and all other 65 passengers have been issued correct denomination tickets and they were all made to pay exact amounts being fare for journey - First respondent/conductor has also taken out three tickets from tray and punched them as well - Thus it reflects that conductor is still in process of issuing tickets - Collection of Rs.1.50ps from each one of passengers being correct fare and tickets having already removed from tray and punched, is conclusively establishing intended act of conductor to pass tickets to passengers - Therefore it is only a case of technical violation of allowing onward journey of bus, without completing issuance of tickets - Punishment should not only meet offender, but also quantum of guilt held established against employee concerned - In instant case, conductor is not wholly blameworthy - Since severe punishment of removal has been imposed, Labour Court exercised power available to it u/Sec.11-A of Act - Disciplinary Authority failed to apply its mind properly to relevant factors - Award passed by Labour Court - Justified - Writ petition, dismissed. Depot Manager, APSRTC, Medak Vs. D. Narayana 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 239 = 2008(4) ALD 682 = 2008(5) ALT 26.

INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT (STANDING ORDERS)ACT, 1946:

—Secs.1, 3, 13(1) - A.P. SHOPS AND ESTABLISHMENTS ACT, Sec.2 (e) - PAYMENT OF WAGES ACT,1936, Sec.2(ii) - G.O.Ms.No.116, Labour, Employment, Training and Factories (LAB-II), dt.7-12-2207 - Petitioner's Establishment inspected by Squad team and initiated prosecution against petitioners for violation of Sec. 3 (1) of Act, after obtaining permission from Joint Commissioner - Petitioner contends that his establishment is registered under A.P. Shops and Establishment Act, as commercial establishment and registration is being renewed from time to time and therefore petitioner's Establishment cannot be termed as industrial Establishment within meaning of Act - In this case, prosecution could not produce any notification issued by appropriate Govt., u/Sec.2(ii) (h) of Payment of Wages Act to show that petitioner's establishment or class of such establishments are included within preview of said enactment - Act applies only in case 100 or more workmen are employed on any day of preceding 12 months - In this case, inspection report of Squad Team is attached to complaint filed before lower Court shows that establishment was registered for 52 employees only - Thus there is no basis for prosecution/complainant to show that Act is applicable to petitioner's establishment - Prosecution of petitioner for offence punishable u/Sec.13 (1) of Act has no legs to stand - Proceedings in STC on file of Magistrate, quashed - Petition, allowed. A.Rama Mohana Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 14.

INSECTICIDES ACT, 1968:

INSECTICIDES ACT, 1968:

—- Sec.29(1) (a) r/w S. 3(k) (1) (VIII) - A complaint was lodged against Petitioners/ Accused/ under provisions of Insecticides Act - Aggrieved, Petitioners/Accused Nos. 1 to 4 filed instant petition seeking quashment on main plank of argument that shelf life of pesticide was expired by 12-07-2012 and L.W. 1 drew sample on 06-08-2011 and sent for analysis and Analyst report was served on Petitioner/Accused No. 2 on 30-08-2011 - Further, on 02-12-2011, a show cause notice dated 17-09-2011 was served on Petitioner/Accused No. 3 by Joint Director of Agriculture, Kurnool, to furnish particulars of persons responsible for manufacture of said mis-branded product and Petitioner/Accused No. 3 vide Reply Letter dated 07-12-2011, informed that he was not satisfied with result and wants to contest the contents of Analytical Report - But in spite of it, Complainant even without mentioning about said Reply Letter, filed complaint before trial court on 17-05-2014 which was returned on 19-06-2014 and represented on 28-06-2014 and ultimately complaint was taken cognizance on 31-01-2014 and as such, long prior to filing of complaint and taking cognizance, shelf life of product was expired and so Petitioners/Accused lost their valuable right of seeking to send another sample for analysis to Central Insecticides Laboratory (CIL) and hence, continuation of proceedings against Petitioners/Accused will amount to abuse of process of law and therefore may be quashed - Held, however, inspite of knowing clear intention of Petitioners/Accused complainant, it appears, did not take any action to send second sample for analysis within shelf life of product - On other hand, he filed complaint on 17-05-2014 which was ultimately taken cognizance by trial court on 31-10-2014 - Thus, by time complaint was taken cognizance, shelf life of product was expired long ago and thereby valuable rights of accused conferred under Section 24(3) and (4) of Insecticides Act, were defeated for no fault of Petitioners/ Accused - Hence, continuation of proceedings, in considered view of this Court, will amount to abuse of process of law - Accordingly, the Criminal Petition is allowed and proceedings are hereby quashed against Petitioners/Accused Nos. 1 to 4. New Rythu Fertilizers Vs. State of A.P. 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 252 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 1038.

INSURANCE ACT, 1938:

INSURANCE:

—Medi-claim Policy - Petitioner took out Medi-claim policy with 1st respondent/Insurance Company and same being renewed from time to time on payment of stipulated premium - Petitioner suffered ailment to his Kidney and continuous Dialysis became necessary thrice in a day, till transplantation of kidney takes place - Respondent/Insurance Company rejected claim of petitioner on ground that Dialysis, which petitioner was undergoing, was excluded from coverage - Petitioner contends that Policy is a continuous one and once particular decease and ailment was covered under policy, it cannot be excluded during subsistence of Policy - Respondents contend that duration of policy is only one year, and though it is renewed year after year, it cannot be treated as a continuous one and that once particular decease or ailment is excluded from coverage, petitioner cannot claim reimbursement for treatment thereof - RENEWAL OF POLICY - Cl.3 - In case premium is paid without delay, renewal becomes a matter of course - It is not alleged that petitioner delayed payment of premium at any point of time - Once policy was taken and it is being renewed from time to time it virtually becomes a continuous phenomenon, and any changes as to coverage that takes place in between would not apply to policyholder - Petitioner is entitled for reimbursement that are included in policy taken out by him and exclusion of decease from list does not effect rights of petitioner to claim reimbursement - Petitioner is entitled for renewal of Policy as long as premium for renewal is paid within stipulated time - Writ petition, allowed. Dr.T. Suresh Vs. The Oriental Insurance Co., Ltd., 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 371.

INSURANCE ACT, 1938:

—Sec.45 - Principle "Uberrima fides" - Respondent/plaintiffs husband during his life time took two Life Insurance Policies and died due to parlytic strock - Appellant/defendant Corporation reputed claim in one policy for alleged withholding correct information as to his health at time of taking out policy - Trial Court decreed suit relying upon evidence of D.W.1, agent of Corporation who is responsible of for issuance of suit policy - Appellant/Corporation contends that investigation revealed that deceased suffered from diabetes long prior to taking of suit policy and had in fact been treated therefor - Failure of deceased in disclosing this information in proposal form (Ex.A.1) vitiated of contract of insurance and Corporation is entitled to repudiate plaint claim under a vitiated contract - Entire case revolves around Ex.A.1, suit Policy Proposal Form - Enforsement in Ex.A.1 duly signed by insure stating to effect that he had fully explained questions in Ex.A.1 to proposal - No policy of Life Insurance can be called in question by any insurer on ground that statement made in proposal for insurance leading to issue of policy was inaccurate are false after lapse of two years unless insurer shows that such statement was on a material matter or suppressed facts which it was material to disclose and it was fraudulently made by policy-holder and that policy-holder knew at time of making it that statement was false or that it suppressed facts which it was material to disclose - Absence of evidence that questionnaire had been fully explained to and was understood by insure so as to establish concealment are suppression of material fact within his knowledge, clearly disentitled Insurance Corporation from repudiating policy - Evidence in present case clearly demonstrates that there was failure on part of defendant Corporation indischarging this obligaton - Having failed in this regard, and hence it is not open to Corporation to repudiate suit policy - Judgment and decree of trial Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. LIC, Rep. by B.M. Vs. K. Subadramma 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 213 = 2009(3) ALD 790.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

— Sec.45 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.115 - Life Insurance Policy - Appellants-plaintiffs-claimants filed suit for recovery of Insurance amount on death of insured - Respondent/ Insurance Corporation repudiated policy on ground that insured suppressed material fact - Trial Court decreed suit - Single Judge of High Court opined that there was no material to show that non-disclosure was of material fact justifying repudiation of policy by Corporation - Division Bench of High Court opined that parties are bound by warranty clause contained in agreement and that non-disclosure related to a material fact - If a person makes a wrong statement with knowledge of consequence, he would ordinarily be estopped from pleading that even if such fact had been disclosed, it would not have made any material change - A deliberate wrong answer which has a great bearing on contract of insurance, if discovered may lead to policy being vitiated in law - Contract of insurance including contracts of life assurance are contracts uberrima fides and every fact of materiality must be disclosed otherwise there is good ground for rescission - This duty to disclose continuous upto conclusion of contract and covers any material alteration in character of risk which may take place between proposal and acceptance - Impugned judgment of Division Bench of High Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. P.J.Chacko Vs. Chairman, L.I.C of India 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 101.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—DISPLACED FAMILIES - Writ Petition is filed by some of the displaced persons, who are ten in number, under Teluguganga project for a mandamus to declare the action of the respondents in not granting house site pattas admeasuring 0.50 cents to each of them as per G.O.Ms.No.324, Energy, Forests, Environment, Science & Technology (For.I) Department, dated 01.12.1988, as illegal and arbitrary - Another Writ petition is filed by four of the displaced persons under Somasila project for a mandamus to declare the action of the respondents in not allotting Acs.2.00 of agriculture land and Ac.0.50 cents of homestead land to each of them as per the Resettlement and Rehabilitation Policy, 2005 contained in G.O.Ms.No.58, Irrigation & Power (Projects Wing) Department, dated 19.03.1980, and G.O.Ms.No.324, dated 01.12.1988, as illegal and arbitrary - Held, when the Government has issued an order as a welfare measure to safeguard interests of the displaced families under a particular project, the respondents are bound to implement the same - In the absence of a counter-affidavit, this Court is unable to render any specific findings as to whether the project has been implemented or not - If the petitioners are displaced under Teluguganga project as claimed by them, they are entitled to all the benefits that are envisaged in G.O.Ms.No.324, dated 01,12,1988 - Therefore, respondent No.1 is directed to consider the claim of the petitioners for

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

grant of house site pattas as per G.O.Ms.No.324, dated 01.12.1988, take a decision and communicate the same to the petitioners within two months from the date of receipt of a copy of this order - These Writ Petitions are accordingly allowed to the extent indicated above. Kuraku Venkata Ramanaiah Vs. District Collector, Kadapa 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 106

—Secs.4, 5-A, 6 & 17(1) & (4) - A.P. AGRICULTURAL LAND (CONVERSION FOR NON-AGRICULTURAL PURPOSES) ACT, Sec.7 - Pursuant to requisition from A.P. Industrial Infrastructure Corporation Ltd., (APIIC) to acquire land for purpose of construction of Intake Well and Pump House for supply of Contour to Ceramics Company, to District Collector, petitioner's land notified and notification was published, invoking urgency clause by dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act and further declaration u/Sec.6 also published - On receipt of notice for payment of 80% compensation petitioner came to know about acquisition proceedings - Hence, petitioner filed present writ petition - Petitioner contends that though there is no urgency warranting invocation of provisions u/sec.17(1) & (4) of Act respondents invoked same by dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act and that by invoking urgency clause, petitioner deprived of opportunity to show that land is unsuitable for construction and to raise other valid objections and that acquisition cannot be said to be for public purpose because there is no benefit to general public if a private company sets up a Pump House for its own benefit and that as land in question is not converted from agricultural to non-agricultural, respondents cannot be permitted to acquire his agricultural land for using for industrial purpose - Govt., contends that in view of urgency for construction Intake Well and Pump House for supply of Contour, enquiry u/Sec.5-A has been dispensed with by invoking urgency clause and accordingly APIIC has provided funds for payment of compensation and that APIIC is a Govt., owned Company with aim and object to provide infrastructure facilities for purpose of development - APIIC contends that proposed acquisition relates to public purpose and that development of industrial infrastructure requiring acquisition of land is in larger public interest and that once private land is acquired under Act it becomes land belonged to State - In this case, petitioners main contention, firstly, that having regard to purpose for which land in question is acquired, no valid reasons have been assigned to dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act which is valuable right available to land owners to put-forth their objections for proposed acquisition and that in view of dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A, petitioner is deprived right to raise his valid objections for proposed acquisition and that there is no element of public purpose within meaning of Act - Power of invoking urgency clause u/Sec.17(1) (4) of Act confers extraordinary power on State to acquire private property without complying with mandate of Sec.5-A and these provisions can be invoked only when purpose of acquisition cannot brook delay of even a few weeks or months - Having regard to purpose for which land is notified for acquisition, it is not of such urgent requirement so as to invoke power u/Sec.17(1) (4) of Act - Invoking urgency clause u/Sec.17(1) & (4) of Act by dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A in this case, is illegal - Plea of petitioner that respondents ought to have followed procedure under Chapter-VII of Act while issuing impugned proceedings - Unsustainable - Writ petition, allowed in part declaring notification issued to extent of invoking urgency clause by dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A as illegal and consequently declaration issued u/Sec.6 of Act, quashed. Pasala Padma Raghava Rao Vs. Collector, East Godavari, 2012(1) Law Summary 39 = 2012(2) ALD 553 = 2012(2) ALT 60.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

——Sections 4,5A,6,17(1),17(3A),17(4)- Possession of property was taken by invoking urgency clause and 80% compensation was paid subsequent to taking of possession – However Sec.5-A enquiry was conducted and objections were considered and Sec.6 declaration was issued - Award could not be passed in view of interim order of High Court in writ petition challenging the acquisition – High Court allowed one writ petition observing that acquisition suffers from fundamental law and dismissed the other – State appeal was allowed by Supreme Court holding that acquisition was valid – Land owners appeal against dismissal of writ was dismissed - However, compensation is to be determined in accordance with the provisions of The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013. State of Uttarakhand Vs. Rajiv Berry 2016(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 43 = AIR 2016 SC 3685 = 2016(5) ALD 81 (SC).

---Sec.4(1) - It is case of petitioners that they are eking out their livelihood by cultivating lands - They are all landless poor persons and are owners of small extents of lands - While so, 3rd respondent issued notification u/Sec.4(1) of Land Acquisition Act, 1894 identifying houses and house sites of petitioners for acquiring same situated in aforesaid survey numbers for public purpose i.e., for construction of Tourism Project, Recreation Amenities and other commercial complex - That some of petitioners filed objections in pursuance to notices issued to them u/Sec.5(A) of Act - However, without considering said objections being filed by petitioners, 3rd respondent issued declaration u/Sec.6 of Act rejecting objections of petitioners - It is case of some of petitioners that though they have purchased lands, their names are not mentioned in notification issued u/Sec.4(1) of Act - Aggrieved by notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act and impugned proceedings issued by 3rd respondent, rejecting objections of petitioners in pursuant to notification, present writ petitions are filed.

Counter affidavit is filed by 2nd respondent on behalf of other respondents denying averments in affidavits filed in support of writ petitions stating that subject land under acquisition has historical importance.

Held, Admittedly, objections of petitioners were rejected by 3rd respondent, without considering them objectively, stating that petitioners will be paid market value plus 30% solatium and 12% additional market value as per award enquiry basing on documents submitted by them - In impugned order, it is also stated that same is required for public purpose, as such, same cannot be deleted from purview of notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act - Excepting stating so, there is no proper reason or explanation forthcoming in impugned order passed by 3rd respondent.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

As per law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court consideration of objections of petitioners should be objective and should be after application of mind, but in present case, 3rd respondent rejected objections of petitioners only on ground that petitioners would be paid compensation as per Act and also that said land is required for public purpose - Right conferred u/Sec.5-A of Act is an important valuable right to petitioners and is one of procedural safeguard against arbitrary acquisition of lands - Unless procedure as envisaged under Sec.5-A of Act is followed in its true spirit, it cannot be said that procedure established under law is followed, depriving petitioners of their lands, as same will be in violation of Art.300-A of Constitution of India - Decision of 3rd respondent on objections of petitioners by way of impugned order does not satisfy test of application of mind and also reasons provided in impugned order does not inspire confidence of this Court for upholding action of respondents in issuing Declaration under Section 6(1) of the Act.

In view of above facts and circumstances, impugned order rejecting objections of petitioners is liable to be set aside and accordingly same is set aside - Consequently, declaration made u/Sec.6 of Act is also set aside - 3rd respondent is directed to reconsider objections in proper perspective in terms of law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court referred to above, after giving an opportunity of hearing to petitioners and take action accordingly in pursuance thereto - Accordingly, both writ petitions are allowed to extent indicated above. Shaik Jonny Vs. State of A.P. 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 192 = 2016(6) ALD 373 = 2016(5) ALT 571.

—Sec.4(1) - Publication of preliminary Notification and power of Officers thereupon - Stated - There are two requirements for issuance of Notification u/Sec.4 of Act - First requirement is that Notification requires to be published in Official Gazette and second requirement is that acquiring authority should cast public notices of substance of such Notification in a convenient place in locality in which land proposed to be acquired is situate and both contentions are cumulative and they are mandatory - Non-compliance with mandatory requirement of Sec.4(1) invalidates entire acquisition proceedings - Merely because parties concerned were aware of acquisition proceedings are served with individual notices does not make position alter when statute makes it very clear that all procedures/modes have to be strictly complied with in manner provided therein - Merely because land owners failed to submit their objections within 15 days after publication of Notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act, authorities cannot be permitted to claim that it need not be strictly resorted to. Kulsam R. Nadiadwala Vs. State of Maharashtra 2012(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 121 = 2012(5) ALD 70(SC) = 2012 AIR SCW 3079 = AIR 2012 SC 2718.

—Sec.4(1) - Not being satisfied with compensation awarded, claimants had preferred the first mentioned appeal - On other hand, LAO had preferred latter mentioned appeal inter alia contending that compensation as determined by the court below is high and excessive - Held, therefore, legal position makes it clear that claimants in instant case are entitled to subsoil/mineral wealth subject to certain limitations

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

- Therefore, this Court inclined to consider this additional feature of acquired land as one of necessary considerations while determining market value of acquired land - Besides that there is one Well for which determination of compensation was deferred - For one of irrigation Wells a compensation of Rs.88,000/- was awarded as per estimate prepared by Executive Engineer concerned of R & B - Coming to contention of claimants that there is a bund of about 301 feet in lands and for said bund also no compensation was determined by Court below, though there was a reference to the same in order of court below, it is to be noted that there is no whisper in evidence in regard to this bund and compensation for the bund - Therefore, no compensation is awardable in respect of said bund - Regarding trees which were found on inspection compensation was awarded - Trial Court do not find any reason to award any further compensation towards the value of any other trees as claimed by claimants for want of evidence of reliable character - Therefore, while determining compensation in a comprehensive manner for the acquired land, this Court have to take into consideration the compensation also to be awarded for one more Well only for which determination of compensation was deferred in award - In the result, the appeal of claimants in LAAS 1614 of 2005 is allowed in part and a compensation of Rs.50,000/- is awarded towards value of one of irrigation Wells for which determination of compensation was deferred by LAO - In regard to rest of aspects, the order of court below is confirmed subject to rider that insofar as interest on solatium is concerned, appellants-claimants are entitled for same from 19.09.2001, i.e., date of judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in SUNDER V. UNION OF INDIA - Trial Court also make it clear that in view of judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court (3 and 4 supra), appellants-claimants are not entitled for any interest from date of taking possession inasmuch as possession was taken even prior to notification under Section 4(1) of Act - However, claimants are at liberty to pursue remedies, which law permits, for claiming rents/damages from date they were dispossessed and till date of issuance of draft notification - Appeal of State in LAAS No.1685 of 2005 shall stand disposed of as a sequel to findings in aforementioned appeal of claimants. T.Padma Bai Vs. LAO & RDO,Manthani Karimnagar Dt. 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 287

—Secs.4(1), 5-A and 3 (c) & 17 (b) - G.O.Ms.No.822 dt.16-7-1985 - Notification published by 1st respondent/Collector proposing to acquire land of petitioner for purpose of house sites to weaker section - RDO issued Notice to petitioner proposing to conduct enquiry and rejected objections raised by petitioner - Hence present writ petition, contending that it is not competent for 2nd respondent/RDO, to conduct enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act, much less to reject objections raised by petitioner and that Notice was given contrary to provisions of Act - Sub-sec(1) of Sec.5-A of Act mandates that Notice of not less than 30 days from date of publication of notification in locality shall be issued to interested parties - In the instant case, notice u/Sec.5-A dt.6-11-2006 and enquiry proposed to be conducted on 23-11-2006, there is serious flaw in very notice itself - Mere fact that petitioner participated in enquiry does not wipe away consequences that flow from serious defect contending in notice - Conferment of powers of Collectors on RDO, or MRO through G.O.Ms.No.822 in exercise of power u/Sec.3(c) of Act is bound to lead several anomalies - In this case, District Collector/ 1st respondent issued Notification u/Sec.4 (1) of Act and it is for him to satisfy himself as to whether there is any substance in objections raised by owner of land and to from opinion whether or not to proceed with acquisition - However 2nd respondent/ RDO himself formed opinion and rejected contentions of land owners - Impugned endorsement made by RDO, set aside. Yepuri Sambasiva Rao Vs. District Collector, Krishna District 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 140.

—Secs.4, 5-A & 6 - Land acquisition proceedings initiated to acquire land lands of petitioners for purpose of setting up LPG Bottling Unit for HPC Ltd - Petitioners contend that purpose for which land acquisition proceedings had been initiated is not public purpose and that no notice was given giving opportunity to raise objections u/Sec.5-A of Act and that these are lands of landless poor persons or small farmers - Govt. contends that proposed acquisition is public purpose and that several of petitioners having failed to file any objections cannot now contend that there was no opportunity and opportunity given had not been availed and in such circumstances writ petitions are liable to be dismissed - In this case, though opportunity had been given, writ petitioners having left place, subsequently had not availed said opportunity and hence, now they cannot turned down and say that no proper opportunity had been given u/Sec.5-A of Act - When acquisition is made for public purpose, at best, petitioners can agitate for reasonable compensation or higher compensation as case may be - Objections raised relating to slight variations may not vitiate proceedings - Petitioners can agitate their rights for due and reasonable compensation and cannot object for proposed acquisition - Writ petitions, dismissed. K.Nooruddin Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 344 = 2009(6) ALD 276 = 2009(6) ALT 146.

—Secs.4(1), 5-A & 6 - Petitioner's land is proposed to be acquired to provide house sites to poor - Respondents District Collector and RDO have issued notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act in two news papers Hindu (English) and Janata (Telugu) daily - Petitioner contends that as two news papers do not have circulation in village in which land is situated, objections could not be filed by petitioner or her parents on her behalf and consequently petitioner went unrepresented in purported enquiry held u/Sec.5-A of Act leading to publication of declaration u/Sec.6 of Act - This is a case where publication is made in news papers which have no circulation at all in locality - Therefore, on ratio laid down by Apex Court, Notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act, itself cannot be construed as a valid notification within meaning of Sec.4(1) of Act - As such Notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act is liable to be quashed - Therefore, shorn of technicalities and having regard to facts of case which undoubtedly to show that respondents failed to comply with mandatory statutory provision of publication of notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act in news papers published in regional language having circulation in locality - Notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act itself is liable to be set aside - Writ petition, allowed. Kethineni Vani Vs. District Collector, Machilipatnam, 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 248 = 2011(4) ALD 370 = 2011(4) ALT 563.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), 5-A & 6 - Govt., issued Notification for acquisition of certain land including land belonging to appellant-Company in which it was running industrial unit, for development of Industrial Estate - Subsequently declaration made u/Sec.6 of Act and award announced - High Court dismissed CWP filed by appellant - Hence present appeal by way of Special leave - Appellant contends that Notification u/Sec.4(1) not published in locality wherein land situate which prevented appellant-Company from making objections u/Sec.5-A and that Company itself is running industry and that High Court committed error in dismissing writ filed by appellant/Company - Respondent/Govt., contends that land acquisition Authority complied with all formalities and appellant-Company failed to file objections u/Sec.5-A and that High Court is justified in dismissing Writ Petition - Purpose of publication of Notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act is two-fold, to ensure that adequate publicity is given so that land owners and persons interested will have an opportunity to file their objections u/Sec.5-A of Act and second, to give land owners/occupants a notice that it will be lawful for any Officer authorized by Govt., to carry out activities enumerated in sub-sec.(2) of Sec.4 of Act - In this case, there was no publication of substance of notification u/Sec.4-A of Act in locality which is held to be mandatory and that by effecting publication in locality it would be possible for person in possession to make their representation/ objection in enquiry u/Sec.5-A and by non publication of same in locality as provided under Act, owner or occupier loses his valuable right and for these reasons also, acquisition proceedings are liable to be quashed - All three modes of publications u/Sec.4(1) of Act, are mandatory - In this case, on going to the material placed by appellant-Company it is established that it is running industrial Unit even prior to Notification u/Sec.4 of Act and appellant has established its case on these ground also - Impugned order of High Court, set aside and land acquisition proceedings in so far as appellant-Company is concerned, quashed - Civil Appeal, allowed. V.K.M. Kattha Industries Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of Haryana, 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

—Sec.4(1),5-A & 6 - A.P. AGRICULTURAL LAND (CONVERSION FOR NON-AGRICULTURAL PURPOSES) ACT, 2006 - Petitioners' lands were notified for acquisiton for providing house sites to people belonging schedule caste - Petitioners have earlier filed writ petition before stage of holding enquiry u/Sec.5-A of act on ground that without conversion of agricultural lands into house sites, acquisition thereof is contrary to provisions of A.P. Agricultural land, Act, 2006 and said writ petition dismissed - During pendency of said writ petition respondents rejected petitioners objection filed u/Sec.5-A of Act - Following dismissal of previous writ petition, respondents have issued declaration u/Sec.6 of Act - Hence petitioners questioned said declaration by way of present writ petition - Petitioners contend that there are several wet and dry lands belonging to Govt., which would have been utilized for providing house sites instead of acquiring the double crop wet land of petitioners who are small farmers - Even though State has power of eminent domain same need to be exercised carefuly and reasonably - When agricultural lands are sought to be acquired care and caution to be exercised should be much more because not only agriculturists will be deprived of their lands for cultivation but Society at large will be deprived of agricultural production - In this case, respondents have not disputed fact that all these lands are wet lands - While need for providing house sites to under privileged people in Society need to be over-emphasized, at same time interest of small farmers need to be protected to extent possible - In recognition of this fact even Govt., has been issuing instructions from time to time to spare lands owned by small farmers as far as possible - Proposed acquisition is meant for house sites and indisputably,lands of petitioners proposed for acquisition of double crop wet lands - Thesefore respondents ought to have avoided acquisition of these lands for two reasons viz., that petitioners proven small farmers and that lands proposed to be acqauired are wet lands - While ordinarily High Court does not interfere with acquisition proceedings in absence of serious legal infirmities, treating this case, as an exceptional one, where interest of small farmers need to be protected and to avoid acquisition of double crop wet land - Court is inclined to interfere with proposed acquisiton - Accordingly impugned land acquisition proceedings are quashed - Writ petition, allowed. Shaik Kalesha Saheb Vs. District Collector, SPSR Nellore District, 2012(1) Law Summary 35 = 2012(2) ALD 339.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), 5-A & 6 – CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.300-A - Right of property - Respondent Collector issued draft notification u/Sec.4(1), proposing to acquire lands belonging to petitioners for purpose of providing house sites to SCs, BCs, OCs, etc., - Collector rejected objections of the petitioners filed u/Sec.5-A of Act stating that acquisition of land is essential - Subsequently District Collector issued draft declaration u/Sec.6 of Act - Petitioners contend that they are small and marginal farmers eking out their livelihood solely depending on subject lands – Petitioners further contend that Government Lands are available in village in particular Sy., Nos. – When such Government lands are available in very same village, respondent Authority are not justified in acquiring lands of small and marginal farmers - In this case reason shown by Authorities that alternative lands are faraway from habitation is not sustainable and cannot be a ground to disturb small and marginal farmers - Notification issued u/Sec.4(1), proceedings issued u/Sec.5-A and draft declaration u/Sec.6 of Act are set aside, - Writ Petition allowed. P.Venkaiah Vs. District Collector, Guntur, Guntur District 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 358 = 2014(3) ALD 635.

—Secs.4(1), 5-A & 6 – LAND ACQUISITION RULES, RULE 3 - Notification issued to acquire land of petitioners for purpose of providing house sites to weaker section – 3rd respondent/Collector rejected objections submitted by petitioners taking into account,

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

remarks of RDO and Tahsildar and published declaration u/Sec.6 - Petitioner contends that 3rd Respondent did not consider objections independently and simply accepted remarks offered by 4th respondent and that land previously acquired for purpose of house sites from sum of petitioners is still vacant and that proposed lands to be acquired is very fertile and that land low lying abutting see - 3rd respondent acts as quasi judicial authority, independently in context of acquisition of lands and he is under obligation to examine each and every objection independently - Remarks offered by 4th respondent, at most, provide information vis-à-vis objection raised by land owner – Neither District Collector nor RDO can act as adversaries to land owners – Steps stipulated u/Sec.5-A of Act or Rules made thereunder are mandatory - In this case, petitioners raised as many as 17 objections and large number of objections were not even mentioned in impugned order - If Govt. allots house sites in land acquired previously, loss can be avoided to Govt., exchequer – Leaving lands belonging to Govt., and proposal to acquire lands from small farmers is not justifiable - When petitioners specifically pleaded that lands are within Costal Regulatory Zone 3rd respondent ought to have examined matter in a greater detail and any lapse in this regard, on his part would result in violation of directions issued by Hon'ble Supreme Court, prohibiting constructions within Costal Regulatory Zone – Before becoming party such probable violation, 3rd respondent ought to have examined matter objectively - Whole episode reflects very sad state of affairs, telling upon lack of objectivity and fairness on part of respondents 3 & 4 – They were not mindful of burden exchequer, in form of market value for land proposed to be acquired and filling up same to level of three feet and they did not hesitate to violate judgment of Supreme Court in relation to Costal Regulatory Zone, instead of utilizing available vacant Govt., land – Writ petitions, allowed with certain directions. Gandepalli Nuka Raju Vs. The State of A.P., 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 282 = 2009(1) ALD (NOC) 8 = 2009(2) ALT 554.

—Secs.4 (1), 5-A,6,9 and 10 - Rules made u/Sec.5 of L.A Act, Rule 3 - A.P. URBAN AREA DEVELOPMENT ACT, Sec.2(b),(e) & (f) and Sec.13(1) - A.P. AGRICULTURAL LANDS (CONVERSION INTO NON- AGRICULTURAL PURPOSES)ACTS, 2006, Sec.3 - Petitioners' lands acquired for public purpose namely for formation of Bypass Road - Govt., issued G.O under Sec.13(1) of Urban Areas Development Act and Master Plan approved - Petitioners contend that their lands which are reserved for agricultural purpose in Master Plan under Urban Areas Development Act, cannot be used for purpose of laying Bypass Road and that there cannot any acquisition contrary to Master Plan or Zonal Development Plan and that such acquisition cannot be said to be for public purpose within meaning of L.A Act and therefore, impugned acquisition without there being a public purpose is without jurisdiction and that acquisition of lands for formation of roads is also contrary to provisions of Sec.3 of A.P. Agricultural Lands Act - Govt. contends that alleged contravention of Master Plan and Zonal development plan are not relevant so far as proceedings under L.A Act are concerned and therefore interference by Court is not warranted on any grounds whatsoever Contention of petitioners that there cannot be acquisition contrary to Master Plan and it cannot be held to be a public purpose under L.A Act is without substance and untenable - It is for State Govt., to decide whether land is needed for public purpose and whether it is suitable or adoptable for which acquisition is sought - Impugned acquisition proceedings are not illegal, on grounds of contravention of provisions of Urban Area Development Act - This is a case where land to an extent of Ac.34.83 cents is sought to be acquired for formation of Bypass Road - Admittedly petitioners are concerned only with Ac.5.94 cents out of total land sought to be acquired - Material available on record shows that out of 110 land owners only 23 persons raised objections - Even assuming that respondents committed error in rejecting objections raised by petitioners having regard to fact that a large chunk of land has already been taken possession by respondents and formation of Bypass Road is held up only on objections raised by petitioners in respect of small extents of lands held by them and hardship that may be suffered by petitioners cannot be a valid ground to set aside impugned acquisition proceedings - Public interest shall outweigh interests of individuals and therefore no justifiable reasons to grant Mandamus as prayed for - In this case, many land losers have accepted acquisition and received compensation particularly fact that possession of considerable portions of acquired lands as already been taken - Impugned acquisition proceedings cannot be held to be vitiated on ground of non-compliance with provisions of Sec.5-A of Act - Writ petition, dismissed. I.Kalakoti Siva Reddy Vs. District Collector, Krishna 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 176.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1) & 6(1) & 3(c) and 5-A - District Collector issued Notification proposing to acquire lands belonging to petitioners for providing house sites to weaker sections - RDO who authorised u/Sec.3(c) conducted enquiry and informed petitioners that their objections are rejected, consequently District Collector, issued declaration u/Sec.6(1) of Act - Petitioners contend that even if RDO is conferred power to conduct enquiry, while considering objections made by owners of land, no power vests in RDO to reject objections and that RDO can only send a report to competent authority-be it appropriate Govt., or District Collector; who alone is entitled to take appropriate decision before issuing declaration u/Sec.6(1) of Act - RDO or any Revenue Officer exercising powers of Collector as per Sec.3(c) or Sec.3-A of Act is only given power to make or submit a report to such Authority who issued notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act and that RDO cannot reject objections raised by owners and that action of RDO ex facie illegal - Hence declaration u/Sec.6(1) of Act, unsustainable - Declaration u/Sec.6-A in all writ petitions - Quashed. P.V.S.A.V.D.S.Sabrahmanya Varma Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 286.

—Secs.4(1), 5A, 9(3) and 10 – A.P. PANCHAYAT RAJ ACT, 1994, Sec.242(f) – PANCHAYATS (EXTENSION TO THE SCHEDULED AREAS) ACT, 1996, Secs.4(i) & 5 - Government proposed to acquired land for rehabilitation of Tribal on account of Polavaram Project – Notification issued enquiry held u/Sec.5-A and notice was issued u/Sec.9(3) and 10 of Act, but so far no award passed - Petitioner/tribal filed present writ petition assailing procedure adopted by Government in acquiring land in notified Tribal area without complying with statutory mandate as envisaged in Sec.242(f) of A.P. Panchayat Raj Act and Sec.4(i) of Panchayat Extension to the Schedule Areas Act - Petitioners contends that there is violation of Sec.4(i) of Panchayat Extension to the Schedule Areas Act, in as much as no resolution of Gram Sabha is obtained for acquiring land as mandated by said provision before acquisition proceeding are initiated and therefore on that ground, entire acquisition proceeding are vitiated - Government contends that during relevant period, there was no elected Gram Panchyat in Village and Special Officer was appointed and in view of same no consultation as mandated by Sec.4(i) of Panchayat Extension to the Schedule Areas Act, was followed and however Mandal Parishad passed resolution for proposal to acquire land and therefore resolution passed by Mandal Parishad is sufficient and not obtaining resolution of Gram Sabha in view of fact Gram Panchayat was not constituted could not vitiate acquisition process - Panchayat Extension to the Schedule Areas Act is a special enactment made to protect interest of Tribals and Sec.4(i) of Act mandates consultation of Gram Sabha or Panchayat before initiating proceedings for acquisition of land in tribal areas – According to Sec.5 provision of PESA Act shall prevail over any other provision – Therefore any deviation from complying with mandate is ex-facie illegal - In present case, acquisition proceedings are not concluded and no award is passed - Action of respondent Authorities initiating Land Acquisition proceeding without complying with provision in Sec.4(i) of Panchayat Extension to the Schedule Areas Act, is illegal and process by respondent Authorities cannot be saved - Respondents are directed to strictly comply with provisions of Sec.4(i) of Panchayat Extension to the Schedule Areas Act and take further steps only after consulting Gram Sabha - Writ Petition, allowed. Udata Venkateswar Rao Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 285 = 2014(3) ALD 447 = 2014(3) ALT 460.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), 5-A, 9(3) and 10 – CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.14 and 300-A - It is a settled law that right to object for acquisition created u/Sec.5-A of Act for owner of property is a human right and is a right akin to fundamental right - Therefore, such a valuable and precious right cannot be dealt with nor can be permitted to be viewed in a routine, mechanical and cavalier manner - Authorities in present case did neither afford personal hearing to petitioner nor have they considered any objections raised by the petitioner herein - On other hand, authorities in an arbitrary manner issued Sec.9(3) and 10 notice and fixed the award enquiry during the currency of the status quo order - Totality of facts and circumstances in this case drives this court towards an irresistible conclusion that impugned action is highly preposterous and is liable to be deprecated and this court has absolutely no scintilla of hesitation to hold that there is absolutely no justification on part of respondent authorities in fixing award enquiry during subsistence of status quo order passéd by this court and passing award enquiry basing on said enquiry – Writ petition allowed. Meka Seetharatnam Vs. District Collector, Krishna District 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2015(2) ALD 747 = 2015(3) ALT 279.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), 5-A, 6,11-A & 17(4) - Lands acquired for purpose of house sites to poor - Enquiry u/Sec.5-A dispensed with invoking urgency clause - Possession taken on 10-6-1984 - Award passed on 21-11-2005 - Since admittedly award passed beyond two years from declaration u/Sec.6 dt.17-1-1987 entire proceedings stood lapsed u/Sec.11-A of Act - Consequently Government directed to publish fresh Notification u/Sec.4(1) - Petitioners/Govt. filed review petitions contending that since possession of land in question was taken on 10-6-1984, Sec.11-A of Act has no application and therefore it cannot be held that proceedings stood lapsed - Possession of land governed by notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act can be taken u/Sec.16 after passing of award where urgency clause u/Sec.17(4) is not invoked - In case where urgency clause invoked and enquiry u/Sec.5-A is dispensed with, Collector is entitled to take possession even before Award is made on expiry of 15 days from publication of notification u/Sec.9(1) of Act and thereupon such land shall absolutely vest in Govt. free from all encumbrances - In this case, admittedly possession taken on 10-6-1984 - Though by time declaration dt.28-4-1984 was published u/Sec.6, said declaration was quashed by High Court by Order dt.18-10-1985 - Since possession taken on 10-6-1984 was illegal and not in accordance with law, land did not statutorily vest in Govt. - Consequently it is mandatory to pass award within two years as laiddown u/Sec.11-A of Act - Admittedly Award passed on 21-11-2005 beyond two years from declaration - Hence entire proceedings stood lapsed - Order under review - Not erroneous - Review petitions, dismissed. District Collector, E.G. District Vs. Maddukuri Joga Rao 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 223 = 2008(4) ALD 691 = 2008(2) APLJ 75.

—Secs.4(1) (6), 11-A, and 23 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.14, 21, 300-A & 226 - Acquisition of land for construction of APSRTC Bus Depot - Petitioner contends that Corporation took possession of land in1971 to an extent of Acs.11.15 guntas including his father's land, but award passed only to extent of Ac.9.16 guntas, leaving out land owned by petitioner's father - Pursuant to representations of petitioner, after death of his father, RDO submitted detailed report after enquiry and verification of records, to Corporation - Inspite of repeated repre-sentations and legal notice to Corporation and District Collector, compensation not paid to petitioner - Hence writ petition, seeking direction to respondents to pay compensation contending that taking advance possession without tendering payment of 80% renders whole acquisition proceedings a nullity and as such respondents may be directed to initiate acquisition proceedings afresh - Respondents contend that since advance possession was taken, time limit stipulated u/Sec.11-A of Act not applicable and that writ petition suffers from huge and unexplained delay - DOCTRINE OF LATCHES - Petitioner is Govt., employee, had been going round Office of RDO, since 1988, and present writ petition filed after making relentless efforts to sensitize respondents to need for payment of compensation for land acquired without passing award and paying compensation - Since valuable right of petitioner to receive compensation for property taken over by respondents is involved, writ petition cannot be thrown out on ground of latches - Hence contention of respondents, rejected - Once lands stood vested in State, there is no question of divesting land and revesting land in erstwhile owners that only right is, as to determination of compensation and that Sec.11-A does not apply to cases of acquisition u/Sec.17 where possession was already taken and land stood vested in State - Even if petitioner's father did not participate in award enquiry, nothing prevented LAO from passing award in 1976 - Petitioner is entitled for payment of compensation for inordinate delay in passing award and wrongful deprival of use of property in addition to payment of market value as on date of publication of notification on 20-4-1972 - For purpose of computing damages, market value prevailing on 3-9-1998 shall be taken into consideration - To balance equities, date of filing of writ petition is taken as relevant date to award damages to petitioner - Accordingly, writ petition disposed of. E.P.Vinaya Sagar Vs. LAO-cum-RDO, Kamareddy, 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.)324 = 2008(4) ALD 303 = 2008(3) ALT 92.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Sec.4(1), r/w Sec.17(1) and 17(4), 5-A & 6 - Acquisition of land for proposed fourland road of National Highways - Division Bench of High Court confirmed notification holding that urgency shown for invoking Sec.5-A was justified as it was necessary to remove traffic congestion - Appellants contend that dispensation of Sec.5-A of Act in present situation not proper and there is no proper application of mind - Right to file objection u/Sec.5-A is a valuable right and Govternments are not given a free hand dispense with Sec.5-A and it is only a safe guard against arbitrary exercise of power by State - In this case, because of globalization of economy Indian economy is progressing with fast speed - Therefore in order to keep pace with speed, invitation of Sec.5-A has become imperative - Traffic congestion is a common experience of one and all and it is very difficult to negotiate with traffic congestion in some reasons - Therefore in present situation, it cannot be said that invocation of Sec.5-A is for ulterior purpose or is arbitrary exercise of power - Order passed by Division Bench of High Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Sheikhar Hotels Gulmohar Enclave Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 211 = 2008(4) ALD 141(SC) = AIR 2008 SC 2284 = 2008 AIR SCW 4084.

—Secs.4(1), 5-A,6 & 17(4) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.14 & 300-A - Land belonging to petitioner-Trust registered as charitable institution under Endowments Act acquired for purpose of providing house sites to S.C & Backward caste people by invoking urgency clause, u/Sec.17(4) and possession was taken on 6-8-1996 - Even after lapse of 10 years no enquiry was conducted for passing of Award - Petitioner contends that long delay in payment of compensation for lands acquired from petitioner vitiates very exercise of power under Act and that petitioner is entitled for restoration of possession of said land taken from it and is willing to refund adhoc compensation received by it with interest - Respondents contend that house pattas were also distributed to beneficiaries and they could not occupy sites and construct houses as there is no approach way to enter into sites from road points and that it is not possible to restore land as prayed by petitioner as almost all land acquisition proceedings except passing of Award had been completed including payment of 80% of compensation was completed - This is a pecular case where urgency clause had been invoked and advance possession had been taken but inspite of long lapse of time no Award has been made - In this case, where even after filing counter-affidavit specifically reiterating stand that rest of compensation is going to be paid or Award is going to be passed shortly way back in year 2006, even after long lapse of three years thereafter, when no further steps had been taken it may have to be taken that very invocation of urgency clause, in peculiar facts and circumstances may not be just and proper - Notification issued under Sec.4(1) of Act, quashed - Respondents are entitled to compensation amount already deposited and petitioner is entitled to restoration of lands in question - Writ petition, allowed. Sri Tummalapalli Krishnamurthy Vishranthi Bhavanam Vs. District Collector, Eluru 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 159.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), (6), 9(3), 10, 11(2), 12(2) & 18 - Land acquired for Outer Ring Road, encircling Hyderabad City - Notification published and declaration also published - Petitioners raised several objections for acquisition at various stages - Petitioners contend when they appeared before Special Deputy Collector (LAO) no survey or enquiry has taken place on 11-4-2007 but to their surprise watchman received notice dt.24-2-2010 purported to be u/Sec.12(2) of Act stating that award was passed on 18-4-2008 and that at no point of time they are served with notices u/sec.9(3) and 10 of Act and further challenge award in respect of their lands stating that neither any compensation was paid, nor offer to them - Object of issuing notice 12(2) of Act is to inform parties that an award is going to be pronounced - Award must naturally precede on enquiry u/Secs.9 & 10 of Act - Irrespective of nature of enquiry award must be pronounced on date specified u/Sec.11(2) of Act - Curiously enough, notice served on petitioners, in year 2010, made a mention to award dated 18-4-2008 - It is matter of common knowledge that Act was amended in year 1984, fixing time frame, for publication of notifications, pronouncement of award etc., - 3rd respondent/Spl. Deputy Collector does not appear to have kept that in view - Therefore very notice dt.24-2-2010 u/Sec.12(2) of Act is untenable in law - A perusal of award discloses that enquiry was held on 12-6-2006 - But there is no reference to notices dt.27-3-2008, issued u/Sec.9(3) and 10 of Act - If award enquiry was held on 12-6-2006, notices dt.27-3-2008 are totally untenable, if not meaningless - In field of compulsory acquisition of land, payment of compensation and passing of award for that purpose assumes utmost significance - Passing of award is an exercise in which LAO is supposed to deal with contentions of land owners; ascertain market value and determine compensation - Date of pronouncement of award assumes significance from point of view of seeking reference u/Sec.18 of Act - Such an important aspect dealing with valuable lands/rights of petitioners was reduced to an empty exercise by 3rd respondent/ Special Deputy Tahsildar - Award passed by 3rd respondent, unsustainable in law and accordingly set aside - Writ petition, allowed. G.Krishna Prasad Vs. State of A.P., 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 168 = 2011(4) ALD 51 = 2011(4) ALT 432.

—Secs.4(1), 5-A, 6 & 17(4) - Land belongs to Temple proposed to be acquired for providing house sites to poor and urgency Clause u/Sec.17(4) was invoked dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act - Contention that there is no justification for dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act, as purpose for house sites does not involve any urgency warranting invocation of Sec.17(4) and that subject land not fit for house sites, since it is wet land and far away from village and that there is no justification in acquiring endowment land which has been endowed for purpose of maintenance of Temple and that proposal to acquire said land is contrary to guidelines issued by State Govt., in G.O.Ms.No.456 - L.A.O contends that enquiry u/Sec.5-A dispensed with in view of urgency to provide house sites and that award enquiry held after issuing notices u/Sec.9(1), 9(10), 9(3) and 10 of Act and that Temple Authorities did not appear in enquiry and therefore market value tentatively fixed and 80% compensation tendered to Temple Authorities and that land was taken possession and therefore impugned acquisition proposal is legal and valid - Exception carved out u/Sec.17(4) of Act. wherein requirement of enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act is dispensed with and that power is exercisable in exceptional cases only on formation of opinion as to necessity to dispense with enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act and therefore, unless it is shown that there exists urgency for invoking urgency clause and that appropriate Govt. had formed its opinion on application of mind on basis of some material in that regard, enquiry u/Sec.5-A cannot be dispensed with - Power u/Sec.17(4) cannot be exercised in routine manner and dispensing with enquiry invoking urgency clause, should be founded on real urgency to carry out notified purpose on emergency basis and it is enjoined upon Govt., to form opinion as to existence of emergency on basis of some material - No material in forthcoming to justify is formation of opinion - What is more important is very nature of proposal i.e. providing house sites for construction of houses is itself time consuming - Nature of activity namely construction of houses, even after allotment of sites would take considerable time and therefore there can be no comprehension in saying that subject land is required on emergency basis - In case, where urgency clause has been invoked, possession cannot be taken until expiration of 15 days from date of publication notice as mentioned in Sec.9 as per Sec.17(1) and if possession is taken before expiry of 15 days same is not legal - In this case, possession was taken even before expiry of 15 days time which is clearly illegal being contrary to Sec.17(1) - Therefore it cannot be said land is vested in Govt. - Proposal to acquire subject land dispensing with Sec.5-A is untenable - Impugned Notification to extent of dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.17(4) of Act, set aside - Writ petition, allowed. Sri Seetharama Swamy Temple Vs. R.D.O. & L.A.O. Kakinada 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 114 = 2012(5) ALD 610.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), 5-A, 6 & 17(4) - 2nd. respondent/Special Collector, Land Acquisition invoked urgency clause u/Sec.17(4) proposing to acquire lands of petitioners for Irrigation Project and dispensed with enquiry u/sec.5-A and declaration u/Sec.6 also published - Petitioners contend that alignment of Canal was designed in such a way that it passes through private land, though vast extent of Govt., land is available and that acquisition would result in deprivation of their only source of livelyhoood - Respondent/Govt., contends that urgency clause was invoked to complete project at earliest - Officials of irrigation and Revenue Departments virtually have become insensitive to rights of citizens and enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act is only protection available to citizen in context of compulsory acquisition - Sec.17(4) of Act provides for dispensing with enquiry only when execution of work cannot wait for 30 days, which is needed for such enquiry - Present proposed acquisition of Irrigation Project and judicial notice can be taken of fact that not a drop of water has been let off into canals, which were drug and lined with cement concrete about 20 years ago - Many such canals constructed by spending huge amounts of public revenues have turned out to be dump yards and predominant object in executing such projects is to enable Contractors to earn sufficient revenue that too by borrowing huge amounts from World Bank and other agencies and unfortunately political executive is pursing some other objectives and official executive is becoming insensitive to problems of citizens - Special Collector feels that enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act is unnecessary in matters of this nature and in ultimate analysis, urgency expressed by his Contractors is becoming trying force for Special Collector to issue notification by dispensing with enquiry u/Sec.5-A - Writ petition allowed by imposing costs of Rs.10,000/- against Special Deputy Collector and declaration u/Sec.6 is set aside - Petitioners are entitled to submit their representations. V.Buchi Rajam Vs. State of A.P. 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 198 = 2012(4) ALD 442 = 2012(5) ALT 114.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), 5-A, 17(4) and 11-A - Petitiooners' lands were notified for acquisition under 4(1) of Act to provide house sites to landless poor and in view of urgency, enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act, was dispensed with by invoking provisions of Sec. 17(4) - Admittedly possession of land was taken leaving balance small extent of land in possessions of petitioners - Main plea of petitioners in writ petition is that for non-passing of award within period of two years as envisaged u/Sec.11-A of Act, entire land acquisition proceedings have lapsed - Respondent/LAO contends that after enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act was dispensed with, 80% compensation amount was offered to petitioners and after depositing same advance position was taken and notice u/Sec.9(1) and 10 of Act relating to constitution of Committee and negiotations that have taken place between petitioners and Committee and subsequently lay out for 202 plots was prepared and that 139 beneficiaries were identifie and Pattas were distributed to them - u/Sec.11-A of Act if Award is not passed within two years from publication of declaration u/Sec.6, land acquisition proceedings should lapse - Supreme Court held that where advance possession is taken, aquisitin proceedings would not lapse even if award is passed beyond period of two years from date of publication of declaration u/Sec.6-A of Act - In view of judgment of Supreme Court plea of petitioners that land acquisition proceedings have lapsed as award was not passed within period prescribed u/Sec.11-A of Act cannot be accepted - LAO directed to pass award u/sec.11(1) of Act after giving notice to petitioners within period of two months - Writ petition disposed of accordingly. Syed Habibulla Shah Vs. State of A.P. 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 318 = 2013(4) ALD 263 = 2013(3) ALT 624.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), 5-A, 17(4), 17(3-A) & 18 - Petitioners land acquired to proposed construction of 76/5 400 KV Sub-Station of 3rd respondent Power Grid Corporation - In view of urgency involved in matter enquiry u/Sec.5-A was dispensed with by invoking power u/Sec.17(4) - In award enquiry petitioners made a claim of Rs.25 lakhs per acre - Land Acquisition Officer passed award determining market value of land at rate of Rs.2.24 lakhs - 1st respondent contends that RDO himself correspondent with 3rd respondent Power Grid Corporation indicating tentative value of land to be fixed u/Sec.17(3-A) of Act at rate of Rs.10 lakhs press solatium and interest and 3rd respondent/Grid deposit amount accordingly - Respondents 1 & 2 R.D,O & Collector that procedure prescribed under Act was strictly followed and market value was determined on basis of statitics that are available for lands in immediate neighbourhood and in case petitioners are not satisfied with award they can avail remedy u/Sec.18 - 3rd respondent/Grid admits that land was acquired at their instance and so far as quantum of compensation is concerned that 1st respondent/Collector indicated tentative market value of land to be proposed to be acquired at Rs.10 lakhs per acre and taking into account a sum of Rs.8,30,12,800/- representing 80% market value, proportionate salatium interest and additional market value was deposited and they do not have any objection for payment of compensation on that basis - In this case, land owned by petitioners aggregating about 38 acre for benefit of 3rd respondent/Grid by initiating proceedings under Act and by invoking urgency clause u/Sec.17(4) and that compensation awarded by 1st respondent/RDO is totally inadequate and disproportionate - In ordinary course of things, owner of land acquired by Govt. has to seek remedy u/sec.18 of Act, if he is not satisfied with the compensation awarded by LAO - This case, however presents typical features - Sec.17(3-A) of Act mandates that whenever enquiry u/Sec.5-A is dispensed with, Govt., or agency for whose benefit land is acquired shall be under obligation to deposit 80% tentative compensation - In this case, total value fixed at Rs.13 lakhs inclusive of salotium and 80% thereof being Rs.10,40,000/- per acre was required to be deposited and such deposit made by 3rd respondent/Grid - A fair exercise will be one in which market value fixed in award u/Sec.12 of Act is not less than, one that is taken into account while complying with Sec.17(3-A) - If compensation in award passed u/Sec.12 is less than, offered u/Sec.17(3-A) of Act a serious anomaly comes into existence and exercise under taken by LAO, yet either stage would tend to become dubious, if not imperfect and arbitrary - Petitioner allowed with following direction; a)the 1st respondent shall forthwith pay the compensation @ Rs.10,40,000/-, per acre, inclusive of the market value and all statutory benefits, towards 80% of the compensation in deposit with him, to the petitioners, within 15 days from today;b)The 3rd respondent shall deposit the balance of 20% of the compensation with the 1st respondent within four weeks from today, and the former shall pay the same to the respective petitioners, within 15 days thereafter; and c) the award, dated 10.02.2011, shall stand modified to the extent indicated above, and that the petitioners shall not have any further claim against the respondents, including the right to seek reference to civil Court. K.Swamy Reddy Vs. Revenue Divisional Officer 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 84 = 2012(5) ALD 282 = 2012(6) ALT 12.

—- Secs.4(1), 5-A, 6 & 17(4) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.300-A - RULES FRAMED UNDER ACT, Rule 3-B - 1st respondent /Special Collector proposed to acquire lands of petitioners for purpose of excavation of distributory to main canal of Irrigation Scheme without considering objections raised by petitioners and without application of mind mechanically and without providing any opportunity or personal hearing, by invoking provisions of Sec.17(4) and issued Draft Notification - Petitioners contend that number of objections raised before respondents and respondents failed to consider any one of them from proper perspective and that hearing objections u/Sec.5-A must be of an effective one and not mere formality and there must be proper application of mind with regard to public purpose and that all the petitioners are small farmers and eking out their livelihood by doing agricultural operations in their respective lands - In this case, reading of impugned proceedings of 1st respondent/Special Collector rejected objection of petitioners for acquisition manifestly shows that there is absolutely no objective consideration nor pragmatic approach adopted by 1st respondent while considering objections raised by petitioners except observing that proposed acquisition is inevitable to make requirements of requisition Department - Right to property is a constitutional right as enshrined under Art.300-A of Constitution of India which mandates that no citizen shall be deprived of his/her property except in accordance with law - Farmers are back bone of our Indian economy and process of urbanization, agriculture is getting crippled day by day and number of farmers growing food grains is getting diminished - Indiscriminate acquisition may also lead to unrest in Society and compulsory acquisition may some times lead to displacing farmers from their native villages and may lead to severance of bond from native habit, which would disturb social net work also and it may ultimately result in unwarranted, un healthy excessive urbanization - Non-consideration of objections in true letter and spirit of Provisions of law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court would render very proceedings of 1st respondent/Special Collector and declaration u/Sec.6 of Act null and void and unsustainable in eye of law - Evidently respondent Authorities did not undertake objective consideration of objections submitted by petitioners and 1st respondent failed to record any reasons for rejection of objections submitted by petitioners - Writ petition allowed in part setting aside proceedings of 1st respondent/ Special Collector and draft declaration issued by him - Respondent are directed to conduct enquiry u/Sec.5-A of Act by giving opportunity of being heard to petitioners and proceed in accordance with law by taking into consideration subsequent developments. Grandhi Narayana Rao Vs. Special Collector, E.G. District 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 41 = 2014(2) ALD 202 = 2014(2) ALT 668.

—Secs.4(1), 6 - RIGHT TO FAIR COMPENSATION AND TRANSPARENCY IN LAND ACQUISITION, REHABILITATION AND RESETTLEMENT ACT, 2013, Sec.24(2) - Writ Petition filed u/Art.226 of Constitution of India challenging draft Notification issued by District Collector, Srikakulam, under provisions of Secs.4(1) and 6 of Land Acquisition Act and Award passed by Land Acquisition Officer cum Revenue Divisional Officer, as illegal, arbitrary, unconstitutional and against principles of natural justice -Respondents adopted arbitrary and illegal procedure and there is no evidence to show that respondent-authorities took possession of petitioner's property in accordance with Sec.16 of

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

Land Acquisition Act by holding panchanama - Petitioners have been in possession of the property ever since the date of purchase of subject lands - Even as per respondents, nobody came forward to receive compensation amount as per the award and awarded amount is now lying in the revenue deposit - Held, impugned proceedings are also liable to be invalidated in view of 2013 Act and impugned proceedings are highly iniquitous, unreasonable, preposterous, arbitrary, illegal and opposed to very spirit and object of the Land Acquisition Act - Writ Petition Allowed and impugned proceedings set aside. Jagannadha Industries Vs. District Collector, Srikakulam District 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 55 = 2014(6) ALD 627.

—Secs.4(1) & 6, Amendment Act, 68 of 1984, Sec.73(a) - Respondents/Govt., proposed to acquire endowment land belonging to petitioner for providing house sites to weaker sections of Society issued Notification - Award of enquiry held and possession of land was taken on 10-4-1996 and pattas were also issued to eligible beneficiaries - No further steps have been taken by respondents for passing award and paying compensation - Hence present writ petition to pay market value of property as on market date - Respondent contends that as land in question belongs to Endowment Department, market value has to be fixed by State Level Committee constituted for this purpose and Collector submitted proposal to Commissioner and market value of land is yet to be received from Commissioner's Office - In this case, there is marked negligence on part of functionaries, who are concerned with fixation of market value and fixation of award and supine indiffernce exhibited by these functioniries has deprived petitioner of its valuable right to receive compensation and utilize same - Sweepting amendments introduce to provisions of Act by Act.68 of 1984 and these amendments in Tribunal include reduction of time limit for making declaration u/Sec.6 of Act from 3 years to one year from date of publication of Notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act and passing of award within two years from date of publication of declaration u/sec.6 of Act - If statutory benefits under Act are extended to petitioner on amount of compensation same will not neutrailise inflation - Market value as in year 1996 would have been too meagre compared to present day market value of lands, as appreciation of land value through out country is common phenomenon - In this case, only way to redress rightful and legitimate grievance of petitioner is to direct respondents to assess market value of property by advancing date of notification to 5-2-2013 and extend all statutory benefits thereon to petitioner on market value so fixed till date of payment - Respondents are directed to pass award and pay amount within four months - Writ petition, allowed. Sri Narendra-Veerabhadra Swamivarla Devasthanam Vs. State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 70 = 2013(4) ALD 365.

—Secs.4(1), 18 & 23(1-A) - Lands belonging to appellants/claimants acquired by Govt., for purpose of formation of Road by issuing notification u/Sec.4(1) - Land Acquisition Officer, determined marked value at rate of Rs.95,000/- per acre - On reference, trial Court after elaborate enquiry and by considering some registered sale deeds enhanced compensation from Rs.95,000/- to Rs. 2,07,811/- per acre - Hon'ble Supreme Court has been considering enhancement of compensation by taking judicial notice of esclating prizes in land values, especially after 1998-2000 and keeping this aspect in mind in facts of present case, it is appropriate to grant compensation at Rs.2,15,000/- per acre - Accordingly appellants/claimants are entitled to compensation at Rs.2,15,000/- per acre with all statutory benefits - Appellant/claimants are entitled for 12% additional market value and solatium in terms of Sec.23(1-A) of Act from date of notification - Appeals filed by claimants partly allowed - Appeals filed by LAO, dismissed. Spl. Deputy Collector, LAO, Kurnool Vs. K.Shobha Rani 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 90 = 2014(1) ALD 435 = 2013(6) ALT 37.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.4(1), 6, 18,30 and 31(2) – Pursuant to acquisition of land belonging to petitioners, Land Acquisition Officer passed awards directing amounts be deposited in Court - Petitioners contend that there is no basis for 1st respondent Land Acquisition Officer in directing deposit of amount in Court and that Act is self-contained code and circumstances under which Land Acquisition Officer can make reference to civil Court, are provided for u/Secs.18 or 30 of Act and that steps taken by 1st respondent are contrary to law and that necessity to deposit compensation would have arisen if only a reference was made u/Secs.18 or 30 - Sec.31 deals with payment or deposit of compensation – A perusal of this provision discloses that necessity for making deposit of compensation in a Court would arise, if only, person interested as mentioned in award do not agree to receive it when tendered and section is very clear to effect that deposit, if at all is to be in Court to which a reference u/Sec.18 would be made – When it is not even pointed out that there is any title dispute, question of making deposit of amount in a Court is totally illegal - Impugned awards are set aside to extent they directed remission of amount in Court – LAO directed to issue revised orders in accordance with law, without touching quantum of compensation – Writ petitions, allowed. B.Lakshmi Suseela Vs. Spl.Collector (L.A) 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 65.

—Secs.4(1), 18, 51-A & 54 – Government proposed to acquire lands of appellants for purpose of accommodating persons displaced in course of acquisition of land for Steel Plant – L.A.O. passed award fixing market value at Rs.1,270/- per acre for dry land and Rs. 2,250/- per acre for wet land - When matter referred to Court, trail court enhanced market value to Rs.1600/- per acre for dry land and Rs.2,667/- per acre for wet land – Hence present Appeal filed u/Sec.54 of Act seeking further enhancement - Law laid down by Supreme Court is that when comparable sales are taken into account, it is safer for to take higher one into account - In this case Exs.A-1 and A-2 are taken into account, compensation work out about Rs.10 lakhs per acre and even if 50% is deducted, it will be Rs.5 lakhs per acre - Appeal allowed by enhancing market value of acquired land to Rs.1 lakh per acre. Narla Susheela Vs. LAO, Spl.Deputy Collector, L.A., Steel Plant, Visakha, 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 320 = 2014(3) ALD 481 = 2014(5) ALT 347.

—Secs.4(1),18 & 54 – Land of appellants acquired for purpose of providing houses sites - Land Acquisition officers fixed market value at Rs.2000/- per acre and in reference, Trail Court enhanced compensation to Rs.10,000/- - Appellants Contend that market value of acquired land at relevant point of time was not less then Rs.50 per sq.yard since land existing village and located between Railway line and Highway - Basing on Document the market value for acquired land can be enhanced to Rs.20/- per sq.yard - Appeal allowed enhancing market value to Rs.20/- per sq.yard. Jali Narqasaiah Vs. L.A. Officer, Nalgonda District 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 45 = 2014(4) ALD 66 = 2014(5) ALT 183

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—-Secs.4(1), 54 - Question that was needed to be answered was whether capitalisation method based upon income derived from land should be taken into account or its potential value should be taken into account.

Held, hence, keeping in mind proximate closeness of lands acquired to State Highway and also renowned pilgrim centre of Kondagattu Anjaneyaswamy temple and also closeness to JNTU college of Engineering, R.T.C. bus depot and other educational institutions and commercial establishments situated within limits of village, Court consider that Ex.A.5 ought to have been taken as a basis for determining land value instead of capitalisation method.

Railways have to undertake lot of developmental works before Broad Guage Railway Line is laid thereon - Firstly, land has got to be cleared and levelled - It has to be consolidated, compacted and a track bed of certain strength and capacity has to be developed - May be, for formation of a Railway line, there may be no necessity to form roads, or water line mains or regular drainage facility or street lighting as is normally undertaken while developing a lay-out - Therefore, 50% of cost reflected in Ex.A.5 is liable to be deducted towards developmental costs - When so done, land value would come to Rs.3,63,000/- per acre (Rs.7,26,000/2=3,63,000), and it can be approximated to Rs.3,50,000/- per acre.

Therefore, allow this appeal by fixing market value at Rs.3,50,000/- per acre while retaining all other statutory benefits, which reference Court has awarded. Gaddameedi Narsa Goud Vs. LAO, Spl.Deputy Collector,Karimnagar 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 143 = 2016(4) ALD 711 = 2016(4) ALT 231.

—Sec.5-A - "Acquisition of wet lands for providing house sites" - Petitioners/ agricultural wet lands notified for acquisition for providing house sites to landless poor persons - Petitioners raised objection that lands proposed to be acquired are agricultural wet lands and there are vast extents of Govt., lands available for acquisition - When dry lands of Govt., assigned or unassigned, are available, no justification for acquiring agricultural wet lands of petitioners for providing house sites to landless poor persons - Even according to Govt. policy, as far as, acquisition of agricultural wet lands needs to be avoided, for, Nation is already facing scarcity of food grains - With acquisition of more and more agricultural lands and increase in population, shortage of food grains will become more acute - This is not in National interest - Impugned acquisition proceedings, quashed - Writ petitions, allowed. Abdul Khader Vs. Government of A.P. 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 358 = 2013(4) ALD 269 = 2013(3) ALT 672.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.11(1) (ii) and 18(1) - Power of Collector to obtain reassessment report relating to Subabul trees existing in acquired land - Collector not accepting evaluation report of Subabul trees submitted by Divisional Forest Officer as same was comparatively higher than assessment made by Officials of Forest Department, consequently directed DFO to re-examine valuation - Hence, writ petition filed - Single Judge passed judgment that since Court is satisfied with assessment report made in relation to Subabul trees already being just and proper same to be adopted - Sec.11 of L.A Act, makes it clear that power to determine compensation vests in Collector and amount of compensation to which a claimant is entitled has to be determined by Collector as per his own opinion - It is for him and him alone to decide as to what material is relevant and what is irrelevant- Hence writ cannot lie to command Collector to consider or not to consider any material relating to determination of compensation and rejection of such objection by Collector is not amenable to extraordinary jurisdiction of High Court - U/Sec.18(1) of L.A Act, an interested person has right to apply for reference be it in respect of measur-ament of land, amount of compensation, persons to whom it is payable, or apportionment of compensation among persons interested - Claimant/person interested has every right of participation in any enquiry and he has a right to bring material supporting his claim to notice of Collector during enquiry and has a right to participate - Judgment of single Judge, set aside -Writ appeal, allowed. Govt. of A.P. Vs. Avirneni Rama Krishna 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 240.

—Secs.11(2) & 18, 4 (1) & 6 – "Consent award" - Petitioners' land acquired for purpose of allotment of house sites to weaker section in year 2003 and possession was taken without paying offered amount – Collector passing consent award in year 2006 – Hence writ petition filed by petitioners seeking declaration that award is arbitrary and illegal and contrary to provisions of Act - Respondent/Govt., contends that possession was taken in 2003 with consent of petitioners who agreed to receive certain amount towards compensation and subsequently LAO passed award u/Sec.11(2) pursuant to notification u/Sec.4(1) dt.18-4-2005 and that inspite of notices petitioners did not turn up to receive compensation and that writ petition is misconceived - Petitioners contend that award cannot be termed as a consent award and same is liable to be set aside since no opportunity was given to petitioners to participate in award enquiry - Consent award u/Sec.11(2) of Act can be made by Collector on being satisfied that all persons interested in land who appeared before him have agreed in writing and after notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act is published - In this case, admittedly petitioners agreed to receive compensation at rate of a certain amount per acre when advance possession of land was taken in 2003 - Long after notification u/Sec.4(1) of Act was published in 2005 – Hence it is not to Collector to relay upon such agreement entered into prior to notification while passing impugned award - Impugned award cannot be treated as consent award u/Sec.11(2) of Act – Hence if petitioners are not satisfied with quantum of compensation awarded, can seek reference to civil Court u/Sec.18 of Act. M.Lingeswara Reddy Vs. Government of A.P. 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 324 = 2008(6) ALD 768 = 2008(4) APLJ 5 (SN).

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.16 & 48 - A.P. (TELANGANA AREA) LAND REVENUE ACT, 1317 Fasli, Sec.54-A - "Reconveyance" - "Public Interest Litigation" - Land belonging to husband of 3rd respondent acquired in 1965 under provisions of L.A Act and subsequently reconveyed to her - Petitioners filed writ petition in public interest - Petitioners have not filed present writ petition to subserve interest of anybody else and there is no hidden agenda in this case - Merely stating that petition has been "filed in public interest and in good faith" does not convert into public interest litigation - Petitioners have clearly made out a private grievance and have not styled their grievance as public interest issue - However the contents of writ petition deserve consideration - In this case, Collector issued notification u/Sec.4 of L. A Act proposing to acquire land for purpose of construction of sub-divisional camp building and staff quarters and thereafter issued declaration u/Sec.6 and award also passed and possession of land was taken by Collector - After lpase of 40 years, 3rd respondent's husband made representation to Minister, Major Irrigation that she would like to have her land and same was reconveyed to her since land not required by Govt., by any public purpose now or in future - Grievance of petitioners in present writ petition is that if respondent no.3 is entitled to reconveryance of her land then they too or so entitled and alternatively petitioners are of view that reconveyance of land in favour of respondent is illegal and arbitrary and deserves to be set aside - A perusal of Sec.54-A shows that if agricultural land is no longer required patta thereof shall be made in favour person from whom land was required provided that person consents to refund compensation originally paid to him - Sec.16 provides that where Collector has made an award u/Sec.11 of L.A Act, he may take possession of land which shall thereupon vest absolutely in Govt., free from all encumbrances - Sec.48 of Act provides where possession of land not been taken, Govt., is at liberty to withdraw from acquisition - From this it follows that if possession has been taken, Govt., cannot ordinarily withdraw from acquisition - Sec.54-A of Telangana Act, however permits reconveyance of land, if compensation is repaid by landowner to state - There is no reference to possession of land having been taken - On harmonious reading of Sec.16 and 48 of L.A Act and Sec.54-A of Telangana Act after possession of acquired land is taken, ordinarily, Government cannot reconvey it to owner - Following view laid down by Supreme Court, actions of official respondents suffer from two vices; first of all, there is a defect in reconveyance of acquired land inasmuch as it has been achieved through an executive order, which is not permissible and basis for reconveyance is opinion rendered by project authorities and Chief Engineer which is also not permissible - Secondly since possession of land has been taken by District Collector and acquired land has vested absolutely in Govt., free from all encumbrances, re-conveyance cannot be made as matter of course, as has been done in present case - Re-conveyance of land in favour of respondent no.3 by impugned letters is vitiated and is illegal and arbitrary - Impugned order set aside- Writ petition, allowed. Topara Rajender Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2012(1) Law Summary 112 = 2012(2) ALD 222 = 2012(4) ALT 698.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Sec.17 (3-A) - A.P. CHARITABLE AND HINDU RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS AND ENDOWMENTS ACT, 1987 - Acquisition of 'endowment lands' for implementation of irrigation projects - In W.P.M.P interim directions issued that no endowment land shall be acquired by State or sold by temples without permission of Court - State filing Applications to vacate or suitably modify interim orders so as to enable State to acquire some endowment lands for implementation of some schemes contending that if order is permitted to operate forever, overall development of State would be adversely affected - Original petitioners contend that it is pious obligation on part of State to protect such lands and that "the lands endowed to the religious institutions which were safe and secure during alien rules for centuries together, became vulnerable not only to private encroachments but even unlawful occupation by the Govt..." - Therefore, State should not be permitted to dispose of endowment land in any manner - For purpose of implementing irrigation schemes, State has also to acquire lands belonging to citizens and it cannot be denied that right to acquire lands belonging to citizens is a sovereign right of State and unless State exercises its power of eminent domain, it cannot function effectively so as to implement irrigation schemes - If lands of citizens can be acquired under provisions of Act upon payment of compensation, no reason to restrain State from acquiring endowment lands especially when they are required for implementation of irrigation schemes - Though obligation has been cast upon State under provisions of Endowments Act to protect endowment lands, but that obligation would in no way curtail right of eminent domain of State and, therefore, it would not be just and proper for Court to restrain State from acquiring endowment lands especially when lands are required for a very laudable purpose of implementing irrigation schemes etc - Interim order is modified to effect that it would open to State to acquire those lands which are required for any irrigation purpose including purpose of construction of dams or water storage tanks or for purpose of construction of canals - Applications, allowed to above extent. District Collector Prakasam Dt. Vs. A.P. Archaka Samakhya,Tenali 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 251 = 2008(4) ALD 1 = 2008(3) ALT 421 = 2008(2) APLJ 153 = AIR 2008 AP 150.

—Sec.18 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.226 - 'Reference' - 'Doctrine of laches' - Petitioner's land acquired for house sites - After payment of first instalment towards award under protest, petitioner applied for reference on same day regarding enhancement - As no action was taken for more than 20 years petitioner caused legal notice - RDO rejecting claim of petitioner on ground that claim suffers from laches - Sec.18 of Act vests a valuable right in owner of land and if he is not satisfied with quantum of compensation fixed by LAO, to refer dispute regarding market value of acquired land to civil Court - If he satisfies requirement of provisions of Sec.18 of Act by seeking such reference within time prescribed, there is no option left to LAO other than referring dispute to civil Court - Constitution of India, Art.226, does not in express terms prescribe limitation for exercise of power by High Courts - If petitioner is able to make out a case on merits, he cannot be non-suited on jejune grounds of delay and laches or like, provided that result of writ petition is not likely to affect third party rights - DOCTRINE OF LACHES - While doctrine of laches is not an absolute and unqualified one, and one of main tests being applied by Supreme Court is, whether due to long lapse of time, any rights came to be vested in others and granting of relief would unsettle such rights and cause prejudice to their interest - Petitioner cannot be non-suited and writ petition cannot be thrown out merely on ground that he did not assert his legal right for period of 20 years - No third party rights have crept in during period of delay and by referring dispute to civil Court, none of settled rights of respondents or third parties will get unsettled - Reasons put forth by 1st respondent/Collector in rejecting petitioner's request for reference - Not, justified - Respondents, directed to refer claim of petitioner to civil Court. P.Chandrasekhara Reddy Vs. District Collector,Mahaboobnagar Dt. 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 411 = 2008(4) ALD 797 = 2008(4) ALT 686.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Sec.18 - Land comprises of coconut tope acquired for purpose of canal and possession taken - LAO fixed total compensation to certain amount and reference Court enhanced by applying "multiplier of 20" to asses value of fruit bearing trees - Hence petitioner questoned "multiplier of 20" to assess vaule of fruit bearing trees - Coconut tope - Yields of coconuts and value assessed thereof - Value fixed by reference Court by adopting "multiplier 20" cannot be sustained - Proper multiplier in respect of coconut thope is 10 - Appropriate multiplier for coconut trees to be adopted is 10 and compesation is payable accordingly - Appeal partly allowed. Spl. Deputy Collector & LAO, Yeluru Vs. Bayya Janki 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 231 = 2009(2) ALD 144 = 2009(2) ALT 683 = 2009(1) APLJ 124.

—-Sec.18 - Collector published notification under Act, proposing to acquire land for purpose for providing house sites to poor - Possession of land was taken and land acquisition Officer passed an award fixing market value at Rs.4,500 per acre - Claimant protested for fixation of market value, sought for reference to be made to civil Court.

Before reference Court claimant sought for compensation at Rs.50-60 per square yard on premise, that land was acquired for providing house sites to poor, hence market value should be determined on square yard basis.

Land Acquisition Officer, relied on basis of sale deed of year 1979, which is basis for him to arrive at market value in his award.

Reference Court fixed market value at Rs.8000/- per acre.

Held, market value fixed at Rs.8000 per acre being too low, unreasonable, unrealistic and is not based on vital factor that it is adjoining the old Abadi - Court feel that it would be fair and reasonable to fix at Rs.25,000/- per acre and accordingly its value has been fixed at Rs.25,000 per acre and on that basis all other statutory benefits other than one covered by Sec.23(1) of Act shall be worked out. 2016(1) P.Jaya Prakash Rao Vs. State Law Summary (A.P.) 374 = 2016(5) ALD 56.

—Secs.18 & 30 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.1, Rule 10 - Application filed for reference u/Sec.18 for fixing market value while receiving compensation under protest as per award - On death of original claimant legal representatives were impleaded as respondents 3 to 5 - Deceased 2nd respondent in his counter specifically stated that 6th respondent is his younger brother and were co-owners of acquired land and he was cultivating till acquisition and he had no objection to pay half of enhanced compensation to 6th respondent - Respondents 3 to 5 who were impleaded as L.Rs of 2nd respondent however claimed that they alone or entitled to receive enhanced compensation excluding 6th respondent who had no right - Trial Court held that 6th respondent being younger brother of 2nd respondent is entitled to half share in compensation - Trial Court has also noted even during award enquiry 2nd respondent admitted that 6th respondent is entitled to half share which was accordingly referred to in award by LAO - Consequently 6th respondent was held entitled to half share of compensation - Respondent 3 to 5 filed appeal contending that in reference u/ Sec.18 of Act, reference Court has no power to adjudicate with regard to apportionment of compensation and reference Court cannot go beyond order of reference and that 6th respondent is neither a proper nor a necessary party - The Larger Bench of High Court of A.P. has clearly laid down that a person may not be entitled to be impleaded as a party only for purpose of enhancement of compensation, but if any other question arises, which touches issue of his entitlement or apportionment to amount of compen-sation, same can be considered by reason of application under Or.1, Rule 10 of CPC - Principle thus laid down by Larger Bench that procedure are only hand maids of justice, which can be suitably moulded to do complete justice between parties, is sufficient answer to claim of appellants that course could not have been had to Or.1, Rule 10 of CPC to implead 6th respondent - Reference Court did not travel beyond order of reference and was only considering and deciding to question that arose subsequent to reference due to death of 2nd respondent which cannot be considered to be travelling beyond reference and such determination cannot be said to be one which should have been subject matter of an independent reference u/Sec.30, 31 of Act, all over again - Impleading 6th respondent after death of 2nd respondent and declaring him to be entitled to half share in compensation by reference Court not illegal or unsustainable - Appeal, dismissed. D.Lakshminarayana Rao Vs. D. Gopalakrishna Rao 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 212.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Sec.18,11-A, 23 & 51-A – L.A.O. passed orders and fixed market value at Rs.6,700/ - and Rs.8,000/- etc., per acre - Present Appeals arose in all L.A.O.Ps out of reference made u/Sec.18 - In this case unwarranted negative attitude exhibited by Trial Court has resulted in denial of just and reasonable compensation to poor farmers for past quarter of century - Appellant contends that trial Court turned blind eye to undisputed oral and documentary evidence on record and dismissed L.A.O.Ps by citing totally untenable reasons - Trial Court has adopted a negative, inconsistent and unwarranted approach ignoring mandate u/Sec.51-A and 23 of Act - Determination or consistency if at all on part of Trial Court was to deny any enhancement of compensation to claimants before it, at any cost, whatever be evidence on Record or grounds pleaded by to farmers whose lands are acquired - In this case if subsequent Notifications are to be taken as basis corresponding enhancement has to be ordered - Present market value for lands similar to those acquired from appellants was in range of Rs.25,000/- to Rs.30,000/- per acre in the year to 1983 - Hence appeals are allowed by enhancing market value to Rs.25,000 per acre. Ganesuri Nageswara Rao Vs. LAO & Spl.Tahsildar(LA) Ponnu 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 20 = 2014(4) ALD 89 = 2014(5) ALT 76.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.18 & 12 - Petitioners contend that even though their lands were acquired and award passed in year 2001 their claim for enhancement has not been referred to Civil Court u/Sec.18 of Act and that they received compensation amounts under award under protest and thereafter they have made number of representations to 2nd respondent/Collector for reference of dispute to Civil Court u/Sec.18 of Act - Govt., contends that pleadings in writ petition are vague and petitioners have not stated as to true date on which they have received award notices u/sec.12 (2) of Act and whether request made by them for reference within stipulated time of two months as envisaged u/Sec.12(2) of Act - It is trile that any request for reference of dispute to civil Court shall be made u/Sec.18 of Act within two months of receipt of notice u/Sec.12(2) of Act - In this case, even according to petitioners, award passed as far back as 2001 and they allowed more than nine years to pass by before they woke up and aproached respondent no.2/Collector with request for reference - Writ petition, dismissed. D.R. Krishna Reddy Vs. Government of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 338 = 2012(1) ALD 424 = 2012(2) ALT 331.

—Secs.18 & 13 - A.P. STATE AMENDMENT TO SEC.12 OF ACT - Compensation - "Competing claims" - Proprties of petitioners and some brothers were notified for acquisition - Apprehending that LAO may pass award in favour of private respondents, petitioner filed writ petition in which orders are obtained for giving liberty to petitioner to participate proceedings in award - Inspite of claim made by petitioners LAO has not referred matter to Competent civil Court u/Sec.6 of Act as directed by High Court and instead LAO is seeking to disburse compensation to private respondents - When "competing claims" were made for payment of compensation, Collector is left with two options viz., either to refer disputes to competent civil Court for adjudication or to award compensation in favour of all or some of claimants - In latter eventuality any person interested who has not accepted award, may make written application, to Collector for reference of dispute inter alia as to persons to whom compensation is payable to civil Court u/Sec.18 of Act - In this case, as notice of award is not stated to have been issued so far limitation for making such request for reference u/Sec.18 of Act has not been commenced - Therefore right of petitioners for seeking reference of dispute u/Sec.18 of Act is well preserved - Petitioners are at liberty to make written representation to Respondent no.3/Dy. Special Collector, Land Acquisition and if such request is made 3rd respondent shall refer dispute to competent civil Court u/Sec.18 of Act - If request is made within one month compensation shall not be disbursed even thereafter till conclusion of proceedings u/Sec.18 of Act. Bodela Siva Bhaskar Reddy Vs. Government of A.P. 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 90 = 2013(2) ALD 586.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.18, 28-A - As per Sec. 28-A of Act, the application has to be made within three months from the date of award of the Court - In instant case reference court answered the reference by virtue of order dated 9-11-1990 and the petitioners submitted the application on 11-12-1990 - As per the counter affidavit the respondents could not find the application of the petitioners in the record - While referring to the same, it is emphatically argued by the learned Government Pleader that in view of the same, the petitioners are not entitled for any relief from this Court - The said defence sought to be canvassed and pressed into service by the respondents, in the considered opinion of this Court, cannot stand for the twin tests of reasonableness and rationality in the absence of any denial of genuineness of the application and the postal acknowledgment produced by the petitioners along with the present writ petition - The aspect of delay, if any, on the part of the petitioners in approaching this court, in the opinion of this Court, is of no consequence in view of the object behind the enactment and the intention of the legislature in incorporating Sec.28-A of the Act - The contention advanced by the learned Government Pleader on laches and delay is also of no consequence and deserves to be rejected in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court - In the instant case also there is absolutely no involvement of any third party rights - Therefore, on the ground of delay, the petitioners cannot be non-suited and deprived of their legitimate claim under Sec.28-A - Writ petition is allowed, directing the respondents to consider the claim of the petitioners for enhancement of compensation. Kunapureddy Kondal Rao Vs. Land Acquisition Officer 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 130 = 2015(1) ALD 678 = 2015(2) ALT 78.

—Secs.23, 11,18 & 54 - As against award passed by Land Acquisition Officer landowners preferred reference, contending that land in question has great potential value and that market value fixed by LAO is quite inadequate and besides they are also entitled to statutory benefit under Act 68 of 1984 - Tribunal fixed market value at Rs.6 per sq.ft. - Contention of appellant before High Court that Tribunal had not properly evaluated evidence on record and wrongly placed reliance on a sale deed relating to a small piece of land and that without any proper appreciation of materials on record, compensation enhanced - Where large area is subject-matter of question, rate at which small plots are sold cannot be said to be a safe criteria - It cannot, however, be laid down as an absolute proposition that rates fixed for small plots cannot be basis for fixation of rate - Where there is no other material it may in appropriate cases be open to adjudicating Court to make comparison of prices paid for small plots of land - However, in such cases necessary deductions/adjustments have to be made while determining prices - A land may be plain or uneven, soil of land may be soft or hard bearing on foundation for purpose of making construction - Fact that an area is developed or adjacent to a developed area will not ipso facto make every land situated in area also developed to be valued as a building site or plot, particularly when vast tracts are acquired for development purpose. Lucknow Development Authority Vs. Krishna Gopal Lahori 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 118 = 2008(1) ALD 18(SC) = AIR 2008 SC 399 = 2007 AIR SCW 7144.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs.23 & 18 - Determination of compensation - Lands acquired for public purpose of establishing Medical College etc - Collector fixing compensation at Rs.40,000 per acre - On reference, District Judge enhanced same to Rs.72,600/- - On appeal to High Court single Judge enhanced compensation to Rs.99,668/- and on LPA Division Bench enhanced same to Rs.1,25,000/- per acre - In this case, acquired lands are abutting to developed town and can easily be said to be a part and parcel of said developed town, having a great potential - Matter has been approached rather casually by Division Bench - Matter remitted to Division Bench for fresh consideration. State of Haryana Vs. Gurbax Singh (Dead) by LRs 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 144.

—Secs.23 & 18 -'Market Value'- 'Determination of" ' - Value mentioned in sale agreement - In absence of any date of sale agreement, sale agreement could not have been constituted basis for determination of market value of land in 1983 when land was acquired in present case - Division Bench of High Court was right in taking view that said agreements cannot constitute basis for determination of market value of acquired land - District Judge in his order held that after considering all oral and docuentary evidence adduced by parties, that market value of land acquired in present case has to be determined on basis of its potentiality for urban development and not on basis of revenue or agricultural classification of land as done by Collector because land acquired in present case had a great potential value for urban purposes i.e., Commercial, Industrial and residential - Contention of appellant that a cut of 60% should have been applied to rate, found no merit - Cut applied by D.B of High Court in impugned judgment reducing value from Rs.176 per sq.yards to Rs.120 was just and reasonable in facts of present case - Appeals, dismissed. National Fertilizers Ltd.,Vs. Jagga Singh 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 119 = 2012(2) ALD 30(SC) = 2011 AIR SCW 6659 = AIR 2012 SC 2535.

—Secs.23 & 24 - "Determination of compensation" - Lands acquired for establishment of Jail - Land acquisition Collector awarded compensation at certain rate per acre and Reference Court increased compensation uniformly and High Court dismissed Appeals of landowners for further enhancement - Hence, present appeals contending that compensation awarded is inadequate - Appellants contend that having regard to purpose of acquisition (construction of Jail) which does not involve any development activity, no deduction should be made from market value of small development plots and that as acquisition was for construction of a Jail, there will be no need set apart any part of land for formation of roads, drains, parks etc - Contention of appellants proceeds on misunderstanding of legal possession relating to deductions - CONCEPT OF DEDUCTION OF DEVELOPMENT COST TO ARRIVE AT MARKET VALUE - STATED - If value of large extent of agricultural or undeveloped land is to be based on sale price of a small developed plot in a private layout, then standard deduction should be one-third plus one-third in all two-thirds, as 'development cost' from value of plots - Purpose of acquisition can never be a factor to increase market value of acquired land - Generally, residential plots are costlier than industrial plots, and commercial plots are costlier than residential plots - If purpose of acquisition is relevant factor in determining compensation, then it would lead to absurd and unjust situation, that compensation payable for small land will be different, depen-ding on purpose of acquisition and that compensation will be less, if acquisition is for sewage treatment plant, more if acquisition is for an industrial lay out, much more if acquisition for residential lay out and highest if acquisitition is commercial value - Compensation for acquired lands increased per acre to certain extent and appellants will be entitled to all statutory benefits of solatium etc - Appeals allowed in part. Subh Ram Vs. Haryana 2010(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 53.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—- Secs.23 (2), 34 - Determination of market value - "Development charges" - "Solatium and interest" - Sale deed dated 12-3-1984 - Notification u/Sec.4 issued on 23-1-1985 - There is a difference of nearly 10 months between the two days - Claimants would be entitled to benefit of increase for this intervening period - In this case, land certainly has potential and even sale instances show that land from revenue estate of same village was sold as plots and with number of facilities - Therefore applying 30% deduction to value indicated in Ex.A.1 claimants should be entitled to receive compensation Rs.2,800 per cent for acquired land - In all these appeals would be entitled to same rate of compensation - Solatium envisaged in Sec.23(2) is in consideration of compulsory nature of acquisition, does solatium is not same as damages on account of land owners disinclination to part with land acquired - In any case, there can be no doubt in law that claimants are entitled to solatium and interest there upon at rate specified in proviso (2) Sec.34 of Act for relevant period - Claimants also would entitled to get interest on solatium according to Sec.34(b) of Act. Radha Mudaliyar Vs. Tahsildar (LA) T.N.H Board, 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 187 = AIR 2011 SC 54 = 2010 AIR SCW 6774 = 2011(2) ALD 108 (SC).

—Secs.28-A & 18 - Petitioners filed present writ petition seeking direction to respondents 1 & 2 District Collector & RDO to re-determine compensation amount u/Sec.28-A of Act as per judgment of in A.S.No.1321/94, contending that petitioners are entitled for relief sought for in writ petition as per provisions of Sec.28-A of Act and failure of Rspondents Authorities in not extending said benefit to petitioners is patently illegal and opposed to very spirit of object of provisions of Act - Govt. contends that petitioners herein not entitled for benefit u/Sec.28-A of Act in terms of judgment of High Court in A.S.No.1321/94, as petitioners were not parties said appeal and further contended term "Court" as stipulated in Sec.28-A of Act is only reference Court but not High Court - In this case, there is absolutely no justification on the part of the respondent/Authorities in refusingt to extend benefit of Sec.28-A of Act in favour of petitioners herein in terms of judgment and decree - Respondents are directed to consider claim of petitioners in accordance with Provisions of Sec.28-A of Act for the purpose of redeterination of comnpensation in terms of enhanced compensation in judgment of High Court. Pasupuleti Konda Babu Vs. District Collector, Visakhapatnam 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 243 = 2014(4) ALD 304.

—Secs.31(1) & 31(2) and Sec.11(a) and 16 - Lands acquired for purpose of establishment of Thermal Station - Consent award passed covering certain extent of land and compensation in respect of certain extent distributed to five persons who are identified as land- owners - Compensation for balance extent of Ac.1.40 cents ordered to be deposited in civil Court as no one came forward to claim said amount - Petitioners contend that their names were not identified for acquisition even though they are owners of said land of Ac.1.40 cents and therefore they were not aware of award enquiry and consequently they could not make claim before LAO - LAO deposited compensation amount inrespect of Ac.1.4 cents of lands before civil Court in purported exercise of power under 31(2) of Act - Govt., contends that as petitioners have not attended award enquiry in pursuance of public notice issued u/Sec.9(1) and 10 of Act and no claims were presented by them at any stage during land acquisition proceedings amount was deposited in civil Court and that petitioners are entitled to approach civil Court for appropriate relief - U/Sec.11 of Act after completing award enquiry, award has to be passed u/sub-sec.(1) if there is no consent and u/sub-sec.(2) thereof if there is consent from land owners - A close analysis of sub-sec.(2) of Sec.31 of Act would show that Land Acquisition Officer is required to deposit amount of compensation only under four contingencies viz., that parties do not consent to receive compensation, where there is no person competent to alienate land, where there is any dispute as to title to receive compen-sation or where there is a dispute relating to apportionment of it - In a given case, owner of land may not make a claim for receiving compensation - Mere absence of such a claim cannot be brought under contingency of there being no person competent to alienate land - In order to bring a situation under said contingency, LAO has to go through revenue record and come to specific conclusion that there is no person who is competent to alienate land - Land Acquisition Officer has committed an illegality in depositing amounting in civil Court in absence of any contingencies arising u/Sec.31(2) of Act - Award to that extent is set aside - LAO is directed to make an appropriate application before civil Court in which deposit is made for return of reference alongwith deposit - Petitioners are permitted to make claims before 3rd respondent/RDO and on examination of claim 3rd respondent shall pass appropriate order, if he finds that petitioners are true owners of property, compensation shall be paid to them - Writ petition allowed to extent indicated above. Shaik Kareemunnisa Begum Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 378.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

—Secs. 54 & 18 - Lands of claimants/respondents acquired for opening New Mins of Singareni Collieries - L.A.O awarded compensation at Rs.4,000/- per acre for dry land and Rs.6,000/- per acre for wet land - Claimants received compensation under protest and sought for reference u/Sec.18 of Act for proper adjudication of market value - Trial Court after scrutinizing and analysing evidence and placing reliance on sale transactions determined market value at Rs.36,000 per acre uniformly irrespective of dry or wet land - Appellant/Singareni Collieries Co., vehemently contended that reference Court has committed a serious error in enhancing compensation by taking into account un-comparable sale statistics and in this case land acquired is very large extent - Hence appeal u/Sec.54 of Act - As seen from record, claimants have discharged burden of proofing necessary documentary evidence as well as oral evidence and reference Court has fairly and reasonably determined market value under principles of Land Acquisition Act - Where large area is subject matter of acquisition, rate at which small plots are sold cannot be said to be safe criteria - However, be laid down as an absolute proposition that rate fixed for small plots cannot be basis for fixation of rate - Where there is no other material it may in appropriate cases be open to adjudicating Court to make comparison of prices paid for small plots of land - When each land holder is clubbed together then area becomes large and it cannot be said to be small piece of land so also distance is not criterion that quality and potentiality of such land is important - Reference Court determined compensation taking into account cumulative effect of all sale deeds - R.W.1 & 2 also deposed that lands are having trees and P.Ws.1 to 8 in their evidence deposed that they were raising commercial crops and getting yearly income of Rs.10,000 from yield and by virtue of compulsory acquisition, claimants are deprived of their livelihood and sole avocation of small marginal farmers - Trial Judge not committed any error or perversity - Findings of reference Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Project Officer, Singareni Colieries Co., Ltd. Vs. Burra Komuraiah 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 310.

LAND ACQUISATION ACT:

——G.O.Ms.No.1307, dt.23-12-1993 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA. Art.14 - Lands of petitioners acquired for construction of Alaganur Balancing Reseroir(ABR) - Petitioners made representation for settlement of issue of payment of ex-gratia - Govt., issued G.O.Ms.No.1307 for payment of ex gratia to different categories of occupants of lands - G.O reads, that (i) to pay exgratia for lands which are in category A to DKT patta holders (ii) as regards lands covered in category B i.e, those who have been cultivating land without D- Form pattas whose possession is confirmed by entries in 10(1) and Adangal accounts may be paid exgratia without solatium (iii) Category D i.e, those who are in possession and enjoyments of lands and whose names are found only in Adangals may be paid exgratia which is 30% market value without solatium (iv) as regards Category C i.e., who have purchased assigned lands from DKT patta holders will not be entitled for any exgratia as it amounts to violation of conditions of assignment and contraventions of provisions of A.P. Assigned Land (PoT) Act - Petitioners contend that classification between lands covered by D-Form pattas and those not covered by D-Form pattas but possession is confirmed by entries in 10(1) village account is discriminatory and violative of Constitution of India - A person who occupies Govt., land for purpose of cultivation is an encroacher - Such occupation is regularized by D-Form patta - Relevant entries in 10(1) village accounts or Adangals for purpose of showing occupation of lands cannot be equated to grant of D-Form Patta - Board Standing Order (BSO) 15 contemplates issue of D-Form Patta to occupant in respect of land unless grant of patta is prohibited thereunder - However a D-Form patta is not granted to a person in occupation of land - Even if occupation is for long period i.e., it leads to an inference that such person is either not entitled for D-Form Patta by being not a land less person or land itself cannot be assigned in view of relevant paragraph in BSO 15 - Govt.,instead of evicting such occupants under provisions of A.P. Land Encroachment Act choose to pay compensation - There is no similarity between lands held by ryots who occupied/encroached land without D-Form pattas - Therefore Govt., is justified in classifying lands into different categories for purpose of payment of exgratia - Writ petition, dismissed. T.Nadipi Sunkanna Vs. The Government A.P. 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 227 = 2011(4) ALD 38.

LAND ACQUISITION, REHABILITATION AND RESETTLEMENT ACT, 2013:

—-ANDHRA PRADESH ESCHEATS AND BONA VACANTIA ACT, Sec.11(1) and Rule 7 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts. 14, 21 - In the instant case, there is no evidence to show that Rule 7 was adhered to - There is also no evidence to show that the respondents complied with the provisions of Sec.12 of the Act by way of publication in the State gazette - There is non-adherence to Sec. 13 of Act which prohibits sale or grant till expiry of 12 years from the date of taking possession by the Government - Such a provision of law cannot be brushed aside and its object cannot be lost sight of by the authorities - Memo of Mandal Revenue Officer, shows that lands were handed over to Executive Engineer, R&B Department, long prior to alleged gazette notification - This clearly shows the highhandedness on the part of the respondent authorities - In opinion of this Court, impugned action tantamount to highhandedness on the part of respondents and unlawful enrichment and the welfare State cannot be a party to the same because of the actions of the authorities, discharging the functions of the State under the statutes - For the aforesaid reasons, writ petition is allowed, declaring the action of the respondents in taking possession of the subject lands without following the mandatory provisions of Andhra Pradesh Escheats and Bona Vacantia Act, 1974 and the Rules framed thereunder as illegal, arbitrary and iniquitous and presumptuous and violative of Arts.14 and 300-A of the Constitution of India and opposed to the very spirit and object of the provisions of the Act - The respondents are further directed to initiate proceedings under the provisions of Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 in respect of subject lands and pay compensation. Dr.Adusumilli Venkata Subba Rao Vs. District Collector (LA), Nizamabad District 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 113 = 2015(4) ALD 650 = 2015(2) ALT 212.

LAND LAWS:

—-What Documents determine title and ownership land - Petitioners Claiming their rights based on entries in Revenue records and some others basing their claims on longstanding position evidenced by registered sale deeds - Government denying their title mainly basing on entries in revenue records such as RSR and TSLR.

From respective pleadings and stands taken by petitioners, following points emerged from consideration.

1. (a) What documents constitute title for lands?

LAND LAWS:

(b) Whether the entries in the revenue records constitute conclusive proof of title and if not whether they have evidentiary value in determi-nation of title?

2. Whether multiple registered sale transactions reflecting long standing possession give rise to a presumption of title to the property?

3.Whether the entries in Resurvey and Resettlement Register (RSR) and Town Survey Land Register (TSLR) are conclusive in determining title?

4. Whether eviction proceedings under the 1905 Act can be initiated when there is a bonafide title dispute.

The following 14 conclusions are arrived at by the Court to above points 1 to 4.

(1) A patta granted under BSO-27 confers absolute title.

(2) An assignment made under BSO-15 prior to 18-6-1954 in Andhra Area and a patta granted under Laoni Rules before 25-7-1958 in Telangana Area confer absolute title with right to transfer the land. Unless the Revenue functionaries are first satisfied that the land is an assigned land within the meaning of sub-section (1) of Section 2 of Act 9 of 1977, no proceeding for cancellation of assignment can be initiated.

(3) In case of Laoni pattas granted on collection of market value, the pattadar is entitled to sell the land without any restrictions.

(4) In respect of estate and inam lands, ryotwari pattas/occupancy rights certificates constitute title. In case of protected tenants under the Hyderabad Tenancy and Agricultural Act 1950, the protected tenants having ownership certificates hold absolute title.

(5) In the absence of patta, revenue records form basis for determining title. A-Register/Diglot, Ledger/Chitta in Andhra Area and Sethwar, Supplementary Sethwar and Wasool Baqui in Telangana Area are the basic settlement record which provide basis for subsequent entries in the Village Accounts. Before integration of revenue record, No.1 and No.2 Accounts (old), No.3 Account, No.10 Account and Register of Holdings in Andhra Area and Pahani patrika, Chowfasla, Faisal Patti and Khasra Pahani in Telangana Area are relevant Village Accounts for determination of title. After integration of the Village Accounts under the 1971 Act, (i) Printed Diglot or A-Register, (ii) Village Account No.1, (iii) Village Account No.2, (iv) No.3 Register and (v) Village Account No.4 – Register of Holdings constitute relevant record.

(6) Between two rival claimants relying upon the entries in revenue record, the person whose name is recorded in the basic records such as A-Register and Record of Holdings and their successors-in-interest will be considered as the rightful owners. In deciding such disputes, the revenue authorities and the courts need to carefully weigh the evidence relied upon by the rival parties with reference to the record referred to hereinbefore. Even in cases of disputes between the Government and private persons, the above referred record constitute material evidence in determination of title.

LEGAL SERVICES AUTHORITIES ACT:

(7) While there is a presumption that all porambokes and lands reserved for communal purposes vest in the Government, no such presumption arises in respect of waste lands, assessed or unassessed.

(8) A person in possession of land for 12 years or more without title can claim transfer of registry in his favour as envisaged by para-7 of BSO-31.

(9) Long possession supported by multiple registered sale transactions give rise to presumption of title. Such presumption is however rebuttable.

(10) RSR is not a stand alone document. It is one of the relevant records in determination of ownership.

(11) Description of Government land in RSR only means that it is not an inam land. It can include patta lands also.

(12) Dots or blank in pattadar column does not necessarily mean that the land is vested in or it belongs to the Government. Despite such blanks or dots, a private person can claim ownership based on entries in revenue record prepared both prior to and after the commencement of the 1971 Act, besides registered sale transactions. If the Government disputes such entries, it needs to get its right declared by instituting proceedings before the competent court of law.

(13)The entries in TSLR do not constitute conclusive proof of title.

(14) Where there is a bonafide dispute regarding title of a person in possession of the lands other than public roads, streets, bridges or the bed of the sea or the like, summary proceedings under the 1905 Act cannot be initiated. In all such cases, the Government which claims title shall approach the competent Civil Court for declaration of its title. G.Satyanarayana Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 52 = 2014(4) ALD 358 = 2014(3) ALT 473.

LEGAL SERVICES AUTHORITIES ACT:

—Secs.11-A, 11-B. 19 & 20 - Taluq Legal Service Committee under Act, has no jurisdiction to decide dispute, which is beyond Rs.25 lakhs – Hence the award passed by Lok Adalat in respect of subject matter of value of Rs.45 lakhs is without jurisdiction and is accordingly set aside. Mohd. Aasham Pasha Vs. E.Srihari Chary 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 215 = 2016(2) ALD 603 = 2016(2) ALT 447.

——Secs.19 and 22(e) – CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.2(2), 146 and Or.22, Rl.10 - The contention of petitioners is that instead of securing final decree, the respondents 5 to 8 filed P.L.C. before the 3rd respondent/Mandal Legal Services Committee, seeking allotment of portions of suit schedule properties and on considering same, the 3rd respondent/Mandal Legal Services Committee, passed an award accepting the division of suit schedule properties as agreed upon by respondents 5 to 8 by observing that award can be executed before District Court - It is further contended that 3rd respondent/ Mandal Legal Services Committee, entertained separate applications filed by respondent Nos.6 to 8 seeking a direction to Sub-registrar, Macherla for execution of deeds of conveyance, for making necessary entries in concerned record and to deliver possession of their respective portions allotted in terms of award and also to issue pattadar pass books and title deeds and 3rd respondent/Mandal Legal Services Committee, beyond scope of his jurisdiction and contrary to provisions under Legal Services Authority Rules, cause executed a registered document conveying title to portions of property on remitting necessary stamp duty and also passed orders for delivery of possession of suit schedule property - It is further contended that pursuant to direction and at behest of respondents 5 to 8, 4th respondent/Circle Inspector of Police, called petitioners to police station and ordered that they should hand over vacant possession of suit schedule properties to respondents 6 to 8, which is totally illegal and hence Award is liable to be set aside.

Respondents contended that Lok Adalat award under challenge is dealing with allotment of shares, pursuant to preliminary decree that was made final - Earlier final decree application was closed as withdrawn, from stay of passing of final decree and there was a proposal through elders later to give quietus to lis - Commissioner appointed found only item 4 residential house is not partiable, but for other items - It was suggested through elders pursuant to preliminary decree to take separate possession and to give up claim of profits that was not materialized - It is there from approached Legal Services Authority and orders in question were passed which no way requires interference, thereby sought for dismissal of writ petition.

Held, once there is a preliminary decree and even earlier any final decree application filed and withdrawn that is not a bar to file fresh final decree application for which particularly in partition suit there is no limitation as till passing of final decree in respect of all properties with relation to rights of all parties, suit is deemed pending; and as such a separate suit is not maintainable but for to work out preliminary decree by filing application for recourse to final decree proceedings or if necessary by seeking amendment of preliminary decree for anything required and to apply for final decree pursuant thereto - When such is case, there is a bar to maintainability of separate suit and once such is bar a P.L.C is also a bar to maintain - When same is questioned in writ petition in saying what is preliminary decree rights defined are to be worked out and not to file any P.L.C case in relation to properties covered by partition preliminary decree, for such relief to set aside Lok Adalat award obtained instead working out rights by final decree petitions, same is prone to writ jurisdiction as laid down by a division bench of this Court in Kothakapu Mutyal Reddy Vs. Bhargam Constructions.

Therefore, P.L.C proceedings are thereby unsustainable and are liable to be set aside by restoring status quo ante and relegating parties to position and status as on date of filing of the P.L.C. - In result, writ petition is allowed by setting aside award of Lok Adalat and all proceedings in P.L.C. are hereby quashed - It is open to parties concerned to file appropriate application for passing of final decree/partly final decree(s) as case may be pursuant to preliminary decree before Court where preliminary decree is passed, for their respective remedies. Karumanchi Venkaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 222.

LEGAL SERVICES AUTHORITIES ACT:

—Sec.19(5) – A.P. STATE LEGAL SERVICE AUTHORITY REGULATIONS, 1996 - Regulation No.38(1) provides that every Award of the Lok Adalat shall be signed by panel constituting Lok Adalat, and under Regulation No.38(2), original Award shall form part of the judicial records and a copy of Award shall be given to each of parties duly certifying them to be true by Secretary of High Court Legal Services Committee or the District Legal Services Authority or the Chairman of Mandal Legal Services Committees, as case may be, who are authorized to sign the true copies of the Award - In the case on hand, Award is not signed by all members of Lok Adalat Bench - A perusal of original record would go to show that two members of panel of Lok Adalat have not signed Award - When a statutory duty is conferred on Lok Adalat, it has to exercise that duty in accordance with law especially when the Award passed by the Lok Adalat shall become final and no appeal shall lie to any court against Award - Impugned Award is not signed by parties to appeal and therefore it is not binding on any one of parties to appeal - Therefore, petitioner is an aggrieved party and he can challenge the Award - For foregoing reasons, impugned Award is liable to be set aside as it is not an Award within the meaning of Sec.21 of Act - Accordingly writ petition is allowed. V.Kameswara Rao Vs. D.L.S.-cum-7th Addl District & Sessions Judge,Vijayawada, 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 354

—-Secs.20,21 & 19 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.226 & 227 - MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988, Sec.173 - Motor accident - Role of Lok Adalat – Stated - Respondents 1 and 2, claimants, husband and son of deceased who died in motor accident filed petition claiming compensation of Rs.5 lakhs - Tribunal awarding compensation of Rs.1.44 lakhs - In appeal preferred by respondents 1 and 2, High Court Lok Adalat enhancing compensation to Rs.1.72 lakhs - Single Judge of High Court in FAO dismissing petition holding that nothing has been pointed out showing that such a petition under Art.227 of Constitution is maintainable and that meagre increase in amount of compensation does not warrant any interference - No Lok Adalat has power to "hear" parties to adjudicate cases as a Court does - It discusses subject-matter with parties and persuades them to arrive at a just settlement - In their conciliatory role, Lok Adalats are guided by principles of justice, equity, fair play - Act does not contemplate nor require an adjudicatory judicial determination, but a non-judiciary determination based on a compromise or settlement arrived at by parties with guidance and assistance from Lok Adalat - "Award" of Lok Adalat does not mean any independent verdict or opinion arrived at by any decision making process - Making of award is merely an administrative act of incorporating terms of settlement or compromise agreed by parties in presence of Lok Adalat, in form of an executable order under signature and seal of Lok Adalat - It is true that where award is made by Lok Adalat in terms of settlement arrived at between parties, it becomes final and binding on parties to settlement and become executable as if it is a decree of a Civil Court, and no appeal lies against it to any Court - If any party wants to challenge such an award based on settlement, it can be done only by filing petition under Art.226 and or Art.227 of Constitution - In this case, a simple Appeal by legal heirs of deceased for enhancement of compensation has been tossed around and is pending for more than eight years, putting them to avoidable expenses and harassment - High Court directed to hear and dispose of FAO on merits. State of Punjab Vs. Jalour Singh 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 57.

LEGAL SERVICES AUTHORITIES ACT:

—Secs.21 & 19(5) - Petitioner and her children filed Application for issuance Succession Certificate for death family benefits - 1st respondent, concubine and her children, subsequently added as parties - When matter referred to Lok Adalat award was passed u/Sec.21 which was signed by all parties and accepted by Bench - Petitioner challenged award passed by Lok Adalat vitiated by illegalities and against provisions of Act and u/Sec.19(5), Lokadalat has no jurisdiction in respect of any case or matter relating to an offence not compoundable under any law - Reading of award clearly goes to show that there was a consensus and part of pension is also given as lumpsum to petitioner and therefore consciousness of petitioner in accepting terms cannot be doubted - Purpose of Lok Adalat is for expeditious and comfortable settlement of issues between parties and when there is no egregious fraud vitiating award of Lok Adalat, she cannot be allowed to challenge award - Writ petition, dismissed. Kataru Anjamma Vs. Chairman,LokAdalat Bench-cum-I Add.Sr.Civil Judge 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 145 = 2011(2) ALD 135 = 2011(1) ALT 628.

—-Sec.21 and 22-E - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or. 23 Rule 3 - Plaintiffs in O.S.No.107/2010 have preferred this appeal aggrieved by order of lower court - Suit was filed by the plaintiffs, seeking to declare the award passed in O.S.No.481/2007 as non-est, which was not maintainable; the plaintiffs' suit was barred by law; Section 9 CPC enables a Civil Court to take cognizance of all civil disputes except those disputes, which are expressly or impliedly barred by law; in present case, Act is a special law; it prohibits any suit or appeal against award passed by Lok Adalat, basing on a compromise arrived at between the parties; and suit was not maintainable under Section 9 CPC, and under Order VII Rule 11 CPC r/w Sections 21 & 22-E of the Act - Held, whether or not appellant is justified in his claim, that award of Lok Adalat is vitiated by fraud, are matters to be examined by Court below - As power to reject a plaint under Order 7 Rule 11(d) is to be exercised by civil court only if suit appears, from statement in the plaint, to be barred by law, court below erred in rejecting plaint on the ground that a civil suit is not maintainable - Order under appeal is set aside - This Court make it clear that we have not expressed any opinion on truth or otherwise of appellant's claim that award of Lok Adalat is vitiated by fraud - Court below shall adjudicate suit on its merits, and in accordance with law - Order, under challenge in this appeal, is set aside and appeal is allowed with costs. Kothakapu Muthyam Reddy Vs. Bhargavi Constructions 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 479 = 2015(6) ALD 1 = 2015(5) ALT 476.

—Secs.22-B, 22-C,22-D & 22-E - Chapter VI-A - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.39-A - "Permanent Lok Adalat" - "Taking cognizance of offence" - Respondent carrying business in electrical goods, entered into agreement with appellant/Insurance Company - Goods were stolen from godown in burglary - Appellant repudiated claim stating that Surveyor observed that loss cannot be assessed since quantity not verifiable as documents provided creates doubt and that there was movement of stock from godown without billing and that credibility of documents is doubtful and that watchman not provided at godown as per terms of policy coupled with mis-representation - District Consumer Forum refusing to entertain Application on premise that defficiency occurred in connection with commercial contract - Permanent Lok Adalat overruled objection of appellant and pass order holding that it has pecuniary jurisdiction over matter and same has to be decided after taking independent evidence of parties - High Court allowed writ Application holding that as Sec.497/461 of IPC being not compoundable, PLA has no jurisdiction to entertain claim of respondent - Division Bench of High Court allowed appeal filed by respondent holding that pendency of criminal case has nothing to do with exercise of jurisdiction by PLA as it was not concerned as to who had committed burglary but was only concerned with fact as to whether burglary has taken place or not - Contention that Chapter-VI-A of Act has no application in this case which involves complicated question of fact and law and that as contract of insurance has been repudiated it is not a fit case for settlement with in meaning of Sec.22-B - Respondent contends that object of legislation is to promote resolution of dispute by conciliation and therefore it is for welfare of general public that construction which would achieve object of beneficial legislation should be preferred - In this case, genuineness of claim itself is in dispute - Where parties have taken extreme positions, same prima facie many not be subject matter of conciliation which provides for a non-binding settlement - Sec.21-C (1) contains certain Provisos which limit jurisdiction of PLA - Main purpose behind Sec.22-C (8) seems to be that most of petty cases which ought not to go in regular course would be settled in pre-litigation stage itself - Present case, falls outside jurisdiction of PLA - Order of High Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. United India Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Ajay Sinha 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 198 = 2008(5) ALD 1 (SC) = AIR 2008 SC 2398 = 2008 AIR SCW 3970.

—Sec.22C to 22E, 29 - NATIONAL LEGAL SERVICES AUTHORITY REGULATIONS, Regulation 12 & 17 - "Pre Litigation case" - Dispute arose between petitioner and respondents 2 & 7 who are brothers regarding partition of their landed property - Petitioner received notice from Lok adalat along with impugned Award - Petitioners contend that said award was passed behind back of petitioner and respondent no.7 and that they never received any notice, and they never appeared before Lok Adalat and they never entered into any settlement or compromise with 2nd respondent, alleging that after obtaining impugned award 2nd respondent is trying for change of revenue records - Hence writ present petition filed - 2nd respondent contends that there have been family disputes among brothers with regard to share of property after death of father when petitioner and his three sons tried to dispossess she filed suit in civil Court for injunction and said suit was however withdrawn thereafter 2nd respondent made an application to District Collector bringing to his notice about partition of properties in 1992 itself - Said application was referred to Lokadalat for resolving dispute which were registered as prelitigation case - At that stage village elders settled matter between parties and three brothers agreed for agreement and draft of "boobhagaparishkara patram" (land dispute settlement agreement) was prepared and three brothers signed it in presence of 8 witnesses - As parties have already entered into agreement Lokadalat passed Award - Respondents 4 to 7 contend that there was no information or knowledge about pre litigation case alleged that said Award is not based on mutual understanding and therefore it is not binding on them and that 2nd respondent suppressed and misrepresented material facts and obtained impugned Award.

LETTERS PATENT,

In light of these only point that would arise consideration is whether award passed by Lokadalat in Pre Litigation case without obtaining signatures of parties to award is valid - Secs.22A to 22-E deal with various aspects of pre litigation conciliation and settlement - AWARD - A perusal of Regulations would show that when an Award is drawn up which is a mere administrative act, it shall contain terms of settlement or compromise agreed by parties under guidance and assistance of permanent Lok adalat - Draft so drawn up shall be Award only when it is signed or parties affix their thumb impression which is counter signed by members of permanent Lok adalat - A plain reading of regulation 17 to extent necessary and Appendix 1 would leave no doubt that unless and until there is prior settlement/agreement between parties and unless and until parties signed award drawn in accordance with settlement before permanent Lok adalat it cannot become an Award executable u/Sec.22E of Act - In this case, on perusal of original draft of Award curiously, it contain signature of 2nd respondent alone and signature of petitioner is absent - Further Award purports to divide property between petitioner, 2nd respondent and 7th respondent although he is not party to settlement or compromise - For these reasons impugned Award being Pre Litigation case is liable to be set aside - Writ petition, allowed. Bal Reddy Vs. Taluka Legal ServicesCommittee, Narayanapet, 2012(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 27 = 2012(2) ALD 195 = 2012(3) ALT 20 = AIR 2012 AP 60.

LETTERS PATENT:

——Clause 15 – CENTRAL RESERVE POLICE FORCE (CRPF) ACT, 1949, Sec.11(1) – CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.226 - "Disciplinary action" - Respondent in writ petition was a Constable in CRPF who was granted casual leave for 15 days - He overstayed leave by 136 days - During that period he received two letters from his superiors to join his duty - No reply was given by him - After he was admitted to duty, disciplinary proceedings were initiated against him and charges were framed - Respondent filed statement of defence assigning two reasons for his overstay, firstly illness of his wife and secondly, family disputes - Employer examined three witnesses in this regard while respondent has not cross-examined them - On earlier occasion also, he overstayed his leave - Basing on enquiry report submitted by enquiry officer finding respondent guilty of both charges, appellant No.2 has removed respondent from service - Appeal filed by respondent challenging said punishment was also rejected by appellant No.1 - Respondent then filed Writ Petition - The learned single Judge allowed writ petition, set aside order of removal and directed his reinstatement without back wages - This Writ Appeal is filed by Deputy Inspector General of Police, CRPF against that order.

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

Held, it is a settled position of law that scope of interference with orders passed by disciplinary authority by High Court u/Art.226 of Constitution of India is limited to examining whether decision suffers from any patent illegalities, proven mala fides or findings not based on any evidence - While exercising writ jurisdiction, this Court will not sit in appeal and act as an appellate body - Even where two views are possible, Court will not interfere with decision of disciplinary authority merely because it prefers to follow another view - As regards plea taken by respondent that punishment imposed on him being disproportionate to proven misconduct, Courts cannot lightly interfere with quantum of punishment unless it shocks judicial conscience.

In light of above mentioned decision and having regard to facts of case, this Court of opinion that gravity of misconduct admitted by respondent warrants punishment of removal from service and such a punishment could not have been interfered with by learned single Judge - For afore-mentioned reasons, Writ Appeal is allowed and impugned order is set aside. D.I.G. of Police, CRPF, Group Centre, Chennai Vs. K.Ravinder 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 378.

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

—Secs.3,5 & 22 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.1, Rule 8 - "Encroachment of public street" - Suit filed by respondent against defendants for encroaching substantial part of public street making it narrowing down causing inconvenience to user of street - Trial Court decreed suit and permanent injunction was issued directing removal of unauthorised construction - District Judge dismissed appeal filed by appellant/defendant and second appeal also dismissed by High Court holding that there is no specific question of law involved in appeal - Appellant contends that suit is barred by limitation and that there is no any official document to indicate that there was a public street used by residents of area and that suit said to be representative capacity as shown in plaint but formalities not followed and that suit should have been dismissed at very threshold - Any member of community may successfully bring a suit to assert his right in community property or for protecting such property by seeking removal of encroachment and that in such suit he need not comply with requirement of Or.1, Rule 8 CPC - All three Courts namely, High Court, First Appellate Court as also Trial Court held that disputed land is part of public street where appellant has encroached upon by constructing a part of a house and said findings are therefore findings of fact - No infirmity in judgment and decree passed by trial Court affirmed by 1st appellate Court and by High Court in second appeal - Decree passed by trial Court confirmed - Appeal, dismissed. Hari Ram Vs. Jyoti Prasad 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 155 = AIR 2011 SC 952 = 2011 AIR SCW 1097 = 2011(3) ALD 101 (SC).

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

—Sec.5 - Respondents filed appeal against judgment and decree of trial Court with delay of four years - Division Bench of High Court condoned delay by making cryptic observation that cause shown by respondents is sufficient - High Court committed grave error by condoning more than four years delay in filing of appeal ignoring judicially accepted parameters for exercise of discretion u/Sec.5 of Limitation Act - Impugned order of High Court, set aside and Application for condonation of delay filed by respondents, dismissed - Appeal, allowed.

Higher functionaries of 1st respondent are directed to conduct thorough probe into matter so that accountability of defaulting Officers/Officials may be fixed and loss, if any, suffered by respondent No.1 recovered from them after complying with rules of natural justice. Oriental Aroma Chemical Industries Ltd. Vs. Gujarat Industrial Devp.,Corpn., 2010(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 167.

—Sec.5 - Condonation of delay - High Court allowed all applications by condoning delay - Liberal approach in considering application for condonation of delay on ground of sufficient cause - Explained - concepts such as “liberal approach”, “justice oriented approach” “substantial justice” cannot be employed to jettisons substantial law of limitation - Especially in cases where Court concludes that there is no justification for delay - Approach adopted High Court tents to show absence of judicial balance and restraint which a judge is required to maintain while adjudicating any lis between parties - While considering applications for condonation of delay u/Sec.5 of Limitation Act Court do not enjoy unlimited and unbridled discretionary powers- All discretionary powers, especially judicial powers have to be exercised within reasonable bounds known to law - Discretion has to be exercised in systemic manner informed by reason - Whims or fancies, prejudices or predilections cannot and should not form basis of exercising discretionary powers - Judgment of High Court is unsustainable either in law or in equity - Appeals, allowed. Lanka Venkateswarlu (D) by LRs. Vs. State of A.P. 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 175.

—Sec.5 - Condonation of delay of 679 days in filing appeal - Suit filed for recovery of possession of suit property and for injunction - District Judge dismissed Application for condonation of delay on grounds is hit by principles of res- judicata - Scope of determination of points in appeal are quite different from determination of decision to set aside ex parte decree - Even if there are no grounds to set aside ex parte decree still right of appeal cannot be closed and mere refusal of part of period of delay which was refused to be taken into consideration in condoning delay in setting aside ex parte decree, shall not bar consideration of subsequent delay to be considered which was evidently because of pendency of earlier application - Evidently in this case, 1st petitioner is said to be a man of unsound mind, second petitioner is said to be absent during period and no advantage or “malafides” can be attributed for not prosecuting case by petitioners - In this case, there is no proof of malafides of petitioners - Refusal to condone delay in filing appeal is not proper and parties should be given an opportunity to express their grievances against judgment in which valuable rights are involved and where one of party to proceedings is a man of unsound mind - Order of Court below set aside - Delay in filing appeal condoned on payment of costs - CRP, allowed. Maddineni Venkateswarlu Vs. Maddineni Rajamma 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 81 = 2011(5) ALD 721 = 2011(5) ALT 781.

—Sec.5 - Condonation of delay of 427 in filing appeals - Chief Post Master General filing appeals by way of special leave against final judgment and order of Division Bench of High Court - It is right time to all Govt., bodies agencies and instrumentalities that unless they have reasonable and acceptable explanation for delay and there was bona fide effort, there is no need to accept usual explanation that file was kept pending for several months/years due to considerable degree of procedural red-tape in process - Govt., Departments are under a special obligation to ensure that they perform their duties with diligence and commitment - Condonation of delay is an exception and should not be used as an anticipated benefit for Govt., Departments - In this case, Department has miserably failed to give any acceptable and cogent reasons sufficient to condone such huge delay - Appeals are liable to be dismissed on ground of delay. Office of the Chief Post Master General Vs. Living Media India Ltd., 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 136

—Sec.5 - Condonation of Delay - I.A. filed by petitioners in trial court dismissed for delay - Revision filed - Held, though normal rule requires that every day's delay shall be explained for purposes of condonation of delay, but even if relaxed standards and norms are applicable in cases where a party pleads want of knowledge of event itself, even in such cases honest and bona fide efforts made for taking appropriate steps with promptitude should be demonstrated - When a huge delay is sought to be condoned, it is expected of the petitioners to offer reasonable explanation for such a huge delay - In the instant case, 1653 days was delay that was prayed to be condoned - At every stage of proceedings, there was demonstrable laxity and no anxiety was shown on the part of petitioners to prosecute matter diligently - In such a fact scenario, condonation of such a huge delay would not subserve cause of justice - Sadly no effort is made to exhibit steps taken promptly for getting the decree set aside - Hence, there are no bonafides behind this exercise - Further, there is no error committed by Trial Court in dismissing I.A. No. 187 of 2011 - Accordingly, Revision stands dismissed. Bommadevu Subbalakshmi Vs. G.Subbarao 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 115 = 2014(6) ALD 116.

—Sec.5 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.9, Rule 3 - LAND ACQUISITION ACT, Sec.4 (1) - Delay of 920 days in filing revival Application - Single Judge allowed writ petition filed by respondents/owners of land for Mandamus to declare inaction of applicants in paying compensation to them, directing appellants to pass award within six months - Writ appeal filed against order of single Judge with delay of 493 days - Division Bench dismissed Application since affidavit is not inconformity with requirements of Or.9, Rule 3 and consequently W.A, (S.R) also dismissed as barred by time - However, Bench gave liberty to applicants to file application for revival of appeal along with fresh Application for condonation of delay - Revival Application filed with delay of 920 days stating that delay occurred due to administrative reasons and also on account of pursuing wrong remedy of recalling order instead of seeking revival of writ appeal and also due to misplacement of case bundle in Govt. Pleader's Office - In this case, explanation offered by applicants reveals that they have not shown due diligence at any stage of proceedings - Lethargy, indifference and indolance on part of applicants at every stage is writ large - Applicants miserably failed to show "sufficient cause" in causing delay of 493 days in filing writ appeal - Evidently filing of two contempt cases seemed to have forced these persons to file revival Application alongwith present application for condonation of delay - Required details as to when and where case bundle was misplaced, person, who was responsible for misplacing it, when and where bundle was re-traced and person who re-traced bundle are conspicuously absent in affidavit - Reasons put-forth by applicants for condonation of enormous delay of 920 days in filing revival application do not satisfy condition of showing "sufficient cause" - Hence Application, dismissed - Consequently W.A (S.R) is also dismissed as barred by limitation. State of A.P. Vs. A.Murali Madhava Rao 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 40.

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

—Sec.5 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.114, O.47, Rule 1 - Petitioner herein along with others filed O.S.No. 15 of 1993 for perpetual injunction against 1st respondent and others to restrain them in any way from interfering with peaceful possession and enjoyment of the plaint schedule property therein - While petitioner is seeking relief of perpetual injunction on basis of a Will, 1st respondent sought for partition contending that said Will executed by her father in favour of petitioner is a concocted one - Judgment was decreed - Challenging the judgment, 1st respondent filed A.S.No. 2401 of 1998 before this court, and challenging said judgment in O.S.No. 16 of 1997, she filed A.S.No. 138 of 1999 before this court - By common judgment, A.S.No. 2401 of 1998 was allowed and O.S.No. 5 of 1996 was decreed as prayed for - A.S.No. 138 was partly allowed by same judgment and it was directed that decree of injunction shall continue only till passing of final decree in O.S. No. 5 of 1996 - Petitioner had approached the Supreme Court and filed Special Leave to Appeal questioning the common judgment and both SLPs were dismissed by a non-speaking order - On 08-09-2014, petitioner had filed present Review A.S.M.P.S.R.No. 7468 of 2014 and No. 7469 of 2014 seeking review of the judgment and to condone delay of 536 and 542 days respectively under Sec. 5 of Limitation Act - Reasons given for seeking condonation of delay was that the grounds raised in present Review petitions could not be taken in the earlier Review petitions.

Held, …..the explanation offered by petitioner for condonation of such a long period of delay is no explanation in the eye of law much less a reasonable explanation - It is not acceptable - If such inordinate long delay of 536 and 542 days in filing the present Review petitions is condoned, it would cause grave prejudice to respondent No.1 - Law of limitation may harshly affect the Review petitioner but it has to be applied with all its rigour when statute so prescribes and this court has no power to extend period of limitation on equitable grounds - Also, it is settled law that an entirely new ground which was not raised earlier at time of hearing of the appeal at High Court would not be considered for the first time at Review stage - Consequently, ASMPs are dismissed. V.S.H.Babu Vs. V.Savithri 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 89 = 2015(4) ALD 383 = 2015(4) ALT 134.

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

—-Sec. 5 and CPC,Or.9, R.13 - Petitioner filed O.S No. 173 of 2002 in Court of Chief Judge, City Civil Court, Hyderabad for relief of cancellation of compromise decree in O.S No. 1706 of 1994 dated 06-03-1995 passed by the Court of Senior Civil Judge, for declaration that the irrevocable General Power of Attorney and the deed of assignment dated 27-12-1991 are not binding upon her and for other consequential reliefs including the one of recovery of Rs.1,13,59,931/- from the respondents - An ex parte decree was passed by the trial Court - On coming to know that an ex parte decree was passed against them, defendant Nos.3 and 2 i.e., respondent Nos.1 and 2 herein filed an application under Order IX Rule 13 CPC. Since there was a delay of 824 days in presenting the application, they filed I.A No. 2324 of 2007 under Section 5 of the Limitation Act - It was pleaded that they have not been served with any summons at all and even on verification of the record of the Court, it emerged that they were set ex parte without even ensuring that the summons are served - I.A was opposed by the petitioner by filing a detailed counter - She stated that summons was served in accordance with law and plea of respondent Nos.1 and 2 is not correct - The trial Court allowed the I.A - Hence this revision.

Held, occasion to set a defendant in a suit, ex parte, would arise only when summons are served and the party did not care to enter appearance - Strictly speaking, there was no necessity for respondent Nos.1 and 2 to file application for condonation of delay since they did not have the knowledge about the decree till the steps were taken thereon by petitioner - Trial Court has taken correct view of the matter - This Court is not inclined to interfere with the order under revision - C.R.P is accordingly dismissed. Sahebzadi Amina Marzia Vs. Shaheen Aga 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 369

—Sec. 5 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or. IX Rule 13, and Sec.115 - Whether against order dismissing application filed u/Sec.5 of the Limitation Act to condone the delay in filing any application u/Or. IX, Rule 13 of CPC, revision or appeal lies?

Held, it is well settled that an appeal is creature of statute and there is no right to appeal unless it is given clearly and in express terms by a legislation - In other words, a right of appeal requires legislative authority -Against the Order passed in a petition filed u/Sec.5 of the Limitation Act, only a revision lies u/Sec.115 CPC, but not an appeal u/Sec.104 or Or. XLIII, Rule 1 of CPC. Gogireddy Eswara Reddy

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

Vs. Tangirala Hanumayamma, 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 335 = 2015(1) ALD 503 = 2015(1) ALT 770.

—Sec.5 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.239 INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.13(2) - PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, Sec.13(1)(e) - 1st respondent, Member of Assembly during his tenure as Minister, properties owned and possessed by him are disproportionate to his known sources of income to tune of more than Rs.23 lakhs - After investigation Charge-sheet registered against 1st respondent and his father, mother, sister and his brother-in-law - Respondents filed petition u/Sec.239 Cr.P.C for discharge - Special Judge rejected petition filed by respondents - High Court reversed order of Special Judge and granted discharge - Hence present Appeal by State after lapse of 1954 days along with Application u/Sec.5 of Limitation Act to condone delay of 1954 days - Respondents contend that mere change of Govt., would not be a justification to condone inordinate delay and that to change of Govt., many issues which have attained finality would be reopened after long delay which should not be allowed - Condonation of huge delay on ground that successor Govt., which belongs to a different political party, had taken decision to file special leave petitions would be setting very dangerous precedent and it would lead to miscarriage of justice - Respondents further contends that there is life span for every legal remedy and condonation of delay is an exception - Further contends that Limitation Act does not provide for different period of limitation for Govt., in resorting to remedy provided under law and case on hand being not a case of fraud or collusion by its Officers or agents, huge delay is not fit to be condoned - DISCHARGE - It is true that at time of consideration of Application for discharge Court cannot act as a mouth- piece of Prosecution or act as Post-office and may sift evidence in order to find out whether or not allegations are groundless so as to pass an order of discharge - Law does not permit a mini trial at this stage - In this case, while passing impugned orders, Court has not sifted materials for purpose of finding out whether or not there is sufficient grounds for proceeding against accused but whether that would warrant a conviction - Further, in defect in Investigation itself cannot be a ground for discharge - Order impugned suffers from grave error and calls for rectification - Order of discharge, set aside - Appeals, allowed. State of Tamilnadu Vs. N.Suresh Rajan 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 37

——Sec.60 - A close analysis of the language of Article 60, Limitation Act, 1963 would indicate that it applies to Suits by a minor who has attained majority and further by his legal representatives when he dies after attaining majority or from the death of the minor. Narayan Vs. Babasaheb 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 79 = AIR 2016 SC 1666 = 2016(6) SCC 725 = 2016(3) ALD 217 (SC).

—-Sec. 65 - This Second Appeal is filed by the defendants - Held, thus claim of defendants is that ever since 1957 they were in possession of suit property and therefore, in 1970 when Bhanumathi claimed property by virtue of her sale, D-1 asserted his title and possession against her and in that view, present suit which is filed long after, is barred by limitation - This argument does not hold water - PW.2 is son of plaintiff - In his cross-examination no doubt he made some admissions - For instance, he deposed as if suit property was in possession of plaintiff since 1970 when Bhanumathi handed over possession -He also admitted that disputes commenced from the year 1970 onwards with D-1 - He further admitted that D-1 used to come to site and go away and he used to obstruct their entry into site from the beginning - Now point is whether these admissions would amount to establishment of adverse possession by defendants - PW.2 was born in the year 1959 and he was 11 years old by 1970 - In view of his tender age by 1970, it is difficult to believe his words that his mother obtained possession of suit property in 1970 itself - In contrast, plaintiff (PW.1) in her evidence stated that she obtained possession of property one week after execution of Ex.A.5 - Therefore, evidence of PW.2 with regard to delivery of possession cannot be viewed seriously - Similarly his other admission that disputes commenced from year 1970 onwards with D.1 also cannot be taken seriously as by 1970, PW.2 was only a tender aged boy - Therefore, his evidence will not clinch adverse possession - So none of points raised by appellants would clinchingly establish that defendants have enjoyed suit property openly, continuously and against right, title and interest of Bhanumathi and plaintiff beyond statutory period of limitation - Appellate Court upon proper consideration of facts and evidence rightly held that plaintiff deserved decree in her favour and said finding does not suffer any legal infirmity.

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

In the result, this Second Appeal is dismissed by confirming the judgment and decree District Judge, decreeing plaintiff's suit. Koppisetty Ramana Vs. Emani Ramanamma 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 184 = 2016(5) ALD 22 = 2016(4) ALT 214.

—Sec.136, 135 & 15 - DHR filed suit for perpetual injunction against petitioner in respect of suit property - Trial Court while passing decree, apart from granting relief of perpetual injunction also passed a decree granting mandatory injunction to remove structures raised on suit property during pendency of suit - Appellate Court confirmed decree and judgment passed by trial Court and granted one month time to petitioner to remove structures raised by him in suit property illegally during pendency of suit and handover vacant site to respondent/DHR - EP filed by DHR to enforce decree, allowed - Petitioner contends that period of limitation prescribed by Art.136 for executing a decree for mandatory injunction is three years and since DHR filed E.P more than three years after passing of decree by Court of first instance, E.P is barred by limitation even though it is filed within three years from date of passing of decree by appellate Court - Executing Court rejected said contention of petitioner holding that appeal is a continuation of original suit, decree passed by trial Court merged with decree of appellate Court, appellate Court passed decree on 9-8-2002, E.P filed on 15-10-2003, therefore E.P is not barred by limitation - "...Legal pursuit of a remedy, suit, appeal and second appeal are really but steps in a series of proceedings all connected by an intrinsic unity and one to be regarded as one legal proceeding" - In this case, while passing judgment in appeal, appellate Court granted one month time to petitioner to remove constructions illegally made and hand over vacant site to respondent and failing which as per decree of appellate Court respondent can get constructions removed through process of Court - Thus, at instance of petitioner only issue was pending consideration before appellate Court and ultimately it was decided against him - Order passed by executing Court, confirmed - CRP, dismissed. Fateh Mohammed Vs. Fareeda Banu A Khursheed Banu 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 247.

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

—Art.11 - CARRIERS ACT, 1865, Sec.10 - Appellant/1st plaintiff filed suit for recovery of amount towards compensation for non-delivery of goods booked by 2nd paintiff insured with first plaintiff - Respondent/Defendant/Transporter contends that Court has no jurisdiction to try suit and claim of plaintiffs is hopelessly time barred and that defendeant cannot be called as carrier doing transport business and that defendant neithr consigner nor consignee but he is a simple lorry broker and his job ended when he took lorry driver to consigner - Trial Court rejected contention of defendant and held that defenant falls within definition of "common carrier" - But with regard to limitation aspect trial Court recorded finding that claim of plaintifff is barred by limitation as suit filed after expiry of 3 years period stipulated in Art.11 of Limitation Act - 1st appellant/Insurance Company contents that 3 years period is to be completed from date of confirmation of loss by defendant and that as Police gave such certificate only on 4-8-1994 under Ex.A.3, suit is filed on 19-3-1997, as such it is well within time - Respondent/defendant contends that even according to case of plaintiffs goods booked on 6-11-1993 and in ordinary course they were to be reached by 10-11-1993, as such, limitation period starts from aforesaid date and that is case of compensation for non-delivery of goods, and as per Art.11 of Limitation Act period of limitation is 3 years from period when goods ought to have been delivered - Supreme Court also held that time would run after elapsing of reasonable time, on expiry of which, delivery ought to have been made - In this case, even complaint was also lodged with Police on 23-11-1993, and even from that date also, suit not filed within period of three years, but it was filed only on 19-3-1997, after expiry of three years period as prescribed under Art.11of Limitation Act - Finding recorded by trial Court that suit claimed barred by limitation - Justified - Appeal dismissed accordingly. National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Sri Maheswari Lorry Transport 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 289 = 2014(1) ALD 438.

—Arts.59,54 & 66 of Schedule - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Secs.53-A - "Time is essence of contract" - Defendants, legal heirs of PHR who obtained Ex.B.1 agreement for sale in year 1977 from plaintiff in respect of plaint schedule land - PHR paid sale consideration amount and since he did not come forward for obtaining registered sale deed, after paying balance consideration, plaintiff got issued Ex.A.1 notice in year 1983 to PHR stipulating that time is essence of suit contract and to pay balance consideration within 15 days of notice - PHR got issued Ex.A.2 reply notice throwing blame on plaintiff for not performing terms of suit contract - Plaintiff got issued Ex.A3 notice to PHR cancelling suit contract and again got issued Ex.A.4 notice to defendants - Subsequently plaintiff filed suit for recovery of possession of plaint schedule property and for mesne profits - Trial Court dismissed suit as barred by limitation under Art.59 of Schedule to Limitation Act - On appeal by plaintiff lower appellate Court allowed appeal and decreed suit for possession - Questioning same defendants filed Second Appeal - Defendants/Appellants contend that suit is barred by limitation, in asmuch as filing suit for possession starts from 1978 which is date stipulated in Ex.B.1 agreement for performance of contract and suit filed in year 1992 is barred by limitation and defendants are entitled to protect their possession u/Sec.53-A of T.P Act - In this case, plaintiff issued notice to PHR on 3-8-1983 stipulating time as essence of suit contract and calling upon him to perform his part of contract within 15 of receipt of said notice - Inspite of exchange of notices between parties neither of parties to suit contract approached any court for specific performance of Ex.B.1 within 3 years Ex.A.1 notice or E.A.2 reply notice - Therefore it follows that PHR's right to obtain register sale deed to suit land in pursuance of Ex.B.1 agrement stood extinguished - When suit agreement stood cancelled and when right of PHR to obtain registered sale deed stood extinguished, defendants are not entitled to resist present suit for possession filed by plaintiff taking protection u/Sec.53-A T.P. Act - In this case, right to seek possession of suit property accrued to plaintiff only on date of Ex.A.3 consequential notice cancelling contract, or at best 15 days of receipt of Ex.A.1 notice, dt:3-8-1983 whereby plaintiff stipulated condition that time is essence of suit contract - In this case, suit filed on 4-11-1992 is well within period of limitation in view of Art.66 of Schedule to Limitation Act which prescribed period of limitation of 12 years for filing suit for possession of immovable property when plaintiff became entitled for possession by reason of any forfeiture or breach of condition - This is not suit for cancellation or setting aside instrument or decree or for recession of Ex.B.1 contract - Therefore Art.59 of Schedule has no application to present suit which is one framed for recovery of possession and consequential mesne profits for period of three years prior to filing of suit - Decision of lower appellate Court is in accordance with factual scenario and also legal provisions attracting said facts - Decision of lower appellate Court justified - Second appeal, dismissed. Sangam Anantharavamma Vs. Peesapati Amaravathanulu 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 32 = 2013(1) ALD 723 = 2013(2) ALT 234 = AIR 2013 (NOC) 242 (AP).

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

—Art.61(a) of Schedule - Appellant/plaintiff borrowed amount from defendant and executed Ex.B.1 document styling same as "Avadhi Vikraya patram", for Rs.5000 conveying suit property of Ac.1.14, with condition that in case she repays Rs.5,000/- to defendant within 3 years thereof, then property has to be reconveyed to her by defendant - Plaintiff got issued notice demanding reconveyance after receiving Rs.5000/- from her and subsequently deposited Rs.5000/- in Bank in name of Advocate and filed suit - Defendant resisted suit on ground that Ex.B.1 is not a mortgage deed by way of conditional sale and it is an outright sale with condition to reconvey property in case consideration of Rs.5000 was repaid within 3 years of that date and since defendant did not repay amount within stipulated time in Ex.B.1, she isnot entitled for reconveyance of property in her favour - Trial Court negatived plaintiff's claim and lower appellate Court, dismissed Appeal - Hence present, Second Appeal - In this case, both Courts below came to conclusion that it is a time bound sale deed and that it is not a conditional mortgage deed - Though description of document in Telugu predominantly is a time bound sale deed, it is not as such and it is only a mortgage deed primarily - Therefore, interpretation of Ex.B.1 by Courts below as a sale deed with a term for reconveyance in case condition specified therein is fulfilled within stipulated time, is incorrect interpretation of document - It is well settled principle of law that once a transaction is mortgage is continues to be a mortgage - Under Art.61-A of Schedule to Limitation Act, 1963, a mortgagor is entitled to file suit for redemption of recovery of immovable property mortgaged within 30 years from date when right to redeem or to recover possession accrues and said period of limitation of 30 years cannot be curtailed by agreement by limiting same to 3 years in Ex.B.1 document - In view of Art.61(a) of Schedule to Limitation Act, appellant/plaintiff is having right to mortgage covered by Ex.B.1 document within 30 years of same - Therefore appellant/plaintiff is entitled to file present suit for redemption and to demand execution of redemption deed or reconveyance deed by defendant in her favour and consequently to recover possession of suit property from defendant - Both Courts below failed to interpret Ex.B.1 document in right direction and came to erroneous conclusion on nature of Ex.B.1 and it made both Courts to non-suit plaintiff erroneously - Judgments and decrees passed by both Courts below, set aside - Second appeal, allowed. Sannappa Nagamma Vs. Sapatla Pakkirappa 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 128 = 2013(6) ALD 791 = 2013(6) ALT 328.

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

—Art.65 - "Adverse possession"- Claim for adverse possession against Government - Govt. allotted land for enjoyment for a period of 15 years - Land was only for a limited period and was only for cultivation and it cannot be said that by said grant transferee has acquired absolute title to land in question from State Govt. - Therefore period of limitation, to claim adverse possession which would have been applicable in present case would be 30 years - Appeals, dismissed. G.Krishna Reddy Vs. Sajjappa (D) by LRs. 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 64 = AIR 2011 SC 2762 = 2011 AIR SCW 4406 = 2011(6) ALD 95 (SC).

— Art.65 - "Adverse Possession" - Appellant/ Plaintiff filed suit for declaration and possession - Trial Court dismissed suit on ground that defendants are shown to be in possession for more than 12 years prior to filing of suit and hence held that defendants acquired titled by Adverse Possession - In this case, trial Court failed to notice all the aspects and not discussed or bestowed its attention to crucial documents and pleadings - In the absence of any plea of title set up by defendants, title of plaintiff has to be held to have been established.

(INDIAN) LIMITATION ACT, 1963:

"ADVERSE POSSESSION" - In this case adverse possession as pleaded by defendants is firstly neither against true owner nor against person having interest in property - Hence finding of trail Court upholding adverse possession pleaded by defendants merely on ground that defendants were in possession since 1977 is clearly erroneous and unsustainable as mere possession for any length of time would not convert into adverse possession - Appellant/Plaintiff is entitled to declaration and possession and suit decreed as prayed for to extent of relief of declaration and possession - Appeal allowed. Naseeb Khatoon Vs. Syed Abdul Aziz 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 187 = 2014(3) ALD 297 = 2014(3) ALT 620.

—Arts.135 & 136 - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit against respondent/defendant for relief of perpetual and mandatory injunction - Trial Court decreed suit - Appeal preferred by defendant, dismissed - Petitioner filed E.P in so far as it relates to mandatory injunction as well as recovery of costs - Executing Court dismissed E.P as time barred applying Article 135 - Petitioner contends that executing Court not justified in applying Art.135 though E.P filed for enforcement of mandatory injunction as well as recovery of costs - Limitation Act prescribes different periods of limitation for enforcement of decrees; for mandatory injunction on one hand, and other categories of decrees on the other hand - For former, limitation is three years under Art.135 and for latter, i.e., decrees of other categories limitation is 12 years under Art.136 - In this case, concentration is only upon enforcement of decree for mandatory injunction - Therefore, E.P squarely covered by Art.135 - Order of executing Court - Justified - Revision, dismissed. Jada Chennaiah Vs. Jada Venkata Subbaiah 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 427.

—and CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.34, Rule, 5 - First respondent filed suit seeking recovery of amount on the basis of a promissory note secured by mortgage of said property and suit was decreed - Wife of petitioner filed E.A. and when same was dismissed, appeal filed, and same was also dismissed by judgment and decree, confirming order passed by lower Court - Petitioner filed E.A. under Order 21 Rule 90 of CPC to set aside sale of property held on 21.08.2009 and same was dismissed - Thereafter, children filed a petition for setting aside sale in E.A., as aforesaid, and same was also dismissed, against which present civil revision filed - As a last attempt, petitioner filed E.A. seeking permission to deposit money before confirmation of sale - Sale certificate was issued and application in E.A. was dismissed on same day, by closing petition as infractuous - But, it was made subject to result of Civil Revision.

E.A. filed by children of petitioner was dismissed on ground that sale was held and no amount was deposited by them either before 30 days or at least before 60 days - It was also noted that their mother earlier filed claim petition and same was dismissed - Their father also filed a petition under Order 21 Rule 90 of CPC and same was also dismissed - In view of same, ignorance of execution proceedings pleading by them was held to be not genuine and petition was barred by limitation.

MAINTENANCE AND WELFARE OF PARENTS AND SENIOR CITIZENS ACT, 2007, Held, lower Court dismissed application of children of petitioner – Hence, Court dismissed Civil Revision.

Regarding another Civil Revision, it was held that though this is not a case of appeal against confirmation of sale, since order passed by Executing Court in dismissing application for depositing money was challenged, benefit of said ratio laid down by Supreme Court can be extended to this case also - Courts would be jealous of protecting the interest of mortgagor who would be willing to deposit the amount of mortgage money - No doubt petitioner made several attempts to defeat the sale without depositing any amount in past - But when petitioner came forward now to deposit sale amount, he should not be deprived of his right to retain property - In view of failure of Court to follow procedure provided in Rule 5 of Order 34, order passed by Executing Court, is set aside and application is remanded to Executing Court for passing an order in accordance with law within a period of 60 days from date of receipt of a copy of order - In view of setting aside above order passed by Executing Court, order passed in E.P. on same day shall also be required to be set aside even though there was no separate challenge to said order - Executing Court shall first decide E.A. and as a consequence thereof should pass orders in E.P., C.R.P. is, accordingly, allowed. M.Srividya Chowdary Vs. M.Sreenivasulu 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2016(2) ALD 751.

MAINTENANCE AND WELFARE OF PARENTS AND SENIOR CITIZENS ACT, 2007,

—-Secs.22(2), 23 - ANDHRA PRADESH MAINTENANCE AND WELFARE OF PARENTS AND SENIOR CITIZENS RULES, 2011 - BENAMI TRANSACTIONS (PROHIBITION) ACT 1988, sub-section (3)(b) of Section 4 - There is no transfer of property by respondent No.3 in favour of petitioner at any point of time - Though subject property is registered in name of respondent No.3, it is specific case of petitioner that he has paid sale consideration through cheques issued by him out of his own earnings - However, respondent No.3 maintained that as petitioner was looking after finances of family, he has issued cheques though money belonged to herself - It is further pleading of petitioner that respondent No.3 is holding property as a benami for him and therefore transaction falls under sub-section (3)(b) of Section 4 of Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act 1988.

Held, question as to whether phrase 'protection' occurring in sub-section (2) of Section 22 of the Act and Chapter-VI of Rules includes power to order eviction of a person in physical possession of property claimed by a senior citizen and handover same to him/her, is a moot question which need not be adjudicated in present case as impugned order was not passed in terms of action plan under Rule 21 of the Rules, but dehors the same - This is evident from fact that respondent No.3 has made her application under Chapter-V of the Act and respondent No.2 has relied upon sub-section (2) of Section 22 of the Act - Respondent No.2 has, however, lost sight of fact that State Government has come out with an action plan vide G.O.Ms.No.49, dated 28-12-2011 under said provision and in that action plan he figures nowhere - Therefore, respondent No.2 has no jurisdiction whatsoever to allow application made by respondent No.3 for reliefs of evicting petitioner and handing over of title deeds kept in his custody to him.

MEDICAL COUNCIL ACT:

Unless case falls directly under Section 23 of the Act, Tribunal cannot exercise its power for adjudicating disputes concerning properties of senior citizens - On analysis as above, this Court has no hesitation to hold that impugned order is ultra vires powers of respondent No.2 and same is accordingly quashed, leaving respondent No.3 free to approach the competent Court of law for enforcement of her rights and redressal of her grievance qua the subject property - Subject to the liberty given to respondent No.3 as above, Writ petition is allowed. M.P.Tej Babu Vs. State of Telangana 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 13 = 2016(3) ALT 697 = 2016(3) ALD 150.

MEDICAL COUNCIL ACT:

—Secs.10A & 19A - Establishment of Medical Colleges Regulation (Amendment 2010, Part - II), Cl.8.3 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.32 - "Establishment of Medical College & Hospital" - "Renewal of admission for intake of students - Board of Governors of MCI revoking letter of permission accorded for renewal of admission of 2nd Batch of Students on account of lack of facilities in petitioners' College even for admission of 50 students and also on account of deficiencies and forgery - DUTY OF INSPECTION TEAM - Medical Council Act especially Sec.10A mandates that when new medical college to be established or number of seats to be increased, permission of Central Govt., is a prequisite - Sec.19A oblizes MCI to prescribe minimum required standards for medical education and recommendataion made by MCI to Central Govt., carry considerable weight, it being an Expert Body - Mushrooming of large number of Medical, Engineering, Nursing and Pharmaceutical Colleges which has definitely affected quality of education in this Country, especially in medical field which call for serious introspection - Private Medical Educational Institutions are always demanding more number of seats in their Colleges even though many of them have no sufficient infrastructural facilities, clinical materials, faculty members - Reports appear in every now and then that many of private institutions which are conducting Medical Colleges are demanding lakhs and some times crores of rupees for M.B.B.S and Post-Graduate admission in their respective Colleges - Central Govt., Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, CBI or Intelligence Wing have to take effective steps undo to such unethical practices or else self-financing institutions will turn to be students financing institutions -In this case, no good reason found to invoke Art.32 of Constitution of India and none of fundamental rights guaranteed to petitioners stand violated - Petition, dismissed. Rohilkhand Medical College & Hospital, Bareilly Vs. M.C.I. of India 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 71.

MINES AND MINERALS REGULATION AND DEVELOPMENT ACT, 1957

MEDICAL NEGLIGENCE:

——Appeal against the impugned decree and judgment of Trial Court which held 1st defendant liable for medical negligence resulting in the death of Appellant's wife - Held, failure to take necessary care for removal of placenta after birth of child within 30 minutes which is a normal period of waiting for delivery of placenta would amount to failure of duty doctor to take necessary care and caution as an ordinary prudent doctor, which resulted in post delivery complications and Appellant's wife died due to such complications - Such omission amounts to negligence - Trial court's judgment upheld - Appeal Dismissed - Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Principles laid down in the Act can be adapted even to the cases of medical negligence while awarding damages. State of A.P. Vs. Ranganna 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 397 = 2014(6) ALD 392 = 2014(6) ALT 225.

MINES AND MINERALS REGULATION AND DEVELOPMENT ACT, 1957 - and A.P. MINOR MINERAL CONCESSION RULES, 1966, Rule 13 (1) and 15 & 35 - Basing on report of Tahsildar Deputy Director of Mines granted quarry lease in favour of petitioner - District Collector asked A.D Mines not to permit quarry operations on ground that Tahsildar issued NOC without verifying rights of pattadars of land and without obtaining prior permission of District Collector and on the ground of contemplation of full-fledged enquiry -As a sequel to same, A.D. Mines directing petitioner to stop quarrying.

Petitioner contends that action impugned is not in consonance with order of State Govt. issued vide G.O.Ms.No. 181, since it is never the case of respondent that subject properties are Govt., land and only after due and thorough verification of connected revenue records, Tahsildar issued NOC and forwarded same to District Collector.

Respondent contends that present writ petition is not maintainable in view of availability of alternative remedy of Appeal to Director of Mines under Rule 35 of A.P. Minor Mineral Concession Rules, 1966 and since Tahsilder issued NOC without properly verifying records and without verifying properly ownership and in view of enquiry already ordered by District Collector, appointing RDO as a Enquiry Officer.

Held, petition submitted quarry lease application before Mines Department and it is sought information from Tahsildar as to classification and availability of land for grant of quarry lease and Tahsildar granted NOC while categorically stating that subject land is patta land - Thereafter, after a lapse of nearly one year District Collector, asked Mines Department, not to allow any quarry operations, since Tahsildar without properly verifying as to right of pattadars and without obtaining prior permission of District Collector granted lease - A perusal of contents of G.O.Ms.No.181, is clear it is obligatory and mandatory on the part of District Collector to respond on the report of Tahsildar within 30 days from the date of receipt of report from Tahsildar, but in the instant case, District Collector, did neither act nor respond in manner indicated in G.O.Ms.No.181 - Further held, impugned action was not preceded by any notice and opportunity of being heard, as such same is in violation of principles of natural justice - Hence, writ petition is allowed, setting aside proceedings of District Collector and A.D. Mines. BSCPL Infrastructure Limited Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 367 = 2016(3) ALD 330.

MINES AND MINERALS (DEVELOPMENT & REGULATION) ACT, 1957:

MINERAL CONCESSION RULES, 1960:

—R.37(1), 37(1-A) & 37(2), 37(3) - INDIAN PARTNERSHIP ACT, 1932, Secs.59,63 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.226 - Allegation of forgery and other rights of parties under Indian Partnership Act have to be decided by a competent judicial forum, but not by Government - Constitution of India, Art.226 - Mineral Concession Rules,R.37(1), 37(1-A) & 37(2), 37(3) and Indian Partnership Act, Secs.59 & 63 - Procedural safeguard contained in Proviso to said sub-rule has to be followed by Government which was not done in instant case - Hence, principles of natural justice have been clearly violated while passed impugned order - Impugned memo is accordingly set aside - Writ petition, allowed. B.Janga Reddy Vs. Government of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 8 = 2014(6) ALD 475 = 2014(5) ALT 431.

MINES AND MINERALS (DEVELOPMENT & REGULATION) ACT, 1957:

—Sec.4A& 5 - MINERAL CONCESSION RULES, 1960, Rule 27 (5) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.246, Schedule VII, List I, Entry-54 - G.O.Rt.T.No. 723, Industries & Commerce (M.III) Dept., Dt.25-11-2009 - Granting and termination of "lease" - Govt. of A.P. issued G.O. suspending mining operation of petitioner-Company and others - Mines and Minerals Act and Mineral concession Rules does not indicate any exclusive power vests with State Govt., to suspend mining operations unilaterally - Central Govt., has got power to pass any orders unilaterally - It is only Central Govt., which has got power to pass any orders as it is authority which has to give approval for granting of prospecting licence or mining licence and if Central Govt., refuses to approve proposal made by State Govt., State Govt., cannot grant such licence - Even if termination of such licence or lease is concerned Central Govt., can order for premature termination after consultation with State Govt., after giving reasonable notice to effecting party - Contention that State Govt., got inherent power to pass any order including suspending mining operations is unsustainable - Action of State Govt., in not issuing any notice to affected parties can be termed as violative of principles of natural justice as leases in present case are statutory leases in favour of petitioners under provisions of Mines and Mineral Act, 1957, which legislation is enacted by Union Govt., in pursuance of Entry -54 of VII Schedule - State Govt., has no power whatsoever in passing impugned G.O., No.723, as it is violative of principles of natural justice and therefore said G.O is liable to be set aside - There is no power vested with State Govt., to order for suspension of mining operation unilaterally and issue to executive orders which runs contrary to provisions of Act and Rules - Impugned G.O. Rt.No.723 is unsustainable and accordingly set aside - Writ petitions, allowed. Obulapuram Mining Co., Pvt. Ltd., Bellary Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 334.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Govt., Circulars - Petitioners granted quarry lease to certain extent of land in particular Survey for extracting black granite - District Collector passing order for alienation of Ac.0.20 cents in same Survey No. for construction of Temple - Petitioners contend that deity was installed not out of any devotion but with an object of causing hindrance for quarrying activity and that Supreme Court issued specific directions prohibiting assignments of land for construction of Temples or other places of worship at public places and that Govt. prohibited mineral bearing areas from being put to other use - If one applies principle of "ajusdem generis", it becomes clear that public places mentioned in order must be akin to roads and parks and not waste poramboke lands - Therefore order passed by Supreme Court does not apply to facts of case - In this case, that land alienated to respondent 6 & 7 for construction of Temple bears any mineral and it is small extent of Ac.0.08 guntas out of several acres - Neither petitioners nor any individual has submitted an application for grant of lease of said land - Impugned order of Collector - Justified - Writ petition, dismissed. I.Renuka Vs. Collector 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 170.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Motor accident – Deceased aged 70 years, mother of claimants, while proceeding by walk, RTC bus came with high speed dashed against her causing death – Tribunal dismissed petition filed by daughters of deceased holding that petitioners failed to establish that they are legal heirs of deceased and that there is no evidence to show that there was rash and negligence on part of driver of bus - In this case except sole testimony of P.W.1 there is no evidence placed by petitioners to prove accident – Though no eye witnesses were examined on behalf of petitioner, circumstances would disclose that accident occurred due to rashness and negligence on part of driver of bus – Though petitioner claimed Rs.3 lacks by contending that deceased used to earn Rs.3,000/- per month, they did not adduce any evidence as to what is occupation of deceased and on what sources she was earning Rs.3,000/- per month – Since deceased was 70 years old, there is no possibility of applying any multiplier – Hence petitioners are awarded no fault liability compensation of Rs.50,000 - Order of Tribunal, set aside – CMA, allowed in part. G.Ramulamma Vs. Depot Manager, APSRTC,Yadagirigutta 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 279 = 2009(1) ALT 442 = 2009(1) ALD 262 = 2008(4) APLJ 9 (SN).

—Motor accident - "Composite negligence" - Appellant/claimant, cleaner of Tractor sustained injuries when truck met with collision head on with an Oil tanker coming in opposite direction and had suffered permanent disability - Tribunal arrived at total compensation payable to claimant at Rs.1,25,000/- and awarded Rs.62,500/- representing 50% thereof, accepting contention of Insurance Company that without impleading owner of Oil tanker and its insurer which is other vehicle involved in accident, 2nd respondent/ Insurance Company cannot be mulcted with accountability and liability to pay for entire quantum of compensation - When a person is injured without his playing directly or indirectly any role or without any negligence on his part, but yet as a result of negligence on part of another person or due to negligence of two or more persons, then in such a case it cannot be construed as case of contributory negligence - Therefore, without there being any part or role played in accident in question, a third party cannot be described as a contributor or causative factor for injury - In case of composite negligence, person who has been wronged has a choice of initiating proceedings against all or any of more than one or wrong doers - Every wrong doer becomes liable for whole of damage that has been caused or meted out - CONCEPT OF COMPOSITE NEGLIGENCE - Explained - Where negligent acts of two or more independent persons have between them caused damage to a third, sufferer is not driven to apply any such analysis to find out whom he can sue - Those who are sued cannot insist on having others joined as defendants - Mere omission to sue some of them will not disentitle plaintiff from claiming full relief against those who are sued - Only in cases of contributory negligence, contributor of such negligence cannot make a claim for payment of compensation in whole without accounting for his part of contribution - In cases of composite negligence, suitor, having no role to play either directly or remotely and having not contributed any negligence to causative factors of injury, is therefore entitled to seek compensation from all of them or any of them - It is a choice left to him - Appellant is entitled to recover whole of compensation from 1st respondent, owner of truck - Since 2nd respondent-Insurer had undertaken to indemnify 1st respodent, liability in this regard becomes joint and several - Balance 50% compensation of Rs.62,500/- shall also liable to be paid to appellant - CMA, allowed. Sombathina Ramu Vs.T. Srinivasulu 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 440 = 2008(3) ALD 362 = 2008(4) ALT 14 = 2008(2) APLJ 3.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Deceased owner of vehicle aged 42 years doing business died in accident while transporting mangos in vehicle - Tribunal awarding compensation of Rs.1.8 lakhs to claimants as against claim of Rs.5 lakhs - Insurance Company contends that owner of vehicle is not covered by policy and therefore awarded by tribunal is liable to be set aside - No liability can be fastened against insurance Company for death of owner of vehicle unless an extra premium is paid in Insurance Company covering risk of owner of vehicle also - In this case admittedly no such premium was paid and as such tribula not justified in fastening liability against Insurance Company to pay compensation - CMA allowed. Divisional Manager, National Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Mahamooda 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 227 = 2009(2) ALD 489 = 2009(3) ALT 682.

—— "Motor Accident" - Death of boy aged 7 years- Accident took place due to rash and negligent driving of driver of vehicle in which deceased boy was travelling - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.1.5 lakhs - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that compensation awarded to petitioner is excessive - Supreme Court in categorical terms held that since there were huge uncertainties in drawing conclusions on prospectus of child with regard to his academic and professional career, assessment should be carefully made - Tribunal is required to take into consideration various aspects such as family back ground of child, financial and other status of parents and future potentialities of deceased child - Compensation of Rs.1.5 lakhs awarded by Tribunal - Justified - M.A.C.M.A, dismissed. New India Assurance Co., Ltd. Vs. P.Raju 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 447.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—"Motor accident" - Deceased, while proceeding on a bicycle, a car owned by 1st respondent insured with 2nd respondent, came in rash and negligent manner and hit him causing death - Appellants, wife, father and son of deceased filed O.P claiming compensation of Rs.5 lakhs - Tribunal awarded a sum of Rs.4,41,500/- against 1st respondent and exonerated 2nd respondent from liability - Hence, present appeal - 2nd respondent/ Insurance Company contends that Tribunal recorded a clear finding to effect that vehicle was being used for commercial purposes and licence held by driver did not enable him to drive such vehicle and that there did not exist valid insurance policy - In this case, after verification of certified copy of insurance policy that policy found genuine and therefore it can be received as additional evidence as Ex.B.3 straightaway - Once it emerges that vehicle was covered by policy, as on date of accident, 2nd respondent/Insurance Company would be liable to insure the 1st respondent owner of vehicle - Tribunal held that driving licence was only for light motor vehicles and driver not permitted to drive a transport vehicle - This view of Tribunal is unsustainable since connotation "light motor vehicle" is relevant in context of size and make of vehicle and not use, to which it is put - Expression "transport vehicle" on other hand deals with use and not size of vehicle - Even a small vehicle like, Autorickshaw can be treated as transport vehicle because of its use whereas a big sedan or can be used as private vehicle - LMV licence issued to driver enables to drive vehicle of that category - Admittedly, vehicle involved in accident was light motor vehicle and Ex.B.1 is LMV licence - Therefore reasons assigned by Tribunal, unsustainable - 2nd respondent is liable to pay compensation awarded by Tribunal - CMA, allowed. E.Rajeswari Vs. T.S.Sekhar 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 321 = 2011(1) ALD 48.

—"Motor accident" - Deceased while bringing fish breed in Mini lorry sustained injuries in accident and died due to rash and negligent driving of driver of lorry - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.2 lakhs to claimants - Appellant/claimants filed present appeal for non-fastening liability on respondent 3 & 4 insurance Company and for enhancement of compensation - Amicus curiae contends that though deceased was travelling alongwith goods i.e., fish breed in goods carriage vehicle, Tribunal erred in holding that insurance Company does not cover risk of owner of goods - Insurance Company contend that insurance Company is not liable to pay compensation before judgment of Apex Court in BALJIT KAUR'S CASE and after judgment only principle of pay and recovery came into existence and as accident occurred in 2000 insurance Company is not liable to pay compensation - Amicus curiae contends that P.Ws.1 & 2 have categorically stated that deceased was travelling alongwith goods in crime vehicle at time of accident, insurance Company is liable to pay compensation - Therefore as per oral and document evidence deceased was travelling alongwith goods at time of accident - To rebut evidence of P.Ws.1 & 2 respondent/Insurance Company have neither adduced any evidence nor elicited from their cross-examination that deceased was unauthorised passenger in goods vehicle at time of accident, except suggesting that accident occurred due to overload of vehicle and deceased boarded vehicle as against rules - In view of judgment of Apex Court in BALJIT KAUR'S CASE respondent Nos.3 & 4, Insurance Company are directed to pay compensation to claimants and recover same from owner of crime vehicle - So far as enhancement of compensation is concerned Tribunal awarded just and reasonable compensation of Rs.2.16 lakhs under all heads and there is no need to interfere with same - CMA, allowed in part. Mamindla Padma Vs. Kanakadurga Leasing and Finance Limited, 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 149 = 2011(4) ALD 249.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—"Motor accident" - "Composite negligence" - Claimant while travelling in taxi sustained grievous injuries and simple injuries including fracture of skull bones in accident occurred due to negligence of drivers of taxi and also lorries - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.8,95,000/- as against claim of Rs.20 lakhs, directing respondents nos.1 to 3 to pay 5/6th share of compensation and respondent nos.4 to 6 to pay 1/6th of compensation to claimant with proportionate costs and interest - Principle, where there is "composite negligence" all the wrong doers are equally liable for payment of compensation to claimant, applies in present case, since both drivers of lorry and taxi are responsible for accident and claimant to a passenger in taxi - In this case, Tribunal erred in apportioning payment of compensation at 5/6th share by respondent nos.1 to 3 on one hand and 1/6th on respondent nos.4 to 6 on other, instead of fastening liability equally on all respondents - Therefore liability for payment of compensation to claimants is fastened on all respondents equally directing respondents 1 to 3 to pay 50% of total compensation awarded by Tribunal to claimant and remaining 50% by respondent 4 to 6 with proportionate costs - Appeal allowed in part. New India Assurance Co., Limited, Bhimavaram Vs. Dulam Nageswara Rao 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 144 = 2011(6) ALD 575.

—"Motor accident" - "Enhancement of compensation" - Deceased aged 40 years, house wife died in accident while going on scooter - Husband and four children claiming compensation - Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs.1,02,100/- against claim of Rs.2 lakhs applying multiplier "12.79" - Hence claimants filed present MACMA for enhancement of compensation - As per decision of Apex Court monthly income of house wife has to be fixed at Rs.3000/- even on a modest estimation for rendering multifarious services by her for managing entire family and appropriate multiplier for a person aged between 36 to 40 is "15" - Compensation awarded by Tribunal is inadequate and claimants are entitled to a total compensation of Rs.4,30,000/- - Court is required to award just compensation and is enjoined with power of awarding any amount in excess of amount claimed by claimants which in its consideration is just and reasonable and Court is not bound by pleadings of parties so far total amount of compensation is concerned - Claimants are awarded Rs.4,30,000/- towards compensation which is more than claim made by claimants - Appeal, allowed.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

Mohd.Nizamuddin Vs. J.Satyanarayana Reddy 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 91 = 2011(6) ALD 402.

—"Motor Accident" - Deceased 3rd year B.E. (Mechanical) student, while proceeding on his motor cycle, A.P.S.R.T.C Bus driven in a rash and negligent manner came from behind and hit motor cycle as result of which, deceased fell down and died on spot - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.9,02,000/- as against claim of Rs.10 lakhs - A.P.S.R.T.C. conteneds that while deceased was proceeding on motor cycle he applied breaks suddenly due to which he fell down and bus which was comming from behind dashed deceased and that there is inconsistency in FIR and averments in claim petition and therefore it has to be held that accident was not due to fault of driver of Bus - In this case, Tribunal correctly held that accident was due to rash and negligent driving of driver of Bus on being arrived at proper analysis of evidence of record as regards quantum of compensation - Monthly income of deceased was Rs.12,000/- and anual income comes to Rs.1,44,000/- from this half of amount shall be deducted towards his personal and living expenditure which comes to Rs.72,000 to arrived at loss of dependency multipler relevant age of mother (50 years) has to be selected which is 13 - In all claimants are entitled compensation of Rs.9,46,000/ - - Therefore enhancement of compensation would be Rs.9,46,000/- - Rs.9,02,000 = Rs.44,000/- - Appeal filed by APSRTC dismissed - Cross-objections filed by Claimants partly allowed. Managing Director, APSRTC Vs. C.Rangaswamy 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 136.

—"Motor accident" - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.6, Rule 4 - Deceased while proceeding on Scooter, Tractor insured with appellant dashed against Scooter caused accident resulting death of deceased - Legal representatives of deceased filed O.P. claiming compensation of Rs.4 lakhs - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.2,33,220/- to claimants - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that there is no insurance coverage of tractor as on 24-1-2002, on date of accident and that insurance policy was taken out on 29-1-2002, but an official of appellant-company issued policy as though it is in force with effect from 24-1-2002 and that Tribunal did not addressed this vital issue and held that appellant held that appellant is also liable to pay compensation and therefore permission may be accorded to appellant to proceed against owner of vehicle to recover amount, in case it is required to pay and that rate of interest awarded is also excessive - Respondent/owner of vehicle filed counter clearly stating that insurance policy was taken at 10.45 am on 24-1-2002 and that accident occurred at 7.30 p.m. on that day and that policy could become operative on expiry of 24 hours after it was issued - Claimants contend that accident occurred on account of rash and negligence on part of driver of tract and that there existed insurance policy issued by appellant covering tractor - In this case, a perusal of Ex.B.1, policy discloses that it was issued on 24-1-2002 and is valid till 23-1-2003 and it also reflects that receipt for premium was generated on 29-1-2002 and that date of receipt hardly would have any bearing upon date with effect from which policy would become operational and that there is nothing in law, which would suggest that a policy would become enforceable from date of issuance of receipt - In this case, there is absolutely no basis or foundation for plea advanced by appellant that policy obtained by fraud or misrepresentation - Or.6, Rule 4 makes this aspect of plea of fraud or misrepresentation or like must plead with relevant facts with required amount of detail - Unless opposite party is made aware of allegations of fraud against him he would not be in a position to contradict same and therefore unless a plea of fraud or misrepresentation is specifically taken, it cannot be permitted to be raised or expanded at a later stage - Wherever insurance company takes specific plea in counter/written statement that insurance policy was obtained or procured by playing fraud or misrepresentation, an issue deserves to be frame on that and insurance company can certainly establish its plea, by adducing evidence - In this case, only step which appellant would have taken in this regard, against owner of vehicle was to file a suit and even to file such a suit limitation would have started from date on which appellant became aware of relevant facts - Obviously such facts became evident in year 2002 when claim was made on basis of policy and limitation had expired and High Court cannot make any cause of action aline, if it was already barred by limitation - However, interest awarded by Tribunal reduced from 9% to 7% - Appeals, partly allowed. United India Insurance Co. Ltd., Vs. Kaki Prabhakar, 2012(1) Law Summary 77 = 2012(2) ALD 6 = 2012(2) ALT 70.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—"Motor accident" - Appellant L.K.G. student was hit by tractor, sustained serious injuries on right leg and right hand, and he suffered paralysis and his left eye was totally affected - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.1.25 lakhs towards compensation as against claim of Rs.3 lakhs - Single Judge of High Court allowed AAO filed by 1st respondent/Insurance Company taking view that vehicle not insured with first respondent - Appellant contends that 1st respondent did not raise plea of absence of insurance policy and that owner of vehicle, 2nd respondent did not furnish any information about occurrence of accident thereby implying existence of insurance coverage and that no oral or documentary evidence was adduced to substantiate plea as to absence of insurance coverage and that view taken by single Judge cannot be countenanced - 1st respondent/Insurance Company contends that neither policy of insurance was filed into Court nor particulars thereof were furnished and in that view of matter 1st respondent cannot be held liable - In this case, detailed discussion was undertaken by Tribunal about existence of Policy - It is on basis of information furnished by Police and M.V Inspector that name of 1st respondent/Insurance Company was mentioned in column no.17 of claim petition and in that column particulars of 1st respondent have been mentioned and that very fact that 1st respondent pleaded that liability is subject to statutory limits and policy conditions, discloses, that he did not take an unequivocal plea of non existence of insurance policy - At any rate, law permits an Insurance Company to pay amount and recover same from owner of vehicle in event of there being any defect in policy or liability having been improperly fastened upon Insurance Company - Therefore, 1st respondent is liable to pay amount covered by order passed by Tribunal - Judgment in AAO, set aside - Order passed by Tribunal shall become enforceable in all respects - Appeal, allowed. Imran Basha Vs. M/s. United India Insurance Company Lt., 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 316 =2014(1) ALD 547 = 2014(1) ALT 641.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—"Payment of interest on compensation amount to minor children" - On death of husband Court awarded compensation to wife and two minor daughters and father directing that shares of two minor daughters shall be kept in fixed deposit - Petitioner filed I.A praying to permit her to withdraw amount with interest on shares of her minor daughtrs to meet eduation expenses of her daughters - Court dismissed Appliation simply on ground that there is no clause in Award permitting petitionerf to withdraw interest - When mothr is seeking permission to withdraw accrued interest for purpose meeting education expenses for minor children, lower Court ought to have allowed her to withdraw accrued interest - Petitioner is permitted to withdraw interest accrued on shares of her minor daughters - Revision allowed. G.Sumathi Vs. The National Insurance Co., Ltd., 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 263 = 2013(5) ALD 565.

—Accident Claims – Deceased died in an accident leaving behind him his wife and three daughters who are majors and married – Tribunal awarded Rs.6,54,000 with interest @ 7.5 p.a - Appeal against the award by the insurance company/appellants on several grounds and to reduce compensation - Deceased was running one X-ray Laboratory and there was none to look after same after his death, dependants suffered income loss – Tribunal righty considered that point and fixed monthly income from X-ray Lab at Rs.6000/- but there a was no basis for it, neither income proof nor any record or licence to run it - But deceased was B.Sc., graduate and an amount of Rs.5100 instead of Rs.6000/- can be fixed - Defendants only wife, among 4 claimants - other 3 major married daughters also suffer for proportionate contribution of deceased - Accident Claim - Age of deceased – Disputed – Income tax return which was admitted by wife is not decisive – Date of Birth in birth certificate and driving licence are one and same and accordingly multiplier was correct and slightly reduced compensation of Rs.6,05,400/- was awarded - Appeal partly allowed. New India Assurance Co., Ltd., Rajahmundry Vs. Bobba Bharathi 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 152

—-'Motor Accident' - Deceased aged 46 years, employee died in accident – Tribunal awarded Rs.22.10 Lakhs as compensation to claimants/appellants – High Court on appeal reduced compensation to Rs.13.90 Lakhs - Hence present appeal by claimants - Appellants contend that earning capacity of deceased was Rs.35,000 per month as per salary certificate and other documents but High Court without any reason, reduced compensation amount by fixing Rs.14,000/- as monthly salary of deceased

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

– Similarly High Court has not even considered future prospects of deceased who died at young age of 46 years and also ignored fact that 12 years service was left for deceased on date of death - Total Compensation enhanced to Rs.29.30 Lakhs – Appeals are accordingly allowed. Ramilaben Chinubhai Parmar Vs. National Insurance Company 2014(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 35.

—Accidental death - Compensation awarded by the Tribunal on notional income of deceased - Appeal by Appellant/insurance company against compensation award as excessive and exorbitant - No independent appeal by claimants/dependants to enhance compensation awarded - Held, Tribunal had awarded lesser compensation than was assessed by High Court but as appeal was filed by Insurance Company, compensation cannot be enhanced - Appeal Dismissed. New India Assurance Co., Ltd. Vs. Rajyalakshmi 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 287.

—Second Schedule – "Bus accident"- Tribunal granted Rs.2 lakhs against claim of Rs.2.88 lakhs claimed by Appellant, wife whose husband died in bus accident – Hence present Appeal by wife - Appellant contends that Tribunal having observed that claimant is entitled to Rs.2.88 lakhs ought to have granted said amount without restricting compensation to Rs.2 lakhs and that there is no bar to Tribunal to grant higher compensation than claimed by Claimants - Respondent/APSRTC contends that appellant ought to have filed amendment petition claiming enhancement of compensation and without doing so she cannot maintain appeal and that Tribunal selected multiplier of '16' has to be reduced to '15' - In this case, Tribunal basing on evidence on record held that claimant in fact is entitled to Rs.2.88 lakhs - However Tribunal pruned said amount to Rs.2 lakhs since claim of Appellant is only Rs.2 lakhs - Compensation enhanced to Rs.2.88 lakhs from Rs.2 lakhs - Appeal allowed. Apparaju Sobha Rani Vs. Midiyam Rama Rao 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 253.

—There is no limitation for filing the claim petitions - Since there is no limitation for filing claim petitions, there may not be any limitation for filing the cross objections - It is clear from record that notice in appeal was served on the claimant on 22-03-2006 but he filed cross objections on 12-09-2014 - In view of the same, if there is any enhancement of compensation, the A.P.S.R.T.C. shall not be put to loss by directing it to pay interest for this period - Therefore, in case cross objections are allowed and any amount is enhanced, claimant shall not be entitled to interest on enhanced amount from 22-03-2006 to 12-09-2014 - It is not in dispute that angular fallen on ground at a great speed and after forcibly entered into bus, hit right leg of injured/claimant - From this it is clear that angular was not properly tied on top of bus - It is responsibility of driver and conductor to tie angular or any other object on top of bus - Whether it was tied by a passenger or any other person, responsibility lies on crew to examine all articles placed on top of the bus and see that no accident occurs, when bus is running speedily - Therefore, there is nothing on record to say that driver of bus is not responsible for the accident - Accordingly,

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

MACMA is dismissed and Cross Objections are allowed, enhancing compensation from Rs.1,67,235/- to Rs.3,81,735/- - Claimant shall not be entitled for interest from 22-3-2006 to 12-9-2014 on enhanced amount – Enhanced compensation shall carry interest at 7.5% p.a. from date of filing of cross objections till date of realisation. A.P.S.R.T.C. rep. by its M.D.,Hyderabad Vs. Muttukonda Tirupati Reddy 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 216

—-'Cross objections" - Short question that falls for consideration in this appeal is whether the registered owner of a vehicle is liable to pay compensation or a transferee from the registered owner, which is not recorded with the registration authorities is liable to pay compensation - Tribunal by its award observed that the appellant herein and the third respondent i.e. the financier and purchaser both are jointly and severally liable to pay the compensation awarded - Appellant financier aggrieved by the same, filed present appeal.

Held, hence it is clear that in the absence of taking any steps by registered owner for transfer of the vehicle, the registered owner would continue to be liable - Moreover, Tribunal has held that both the appellant and third respondent are jointly and severally liable to pay compensation - In above circumstances, it appears that there are no merits in appeal and accordingly it is liable to be dismissed. Sri Phanidra Finance Corporation Vs. Gali Brahmanandham (died) 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 411

—Learned counsel for the Insurance Company submitted that since the deceased was working only as casual conductor his gross salary should not be taken into consideration - In fact, though the deceased was working as casual conductor there was every possibility of regularizing his services in future and in view of the same Court does not see any reason to accept the contention of learned counsel for the Insurance Company - Since the deceased was below 40 years of age, 50% has to be added as addition to the income of the deceased in view of the recent judgment of the Apex Court - Accordingly, M.A.C.M.A filed by the Insurance Company is dismissed and the Cross Objections filed by the claimants is allowed. Divisional Manager, Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Nomula Uma Rani 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 195

—-An acid tanker being driven in a rash and negligent manner and at high speed came from opposite direction and dashed against the Qualis - As a result, a minor boy and his mother died on the spot and other persons travelling in Qualis sustained injuries - Tribunal, on appreciation of oral and documentary evidence, came to conclusion that driver of Qualis and the driver of the Acid Tanker are both responsible for accident and accordingly apportioned the negligence between them as 50:50 - On issue of compensation, the Tribunal awarded 1,60,000/- towards loss of dependency and 4,500/- towards funeral expenses and loss of estate - Claimants appealed against award of the Tribunal.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

Held, only eye-witness to accident is P.W.1 who was travelling in the Qualis that met with the accident - Admittedly, Acid Tanker is a heavy vehicle - It appears that there is nothing to disbelieve the version of P.W.1 and thus, it cannot be said that finding of the Tribunal on this issue is perverse and not based on evidence - Tribunal has to appreciate the evidence adduced before it - FIR and the chargesheet have to be considered in the light of other evidence adduced before Tribunal - When sole testimony of P.W.1 reveal that there was contributory negligence in occurrence of accident, the Tribunal is justified in believing the evidence of P.W.1, particularly, in the absence of any contra evidence - Therefore, this Court do not see any reason to disturb finding of the Tribunal on this aspect - In this case, deceased was aged about 16 years and he was studying 10th class - He was only son of his parents - Even if 10th class qualification is taken, deceased would have secured a job with minimum basic of Rs. 6000 per month - Even if 50% is deducted towards personal expenditure, the loss of earnings would be Rs. 3000/- per month and the annual loss would be Rs. 36,000/- - Appropriate multiplier applicable to the instant case is 18 - Thus total loss of earnings would come to Rs. 6,48,000/- - Claimants are also entitled for Rs. 1,00,000/- towards loss of estate and Rs. 25,000/- towards funeral expenses - Thus the claimants are entitled for a total compensation of Rs. 7,73,000/ - - Out of the amount now awarded, first claimant (father) is entitled for Rs. 5,79, 750/- and the second claimant (sister) is entitled for Rs.1,93,250 - Accordingly, M.A.C.M.A. No. 1015 of 2005 filed by the claimants is allowed and M.A.C.M.A.No.77 of 2006 filed by the Insurance Company is dismissed. L.Hanuman Prasad Vs. G.Nagendra Gound 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 168

—-Owner, driver and insurer of one of the vehicles can be sued and it is not necessary to sue owner, driver and insurer of both the vehicles - Claimant may implead the owner, driver and insurer of both the vehicles or anyone of them - Were the injured is himself partly liable, the principle of 'composite negligence' will not apply nor can there be an automatic inference that the negligence was 50:50 - In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between two tort feasors vis a vis the plaintiff/claimant is not permissible - He can recover at his option whole damages from any of them. Khenyei Vs. New India Assurnace Co.Ltd. 2015(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 19 = 2015(4) ALD 98(SC) = AIR 2015 SC 2261 = 2015 AIR SCW 3169.

—Sec. 2 - This appeal is preferred by petitioners-claimants assailing judgment and award dated 19.04.2010 passed in MVOP No.263 of 2008 on file of Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal whereunder and whereby an amount of Rs.3,75,000/- was awarded to petitioners.

Held, this Court of considered view that finding of Tribunal that there was contributory negligence on part of deceased to cause the accident to extent of 25% is not sustainable either on facts or on law and said finding is hereby set aside

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

- In light of foregoing discussion, this Court have no hesitation to hold that accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of driver of crime vehicle only - Tribunal awarded Rs.10,000/- to first petitioner towards consortium - Taking into consideration age of first petitioner and principle enunciated in cases cited trial Court inclined to award an amount of Rs.50,000/- to first petitioner towards consortium – This Court also inclined to award Rs.50,000/- to petitioners 2 to 4 towards loss of love and affection - Thus, total compensation, which petitioners are entitled to, under various heads is Rs.6,40,000 - Compensation awarded under various heads is just and reasonable to meet the ends of justice - Without filing regular appeal or cross-objections, insurer is not entitled to challenge the legality or otherwise of findings recorded by Tribunal - Finding of Tribunal that insurer has to pay 75% of compensation awarded to petitioners became final - Viewed from this angle also, contentions raised by second respondent has no legs to stand - First respondent being owner of crime vehicle is vicariously liable to wrongful acts done by his employee - Crime vehicle was insured with second respondent insurance company as on date of accident - Hence second respondent has to indemnify liability of first respondent - Therefore, respondent Nos.1 and 2 are jointly and severally liable to pay compensation to petitioners - In result, appeal is allowed in part, enhancing compensation from Rs.3,75,000/ - to Rs.6,40,000/- with interest at 7.5% p.a. throughout. Chakali Swaroopa Vs.Mohd. Ghouse 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 302

—Secs.2(3) &166 - Interpretation of statutes - Motor accident - Liablity to pay compesation - Appellant/Insurance Company issued policy of insurance for Maruthi Gypsy - Said vehicle was requisitioned during election by Sub-Divisional Magistrate - When vehicle was in possession of said Officer and while he was travelling in said vehicle accident occurred as result whereof a boy sustained injuries and later on expired - Legal representaties of deceased boy filed Application for compensation - Insurance Company contends that under terms of insurance Policy it is not liable to reimburse owner of vehcile as regards its liability on account of said accident - Tribunal upheld contentions of Insurance Company - Division Bench of High Court set aside award of Tribunal holding "In view of the above discussion, the appeal is allowed and the award of the Tribunal is modified and it is held that the owner of the vehicle, the State Gov-ernment and the Insurance Company are all jointly and severally liable to pay the compensation - Since the vehicle was insured with the Insurance Company it shall deposit the amount payable to the claimants - In this case, car was not handedover to Officer with consent of owner thereof - When vehicle is requisitioned, owner of vehicle has no other alternative but to handover possession to statutory Authority - State shall be liable to pay amount of compensation to claimants and not registered owner of vehicle and consequently appellant herein - Appeal, allolwed. National Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Deepa Devi 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 70.

—Secs.2(3), 166, 147 - "Motor accident" - "Act policy" - Owner-cum-driver of tractor while coming along with some labourers, Tractor turned turtle due to load and claimant sustained multiple injuries - Claim petition filed before Tribunal claiming compensation of Rs.1 lakh - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that they have no liability to compensate the claimant as he himself is owner and also driver of offending vehicle at time of accident and Policy does not cover risk of owner or driver of vehicle - Tribunal awarded sum of Rs.54,000 as compensation, holding that accident took place due to rash and negligent driving of driver of tractor and that there was a valid Insurance coverage for vehicle at time of accident - One of main ingredients to claim compensation under provisions of M.V Act is that claimant has to establish that there was negligence on part of driver and driver was acting under instructions of his master - Then only Insurance Company will be liable to indemnify owner of vehicle - Appellant/Insurance Company further contends that Policy is an Act policy which does not cover even in made of vehicle, leave alone, driver or owner of vehicle - Policy covers risk of death or bodily injury of 3rd party only - A look at policy clearly indicates that it was an act policy and no extra premium was paid covering risk of owner or driver of vehicle - Sec.147 of M.V Act does not contemplate coverage of any risk of bodily injury or death to owner of vehicle unless such risk is covered by Policy - In present case, Insurance Policy of offending vehicle is stated to be act policy and said vehicle is to be used only for purpose mentioned there in and it specifically cover only third parties - In this case, a perusal of policy clearly indicates that it was an Act policy and no extra premium was paid covering risk of owner or driver of vehicle - Insurer is not liable where policy does not cover risk of either owner or inmates of vehicle - There is no contractual liability as envisaged in Sub-clause(ii) of Proviso to Sub-section (1) of Sec.147 of Act - Award passed by Tribunal, set aside - Appeal, allowed. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Dongre Sanjeev 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 257.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.2 (3) & 168 - "Owner" of vehicle - Meaning of - "Hire Purchase Agreement" - 4th respondent purchased vehicle by availing loan from appellant/financer - Vehicle met with accident while it is in possession and control of 4th respondent resulting death of person - Tribunal awarding compensation in favour of 1st and 2nd respondents/ claimants rejecting objection of appellant that it is not liable to pay any amount of compensation together with owner of vehicle, driver and Insurance Company - In this case, as vehicle is subject matter of Hire Purchase Agreement, appellant's name mentioned in Registration Book - In case of motor vehicle which is subjected to Hire Purchase Agreement, financer cannot ordinarily be treated to be owner - Person who is in possession of vehicle and not financer being owner would be liable to pay damages for motor accident - Appellant/financer not liable to pay any compensation to claimants - Impugned judgment of Tribunal - Unsustainable - Hence, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Godavari Finance Co. Vs. Degala Satyanarayanamma 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 29 = 2008(3) ALD 18(SC) = AIR 2008 SC 2493 = 2008(2) Supreme 841.

—Sec.2(13) - Motor accident - "Goods" - Defined - Appellant/husband aged 55 year earning Rs.3,000/- per month, died while travelling in goods Van owned by 1st respondent insured with 2nd respondent, together with 3 bags of rice and 3 bags of cement died in accident - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.1,11,400/- against claim of Rs.1,30,000/- to be paid by 1st respondent owner of Van - Appellant contends that evidence on record clearly disclose that deceased were travelling along three bags of rice and three has of cement and said items deserved to be treated as goods and not luggage and that Tribunal proceed on assumption that rights and cement also needs to be treated as luggage and there by exonerated 2nd respondent/insurance Company and that correct multiplier also not applied - 2nd respondent/Insurance Company contends that there was no proof that deceased was travelling with any goods and assuming that load of rice and cement was owned by him that does not answer description of goods and that lower Court has discussed matter at length with reference to decided cases and no interference is warranted - In this case, specific case of appellant was that deceased was travelling with rice bags and cement bags and that Tribunal proceeded on assumption that deceased was travelling with material referred above that would constitute luggage but not goods - GOODS - Defined - Definition of goods in Act is partly inclusive an partly exclusive and it takes in its fold, but excludes substances live-stock or anything carried any vehicle luggage or personal of effects carried in motor vehicle - "Luggage" on other hand is explained as trunks, suit cases and other baggage of traveller - Emphasis in context of describing "luggage" is on utility in course of travel - These are articles or substances that are essential for a person when he is on travel - They may include cloths or other items such as soaps and limited quantity of eatables and certain material of daily utility - Goods on other hands have no relivance for use by person while travelling - Only purpose of carrying them in vehicle is to transport shift them from one place to another - Once certain articles do not constitute luggage, they need to be treated as goods irrespective of quantity - Rice and Cement cannot be treated as luggage since they are not used or utilized by a person in course of his travelling - In this case, deceased was travelling with rice and cement - Once those items cannot be treated as luggage inescapable conclusion is that they are goods - Since they were being carried in vehicle classified as a goods vehicle, 2nd respondent/insurance company is liable to pay compensation - Therefore, appellant is entitled to be paid compensation of Rs.1,30,000/- with interest at 7% - 1st and 2nd respondents shall be jointly and severally liable to pay compensation - Appeal, allowed. P.Osuramma Vs. P.Ramachandra 2012(1) Law Summary 88 = 2012(2) ALD 227 = 2012(2) ALT 660.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec. 2(13), 173 - Whenever a driver of a goods carrier offers to transport items like gas stove, cylinders, cots, almirahs, rice bags etc., and when such items are loaded in the vehicle, they have to be treated as goods alone and the owner of goods or representatives of the owner accompanying such goods have to be treated as the owner or representatives of goods - Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, Sec.2(13), 173 - There is no rule which says that a goods vehicle should be loaded only with a particular type of goods and no other type of goods can be allowed into goods vehicle - Where owner of goods wants to carry goods which can fill half portion or 1/4th portion of lorry, then such owners of goods may not get any goods vehicle to transport their goods - Moreover, there may be a situation where the lorry with half of the load may be proceeding from one destination to other destination and in the midway, remaining part of lorry can be filled with some other goods at some other place, ie., in the midway - Thus, owner of vehicle has not violated the terms and conditions of insurance policy and claimant has to be treated as owner of the goods - Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, Sec.2(13), 173 - Insurance company should pay amount to claimant first and then recover same from owner of vehicle - Tribunal has assigned valid reasons for drawing logical conclusions and passed a reasoned award - Appeal dismissed. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. Vs. M.V.Prasad 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 144.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.2 (14), 2(47) & 3 r/w Rule 16 of Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989 - CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT - Complainant's brother while travelling in transport vehicle sitting with driver sustained injuries due to accident - Hence complaint claiming compensation - Insurance Company contends that vehicle, at time of accident was driven by complainant's brother who possessed licence to drive Light Motor Vehicle and not Heavy Motor Vehicle and in absence of necessary endorsement as required, Insurance Company, not liable - District Forum dismissed complaint holding that complainant not entitled to compensation - State Commission set aside order of District Forum and directed Insurance Company to pay compensation - National Commission dismissed Revision and confirmed orders of State Commission - Orders passed by State Commission and National Commission are set aside and Insurance Company cannot be held liable to pay compensation - Appeal, allowed. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Prabhu Lal 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 7.

—Secs.2 (19) & 2 (30) - Motor accident - 1st respondent/Claimant while going on his Moped, bus owned by 3rd respondent dashed against him resulting fracture injuries - Trial Court directed appellant/Insurance Company, owner of bus and APSRTC jointly and severally to pay award sum to claimant since negligence on part of driver of bus is proved - Appellant contends that when bus is hired by APSRTC, Insurer cannot be held liable for payment of insurance amount - "Owner" - Defined - In this case, that though appellant insured offending bus, it was on hire to APSRTC - There is also no dispute that bus was put to schedule as per trip sheet fixed by concerned APSRTC officials and driver was under control of hirer - In such a case, APSRTC alone would be liable to pay compensation - Appellant cannot be made jointly and severally liable to pay award sum - 1st respondent/Claimant is at liberty to proceed against APSRTC and recover entire amount awarded - CMA, allowed accordingly. Branch Manager, Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Javvaji Bhaskar Rao 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 277 = 2009(2) ALT 512.

—Secs. 2(28), 61 & 39 - CENTRAL MOTOR VEHICLE RUIES, Rules 47 & 48 - Forms 20,21,22-A,23 & 23-A - "Injuries" - While claimants, coolies travelling on trailer loaded with paddy bags, sustained injuries in accident due to rash and negligent driving by driver of tractor - Tribunal granted compensation of Rs.4,59,435/- as against claim of Rs.5 lakhs - Appellant/Insurer contends that in order to fasten liability on Insurer, insurance of trailer is not sufficient but both tractor and trailer should be insured and that since owner of tractor who is necessary party not impleaded, appellant/insurer cannot be held vicariously liable - Claimants contend that since trailer was admittedly insured, there is no requirement under law that both vehicles should be insured and as claim was made against owner of trailer, appellant insurer cannot deny its liability - Under Cl.44 "Tractor" means a Motor Vehicle which is itself constructed to carry any load (other than equipment used for purpose of propulsion); but excludes a road-roller - As per said definition although a trailer is not a mechanically propelled vehicle and cannot move on its own but to be drawn by another motor vehicle, it is still a vehicle for purpose of Act by virtue of inclusive definition in Cl.28 - Hence as per Sec.61, r/w Sec.39 it is mandatory to register every vehicle - Trailer is no exception to said requirement and that a trailer even though drawn by motor vehicle it by itself is a motor vehicle and it is required to be registered separately not-withstanding registration of tractor - A trailer attached to a motor vehicle is a part of motor vehicle and that no separate insurance is required for a trailer is accepted, it equally applies to a converse case where a trailer alone is insured - Insurer cannot avoid its obligation as insurer of trailer - By insuring only trailer insurer has consciously entered into contract with insured and undertaken obligation to discharge liability arising out of such contract and indemnify insured avoiding such obligation is not just and proper - Appellant/insurer is also jointly and severally liable - Compensation awarded by tribunal is just and reasonable - Claimant is not entitled for enhancement in this appeal - Cross-objections are dismissed. New India Assurance Co, Ltd, Vs. Nunna Veera Venkata Satyanarayana, 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 176 = 2011(2) ALD 302 = 2011(3) ALT 45.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.2(30) - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.114(g) - Burden lies on Insurance Company to establish that owner has wilfully committed breach of policy by entrusting vehicle to an unauthorized driver and breach was so fundamental that resulted in accident - Lower Court rightly observed that the appellant/Insurance Company has not summoned RTA officials to establish that driver did not possess any driving licence - Moreover, police have not charge sheeted the driver for not possessing valid driving licence - Considering all these, it must be held that the appellant/Insurance Company failed to establish breach of policy committed by insured – Award passed by Tribunal confirmed. Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co, Ltd. Vs. M.Sreedevi 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 34

——-Secs.2(30) and 168 - Indian Penal Code, Sec.304-A - Appellant/2nd Respondent denied the averments made in petition including manner of accident, involvement of vehicle and that he took a plea that 1st respondent purchased offending vehicle

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

by availing finance from 2nd respondent and that offending vehicle was under seizure which was seized by Police even from December 2005 and that vehicle was even now in police station.

Held, in instant case, no evidence is led in by appellant before Tribunal to substantiate its contention that alleged crime vehicle was financed by it - Tribunal has rightly drawn adverse inference against appellant by holding that though plea is taken with regard to loan taken by owner of alleged vehicle i.e., 5th respondent herein, no such material is produced either before Tribunal - Appellant has not filed any loan agreement alleged to have been executed between it and 5th respondent, owner of offending vehicle - Definition u/Sec.2(30) of Act of 1988 is very clear with regard to 'owner' means, a person in whose name motor vehicle stands and registered and in respect of hypothecation agreement, lease or hirepurchase agreement, 'owner' contextually means person in possession of vehicle under that agreement - As such, in absence of material produced by appellant, it cannot be said that appellant is not liable to pay compensation - In view of aforesaid premises, this Court do not find any force in contentions of learned counsel for appellant that financier is not liable to pay compensation and also do not find any infirmity in order passed by Tribunal - Accordingly, this MACMA is dismissed. Apna Finance (Idea) Ltd. Vs. Uppalapati Ramana 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 355 = 2016(6) ALD 385 = 2016(5) ALT 326.

—Secs.3,4,7,8(8), 10(2) and 13(2) - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT,1872, Secs.41,42 and 43 – Accident due to rash and negligent driving resulting in permanent disability - Claimant awarded compensation - Appeal by vehicle owner/first respondent disowning liability to pay compensation - Second respondent/Insurance Company contended that first respondent has no valid licence at time of accident and hence it is not liable to pay compensation - Held, Mere contending that driver of vehicle was not having valid driving licence is not sufficient - Insurance Company should have obtained necessary documents from the concerned RTA authorities and ought to have filed in this case or ought to have filed applications into Court to summon the records from the concerned RTA office - Letter filed in earlier case cannot be treated as evidence in this case - Thus, it has to be held that the Insurance Company failed to prove that the first respondent was having valid driving licence as on the date of accident - Insurance Company is liable to reimburse the appellant herein - Appeal allowed. Katru John Kennedy Vs. Subbavarapu Lakshmi 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 224.

—Sec.3, r/w 181 - "Motor accident" - Driver of offending vehicle, drove vehicle in rash and negligent manner and dashed against deceased, aged 26 years, working at NTPC, earning Rs.12,000/- p.m. as result of which deceased sustained grievous injuries and sccumbed to injuries instantaneously - Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs.12,49,000/- - Appellant-Insurance Company contends that accident occurred due to negligence of deceased and that driver of offending vehicle had no valid driving licence at time of accident and that compensation awarded is on higher side and liable to be reduced - In this case, 1st respondent/ owner of vehicle clearly admitted that driver of offending vehicle had valid and effective driving licence as on date of accident - 2nd respondent/Insurance Company, except making a bald allegation that driver of vehicle had no valid driving licence to drive vehicle at time of accident did not adduce any evidence to substatiate said contention - If really driver had no valid licence, he would have been charge-sheeted u/Sec.3, r/w 181 of Act - As such Tribunal held that driver of offending vehicle had valid and effective licence to drive vehicle on date of accident - Tribunal had appreciated oral and documentary evidence and rightly taken income of deceased at Rs.12,000/- p.m. and applied multiplier "17" and determined loss of dependency at Rs.2,24,000/- - Amount awarded towards loss of estate is reduced to Rs.10,000 - Therefore claimants are entitled to only Rs.12,44,000 - Appeal, partly allowed. Oriental Insurance Co., Dhanbadh, Bihar State Vs. Dumpa Haritha, 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 26 = 2011(2) ALD 838.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.4 & 5 – Motor accident – Claimant, father claiming compensation of Rs.10 lacks for death of his son in accident – Appellant/Insurance Company contends that driver of vehicle is minor on date of accident and not holding a valid and effective driving license and hence not liable to reimburse owner of vehicle - Single Judge of High Court allowed appeal holding that there is no evidence on record to indicate that owner of vehicle parted keys of vehicle to his son deliberately or knowingly - If in absence of father son takes keys and drives vehicle for a fun and caused accident, it cannot be said that there is an express or implied consent on part of owner – Division Bench of High Court dismissed appeal - Appellant contends that keeping in view provisions of Secs.4 & 5 of Act question of any willful default on part of owner is wholly irrelevant in this case as neither a license could be granted in favour of minor no in fact driver of vehicle was holding valid license - In this case, admittedly vehicle was being driven by deceased who is aged about 15 years and he did not hold any valid license on date of accident – Single Judge and also Division Bench of High Court did not put unto themselves a correct question of law and proceeded on wrong premise that it is for Insurance Company to prove breach of conditions of contract of insurance and High Court did not advert to itself provisions of Secs.4 & 5 of Act and thus misdirected itself in law - Impugned judgments of High Court, unsustainable and hence set aside – Judgment of Tribunal, restored – Appeal, allowed. United India Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Rakesh Kumar Arora 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 199 = 2009(3) ALD 136(SC) = 2008 AIR SCW 6872 = AIR 2009 SC 24 = 2008(7) Supreme 343.

—Secs.10,41, 171 & 173 - CENTRAL MOTOR VEHICLES RULES, Rule 51 - Motor accident - Driver, holder of licence of three wheeler causing accident while deceased travelling in transport vehicle - Tribunal awarding compensation to claimants - High Court dismissed Appeal preferred by appellant/Insurance Company - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that driver of vehicle being not holder of a legal, valid and effective driving licence, it is not liable to reimburse claim of claimants and that registration certificate as also policy of insurance having clearly mentioned vehicle in question was a transport vehicle and as driver was not possessing a valid licence for a transport vehicle, impugned judgment cannot be sustained - Respondent contends that driver of vehicle is having an effective driving licence for autorickshaw and it did not matter as to whether it was adapted for carrying passengers or goods - "Light motor vehicle" - Defined - Light motor vehicle would not include a light transport vehicle - A driver who had a valid licence to drive a light motor vehicle, is authorized to drive a light goods vehicle as well - Impugned judgment, set aside - However, appellant is directed to satisfy award in favour of claimants and recover same from owner of vehicle - Appeal, allowed. New India Assurance Co.Ltd. Vs. Roshanben Rahemansha Fakir 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 188.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

——Secs.19, 113-115. 194, 200 and Rule 21 of the Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989 - Petitioner is a driver by profession having valid driving license upto 23.04.2018 - It is the case of the petitioner that he was working as a driver of a vehicle - While he was proceeding with a load of sand, same was seized alleging that said vehicle was found plying with an overload of 7,770 Kgs. of sand - On said ground, Assistant Secretary, RTA issued the impugned proceedings suspending driving license for three months from 30.04.2016 to 29.07.2016, which is subject matter of challenge in this writ petition - The main ground urged by learned counsel for petitioner is that once offence is compounded by paying compounding fees, question of suspending driving license for same offence does not arise and hence authorities erred in suspending driving license - A counter came to be filed by Motor Vehicle Inspector denying averments made in affidavit.

Held, therefore, a harmonious reading of Section 194 and 200 of Act, 1988 makes it clear that benefit under Section 200 of Motor Vehicles Act has to be extended not only to owner who allows the vehicle to be driven, but also to person who drives vehicle - Having regard to judgments referred to above and a plain reading of Section 200 of the Act, 1988 makes it clear that once an offence is compounded under Sub-Section (1) of Section 200, no further proceedings shall continue in respect of such offence.

When stringent punishment and strict interpretation of guidelines are required to be made, authorities ought not to have invited or entertained an application for compounding the offence, knowing that offences of this nature would fall within the recommendations of the Hon'ble Supreme Court Committee on road safety - Having regard to above, this Court is of view that suspension of license for a period of three months, even after compounding the offence under Section 200 of the Act 1988, is illegal and same is liable to be set aside - Accordingly, the Writ Petition is allowed, setting aside proceedings. Narsimha Vadlakonda Vs. State of Telangana 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 53 = 2016(4) ALT 275 = 2016(6) ALD 707.

—Secs.21, 22, 19 (1)(c), 184 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.304 (A) - "Suspension of driving licence" - Petitioner's driving licence suspended for period of six months on ground, he was involved in accident - Petitioner contends that he is involved in accident for first time and Police have registered case against petitioner u/Sec.304(A) and he was enlarged on bail and said criminal proceedings are still pending consideration and that licensing authority passed impugned order without issuing any notice and without giving any reasonable opportunity being heard and as such, impugned order suffers from vice of violation of principles of natural justice and that petitioner has not been convicted earlier and being involved in accident for first time, provisions of Sec.21 have no application - Admittedly in this case, petitioner not convicted previously and he is involved in accident for first time and criminal proceedings initiated against him are still pending consideration - In fact u/Sec.21 of Act licence of an individual can be suspended or cancelled only if he was convicted previously in an offence u/Sec.184 of Act for causing death or grievous injuries to person involved in accident - Impugned order passed by 1st respondent licensing authority suffers from violation of provisions of Sec.21 of Act, but also suffers from vice of violation of principles of natural justice, and as such cannot be sustained and liable to be set aside - Writ petition, allowed. K.Vidyanand Vs. Addl. Licensing Authority, Hyderabad Central Zone 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 30 = 2011(5) ALD 718 = 2011(5) ALT 741.

—Sec.34, 10 and 149 - Motor accident - Deceased aged 27 years, unmarried, while travelling in Truck died due to rash and negligent driving of driver - Tribunal awarding compensation of Rs.1.18 lakhs to claimant/mother of deceased - High Court directing Insurance Company to recover amount from owner of vehicle - Insurance Company contends that as deceased was travelling as a gratuitous passenger and as driver of vehicle not possessing effective driving licence, High Court should not have passed impugned order - Respondent/owner of vehicle contends that deceased was a vegetable vendor and he had been travelling in truck for collecting empty boxes and thus, he was not a gratuitous passenger and that as Insurance Company has already deposited amount of compensation, right to recover amount from owner of vehicle need not have been granted - Owner of vehicle alone is liable to pay compensation to claimant for causing death of her son by rash and negligent driving on part of driver of truck - Judgment of High Court - Justified. New India Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Kaushalaya Devi 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 193.

—Secs.60 & 31 - "Motor accident" - Deceased aged 27 years earning Rs.4000/- per month, while proceeding on his Scooter, Ambassador car driven by its driver with high speed dashed back side of Scooter and on account of sudden impact deceased sustained fatal injuries and died on spot - Trial Court awarded compensation of Rs.3,75,600/- to claimants as against claim of Rs.4 laksh, melting responsibility on 1st respondent to pay compensation - Appellate/1st respondent contends that he sold car to 2nd respondent who is owner of vehicle at time of accident and he is not liable to pay compensation - Tribunal in its order relied upon judgment of High Court of Jharkhand, wherein it was held that when registered owner transferred vehicle by selling to third party before date of accident by executing letter of delivery by transferee, neither transferor nor transferee got ownership transfer in registration certificate, owner of said vehicle is liable to pay compensation on ground that ownership does not get changed merely because owner has entered into some agreement with third party for sale of vehicle - Moment, possession of vehicle is delivered by transferor after completion of sale and possession is taken by transferee, sale is completed and ownership of vehicles passes from transferor to transferee - In this case, Ex.B.1 and B.2, receipts signed by 2nd respondent clearly show that car was sold to 2nd respondent who took delivery of vehicle on 28-10-1999 itself and accident was occurred on 17-2-2001 - Tribunal erred in fixing liability on 1st respondent/appellant - It is only 2nd respondent who is 1st respondent in appeal is liable to pay compensation - Claimants can proceed against 2nd respondent in O.P for recovery of award amount. Uppala Muralidhar Rao Vs. K.Balakrishna Reddy 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 237 = 2009(5) ALD 397.

—Secs. 122, 126, 173 - From a close reading of the entire material it is clear that the deceased was proceeding by the side of the lorry, but, however, on seeing another lorry coming in opposite direction he tried to move his motor cycle towards further left and in that process the motor cycle hit the rear side portion of the lorry - In fact, before proceeding by the side of parked lorry, the deceased should have observed whether any lorry is coming from opposite direction or not - Therefore, in the circumstances it appears that both the deceased and the lorry driver of the parked lorry were negligent - But as far as the role of the parked lorry driver is concerned, he is mainly responsible for parking the lorry in a careless manner, without any parking lights and indicators - Therefore, negligence has to be apportioned between the lorry driver and deceased at 75% and 25% respectively - M.A.C.M.A. is allowed and compensation enhanced from Rs.50,000/- to Rs.10,61,000/-. B.Jaisoorya Vs. D.Ramakrishna Reddy 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 106

—Sec.128 - “Triple riding on motor cycle” - “Motor accident” - When three deceased persons were making triple riding on Hero Honda Motor Cycle, D.C.M. Van came in opposite direction dashed motor cycle resulting in spot death of three riders of motor cycle - Tribunal awarded compensation - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that triple riding is prohibited u/Sec.128 of M.V Act and is punishable and that triple riding on motor cycle meant for riding only for two persons, causes discomfort and inconvenience for rider/driver on motor cycle for want of space and there will be cramping resulting in lack of proper control on motor cycle and that because of triple riding there will be contributory negligence on part of driver of motor cycle and that 25% of compensation has to be disallowed towards contributory negligence - Finding as to negligence or contributory negligence has to depend on evidence on record - It is only in absence of any evidence on record, question of drawing presumptions under law or on facts can be resorted to - D.C.M. Van driver drove same towards wrong side and dashed opposite motor cycle killing three riders on motor cycle on spot - Finding of Tribunal that accident took place due to rash and negligent driving of D.C.M. Van driver - Justified

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

- Motor cycle rider/driver on which three deceased persons were travelling did not contribute any negligence for this accident - This accident was not due to triple riding of motor cycle, but due to fault as well as rash and negligent driving on part of D.C.M van driver - No dispute with regard to quantum of compensation awarded by Tribunal - Appeals, dismissed. United India Insurance Co., Ltd., Patancheru Vs. Chendri Ramaiah 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 56 = 2011(3) ALD 3.

—Secs.134,203,205 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.304, Part - II & 304-A - "Motor Accident" - "Hostile witness" - "Drunken driving" - B.M.W. car driven rash and negligently at high speed and dashed against victims , causing accident in which six persons were killed and some were injured - After completion of investigation charge-sheet filed against accused u/Secs.201,304(1) r/w 34 of IPC - Trial Court found respondent-accused guilty of commission of offence u/Sec.304 Part-II of IPC and awarded a jail sentence for five years and acquitted for other charges - Single Judge of HIgh Court reduced sentences two years while converting conviction of accused from Sec.304 Part-II to 304 - Appellannt State contends that admittedly respondent not holding any valid Indian licence to drive vehicle in India andhe was in intoxicated condition at time of accident and that his negligence coupled with intoxication woul lead to culpulable homicide and that respondent/accused fled away from scene of crime, and he did not rendered any help to injured and that he did not even report matter to Police and tried to obliterate evidence available and that High Court committed grave error in interfering with well reasoned order of trial Court - In this case, looking at the nature and manner in which accidedent had taken place, it can be safely be held that he had no intention to cause death, but certainly had knowledge that his act may result in death - Thus, looking at matter from all angles that knowledge can still be attributed to accused that his act might caused such bodily injuries which may in ordinary course of nature, be sufficient to cause death, but certainly he did not have any intention to cause death and he was not driving vehicle with that intention - In this case, there is nothing to prove that accused knew that a group of persons were standing on road he was going to pass throw - If that be so, there cannot be an intention to cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death - Hence accused committed an offence u/Sec.304 Part - II - Judgment ande order of conviction passed by High Court partly set aside and order of conviction of trial Court, is restored and upheld - DRUNKEN DRIVING - In this case, evidence of experts clearly indicates presence of alchohol in blood of accused beyond permissible limit, that was finding recorded by Court below and that if a particular procedure has been prescribed u/Secs.185 & 203, then that procedure has to be followed, has no application to facts of this case - VALID DRIVING LICENCE - There is no presemption in law that a person who has no licence does not driving and that driving without a licence is an offence under M.V Act and not under Penal Code, unless and until it is proved that a person was driving a vehicle a rash and negligent manner so as to attract Sec.304-A of IPC - Admittedly first accused was not having Indian licence at time of accident though he has produced a licence issued by licensing authority from State in USA - As such an inference that accused was not conversant in driving a vehicle on Indian roads in absence of an Indian licence at time of accident - Therefore, question whether he knew driving is not much consequence - HOSTILE WITNESS - Glaring defects in system like non recordingof statements correctly by Police and retraction of statements by prosecution witness due to intimidation inducement and other methods of manipulation - Courts however cannot shut their eyes to reality - If a witness becomes hostile to subvert judicial process, Courts shall not stand as a mute spectator and every effort should be made to bring home truth - Criminal judicial system cannot be overturned by those gullible witnesses who act under pressure, inducement or intimedation - Further Sec.193 of IPC imposes punishment for giving false evidence but seldom it is invoked.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

Payment of compensation to victims or their relatives is not a mitigating circumstance, on other hand, it is a statutory obligation - All the mitigating and aggravating circumstances will have to be weighed while awarding sentence - In this case, six human lives were lost and method that would be good for Society rather than incarcerating convict further in jail - Further sentene of fine also would compensate at least some of victims of such road accidents who have died espicially in hit and run cases where owner or driver cannot be traced - Therefore accused has to pay an amount of Rs.50 lakhs to Union of India within six month which will be utilized for providing compensation to victims of motor accidents where vehicle owner, driver etc., could not be traced, like victims of hit and run cases - Accused would be in community service for two years which will be arranged by Ministry of Social Justice and Employment within two months. State Tr.P.S Lodhi Colony, New Delhi Vs. Sanjeev Nanda 2012(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 26.

—Secs.140,141,146,147 - "Motor Accident" - 'No fault compensation' - While driver of private owned car proceeding to temple along with five persons met with fatal accident in which driver and four others died - Commissioner under Workmen's Compensation Act rejected claim of compensation of driver holding that accident did not take place in course of employment - Tribunal also rejected claim of heirs of four occupants of car dying in accident - Appellants also were equally unsuccessful in High Court - SCOPE, AMBIT AND APPLI-CABILITY OF SEC.140 OF ACT - STATED - Tribunal gravely erred in taking view that claim for compensation u/Sec.140 of Act can succeed only in case it is raised at initial stage of proceedings and further that claim must fail if accident had taken place by using car without consent or knowledge of its owner - Right to claim compensation u/Sec.140 in respect of death or permanent disablement of any person shall be in addition to any of right except right to claim under scheme referred to in Sec.163-A, to claim compensation in respect thereof and any other provision of this act or of any other law for time being in force - Liability arising from Sec.140 would almost invariably be passed on insurer to be paid off from vast fund created by virtue of Secs.146,147of Act unless owner of vehicle causing accident is guilty of some flagrant violation of law - Provisions of Sec.140 are indeed intended to provide immediate succour to injured or heirs and legal representatives of deceased - Hence, normally a crime u/Sec.140 is made at threshold of proceeding and payment of compensation u/Sec.140 is directed to be made by an interim award of Tribunal which may be adjusted if in final award claimants are held entitled to any larger amounts - But that does not mean that in case a claim u/Sec.140 was not made at beginning of proceedings due to ignorance of claimants or no direction to make payment of compensation u/Sec.140 was issued due to over sight of Tribunal, door would be permanently closed - Such a view would be contrary to legal provisions and would be opposed to public policy - Tribunal is completely wrong in denying to appellant, compensation in terms of Sec.140 of Act - Claimants are fully entitled to no fault compensation u/Sec.140 of Act - Insurance Company directed to pay compensations to claimants - Appeal, allowed. Eshwarappa @ Maheshwarappa Vs. C.S.Gurushanthappa 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 75.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.140 & 161 - Motor accident - While deceased travelling on scooter, lorry came in opposite direction in rash and negligent manner with high speed and dashed scooter, due to which deceased sustained grievous injuries and died while undergoing treatment in hospital - Tribunal passed separate orders in both claim petitions awarding compensation to claimants - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that in this cases some unknown vehicles might have caused accident, but claimants in collusion with 1st respondent/owner of vehicle and Police stage managed to register case about six months after accident and filed claim petitions with a view to claim compensation from Insurance Company - In this case lorry neither seized nor sent for examination and report of M.V Inspector - Injured witness who lodged complaint with Police not examined as witness - PW.2 stated to be eye witness was brought on record by Police about 6 months after incident - For these sufficient reasons it can be said that this is a case foisted in collusion with owner of lorry and Police - Impugned award passed by Tribunal, set aside - Appeals, allowed. United India Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Md.Yousuf Ali 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 176.

—Secs.140, 161 & 173 - Motor accident - Claimants, heirs of deceased alleged that while deceased was going on his scooter, Tractor and Trailer belonging to 1st respondent hit scooter and caused accident in which deceased sustained grievous injuries, succumbed to those injuries - Hence claim laid seeking compensation of Rs.8 lakhs - In this case police carried investigation into crime and submitted final report setting out that same is undetectable, as it is a hit and run case - Tribunal did not place reliance upon deposition of eye witness and consequently did not believe that accident was caused by Tractor and Trailer in question - Hence, no liability can be fastened on to 2nd respondent, insurer of Tractor and Trailer - Liability of insurer is coextensive along with owner of vehicle in question and unless said owner incurs any such liability due to involvement of insured motor vehicle in accident causing death of deceased, liability of owner of vehicle and insurer becomes illusive - Obligation of insurer to compensate legal heirs of victim does not arise - CMP, dismissed - Claimants are at liberty to seek compensation either u/Sec.140 or 161 of Act. Konda Anuradha Vs. Gopi Reddy Venkata Reddy 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 94 = 2008(3) ALD 355 = 2008(4) ALT 34.

—Secs.140 & 166 - Motor accident - "No fault liability" - Claim of compensation by legal representatives of deceased - While deceased was sitting on road, driver of Jeep drove in rash and negligent manner, dashed deceased who died soon after accident - Petitioners-sisters of deceased filed O.P claiming compensation of Rs.85,000/- - Respondent/Insurance Company contends that claim made by sisters of deceased not maintainable as they are neither dependents, nor legal representatives of deceased and there was no loss of income to them on account of death of their deceased brother as they were dependents on their respective husbands and they are earning members by themselves - Tribunal though held that accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of driver of offending Jeep, dismissed OP recording a finding that it cannot be said that petitioners-sisters are actual dependents on income of deceased - Liability in terms of Sec.140 of Act does not cease because of absence of dependency - View taken by Tribunal that claimants would not fall within meaning of dependents cannot be a sustainable view - Hence, set aside - Appeal allowed to extent of Rs.50,000 under no fault liability. Shaik Lalbi Vs. M.Balakrishnan 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 54 = 2008(3) ALD 636.

—Secs.140 & 166 - Motor accident - Deceased aged 41 years earning Rs.10,000/- per month died in accident, occurred on account of rash and negligent driving of driver of lorry - Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs.4,57,000/- to claimants of deceased as against claim of Rs.10 laksh - Hence appeal filed by claimants for enhancement - Apex Court laid down certain criteria to ensure uniformity and consistency in award of compensation by various Tribunal and Court and also laid down a Table indicating multiplier to be applied to various age groups and also procedure of computation of compensation and deductions to be made from income of deceased - Accordingly in case of deceased aged 41 to 45 multiplier is "14" and where deceased had married deductions to personal and living expenses of deceased should be 1/4th where number of dependent family members are 4 to 6 - In this case, there were six dependents as on date of award apply-ing aforesaid decision of Apex Court only 1/4th amount should be deducted towards personal expenses of deceased - As deceased was found to be 42 years old, multiplier should be "14" - Accordingly amount come to Rs.5,67,000/- besides amount of Rs.15,000/- towards loss of consortium to 1st claimant wife and Rs.10,000/- towards love and affection as already awarded by Tribunal - Claimants are entitled for enhancement of compensation of Rs.1,35,000/- - CMA, allowed in part. Gampa Jaya Vs. Satya Shanker Rao 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 240.

—Secs. 140, 147 & 166 - "Motor accident" - "Third Party" - 1st respondent/Managing Director of 2nd respondent Company while travelling in car dashed against Bullock cart sustained bodily injuries in accident - 1st defendant filed petition claiming compensation against appellant/Insurance Company as well as 2nd respondent/Company -Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.8,63,200 as against claim of Rs.20 lakhs - Appellant/Insurance Company resisted claim on ground that claimant suppressed fact that he was Managing Director of 2nd respondent/Company and claim petition is not maintainable and as such he could not be treated as Third Party and policy taken by Company did not cover occupant in vehicle but only covered owner for limited quantum and hence claim not allowable as sought for - High Court treated Company to be owner of vehicle and repelled stand that Managing Director was owner and he was only occupant of car and Insurance Company was liable to indemnify owner for claim put forth by victim and that Insurer is liable to pay compensation - Under provisions of Sec.147 (1)(a)(b), Policy of insurance must be a policy which complies with conditions enumerated therein.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

"DISTINCTION BETWEEN ACT POLICY AND COMPREHENSIVE POLICY/ PACKAGE POLICY - STATED - There is no scintilla of doubt that "comprehensive/ package policy" would cover liability of insurer for payment of Compensation for occupant in a car - There is no cavil that an "Act Policy" stands on a different footing from a comprehensive package policy - Finding of High Court and Tribunal as regards liability of insurer and remit matter to Tribunal to scrutinize policy in a proper perspective and if necessary by taking additional evidence and if conclusion is arrived at that policy in question is "Comprehensive Package Policy", liability would be fastened on insurer - Other findings recorded by Tribunal and affirmed by High Court, undisturbed - Appeal allowed accordingly. National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Balakrishnan 2012(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 260 = 2013(1) ALD 106 (SC) = 2012 AIR SCW 6286 = AIR 2013 SC 473 = 2013(1) SCC 731 = 2013(1) SCC (Crl) 677.

—Sec.147 – "Motor Accident" – "Act Policy" – "Contraventions of conditions of Policy" – Claimant, cleaner of jeep while proceeding in jeep as cleaner met with accident and sustained grievous injuries and suffered 60% disability due to amputation of left leg – Tribunal granted compensation of Rs.2.43 lakhs payable by Insurance Company and 3rd respondent, owner of jeep – Hence present appeal filed by Insurance Company - Appellant Insurance Company contends that Policy is only "Act-Policy" issued to insured to use vehicle for his private purpose i.e., social, domestic and pleasure purposes and insured's own business - Policy does not cover use for hire or for reward - Claimant contends that crime vehicle is registered as transport vehicle and appellant Insurance Company cannot contend that its user is restricted for private purpose only - Owner hired vehicle to Bank at time of accident – Hence appellant, Insurance Company cannot be held responsible in view of clear violation of terms of contract policy - Therefore 2nd respondent who is owner of jeep is liable to pay compensation - M.A.C.M.A is allowed. National Insurance Co., Ltd., Chittoor Vs. Kesari Ravi 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2014(4) ALD 472 = 2014(4) ALT 216.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—- Sec.147 as amended - "Motor accident" - While appellant was travelling in DCM van owned by 1st respondent and insured with 2nd respondent, together with some goods when vehicle dashed against stationary vehicle appellant and other inmates in vehicle sustained injuries - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.1,05,000 as against claim of Rs.1,20,000 - Single judge dismissed CMA and affirmed order passed by Tribunal - Hence present LPA - In this case, appellant admittedly sustained injuries in accident and same has resulted in amputation of his right leg even by time OP was filed - Approach of Tribunal treating business man as daily wage unskilled worker cannot at all be countenanced - A person who supplies goods by travelling to various person can easily earn monthly income of Rs.2000 - On account of disability suffered by appellant, deduction can be effected to extent of 50% - If multiplier "16" is applied to income of appellant that Rs.12000/-, resulted figure would be Rs.1, 92,000/- - Added to that their would be several ailments in future also and expenditure which appellant may have to incur for arrangement of artificial limb needs to be treated as part of compensation - Compensation enhanced to Rs.2 lakhs and respondents 1 & 2 are liable to pay entire compensation jointly and severally - LPA, allowed. Katam Thimmaiah Vs. A.Amar Babu 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.)182

——Sec.147 - Aggrieved by the award passed by Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal, the first respondent/owner of the tractor filed the instant MACMA - When the claimant and some others who were the laborers under first respondent/owner while travelling in a tractor-cum-trailer to bring grass for the cattle, on the way the driver drove the vehicle in a rash and negligent manner and thereby the claimant fell down from the tractor and the tractor ran over him causing injuries to his head and other parts of the body -Impugning liability on the driver, claimant filed OP against respondents 1 and 2, who are the owner and insurer of the crime vehicle and claimed Rs.4 lakhs as compensation under different heads - Second respondent/Insurance Company in its counter opposed the material averments in the claim petition - It mainly contended that the first respondent did not pay premium to cover the risk of a labourer but only driver and on this plea, R2 repudiated its liability.

Tribunal held that Ex.B1—policy cover the risk of one employee who is obviously the driver of the tractor and hence it does not cover risk of claimant who was labourer under R1/owner - On this finding Tribunal exonerated second respondent/Insurance Company and fastened liability on R1/owner alone.

Held, Court find force in submission of appellant/owner - Between Ex.B1 and Ex.B3, latter has to be preferred since what was supplied to policy-holder is more important than what was preserved by Insurance Company - Thus, as per Ex.B3 the sum of Rs.25/- is shown as paid under head "WC to employee 1" which means to cover risk of one employee to extent of compensation payable under Workmen's Compensation Act - In present context, word 'employee' need not necessarily be interpreted as driver of tractor because as per proviso to Section 147(1) of MV Act, risk of driver to extent of compensation payable under WC Act is invariably covered and therefore, appellant/owner is not in need to pay any more compensation for driver - Of course, he may pay extra premium to give full coverage over and above coverage given under WC Act to driver - However, premium of Rs.25/- cannot be taken as an extra premium for driver in view of heading "WC to employee 1" - In Court considered view, if appellant/owner paid extra premium to get extra coverage to driver, then nomenclature of heading would not have been "WC to employee 1" but it would have been something else like "extra premium to driver" or "extra liability to driver" etc - So, heading "WC employee 1" – Rs.25/- should be understood in relation to another employee but not driver.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

Other argument of Insurance Company is that tractor is meant for sitting of driver alone and so premium of Rs.25/- should be taken for his coverage alone - This argument though apparently looks sound but not correct - In instant case, both ExB1 and B3 would show that appellant insured not only tractor but also his trailer - Foreseeing necessities of employees travelling in tractor-cum-trailer for his work, appellant/owner must have paid premium to give coverage to one employee to extent of workmen's compensation - Hence, argument of Insurance Company cannot be accepted - Consequently finding of Tribunal in exonerating Insurance Company cannot be countenanced - It is therefore held that policy covers risk of claimant.

For another reason also it must be held that policy covers risk of claimant - Undisputed evidence would show that tractor tyre ran over him after he fell down from tractor - This would show that tractor caused accident after he fell down on road but not while he was in vehicle - In such an event it must be said that claimant received injury as a third party but not as inmate of vehicle - It was so held by this Court in a decision reported in United India Insurance Company Limited vs. Kurva Yejju Mallamma - In result, this MACMA is allowed. A.Narsimha Reddy Vs. Midde Chinna Niranjan 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 469.

—Sec.147 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.142 - Claimant, Branch Post-Master in village, while travelling in trolly fell down on ground and sustained grievous injuries - Tribunal awarded compensation fixing liability to pay on 1st respondent/owner of vehicle, directing appellant/2nd respondent/Insurance Company to satisfy award by paying compensation to claimant with liberty to realize amount from 1st respondent owner of vehicle - Object of Act is not only to provide compensation, which is just and reasonable to victims of road traffic accidents, but also to make them enjoy fruits of award without subjecting them to long drawn procedure - Tribunal has inherent jurisdiction to issue direction to avoid hardship to claimant in realizing amount of compensation awarded by Tribunal - Award passed by Tribunal on above aspect affirmed - Appellant/Insurance Company directed, to first satisfy award and then recover amount from owner of vehicle - Appeal, dismissed. United India Insurance Co., Ltd., Warangal Vs. Jualapally Sudhakar Rao 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 114.

—Secs.147 & 147(1) (i)(c) proviso - WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, Sec.30 - "Motor accident" - Deceased, working as cleaner in Mini lorry belonging to 3rd respondent, son of R1 and elder brother of R2, died in accident - Commissioner awarded sum of Rs.2.86,608 as against claim of Rs.4 lakhs - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that 3rd respondent/owner of vehicle did not pay any extra premium to cover risk towards cleaner and that there was no justification for commissioner in awarding interest, that too from date of accident - Respondents 1 & 2 contend that 3rd respondent, owner has taken out policy, as provided for u/Sec.147 M.V Act and even if no extra premium was paid it would cover liability towards bodily injuries to or death of persons employed by owner of vehicle and that Commissioner is conferred with power to award interest - Obligation to take out insurance policy for vehicle arises under M.V Act and extent to which policy must cover is indicated in Sec.147 of Act - Minimum coverage provided for u/Sec.147 is towards death or bodily injury or damage to any property of 3rd party caused due to use of vehicle liability in respect of passenger of vehicle, and liability arising out of death or bodily injury of person engaged in driving or performing other functions upon vehicle which, in turn, specified proviso to sub-sec.(1) of Sec.147 M.V Act - In earlier judgments, rendered by High Court of A.P., it was proceeded on assumption that proviso to Sec.147 (1) of M.V Act would relieve owners of vehicle from obligation to take out policy, to cover risk towards drivers, conductors or other employers and it is left to their discretion to take out such policy by paying extra premium - Important phrase "other than a liability arising under Workmen's Compensation Act" was not appreciated - Therefore, contention of appellant that it is not under obligation to cover liability arising out of death or bodily injuries to a cleaner unless extra premium is paid; cannot be accepted - Order passed by Commissioner holding that 3rd respondent owner and appellant/ Insurance Company are jointly and severally liable to pay compensation - Justified - However interest cannot be awarded from date of accident, unless there did not exist any controversy as to liability - Obligation on part of appellant to pay interest would arise after expiry of one month, from date of order passed by Commissioner - CMA, partly, allowed. New India Assurance Co., Ltd. Vs. Pujala Chenchu Nagaiah 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 431 = 2011(1) ALD 596 = 2011(2) ALT 357.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.147, 149, 5 & 110-A – "Motor Accident" - Liability of Insurance Company – Deceased aged 40 years while driving his Tonga met with accident due to negligence of driver of tractor, received injuries and ultimately expired – Appellant filing Application for payment of compensation - Tribunal dismissing Application holding that admittedly driver of tractor not holding any licence at time of accident and that in view of conditions contained in policy Insurance Company not liable to pay compensation - Owner of vehicle has statutory obligation to see that driver of vehicle whom he authorized to drive same holds a valid licence – Avoidence of liability would largely depend upon violation of contract of insurance – Where breach of conditions of contract is ex-facie apparent from records, Court will not fasten liability on Insurance Company – Appeal, dismissed. Sardari Vs. Sushil Kumar 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 177.

—Secs.147 & 166 - Motor accident - Death of pillion rider - Liability of Insurance Company - Deceased, while travelling as pillion rider on scooter fell down and died instantaneously on account of severe head injury - Tribunal awarding compensation, directing Insurance Company to deposit amount - Insurance Company contends that scooter was driven by person not having valid driving licence and risk of pillion rider not covered under Policy and therefore Insurance Company not liable to pay compensation - In this case, Policy not covered risk of person travelling on scooter as no additional premium was paid to that effect - Therefore it covers risk of 3rd party only - Insurance Company cannot be made liable to pay compensation - Order of Tribunal to extent of making Insurance Company liable to pay compensation, set aside - If amount is already paid to claimants, it may not be recovered from them - However Insurance Company is at liberty to recover it from owner of scooter. United India Insurance Co. Ltd., Visakhapatnam Vs. Vana Kamayya 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 186 = 2008(1) ALD 399 = 2007(6) ALT 231.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.147 (1) (prior to amendment) - "Motor accident" - Claimant, aged 48 years while travelling in a goods vehicle as spare driver, though employed as driver in another vehicle owned by the same owner, sustained bodily injury and there by rendered permanently disabled due to accident - Tribunal passed award in favour of claimant holding that he is entitled for total compensation of Rs.3 lakhs, and liability was made joint and several with owner and driver - Division Bench of High Court held that proviso to Sec.147(1) will cast liability on insurer who indemnify owner in respect of injury sustained by employee of insured arising out of and in course of employment - High Court misconstrued proviso following sub-sec(1) of 147 of 1988 Act - What is contemplated by proviso to Sec.147(1) is that policy shall not be required to cover liability in respect of death or bodily injury sustained by an employee arising out of and in course of his employment other than a liability arising under Workmen's Compensation Act - Admittedly in this case, claimant was not driving vehicle nor he was engaged in driving said vehicle - Merely because he was travelling in cabin would not make his case different from any other gratuitous passenger - Impugned judgment of High Court is founded on misconstruction of Sec.147 and that High Court was wrong in holding that insurance company shall be liable to indemnify owner of vehicle and pay compensation to claimant as directed in award by Tribunal - However, in this case, claimant was driver on heavy vehicle and due to accident he has been rendered permanently disabled and he has not been able to get compensation so far due to stay order passed by Supreme Court and he cannot be compelled to struggle further for recovery of amount - As such he may be allowed to withdraw amount deposited by Insurance Company before Supreme Court along with accused interest - Thereafter Insurance Company may recover amount so paid from owner - Appeal, allowed. Manager, National Insurance Co. Ltd Vs. Saju P. Paul, 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 41 = 2013(2) ALD 95 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 609 = AIR 2013 SC 1064 = 2013(2) SCC 41 = 2013(1) SCC (Crl) 812.

—Secs.147(1) and 167 - "Motor accident" - "Liability of Insurance Company" — Truck hired by one DS for carrying Iron rods and cement and was travelling with goods along with his two labourers - Truck met with accident resulting cause of death of two labourers - Tribunal awarded compensation to the Legal representatives of deceased fixing liability on the Insurer - High Court concurred with finding recorded by Tribunal and directed that Insurance Company having satisfied award shall be entitled to recover same with interest from owner/insured by initiating execution proceedings before Tribunal - Hence present appeal at instance of owner of vehicle - Appellants contend that High Court has committed serious error in coming to hold that employee of hirer is not covered without appreciating terms of policy which covers driver and six employees and further contend that term "employee" has to be given a broder meaning keeping in view language employed in policy and that there is a distinction between "passenger in a goods vehicle" and "an employee of hirer of vehicle" - But high Court has gravely erred in not appreciating said distinction in proper perspective - On an apposite reading of Secs.147 & 167, intendment of Legis-lature as it appears, is to cover injury to any person including owner of goods or his authorized representative carried in a vehicle and an employee who is carried in said vehicle - In this case, on a bare reading of Policy their can be no iota of doubt that the policy relates to insured and it covers six employees (other than driver, not exceedings six members) and it is statutory in nature - It neither covers any other category of person nor does it increase any further liability in relation to quantum - Appeal, dismissed. Sanjeev Kumar Samrat Vs. National Insurance Co. Ltd. , 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 189 = 2013(2) ALD 105 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 301 = AIR 2013 SC 1125.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.147 (1) (b)(i) & 17(b) - A.P MOTOR VEHICLE RULES, 1989, Rule 473 - MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1939 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rule 33 - "Motor accident" - Deceased aged 25 years and 35 years doing business earning Rs.1500 & Rs.3000 p.m respectively, died in accident by travelling in goods vehicle due to negligence of driver - Tribunal granting compensation, restricting to Rs.1,62,000/- & 1,28,000/ - as claimed though determined just compensation at Rs.2,19,000/- and Rs.2,04,000/ - - During pendency of appeals filed by Insurance Company, Court allowed Application filed by respondents for amendment of figures of compensation amounts as per enhancement - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that deceased were passengers in goods vehicle and therefore they are not covered under Policy and that when claimants restricted their claim, which was awarded, it is not permissible for Court to enhance awarded compensation - Respondents contend that appellate Court has powers under Or,41, Rule 33 of CPC, even if claimants did not ask for amount they are entitled to, they can seek appropriate amendment at stage of appeal for that purpose - Though owner of goods travelling in a goods vehicle is not covered under insurance policy subsequent to amendment of Sec.147 (1)(b)(i) of 1988, even owner of goods travelling in a goods vehicle is considered as third party covered under policy - If only respondent had been diligent, they would have certainly filed an amendment application before Tribunal - Having not done so, they cannot be permitted to claim more amount by amending impugned award or their OPs at appellate stage - Further more in appeal filed by insurer, claimants cannot seek enhancement of amount without filing cross-objection or separate cross appeal - Appeals, dismissed. Oriental Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Yarava Lakshmi Devi 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 166 = 2009(4) ALD 491 = 2009(4) ALT 151.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.147(5) & 149 - Deceased while travelling in bus fell down from bus through door and sustained injuries due to negligence of driver and died in that accident - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.6,01,244/- against claim of Rs.15 lakhs - High Court dismissed appeal filed by Insurance Company - Hence, present appeal - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that having regard to undisputed facts that cheque issued by owner of vehicle towards premium for insurance of vehicle was dishnoured, contract of insurance became void and insurer cannot be compelled to perform its part of promise under Policy - Where Policy of insurance is issued by authorized insuer on receipt of cheque towards payments of premium and such cheque is returned dishnoured, liability of authorized insurer to indemnify third parties in respect of liability which that policy covered subsists and it has to satisfy award of compensation by reason of provisions of Secs.147(5) and 149(1) of Act unless Policy of insurance is cancelled by authorized insurer and intimation of such cancellation has reached insured before accident. United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Laxmamma 2012(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 51 = 2012(4) ALD 165 (SC) = 2012 AIR SCW 2657 = AIR 2012 SC 2817 = 2012(2) SCC(Cri) 692 = 2012(5) SCC 234.

—Secs.149 (2) & 15 - Policy conditions - Interpretation of - Fake driving licence - Liability of Insurance Company - Bus owned by respondent/complainant met with accident during currancy of insurance policy issued by appellant/Insurance Company - Claim not settled since driver of vehicle did not have valid driving licence - Hence complaint - State Commission rejected complaint holding that there was no valid licence issued by R.T.A - National Commission took a contrary view that though Licensing Authority not issued any licence since there was a renewal, claim would not have been refused by Insurance Company - Statute is beneficial one qua third party - But benefit cannot be extended to owner of offending vehicle - Logic of fake licence has to be considered differently in respect of third party and in respect of own damage claims - A fake licence cannot get its forgery outfit stripped off merely on account of some officer renewing same with or without knowing to be forged - Sec.15 of Act only empowers any Licensing Authority to "renew a driving licence issued under the provisions of Act w.e.f. the date of its expiry" - No Licensing Authority has power to renew a fake licence, and, therefore, a renewal if at all made cannot transform a fake licence as genuine - Conceptual difference between third party right and own damage cases has to be kept in view - Initially, burden is on insurer to prove that licence is a fake one - Once it is established natural consequences has to flow - Official records clearly establishd that no driving licence issued - Insurance Company not liable for own damages - Appeal, allowed. Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Prithvi Raj 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 130.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.149(2)(a)(ii) - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.106 - Deceased labourer earning Rs.4,500/- per month while travelling in Van with cement covers died in accident due to negligence of driver of van - Claimants wife and mother of deceased claimed compensation of Rs.3 lakhs - Tribunal on appreciation of oral evidence cam to conclusion that accident occured due to rash and negligent driving of driver of vehicle - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that vehicle involved in accident is Autotrally and that deceased was travelling as passenger and therefore he was gratuitous passenger and that admittedly driver was not having effective driving licence and therefore Insurance Company is not liable to indemnify owner of vehicle - Claimants contend that burden lies on Insurance Company that insured violated terms and conditions of policy and that it is not sufficient to prove that Driver was not having driving licence by Insurance Company, but, Insurance Company should also prove that driver was qualify and incompetent to hold driving license and that merely because license is not renewed for a brief period it does not mean that driver was disqualified from driving vehicle and that liability of Insurance Company is statutory liability and Insurance Company has to satisfy claims of third parties and then recover same from owner of vehicle - It is not in dispute that burden of proof would be on Insurance Company to establish that there has been breach of terms and conditions of policy u/Sec.106 of Evidence Act - Where Insurance Company asserts that insured has violated terms and conditions of policy, burden lies on Insurance Company to prove same - Provisions relating to awarding of compensation are beneficial provisions, such provisions have to be liberally construed and main purpose of provisions is to see that third parties do not become helpless victims of motor accidents - It is not sufficient to prove by Insurance company that driver was not duly licensed, but they have to prove that he was disqualified for obtaining a driving licence during period of disqualification - Order passed by Tribunal, justified - MACMA, dismissed. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. Vs. K.Devi, 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 318 = 2011(5) ALD 485 = 2011(5) 544.

—Secs.149 (2), 147,94 & 95 - Motor accident - Despite death of owner of vehicle no steps taken to get registration of vehicle transferred and insurance policy also continued to be renewed in name of deceased owner - Driver died in accident while driving said vehicle - Legal heirs of driver claiming compensation - Commissioner workmen compensation awarded compensation - High Court dismissed appeal preferred by Insurance Company - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that contract was void ab initio and it had no statutory or contractual liability to reimburse owner of vehicle in relation thereto - If appellant/Insurance Company had been renewing insurance policy on year to year basis on receipt of heavy amount of premium with knowledge that owner of vehicle expired and name of his legal heirs and representatives had not been transferred in registration book maintained by authorities under M.V Act, Insurance Company not bound to satisfy claim of third party - If despite knowledge of fact that owner had died, Insurance Company with its eyes wide open, had been accepting amount of premium every year from widow of deceased owner of vehicle, a contract by necessary implication had come into being and doctrine of "acceptance sub silentio" shall be applicable - It cannot be said that contract itself is void unless it is shown that in obtaining said contract a fraud had been practiced - Appeal, dismissed. United India Insurance Co., Ltd. Vs. Santro Devi 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 20 = 2009(3) ALD 129 (SC) = 2008(8) Supreme *803 = 2009 AIR SCW 647.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.157 - "hit and run accident" - Deceased lady aged 60 years earning Rs.600/- p.m died on spot in accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of jeep by driver - Tribunal awarded Rs.50,000 under no fault liability - Appellant/Insurace Company contends, policy issued in favour of Secretary of Vidlaya who is not party to proceedings and question of payment of compensation by insurer in discharge of obligation to indemnify insured arises only when insured is held responsible vicariously for negligence of driver - Respondent contends when jeep was transferred to some other person with vehicle policy of insurance shall be deemed to have been transferred and therefore even if earlier owner of jeep is not made party, same does not enable insurer to escape liability - In respect of 3rd party risk, certificate of insurance together with policy of insurance described therein shall be deed to have been transferred in favour of person to whom motor vehicle is transferred - CMA dismissed. New India Assurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Petlu Nagaratnam 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 58 = 2009(3) ALD 340 = 2009(2) APLJ 9 (SN) = 2009(3) ALT 423.

—Secs.157, 2(30) & 50 - "Motor accident" - "Liability of pay motor accident compensation on recorded owner" - Registered owner soled truck and gave its possession to transferee - On date of sale, truck was covered by Insurance Policy taken out by registered owner - Change of ownership of vehicle not entered in Certificate of Registration - However purchaser took out insurance policy for truck in name of earlier owner as ownership not transferred - Accident occurred during period when policy taken out from Oriental Insurance Company - Tribunal and High Court held that Sec.157 of Act would apply only to earlier policy being that of New India Assurance Company Ltd. taken out by recorded owner during validity period of which truck was soled by him - Hence it can have no application to second policy taken out from Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., in name of recorded owner after sale of truck - Sec.157 has no application to facts of this case - In this case, that not- withstanding sale of vehicle neither transferor nor transferee took any steps for change of name of owner in certificate of registration of vehicle - As such in view of this omission recorded original owner of vehicle must be deemed to continue as owner of vehicle for purpose of Act even though under civil law he ceased to be its owner - Sec.2(30) - "Owner" - Meaning of - Having regard to provisions of Sec.2(30) and Sec.50 recorded original owner whose name continued in records of registering Authority as owner of truck was equally liable for payment of compensation amount - Since Insurance Policy in respect of truck was taken out in his name he was indemnified and claim will be shifted to insurer, Oriental Insurance Company Ltd - Recorded owner and insurer giving policy in his name are liable for paying compensation - Appeal, allowed. Pushpa @ Leela Vs. Shakuntala 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 48 = AIR 2011 SC 682 = 2011 AIR SCW 562 = 2011(3) ALD 112 = 2011(2) SCC240.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—-Secs.158, 165 to 168, 170 to 173 - ANDHRA PRADESH MOTOR VEHICLES RULES, 1989, Rules 455 to 476-A, 458, 459 - In this appeal owner of vehicle was not served and a point arose whether the presence of the owner is necessary in an appeal filed by claimants seeking enhancement of compensation - Hence, it has become necessary for this Court to decide said point, as this point has been arising in a number of appeals pending in this Court.

In view of legislative provisions and law laid down by this Court in decisions of Division Bench, it is not necessary for this Court to send a notice to a party who remained ex parte in the Tribunal.

Tribunal took age of deceased as 42 to 45 years on basis of Exs.A7 and A10 and applied multiplier of "9" - Income of deceased was taken as Rs.2,400/- per month and 1/3rd was deducted therefrom - Accordingly, loss of earnings was calculated at an amount of Rs.1,72,800/- and an amount of Rs.15,000/- was awarded towards consortium and another amount of Rs.15,000/- towards loss of estate - Thus, in all, an amount of Rs.2,02,800/- was awarded with interest at 9% per annum.

Held, in view of decision in Smt.Sarla Verma v. Delhi Transport Corporation, the appropriate multiplier for the person aged 42 to 45 years is "14" - As per Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, there must also be enhancement in the income, which can be taken as 30% - Monthly income of Rs.2,400/- is grossly inadequate - Monthly income of deceased should be at least Rs.3,600/- with 30% enhancement - In view of number of dependants of deceased, appropriate deduction should be 1/4th, but not 1/3rd - Loss of dependency, therefore, comes to Rs.5,89,680/- (Rs.3,600 + 1080 (3600 X 30/100) = Rs.4,680/-; Rs.4,680 - 1170 (4680/4) = Rs.3,510/-; Rs.3,510 X 12 X 14 = Rs.5,89,680/-) - The loss of consortium should be enhanced to Rs.50,000/- - The amount awarded towards loss of estate need not be disturbed - An amount of Rs.10,000/- is awarded towards funeral expenses and an amount of Rs.20,000/- towards loss of love and affection to the children.

Thus, compensation amount is enhanced to Rs.6,84,680/- and award passed by Tribunal is modified accordingly - The enhanced amount shall carry interest at 9% per annum from the date of petition till the date of realization - The appeal is, accordingly, allowed. Kanamarlapudi Nirmala Devi Vs. Shaik Abdul Razak 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 319 = 2016(2) ALD 487.

—Secs.158 (6), 163-A,165 & 166 - Deceased driver in Police Department aged 55 years and Police Constable aged 35 years died due to landmine blast - Tribunal held that claimants are not entitled to any compensation since accident was not due to rash and negligent driving of driver and it was due to landmine blast and however awarded Rs.1 lakh to claimants in each MVOP - Case of claimants of deceased driver is that he was earning Rs.7500 per month and on account of sudden death of deceased they became destitute and thus claimed total compensation of Rs.4 lakhs - Case of claimants of deceased Police Constable is that he was earning Rs.6000/- per month and due to sudden demise they have lost source of their livelihood - Thus they claimed

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

total compensation of Rs.15 lakhs - Respondents contend that accident occurred due to landmine blast by unknown extremists and that driver of bus was not negligent in driving bus and that claimants in both claim petitions have been paid compensation and exgratia and they would be provided rent-free quarters till date of retirement of deceased in each case, and that claimants in each case were also provided with house site and Govt. making arrangements for providing employment to one of legal heirs of each of deceased and that Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs.1 lakh to claimants in both MVOPs - When claimants have claimed compensation under no fault liability u/Sec.140 of Act or u/Sec.163-A of Act, they are not required to prove that accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving by driver of bus or negligent use of vehicle of respondents - Where income of deceased or victim is more than Rs.40,000 per annum, claimants are not entitled to file petition u/Sec.163-A - Petition filed u/Sec.163-A of Act can be treated as petition filed u/Sec.166 of Act - Moreover, when Sec.166(4) of Act envisages that Tribunal shall treat any report of accidents forwarded to it under sub-sec(6) of Sec.158 as an Application for compensation under Act, there is nothing wrong in treating an application filed u/Sec.163-A of Act, an application u/Sec.166 of Act - Petition filed u/Sec.163-A of Act can be treated as an application u/Sec.166 of Act - Where owner or driver or conductor had not taken necessary precautions for safety of passengers although Terrorist attacks were expected and vehicle met with an accident in Terrorist attacks it has to be held accident arose out of use of vehicle and respondents were negligent and therefore are liable to pay compensation - Admittedly in this case, they were proceeding in Forest Area in which, extremists were moving - In such a situation, Police higher Officials should have been very cautious and very careful with their rich experience, they ought to have visualized that extremists may keep a watch on movements of Police and may use landmines to kill Police personnel - Exgratia and other allowances paid to legal heirs of deceased cannot be taken into consideration for determining compensation under provisions of Act - Total compensation awarded to deceased Constable comes to Rs.10.97 lakhs - Compensation awarded to deceased driver comes to Rs.5,07,000. Bhupati Prameela Vs.Superintendent of Police,Vizianagaram 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 267.

—-Sec.163-A – PWs. 2 and 3 on oath admitted before Court about involvement of the car in the accident - Except denying their admission Appellant/Insurance Company has not conducted any independent survey to come with different evidence - Appellant/Insurance Company issued Ex.B-1 policy in her name undertaking to bear third party risks - Ex.B1 was covering period from 21-02-2003 to 20-02-2004 and accident being occurred on 06-10-2003, policy was in force by the date of accident - As such, Insurance Company cannot repudiate its liability on ground that vehicle was sold by PW.3 and she was not in effective possession and control over the same - Evidence would show that PW2 has not paid entire sale consideration and RC was not transferred in his name by the date of accident - So, under law, PW3 was registered owner and PW2 was only a custodian of vehicle - PW2 would not fit in definition of 'owner' under S.2(30) of the M.V.Act - So he was only a custodian and PW3 was owner - Therefore the argument of appellant cannot be upheld - In result, this MACMA is dismissed by confirming the award of Tribunal in MVOP No. 627 of 2004. New India Assurance Co. Ltd, Kurnool Vs. Anela Sathyamma 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 207.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.163-A - Though owner and Insurance Company are entitled to prove the fault of the claimant/deceased in a claim u/Sec.163-A of M.V. Act, they have not established the same by adducing any positive evidence except the Insurance Company taking a plea in its counter - Therefore, there is no positive evidence to effect that deceased himself was responsible for the accident - On other hand, evidence of PW1 is to effect that accident was occurred due to failure of break system - So, briefly, facts and evidence would show that deceased while driving vehicle of first respondent met with accident and died as third party - Ex.B1-policy copy covers risk of third parties - Therefore, his risk shall be deemed covered under the terms of policy. New India Assurance Co., Ltd. Vs. Nellakoti Kanthamma 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 24

—Secs.163-A & 166 - Motor accident - Deceased, unmarried aged 18 years while travelling in Bus sustained injuries due to accident and subsequently died - Tribunal granting compensation of Rs.3,84,000/- to 1st respondent father only heir of deceased, estimating income of deceased at Rs.3,000/- p.m applying multiplier 16 - High Court allowing multiplier 15 and allowed compensation of Rs.3,64,500/- by increasing rate of interest from 7% to 10% - No justification for increase in rate of interest - Interest brought down to 7% as was directed by Tribunal - Appeal allowed to that extent. MG. Dir, Bangalore Metropolitan Tpt. Corp., Vs. Sarojamma 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 35 = 2008(4) ALD 1 (SC) = 2008(3) Supreme 242.

—Secs.163-A and 166 - "Motor accident" - Deceased aged 29 years, working as contract agent, bearing Rs.6,500/- per month, while coming on TVS Motor Cycle, Zeep driven at high speed in rash and negligent manner dashed motor cycle and deceased sustained grievous injurious and died on spot - Claimants, wife minor children, unmarried daughter and parents filed claim petition claiming compensation of Rs.8 lakhs - Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs.5,16,136/- by applying multiplier 17 - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that Tribunal having categorically found that 1st respondent owner-cum-driver of zeep is responsible for accident, is not justified in holding that claimants are not required either to plead or establish wrongful act or negligence and accordingly fastened liability on Insurance Company and that where Insurance Company is not liable to indemnify 1st respondent/owner of zeep and Tribunal committed error in fastening liability Respondents/claimants contend that when claim is made u/Sec.163-A of Act claimants are not required to plead and prove aspect of negligence and that Tribunal ought not to have looked into negligence aspect and it is also option of claimants either to claim u/Sec.163-A or Sec.166 of Act and when once they claimed compensation u/Sec.163-A of Act compensation has to be paid on structured formula basis without looking into aspect of negligence - In view of number of judgments of High Courts and Apex Courts that negligence aspect is irrelevant when a claim is made u/Sec.163-A - Very purpose of enacting Sec.163-A of Act would be defeated if Tribunal try to look into negligence aspect - When there is no need to plead and prove negligence aspect, question as to who is responsible for accident need not be gone into and that Sec.163-A of Act is a beneficial legislation which has to be interpreted keeping in view of very object of legislation - Since both vehicles are involved in accident, it is to be held that finding of Tribunal that Insurance Company is liable to indemnify 1st respondent/owner of zeep cannot be disturbed - Total compensation of Rs.5,16,136/- reduced to Rs.4,68,120/- by applying multiplier 16 - Appeal allowed in part. United IndiaInsurance Co.Ltd., Warangal Vs. Myadada Latha 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 304 = 2013(4) ALD 613.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.163-A &166 - "Motor accident" – Claimants, wife, two minor children and mother of deceased aged 26 years who died in accident, filed petition claiming Rs.3 lakhs as compensation – Tribunal awarded compensations of Rs.1,86,100/- as against claim of Rs.3 lakhs – Hence present Appeal for enhancement - In this case, admittedly accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of driver of crime vehicle insured with second respondent Insurance Company - When it is duty of Court to do justice to parties when technicalities come in way much importance need not be given because ultimately justice has to be done and when two views are possible, view infavour of victim which relieve there distress and misery should be adopted even claim petition filed u/Sec.163-A & 166 of Act, as Sec.166 of Act since beneficial that can be considered - Therefore deceased aged 26 years and multiplier applicable is '17' and as claimant as blacksmith, his income can be taken minimum Rs.3,000/- per month - Compensation amount enhanced from Rs.1,86,100/- to Rs.3 lakhs - Appeal allowed. Syed Patimna Bee @ Patime Bee Vs. J.Chandra Sekhar, 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 307

—Secs. 163-A & 166 - Appeal is filed by A.P.S.R.T.C/Respondent to claim petition, aggrieved by award dated. 23-09-2006 in M.V.O.P. No. 452 of 2003 on file of Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal-cum-Principal District Judge - Grounds being that Tribunal gravely erred in finding that accident was the result of rash and negligent driving of the bus driver though there is no fault of bus driver and it was a vis major and outcome of fire accident and Tribunal also erred in awarding such a huge compensation, of Rs.21,10,000/- which is abnormally high and unsustainable and multiplier '13' taken is also not correct and claim at best be maintained only under Sec.163-A for motor vehicle bus in use for no fault of bus driver to claim under Section 166 of Motor Vehicles Act and when such is case it is Schedule-II of the Act that is applicable - Held, coming to facts it is not mere accidental occurrence as under guise of passengers some of miscreants, once entered bus that too one of them carrying with him petrol bottle and in the transit the miscreants tried to snatch away the suit case having an eye over it of one of passengers, when that person resisted, other miscreants of unlawful assembly with common concert, who was carrying petrol bottles sprinkled petrol and set ablaze but for the negligence of driver and conductor in allowing such persons without checking, accident could not be outcome and as such it is for fault liability claim as under Section 166 of the Act is maintainable and it cannot be regarded to adopt Schedule II of Act as a claim under Section 163-A of the Act that too income claimed is more than Rs. 40,000/- p.a. for which Section 163-A has no application but for under Section 166 of the Act - Thus Tribunal is right in entertaining claim and deciding under Section 166 of the Act holding that the accident was the result of the negligence of driver and conductor of bus for which deceased passengers for his no fault was set ablaze by some of miscreant passengers of bus from negligent allowing by driver and conductor of bus - Hence what Tribunal awarded of Rs.21,10,000/- is no way excessive to say there is nothing to interfere – Appeal, dismissed. A.P.S.R.T.C. Vs. Borra Ramasubbamma @ Ramulu 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 543

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs. 163-A and 166 – WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT - The endorsement of no claim preferred under W.C. Act is assurance for the Court and mere non-making of such endorsement itself cannot non-suit the claimants in the factual scenario for no dispute on the factum of no claim preferred under W.C. Act - From both provisions mentioned u/Secs.163-A and 166 of M.V. Act, the claimant can choose or the Tribunal can consider as per the Division Bench expression of this Court in Bhupati Prameela and others Vs. Superintendent of Police, Vizianagaram, thereby, the claim is taken u/Sec. 167 read with 163-A of M.V. Act to restrict the liability of the insurer to the extent of W.C. Act liability - It is also from the fact that when the driver of the vehicle, i.e., deceased met with death in the course of employment, the factum of accident whether due to his negligence is immaterial to the W.C. Act claim - Thereby, the claim is maintainable. Ch.Rani Vs. Shyamsunder Mandhani 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 30

—Secs.163-A, 166 & 167 - Deceased driver stopped his lorry at level crossing as Railway gate was closed and died due to massive and sudden heart attck and collapsed in cabin of lorry - Claimants approached MAC Tribunal claiming compensation of Rs. 6 lakhs u/Sec.163-A of M.V Act - Tribunal negatived appellants claim for compensation on ground that they failed to show that death of deceased resulted from an accident arising of out of use of motor vehicle - Appellants contend that in a claim u/Sec.163-A of Act, proof of negligence resulting in accident causing death of deceased is not necessary as distinguished from a claim u/Sec.166 of Act and u/Sec.167 of Act, claimants are entitled to choose either of fora under M.V Act and Workmen's Compensation Act to claim compensation for death of deceased - In this case

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

deceased suffered heart attack when lorry was in stationed condition and died then and their - There is no evidence on record to show that employment of deceased as driver of heavy goods vehicle contributed aggravation to or accelerated his heart attack - Death of deceased in present case is not one resulting from an accident either during course of employment or during course of a motor vehicle or during course of use of a motor vehicle and that it was due to natural cause of heart attack and that evidence on record does not indicate that employment of deceased as driver of heavy goods vehicle contributed or aggravated natural cause of heart attack - Lower Tribunal rightly negatived claim of dependents of deceased who are appellants herein - Appellants are not entitled for compensation either under Sec.163 of M.V Act or under Workmen's Compensation Act - Appeal, dismissed. Puppala Naga Malleswara Kumari Vs. M.Rambabu, 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 298 = 2011(3) ALD 445 = 2011(2) ALT 760.

—Secs.163-A, 166 & 173 - A.P. MOTOR VEHICLES RULES, Rule 455 & 473 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rule 22 - "Cross-objections" - "Deceased, Reader and Head of Department of Commerce in College,earning Rs.24,200/- per month, while proceeding in Maruti Car along with his wife died in accident, due to rash and negligent driving of driver of lorry which came from opposite direction and dashed Maruti car - Tribunal granted compensation of Rs.13,59,300 as against claim of Rs.20 lakhs by daughter of deceased who was pursuing MBBS Course - Insurer filed MACMA u/ Sec.173 of Act questioning very grant of compensation and whereas claimant filed cross-objections under Or.41, Rule 22 of CPC, dis-satisfied with quantum of satisfaction - Insurance Company contends that Tribunal over-compensated claimant and quantum of amount awarded by Tribunal to claimant is irrational and therefore, compensation is to be reduced considerably.

CROSS OBJECTIONS - A plain reading of provision of Sec.173 does not indicate sustainability of cross-objections in event of appeal filed by insurer found to be not maintainable.

Statute has to provide for filing cross-objections - In absence of any provision entitling respondent to file cross-objections, same is not maintainable - Sec.173 of M.V. Act does not provide for filing any cross- objections by respondent in appeal - In absence of any such provision, cross-objection filed by respondent does not deserve for consideration and accordingly they stand rejected - Claim of compensation by married daughter of deceased - there cannot be quarrel with regard to maintainability of application by claimant who is married daughter of deceased - There is no any distinction between married daughter and unmarried daughter while assessing loss of dependency - Once daughter is married, she cannot said to be wholly dependent on her parents - It does not mean that daughter is no more dependent on parents once she got married and that she cannot be categorized as a wholly dependent on parents after her shifting to her in-laws house consequent on marriage - In this case, total loss of dependency can be assessed at Rs.12,60,996/- by applying multiplier

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

11 and that Tribunal grant compensation of Rs.13,59,300/- - Claimant failed to make out any valid grounds for enhancement of compensation awarded by Tribunal - Appeal and cross-objections, are dismissed. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Vasireddy Sujatharani 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 283.

—Secs.165, 166,167 & 163-A - "Motor accident" - Deceased aged 37 years earning Rs.5000/- p.m. died in motor accident, while proceeding in Auto, a Van being driven by its driver/1st respondent in rash and negligent manner came from opposite direction and hit Auto caused accident in which deceased sustained multiple injuries and died - Appellants/claimants, wife daughter and father of deceased filed claim petition claiming compensation of Rs.10 lakhs - Tribunal came to conclusion that accident occurred due to negligent driving of Auto driver and also came to conclusion that claimants are entitled to compensation of Rs.4,22,112/- and claimants cannot claim from respondents 1 to 4 driver and owner of Van and Insurance Company and there is no claim against 3rd respondent driver of Auto and accordingly dismissed claim petition - Appellants/claimants contend that Tribunal failed to appreciate evidence of P.W/2 and wrongly relied on Ex.A.1 FIR and that Auto being small vehicle when compared to Van, Tribunal ought to have held that driver of Van is responsible for accident and that mere use of vehicle on public road is enough to claim compensation and that when two vehicles are involved it cannot be definitely said that driver of one vehicle is totally innocent - In this case, three persons were setting in back seat of Auto and two persons on either side of driver of Auto and thus driver was sitting between two persons on his driving seat - It is clear from evidence that Auto was over loaded in passengers - Admittedly Van driver being in elevated position would be able to visualize movements of Auto which was coming from his opposite direction - Had he been more deligent he could have avoided accident - Therefore it cannot be said that accident occurred solely due to negligence of Auto driver - In this case, Auto driver is not examined and panchanama prepared at scene of offence and Sketch of scene of offence are not filed - Magistrate has acquitted driver of Auto in criminal case and it appears Investigating Officer not examined in criminal case - Claimant's allegation is that accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of driver of Van but respondents 1 & 2 driver and owner of Van managed Police and got registered a case against 3rd respondent Auto driver - Merely because Police issued FIR or laid charge-sheet against a driver, contents of FIR and charge-sheet cannot be basis for deciding negligent aspect - Tribunal should appreciate evidence adduced before it and in proper perspective - It appears that provisions of MV Act are required to be amended so as to render complete justice to all victims of motor accidents and there should be a social security, legislation covering all victims of motor accidents and dependents of person who died in motor accident - Irrespective of terms and conditions of Policy, victims should pay compensation, in fact, injured or dependents of deceased are no way concerned with terms and conditions of policy and they are not parties to insurance policy and therefore not bound by terms and conditions of

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

Policy - In most of cases victims are only either pedestrians or travelling in vehicles and they are not expected to know that vehicle which cause accident was being driven by person who had no driving licence or he was under influence of alcohol and dispute should be between ensured and ensurer - Having regard to fact that Auto was overloaded and fact that driver of Van was in elevated position and could have visulized movements of Auto, it may be just and reasonable to apportion negligence between van driver and auto driver as 60:40 - Claimants are entitled to a total compensation of Rs.7,70,600/- - Respondents 1,2 and 4 are jointly and severally liable to pay 60% of awarded amount - 3rd respondent driver of Auto is liable to pay 40% of compensation amount in view of apportionment of negligence between Van driver and 3rd respondent/driver of Auto - Accordingly MACMA, is allowed. Dadi Komuravva Vs. Garshe Buchaiah 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 24 = 2013(4) ALD 634 = 2013(4) ALT 327.

—Secs.165 & 168 – "Motor accident" – "Learning licence" - Deceased aged 50 years, carpenter while travelling in Auto with his wife and another person accident occurred on account of negligent driving of driver, dashing motor cycle – Tribunal granted compensation of Rs.2.97 lakhs against owner and driver and dismissed against Insurance company - R.3, Insurance Company, contends that accident occurred due to collusion - Owner and Insurer of motor cycle are also parties and it is bad for non-joinder of necessary parties - In this case Tribunal observed that R1 & R2 violated conditions of Policy for allowing person holding learning license - M.A.C.M.A. allowed, while upholding amount of compensation - Insurance Company directed to deposit compensation amount and recover same from R1 & R2. Karimella Santhamma Vs. More Venkanna 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 28.

—Sec.166 - Motor accident - Deceased driver of appellant/Corporation, aged 38 years lost his life due to rash and negligent driving of bus - Tribunal awarding compensation of Rs.2,46,000 as against claim of Rs.5 lakhs - High Court enhanced compensation to Rs.3,35,952/- holding that award as made was inadequate and just compensation not awarded - Appellant/Corporation contends that hen there was no appeal by the claimants in Appeal filed by the appellant/Corporation, High Court should not have enhanced amount and that multiplier as adopted was high - Under M.V Act there is no restriction that Tribunal/Court cannot award compensation amount exceeding claim amount - Function of Court is to award "just" compensation which is reasonable on basis of evidence produced on record - In such cases there is no question of claim becoming time barred or it cannot be contended that by enhancing claim there would be change of cause of action. APSRTC Vs. M. Ramadevi 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 115.

—Sec.166 - Motor accident - Claimant aged 20 years, agriculturist, while travelling in Jeep, received fracture injury to left arm - Tribunal granting compensation of Rs.50,000/- as against claim of Rs.1 lakhs, payable by both appellant/Insurer and owner of vehicle - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that offending Jeep was a contract carriage vehicle and same was run as stage carriage in violation of permit and so R.1, owner is liable to pay compensation and that offending vehicle to be run by driver L.M.V. transport, but driver had L.M.V. non-transport driving licence and thus R.1 violated terms and conditions of policy - Tribunal recorded reasons in detail and granted compensation - Hence award of Tribunal, justified - Respondent/claimant is at liberty to withdraw amount - Appellant is at liberty to recover same from R.1, owner of offending vehicle. New India Assurance Co., Ltd., Kadapa Vs. Patan Nizam Vaili Khan 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 145 = 2008(4) ALD 219 = 2008(4) ALT 427.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.166 - EMPLOYEES STATE INSURNCE ACT, 1948, Sec.53 - "Motor accident" - Deceased while travelling by Matador sustained serious injuries and died - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.1.2lakhs holding that accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of Truck - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that Application filed by claimant u/Sec.173 of M.V Act not maintainable in view of Sec.53 of ESI Act - High Court dismissed Application filed by appellant/Insurance Company - Remidies under M.V. Act and ESI Act are not mutual exclusive - Payment or non-payment of contribution and action or non action prior to or subsequent to date of accident is really inconsequential - In this case, deceased employee is clerly an "insured" person as defined in Act - As deceased employee has suffered employment injury as defined u/Sec.2(8) of Act and there is no dispute that he was in employment of employer, by operation of Sec.53 of Act proceedings under Compensation Act were excluded statutorily - Appeal, allowed. National Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Hamida Khatoon 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 76 = 2009(6) ALD 86 (SC) = 2009(6) Supreme 663 = AIR 2009 SC 2599 = 2009 AIR SCW 4520.

—Sec.166 - "Motor accident" - Deceased, Carpenter, aged 40 years earning Rs.84/- per day while travelling in jeep died in accident - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.2,32,766 as against claim of Rs.8,31,000 applying multiplier 15 - High Court enhanced compensation to Rs.4,84,000/- applying multiplier 17 - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that amount enhanced by High Court is excessive and exorbitant and that deduction of only 1/4th towards his personal expenses from total income has wrongly been allowed and it would have been 1/3rd of his total income - In this case, deceased had left behind a large family to be lookedafter, who all were dependents on his income including his widow, sons, daughter and aged parent - Keeping in mind family back ground, High Court has deducted 1/4th amount which deceased would have spent on himself - No error committed by High Court in deducting only 1/4th amount from total income of deceased towards expenses which would have been incurred on himself - Appeal, dismissed. State of Karnataka Vs. Moideen Kunhi (dead) by L.Rs. 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 84.

—Sec.166 - "Compensation for future treatment" "for loss of marriage prospects" - Appellant/claimant aged 18 years while travelling in tempo which met with accident, sustained serious injuries on head, nose, back and lower region of abdomen and remained in hospital one and half months - Tribunal awarded total compensation of

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

Rs.1,49,440 as against claim of Rs.3 lakhs - In Appeal High Court enhanced an amount of Rs.40,000/- - Being not satisfied claimant filed appeal before Supreme Court - In this case, appellant produced substantiative evidence to prove that as a result of accident eight grievous injuries including fracture of pelvis and he had to remain in hospital for one month and half on account of grievous injuries he was unable to continue his studies and he will have to undertake lifelong treatment for recurrence of urethral strictures and consequential dysfunction due to fracture of pelvis - Unfortunately neither Tribunal, nor High Court adverted to this part of evidence and omitted to award compensation for expenses likely to be incurred by appellant for future treatment - In the instant case, appellant had claimed compensation of Rs.3 lakhs only - However as Tribunal and High Court and for that reason Supreme Court are duty bound to award just compensation and as such compensation enhanced from Rs.1,89,440 to Rs.6 lakhs - FUTURE TREATMENT - Keeping in view nature of injuries and fact that he will have to take treatment for remaining life it will be reasonable to infer that he will be required to spend a minimum of Rs.1,000/- per month for future treatment, which would necessarily include fees of doctors, medicines, transportation etc. - In absence of concrete evidence about anticipated expenditure, ends of justice will be met if appellant is awarded Rs.2 lakhs, which if deposited in fixed deposit would earn an interest of Rs.14,000/- to Rs.16,000/- per annum - LOSS OF MARRIAGE PROSPECTS - On account of injuries suffered by appellant, prospects of his marriage have considerably reduced and rather, they are extremely bleak , therefore a sum of Rs.2 laksh should be awarded to appellant for loss of marriage prospects and enjoyment of life - Impugned judgment is modified and declared that appellant shall be entitled total compensation of Rs.6 lakhs. - Appeal allowed. Ibrahim Vs. Raju 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 198 = 2012(3) ALD 60 (SC) = 2012 AIR SCW 413 = AIR 2012 SC 543.

—Sec.166 - "Motor accident" - Death of unborned child in uterus - Vehicular accident between car and bus - Due to impact of accident claimant who was 30 weeks pregnant suffered fatal blow on stomach and her baby died inside uterus - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.50,000/- for loss of child and Rs.10,000/- towards pain and sufferings - High Court enhanced compensation amount to Rs.1,80,000 - DETERMINATION OF COMPENSATION AMOUNT OF DEATH OF STILL BORN CHILD - Discussed - In instant case, neither Tribunal nor High Court applied any principle for determination of amount of compensation on account of death of still born child - There is no discussion on question of non-pecuniary compensation awarded by Tribunal to claimant mother on account of pain and suffering as a result of death of child - However, as accident took place in year 1995, at this juncture it would be too harsh to direct claimants to undergo entire gamut of a fresh exercise u/Sec.168 of Act - Appeal, dismissed. National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Kusuma 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 38.

—Sec.166 - Deceased aged 33 years working as welder getting wages of Rs.4,400/- per month while riding motor cycle with person sitting on pillion seat, lorry bearing No.APK 7039 driven in rash and negligence manner by its driver dashed motor cycle as result deceased and pillion rider fell down and received severe injurious and deceased died instaneously, whereas pillion rider survived - Appellants. widow minor children and parents of deceased filed claim petition seeking compensation of Rs.5,77,820/- - Tribunal dismissed claim filed by appellants in toto without making any assessment of compensation on ground that appellants failed to establish involvement of above said lorry in accident - Contention that Tribunal passed impugned order ignoring settled principles governing burden of proof relating to factum of accident in motor vehicle accident cases and and that decision of Tribunal below is result of improper appreciation of evidence and inadvertence to pleadings of parties - Insurance company contends that Tribunal furnished valid reasons for recording finding that appellants failed to establish involvement of above said lorry in accident and that finding recorded by Tribunal needs no interference - In present case, report lodged on next day of accident amd therefore FIR promply lodged - Factum of accident need not be proved in claim cases by standard of beyond reasonable doubt - Tribunal has to take a broad and comprehensive view of matter and claimants are not required to prove each and every fact relating to occurrence of accident meticulously - Tribunal picked up some discrepancy here and there and took view that P.Ws. 2 & 3 are planted witnesses - Tribunal by going through contents of written statement filed by respondents ought to have understood properly scope of their context in cliam petition in relation to factum of accident - None of respondents anywhere stated in their written statement that above said lorry was not involved in accident and it was planted for purpose of present case - Theory that second respondent owner and police colluded with the claimants was for first time put-porth by 3rd respondent/Insurance Company in course of cross-examination without there being any pleading in the written statement - Tribunal ought not to have permitted 3rd respondent/Insurance Company to cross-examine witneseses on point that said lorry was not at all involved in accident since it was not pleaded by 3rd respondent in its written statement - In this case, Tribunal applied standard of proof of beyond reasonable doubt in a claim case, for compensation under M.V Act, which is contrary to settled legal principles and also procedure to be adopted by Tribunal in deciding accidents claim case - Approach adopted by Tribunal therefore is disapproved and finding recorded by Tribunal that appellants failed to prove that accident was due to rash and negligent driving of driver of lorry is set aside - Therefore 2nd respondent/owner of vehicle and 3rd respondent/Insurance Company are held jointly and severally liable to pay compensation to appellants/claimants - Therefore appellants are entitled to a total compensation of Rs.9,70,400/-, applying relevant multiplier “16” - Appeal, allowed. Bodige Padma Vs. Makula Shanker 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 74 = 2012(5) ALD 500 = 2012(5) ALT 559.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.166 - “Motor accident” - Decesed/Process Server in Judicial Department, aged 33 years, getting salary of Rs.4,935/- p.m, while travelling on Motor Cycle, Lorry came from behind and dashed against motor cycle, causing grievous injuries to deceased resulting instantaneous death - Claimants, wife, children and parents of deceased filed claim petition stating that they have lost their sole bread winner - Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs.6,98,160/- against claim of Rs.8 lakhs - Hence Claimants filed present Appeal seeking enhancement of compensation - Claimants contend that amount awarded towards loss of dependency is less and needs to be enhanced and that deceased being Govt., Servant and he is less than 40 years of age at time of accident, an addition of 50% of actual salary to salary of deceased should be added for calculating future prospects - Insurance Company contends that no appeal has been filed challenging application of multiplier 17 by Tribunal and that since 1st claimant is given benefit of "compassionate appointment" in District Court and since 4th claimant is pensioner, they are not entitled to any amount as compensation under Provisions of Act and that amount awarded cannot exceed claim made by claimants in their petition - In present case, deceased is a Court employee and met with accident and he has not done no wrong but his dependents are suffering at cost of wrong doer and that M.V Act being beneficial legislation, compensation which is to be determined must be just, reasonable and proper and that claimants are to be compensated for loss of dependency which should not be a wind fall - In absence any bar in M.V Act, Court has got power to award higher compensation to victims of accident and only restriction being amount awarded should be just and reasonable and in view of facts and circumstances, in this case, compensation awarded is neither arbitrary, nor unjustifiable but just and reasonable - Compensation enhanced from Rs.6,98,160/ - to Rs.10,92,968/- - Appeal, allowed. Tatha Sreevani @ D.Sreevani Vs. D.Vijaya Kumar 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 312 = 2013(1) ALD 615 = 2013(2) ALT 578.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.166 - Motor accident - "Quantum of compensation" - "Multiplier" - Deceased while returning from plant site on scooter died in accident due to rash and negligent driving of driver of truck - Tribunal, after analyzing entire evidence awarded compensation of Rs.10,08,000/- to claimants, wife and children of deceased - High Court modified and reduced compensation to Rs.5 lakhs - Appellants/claimants contend that Tribunal applied multiplier 12 instead of 17 having regard to fact that deceased at time of his death was 35 years old - In this Case, High Court while reducing quantum of compensation as well as rate of interest failed to assign any reason and that impugned order of High Court being non-speaking order calls for interference in these appeals - FORMULA RELATING TO SELECTION OF MULTIPLIER - STATED - Applying formula in decisions of Apex Court and when said formula is applied since deceased is stated to be 35 years old at time of his death, multiplier would be "16" which has to be applied for calculating compensation - Applying multiplier of "16", compensation works out to Rs.13,44,000/- - Hence order of High Court in so far as it reduced quantum of compensation, set aside - 1st respondent/Insurance Company is directed to pay to appellant/claimants a total compensation of Rs.13,44,000/-. Rebeka Minz Vs. DM, United India Insurance Co. Ltd. 2012(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 117 = 2013(1) ALD 27 (SC) = 2012 AIR SCW 4779 = AIR 2012 SC 3263 = 2012(3) SSC (Cri) 822 = 2012(8) SCC 145.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.166 - "Motor accident" - Deceased painter earning Rs.3000/- per month died in accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of driver of lorry - Tribunal awarding compensation of Rs.3,28,000/- as against claim of Rs.5 laksh to claimants who are widow, parents and minor children of deceased, fastening liability on 1st respondent/owner and 2nd respondent/Insurance Company jointly and severally - Hence present appeal filed by claimants for enhancement - Claimants specifically contended before Tribunal that deceased was painter, aged 25 years, earning Rs.3000/- per month - Insurance company in its counter did not dispute specifically the fact that deceased was painter earning Rs.3,000/- and threfore whether Tribunal is justified in reducing income stated by claimants to Rs.2000 stating that no documentary evidence is placed in proof of income - Tribunal should have accepted claim which appears to be bona fide and honest - In this case, admittedly deceased is a painter aged 25 years on date of death - Statement made by claimants that by working as painter, deceased was earning Rs.3000/- can be considered to be honest and genuine - Tribunal ought to have accepted statements of appellants/claimants about income of deceased which was at Rs.3000 per month and should have computed compensation on said basis - In this case, considering income of deceased, Rs.3000/- per month at his annual income comes to Rs.36000/- and 1/4th has to be deducted towards personal and living expenditure of deceased which comes to Rs27000/- - To arrive loss of depedency above amount has to capitalized with multiplier "18" which comes to Rs.4,86,000/- and this apart 1st appellant/ claimant, widow of deceased is entitled for loss of consortium, funeral expenses and loss of estate and in all appellants are entitled for an amount of Rs.5,06,000/- - Court is not supposed to restrict compensation to claim made in claim petition even though it exceeds the claim actually made in claim petition - Appellant/claimants are therefore entitled for compensation of Rs.5,06,000 - CMA, allowed. Fathima Begum Vs. Sangamesh Chidri, 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 194 = 2012(5) ALD 125 = 2012(5) ALT 277.

—Sec.166 - "Motor accident" - Deceased aged 42 years, caterer of food items earning Rs.4500/- per month, while proceeding to bus stand Auto came from behind in rash and negligent manner dashed deceased, due to which left leg of deceased was fractured and ultimately as a result of infection of injury he died - Wife of deceased lodged FIR nearly 45 days after accident - Appellants/claimants filed petition claiming Rs.5 lakhs towards compensation - Tribunal upheld contentions of 2nd respondent/ Insurance Company that Auto not at all involved in accident and false claim had been laid against insurance company in collusion with owner and driver of Auto and also traffic police - Tribunal dismissed entire claim made by appellants - Hence present appeal preferred by claimants - In this case, Tribunal had unnecessarily indulged in microscopic examination of evidence of P.W.1, wife of deceased, as to explanation regarding delay in lodging FIR which approach is totally erroneous and uncalled for in an enquiry in claim case u/Sec.166 of M.V. Act for which a summary of procedure is contemplated - Since strict rules of evidence have no application for proceedings before Tribunal under M.V. Act, evidence of P.W.1/wife given basing on version of eye witnesses to accident as to number of Auto and identity of driver of Auto can be relied on and taken into consideration - Approach of Tribunal that it was not possible for P.W.1 to observe number of vehicle at time of accident is unrealistic and prompted by misconceived notions - Victims might have furnished particulars of offending vehicle after ascertaining them from persons who witnessed accident - In this case, there is no dispute about fact that deceased received fracture to his left leg in an Auto accident - Appellants/claimants produced entire record relating to prolonged medical treatment of deceased before Tribunal - Police filed charge-sheet after making thorough investigation into offence - 1st respondent/driver admitted offence before Magistrate and paid fine imposed by Magistrate and this important fact has been overlooked by Tribunal on ground that findings of Criminal Court are not binding on civil Court or Tribunal - In claim cases under M.V Act, summary procedure is contemplated to prove respective versions of parties - Therefore victims who are under a duty to prove accident, need not prove same beyond reasonable doubt just like prosecution in a criminal case - Finding recorded by Tribunal is contrary to evidence on record and appreciation of evidence by Tribunal is contrary to established norms - As such finding of Tribunal, set aside - Consequently respondent/owner of offending vehicle and 2nd respondent/Insurance Company are jointly and severally liable to pay compensation to claimants - DETERMINATION OF QUANTUM OF COMPENSATION - Appellants claimed compensation of Rs.5 lakhs on account of death - For purpose of computing compensation in absence of independent evidence adduced by claimants about his income - income of deceased considered at Rs.3000/- p.m. - Taking into consideration age of decease relevant multiplier is "14" and loss of dependency arrived at Rs.3,36,000/- - Rs.50,00 can be granted to claimants for medical expenses for prolonged of treatment of deceased - Claimants are entitled for a total amount of Rs.4,06,000/- - Appeal, partly allowed. T.Subramanyam Vs. G.Bhaskar Hussainaiah 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 227 = 2012(5) ALD 303 = 2012(5) ALT 284.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

——Sec.166 - This Bench is constituted to answer reference made in above M.A.C.M.A.No.364 of 2010 is filed by the claimant seeking enhancement of compensation awarded by Accidents Claims Tribunal, whereas, M.A.C.M.A.No.1020 of 2010 is filed by the National Insurance Company Limited, questioning the very award of compensation itself - For the purpose of this reference, Court take facts as narrated in M.A.C.M.A.No.364 of 2010 - It was specific case of claimant that for purpose of tuition fee of deceased, she obtained loan from Bank and was educating her deceased brother - On behalf of claimant, the certificate issued by the Medical college showing the fee paid for the deceased and also the notices demanding the payment of balance outstanding amount of loan, issued by Bank were exhibited - Seeking enhancement of compensation awarded by the Tribunal, the claimant has filed M.A.C.M.A.No.364 of 2010, whereas, questioning the award of compensation, the Insurance Company has filed M.A.C.M.A.No.1020 of 2010 - It was case of Insurance Company that claimant was not dependant on deceased, as such, she is not entitled for compensation u/Sec.166 of Motor Vehicles Act.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

When matters have come up before Division Bench, in view of conflicting opinions rendered earlier by 2 different Division Benches in case of Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. P.Satyavathamma and in Vanguard Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Chellu Hanumantha Rao, Division Bench has referred matters to Full Bench, for answering the following question: "Whether non-dependant heir of deceased who died in a motor accident is entitled to lay claim for compensation u/Sec.166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 where there is no other dependant legal heir claiming compensation ?"

Held, in view of clear and unambiguous language u/Sec.166 of Motor Vehicles Act, it is clear that application can be made either by injured or the legal representatives of the deceased - Though 'legal representative' is not defined under the provisions of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, from Rule 2(g) of A.P.Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989, it is clear that definition of 'legal representative' is given same meaning as defined u/ Sec.2(11) of Code of Civil Procedure.

In view of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Manjuri Bera's case, it is clear that compensation which is payable on account of no fault liability will form part of estate of deceased - In that view of matter, there is no basis for contending that application is to be filed only by dependants - As Court have held that dependency is a matter to be taken into consideration for award of compensation and merely because one is not dependant, that by itself, is no ground for not entertaining any claim made for grant of compensation under Motor Vehicles Act - In view of the clear language u/Sec.166 of Act and in view of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Manjuri Bera's case, wherein, it is held that compensation to be awarded u/Sec.140 of Motor Vehicles Act will form part of estate of deceased, and further, as Act also provides for compensation on other conventional heads, Court view that the non-dependant also can lay a claim by filing application u/Sec.166 of Act - It is also to be noticed that situations may arise, where, one may have suffered injuries initially but ultimately after filing a claim, may have succumbed to such injuries also - In such an event, lot of amount would be spent towards hospitalisation etc., and as already discussed in judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Montford Brothers' case, it is common in Indian society, where, members of family who are not even dependant also can extend their support monetarily and otherwise to victims of accidents to meet immediate expenditure for hospitalization etc.,

For aforesaid reasons and in view of language u/Sec.166 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, r/w. Rule 2(g) of the A.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989, Court view that even the legal representatives who are non-dependants can also lay a claim for payment of compensation by making application u/Sec.166 of Motor Vehicles Act.

Accordingly, Bench answer reference, holding that a non-dependant heir of deceased who died in a motor accident is entitled to lay a claim for compensation u/Sec.166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 where there is no other dependant legal heir for claiming compensation - Reference is answered accordingly. Dr.Gangaraju Sowmini Vs. Alavala Sudhakar Reddy 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 406 = 2016(2) ALT 306 = 2016(2) ALD 226.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—- Sec.166 - 2nd respondent-Reliance General Insurance Company Limited, the Insurer, preferred the present appeal against impugned order passed in favour of four claimants for Rs.34,50,000 with interest at 12% p.a. from date of claim petition till date of decree and later at 6% p.a - As per claim petition, it was due to rash and negligent driving of driver of crime car belonging to 5th respondent herein, car dashed bike of deceased while he was proceeding on his bike and was taken to Hospital immediately but succumbed to injuries in transit.

It is contended on behalf of appellant-Insurer that trial Court gravely erred in finding composite negligence of deceased rider of bike vis-à-vis driver of car instead of holding that deceased was alone negligent and liable for accident that too, in proceeding at about 40 kms speed on road and taking right turn by driver of car was not on wrong side even as per P.W.2 eye witness to accident, that Tribunal also gravely erred in arriving net salary of Rs.34,468/- without deduction of personal expenses of Rs.18,400/- besides conveyance allowance of Rs.800/- and compensation awarded is highly excessive, so also in taking 50% future prospects even deceased was only a probationer in private job and that rate of interest awarded at 12% p.a. is also unsustainable and award of tribunal thereby is liable to be set aside.

Held, deceased was a post-graduate in Applied Science as per Ex.A.13 and 15 from Periyar University and passed in distinction in year 2004 and those are the copies of provisional and regular P.G.Degree certificates to that effect - As the claim is under Section 166 of the Act, as per Sarla Verma, Reshmakumari and Rajesh the multiplier that is applicable is 16 for persons in the age group of 31 to 35 years - Tribunal rightly has taken the multiplier - Coming to earnings for consideration and personal expenses deduction out of it, evidence of P.W.3 who is the Manager (Legal) of Fullerton Indian Private Limited, Hyderabad branch where the deceased was working as H.R. Assistant Manager, since 23.08.2013 (even by the date of accidental death on 19/20.11.2013) as per Ex.A.7 as probationer to say undergoing probation still - Merely because he is in probation, does not mean he was not in employment with monthly salary to be computed for assessing compensation as on the date and time of death - As per Section 2(22) of the Income Tax Act, income is an inclusive definition which includes any special allowance and benefit granted to the assessee (employee) other than perks to meet expenses for performance of duties or as employment of profit or to compensate for increase in the cost of living or value of any benefit or perquisite.

Net salary thereby is Rs.34,468/- Ex.A.9 Salary sheet also proved through P.W.3 for the total three months period from 23.08.2013 to 19.11.2013 in this regard - P.W.3 denied the suggestion of deceased never worked in the entity and Exs.A.7 to A.9 are created or he was not paid any salary by the entity or he is deposing false - There is no other much less worth cross-examination to discredit the evidence of P.W.3 or to doubt the probative value of the Exs.A.7 to A.9.

If 1/3rd deducted towards personal expenses of the deceased, contribution of the deceased to the family is the remaining 2/3rds which comes to (Rs.37,125-

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

Conveyance Allowance of Rs.800 + IT deduction of Rs.438 + P.F. contribution of Rs.1575 + Professional Tax of Rs.200 + Mediclaim recovery of Rs.444 = Rs.34,468/ -is the net salary as arrived by the tribunal and even instead of Rs.438/- if at least 12% deducted towards income tax, after 50% prospective increase on Rs.34,468+Rs.438=Rs.52,359/-, of which 12% towards income tax deduction taken at Rs.6,283/-, the net amount comes to Rs.46,076/- and after 1/3rd deduction, the 2/3rds comes to Rs.30,717/- x 12 x 16 = Rs.58,97,718/-, besides loss of consortium to the first claimant-wife Rs.1,00,000/-, loss of estate Rs.10,000/-, care and guidance to the minor child Rs.25,000/- even as awarded by the tribunal taken, funeral expenses Rs.25,000/- as laid down in Rajesh supra, it comes to more than what the tribunal awarded of Rs.34,50,000/- - Thus, as held in Ranjana Prakash, this Court has since no power to enhance for what is awarded is no way excessive but low, there is nothing to reduce the quantum of compensation awarded by the tribunal of Rs.34,50,000/ - The latest expression of the three judge Bench of the Apex Court in Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh , it is held categorically that it is reasonable to award rate of interest at 7.5% p.a - Hence, the rate of interest is modified to 7½% p.a. uniformly from date of claim petition till realisation instead of 12% p.a. from date of claim petition till date of award and thereafter 6% p.a. till realization as awarded by the Tribunal.

Accordingly and in result, appeal is disposed of before admission while setting aside finding of Tribunal on contributory negligence of deceased and car driver equally and held accident was result of only due to rash and negligent driving of car driver however, by not interfering with quantum of compensation awarded by Tribunal for same is no way excessive, but for modifying the rate of interest from 12%p.a.from date of claim petition filed before tribunal till date of award and thereafter at 6% p.a. till realization, to 7.5% p.a. from date of claim petition till realization uniformly, rest of award holds good. Reliance General Insurance Co, Ltd. Vs. S.Sunitha @ R.Sunitha 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 391 = 2016(5) ALD 431.

—Sec.166, 2(4), 235, 214, 2(1) & 233 – A.P. MOTOR VEHICLES RULES, 1989, Rules 268 & 269 - Motor accident – Agrl. Cooly aged 26 years, earning about Rs.1500/- p.m died while travelling in Auto due to negligent driving of driver – Tribunal awarding compensation of Rs.1,67,590 as against claim of Rs. 2 lakh - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that driver of Auto was not having valid driving license at time of accident and he was having only license to drive light motor vehicle - As per Rules "Auto-rickshaws" can carry passengers – Therefore, a person having a license to drive Auto-rickshaws only without having a license to drive light motor vehicles, also can drive Auto-rickshaws carrying passengers - Driver of Auto who had a driving license to drive light motor vehicles and auto-rickshaws, earlier could even drive public service vehicles, goods carriages, educational institution buses and private service vehicles also from 29-4-1999 when he was given license to drive "transport vehicle" also – So, entrusting auto to driver who caused accident cannot be said to have violated terms and conditions of Policy - Tribunal did not commit any error in making appellant/Insurance Company also liable to pay compensation payable to claimants – Appeal, dismissed. Oriental Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Mamidi Radha 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 228 = 2008(6) ALD 562.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.166 and 140 - Motor accident - - "No fault liability" - "Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur" - Deceased, cleaner of lorry aged 18 years getting salary of Rs.2000/- per month, died in accident due to rash and negligent driving of driver of tripper - Claimants, parents and brothers filed claim petiton claiming compensation of Rs. 2 lakhs - Tribunal took view that since claimants did not examine any eye witness to accident, they failed to substantiate their version that accident was result of rash and negligent driving of driver of Tipper and arrived at decision that appellants/claimants 1 and 2 are entitled for compensation of Rs.50,000 under no fault liability as envisaged u/Sec.140 of M.V Act and accordingly granted compensation of Rs.50,000/- and dismissed rest of claim - Appellants/claimants contend that since there is no dispute about fact that deceased died while he was in between lorry and Tipper and in view of fact that claimants specifically attributed rash and negligent driving of driver of Tipper burden is on owner and insurer af Tipper to establish accident was not due to rash and negligent driving of driver of Tipper, on failure by them to discharge said burden, claims Tribunal ought to have drawn inference against them and should have held owner of vehicle and insurer, respondents 1 and 2 are jointly and severally liable to pay compensation and that Tribunal went wrong in awarding compensation u/sec.140 of M.V Act, and should have granted compensation on fault liability u/Sec.166 of Act - Insurance Company and 2nd respondent contends that burden is on claimants to establish that accident was due to rash and negligent driving of driver of Tipper and on their failure to discharge said burden claims Tribunal is justified in granting compensation under no fault liability - Claimants/appellants further contend that having regard to facts and circumstances leading to occurrence of accident Claims Tribunal ought to have applied doctrine of res ipsa loquitur on failure by owner and insurer to discharge burden that accident was not due to rash and negligent driving of driver of Tipper - BURDEN OF PROOF - In normal Course burden to prove cause of accident lies on claimants, but when claimants are persons known to them do not know cause of accident, they can explain circumstances which resulted in accident and in such an event doctrine of res ipsa loquitur comes to their risk which lays down principle that accident speaks for itself - In instant case, since lorry in which deceased working was in stationary position, accident must have been caused due to movement of Tipper which was driven by its driver - Manner in which accident took place, therefore, is exclusively within knowledge of driver of Tipper and under these circumstances since claimants proved that accident, burden to prove as to how accident had taken place is on owner or insurer of Tipper and they ought to have examined driver of Tipper to explain circumstances under which accident took place and for non-examination of driver of Tipper an adverse inference against insured and insurer can be drawn in effect that had the driver of offending vehicle had been examined he would have stated that accident took place as he drove vehicle without observing the position of deceased in between two vehiles - Therefore finding recorded by Tribunal that claimants failed to prove that accident caused to rash and negligent driving of driver needs to be set aside - Taking circumstances into account in which accident took place and by applying doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, that accident was caused due to rash and negligent driving of driver of Tipper - Consequently owner and insurer of Tipper, respondents 1 and 2 are jointly and severally liable to pay compensation to claimants - Taking into consideration age of mother of deceased as 48 years on date of his death multiplier of "13", claimants are entitled to total compensation of Rs.3,22,000/- - Award passed by Tribunal, set aside - Appellants/claimants parents of deceased are granted compensation of Rs.3,22,000/-. Moinuddin Vs. Md.Kareemuddin 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 99 = 2013(5) ALD 276 = 2013(4) ALT 465.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.166 and 147 and 95 (a) & 95 (b) (i) - Motor accident - Deceased, owner of cloth shop while travelling in jeep died on spot in accident due to rash and negligent driving of driver - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.10, 75,517 as against claim of Rs.20 lakhs to claimants, wife, children and parents, holding that Insurance Company and owner of vehicle are jointly and severally liable to pay compensation amount - Petitioner/ Insurance Company contends that on date of accident, deceased travelled in private jeep insured under Act Policy and therefore, occupants and inmates of vehicle are not third parties to make Insurance Company liable for payment of compensation - Respondents/claimants contend that in absence of any plea taken by Insurance Company about non-payment of extra premium and that Act Policy does not cover passengers travelling in a private jeep, it is not open for Insurance Company to raise such pleas in this appeal since it is not established by Insurance Company that more than 5 passengers travelled in vehicle - Once Insurance Company under Cover Note has not undertaken liability by collecting extra premium for passengers who traveled in insured vehicle, it cannot be held liable to pay compensation and it is only respondent/owner of vehicle who is liable to satisfy decree and pay compensation amount - Judgment and decree passed by Tribunal, set aside - CMA, allowed. United India Insurance Co.Ltd. Vs. Kondakotla Saroja 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 37.

—Secs.166 & 163 - "Motor accident" - Deceased aged 19 years, student of Engineering was killed in motor accident when motor cycle on which he was going along with his friend was hit by Truck belonging to 1st respondent - Parents of deceased aged 42 and 45 years, filed claim petition - Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs.1,92,000/ - applying multiplier "17" keeping in view age of deceased - In present case, deceased aged 19 years, student of Engineering Course and having regard to age of parents compensation enhanced to Rs.7 lakhs - Appeal partly, allowed. Radhakrishna Vs. Gokul 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 223 = 2014(3) ALD 181 (SC) = 2014 AIR SCW 548.

—Secs.166 & 163(A) Schedule II - "Motor accident" - Deceased aged 48 years carrying on business, earning Rs.1500 per month, sustained injuries in motor vehicle accident resulting amputation of left leg - Tribunal granted Rs.25000 towards compensation arriving at decision that there was contributory negligence on part of appellant - In this case, appropriate multiplier according to II Schedule to 163(A) of Act relevant to age of appellant is 13 - Therefore amount for which appellant is entitled towards loss of earnings and permanent disability comes to Rs.1,75,000 - Apart from this amount an amount of Rs.20,000 can be granted towards pain and suffering - Appellant/ claimant is entitled for total compensation of Rs.1,95,500. Pothuraju Chandraiah Vs. G.Narasimha 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 332.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Seecs.166,163-A & 168 - CENSUS ACT, 1948, Secs.4 & 18, Rules 5(c) (d) & (e) of Rules - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.36 - "Motor accident" - "Criteria for determination of compensation payable to dependents of house wife who dies in accident and who does not have regular source of income" – Stated - 1st appellant's wife aged 39 years died in road accident when car driven by 1st appellant was hit by truck - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.2.5 lakhs as against claim of Rs.19.2 lakhs, liable to be paid by Insurance Company - High Court dismissed appeal preferred by appellant, observing that compensation awarded by Tribunal is just and fair - In India, Courts have recognized that contribution made by wife to house is invaluable and cannot be computed in terms of money - Gratuitous service rendered by wife with true love and affection to children and her husband, managing house hold affairs cannot be equated with services rendered by others - A wife/mother does not work by clock and she is in constant attendance of family throughout day and night - She takes care of all requirements of husband and children including cooking of food, washing of cloths etc - A house keeper or maid servant can do household work such as cooking food, washing clothes and utensils, keeping house clean etc., but she can never be substitute for a wife/mother who renders selfless service to her husband and children - Husband and children are entitled to adequate compensation in lieu of gratuitous services rendered by deceased house wife - Amount payable to dependents cannot be diminished on ground that some close relation like grant-mother may volunteer to render services to family which deceased was giving earlier - It is highly unfair, unjust and in appropriate to compute compensation payable to dependents of deceased wife/mother, who does not have regular income by comparing her services with that of house keeper or a servant or an employee, who works for fixed period - Though, Sec.163-A does not in terms apply to cases in which claim for compensation is filed u/Sec.166 of Act, in absence of any other definite criteria for determination of compensation payable to dependents of a non-earning housewife/mother it would be reasonable to relay upon criteria specified in Cl.(6) of Second Schedule and then apply appropriate multiplier - In this case, 1st appellant categorically stated that deceased was earning Rs.50,000/- per annum by paintings and handicrafts, respondents did not lead any evidence to controvert same - Notwithstanding this, Tribunal and High Court altogether ignored income of deceased - However without any tangible reason, Tribunal decided to reduce amount of compensation by observing that deceased was actually non earning member and amount of compensation would be too much - High Court went a step further and dismissed appeal by erroneously presuming that neither of claimants was dependent upon deceased and services rendered by her could be estimated as Rs.1250 per month - Impugned judgment as also award of Tribunal are set aside, holding that appellants are entitled to compensation of Rs.6 lakhs - Appeal, allowed. Arun Kumar Agrawal Vs. National Insurance Company 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 175.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

— Secs.166, 163-A & 140 - "Motor accident" - 1st respondent/petitioner whil driving lorry, lost control over vehicle as a result vehicle truned turtle and 1st respondent received fracture to both legs on account of injuriess sustained by him and sustained permanent disability due to fractures - Respondent filed claim petition u/Sec.166 of M.V. Act seeking compensation of Rs.1.5 lakhs - Tribunal after enquiry granted compensation of Rs.1 lakhs holding that 2nd respondent/owner of vehicle and appellant/Insurance Company are jointly and severally liable to pay compensation - Appellant/Insuance Company contends that Tribunal having held that accident was on account of rash and negligent drving of 1st respondent/claimant who is neither 3rd party nor person covered under terms and conditions of Policy of Insurance is not entitled to claim compensation from appellant/Insurance Company and that Tribunal has no jurisdiction to entrtain claim preferred by claimant in exercise of jurisdiction u/Sec.166 of M.V. Act - Claimant contends that even if it is considered that accident was due to rash and negligent driving of claim-ant himself,claimant can maintain claim u/Sec.163-A of M.V.Act, before Tribunal and High Court even in appeal can treat claim as one filed u/Sec.163-A of M.V. Act and can grant compensation basing on "structured formula" basis as per said Provision - Supreme Court clarified that payment of amount in terms of Sec.140 of Act is ad hoc in nature, whereas under claim envisaged u/Sec.163-A of Act, rights and obligations of parties are to be determined finally and that Sec.163-A was introduced in Act by way of Social Security Scheme as parliament intended to provide for making of an award consisting of pre-determined sum without insisting on long-drawn trial or without proof of negligence in causing accident and that Sec.163-A of Act covers cases where even negligence is on part of victim, it is by way of an exception to Sec.166 of Act - A claim u/Sec.166 of Act as well as Sec.163-A of Act are founded on fault liability principle - Sec.163-A enables claimant to get compensation basing on structured formula basis in alternative to one available u/Sec.166 of Act - Claimant can chose either of them - When once they have choosen to claim compensation u/Sec.166 of Act and proceeded with enquiry of claim they cannot turn round and say that their claim can be considered as was made u/Sec.163-A of Act - In this case, claim petition is filed u/Sec.166 of Act by claimant/1st respondent, he himself specifically pleaded in claim petition that while he was driving vehicle he lost control over vehicle due to whch turned turtle - Tribunal basing on pleadings of claimant as well as evidence recorded a specific finding that accident was due to his non fault - At appellate stage it is not open to claimant to urge before High Court that Tribunal ought to have considered her claim as one made u/Sec.163-A of Act and that he had deliberately chosen to make a claim u/Sec.166 of Act and it was considered by Tribunal and Tribunal recorded an erroneous finding that appellant Compnay is liable to pay compensation to claimant - Finding recorded is contrary to provisions of Act and also to terms and conditions of Policy - However, despite fact that claim made by him u/Sec.166 of Act cannot be convered into a claim u/Sec.163-A of Act, he is entitled for compensation u/Sec.140 of Act under no fault liability clause - Finding of tribunal awarding compensation u/Sec.166 of Act, set aside — Appellant/Insurance Company is entitled to recover amount, if any deposited by owner of offending vehicle without instituting any separate suit - Appeal, allowed. United India Insurance Co. Ltd Vs. C.Ramulu, 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 262 = 2013(3) ALD 757 = 2013(2) ALT 799.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.166, 163-A, 140 & 156(6) – "MOTOR ACCIDENT" - TRIBUNAL DISMISSED CLAIM PETITION ON GROUND THAT ACCIDENT OCCURED DUE TO NEGLIGNECE OF CLAIMANT HIMSELF - HENCE CLAIMANT PREFERED PRESENT APPEAL - Claimant is driver of lorry, while driving said lorry all of sudden some stray cattle ran across road and in order to avoid accident he applied sudden brakes and lost control over lorry as result of which lorry dashed against road side tree and in that process his wife sustained injuries and died on spot and that his wife is engaged as coolie for loading and unloading of fruits on lorry and earning Rs.2,500/- per month and she is aged 21 years and he claimed total compensation of Rs. 1.3 lakhs - In this case except evidence of claimant as P.W.1 there is no other oral evidence – It is not in dispute that lorry hit road side tree, and very fact that lorry hit a road side tree corroborates version of claimant – Claimant would not have applied sudden brakes as he had not seen stray cattle across road - When driver with good intention to save life of person or cattle applied sudden brakes, it cannot be said that he drove vehicle rashly and negligently, since it was beyond his control and therefore it cannot be said that claimant was negligent at the time of driving lorry - M.V. Act provides that claimant can claim compensation not only U/sec.166 of Act but also under Sec.163-A of Act – If a vehicle is involved in an accident that itself is sufficient to make a claim U/Sec. 163-A of Act – When a claim is made U/Sec. 163-A of Act, claimant is not required to plead and prove negligence of driver - Thus claim need not be under any particular provision of Act – Once legal possession is clear, claimant's application can be treated as an appli-cation filed under Sec. 163-A of Act - As per evidence of Claimant, deceased was aged 20 years, at time of accident, so appropriate multiplier to be adopted is "16" and by applying the same total loss of earnings would come to Rs.2,40,000 - and claimant is also entitled to Rs. 1,00,000/- towards loss of consortium and Rs. 25,000/- towards funeral expenses and thus in all claimant is entitled for Rs. 3,65,000 - Since, Insurance policy was in force at the time of accident both respondents, owner of lorry and Insurance Company, jointly and severally liable to pay compensation – Order of Tribunal set aside – Appeal allowed. B.Sreekanth Reddy Vs. G.Pratap Reddy 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 502

—Secs.166 & 165 - APSRTC's Bus damaged due to rash and negligent driving of driver of lorry - Tribunal awarding compensation of Rs.42,000/- towards repair and Rs.14,440/

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

- towards loss of earnings for five days during which period bus was under repair, jointly liable to be paid by owner and insured of lorry - Appellant insured of lorry contends that Tribunal has no jurisdiction to pass an award for loss suffered by 1st respondent, APSRTC during period of repairs of its bus - Tribunal constituted under Act can pass award with regard to damage caused to property only, but it is not empowered to pass any award relating to damage or loss suffered by owner of vehicle due to its remaining idle during period of its repair - For that purpose Civil Court is only competent to pass decree - Tribunal granting damages towards loss of earnings to 1st respondent/APSRTC - Erroneous - Award, modified. New India Assurance Co., Ltd., Vs. APSRTC, rep. by its MD 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 354 = 2008(5) ALD 44 = 2008(5) ALT 652 = AIR 2008 AP 226 = 2008(3) APLJ 11 (SN).

—Secs.166 & 167 - Awarding compensaton - "Motor accident" - "Head on collusion" - Awarding of compensation - Enhancement of compensation - Deceased while proceeding on Car sustained injuries in accident on account of head on collusion between car of deceased and truck and died - Tribunal awarded compnesation of Rs.2 lakhs in favour of appellant/claimants, wife and minor son of deceased - Tribunal has committed error in law in coming to conclusion that absence of rebuttal evidence that there was contributory negligence of 20% on part of deceased - Tribuanal ought to have seen that non-production of FIR has no consequence for reason that charge sheet was filed against Truck driver for offence punishable u/Secs.279, r/w Sec.302 IPC, r/w provisions of M.V. Act - Finding of fact recorded on issue No.1 by Tribunal and affirmed by High Court is erroneous for want of proper consideration of pleadings and legal evidence by both of them - Impugned judgment of awards of Tribunal and High Court are set aside - Award of Compensation enhanced to Rs.10,48,400/- - Appeal, allowed, accordingly. Minu Rout Vs. Satya Pradyumna Mohapatra, 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 109 = 2013(6) ALD 115 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 5375.

—Secs.166 & 168 - Motor Accident - Compensation - Determination of - Deceased aged 35 years earning Rs.35 per day while riding bicycle died in accident on spot - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.1.69 lakhs applying multiplier of 16 - In appeal, filed by claimants, High Court enhanced compensation to Rs.2.97 lakhs by enhancing income of deceased and reducing multiplier to 12 - Appellants contend that High Court committed error in applying multiplier 12 when deceased is only 35 years old and none of claimants was more than that age - Insurance Company contends that compensation granted by High Court is on higher side - Compensation enhanced to Rs.3.45 lakhs applying multiplier 14 considering consortium to widow and loss of estate - Appeal, allowed. Laxmi Devi Vs. Mohammad Tabbar 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 103 = 2008(3) ALD 129 (SC) = AIR 2008 SC 1858 = 2008 AIR SCW 2605.

—Secs.166 & 168 - Motor accident - Deceased aged 38 years working as Scientist in ICAR on monthly salary of Rs.3402/- died in accident involving Bus belonging to Delhi Transport Corporation - Claim petitions filed by widow, three children, parents and grand father of deceased - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.5.94 lakhs applying multiplier 22 - High Court chose multiplier 13 and determined total compensation at Rs.7,19,624/- - Appellants/claimants contend that High Court erred in holding that there was no evidence in regard to future prospects and High Court ought to have taken higher amount as income of deceased and appropriate multiplier for person dying at age of 38 would be 16 and therefore loss of dependency would be Rs.26,41,152 - Basically, only three facts need to be established by claimants for assessing compensation in case of death; a) age of deceased; b) income of deceased; and c) number of dependents - No evidence need to be led to show actual expenses of deceased - In fact any evidence in that behalf will be wholly unverifiable and likely to be unreliable - Hence it is necessary to standardize deductions to be made under head of personal and living expenses of deceased - In fact one-third deduction, got statutory recognition under Second Schedule of Act in respect of claims u/Sec.163-A of M.V. Act - Contention of appellants that actual future pay revisions should be taken into account for purpose of calculating income is not sound - As against contention of appellants that if deceased had been lived he would have earned benefit of revised pay scale, it is equally possible that if had not died in accident, he might have died on account of ill health or other accident or lost the employment or met some other calamity or disadvantage - Imponderable in life are too many - Therefore, interest of justice would be met if one-fifth is deducted as personal and living expenses of deceased - In this case, multiplier will be 15 having regard to age of deceased at time of death - Total compensation enhanced to Rs.8,84,870 - After deducting Rs.7,19,624 awarded by High Court enhncement would be Rs.1,65,246 - Increase in compensation awarded shall be taken by widow exclusively. Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corpn., 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 29 = 2009(3) ALD 83(SC) = 2009(3) Supreme 487 = AIR 2009 SC 3104 = 2009 AIR SCW 4992.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.166 & 168 - "Permanent and partial Disability" - Determination of compensation - Appellant working as a Coolie earning Rs.4500/- per month while riding as pillion on motor cycle sustained grievous injuries in accident resulting his right hand completely disabled due to which his work and livelihood completely suffered - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.1,13,900/- as against claim of Rs.5,50,000/- - In instant case, appellant aged 35 years and was working as Coolie earning Rs.4500/- per month at time of accident and this claim is reduced by Tribunal to a sum of Rs.3000/- on assumption that wages of labourer during relevant period was Rs.100/- per day and this assumption has no basis - Appellant was working as a Coolie and therefore he is not expected to produce any documentary evidence to substantiate his claim - Doctor who was examined as claimant's witness has stated that appellant has sustained malunited fracture 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th MCB right and malunited fracture scapula right and in his opinion appellant has suffered permanent physical disability of 41% to right upper limb and in view of disability, claimant cannot work as Coolie and cannot do any other manual work as Coolie - Additional amount of Rs.2 lakhs granted to appellant by way of compensation. Ramachandrappa Vs. Royal Sundaram Aliance Insurance Co. Ltd. 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 152.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—-Secs.166 and 173 - The claimant maintained that claim u/Sec.166 of Act for compensation of Rs.4,00,000/- for injuries sustained by him in accident due to rash and negligent driving of 1st respondent, driver of bus which belongs to 2nd respondent which is insured with the 3rd respondent and under hire with 4th respondent APSRTC by joining all of them for joint liability - Tribunal having considered evidence on record supported by respective pleadings held that accident was result of rash and negligent driving of driver of hired bus with APSRTC insured with insurer, however insurer cannot be liable but for driver, owner and hiree-APSRTC, respondent Nos. 1, 2 and 4 respectively jointly in awarding compensation of Rs.2,35,678/- with interest @ 7.5% - Owner of hired bus maintained M.A.C.M.A in 2007 with contentions that APSRTC is liable vicariously and Tribunal ought to have fixed liability on insurer while claimant maintained M.A.C.M.A in 2013 that Tribunal erred in not awarding compensation as prayed for by restricting it to Rs.2,35,678 - Appeal of claimant against respondent Nos.1, 2, and 3 were ended in dismissal for default - In fact respondent Nos.2 and 3 are on record even in M.A.C.M.A. 2007 and both matters taken up together for common disposal, as arisen out of the same award and as they are represented through advocate from hearing of both sides - Thus dismissal order against respondent Nos.1 to 3 of appeal M.A.C.M.A of 2013 is set aside and heard respondent Nos.2 and 3, along with M.A.C.M.A of 2007 - Issue for consideration is quantum awarded is unsustainable, apart from exoneration of insurer is unsustainable and whether insurer also jointly be made liable from policy covered risk otherwise.

Held, Apex Court in Managing Director, KSRTC Vs. New India Assurance Co. Limited observed of insurer has to indemnify from joint liability of owner and lessee RTC of vehicle insured with insurer even there is lack of intimation of lease from owner to insurer and in fixing joint liability, insurer has to indemnify - Having regard to this, exoneration of insurer by Tribunal is unsustainable and is liable to set aside, by fixing joint liability on owner, APSRTC and insurer so as to recover by any payment made by owner or RTC from the insurer for liability to indemnify from policy once covered risk and not entitled to exoneration by showing otherwise.

Regarding quantum of compensation, main thrust in appeal maintained by claimant is that Tribunal ought to have believed evidence of PW.5 owner under whom injured is working, from salary certificate Ex.A13 - There is no other proof to show that he was paying Rs.6000/- per month - In fact, as per Latha Wadhwa Vs. State of Bihar in absence of proof of earnings, minimum of Rs.3000/- per month can be taken - Accident occurred was nearly 5 years after expression - Thus it can be safely taken Rs.3,500/- per month - Accordingly, compensation of Rs. 2,35,678/- is enhanced to Rs. 2,60,000/- - Accordingly, and in result, both appeals are allowed. T.Rama Krishna Vs. Valluri Babu Rao 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 383.

—Secs.166, 169 & 173 - CIVILPROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rule 27 and Or.13, Rule 1 - “Acceptance of additional evidence at appellate stage” - Motor accident - Tribunal awarded compensation to claimants of deceased who died in motor accident - Insurance Company sought to produce additional evidence by filing Report of Insurance Surveyor and copies of Pahanies, contending that they are essential for effective adjudication of appeal - Claimants contend that Phanies are not documents of title and these documents pertain to subsequent to death of deceased - Insurance Company cannot be permitted to adduce additional evidence after a period of decade of occurrence of accident - A reading of Sec.169 & 173 of M.V Act and Rule 437 of M.V Rules shows that there is no reference to Rule 27 of Or.41 CPC and it is not made applicable to appeals filed under Sec.173 of M.V Act - Since Tribunal can follow its own procedure appellate Court may receive additional evidence in interest of justice - In this case, since conditions for receiving additional evidence under Rule 27 of Or.41, C.P.C are not fulfilled, appellant, Insurance Company cannot be permitted to adduce additional evidence - In this case, appellant/Insurance Company, having slept over matter for about 10 years, now cannot dig graveyard and come up with new plea - Thus surveyor obtained material behind back of claimants and therefore petition filed to receive additional evidence cannot be entertained and same is liable to be dismissed - There is no need to disturb award passed by Tribunal - Petition for additional evidence and appeal, dismissed. National Insurance Co., Ltd. Vs. Syed Najmunnisa 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 202.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

——Secs.166 & 173 - "Motor Accident" - Deceased HB and NR both died in consequence of injuries received in Motor Accident - LRs of HB filed OP claiming compensation of Rs.4,05,000 and LRs of N.R. filed OP claiming compensation of Rs.3,10,000 - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.3,03,000 and Rs.1,54,336/- respectively in both claim petitions - Insurance Company filed present two appeals and said appeals claimants/respondents filed cross-objections contending that compensation granted by Tribunal is grossly inadiquate and requires enhancements - Appeals as well as cross-objections having been directed against quantum of compensation, other issues need not be diverted to - Appellants/Insurance Company raised question that there is no provision under Motor Vehicles Act enabling parties to file cross-objections, claimants, therefore, ought to have filed appeals challenging findings in award and cross-objections filed by them are not maintainable - Apex Court clearly lays down that claimants can question inadequacy of compensation granted by Tribunal by its award not only by preferring separate appeal but also by filing cross objections in Appeal filed by owners or insurer - Therefore there is no substance in contention urged by insurer that cross-objections filed by claimants are not maintainable - In this case, since appeals are filed by Insurance Company and cross-objections filed by claimants questioning quantum of compensation granted by Tribunal, High Court can proceed to decide compensation which is just and reasonable either by enhancing or by reducing same - Deceased HB aged 23 years and is driver by profession and he died while driving Zeep he was hale and healthy getting income of Rs.3500 per month - Relevant multiplier is "15" - claimants are entitled for compensation of Rs.3,25,000 - Deceased NR is an Agriculturist aged 55 years having 50 acres of land getting income of Rs.1 lakh per annum - Relevant Multiplier to age of deceased is 11 - Claimants are entitled for compensation of Rs.2,26,250/- - Appeals filed by Insurance Company are liable to be dismissed and cross-objections deserve to be allowed - Accordingly cross objections are allowed. National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Gane Seshamma 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 139 = 2013(6) ALD 322.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.166 & 173 - "MOTOR ACCIDENT" – While deceased proceeding on tractor accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of 1st respondent driver, who applied brakes suddenly on result of which deceased fell down and tractor ran over deceased and he died while undergoing treatment in hospital - Claimants, parents of deceased filed petition, claiming compensation of Rs. 2 Lakhs – After analyzing oral and documentary evidence available on record, Tribunal dismissed claim petition. Hence, claimants filed present appeal - 1st respondent driver stated that in his absence deceased started to drive tractor and while getting down from tractor he fell underneath tractor – 2nd respondent owner of tractor also stated same– R3 Insurance Company stated that at time of accident R1 driver, not holding a valid driving licence and therefore, there is violation of conditions of Policy - Plea of claimants is not denied by respondents in their written statements – When respondents have not denied averments made by claimants same amounts to admission and when a fact is admitted by respondents, (or defendants), there is no need to prove said fact, since admitted facts need not be proved and this is also a basic principle - Whether R1 was having a valid driving licence or not, settled legal position is that even in case of violation of conditions of policy, such as driver not having valid driving licence, Insurance Company cannot escape from its liability and only order that can be made is that Insurance Company should pay compensation to claimants and then recover same from owner of vehicle - In this case admittedly deceased aged 21 years and was earning 100/- per day as coolie - Therefore earnings of deceased have to be taken at Rs. 3000/- per month. Appropriate multiplier to be adopted for calculation of loss of earning would be "18" and by applying same total loss of earning would come to Rs. 3,24,000/-. Thus total compensation including loss of love and affection of parents and funeral expenses would come to Rs. 4,50,000/- - Claimants shall be entitled to said amount as compensation – Impugned order of Tribunal is set aside – Appeal allowed accordingly. Parasagani Venkaiah Vs. Pandi Prasad 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 417

—Secs.166 & 177 - MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1939, Sec.110-B - A.P MOTOR VEHICLES ACT RULES, 1989, Rule 2 (g) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.2(11) - "Legal representative" - Dependent - Deceased aged 55 years died in motor accident while going on his Luna - Sister of deceased, loan surviving legal representative filed petition for compensation - Tribunal dismissed O.P holding that married sister of deceased cannot be considered a dependent legal heir - Though married daughter, unmarried daughter, married sister and unmarried sister, brother, nephew all come in category of legal representatives, all of them would not be entitled to a share in compensation awarded under Act - Definition of legal representative, in Sec.2(g) of Rules read with Sec.2(11) CPC does not make any difference in interpretation of term legal "representative" for purpose of 1988 Act - Order of tribunal justified - CMA, dismissed. Seshapu Ramulamma Vs. Doppalapudi Raju 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 209 = 2009(2) ALD 823 = 2009(2) ALT 436 = 2009(1) APLJ 256.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.166-(1) and (4), 158(6) and 168 – Tribunal/Court can award compen-sation under M.V.Act over and above amount claimed by claimants though subject to payment of Court fee - Only embargo is it should be just compensation, that is to say, it should be neither arbitrary, fanciful nor unjustifiable from evidence - Question referred to Larger Bench answered in affirmative - Order accordingly. Adam Indur Muttemma Niamabad District Vs. Rathod Reddia, Nizamabad 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 582 = 2015(4) ALD 585 = 2015(4) ALT 775 = AIR 2015 HYDERABAD 117.

—Sec.167 - "Motor accident" - "Vicarious liability" - Deceased aged 61 years working at Nigeria, getting monthly salary of Rs.1,71,000/-, while proceeding in Car from Air port, zeep came in opposite direction driven by driver of 1st respondent in rash and negligent manner caused accident resulting death of deceased - Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs. 13,45,000/- holding that 1st respondent being, master is vicariously liable for acts of its driver and therefore 1st respondent is liable to pay compensation to claimants - Appellant contends that claimants have to prove that accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of driver of zeep and that negligence is foundation to claim compensation and that there is no proof of rash and negligent driving by driver of zeep and that maxim res ipsa loquitur not applicable and in absence of proof of rash and negligent driving, claimants cannot claim compensation and that driver had taken zeep out of office for his own use and that he was not on official duty and vehicle was not used for official purpose and therefore principle that master is vicariously liable for acts of servant not applicable - Mere averments that deceased was working in Nigeria or earning huge salary is not sufficient to prove income of deceased - As seen from contents of documents filed by claimants, there is no allegation against driver of zeep that he was using vehicle unauthorisedly - Circumstances that zeep was taken from office premises and that keys were with driver of zeep compel to draw presumption that driver was acting as per directions of master - Controlling Officers are not expected to keep keys with driver during holidays - No evidence in this case to say that driver of vehicle had used zeep for his personal pursuit - No documentary evidence in this case to show income of deceased and no documents have been filed to show educational qualifications or certificates of experience of deceased - Considering salary earned by deceased in 1980 it may be just and reasonable to take his salary at Rs.15,000 per month at time of accident and that loss of dependency comes to Rs.10,000 per month - Claimants are entitled to total compensation of Rs.8,75,000/- - Appeal, partly allowed and cross-objections are dismissed. M.D., Hyderabad Metropolitan Water Supply Vs. A.Saraswathi 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 256.

—Sec.168 - "Motor accident" - Deceased 1 & 2 aged 21 years studying B.E. Computers while proceeding on motor cycle on holiday trip, tourist bus came in rash and negligent manner dashed against motor cycle causing death of deceased - Tribunal came to conclusion that accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of bus driver and awarded compensation of Rs.3.5 lakhs to claimants in each O.P as against claim of 15 lakhs, after applying multiplier '13' - Appellants/claimants contend that both deceased were final year students of B.E. Computer course and that Tribunal ought to have taken multiplier '15' and ought to have taken minimum income of both deceased at Rs.15,000/- p.m and that therefore order of Tribunal cannot be sustained and liable to be modified by awarding Rs.15 laksh compensation to claimants in each O.P - Insurance Company contends that Tribunal awarded reasonable compensation and there is no need to enhance compensation and that in view of future uncertainties, income of Software Engineers cannot be taken as basis for determining compensation - In this case it is most unfortunate that both claimants have lost their only sons shattering all their future hopes and their only hope would be that when they become old, weak and sick, children would lookafter them and provide basic needs - JUST COMPENSATION - U/Sec.168 of M.V Act, Tribunal is duty bound to act in a realistic manner sitting in arms chair - Therefore awarding just and reasonable compensation is neither charity nor out of sympathy - Claimants, as a matter of right are entitled for just and reasonable compensation - Courts have to do substantial justice and technicalities and procedural law should not defeat main object of rendering justice - As far as students, who are about to complete their course, are concerned , it is very difficult to determine income - Guess work becomes inevitable - But even for guess work some rationale has to be followed - Every conclusion must be based on sound reasoning and established legal principles - In this case, that minimum income of B.E., Graduate can be fixed at Rs.12,000/- p.m - Since both deceased were bachelors, 50% of income has to be deducted towards their personal expenses and therefore loss of contribution to dependents comes to Rs.6,000/- p.m. and Rs.72,000/- per annum and after applying relevant multiplier '15', total compensation comes to Rs.10,80,000 - Claimants in each O.P are awarded a sum of Rs.10,80,000 - Appeals, allowed. B.Ramulamma Vs. M/s. Venkatesh Bus Union 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 173 = 2009(6) ALD 684 = 2009(5) ALT 784.

—Sec.168 - "Enhancement of compensation" - Deceased aged 19 years, getting salary of Rs.6000/- per month while travelling in jeep died in accident due to rash and negligent driving of driver - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.1,72,000 to claimants/parents aged 56 & 55 - High Court enhanced amount of compensation from Rs.1.72 lakh to Rs.3.39 lakhs - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that in case where an unmaried young man dies, average age of parents will be taken for determining multiplier and not age of deceased - In this case, Tribunal by taking average age of parents who are 55 and 56 years of age rightfully applied multiplier of 8 - Award passed by Tribunal restored, - Appeal allowed. National Insurance Co. Ltd.Vs. Shyam Singh 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

—Sec.168 - "Concept of just compensation" - Stated - "Whether compensation in Motor vehicle accident case is payable to a claimant for both heads, viz., loss of earning/earning capacity as well as permanent disability" - In this case, due to sudden movement of bus, appellant/claimantt aged 45 years, proprietor of Furniture Mart, while travelling in bus, fell down and rear wheel of bus rammed over on his right leg and sustained severe injuries on his head right hand and neck - After treatment his right leg below knee was imputed - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.9,42,822 by applying multiplier 13 - High Court reduced compensation to Rs.6,72,822 - In matters of determination of compensation, particularly, under M.V Act, both Tribunals and High Court are statutorily charged with responsibility of fixing a "just compensation" - It is true that determination of "just compensation" cannot be equated to a bonanza, on other hand concept of "just compensation" suggests Application of fair and equitable principles and a reasonable approach on part of Tribunal and Courts - Determination of quantum in motor accidents cases and compensation under Workmens Compensation Act, must be liberal since law values life and limb in free country in generous scalses - While computing compensation, approach of Tribunal or Court has to be broad based and some times it would involve some guess work as there cannot be any precise formula to determine quantum of compensation - High Court has committed error in setting aside award amount of Rs1 lakh under head "permanent disability" on ground that substantial amount had been fixed under head "loss of earning" and loss of earning capacity - Appellant is entitled to additional compensation of Rs.1.8 lakhs and total compensation of Rs.8,52,822 - Appeals filed by claimant, appellant allowed in part. S.Manickam Vs. Metropolitan Transport Corpn. Ltd. 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 161 = 2013(5) ALD 116 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 4337 = AIR 2013 SC 2629.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs. 168 r/w 149 - Appeal filed against dismissal of claim by Tribunal - Accident occurred on 28-05-2004 and it was reported by mother of deceased on 5-6-2004 with a delay of 7 days - Important document is Ex-A.13, which is the referral card of Government hospital, Mahabubnagar, wherein it was mentioned that deceased was admitted of history of road traffic accident which was on 28-5-2004 but there was nothing to speak which vehicle involved in accident and at whose fault the accident occurred - Police registered a case based on the report given by the mother of the deceased - After investigation police filed Ex-A.4 charge sheet concluding that accident was the result of rash and negligent driving of the driver of the auto of first respondent - P.W. 2, being an eye witness to occurrence and one of passengers in auto has not reported occurrence immediately to police - Held, though PW-2's evidence is not independent, but serves as a piece of corroboration to substantiate recorded evidence within factual matrix to say that deceased sustained injuries while travelling in auto of first respondent on fateful day i.e., on 28-05-2004 - Instead of so appreciating, the trial court went beyond in saying that conduct of P.W. 2 is highly improbable to believe and his evidence thereby is totally incorrect and accordingly rejected his evidence - That is not way for appreciation of evidence, more particularly, in road traffic accident claims - R.W.1, an employee of second respondent/insurance company, would not speak anything more but delay in reporting Ex-A.1 FIR - Thereby, his evidence is no way of much credence to belie evidence on record proved by preponderance of probabilities of accident and involvement of crime vehicle of first respondent, deceased died while travelling in crime auto, due to the rash and negligent driving of said auto - Appeal allowed - Appellants/Claiments are entittled to Compensation of Rs.3 lacs. N.Narasimhulu Vs. G.Srinivasulu 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 404.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs.168 & 170(b) - "Motor accident" - Appellant while driving Maruti Car, Truck came from opposite direction hit Car causing accident which resulted in instantaneous death of appellant's mother and appellant received grievous injuries to her body and that grievous injuries sustained by appellant on right side of her face which left permanent scars and caused disfiguration of face other parts of body including her leg - Consequently appellant underwent number of surgeries due to grievous injuries sustained by her and suffered 30% permanent disability - MAC Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.23,51,726/- both under heads of pecuniary and nonpecuniary damages holding that accident took place on account of rash and negligent driving of Truck by its driver - On Appeal of Insurance Company High Court reduced compensation to Rs.14 lakhs - Appellant/claimant contends that High Court has exceeds its jurisdiction in interfering with finding of fact record by Tribunal with regard to award of pecuniary damages towards medical expenses without proper appreciation of pleadings and evidence on record and has considerably reduced amount under heading of pecuniary damages from Rs.17.51,726/- to Rs.7,77,000/- and same is not only erroneous, but also suffers from error in law and therefore appellant prayed for setting aside same and award just and reasonable compensation in favour of appellant both under heads of pecuniary and nonpecuniary damages by applying law laid down by Supreme Court - Appellant further contends that High Court not justified in not enhancing nonpecuniary compensation though sufficient evidence was brought on record by appellant before MACT to show that she was a celebrity in sphere of modeling and acting who had a bright future ahead of her which was doomed by accident which resulted in number of surgeries conducted on her body and that opportunity for appellant to act in movies and T.V. serials is lost by her on account of grievous injuries sustained by her.

BODILY INJURY CASES - While assessing compensation, in bodily injury cases, Courts and Tribunals should take into account all relevant circumstances, evidence, legal principles, governing quantification of compensation - There should be realization on part of Tribunals and Courts that possession of one's own body is first and most valuable of all human rights, and that all possession and ownership are extensions of this primary right, while awarding compensation for bodily injuries and that bodily injury is to be treated as a deprivation which entitles a claimant to damages and amount of damages varies according to gravity of injuries.

CONCEPTS OF PECUNIARY AND NONPECUNIARY DAMAGES - In order to appreciate two concepts pecuniary damages may include expenses incurred by claimant; i) medical attendance, ii) loss of earning profit upto date of trial iii) Other material loss - So far non pecuniary damages are concerned, they may include i) damages for mental and physical shock , pain, suffering, already suffered or likely to be suffered in future ii) damages to compensate for loss of amenities of life which may include a variety of matters i.e., on account of injury claimant may not be able to walk, run or sit iii) damages for loss of expectation of life, i.e., on account of injury normal longevity of person concerned is shortened; iv) inconvenience, hardship, discomfort, disappointment, frustration and mental stress in life - In light of facts of case and keeping in view evidence on record that appellant is a film actress and also taking in to consideration that in film world of this country heroine will certainly get substantial sum for acting in films, T.V. Serials, modeling, it would be just and proper to take 50% of her annual income for purpose of compensation of her future loss of income keeping in view that through out her life she may not been in a position to act in film, albums and modeling - Her annual income is assessed at Rs.5 lakhs, 50% of which is 2.5 lakhs per annum which is multiplied by 17 as proper multiplier considering her age at time of accident by applying legal principle laid down by Apex Court - Hence, compensation under this head enhanced from Rs. 2 lakhs to Rs.42,50,000/- - Compensation for loss of amenities, pleasure of life and her inability to attend social functions in future enhanced to Rs.10 lakhs from Rs.2 laksh - Pain and suffering enhance to Rs.9 lakhs from Rs.1 lakhs - Tribunal awarded Rs. 17,15,726 towards medical expenses based on legal evidence and therefore compensation awarded by Tribunal affirmed - Thus total compensation enhanced to Rs.79,66,000/- making observations that MAC Tribunals and appellate Courts should keep in view rights of claimants under provisions of M.V Act to determine compensation claims of claimants by considering facts of each case and legal position laid down by Supreme Court on relevant aspects and accordingly appeals of Appellant, allowed. Rekha Jain Vs. National Insurance Co., Ltd, 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 11 = 2013(6) ALD 35 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 4597 = AIR 2013 SC 3429.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.168 & 173 - "Motor accident" - Petitioner/claimant aged about 20 years selected and commissioned as Fighter Pilot in Indian Air Force, while proceeding in Auto rickshaw, hit by a car resulting in serious injury to his spinal card and became totally unfit to discharge functions of Pilot and accordingly he was discontinued from service - Appellant/claimant contends that accident occurred on account of rash and negligent driving on part of driver of car bearing No.3737 and that his entire future is shattered and therefore claimed sum of Rs.20 lakhs as compensation under different heads - Tribunal dismissed O.P holding that involvement of vehicle bearing no. 3737 is doubtful - Hence, present Appeal - Appellant/claimant contends that order passed by Tribunal is totally perverse and totally negative approach was exhibited in entire proceedings and that Tribunal lost sight of fact that claim was made by appellant under a Social Security Measure and on account of negative approach appellant denied benefit under M.V Act - 3rd respondent/Insurance Company contends that perusal of F.I.R and other related documents filed in proceedings clearly demonstrate that accident occurred on account of rash and negligent driving by driver of another car no.3736 and just to ensure that claim is made against insurance Company, vehicle bearing no.3737 was brought into picture and that Tribunal has analyzed oral and documentary evidence carefully and arrived at just and proper conclusion - In this case, since occurrence of accident not disputed, but involvement of vehicle was doubted by 3rd respondent/ Insurance Company, heavy duty rested upon them to prove that contention - Evidently, it is mostly belief and assumption of 3rd respondent/Insurance Company than a confirmed fact and it is obligatory on part of Insurance Company to prove facts pleaded by them and they did not choose to examine even a single witness and that Tribunal ought to have drawn inference that plea taken by them is not proved and accepted version of appellant - In this case, Presiding Officer of Tribunal has exhibited his defective tendencies and paved way for examinatin of as many as seven persons as Court witnesses and he lost sight of fact that what was before him was a petition filed under Social Security scheme formulatged by Parliament and findings are to be a recorded only on basis of probabilities - This is a rare case, in which Residing Officer of Motor Accident Claims Tribunal has gone to extent of disbelieving statement of owner of vehicle that it was involved in accident, even after driver of vehicle was convicted in criminal case - Curious part of it is that material used by Presiding Officer to discredit conviction handed out by a Court, is statement recorded u/Sec.162 Cr.P.C by Inspector of Police - Once it is proved that appellant suffered injuries in accident to extent of his being declared unfit to hold post of Piolit, he is certainly entitled to be paid compensation - At time of accident, appellant was aged 20 years drawing salary of Rs.3,046/- p.m and his annual income would be Rs.36,552/- and appropriate multiplier for a person of 20 years of age is “18” - Thus loss of earning would be 6,57,936/- and that increase towards future prospectus to extent of 30% must be allowed, in case of salaried persons whether public or private employment - On this count a further sum of Rs.2 lakhs deserves to be added and accordingly loss of earning comes to Rs.8,57,936/- - In this case, appellant has become unfit even to walk on his own accord and his confined to a wheel chair - Taking into account amount spent on treatment, extra nourishment and medical assistance that he needs for rest of life and pain and suffering he has undergone at time of accident it is appropriate to award a sum of Rs.10 lakhs on all counts - Hence, appellant is entitled to be paid a total sum of Rs.18 lakhs as compensation - Impugned order of Tribunal, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Bolleddu Anil Raj Vs. P.Sambasiva Rao 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 214 = 2014(1)ALD 541.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Secs. 169(3) & 168 - Tribunal granted compensation of Rs.8000/- to injured as against claim of Rs.50,000/- towards four simple injuries and one grievous injury - Appellant/injured contends that compensation granted is very low and requires enhancement for awarding just and reasonable compensation - If Tribunal is satisfied from evidence of injured and also from contents of injury certificate that injured sustained simple or grievous injuries as case may be can even in absence of evidence of Doctor, grant compensation to injuries mentioned in injury certificate - There is no legal impediment for Tribunal to award compensation basing on evidence of injured claimant and by perusing contents of injury certificate - In this case, Tribunal erred in holding that in absence of X-ray report injury no.2 cannot be considered to be grievous even though it is mentioned by Doctor who is issued injury certificate that said injury is grievous injury - Strict rules of Evidence Act have no application to proceedings under M.V Act - Tribunal under Act is empowered by legislature to evolve its own summary procedure for adjudicating compensation claims - In this case, respondents allowed injury certificate of appellant/claimant to be admitted in evidence and marked as Ex.A-2 on his behalf without any protest as to its genuineness or authenticity - Tribunal ought to have considered nature of injuries mentioned in injury certificate - In all, claimant is entitled to compensation of Rs.34,000 - Enhanced compensation shall carry interest from date of petition till date of realization - Appeal is allowed in part. Pullemla Krishnaiah Vs. Chirtala Anjaneyulu 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 150 = 2011(3) ALD 485.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.170 - "Motor accident" - Accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of driver - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.59,500/- for simple and grievous injuries and towards laprotomy surgery and loss of income etc - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that no reliance can be placed on any medical record placed by injured in absence of examining Doctor who issued said records - In case of wound certificate issued by a Govt. Hospital or a Govt. general Hospital it is only extract of accident Register maintained by Govt Hospital in causality Department - In this case, attested copy of wound certificate has issued by Govt., Hospital and it was marked without any objection during evidence of injured before lower Tribunal - Injured sustained five simple injuries and one grievous injury to abdomen - Hence injured is entitled for reimbursement of amount covered by medical bills - In absence of proof of laprotomy surgery, injured is not entitled for any compensation amount for undergoing said surgery - Hence compensation altered from Rs.59,500 to Rs.28,266 - Appeal, partly allowed. National Insurance Co., Ltd., Vs. Ahmed Ali @ Mohd. Ali, 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 148 = 2011(2) ALD 806.

—Secs. 170, 149(2) & 158 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.304-A & 337 - "Motor Accident" - Deceased working as Electrician and drawing monthly salary of Rs.7,885/- while going on bike as pillion rider, accident occurred as accused-driver drove tractor in rash and negligent manner and dashed against bike - Deceased died while undergoing treatment - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.5,74,000/- to claimants of deceased - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that Tractor and Trailer in question was not at all involved in accident and it is duty of Police conce-rned to forward relevant documents to insurer concerned within 30 days from date of information, which is mandatory, but Police failed to do so - In this case, in complaint, complainant never stated about involvement of vehicle in question or about rash and negligent driving of tractor by its driver - Involvement of Tractor is not indicated not only in complaint, but also in inquest report and scene of offence panchanama - Contrary to contents of FIR Investigating Officer narrated distract version in charge-sheet - Charge-sheet was filed against accused who is not at all named in charge sheet stating that accused is absconding and that number of Tractor was handwritten - In this case, compliant was given immediately after accident and inquest panchanama, scene of offence panchanama and postmortem report were conducted immediately on date of complaint, but no where involvement of Tractor in question was stated by any of witnesses including eye witness to accident - Charge-sheet filed by S.I of Police concerned contrary to records, in collusion with owner of tractor with an intention to illegally help claimants for obtaining compensation - Tribunal did not appreciate evidence properly and erroneously came to conclusion that tractor and trailer involved in said accident - Order of Tribunal, set aside - Appeal, allowed. United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. G.Mallaiah 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 115.

—Secs.170,173(1), 168 & 169 - A.P. MOTOR VEHICLES RULES, 1989, Rule 473 - ARBITRATION ACT, Sec.41 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rule 22 - Motor accident - Deceased died in road accident Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.7.6 lakhs - Insurance Company filed Appeal and claimants filed cross-objections questioning quantum of compensation - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that since appellants/ claimants did not seek and obtain permission from Tribunal at appropriate stage u/ Sec.170 of M.V. Act, appeal is liable to be dismissed as not maintainable - It is also contended that no cross-objections are maintainable in an appeal of this nature and that in any event when appeal itself is not maintainable, cross-objections filed therein will not survive for consideration - As per Sec.41(a) of Arbitration Act, 1940, provisions of CPC are applicable to all proceedings before Court and to all appeals under that enactment - Sec.173(1) of M.V Act, appeal lies to High Court on award of Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal - Sec.173 of Act is silent with regard to procedure applicable to an Appeal before High Court preferred by aggrieved person thereunder - Neither Act nor A.P Motor Vehicle Rules 1989, prescribes any special procedure to be followed in appeals before High Court.

Cross-objections filed under Or.41, Rule 22 CPC are maintainable in an Appeal filed u/Sec.173 of Act and that even though such appeal is not maintainable for any reason, cross- objections filed therein survive independently and have to be decided by High Court on merits independently - It follows that cross objections filed by claimants herein are liable to be disposed of on merits independent of maintainability or otherwise of Appeal - In this case, finding of lower Tribunal on quantum of compensation cannot be disturbed because appeal filed by Insurance Company is not maintainable - Since main Appeal is not maintainable in law, quantum of compensation awarded by lower Tribunal cannot be disturbed - Appeal as well as cross-objection are dismissed. New India Assurance Co., Ltd. Vs. Mohammed Ahmedunnisa 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 11.

—Sec.173 – Motor accident – Tribunal awarding compensation to claimant – Appellant/ Insurance Company claiming exoneration on ground of violation of Policy conditions contending that driving license of driver of offending vehicle not in force on date of accident – High Court dismissing appeal holding that at time of accident driver was competent to drive vehicle and that merely there was a gap in renewal of driving license that cannot be a ground for exoneration – Insurance Company would have no liability in case of this nature – Impugned order of High Court, set aside – Appeal, allowed – Claimant is at liberty to recover amount from R2. National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Vidhyadhar Mahariwala 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 146.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.173 - "Motor accident" - Deceased, while travelling in jeep sustained grievous injuries in accident due to rash and negligent driving of driver of jeep and succumbed to injuries next day - Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.3,37,000 as against claim of Rs.5 lakhs - Appellant/Insurance Company contends that Tribunal ought to have fastened liability of appellant since policy is an Act policy and deceased was a passenger on hire at time of accident and therefore it does not cover insured in respect of passengers, who travelled in jeep on hire basis - Tribunal has clearly and categorically held that appellant/insurer did not adduce any evidence to show that jeep was used to transport passengers on hire/reward basis and that mere alleging that terms and conditions of insurance policy are violated is not sufficient without adducing any authentic proof - If a private vehicle is allow to carry persons other than owner or driver, as per conditions of registration, all such persons come within expression "third party" - Since policy in this case, covers third party risk, appellant-insurer is liable for payment of compensation as held by Tribunal - Interest reduced from 9% to 6% - Award of Tribunal in all other aspects shall remain unaltered - Appeal, allowed in part. United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Ahmadi Begum 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 37 = 2011(2) ALD 14 = 2011(2) ALT 401.

—Sec. 173- Either as a owner of the goods or as a third party, risk of deceased is covered under terms of Policy and Insurance Company cannot escape its liability - Hence, appeal by Insurance Company was dismissed and award of Tribunal upheld. National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Zuleka Begum 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 87.

—Sec.173 - The question would be whether the deceased can be treated as a third party when the death of the deceased did not occur while he was travelling in the tractor and as the accident took place while he was trying to board the trolley. In view of the judgments referred to above (Branch Manager, Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Limited v. Kumari Podha 2014 (1) An. W.R. 285 (Ori.), Divisional Manager, Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. V. Minka Munda and two others 2009 (ii) OLR 982, New India Insurance Company v. Darshana Devi and others 2008 ACJ 1388, the deceased has to be treated as a third party and since the insurance policy was in force at the time of the accident, this Court of the view that the order of the Tribunal in directing the insurance company to pay the amount and recover the same from the owner of the vehicle warrants no interference, and the appeal is liable to be dismissed - Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed confirming the award passed on the

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

file of the Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal-cum-IV Additional District Judge (FTC). New India Assurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Voggani Chinna Venkataiah 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 315

—Sec.173 - Claimants preferred present appeal u/Sec. 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act against grant of inadequate compensation in M.V.O.P. No. 221 of 2005 on the file of Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal which awarded Rs. 42,000/- on death of a railway employee - Held, since deceased was aged about 48 years having fixed income, 30% of actual salary should be added to the actual income of the deceased for the purpose of calculating the loss of dependency in view of the judgments of the Apex Court in various judgments - If the income of the deceased is taken at Rs. 6535/- and when 30% of it is added to the income, the monthly income would come to Rs. 8495/-(Rs.6535/- +1969/-) which is rounded of to Rs. 8,500/- - Though claimants are 4 in number but since claimant No. 2 was aged about 24 years having sufficient income of his own, it would be appropriate to deduct 1/3rd of amount towards personal and living expenses of the deceased - If 1/3rd is deducted, the contribution of the deceased to the family would be Rs. 5,667/- per month. As the age of deceased was 48 years at the time of accident, Tribunal adopted multiplier '13' which needs no interference. Applying multiplier '13', the total loss of dependency would be Rs. 5,667/- x12x13= 8,84,052/- - Accordingly, appeal is allowed by enhancing the compensation from Rs.42,000/- to Rs.9,26,052/-. Meesala Nageswaramma Vs. Siva Cheederla 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 64

—Sec.173 – "MOTOR ACCIDENT" - Deceased aged 38 years, doing timber business, while proceeding on his motor cycle along with two others, offending bus being driven by its driver in a rash and negligent manner at high speed came on wrong side and dashed against Motor Cycle, died in accident - Claimants wife, minor children and parents of deceased filed petition claiming total compensation of Rs.5,00,000/- (rupees five lakhs only) – Tribunal came to conclusion that since claimants have not filed inquest report and P.M. Report and they have not assigned any reason for not filing those documents and age of deceased could not be ascertained with authentic proof and therefore claimants have failed to prove their claim - Claimants contend that Tribunal ought to have considered age of wife and age of children and other documentary evidence to determine age of deceased and that merely because inquest report and P.M., report are not filed it is not necessary to dismiss claim petition - In this case, age of deceased has been mentioned in Charge Sheet – Tribunal ought to have gone through records and read documents filed before it, Tribunal without reading documents filed before it simply came to conclusion that no documents have been filed showing age of deceased - Judicial Officers are expected to read entire evidence i.e., oral and documentary evidence before drawing any conclusion and particularly before dismissing claim petitions - Having regard to nature of business and age of deceased and circumstances no documents have been filed to show that deceased was having any agriculture, this Court consider, just and reasonable to take income of deceased at Rs. 60,000/- per annum, loss of earnings comes to Rs.45,000/- and appropriate multiplier is "16" – Thus loss of dependency comes to Rs.7,20,000/- (Rupees seven lakhs twenty thousand only) - First Claimant, wife is entitled to a sum of Rs.1,00,000/- towards loss of consortium, and minor children, claimants No. 2 & 3 are entitled to sum of Rs.1,00,000/- towards loss of care and guidance, and claimants are also entitled Rs.25,000/- towards funeral expenses and accordingly appeal allowed awarding compensation of Rs.9,45,000/-.S.Thenmai Vs. APSRTC, 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 85

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—Sec.173 - "ACCIDENT" – ENHANCEMENT OF COMPENSATION - Claimant aged 27 years, working as Salesman while, travelling on scooter as pillion rider, offending lorry came at high speed dashed against scooter from behind caused accident - Claimant sustained multiple bleeding injuries on his left leg on account of which he cannot sit and walk and he is suffering with unbearable pain while walking - Tribunal awarded total compensation of Rs. 1,26,200/- out of total claim of Rs. 3,00,000/-. Hence, claimant preferred this appeal - Claimant contends his left foot was completely damaged in accident and he was operated twice and sustained 35% permanent disability - Courts and Tribunals have to examine as to how disability sustained by a claimant affects his normal duties which he was doing prior to date of accident – A Sales-man has to move from shop to shop or from village to village during course of his job - When person is limping he cannot do any hard work, it will be difficult for such a person to work as a sales man – It appears that except doing sedentary type of job, claimant cannot do any other hard work - Thus physical disability resulting in functional disability has to be assessed having regard to nature of work being done by injured - Appropriate multiplier applicable to age of claimant is "18" and thus total loss of earning would come to Rs. 4,32,000/- and thus claimant is entitled for a total claim of Rs. 5,00,000/- including loss of enjoyment medical expenses etc. - It is settled law that irrespective of amount claimed by claimants, courts may award compensation which appears to be just and reasonable in facts and circumstances of case – Since compensation awarded is more than compensation claimed by claimant, claimant is directed to pay deficit court fee before obtaining decree – Appeal allowed accordingly. C.Prabhakar Vs. A.N.Raghava Venkatramana 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 499

—Secs.177 & 142 - "Motor accident" - Claimant/Engineer aged 32 years earning Rs.7,000/- per month while proceeding on motor cycle, bus came from opposite direction with high speed, dashed against motor cycle as a result, claimant fell down and sustained bleeding injuries and had undergone four operations in NIMS, consequently sustained permanent disability - Tribunal awarded only Rs.1.2 lakhs towards compensation as against claim of Rs.20 lakhs - Appellant/claimant contends that Tribunal failed to consider that claimant is qualified mechanical Engineer with

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

Masters Degree and also failed to consider medical bills submitted by claimant - Insurance Company contends that claimant has not sustained any fracture, therefore he has not sustained any permanent disability - In this case, claimant is a mechanical engineer and restriction in movement of leg, particularly at ankle may not result in total loss of earning capacity and physical disability sustained by claimant may not cause total loss of earnings - Therefore, functional disability for purpose of assessing loss of income can be reasonably assessed at 5% - Therefore, appropriate multiplier would be "16" - There is no evidence to show that claimant took treatment in a Nursing Home and therefore there is no need to disturb findings of Tribunal as far as awarding of medical expenses is concerned - Considering prolonged period of treatment, compensation enhanced to Rs.2.06 lakhs - Appeal allowed in part. C.N.Somasekhar Reddy Vs. I.D.L.,Chemicals Ltd., 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 96.

—Sec.181 & 163-A, Second Schedule - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.304-A - "Motor accident" - Deceased, plumber aged 39 years died in motor accident - Tribunal having specifically held that claimants are entitled for compensation of Rs.4,06,000, restricted to Rs.3 lakhs which was actually claimed in claim petition - Claimants contend that restri-ction of compensation amount is not in accordance with law - Insurance Company challenges both quantum and their liability to pay compensation - In this case, contention of Insurance Company is that driver of offending vehicle charge-sheeted for offence u/Sec.304-A IPC and also u/Sec.181 of M.V Act for causing death by rash and negligent driving of vehicle - Magistrate took case on file u/Sec.304-A only and no cognizance was taken u/Sec.181 of M.V. Act - It is incumbent on part of Insurance Company to adduce required evidence in proof of fact that driver had no valid driving licence - Insurance Company did not even take steps either to examine owner of vehicle or its driver and also it has to further establish that owner of vehicle either wilfully allowed driver who was not duly licenced to drive such vehicle or that he failed to exercise reasonable care, otherwise Insurance Company cannot disown its liability on ground of breach of terms of Policy - JUST COMPENSATION - It is for Tribunal to determine just compensation from evidence which is brought on record - If evidence on record justifies passing of award for more than amount actually claimed, claim cannot be rejected solely on ground that claimant has restricted his claim and it can be permitted at appellate stage also - Claimants are entitled for compensation of Rs.4,25,000/- which is just and reasonable - Enhancement would be Rs.1,25,000 and first claimant, widow of deceased shall be exclusively entitled for enhanced compensation - M.A.C.M.A filed by claimants allowed - M.A.C.M.A filed by Insurance Company, dismissed. D.Krishnaveni Vs. Mohd.Sikander 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 235.

—Sec.207 - A.P. MOTOR VEHICLES RULES, 1989, Rules, 488-B and 192 - 2nd respondent/Motor Vehicle Inspector seized petitioner's vehicle while returning with his family members from Tirupathi, stating that number punched on chassis of vehicle appears to have been tampered - Pursuant to directions of High Court first respondent issued show cause notice basing on report submitted by 3rd respondent Dy. Transport Commissioner after receiving explanation submitted by petitioner cancelled registration of vehicle - Hence present writ petition filed challenging order of cancellation - 1st respondent/Dy. Transport Commissioner filed counter stating that various steps taken place from the seizure of vehicle till impugned order are passed and writ petition not maintainable on ground that alternative remedy of appeal is available to petitioner - Petitioner contends that 1st respondent did not inspect vehicle physically not verified original records and passed impugned order, just to exhibit her vindictiveness,on account of filing of writ petition seeking reliefs and further submits that all three respondents have acted in tandem and flouted all norms of discharge of powers conferred upon them under M.V., Act and Rules made thereunder - G.P for Transport submits that number on chassis of vehicle of petitioner was suspected to have been tampered and accordingly seizure was affected and that according to Rule 192, chassis must contain particulars not only of serial number but also month and year of manufacture and that same have not been found on vehicle of petitioner and that petitioner did not avail remedy of appeal - In this case, petitioner produced all documents pertaining to vehicle and no infirmity was found therein - Since only ground of seizure was discrepancy as to number 1st respondent could have ordered release, even while continuing step for verification - She exhibited her authoritarianism and has chosen to call for report of respondent no.3 and when petitioner approached Court complaining about non-disposal of application, direction was issued to respondent no.1 to conclude proceeding within stipulated time - A reasonable person in place of 2nd respondent/ Flaying Squad would have referred matter to registering Authority for further verification but he acted in an arbitrary, capricious and unlawful manner by seizing vehicle just on suspicion, that too, with reference to matter upon which petitioner has no control - In this case, petitioner and his family members were put to untold hardship and huge financial loss on account of arbitrary and illegal action of respondents - Plea of alternative remedy cannot be accepted as petitioner has already been shown taste of remedies from Ceaser to Ceaser and there is no point in subjecting him to another round of humiliation and depravity - Petitioner shall be paid Rs.35,000/- towards loss sustained by him - Vehicle shall be released forthwith. G.Srinivas Goud Vs. The Dy.Transport Commissioner, Nizamabad 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 93 = 2013(2) ALD 566 = 2013(4) ALT 221.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—and CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.227 - Motor accident - Legal Representatives of deceased filed claim petition - Tribunal awarded compensation fixing primary liability on driver and owner of bus holding that driver of bus not possessing valid driving licence and that amount may be recovered from driver and owner - Pursuant to directions, appellant/Insurance Company made payments by depositing amount by cheque - E.P filed by Insurance Company for recovery of amount - 4th respondent/owner of bus contends that civil suit is required to be filed for recovery of amount - Executing Court dismissed E.P - High Court dismissed Application filed under Art.227 of Constitution - Whenever a direction has been issued by Tribunal, it must be held to have been done in exercise of its inherent power - It would be travesty of justice, if Insurance Company which is directed to pay amount and then face immense difficulties in executing decree - Impugned judgment, set aside - Appeals, allowed. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Kusum 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 71.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988:

—and MOTOR VEHICLES RULES, 1989, Rules 100 & 100(2) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.21 & 32 - PUBLIC INTEREST LITIGATION (PIL) Visual Light Transmission (VLT) - Petitioner seeking issuance of a writ or directions requiring use of such safety glasss on windows/window shields in vehicels having 100% VLT and for prohibition on use of block filims on glasses of vehicles - Court cannot issue directions that vehicles should have glasses with 100% VLT - Rule 100 of Rules is a valid piece of legislation and is on statute book - Once such provision exists, Court cannot issue directions contrary to provisions of law - Use of blok films or any other material upon safety glass, windows screen and side windows is impermissible - In terms Rule 100(2), 70% and 50% VLT standard are relatable to manufacture of safety glasses for windshields (front and rear) and side windows respectively - Use of films or any other material upon a window screen or side windows is impermissible in law - It is VLT of safety glass with any additional material being pasted upon safety glasses which must confirm with manufacture specifications - Court prohibit use of block films of any VLT percentage or any other material upon safety glass windscreens (front and rear) and side glasses of all vehicles throughout country - Home Secretary, Director General Commissioner of Police of respective States/centre are directed to comply with these directions. Avishek Goenka Vs. Union of India 2012(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 61 = 2012(6) ALD 80 (SC) = AIR 2012 SC 3230 = 2012 AIR SCW 4578 = 2012(3) SCC(Cri) 891 = 2012(8) SCC 441.

—and CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.226 - "Motor accident" - Deceased, while he was on his fields died due to electrocution - Petitioners/claimants filed writ petition seeking declaration that action of respondents/APEPDC in not paying compensation of Rs.10 lakhs is illegal and arbitrary - Respondents have taken specific plea that deceased on account of his negligence and that while live wire was hanging safely over branches of trees, deceased tried to remove same and in process got electrocuted and therefore it is not appropriate for High Court to render findings on these disputes while exercising jurisdiction under Art.226 of Constitution of India and that only appropriate remedy for petitioners is to file civil suit for recovery of compensation - Scheme of respondent/Corporation, irrespective of whether death has occurred on account of negligence of respondents or not, dependents of victim are entitled for ex gratia - Receipt of ex gratia amount shall be without prejudice to right of petitioners to claim of compensation before civil Court - Writ petition, dismissed. Saladi Veera Veni Vs. A.P.E.P.D.C. Ltd.Visakhapatnam 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 30.

NARCOTIC DRUGS AND PSYCHOTROPIC SUBSTANCES ACT, 1985:

MOTOR SPIRIT AND HIGH SPEED DISEL (REGULATION OF SUPPLY, DISTRIBUTION AND PREVENTION OF MALPRACTICES) ORDER, 1998:

—MARKETING DISCIPLINE GUIDELINES, 2001 - RON Test - "Adulteration" - Anti Adulteration Cell inspected petitioner's retail outlet and took samples of MS and HSD and found that RON test carried on MS did not meet specifications - 1st respondent Corporation passed order suspending sales and supply of all products by petitioner on ground of alleged adulteration by drawing adverse inference that product was adulterated at petitioner's outlet - Petitioners contend that even assuming that RON test did not meet specifications same does not amount to adulteration as defined under Cl.2(a) of Control Order 1998 and that adverse inference drawn by Corporation that product was adulterated is unsustainable since Corporation failed to draw samples as provided in Annexure-III of Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2001 and that penal proceedings against petitioner can be initiated only when it is established that there was variation in sample drawn at petitioner's retail outlet when compared to reference sample of IOC drawn from "supply location" - It is not open to Corporation to draw an adverse inference that product was adulterated merely on ground that petitioner failed to retain "tank lorry sample" - In this case, no show cause notice was issued to petitioner to impose penalty on ground that MS sample drawn from petitioner's outlet did not meet stipulated specification for RON - Impugned order imposing penalty is liable to be set aside being in violation of fundamental principles of natural justice, arbitrary and illegal - Hence, impugned order, set aside. M.Satyanarayana Murthy & Co. Vs. Indian Oil Corpn. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 84 = 2009(3) ALD 673 = 2009(2) APLJ 201 = 2009(4) ALT 420.

NARCOTIC DRUGS AND PSYCHOTROPIC SUBSTANCES ACT, 1985:

—Secs.8, 21, 41 & 42 - Trial Court convicting accused for offences u/Secs.8/21 of Act on recovery of some packets of Morphine from his pockets - High Court confirmed conviction of appellant - Provisions of NDPS Act being harsh in nature, procedural safe guards contained therein must scrupulously be complied therewith - In this case, at no point of time appellant was informed that he had a statutory right of being searched by a Gazetted Officer - Nothing has been brought on record to show that provisions of Sec.42 of NDPS Act were substantially complied with - Impugned judgment, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Sarju @ Ramu Vs. State of U.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 59 = 2009(2) ALD(Crl) 822(SC) = 2009(5) Supreme 730 = AIR 2009 SC 3214 = 2009 Cri. LJ 4123 (SC) = 2009 AIR SCW 5149.

—Secs.8(c), r/w 20 (b) and 50 - ARMS ACT, Sec.27 - Case registered against accused on ground that they are in possession of two packets of Ganja and knife - Trial Court convicting accused for offences u/Sec.8(c) of NDPS Act and u/Sec.27 of Arms Act - Appellants, accused contend that trial Court erred in placing reliance on evidence of P.Ws.1 to 3 who are all "Police witnesses" and despite non compliance of mandatory provisions u/Sec.50 of NDPS Act by Police Officials, trial Court convicted appellants

NARCOTIC DRUGS AND PSYCHOTROPIC SUBSTANCES ACT, 1985:

- Conviction can be based on testimony of Police witnesses even though no independent witnesses were examined on behalf of prosecution - If really it was not possible to secure mediators at given time, Court cannot find fault with arresting Police Officer is not securing mediators - However when there is ample opportunity for Police Officer to secure presence of mediators and fails to do so, it can be considered as a lapse on part of investigating agency - In this case, no attempt was made to secure mediators - It is quite and unsafe to place reliance on evidence of P.Ws. 1 to 3 who are police witnesses - Inordinate delay in reaching FIR to Magistrate is not at all explained by prosecution - Conviction and sentence passed by trial Court against appellant/ accused, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Tadigiri Rambabu Vs. State of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 340.

—Secs.8(c), r/w Sec.20(b)(i), 42, 50 & 57 - Sessions Judge convicted appellants for offence u/Sec.8(c) r/w Sec.20(b)(i) of Act - In this case, Inspector of Police along with his staff seized two packets of ganja from appellants/accused - Charge-sheet laid into Court for said offences - Trial Court after taking evidence adduced by prosecution and other material on record into consideration found appellants guilty of said offence u/Sec.8(c), r/w 20(b)(i) and accordingly convicted and sentenced them - Appellants contend that evidence of P.W.1 is unreliable and untrustworthy as he is a stock witness and he has admitted in his cross-examination that he had attested in not less than 50 to 60 mediators' reports in cases pertaining to that particular Police Station and that P.W.2 - Inspector of Police who is Investigating Office himself admitted that he is not Investigating Officer of case and he had only laid charge sheet and that L.W.3 who is SHO of Police Station concerned and registered crime not examined and in these circumstances it is not known who has in fact investigated case and that there is nothing in evidence of P.W.2 as to compliance of provisions u/Sec.42,50,57 of Act - In view of non-examination of SHO of Police Station concerned who registered case not examined to say as to who investigated case, it is not known as to who investigated case, and these lacunae are fatal to case of prosecution - Further there is also nothing on record to show that provisions u/Secs.42,50 & 57 of Act were followed which required an Investigating Officer to record information as to such seizure and arrest of accused and also to inform about same to immediate superior Officer - Since prescribed procedure not complied with, trial vitiated - Impugned judgment is perverse and suffers from infirmities and irregularities and as such conviction and sentence of both appellants, erroneous and liable to be set aside - Appeal, allowed. Annapureddi Sambaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 256 = 2011(2) ALD (Crl) 623 (AP) = 2011(3) ALT (Crl) 151 (AP).

—-Secs.20(b) - TELANGANA PREVENTION OF DANGEROUS ACTIVITIES OF BOOTLEGGERS, DACOITS, DRUG OFFENDERS, GOONDAS, IMMORAL TRAFFIC OFFENDERS AND LAND GRABBERS ACT, 1986, Clause (f) of Section 2 - Writ petition is filed by the mother of detenu seeking relief of Habeas Corpus under

NARCOTIC DRUGS AND PSYCHOTROPIC SUBSTANCES ACT, 1985:

Article 226 of Constitution of India to produce detenu and set him at liberty by declaring detention order illegal, arbitrary and violative of Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

Held, it appears that one and same person has written both portions - Court unable to comprehend as to why Inspector of Police or Jailor, Central Prison, Cherlapalli, as case may be, has not taken endorsement in handwriting of detenu himself, when it is mentioned in endorsement that detenu studied upto fifth class in English medium and understood grounds and order of detention explained in English and Hindi languages, which, certainly, gains greater significance in present context in judging whether constitutional safeguard has been complied with or not - Court have no hesitation to answer same in negative.

Second aspect which Court would like to point out is even taking an extreme view for argument sake, still, objection raised by detenu, stood unanswered - Reason being, endorsement as well as other portion recorded by Inspector of Police would only refer to supply of order of detention and grounds of detention, but, absolutely silent as to supply of documents or explaining purport of documents in Hindi language which constituted basis for forming an opinion that detenu was a 'drug offender' - So, that infirmity, which crept into, is carried forward and Court, therefore, find that there has been no compliance of constitutional requirement of supplying relevant material either in English language or its translated copies in Hindi language, which language is known language of detenu - For aforesaid reasons, Writ Petition is allowed by quashing order of detention. Saraswathi Bai Vs. State of Telangana 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 210 = 2016(4) ALT 640 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 976.

—Secs.24,29,37 & 67 - INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY ACT, 2000, Sec.79 - Appellant was arrested as prima facie case made out under provisions of NDPS Act - High Court and Special Judge dismissing bail Applications observing that enquiry was at critical stage and investigation was still in progress - Contention that appellant's Companies are mere network service providers and are protected u/Sec.79 of Technology Act from any prosecution - In this case, appellant and his associates were not innocent intermediaries or network service providers as defined u/sec.79 of Technology Act, but said business was only a fagade camouflage for more sinister activity - Sec.79 will not grant immunity to an accused who has violated provisions of Act as this provision gives immunity from prosecution for an offence only under Technology Act - In face of overwhelming inculpatory evidence it is not possible to give finding envisaged u/Sec.37 of Act for grant of bail that there were reasonable grounds for believing that appellant not guilty of offence alleged, or that he would not resume his activity should bail be granted - Appeal, dismissed. Sanjay Kumar Kedia Vs. Narcotics Control Bureau 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

—Sec.37 - CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCRDURE, Sec.439(2) - Respondent/A1 arrested under NDPS Act and granted bail by the learned incharge Metropolitan Judge, against which Complainant/Intelligence Officer of Narcotics Control Bureau, filed Revision u/Secs.397 and 401 of Cr.P.C on grounds that judgement of learned judge is illegal, improper and incorrect and contrary to rules of criminal jurisprudence and provisions of NDPS Act, that learned judge erred in allowing petition granting bail without following mandatory provisions of Sec.37 of NDPS Act etc., - Revision Petition was opposed not only on maintainability as a revision against order granting bail or dismissal of application for cancellation of bail but also on drawing attention of court to several minute facts of case including from panchanamas in saying there is no material to say accused is likely to be convicted from facing trial and the bar u/Sec.37(1)(b) of NDPS Act has no application and Sessions Judge was right in granting bail and order no way requires interference much less to cancel by sitting against by this court even from prayer to cancel or set aside bail order - Held, even as revision filed impugning bail order or cancellation order, same shall be disposed of by converting or treating as an application for cancellation u/Sec.439 Cr.P.C. - It is also for this reason that it is not form or provision but substance that is criteria and procedural law is handmaid but not mistress of justice and Court is no way prevented from wrong provision to treat with correct provision if there is substance in the application of correct provision in matter on record - Even bail cancellation application before Court of Sessions dismissed again filing application for cancellation of bail before High Court not barred u/Sec.439(2) Cr.P.C. apart from power of court to convert revision as application u/Sec.439(2) Cr.P.C. - Trial court is bound to follow said expressions of Apex Court and directions therein to make every endeavour to give expeditious disposal and thereby contention of respondent/A1 that there will be delay in conducting trial and bail order cannot be cancelled by invoking Sec.439(2) and Sec.482 Cr.P.C is also not tenable but for to say Courts are bound to follow guidelines for expeditious disposal - Bail order is liable to be cancelled by invoking Sec.439(2) Cr.P.C. under which provision application is originally filed and even if registry returned in directing to file as revision for its so filing even if a prayer for cancellation of bail and not a revision against even the order dismissing application for cancellation of bail, same is within inherent power of Court u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C. be taken as filed under correct provision for cancellation of bail u/Sec.439(2) Cr.P.C. - Accordingly, and in result, Criminal Revision Case is allowed by cancelling the bail granted to A1. Intelligence Officer, Narcotics Control Bureau Hyderbad Vs. Shivakumar 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 425.

NARCOTIC DRUGS AND PSYCHOTROPIC SUBSTANCES ACT, 1985:

—Sec.50 – Appellant/Accused convicted under Act - Contention that accused was not made aware of his right to be searched before Magistrate or Gazetted Officer - In this case, no evidence had been adduced to show that appellant was communicated of his right either to be searched in presence of Magistrate or a Gazetted Officer on one hand and by an empowered Officer on other and there had been even no substantial compliance of Sec.50 of NDPS Act – Impugned judgment of conviction, set aside – Appeal, allowed. Man Bahadur Vs. State of H.P. 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 150 = 2008(2) ALD (Crl.) 781 (SC) = 2008(7) Supreme 80.

—Secs.50,41(1), 42(2)&21 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.313 - Police recovered three polythene packets from left side packet of accused containing powder of light brown colour, suspected to be smack - As per report of CFSL, sample gave positive test for heroin - Charge-sheet filed against accused for committing offence u/Sec.21 of Act - SEC.50 - SCOPE AND AMBIT - Discussed - This provision is mandatory and implicitly make it obligatory on authorized Officer to inform person to be searched of his right - This provision which afford minimum safeguard to accused, provide that in a search is about to be made of person u/Sec.41,42 or 43 of Act , and if person so requires then said person has to be taken to nearest Gazetted Officer of any Department mentioned in Sec.42 of Act or nearest Magistrate - Merely asking accused whether he wished to be searched before Gazetted Officer or Magistrate, without informing him that he enjoyed a right under law in this behalf, would not satisfy requirement of Sec,50 of Act - Search u/Sec.41(1) of Act would not attract compliance to provisions of Sec.50 of Act - Since compliance is imperative substantial compliance is not sufficient - Accused had a right to be informed of choice available to him making him aware of existence of such a right was in a obligation on part of searching Officer - This duty cast upon Officer is imperative and failure to provide such an option in accordance with provisions of Act, would render recovery of contraband or illicit substance, illegal - Satisfaction of requirements in terms of Sec.50 of Act is sine qua non prior to prosecution for possession of Narcotic substance - Once recovery itself is found to be illegal, being in violation to provisions of Sec.50 of Act, it cannot on basis of statement of Police Officers or even independent witnesses, form foundation for conviction of accused u/Sec.21 of Act - In no event illegal recovery can be foundation of a successful conviction under provisions of Sec.21 of Act - Appeal, dismissed. State of Delhi Vs. Ram Avtar @ Rama 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 71.

NATIONAL HIGHWAYS ACT, 1956:

NATIONAL HIGHWAYS ACT, 1956:

—Secs.3(g)(5) (1) (2) - Respondents issued Notification to acquire land belonging to petitioners in which he was operating petrol bunk from last 20 years, under provisions of N.H Act to widen National Highway - Since competent Authority did not fix compensation as per existing market value, petitioner made representation to refer matter to Arbitrator - When matter not referred to Arbitrator, petitioner filed Writ Petition and obtained directions to consider Representation of petitioner for enhancement of compensation - Petitioner contends that inspite of documentary evidence filed by him in support of his claim for higher market value for award of compensation, impugned order passed stating that commercial sale documents cannot be considered in fixing market value - Petitioner further contends that when Govt. has notified District Collector as Arbitrator to exercise powers and functions u/Sec.3(g)(5) of Act it is obligatory on his part to consider material produced by claimants in arriving at market value for purpose of fixing compensation for land acquired - It is true that remedy is provided under Act by way of appeal, in instant case, District Collector has not considered material placed by petitioner at all and simply rejected his claim by recording a finding that commercial sale documents cannot be considered for fixing land value - When commercial bit of land is acquired for purpose of road widening, it is not open to Arbitrator to reject documents placed by petitioner for purpose of assessing market value simply on ground that petitioner has produced commercial sale documents - Arbitrator, who is notified authority under Act has not considered claim of petitioner in proper perspective - Impugned award set aside with direction to consider matter afresh - Writ petition, allowed. Kommula Srinivas Vs. District Collector & Arbitrator Nizamabad 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 134 = 2013(1) ALD 176 = 2013(2) ALT 66 = AIR 2013 (NOC) 206 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—It is clear as crystal that if the person who commits an offence Under Section 138, Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, is a company, the company as well as other person in charge of or responsible to the company for the conduct of the business of the company at the time of commission of the offence is deemed to be guilty of the offence. Thus, it creates a constructive liability on the persons responsible for the conduct of the business of the company. Standard Chartered Bank Vs. State of Maharashtra 2016(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 1 = AIR 2016 SC 1750 = 2016 Cri. LJ 2362 (SC) = 2016(1) ALD (Crl) 892 (SC).

—-Application for discharge u/Sec.258 Cr.P.C. has no application in proceedings under Negotiable Instruments Act - Only remedy is to avail remedy u/Sec.482 Cr P C. Munukuntla Kasi Annapurna Vs. State of A.P. 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 466.

—Secs.3,7,138 & 142 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.177 to 179 - Territorial jurisdiction - Place of jurisdiction - Place or situs where complaint is to be filed - Complainant had no choice - Territorial jurisdiction is restricted to the Court within whose local jurisdiction offence was committed, which in the presence context is where the cheque is dishonoured by the Bank on which it is drawn. Dashrath Rupsingh Rathod Vs. State of Maharashtra, 2014(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 1 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 190 (SC) = 2014(5) ALD 1 (SC) = 2014 AIR SCW 4798 = 2014(3) SCC (Cri) 673 = 2014(9) SCC 129.

—Sec.4 - INDIAN STAMP ACT, Secs.2(5) and 2 (22) - Plaintiff filed suit for recovery of amount basing on promissory note and sought to mark instrument as Ex.A1 - Trial Court over- ruled objection raised by defendant that instrument does not constitute a promissory note and permitted plaintiff to mark the instrument - PROMISSORY NOTE - Meaning of - A close reading of definition of promissory note indicates that it must contain an unconditional undertaking signed by maker, to pay a certain sum of money only to, or to order of, a certain person, or to bearer of instrument - BOND - Defined - Principal ingredient, which makes a difference lot between bond and promissory note, is that if instrument is an unconditional undertaking to pay or to order of certain person, it is to be classified as promissory note - All ingredients stated above are required to be satisfied to classify an instrument as a promissory note - “An instrument to be promissory note, must necessarily contain the words ‘to the bearer, or to the order’ - In a way these two words, i.e., "to the bearer or the order" are to be read conjunctively and not disjunctively". M.D.Nyamathulla Vs. A.Chitharanjan Reddy 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 87 = 2008(3) ALD 303 = 2008(3) ALT 153 = AIR 2008 AP 141.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Sec.118 (a) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.100 - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit basing on pronote executed by appellant/defendant - Defendant contends that plaintiff did not pay amount under suit pronote - Trial Court dismissed suit holding that defendant successfully rebutted presumption attached to Ex.A.1, pronote - Lower appellate Court reversed decree holding that presumption u/Sec.118 N.I Act has to be drawn on Ex.A.1 and consequently suit is liable to be decreed - Appellant/defendant contends that pleadings of defendant are misappropriated by lower appellate Court and inspite of there being specific pleading by defendant that no consideration was paid on date of execution of pronote, lower appellate Court erroneously thought as if there was no pleading on part of defendant - A bare reading of Sec.118 N.I Act shows that presumption attached to passage of consideration just like other presumptions also is clearly rebuttable and it is for defendant to satisfy court that in a given case, presumption cannot be drawn in view of contra evidence on record - In view of past transactions between parties it is probable that defendant had believed plaintiff and executed pronote and later accepted to receive amount subsequently - In this case, plaintiff's evidence was recorded after defence evidence as issue framed by trial Court has put burden of proof on defendants - Plaintiff therefore was aware of evidence lead by defence but has chosen to lead only his evidence and not of any other witness or any other evidence to establish passage of consideration on date of A1 - Evidence on part of DWs.2 to 4 fully supports case of defendant and after noticing aforesaid evidence also, plaintiff in his evidence states as mentioned above that he has kept faith in D.Ws.2 to 4 - Onus of proving that no consideration passed on date of Ex.A1 was, therefore, discharged by defendant and same shifted back to plaintiff, but plaintiff has examined only himself and has not produced any oral or documentary evidence to establish passage of consideration - Trial Court rightly appreciated aforesaid aspect but lower appellate Court has ignored said evidence of D.Ws2 to 4 by giving a strange reason that they are all retired people and their evidence is artificial - Lower appellate Court therefore committed serious error in reversing well considered judgment of trial Court and findings of lower appellate Court are contrary to evidence on record and as such have to be held to be perverse and liable to be set aside - Substantial question of law, therefore is answered in favour of appellant - Judgment and decree of lower appellate Court, set aside - Second Appeal, allowed. Abbisetti Krishnamoorthy Vs. Singasani Raghuramaiah (died) 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 100 = 2011(4) ALD 106 = 2011(5) ALT 143.

—Sec.131 & 131-A - Statutory protection - Plaintiff/respondent Bank issued two non-crossed demand draft which were materially altered and deposited for collection at appellant/defendant Bank by proprietor of STC who opened account with defendant

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

Bank - It is alleged that defendant/Bank without enquiry or verification about creditworthiness or genuineness of STC or its proprietor credited amout due under materially altered DDs to account of STC and allow to withdraw cash to extent of Rs.50,000/- under cheques before realisation of said amount from plaintiff's/Bank - Plaintiff paid amount to account of defendant/Bank without knowing truth of alteration and subsequently came to know about fraud and filed complaint before Police and suit for recovery of amount - Appellant/defendant contends that as per Bank practice no detailed enquiry is required to be made about creditworthiness of customer for opening of current account and that it had acted in bona fide manner in ordinary course of business in good faith and without negligence - Trial Court decreed suit holding that defendant/Bank was guilty of negligence and accordingly liable to pay amount claimed by plaintiff - Appellant contends that trial Court erred in comming to conclusion that there was negligence on its part and in fact it is plaintiff/Bank which had been utterly negligent in processing DDs and that it has followed usual banking practice and that when a DD is received for collection they would look at amount, name, date of DD and Bank on which it was drawn and that it was not expected of Bank to make any further enquiry into genuineness of DD and that it is entitled to protection afforded to it by Sec.131 of N.I Act - Respondent/plaintiff Bank contends that statutory protection afforded by Sec.131 of Act could not be claimed by defendant Bak and that negligence of defendant Bank in opening of account and its operation clearly disentitled defendant Bank from seeking protection u/Sec.131 of N.I Act - Mere fact that plaintiff Bank contributed by its negligence to fraud and fact that defendant Bank could not have detected alteration through a simple examination does not resolve matter - U/Sec.131 protection is afforded to a Banker who acts in good faith and without negligence in instrument conversion - Unless defendant Bank is in a position to demonstrate that it acted in good faith and without negligence, it would not be absolved of liability of accounting to plaintiff/Bank for conversion of materially altered instruments - General rule is that collecting Bank would be liable under common law for conversion of an instrument devoid of title or tainted with defective title - This being general rule, exception would be protection afforded to such a Banker by Secs.131 and 131-A of Act - Such protection is conditional upon proof of good faith and absence of negligence on part of such Banker as is evident from language of Sec.131 and it is for Banker who is seeking such protection to discharge burden of proof that he acted in good faith and without negligence - In this case appellant/defendant Bank being liable for conversion of tainted DDs under general rule failed to discharge burden of proving good faith and lack of negligence so as to seek protection under provisions of Secs.131 & 131-A of Act - Proximity of opening of account, presentation of DDs and withdrawal of amounts thereunder clearly demonstrate that defendant Bank ought to have suspected bona fides of transaction and that it failed to take proper and necessary care in matter and this failure amounts to negligence and demonstrates lack of good faith on part of defendant/Bank, clearly disentitling it to protection u/Sec.131 of Act - Judgment and decree of trial Court found to be unassailable on facts and in law and are accordingly confirmed - Appeal, dismissed. Canara Bank, Nalgonda Vs. Nalgonda Co-operative Central Bank Ltd. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 299.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—-Sec.138 - Complaint u/Sec.138 of the N.I.Act filed before the expiry of fifteen days of service of notice could not be treated as a complaint in the eye of law and criminal proceedings initiated on such complaint are liable to be quashed - Second respondent filed the complaint without strictly adhering to the procedure contemplated under Sec. 138 of the Act - Mere taking cognizance of offence after expiry of 15 days time as stipulated under S. 138 (c) of the Act would not cure the legal defect of premature complaint; therefore, continuation of the proceedings against the petitioners are not legally sustainable - Accordingly Criminal Petition is allowed quashing the proceedings against the petitioners. K.Jayalalitha Vs. State of A.P. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 94 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 373 = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 12.

—Sec.138 – "Civil" and "Criminal" liability – Purchasers issued post dated cheques towards advance payment in respect of purchase orders – Said cheques got dishonored when presented on ground that purchasers stopped payment because they had cancelled purchase order – Purchasers also requested suppliers to return said cheques – Hence compliant filed against purchasers u/Sec.138 of N I Act - Magistrate took cognizance and issued summons – Revisions filed by purchasers challenging said order, allowed by Sessions Judge - High Court allowed petition of Suppliers filed against orders of Sessions Judge - In this case cheques not issued towards legally enforceable debt or liability subsisting on date of drawl for bringing offence u/Sec.138 – As such purchaser or drawee not liable - CIVIL AND CRIMINAL LIBILITY - If cheque is issued as advance payment for purchase of goods and for any reason said order is cancelled, said cheque cannot be said to have been drawn to existing debt or liability - Breach of conditions of advance payment for purchase putting seller to loss may create civil liability, but not criminal liability u/Sec.138 of NI Act – Criminal liability to be made out u/Sec.138, there should be legally enforceable debt or liability - View taken by High Court is wrong and not justified - Hence impugned order is set aside - Appeal allowed. Indus Airways Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Magnum Aviation Pvt. Ltd. 2014(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

—Sec.138 - The finding of the trial court that Accused No. 2 was sued in his individual capacity also appears to be incorrect - A perusal of the cause title would show that Accused No. 1 society was represented by its secretary, KC and the secretary was shown as Accused No. 2 - By this, it does not mean that Accused No. 2/KC was individually shown as an accused - Cheque issued in favour of the complainant also show that it was issued by Accused No. 1 and signed by Accused No. 2. Hence, prosecuting Accused No. 1 and Accused No. 2 for the loan taken by Accused No. 2 for Accused No. 1's business activity cannot be said to be incorrect - Therefore, it can be safely held that Accused No. 2/KC has issued the cheque in discharge of a legally enforceable debt - Accordingly, Criminal Appeal is allowed and the Accused No. 2 is found guilty for an offence punishable under Section 138 of N.I. Act. P.Ranga Rao Vs. Bharath Vaddera Labour Contractor 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 307

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Sec.138 - Trial court recorded that the case against Accused Nos. 1 and 2 was abated on 05-12-2006, for death of A-2 who was representing A-1 firm and after hearing both sides and after perusal of material and evidence on record, trial court held other two partners of the firm A-3 and A-4 not guilty for offence punishable under Sec.138 of the N.I.Act and accordingly they were acquitted for said offence - Impugning the said acquittal judgment, the complainant filed the present appeal contending that trial court's acquittal judgment is contrary to law, weight of evidence, probabilities of the case, etc. - Held, however, the fact remains that A-1 firm including from Ex. D-1 deed of partnership showing A-2, A-3 and others including mother of A-4 partners and not A-4, not dissolved by virtue of any clause therein from death of one of the partners, particularly A-2 and the firm is represented by other partners to continue and the firm A-1 originally arrayed, further wrongly recorded the proceedings against A-1 abated as if, though nothing to say so from Ex. B-1 partnership deed for mere death of the active partner or managing partner A-2 since A-3 continues to represent firm as one of the partners even claimed as sleeping partner apart from other partners there for case against the firm not abated, for the reason of no automatic dissolution of the firm for death of one of the partners - Thus the trial court ought to have recorded the proceedings against A-1 firm as abated, but for recording A-3 being one of the partners on record to represent A-1 firm and once, A-1 firm is there on record, though not liable for imprisonment of A-3 representing A-1 firm, the fine can be imposed to recover for not exceeding double the value of the cheque amount - In the result, while upholding the trial court's acquittal judgment of A3 and A4, however by setting aside the recording of abatement of the prosecution against A1 firm by remitting the matter to the trial court for re-trial in directing to decide afresh by arraying A3 as representing A1 firm as one of the partners. Padmavathi Cotton Traders Vs. T.V.Thangavadiveld Muruga Nadar Sons Firm 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 355

—Sec. 138- Appellant who was complainant was aggrieved by lower appellate court's acquittal judgment in Criminal Appeal reversing trial court's conviction judgment , and preferred present appeal - Held, complainant not even filed any application either before the trial court where trial completed and decided on merits, including in appeal before the lower appellate court where considering the same on merits answered the issue - Thus, for this court, while sitting in second appeal, there are no grounds to afford opportunity to the complainant to give life to the litigation for the laches of the comaplaint - As such, that proposition also cannot be considered to rescue the complainant - In result, appeal is dismissed. G.Sreeramachandrudu Vs. P.Srinivas, 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 55 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 282 = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 183.

—Sec.138 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.177, 178 & 179 - "Dishnour of cheque" - "Jurisdiction to entertain petition filed u/Sec.138 of N.I Act" - Keeping view of relevant provisions of Cr.P.C particularly Secs.177, 178 & 179 and in light of language used interpreted Sec.138 of N.I Act and laid down that Sec.138 has five components, viz., i) drawing of cheque ii) presentation of cheque to Bank iii) returning of cheque unpaid by drawee Bank iv) giving notice in writing to drawer of cheque demanding payment of cheque amount and v) failure of drawer to make payment within 15 days of receipt of notice - It is not necessary that all above five act should have been perpetrated at same locality - It is possible that each of those five acts could be done at five different localities - But concatenation of all above five is sine qua non for completion of offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - In view of Sec.178(d) of Cr.P.C if five different acts were done in five different localities any one of Courts exercising jurisdiction in one of five local areas can become place of trial for offence u/Sec.138 of Act - Complainant can choose any one of those Courts having jurisdiction over any one of local areas within territorial limits of any one of those five acts was done - In K. Bhaskaran's case Supreme Court, while considering territorial jurisdiction at great length has concluded that amplitude of territorial jurisdiction pertaining to complaint under N.I Act is very wide and expensive. Escorts Ltd Vs. Rama Mukherjee 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 151.

—Sec.138 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.200 & 482 - Petitioner is sole accused in C.C on file of Magistrate, for offence under Sec.138 of N.I. Act - Magistrate receiving sworn statement of de facto complainant and taking case on file u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Docket order shows that sworn statement of de facto complainant not recorded - Sec.200 envisages that before Magistrate takes cognizance of offence on complaint he shall examine complainant on oath - Examination of complainant is sine quo non for taking a private complaint on file - Admittedly Magistrate did not do so, but accepted sworn affidavit of de facto complainant and had taken case on file - Petitioner contends that taking case on file by Magistrate without recording sworn statement of complainant was violative of Sec.200 Cr.P.C and is unsustainable - CC on file of Magistrate against petitioner quashed on ground that sworn statement of de facto complainant had not been recorded by trial Court and as such criminal case is liable to be quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. P.Ravinder Reddy Vs. Nalamalapur Subba Reddy 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 371 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 929 (AP).

—Sec.138 – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.202, 203 & 204 – "Territorial Jurisdiction" - Appellant filed private complainant against respondent for offence punishable u/Sec.138 – Magistrate recorded evidence of appellant and perusing the documents satisfied that primafacie case has been made out and accordingly ordered to issue summons to respondents - Respondent filed application u/Sec.202, 203 & 245 of Cr.P.C., questioning maintainability of complainant due to lack of territorial Jurisdiction of Court - Magistrate allowed application filed by the respondent and recalled his previous order of issuing summons to respondents - High Court rejected petition filed by appellants u/Sec.482, concurring with view taken by Magistrate - Scheme of Cr.P.C does not provide for review of order of issuance of process and prohibits interference by accused at interlocutory stage u/Sec.203 - High Court not justified in rejecting petition filed by appellant u/Sec.482 of code – Orders of High Court and orders passed Magistrate, set aside – Magistrate is directed to restore the complainant to its board and proceed with matter in accordance with law. IRIS Computers Ltd. Vs. Askari Infotech Pvt. Ltd. 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 143.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Sec.138 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.255(2) - "Appeal against acquittal" - Accused borrowed certain amount from complainant/appellant and subsequently gave cheque towards discharge of debt and same was "dishonoured", when presented, as account said to have been closed even prior to issue of cheque - Trial Court convicted accused for offence u/sec.138 of N.I Act and sentenced to undergo simple imprisonment for one year and to pay compensation of Rs.1,20,000/- - Appellate Court having accepted that cheque issued for legally enforceable liability as on date of issue of cheque, however found that offence u/sec.138 of Act, is not made out, as cheque was issued after closure of account by accused, following reasoning of Gujarat High Court, acquitted accused - Appellant contends that where an account if closed after a cheque is a given or account is closed before cheque is given, one can safely say that though it has been returned on account of closure of account, but it would in effect mean insufficiency of funds in account of person who gave cheque - Consequently Court held that offence u/sec.138 of Act has been made out and it was also found that a dishonest person would resort to such types of tactics to avoid liabilities - When judgment of our own High Court lays down, correct law, it is not permissible for Sessions Judge to have relied upon Judgment of Gujarat High Court and acquitting accused - Therefore judgment of appellate Court, set aside - Accused found guilty of offence u/Sec.138 of Act and accordingly convicted u/Sec.255(2) Cr.P.C and is sentenced to pay Rs.2 lakhs out of which Rs.1.9 lakhs shall be paid as compensation to appellant and in default accused to suffer rigorous imprisonment for one year. Dasari Venkateswarlu Vs. State of A.P. 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 256 = 2012(2) ALD(Crl) 286 (AP).

—Sec.138 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.256 - Revision petitioner filed complaint u/Sec.138 against accused - Case was adjourned from time to time and finally posted for appearance of accused - Since both complainant and accused did not appear on that day trial Court acquitted accused u/Sec.256 Cr.P.C in view of non appearance of complainant - Petitioner complainant con-tends that presence of complainant not necessary as case stood posted to that date for appearance of accused and not for trial - In present case, presence of complainant on that day, patently not necessary as case stood posted for appearance of accused only - Invocation of Sec.256 on ground that complainant was absent is unjust and erroneous - Impugned order of trial Judge, set aside - Criminal Revison case, allowed. Venkateswara Tea Traders Vs.Madhu Agencies, 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.)225 = 2011(2) ALD (Crl) 567 (AP) = 2011(3) ALT (Crl) 20 (AP).

—Sec.138 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.258 and 378(4) – A.P. POLICE MANUAL, ORDER, 447 Chapter 25 - Appellant/Complainant filed Private Complaint, against accused for offence U/Sec. 138 of N.I. Act. – Magistrate passed Conditional

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

Order on 11-10-2006, that, "Complainant absent - Accused Present. N.B.W. Pending - It is the matter of 2003, if the complainant failed to take steps to execute the N.B.W by next date of hearing, the C.C. stands dismissed - Call on 18-10-2006" - On that day neither complainant nor accused were present before Court and NBW issued against accused were still pending – Since Complainant did not comply with order, Magistrate, acquitted Accused – Hence, Present Appeal - Appellant contends that, Conditional Order dt. 11-10-2006, wherein complainant was directed to get NBWs executed by next date of hearing failing which impugned order of acquitting accused, is illegal and erroneous - Perusal of order would show that on 11-10-2006 or 18-10-2006 neither complainant nor accused were present before Court – When NBWs issued against accused were still pending question of complainant being present before court on those days is of no use – Hence, absence on that day does not in any way affect progress of case - Non compliance of condition imposed by Court, i.e., execution of NBWs by complainant leading to dismissal of complaint appears to be illegal and improper - A reading of Order, 447 Chapter 25 of A.P. Police Manual makes it clear that NBWs have to be executed only by police Officer and same should be done on high priority – Criminal Procedure Code doesn't any where prescribe any mode of execution of warrants or authority which should execute warrant - As per Police Manual it is only the Police who have to execute warrants - Neither CRPC nor Criminal Rules of Practice contemplates execution of NBWs by complainant, more so in a case arising out of private complaint - Even Sec. 258 Cr.P.C. only gives power to Magistrate to close a case arising otherwise, than on a private complaint. There is no provision in Code which permits Magistrate, to dismiss complaint due to non execution of warrants pending against accused – Therefore, condition imposed by Magistrate in directing complainant in private complaint filed U/Sec. 138 of N.I. Act to execute NBWs is illegal and incorrect – Order of Magistrate Set aside - Criminal Appeal, Allowed. K.Sangameshwer Vs. Md.Chand Pasha 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 81 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 111 = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 193(AP).

—Sec.138 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.482 and 385 - In an appeal/revision when appellant/respondent and his counsel failed to turn up, the court shall secure the presence of appellant/respondent by issuing summons or warrant, as the case may be, and after securing presence of concerned party, proceed with hearing of parties by their counsel and if party seeks legal aid then appoint an amicus curiae and hear the matter - In present case, appellate court was not right in appointing an amicus curiae at the very first instance without trying to secure presence of respondent/accused - Therefore, impugned docket order of learned I Additional Metropolitan Sessions Judge, is set aside - Accordingly, this criminal petition is allowed. Escube Enterprises Vs. Sate of Telangana 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 331 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 168 = 2015(1) ALT (Crl) 233 (AP).

—Sec. 138 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.420 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.156 (3), 173, 200 & 468 - Petitioner filed private complaint for alleged offences

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

u/Secs.138 of N.I Act and Sec.420 of IPC - Magistrate referred matter to police u/Sec.156(3) and after investigation referred same as "Civil in Nature" - Magistrate also rejecting another private complaint filed by petitioner for same offences on ground that same is barred by limitation - Apparently, offences alleged against respondents are u/Sec.138 of N.I Act and under Sec.420 of IPC - Magistrate took into consideration only offence with regard to Sec.138 of N.I Act, but has totally forgotten to take into consideration other offence punishable u/Sec.420 IPC - It is true that to attract provisions of Sec.138 of N.I Act, complainant shall strictly adhere to provisions of said Section of Law i.e. issuance of notice within specified period and thereafter complainant shall be filed within further period of 30 days - In so far as offence punishable u/Sec.420 of IPC is concerned, maximum sentence that can be imposed for said offence is seven years and u/Sec.468 of Cr.P.C there is no period of limitation for it - Hence order of Magistrate in holding that entire complaint is barred by limitation is not correct and same is liable to be set aside - Trial Court directed to accept complaint, follow procedure as provided for u/Sec.200 Cr.P.C and pass appropriate orders in so far as offence punishable u/Sec.420 IPC is concerned - Revision, allowed. Bommidi Madhu Sudhanarao Vs. Kallepu Ramesh 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 168 = 2011(1) ALD (Crl) 552 (AP) = 2011(1) ALT 192 (AP) = AIR 2011 (NOC) 265 (AP).

—-Sec. 138 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec. 420 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec. 156(3) - This Criminal Petition is filed by the petitioners/A.1 and A.2 under Section 482 Cr.P.C. seeking to quash proceedings in Crime of Police Station, for the offence punishable under Section 420 IPC, which is outcome of a report of the 2 nd respondent-de facto complainant - 2 nd respondent filed private complaint on the file of II Additional Judicial First Class Magistrate, for offence punishable under Sec.420 IPC against petitioners/A.1 and A.2 that they have issued cheque which was not honored and that cheque was not of their account and the learned Magistrate referred same u/Sec.156(3) Cr.P.C., for investigation to Station House Office, Police Station. learned Magistrate returned complaint to show how offence under Sec.420 IPC is attracted against A.2.

Held, from bar u/Sec.300 Cr.P.C., and also for no offence is made out under Sec.420 IPC and crime proceedings against petitioners/A.1 and A.2 are liable to be quashed to sub-serve the ends of justice - Accordingly, this Criminal Petition is allowed and all proceedings in Crime of Police Station, against the petitioners/A.1 & A.2 are hereby quashed. Rambha Lakshmana Rao Vs. The State of A.P. 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 117.

—Secs.138 & 20 – CRIMINAL PROCUDER CODE, Sec.357(3) – GENERAL CLAUSES ACT, Sec.27 – EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.114 – Accused barrowed amount from complainant and executed promissory note and thereafter issued cheque for certain amount as part payment – When complainant presented cheque same dishonored with an endorsement "in sufficient" – After issuing statutory notice to accused, complaint filed invoking Sec.138 of Act - Trail Court found accused guilty for offence punishable u/Sec.138 and sentenced him to undergo imprisonment for period of 2 months and to pay Rs.2,000/- towards compensation to complainant under Sec.357(3) of Cr.P.C. - Sessions Judge allowed appeal and set-aside order of conviction and sentence - Complainant/appellant contends that Sessions Judge acquitted respondent accused by reversing findings of Trail Court on sole ground that complainant would have possibly managed postal authorities for making endorsement on postal covers under which demand notice was sent to accused, therefore there was no notice of demand as contemplated u/Sec.138 of Act - Observation of appellate Court is that it is for complainant to examine postal authority as against established principles dealing with burden of proof under Evidence Act and therefore impugned judgment of acquittal suffers from gross error of law and it is liable to be set aside - In this case there is no dispute with regard to dishonour of cheque with endorsement "in sufficient funds" and only contention raised by respondent accused that statutory notice as required u/Sec.138 of NI Act has not been sent to him and that complainant himself got managed postal Authorities and got endorsement "door locked" - In view of decision of Supreme Court it is clear that when notice is sent by registered post by correctly addressing drawer of cheque, mandatory requirement of issue of notice in terms of clause (b) proviso to Sec.138 Act stands complied with - Then it is for the drawer to rebut presumption about service of notice and show that he had no knowledge that notice was brought to his address mentioned on cover was correct and that letter was never tendered or that report of post man was incorrect - In this case endorsement clearly indicates that complainant sent notice to accused to address mentioned on promissory note executed by accused and it is clear that complainant has dispatched notice to correct address of accused and thus complied with statutory provision u/Sec.138-B of NI Act - Therefore finding of Metropolitan Session Judge that it is for complainant to examine post man concerned to prove endorsement is erroneous - When evidence on record clearly indicates that accused not claimed, it was returned to sender and therefore finding of Metropolitan Session Judge that complainant has failed to prove that he issued demand notice to accused is contrary to evidence on record and is therefore liable to be set aside - Judgment of acquittal recorded by Sessions Judge set-aside - Appeal allowed. Mutyala Bhushanam Vs. Patneedi Sreeramamurthy 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 325 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 318.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138, 64, 72 & 2 – Cheque issued by petitioner, 2nd respondent/complainant returned with endorsement "not clearing member" – Hence, complaint - Petitioner contends that cheque was never presented to drawee bank and if that cheque is returned with an endorsement, "insufficient funds" then only offence would be constituted - 2nd respondent/complainant contends that cheque issued on defunct bank and as such issuing of cheque on a bank which is not functioning amounts to an offence u/Sec.138 of Act - When issuance of cheque of a closed account is an offence u/Sec.138 of Act why it is not an offence when a cheque of defunct bank is issued - Cheque in question was issued for a huge amount of Rs.15 lakhs - There is absolutely no justification in driving complainant from pillar to post by dismissing complainant for unsustainable technical reasons - It is for trial Court to decide issue on merits - Criminal petition, dismissed.S.Nirmala Deshpande Vs. State of A.P. 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 301.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138 & 139 - Petitioner borrowed certain amount from one AVR and executed promissory note in his favour agreeing to repay amount with interest - Inspite of repeated demands by AVR, petitioner did not pay amount and as AVR is in need of money, transferred promissory note in favour of 2nd.respondent/complainant for certain amount - Subsequent to transfer, on demand made by 2nd respondent/ complainant to pay amount due under transferred promissory note, petitioner issued cheque for certain amount - When 2nd respondent/complainant presented cheque for collection, said cheque returned with memo stating that account of petitioner was closed - Subsequently complainant issued notice and filed complaint against revisioner petitioner u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Petitioner having admitted signature on promissory note and cheque, contended that one BA who is a relative of complainant, running a Chit in which he was member and said BA obtained two blank cheques and promissory note in connection with chit transaction and present complaint filed to harass her - Trial Court convicted revision petitioner for offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act, to undergo simple imprisonment for six months and to pay fine - On appeal filed by petitioner, appellate Court confirmed conviction - Hence present Revision - In instant case, complainant issued first legal notice on 16-9-1998 and second legal notice on 18-10-1998 and that debt due under pomissory note borrowed on 11-5-1995 and cheque issued by petitioner should be presented by complainant on or before 11-5-1998, but cheque was actually presented on 2-7-1998 and therefore on date of presentation of said cheque there was no existing legally enforceable debt - Both Courts below held that since suit based on promissory note was pending before civil Court, it cannot be said that cheque was presented beyond period of limitation - Findings recorded by both Courts below on this aspect do not seem to be correct - Merely because civil suit is pending, it cannot be said that cheque can be presented by complainant at any time during pendency of said civil suit - Cause of action to file complaint u/ Sec.138 of N.I Act is an independent cause of action and therefore cheque shall be presented by complainant within period of validity of debt borrowed - In this case, cheque presented beyond period of limitation and therefore it will not give rise to any cause of action - Further, complainant filed another complaint against petitioner on file of another Court and it is marked as Ex.D.1 - Number of cheque in present case, is 0208203, whereas other cheque is 0208202 - This fact lends assurance to contention of petitioner that two blank cheques have been obtained by AVR, relative of complainant in connection with chit transaction from revision petitioner - Thus by examining herself as D.W.1 and by marking Ex.D1 revision petitioner could be able to rebut presumption in favour of complainant u/sec.139 of N.I. Act - In this case, complaint was filed on 12-11-1998 which is long after issuance of first legal notice dt. 16-9-1998 and by which time limitation to file complaint as provided u/Sec.138 of N.I Act expired and therefore complaint filed by complainant/2nd respondent is barred by limitation - For forgoing reasons conviction and sentence passed by trial Court against petitioner/accused which was confirmed by 1st appellate Court, set aside - Revision petitioner, acquitted of offence u/Sec.138 of N.I act - Criminal revision, allowed. Mandapalli Nirmalatha Vs. State of A.P. 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 222 = 2012(2) ALD(Crl) 40(AP) = 2012(3) ALT(Crl) 141(AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138 and 139 - Prosecution is maintainable for an offence u/Sec.138 of N.I. Act, when the drawer of cheque issues stop payment instructions to his banker - In resultant criminal case, in order to effectively rebut presumption u/Sec.139 of N.I. Act, accused shall establish that he has issued stop payment instruction not for want of sufficient funds in his account but for a valid reason - There were no sufficient funds in the account of accused as deposed by PW2 - PW2 stated that in account of accused there was only an amount of Rs.24,404.69 which was far lower than cheqes amount - This would show that without having sufficient funds in his account, accused issued cheques - Though accused disputed evidence of P.W.2, he did not produce any convincing evidence to establish that there were enough funds in his account - So on a conspectus of facts and evidence, Court hold that accused failed to rebut presumption u/Sec.139 of N.I. Act and consequently render themselves guilty of offence u/Sec.138 of N.I. Act. Dr.Reddy's Laboratories Limited Vs. Reddy Pharmaceuticals 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 171 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 1026 = 2015 Cri.LJ (NOC) 393 Hyd. = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 310 (AP).

—Secs.138 & 147 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.320 - Appellant/accused obtained loan from complainant Bank for his business and issued cheque - Complaint filed since cheque dishnoured - Magistrate convicting appellant/accused and ordered to undergo six months imprisonment and also to pay compensation - Appellate Court confirmed conviction and reduced compensation - High Court dismissed Revision and confirmed orders passed by trial Court and Appellate Court - Appellant submits that since matter amicably settled between parties and amount also paid towards full and final settlement, compromise may be recorded appellant/accused may be ordered to be acquitted by setting aside conviction as well as sentence - Offences not referred to in Sec.320 (1) & (2) and not included in Table are not compoundable and similarly offences punishable under laws other than IPC also cannot be compounded - Sec.138 is intended to prevent dishonesty on part of drawer of negotiable instruments in issuing cheques without sufficient funds or with a view to inducing payee or holder in due course to act upon it - It thus seeks to promote efficacy of banking operations and ensures credibility in transacting business through cheques - In such matter therefore, normally compounding of offences should not be denied - Parliament also realized this aspect and inserted Sec.147 - Since matter has been compromised between parties and amount has been paid towards full and final settlement to respondent/Bank, appellant/accused is entitled to acquittal - Order of conviction and sentence, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Vinay Devanna Nayak Vs. Ryot Seva Sahakari Bank Ltd. 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 172.

—-Secs. 138 & 139 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs. 397, 401 & 482 - These revisions, U/sec. 397 and 401 of Cr. P.C., are filed against orders dated 27-11-2012 passed by Prl. Sessions Judge, in Crl. R.P. Nos. 64 and 70 of 2012, which were filed against the orders, dated 06-09-2012, passed by the II Additional Judicial Magistrate of First Class, in Crl. M.P. Nos. 2051 and 2050 of 2012 in C.C. No. 727 of 2006-

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

In both the revisions, Complainant-Vijaya Bank is the first respondent - Said bank filed a private complaint against the revision petitioner herein for the offence punishable under Sec. 138 of N.I. Act - Said complaint was numbered as C.C. No. 727 of 2006 -Pending disposal of the above C.C., the complainant filed Crl. M.P. Nos. 2051 and 2050, under S. 482 of Cr.P.C. and under S. 139 of N.I. Act, the relief sought for permitting the amendment of the private complaint i.e. "in the reply notice, dated 15-02-2006, signed on 17-02-2006 the accused admitted the debt for which she gave the cheque which was bounced" and to recall P.W.1 for further examination - Held, Section 482 Cr. P.C. saves only the inherent powers of the High Court - Though the wording of Section 151 of C.P.C. is similar to the wording of Section 482 of Cr.P.C., so far as Section 151 C.P.C. is concerned, it saves the inherent power of every civil court which inheres from its very constitution to undo a wrong or to prevent any abuse of process of law or for rendering complete justice between the parties and to subserve the ends of justice - There is inbuilt inherent power on the Magistrate is untenable that too such power if at all to exercise is only for clerical or arithmetical mistakes to rectify by the court or on the direction of the court to the parties, which no way empowers or effect the right of either party therefrom, and not otherwise - Even a latin maxim speaks that it is only to exercise the power by legal fiction or deemed existence, where it shows impossibility of disposal of a matter - It is not even such a contingency here and thus the complainant bank is not entitled to thrust that proposition - Thereby the impugned orders of the learned Sessions Judge, setting aside the dismissal order of the learned Magistrate covered by Crl. R.P. No. 64 of 2012 in permitting the amendment of the complaint is untenable and is liable to be set aside within the scope of S. 482 of Cr.P.C - Coming to the impugned order in Crl. R.P. No. 70 of 2012 against the orders in Crl.M.P. No. 2050 of 2012 permitting to recall the P.W.1 for further chief examination, once it is a material for the complainant to say that the accused made an admission about the cheque amount due, to say within the wording of explanation to Section 138 read with 139 of N.I. Act, the debt or other liability means legally enforceable debt or other liability for such presumption, said recall of P.W.1 can be permitted for further chief examination to subserve the ends of justice not only under Section 311 Cr.P.C. but also within the power of the Court under Section 165 of Indian Evidence Act which provision is equally applicable in Criminal cases - Accordingly, Crl. R.C. No. 328 of 2013 is allowed setting aside the order, dated 27-11-2012 in Crl.R.P. No. 64 of 2012. Dr.Sd.Munwar Sultana Vs.Vijaya Bank, Nellore 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 423 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 967.

—Secs.138 & 139 – INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.420, 406 & 120-B – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 – Appellant/MD of Company signed blank cheques and left with accused for efficient management - Complaint filed for alleged misuse of cheques by respondents 2 & 3/accused – FIR sought to be lodged - Hence Application for quashing of FIR – High Court allowing Application holding that even if allegations in complaint are taken as true and correct, at this stage, they do no make out prima facie case of cheating or criminal breach of trust or forgery and that therefore continuation of proceedings against petitioner is nothing but abuse of process of Court - Contention that no case for proceedings against respondents u/Sec.420 of IPC is made out – Filling up of blanks in a cheque by itself would not amount to forgery – However, a case for proceeding against respondents u/Sec.406, be made out – A cheque being property same was entrusted to respondents – If said property has misappropriated or has been used for a purpose for which same had not been handed over a case u/Sec.406 may be found to have been made out - Investigation may be confined to charge u/Sec.406 - Appeal, partly, allowed. Suryalakshmi Cotton Mills Ltd. Vs. Rajvir Industries Ltd. 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 202.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138 and 139 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Petitioner, Secretary Correspondence Educational Society while resigning from his position issued cheques in favour of complainant promising release guarantees and securities given to Banks - Cheques dishonoured for reason "account closed" - Despite notices petitioner did not choose to pay amount covered under cheques - Hence he filed complaint - Petitioner contends that as on date of issuance of cheques, there was no amount due to respondent, complainant and therefore it could not be said that cheques were issued toward discharge debt or liability muchless legal enforceable debt or liability - Cheques were given to complainant/respondent as security for due performance of getting personal guarantees and securities released from Banks - Mere failure to fulfill promise of getting personal guarantees and properties released from Banks cannot be construed as a debt or liability as provided in Sec,138 of N.I. Act - Respondent/ complainant contends that petitioner undertook to get personal guarantees and properties released from Banks and as a security as Managing Director petitioner issued two cheques for certain amount for due discharge of his liability and that cheques are issued towards discharge of liability bouncing of cheques attract provisions of Sec.138 of N.I Act - Words "other liability" mentioned in Sec.138 of N.I Act includes liability consequent on failure of promise to get personal guarantees and properties release from Banks and that presumption mandated by Sec.139 includes a presumption that their exists a legally enforceable debt or liability - In this case, as on this day, liability of complainant/respondent consequent on failure of petitioner to get personal guarantees and securities released is not crystallized - To attract Sec.138 of N.I Act, firstly, liability must be crystallized and after crystallization of liability, if cheques issued as security are presented, drawer cannot avoid further consequences - In this case, since liability is not crystallized as on date of issuance of cheques, it cannot be said that cheques are issued towards discharge of legally enforceable debt or liability - Therefore continuation of proceedings against petitioner amounts to abuse of process of law - Proceedings in CC are quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Lakshmi Prabhakar Vs. Satya Venkata Srinivasa Borsu 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 160 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 320 (AP).

—Secs.138, 139, 140 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.207, 251 - LIMITATION ACT, Secs 8,9 & 12 - For purpose of deemed service, it is sufficient to say date of intimation or postman went to address for delivery or absence of or unclaimed or refused - Here, for all practical purposes there is a registered letter posted duly to correct address for endorsement by sender - Postal authorities are agents of sendee to deliver and if that is the case, irrespective of seven days waiting, otherwise required from internal guidelines and instructions, leave about its statutory force to bind the parties, who sent notice to whom, first intimation was dated 19-9-2005 and from there the 15 days' time commences, leave about requirement of waiting for seven days for return back to the sender cover - When such is case, even it is reckoned from the date of return ie., on 24-9-2005, as per endorsement it is beyond 15 days of statutory waiting for payment for accrual of cause of action and 30 days for filing of complaint and thereby trial court referring to Secs.8, 9 and 12 of Limitation Act, came to conclusion that the complaint is beyond the limitation period - There is nothing to interfere in saying complaint was not filed within statutory time and thereby filed after expiry of the cause of action ie., one month after accrual of cause of action and is barred by limitation - In the result, Criminal Appeal is dismissed. Peddireddy Sanjeeva Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 263

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138, 139 & 141 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Dishnour of cheque - "Other Association of individuals" - "Legally enforceable debt" - Petitioners /A1 to A8 agreed to buy Computer System and delivered two cheqes signed by A7 only for certain amount towards value of Systems, but Systems are not delivered accordingly to A7 that there was no legally enforceable debt - A1 to A8 contends that importantly A1 to A6 and A8 did not sign two dishnoured cheques and hence there is no basis to say that A` to A6 and A8 got any connection with those two dishnoured cheques and that there has been no relationship of Firm and partners in order to connect A1 to A6 and A8 with any liability under said two cheques and that cheques were issued by A7 on his behalf or on behalf of his Company only to defacto Complainant in connection with agreement to sell Computer System and that in order to apply Sec.138 of Act, there should be account in name of drawer of cheque whereas for purpose of invoking Sec.141 of Act, it is necessary that cheque should have been issued by company or a Firm or an Association of persons, which is not case here by reason which also prosecution of all of them u/Sec/138 of Act is not tenable - Opposite party contends that as A1 to A8 were collected responsible for payment of amount covered by two dishnoured cheques and that there was legally enforceable debt payable by A1 to A8 who come within perview of words "Association of individuals" as employed in Sec.141 of Act to prosecute them for offence punishable u/Sec.138 r/w Sec.141 of Act - In this case, Memorandum of Understanding was executed between A1 to A8 on one hand and complainant on other with reference to payments of rents for buildings and it cannot be termed as "business deal" and it is only understanding with regard to payment of rents which is different from word "Business" and therefore it cannot be held that there was other association of "individuals" formed for definite purpose of conducting or achieving something - Thereby it is not proper to bring acts of A1 to A6 and A8 within ambit of Sec.138 r/w 141 of Act - Criminal petition allowed so far as A1 to A6 and A8 are concerned and is dismissed so far as A7 is concerned. Alladi Narasimha Rao Vs. Core Tree Solutions Pvt Ltd. 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 224 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 1 (AP) = 2013 Cri. LJ 1046 (AP) = 2013(2) ALT (Crl) 299 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138,139 & 141 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.311 & 313 - EVIDENCE ACT, 118 - Complaint filed by appellant u/Sec.138 of N.I Act on ground that cheque drawn by accused was dishnoured by Bank for want of "sufficient funds" - Lower Court disallowed complaint and acquitted accused on ground that cheque was not drawn towards discharge of any debt or liability and that cheque was drawn as proprietary of Concern and therefore complaint should have been filed impleading proprietary Concern as one of accused and that there is no proof of service of notice on accused prior to filing of complaint and that complaint is barred by limitation - Lower Court came to conclusion that even if notice served on accused on 11-7-1998 complaint should have been filed by 25-8-1998 within 45 days and instead, complaint was instituted on 26-8-1998 and therefore barred by limitation - In fact that 25-8-1998 was declared holiday as it was "Vinayaka chaturdhi day" and lower Court should have taken judicial notice of said fact and therefore complaint is not barred by limitation - A proprietary concern is no juristic person in eye of law and therefore comment of lower Court that complaint is bad for non-joinder of proprietary concern of accused is unwarranted by law - In this case, when accused did not deny service of notice on him it is not for lower Court to make further probe to it and Sec.138 did not contemplate service of notice "by post" and it is open for complainant to send notice for service by adopting any mode of means and he has preferred to send notice through professional counter service and it is valid notice u/Sec.138 - No document filed by accused in his examination u/Sec.313 Cr.P.C can be either marked as an exhibit nor can be relied upon by Court as if it is a proved document unless such document requires no formal proof under Evidence Act - Lower Court also failed to see that apart from presumption u/Sec.118 of Act for consideration, there is another presumption u/Sec.139 of Act to effect that cheque was drawn for purpose of discharging debt or liability - When accused did not deny consideration and did not deny existence of debt or liability by examining himself as witness during trial, it cannot be said that said presumptions stood rebutted and that lower Court failed to notice and consider effect of presumption u/Sec.139 of Act at all - Finding of lower Court that Ex.P.1 cheque is not supported by any debt or liability is highly unreasonable, manifestly unjust and touches border of perversity and therefore it cannot be allowed to stand - Judgment of lower Court, set aside - Accused/respondent convicted for offence u/Sec.138 of Act sentencing him for simple imprisonment for six months - Appeal, allowed. A.Brahmananda Reddy Vs.The State of A.P. 2012(1) Law Summary 161 = 2012(2) ALD(Cri) 941 (AP) = 2012(1) ALT(Crl) 287 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138 & 141 - 1st respondent filed complaint against petitioner and others alleging that A1 is a Firm carrying on business in cotton A2,A3 and A4 are Directors of A1 Firm - A 2 issued four cheques on behalf of A1 Firm and said cheques returned due to "insufficient" funds - Hence private complaint filed against accused - Petitioner/A2 contends that even accepting allegations in complaint are proved, no offence is made out against petitioner, who was only a Director of Company and as such continuation of proceedings against him would amount to abuse of process of law - Complaint/2nd respondent contends that in view of allegations made against petitioner, High Court should not invoke its inherent jurisdiction u/Sec.482 of Code and interdict proceedings - Apex Court quashed proceedings in accused against Director of Company on ground that complaint has not specified role of Director in day-to day affairs of Company except making a bald allegation that he was in charge of and was responsible to Company conduct of its affairs - In present case, admittedly petitioner is neither Managing Director nor authorized signatory to sign on cheques which were dishonoured - In absence of any allegation attributing specific role to petitioner in discharge of day-to-day affairs of Company and in light of principles laid down by Apex Court and as statutory requirements of Sec.141 of Act have not been satisfied, continuation of proceedings against petitioners would amount to abuse of process of law - Proceedings in CC against petitioners are quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Arrakuntal V.Ganeshan Vs. Sai Rama Cotton Syndicate 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 176 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 331 (AP) = 2013(2) ALT (Crl) 275 (AP).

—Secs.138 & 141 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - "Cheque" issued by appellant/1st accused in discharge of liability in respect of purchase of mobile oil by appellant, his father, brother and mother - "Dishonoured" - Magistrate took cognizance of compliant - Hence petition praying for quashing of complaint - High Court dismissed petition on ground that plea of appellant that cheque was not issued by him, involved a disputed question of fact which could not be gone into by Court in proceedings u/Sec.482 of Code - Inherent power do not confer an arbitrary jurisdiction on High Court to act according to whim or caprice - Powers have to be exercised sparingly, with circumspection and in rarest of rare cases, where Court is convinced, on basis of material on record, that allowing proceedings to continue would be an abuse of process of Court or that ends of justice require that proceedings ought to be quashed - In this case, as per complainant's own pleadings, Bank account from where cheque had been issued was not held in name of appellant and therefore, one of requisite ingredients of Sec.138 of Act not satisfied - Continuance of further proceedings in complaint u/Sec.138 against appellant would be an abuse of process of Court - Order of High Court, set aside - Complaint against appellant in Court of Magistrate, quashed - Appeal, allowed. Jugesh Sehgal Vs. Shamsher Singh Gogi 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 1 = 2009(2) ALD (Crl) 419(SC) = 2009(5) Supreme 320.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138 & 141 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Liability of Directors of Company - Accused/A14 is limited Company doing business in chemicals etc., to which A1 is Managing Director - All business financial affairs are decided, organized and administered by A1 being M.D and other accused 2 to 12 - Magistrate taking into account allegations made in complaints took cognizance of offence and issued process to accused to face trial for commission of offence u/Sec.138 of Act - High Court allowed applications filed by accused for quashing order taking cognizance and issuing process - In case of offence by Company for dishonour of cheque, culpability of Directors has to be decided with reference to Sec.141 of N.I Act - SEC.141 OF N.I ACT - From plain reading of Sec.141 it is evident that every person who at time of offence was committed is in charge of and responsible to Company shall be deemed to be guilty of offence u/Sec.138 of Act - In case of offence by Company to bring its Directors within mischief of Sec.138 of Act, it shall be necessary to allege that they were in charge of and responsible to conduct business of Company - It is necessary ingredient which would be sufficient to proceed against such directors - However, it may not necessary to allege and prove that in fact such of Directors have specific role in respect of transaction leading to issuance of cheque - Sec.141 of Act makes Directors in charge and responsible to Company "for the conduct of the business of Company" within mischef Sec.138 of Act and not particular business for which cheque was issued and same mandated in Sec.141 of Act - In this case, there is no averment that two accused were in charge of and responsible for conduct of business of company at time of offence was committed - Hence prosecution of accused A.K.S. and V.P cannot be allowed to continue. A.K.Singhania Vs. Gujarat State Fertilizer Co. Ltd., 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 248 = 2014(1) ALD (Crl) 317 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 6195 = 2014 Cri. LJ 340 (SC) = AIR 2014 SC 71.

—-Secs.138 & 141 - Apex Court held, putting the criminal law into motion is not a matter of course - To settle the scores between the parties which are more in the nature of a civil dispute, the parties cannot be permitted to put the criminal law into motion and Courts cannot be a mere spectator to it - Before a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence u/Secs.138 and 141 of the N.I. Act, making a person vicariously liable has to ensure strict compliance of the statutory requirements - Criminal law cannot be set into motion as a matter of course - Order of the Magistrate summoning accused must reflect that he has applied his mind to the facts of case and the law applicable thereto - Magistrate has to examine the nature of allegations made in the complaint and the evidence both oral and documentary in support thereof and that would be sufficient for the complainant to succeed in bringing charge home to the accused - MAGISTRATE'S DUTY..It is not that the Magistrate is a silent spectator at the time of recording of preliminary evidence before summoning of the accused - The Magistrate has to carefully scrutinize the evidence brought on record and may even himself put questions to the complainant and his witnesses to elicit answers to find out the truthfulness of the allegations or otherwise and then examine if any offence is prima facie committed by all or any of the accused. Pooja Ravinder Devidasani Vs. State of Maharashtra 2015(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 1

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—-Sections 138 and 141 - Trail Court acquitted respondent, on ground that the Company M/s. Salvi Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd was not made accused and instead respondent was made accused in his personal capacity and it was further held that it was not proved that respondent was a person liable to make payment for M/s. Salvi Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd - High Court by impugned order confirmed said order of Trail Court - Apex court reversed orders of lowers courts and allowed appeal of complainant and held that in case accused is Managing Director of Company he is liable even in absence of company made as party. Mainuddin Abdul Sattar Shaikh Vs. Vijay D Savli 2015(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 43 = AIR 2015 SC 2579 = 2015 Crl. LJ 3618 (SC) = 2015 AIR SCW 4015 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 599 (SC).

—-Secs.138 & 141 - Present quash petitions filed so far as by petitioners A-3 to A-5 are that they are mere directors and they are no way responsible for day to day affairs of Company which is a statutory requirement u/Sec.141 of the N.I. Act with specific allegations in complaint for taking cognizance and the private complaint case without even such averments and without proper application of mind on said requirement taken cognizance for offence by learned Magistrate - Held, a bald averment in complaint is not even sufficient but for a specific allegation as to how a Director of a Company who stands in a different footing to Managing Director by his status liable or to be made liable for offences punishable u/Sec.138 of N.I. Act - Here a perusal of the very complaint relevant portion extracted supra, but for a bald statement, there is no material averment as to how A-3 to A-5 are liable - It is not even case from perusal of cheque of any of them are signatories, along with A-2 on behalf of A-1 entity - Mere serving of notice and their silence even with no reply, no way make them liable thereby, but for to draw adverse inference so far as A-1 and A-2 concerned as to but for no defence they could have replied as laid down in Apex Court's expression in Rangappa V. Mohan - Cognizance taken by learned Magistrate so far as A-3 to A-5 is thus unsustainable and is liable to be quashed - In result, Criminal Petition is allowed and all proceedings in so far as A-3 to A-5 are quashed. Narendra Urangi Vs. Greenmint India Agritech Pvt. Ltd 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 239

—Secs.138,141 - ANDHRA PRADEESH (TELANGANA AREA) MONEY LENDERS ACT, 1349 F, Secs.2(4)(d), 2(7) - Magistrate is either mandatorily obliged to call upon the complainant to remain present before the court, nor to examine the complainant and his witness upon oath for taking decision as to whether or not to issue process on the complaint u/Sec.138 of N.I. Act - Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, Sec.138 - If five different acts were done in five different localities, any one of the Courts exercising jurisdiction in one of the five local areas can become the place of trial for an offence u/Sec.138 of Act - Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, Sec.138 - Argument of the learned Counsel for petitioners that a single complaint is not maintainable cannot be accepted, since all cheques were dishnoured on one day, a single notice was issued demanding petitioners to repay due amount and a single reply was given - Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, Secs.138 & 141 and Andhra Pradesh (Telangana Area) Money Lenders Act, 1349 F, Secs.2(4) (d), 2(7) - A conjoint reading of Secs.2(4) and 2(7) of the A.P. (Telangana Area) Money Lenders Act, 1349, F would clearly indicate that money advanced by a company in form of loan is excluded from purview of the Act - Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, Secs.138 & 141 - Applying principles of law enunciated in judgments of Apex Court, argument of learned Counsel for petitioners that complaint against all accused is not maintainable cannot be accepted - At the same time argument of learned Counsel for second respondent defacto complaint that since cheque of accused No.1 company was issued by accused No.2 in discharge of debt incurred in his personal capacity, Company as well as its Directors are liable for prosecution cannot also be accepted - Whether cheque was issued pursuant to an understanding amongst its Directors or with consent of all Directors are disputed questions of facts, which need to be established during trial - Criminal petition is liable to be rejected against accused No.2. Vasundhara Projects Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 410 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 883 = 2014(3) ALT (Crl) 193 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138,139,142 & 131 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.200 - Compl-aints filed for offences u/Sec.138 of N.I Act for dishonor of cheques - Trial Court convicted accused - Sessions Judgeallowed appeals setting aside convictions on ground that complainant did not sign complaints and they were signed by power of attorney holder of complaint - In this case, lower appellate Court should have noticed that Magistrate after satisfying himself about validity and propriety of power in favour of Officer of company and issued summons to accused - Therefore there cannot be any doubt of fact that taking cognizance of cases for respective offences by Magistrate is valid and legal - BURDEN OF PROOF - Respondent contends that initial burden is on complainant to prove that dishonoured cheques were supported by "legally enforceable liability" - Sec.139 of Act raises a presumption in favour of holder to effect that holder of cheque received cheque of nature referred to Sec.138 for discharge of any debt or other liability in whole or in part - No doubt said presumption u/Sec.139 is rebuttable presumption - Opening words of Sec.131 reads "it shall be presumed unless the contrary is proved" - In that view of matter it is not for complainant initially to prove existence of any legally enforceable debt or other liability for cheques involved in these cases - Initial burden is on accused to prove that dishonour of cheques were not supported by any legally enforceable debt or other liability - In this case, accused did not lead any evidence at all - Neither he examined himself as a witness to rebut presumption u/Sec.139 of Act nor he examined any witnesses nor marked any documents in respect of his case - Accused having received legal notices u/Sec.138 (b) of Act did not choose to give any replay notice - Impugned judgment of lower appellate Court not sustainable either on facts or in law - Judgment passed by lower appellate Court, set aside - Appeals, allowed. Videocon International Ltd. Vs. Innovations, 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 85 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 847 (AP) = 2011(3) ALT (Crl) 183 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—-Secs.138 and 142 - A power of attorney holder is not a total substitute for his principal - In instant case, complaint was filed by the complainant represented by his SPA and complaint was signed by complainant - Both complainant and his SPA gave their sworn statements - Trial court in its docket order permitted SPA to proceed with the case on behalf of complainant - Then Ex. P1 would show that complainant authorized his SPA holder to prosecute the complaint and also to make statements on oath before any court - Thus PW1 authorised to give evidence also on behalf of complainant - Evidence of PW1 would show that he is none other than son of complainant's brother and he is having personal knowledge regarding business transactions with accused - He deposed that he sent cement bags on different occasions to the accused and he deposited cheques issued by accused in bank - Thus, when evidence of PW1 is perused, besides being SPA, he is having personal knowledge on the facts concerning to this case - Accused has not brought on record any facts which are said to be in exclusive knowledge of complainant to draw an adverse inference for his non-examination - Therefore, trial court's observation in this regard cannot be approved - In result, accused is found guilty of offence punishable u/Sec. 138 of NI Act - Criminal Appeal is allowed by setting aside judgment passed by the Special Judicial Magistrate of First Class, Mobile (PCR). Omprakash Vs. L.Sunitha, 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 428

—Secs.138 & 142 - A perusal of the amended Section Section 142, of N.I. Act leaves no room for any doubt that with reference to an offence Under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, the place where a cheque is delivered for collection i.e. the branch of the bank of the payee or holder in due course, where the drawee maintains an account, would be determinative of the place of territorial jurisdiction. Bridgstone India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Inderpal Singh 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) (S.C.) 73

—Secs.138 & 142 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Cheque issued by petitioner dishonoured twice for "insufficient funds" - Hence complaint filed by respondent on basis of 'second dishonour' without mentioning about first dishonour - Petitioner/ accused contends that private complaint is not maintainable on basis of second dishnour which occurred after exchange of notices between parties immediately after first dishnour of cheque - Payee is free to present cheque repeatedly within its validity period, but once notice has been issued and payment was not received within 15 of receipt of notice then payee has to avail very cause of auction arising thereon and file complaint and that dishnour of cheque on each presentation gives a fresh right to present it again during period of its validity, but it does not give rights to fresh cause of auction and that complaint has to be filed within one month from day immediately following day on which period of 15 days from date of receipt of first notice expires - Evidently, in this case, private complaint filed by complainant is barred by limitation when reckoned with that of receipt of first notice by accused on his failure to make payment of amount covered by cheque within 15 days thereof - Complainant, having lost opportunity to file complaint on basis of said cause of auction, is barred from basing his complaint on basis of subsequent dishnour of cheuqe after exchange of first notice - Proceedings in C.C. on file of Magistrate - Quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Sathu Janardhan Vs. P. Naga Vara Prasad 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 86.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138, r/w 142 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.415 & 420, r/w Sec.34 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.156(3) & 482 - A1 & A2 father & son availed loan of Rs.20 lakhs from CVSR for purpose of higher education of A2, son who issued cheque for Rs.20 lakhs - When cheque presented it came to be dishonoured for want of sufficient funds - Since father and son issued cheque without maintaining sufficient funds in account it constitutes an offence of cheating punishable u/sec.420 and also offence u/Sec.138/142 of N.I Act - Hence filed complaint - Magistrate forwarded complaint to S.H.O. u/Sec.156(3) Cr.P.C, who registered case, u/Sec.138 and 142 of N.I Act and Secs.415,420 r/w 120-B of IPC - After completing enquiry charge-sheet presented before Magistrate who took charge-sheet on file - Hence criminal petitions by A1 and A2 for quashing CCs - A2 contends that mere dishnour of cheque is not sufficient to infer intention of drawer i.e., A2 to deceive complainant right from inception of issuance of cheque - Complainant contends that A1 & A2 borrowed amount for higher education of A2 and subsequently A2 issued cheque towards discharge of liability and cheque came to be dishonoured on ground of insufficient funds - Both A1 & A2 induced complainant to part with amount and it constitutes fraudulent and dishonest inducement to deliver property which comes within meaning of cheating as defined in Sec.415 and therefore, proceedings initiated against petitioners for offence u/Sec.420 rw/ 34 IPC is to be allowed to reach its logical conclusion - Mere breach of contract cannot give rise to criminal prosecution u/sec.420 IPC, unless fraudulent or dishonest intention is shown right at begning of transactions ie., time when offence is said to have been committed - It is well settled that deception cannot be inferred basing on mere dishnour of cheque - Provision of Sec.420 IPC is not attracted unless mala fide intention of person issuing cheque is established - In this case, no specific instances have been pleaded about existence of mala fide intention - Dishonest intention and misrepresentation are to be specifically indicated to attract provision of Sec.420 IPC and if such specific allegations are not there and general allegation of dishnoure of cheque is there, only Sec.138 of N.I Act will be attracted - No specific instances have been pleaded in complaint about existence of mala fide intention - A1 is not signatory to cheque and therefore proceedings initiated against him basing on said cheque amounts tp abuse of process of Court - When complainant being payee of cheque presented a complaint, as provided u/Sec.142 of N.I Act, Magistrate ought not to have referred complaint to Police u/Sec.156 (3) Cr.P.C - Therefore, very referring of complaint is not in accordance with provisions of Sec.142 of N.I Act - Complaint cannot be made to suffer for irregular procedure adopted by Court - However, complainant cannot be made remdyless - Complaint as it is cannot be quashed - What is to be quashed is order of Magistrate in taking cognizance of case for offence u/sec.420 r/w 34 IPC - Complainant is at liberty to adduce evidence at pre-cognizance stage relatable to A2 alone and thereupon Magistrate has to consider evidence and pass appropriate orders as to whether evidence brought on record is sufficient to take cognizance of case u/Secs.138/142 of N.I Act - Criminal petitions, allowed, quashing order passed by Magistrate taking cognizance of offence u/Sec.420 r/w Sec.34 IPC. Chelluboyina Satyanarayana Vs. The State of A.P. 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 214 = 2012(2) ALD(Cri) 120 (AP) = 2012(3) ALT(Cri) 103 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138, 139 & 142 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.118 - "Statutory presumption" - Burden of proof - Complainant/1st respondent filed a case against accused/petitioner alleging that he issued Ex.P.1 & Ex.P.2 cheques in discharge of subsisting debt and said cheques bounced when presented - Trial Court found accused guilty and sentenced to simple imprisonment for period of 10 months - Accused preferred criminal appeal unsuccessfully - Hence present Revision - Accused contends that there was no legally enforceable debt in respect of which cheques were issued and that therefore Sec.138 of Act has no application - Statutory presumption is created u/Sec.139 of Act that cheque was issued in discharge of subsisting debt, preponderance of judicial view is that onus is upon holder of cheque to show that cheque was issued in discharge of subsisting debt - Supreme Court has clarified that if accused by preponderance of evidence has discharged burden contemplated by Sec.139 of Act, burden would shift to complainant to prove his case, beyond reasonable doubt without help of Sec.139 of Act - Thus, it is primarily for drawee to show that cheque was issued in connection with subsisting debt - Onus on part of drawer is in nature of proof in a civil case, viz., establishing a fact by preponderance of evidence, whereas complaint shall have to establish his case, beyond reasonable doubt - In this case, main contention of accused that there was no allegation much less proof from complainant that cheques were in discharge of legally enforceable debt and that trial Court and appellate Court also did not give any finding that cheques were in discharge of legally enforceably debt - In this case, two cheques under Exs.P.1 & P.2 were not contemporaneous with borrowal and alleged borrowal of Rs.2.3lakhs was on 15-2-2001 more than a year there after on 11-4-2002 and 8-3-2002 Ex.P.1 & P.2 cheques were allegedly issued - Very fact that borrowal was more than a year prior to issuance of cheques would show that cheques were not in discharge of borrowals made by accused as nexus between borrowal and issued cheques has not been established - P.W.1/complainant did not produce any proof regarding any alleged borrowal on 15-2-2001 - Thus very basis of claim u/Sec.138 of Act that cheques were issued in connection with a subsisting debt has not been made out by complainant - Appreciation of evidence and consequent conclusion by trial Court and appellate Court erroneous and are liable to be set aside - Complaint failed to establish Ex.P.1 and P.2 were cheques were in connection with subsisting debt - Conviction and sentence recorded by trial Court and confirmed by appellate Court, set aside - Criminal revision allowed. Shaik Ayaz Vs. Abdul Khader 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 352 = 2012(1) ALD 399(AP) = 2012(1) ALT(Crl) 110 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Sec.138, r/w 142 and Secs.6,7,64 & 72 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.177, 178 & 179,482 - "Jurisdiction" - Petitioner/accused joined as subscriber in one of chits of 2nd respondent/complainant at Nellore Branch - Petitioner became successful bidder of chit and receive prized amount and issued account payee cheque for certain amount on I.I Bank, Nellore Branch towards arrears of chit amount - When 2nd respondent/complainant presented cheque in its account at Union Bank of India, Hyderabad Branch for collection, said cheque returned with endorsement "insufficient funds" - Since petitioner/accused failed to make any payment 2nd respondent/complainant presented complaint before Magistrate at Cyberabad, R.R. District - Magistrate took cognizance of offence u/Sec.138, r/w 142 of N.I Act and registered case - Hence criminal petition by accused to quash proceedings - Petitioner/accused contends that no part of cause of action for filing complaint for an offence u/Secs.138, r/w.142 against petitioner has arisen within territorial jurisdiction of Magistrate Court, Cyberabad and that entire Chit transaction took place at Nellore and cheque has been issued by petitioner at Nellore and Bank of petitioner/accused, on which cheque has been drawn, is situated at Nellore and cheque has been dishonoured by Bank at Nellore and therefore it is only Nellore Court which has jurisdiction and no other Court has jurisdiction - Sec.177 of Cr.P.C determines jurisdiction of Court trying matter and Court ordinarily will have jurisdiction only where offence has been committed - Provisions of Secs.178 & 179 of Code are exceptions to Sec.177 and these provisions presuppose that all offences are local and therefore, place where an offence has been committed plays important role - In essence, it is cause of action for initiation of proceedings against accused - Court derives jurisdiction only when cause of action arises within its jurisdiction - Five essential ingredients of offence u/sec.138 of N.I Act are 1) drawing of cheque; 2) presentation of cheque to Bank; 3) returning of cheque unpaid by drawee Bank; 4) giving notice in writing to drawer of cheque demanding payment of cheque amount; 5) failure of drawer to make payment within 15 days of receipt of notice - It is not case of 2nd respondent complaint that cheque in question was issued and delivered at Hyderabad and only ground alleged to confer territorial jurisdiction on Court of Magistrate Cyberabad is presentation of cheque at Union Bank of India, Hyderabad Branch for collection.

"A combined reading of Secs.3, 72 & 138 of N.I Act, would leave no doubt that law mandates the cheque to be presented at the Bank on which it is drawn if drawer is to be held criminally liable" - Ratio of Supreme Court judgment is that cheque is deemed to have been presented to drawee bank irrespective of fact where it is deposited by payee in his own Bank - Sec.138 of Act contemplates that cheque is required to be presented for encashment to drawee Bank and that payee Bank, merely acts as an agent of payee/complainant for purpose of presenting cheque for encashment to drawee Bank - A cojoint reading of Secs.6,7,64 & 72 and also Sec.138 of N.I Act brings out that in order to attract penal provisions of Sec.138, a cheque is required to be presented for encashment to drawee Bank and that payee Bank acts merely as an agent of payee/complainant for purposes of presenting cheque to drawee Bank - N.I ACT ,SEC.138 - Expression 'presentation of cheque to Bank' used in Section is referable to only drawee Bank - Payee's Bank has no relevance for purpose of constituting an offence u/Sec.138 of Act - What is required under section is dishonor of cheque by drawee Bank - Payee's Bank rather called it as only collecting Bank, question of dishonour of cheque by collecting Bank does not arise - Collecting Bank acts only as an agent on behalf of payee - A combined reading of Secs.3, 72 & 138 of Act would leave no doubt that law mandates cheque to be presented to Bank on which it is drawn, if drawer is to be held criminally liable - In view of matter it is held, that on pleadings in complaint no part of cause action can be said to have arisen within local area of Magistrate Cyberabad, R.R. District - Impugned order of taking cognizance of case, for offence u/sec.138, r/w 142 of N.I Act, by Magistrate Cyberaabad - Quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. N.Santhi Lakshmi Vs. State of A.P. 2012(1) Law Summary 283 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 733(AP) = 2012(2) ALT(Crl) 172 (AP) = 2012 Cri. LJ 3818 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138, 142 & 118 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.251 and 255(2),378(4) & 372 - Complainant presented the appeals against the said two revision reversal judgments contending that the revision court below failed to note that a mere non-mentioning of the execution of pronote and revival letter in the complaint or statutory notice cannot be a ground for acquitting the accused by reversing the conviction judgments, that the court below failed to note that the admission of loan transaction by the accused and his failure to come to witness box to prove his contention of the cheque was not signed by him etc., that the revision court below failed to note the cardinal principle of law that when once the complainant has proved that there is an existence of legally enforceable debt it is for the accused to rebut the same that he has not been discharged by accused to rebut and thereby sought to set aside the acquittal judgment and prayed to convict the accused by allowing the appeal - Held, the lower revisional court mainly there from and also in saying the non-mention of the pronote and revival letters Exs. P-6 and P-7 are fatal to the case of the complainant ignoring the factum of the cheque issued by the accused not in dispute routed from his account with his signature and it is even as per Apex Court in Rangappa vs. Mohan case, burden on accused to show how the debt or other liability is not legally enforceable and what is the evidence favourable to the accused from the material on record even to say there is discharge of the burden lies on the accused. Thus A2 is found guilty - Thus the reversal and acquittal judgments of the lower revisional court by sitting against the conviction judgments of the trial court are unsustainable and outcome of ill appreciation of facts and law that resulted in grave injustice to the complainant-bank and the same is prone to the jurisdiction of this Court by way of appeal under Section 378(4) read with Section 378 (1)(b) and (3) and otherwise under Section 372 and its proviso read with Section 2(w)(a) and otherwise within inherent power of this Court saved by Section 482 Cr.P.C, for this Court to set aside the said revision Court reversal judgments to secure ends of justice being necessary - In the result, the two appeals taken u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C from otherwise if not maintainable either u/Sec.378(4) or u/Sec.372 amended Cr.P.C and the lower revision court's acquittal judgments are set aside by restoring the trial court's conviction judgments. Tamilnad Mercantile Bank Ltd Vs. Subaiah Gas Agency 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 525

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Sec.138, 142 r/w Sec.305 of Cr.P.C - Accused Company in a cheque bouncing case has every authority to substitute a person of its choice to represent Company under Sec.305 of Cr.P.C - If person who signs cheque and shown as a person representing Company dies, prosecution against Company will not get abated - Held, both lower Courts have erred in holding that Managing Director who signed and issued cheque alone has to represent Company and that Company cannot be permitted to substitute a person of its choice – Impugned Orders of revisional court confirming orders passed by trial Court, set aside. India Brewery & Distillery Pvt Ltd. Vs. R.K.Distilleries 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 172 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 149 = 2015(3) ALT (Crl) 28 (AP).

—Secs. 138 &142 - LIMITATION ACT, Sec.12 - GENERAL CLAUSES ACT, Secs.8 & 9 - Cheque bounce case -Cause of Action - Trial Court concluded complaint was filed on 23-12-1997 whereas the 15 days' after service of notice expire on 25-12-1997 and hence there was no accrual of cause of action and acquitted accused - Appeal against the judgment of Trial Court - Held, Trial Court judgment was unsustainable on two counts, firstly, registered notice was sent by appellant/Complainant on 29-11-1997 and it is served later before return of acknowledgment dt. 9-12-1997 to say service in between 29-11-1997 and 9-12-1997 and not on 9-12-1997 and when as per postal rules maximum 7 days to deposit for service and not beyond, if taken same from 29-11-1997, seven days expire by 6-12-1997 and if such is case 15 days from that date after excluding date 6-12-1997 and including of 15th day is 22-12-1997, the day when from cause of action for one month accrues u/Sec.142(b) r/w S.138 proviso (b) of N.I. Act - Thus there is accrual of cause of action by date of filing the complaint - Hence acquittal judgment is unsustainable and it is set aside - Criminal Appeal, Allowed. Om Pralasj Agarwal Vs. Khaja Krishna Prasad 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 386.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138, r/w 142 - LIMITATION ACT, Sec.18 - PARTNERSHIP ACT, Sec.19(2) - Accused along with his family members borrowed amount from complainant and executed promissory note and subsequently issued cheque as against amount due on promissory note - Cheque returned unpaid and dishonoured with endorsement "account closed" - Hence complaint - Trial Court acquitted accused holding that debt is time barred and therefore there was no legally enforceable debt and that cheque was not given for legally enforceable debt - Appellant contends that cheque was given by accused to discharge legally enforcibly debt and that P.W.1 was one of partners of Firm and act of Firm includes an act of any one of partner and therefore prays to set aside order of acquittal - In this case, a specific plea has been taken in complaint that as on date of giving complaint, amount due under promissory note with compound interest and P.W.1 has categorically stated that accused issued a cheque towards part payment of amount borrowed and therefore calculation of interest by trial Court is totally incorrect and it is a wrong calculation - In this case, nothing has been elicited in cross-examination of P.Ws. 1 to 3 to show that cheque was not given for legally enforceable debt or liability - Therefore burden placed on accused has not been discharged and hence complaint Firm proved its case beyond all reasonable doubt for offence u/Sec/138 & 142 - Accused found guilty of offence u/Secs.138 & 142 - In this case, debt is of year 1995 and compound interest is added from date of execution of promissory note - Hence awarding compensation twice amount borrowed would meet ends of justice - Accused sentenced to pay Rs.47,000 - Criminal appeal, allowed. Sri Lakshmi Kanchana Finance Corpn., Vs. State of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 228.

—Secs.138,142,143 &149 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.200 & 482 - Court took cognizance of offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act after receiving sworn statement of complainant by way of Affidavit - Petitioner seeking qaushing of criminal case contending that Court did not follow procedure prescribed by law before taking cognizance and did not record sworn statement of complainants and instead received sworn Affidavits of complainant in lieu of recording his sworn statement - It is mandatory for Magistrate before taking cognizance of offence on complaint, to examine complainant and witnesses present, if any on oath and to reduce substance of such examination to writing and to obtain signature of complainant and witnesses together with signature of Magistrate - Proceedings u/Sec.200 Cr.P.C are in nature of enquiry prior to taking cognizance by Magistrate - When Sec.145 of Act which starts with non-obstanti Clause provides for taking evidence on affidavit of complainant not only during trial, but also during enquiry or other proceedings under Cr.P.C it cannot be said that recording of sworn statement by Magistrate personally in his/her own hand or typed to his/her dictation is a mandatory condition for taking cognizance of offence punishable u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Examining complainant on oath u/Sec.200 Cr.P.C is nothing but taking evidence during pre-cognizance enquiry or pre-registration enquiry by Magistrate under that provison - Receiving of sworn Affidavit from complainant instead of sworn statement by Magistrate before taking cognizance of offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act is permissible and not in any way contrary to procedure prescribed by law - Petitions, dismissed. A.V.R.Murthy Vs. Smt.Nunna Venkata Ramanamma 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 40.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138 & 145 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 2(g) & 200 - Petitioner 1 & 2/A1 & A2 are accused for offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act in CC - Magistrate taking cognizance of offence of case by way of evidence affidavit of complainant/2nd respondent instead of recording sworn statement of complainant by Court - Petitioner taking objection regarding procedure adopted by Magistrate, contending that earlier decision rendered by High Court is liable to be re-considered by High Court in view of prior pronouncements of Supreme Court - High Court never intended to exclude other provisions of Cr.P.C, while taking cognizance of offence punishable u/Sec.138 of Act and that procedure prescribed u/Sec.200 Cr.P.C for taking cognizance of case under general criminal law cannot be applicable to take cognizance of offence punishable under Sec.138 of Act having regard to special provision contained u/Sec.145 of Act - Fact that oath has to be administered to complainant and substance of statement of complainant has to be recorded by Magistrate into writing and signature of complainant has to be obtained in that statement recorded on oath and Magistrate has to certify same at end, denotes that entire procedure contemplated u/Sec.200 Cr.P.C is nothing but recording evidence of complainant at time of taking cognizance in absence of accused before Court - Said exercise expected to be done by Magistrate at stage of Sec.200 Cr.P.C is nothing short of recording evidence by way of sworn statement of complainant - Sec.145 of Act is an exception to mode of recording sworn statement of complainant by Magistrate at stage of Sec.200 Cr.P.C - Decision of High Court rendered in earlier case does not require re-consideration - Criminal petition, dismissed. Sri Gayatri Devi Traders Vs. The State of A.P. 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 366 = AIR 2011 (NOC) 156(AP) = 2011(1) ALD (Crl) 177 (AP) = 2011(1) ALT (Crl) 85 (AP).

—Secs.138 & 147 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.32, r/w 142, 141,144 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.397 & 401 - Compounding offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Magistrate convicted petitioner/accused for offence u/Sec.138 of N.I. Act to suffer simple imprisonment for one year and pay fine - Pending appeal petitioner/accused and respondent/Complainant settled the disputes and filed Crl.M.P. u/Sec.147 of N.I Act to record compromise and set aside conviction in CC - Sessions Judge directed parties to follow Guidelines issued by Supreme Court in Damodar S.Prabhu's case, in compounding offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Hence present Revision filed by accused - Petitioner/accused contends that Guidelines as to payment of certain percentage of amount to Legal Services Authority in event of offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act is compounded cannot be made applicable to present case since complaint came to be instituted much prior to issuance of Guidelines - Interpreting Judgments of Supreme

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

Court to make Guidelines applicable to cases instituted subsequent to judgment is nothing but diluting guidelines issued by Supreme Court - When once guidelines are issued in matter of entertaining applications for compounding offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act, they are to be made applicable to all cases pending in whatever stage they are - Impugned order of lower Court - Justified - Criminal Revision case, dismissed. D.Lakshmi Vs. V.Sarma, 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 311 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 926 (AP) = 2013 (2) ALT (Crl) 348 (AP) = 2013 Cri. Lj (NOC) 471 (AP).

—Secs.138 & 147 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.320 - "Compounding of offences" - Parties involved in commercial transactions and that disputes arose on account of disho-nour of cheques issued by appellants - Appellants prayed for setting aside his conviction in this matters by relying on consent terms and have been arrived at between parties - The interest of justice would indeed better served if parties resorted to compounding as a method to resolve their disputes at an early stage instead of engaging in protracted litigation before several forms thereby causing undue delay expenditure and strain on part of judicial system - This is clearly a situation that is causing some concern since Sec147 of Act does not prescribe as to what stage is appropriate for compounding offences and whether same can be done at instance of complainant or with leave of Court - An application for compounding made after several years not only results in system being burdened but complainant is also deprived of effective justice - In view of submission following guidelines be followed:

GUIDE LINES –

(a) directions can be given that writ of summons be suitably modified making it clear to accused that he could make an application for compounding of offences at first or second hearing of case

(b) if application is made before Magistrate at subsequent stage, compounding can be allowed subject to condition that accused will be required to pay 10% cheque amount to be deposited as condition for compounding with Legal Services Authority or such authority as Court deems fit

(c) If application for compounding is made before Sessions Court or High Court in revision or appeal such compounding may be allowed on condition that accused pays 15% of cheque amount by way of costs

(d) finally if application for compounding is made before Supreme Court the figure would increase to 20% of cheque amount - Appeals are disposed of accordingly. Damodar S. Prabhu Vs. Sayed Babala H. 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 71.

—Secs.138(a) and (c) r/w 142 - Appellant/complainant filed complaint for offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act against 2nd respondent/accused, since cheque issued by 2nd respondnet returned with endorsement "payment stopped by drawer" - Trial Court took cognizance of complaint and after taking into consideration oral and documentary evidence, found accused not guilty for offence u/Sec.138 and thereby acquitted accused - Appellant/complaint contends that notice was issued to accused after dishnour of cheque to his correct address and it has to be deemed as service of notice to accused and that lower Court has erred in coming to conclusion that notice not served on accused in compliance of provisions of Sec.138 and that accused himself has filed insolvency petition showing complainant as one of creditors and said admission itself establishes that cheque was issued towards enforcible debt - In present case, notice was sent by registered Post with acknowled-gement due and that sending notice to correct address of accused by registered post acknowledgment due is sufficient compliance of proviso(b) of Sec.138 - As held by Apex Court "Once notice has been sent by registered post is acknowledgment due to a correct address, it must be presumed that service has been made effective - In this case, in Insolvency petition, complainant is one of the respondents and as said proceedings are in between accused and complainant and others, admissions made therein were binding and admissible in criminal proceedings - Thus trial Court has erred in coming to conclusion that there is no legally enforciable debt in favour of complainant - Thus, complainat could establish compliance of provisions of (b) and (c) of Sec.138 of N.I Act and threby proved commission of offence by accused u/Sec.138 of N.I Act - Judgment passed by Magistrate, set aside - Accused found guilty and convicted for offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year and to pay fine of Rs.1000/-. Vanama Srinivasa Rao Vs. State of A.P., 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 161 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 383 (AP) = 2013(2) ALT (Crl) 42 (AP).

—Secs.138(b), 139 & 142 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.251 - "Dishnour of cheque" - Magistrate convicting accused to suffer RI for one year for offence u/Sec.138 - Sessions Judge while confirming conviction of accused reduced sentence of imprisonment from one year to 6 months - In this case, petitioner borrowed Rs.60,000/- from R2/complainant and executed promissory note and on demand accused gave cheque for Rs.52,000/- towards part satisfaction of amount under promissory note - Cheque returned with endorsement "insufficient funds" - Therefore complainant issued statutory notice to accused and presented complaint before Magistrate - Petitioner contends that notice in question issued under proviso (b) to Sec.138 of N.I Act is not valid and therefore conviction and sentence of petitioner u/Sec.138 of N.I Act is liable to be set aside - Demand in statutory notice must be in respect of amount covered under cheque in question and mere demand of amount due under promissory note cannot be construed as demand of amount covered under cheque in question, in which case, notice, wherein a demand has been made for payment of pronote amount cannot be construed as notice, within proviso (b) of Sec.138 of Act - What is necessary is making of demand for amount covered by bounced cheque and if it is conspicuously absents in notice, it is to be treated as imperfect notice - Object of notice is to give a chance to drawer of cheque to rectify his omission - Evidently what is demanded by complainant is payment of amount due under pronote - Though no formal notice is prescribed in provision, statutory provision indicates in unmistakable terms as to what should be clearly indicated in notice and what manner of demand it should make - What is necessary is making of demand for amount covered by bounced cheque, which is sonspicuously absent in notice issued in this case - In the text of notice what is demanded by complainant is pronote amount and not bounced cheque amount - Therefore notice cannot be construed as valid within proviso(b) to Sec.138 of N.I Act - Therefore conviction of petitioner, accused for offence u/Sec.138 is not valid and legal and liable to be set aside - Criminal revision case, allowed. Matta Rambabu Vs. State of A.P. , 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 327 = 2011(2) ALD (Crl) 9 (AP) = 2011(2) ALT (Crl) 199 (AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Secs.138(b) & 142 - "Dishonour of cheque" - "Statutory notices issued" - Inspite, payment not arranged by respondents/Company, hence complaint filed as cheque dishonoured for insufficiency of funds when presented second time - Magistrate took cognizance and issued summons to respondents - Magistrate dismissed Application filed by respondents for discharge on preliminary ground that complaint not filed within 30 days after expiry of notice based on 1st dishonour of cheque - High Court allowed revision and quashed order passed by Magistrate - A careful reading of Secs.138 & 142 makes it manifest that complaint u/Sec.138 can be filed only after cause of action to do so as accrued in terms of clause (c) of proviso to Sec.138 which would happens no sooner than when drawer of cheque fails to make payment of cheque amount to payee or holder of cheque within 15 days of receipt of notice required to be sent in terms of Cl.(b) of proviso to Sec.138 of Act - What is important is that neither Sec.138 nor Sec,142 or any other provision contained in Act forbids holder or payee of cheque from presenting cheque for encashment on any number of occasions within a period of six months of its issue or within period of its validity which ever is earlier - CAUSE OF ACTION - There is nothing either in Sec.138 nor Sec.142 to curtail right of payee, leave alone a forfeiture of said right for no better reason than failure of holder of cheque to institute prosection against drawer when cause of action to do so had first arisen - Simply because prosecution for offence u/Sec.138 must on language of Sec.142 be instituted within one month from date of failure of drawer to make payment does not militate against accrual of multiple causes of action to holder of cheque upon failure of drawer to make payment of cheque amount - In absence of any juristic principle on which such failure to prosecute on basis of first default in payment should result in forfeiture, it is difficult to hold that payee would lose his right to institute such proceedings on subsequent default that satisfies all requirements of Sec.138 - So long as cheque is valid and so long as it is dishonoured upon presentation to Bank, holder's right to prosecute drawer for default committed by him remains valid and exercisable - By reason of fresh presentation of cheque followed by fresh notice in terms of Sec.138, proviso (b) drawer gets an extended period to make payment and thereby benefits in terms of further opportunity to avoid prosecution - Such fresh opportunity cannot help defaulter on any juristic principle to get a complete absolution from prosecution - Prosecution based on second or successive default in payment of cheque amount should not be impermissible simply because no prosecution based on first default which was followed by a statutory notice and a failure to pay had not been launched - If entire purpose underlaying Sec.138 of N.I Act, is to compel drawer to honour their commitments made in course of their business or other affairs, there is no reason why a person has issued a cheque which is dishonoured and who fails to make payments despite statutory notice served upon him should be immune to prosecution simply because holder of cheque has not rushed to Court with a complaint based on such default - There is no real or qualitative difference between a case where default is committed and proseuction immediately launched and another where prosecution is deferred till cheque presented again gets dishonoured for second or successive times - Object underlaying Sec.138 of Act is to promote and inculcate faith in efficacy of Banking system and its operations, giving credibility to negotiable instruments in business transactions and to create an atmosphere, faith and reliance by discouraging people from dishnouring their commitment which are implicit when they pay their dues through cheques - Provision is intended to punish those unscrupulous persons who issued cheques for dischaging their liabilities without really intending to honour promise that goes with drawing up of such a negiotable instrument - It is intended to enhance acceptability of cheques in settlement of liabilities by making drawer liable for penalties in case cheques were dishnoured and to safeguard and prevent harassment of honest drawers - Prosecution based upon second or successive dishonour of cheque is also permissible so long as same satisfies requirements stipulated in provisio to Sec.138 of N.I Act. MSR Leathers Vs. S.Palaniappan 2012(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 171.

—Sec.138, proviso (b) - "Appeal against acquittal" - Appellant-Complainant-Company is manu-facturing cement - Respondents owed Rs.22,08,522 towards cost of cement purchased from appellant/company - In discharge of said debt in part, respondents issued cheque for Rs.13,50,000/- in favour of appellant and said cheque was dishnoured with an endorsement "exceeded arrangement" - At request of respondent when cheque again presented for clearance and same again dishnoured endorsing "refer to drawer" - Subsequently appellant issued notice to respondents calling upon them to pay amount of Rs.22,08,522/- within 15 days after receipt of notice and thereafter, since respondents did not make payment, appellant filed complaint u/Sec.138 - Magistrate acquitted respon-dents-accused holding that statutory notice issued u/Sec.138 by appellant, complaint is defective and is not in accordance with Sec.138 proviso (b) of Act and therefore complaint is not maintainable - Appellant contends that since there being no form of notice prescribed by statute under proviso (b) of Sec.138 of Act, and when details of transactions are clearly mentioned and demand was also made by appellant to pay amount due together with interest, issuance of notice is enough compliance of statutory requirement u/Sec.138 of Act and that trial Court erroneously dismissed complaint given by appellant - Respondents contend that demand regarding cheque amount of Rs.13,50,000/- is absent in notice and as such, statutory notice is invalid and complaint filed by appellant is not maintainable for defective notice - In this case, crux of issue is that apart from other requirements, complainant has to make a specific mention in statutory notice issued under Sec.138 of Act about demand of cheque amount - Demand as to non-payment of cheque amount may also include mention about costs of notice, interest accrued on cheque amount and damages etc., but complainant has to specify in notice that in event of failure to pay cheque amount, respondent- accused are liable for prosecution u/Sec/138 of Act - Thus respondents-accused must be aware of fact that failure to pay cheque amount will be resulting in being liable for prosecution u/Sec.138 of Act - In this case, appellant only stated in notice that respondents are liable to pay an amount of Rs.22,08,522 which is entire amount due to appellant-complainant together with interest - Therefore trial Court rightly held that impugned notice issued by appellant/complaint does not satisfy legal requirements u/Sec.138 proviso (b) of Act - Therefor it is defective - Order of trial Court holding that complaint filed by appellant is not maintainable - Justified - Appeal preferred against order of acquittal, dismissed. Sri Ratnagiri Cements Pvt. Ltd.Vs.M/s. Rao "N" Sons ModernAppliances, 2012(1) Law Summary 206 = 2012(2) ALD (Crl) 912 (AP) = 2012(1) ALT (Crl) 293(AP).

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT:

—Sec.138(c) - Complainant/appellant filed complaint against accused alleging offence punishable u/Sec.138 for dishnour of cheque on ground of closure of account - Trial Court acquitted accused on ground that complaint was premature - Appellant/complainant contends that simply because complaint filed before expiry of notice period of 15 days contemplated by Sec.138(c) of Act, complaint cannot be dismissed as premature - In this case, complainant filed complaint on 6-5-2005, got his sworn statement recorded on 6-5-2005 itself, and lower Court took cognizance of offence on same day i.e. on 6-5-2005 itself - Complaint could have asked to record his sworn statement on next day or Court could have returned complaint on ground that period provided u/Sec.138(c) of Act did not expire - When period of 15 days after service of notice to accused is given for payment of amount cover by dishonoured cheque accused can validly make payment of cheque amount till 12.00 mid night on 15th day - It is only thereafter cause of action will arise for filing complaint alleging offence u/Sec.138(c) of Act against accused; till 12.00 mid night on 15th day there is no occurrence of offence at all - Mere dishnour of cheque is no offence u/Sec.138(c) and it is only default in repayment of dishnoured cheque amount which attracts penal liability under that provision - Complaint filed by appellant in Court is premature and by that time that there was no offence u/Sec.138 of Act committed by accused - Lower Court rightly acquitted accused - Findings of acquittal - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Shyamlal Jain Vs. Kevalchand Jain 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 49.

—Secs.145, 143 & 147 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.137 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.296 - "Tril for dishonoured cheque" - Provisions of Sec.143,144,145 & 147 expressly depart from and over ride provisions of Code of criminal procedure - Similarly provisions of Sec.146 depart from principles of Indian Evidence Act - Person giving evidence on affidavit, on being summoned at instance of accused must start his deposition in Court with examination-in-chief - Sec.137 of Evidence Act does not define "examine" to mean and include three kinds of examination of witnesses, it simply defines "examination-in-chief", "cross-examinaion" and re-examination - Court may at its discretion call a person giving his evidence on affidavit and examine him as to facts contained therein - But if Application is made either by prosecution or by accused Court must call person giving his evidence on affidavit again to be examined as to fact contained therein - A person who has given is evidence on affidavit and has been cross-examined can be summoned for re-examination - Sec.296 of Cr.P.C does not have any relevance - Crucial difference between 296 (2) of Code and 145 (2) of Act is that former deals with evidence of a formal nature whereas under latter provision, all evidence including substantial evidence may be given on affidavit - Sec.296 is part of elaborate procedure of regular trial under Code while object of Sec.145 (2) is to design a much simplier and swifter trial procedure departing from elaborate code and time consuming trial procedure of Code - Provisions of Secs.143 to 147 of Act do not take away any substantial right of accused - Those provisions are not substantative but procedural in nature and would, therefore undoubtedly apply to cases that were pending on date of provisions came into force - Case of complainant u/Sec.138 of Act would be based largley on documentary evidence - Accused on other hand in large number of cases may not lead any evidence at all and let prosecution stand or fall on its own evidence - This is basic difference between nature of complainant's evidence and evidence of accused in a case of dishonoured of cheque - View, taken by High Court that on request made by accused Magistrate may allow him to tender his evidence on affidavit - Erroneous. Mandvi Co-Op-Bank Ltd. Vs. Nimesh B. Thakore 2010(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 101.

NOTARIES ACT, 1952:

——Sec.145(1) - Dishonourof cheque - Evidenceon affidavit - Sec.145(1) of NI Act is self explanatory and over-rules the requirement of examination of complainant on solemn affirmation u/s 200 Cr.P.C - Cognizance of complaint can be taken without complying the mandateZ of Sec.200 Cr.P.C. A.C.Narayan Vs. State of Maharashtra2016(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 31.

NOTARIES ACT, 1952:

—Secs.8,9,12,13 & 15 - NOTARIES RULES, 1956, Rules 8, 4-A, 7(3)(b) and Rule 14 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.19(1) (g) and 19(6) - "Appointment of notaries" - Petitioner/Advocate filed Application for considering his candidature for appointment as a Notary - 3rd respondent/Commissioner & Inspector General and Stamps, Govt., of A.P., turned down request of petitioner through his proceedings on ground that maximum number of notaries that can be appointed for State of A.P., is fixed at 575, whereas there were already 1256 notaries appointed and hence no fresh appointment can be considered to be made in near future - Maximum number of Notaries mentioned in Schedule to be appointed to by State of A.P., is standing at 863, whereas by date of introduction of sub-rule 4-A of Rule 8, total number of Notaries appointed was standing at 1256 and thus there number exceeded ceiling - By virtue of 2nd proviso to sub-rule 4-A, if all these 1256 notaries seek further renewal of their certificates of practice and if they are otherwise entitled to be granted such renewals, no fresh appointment can ever be made, by State of A.P. - In other words no appointments of notaries are likely to be made in State of A.P. in near future - Whether that would amount to imposing a kind of prohibition on fresh entrants, who seek or desire to practice as notaries, is question that falls for consideration.

PARTITION:

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, ART.19(1) (g)and 19(6) - "REASONABLE RESTRICTIONS" - When once it is recognized that performing functions of a Notary is a profession, any regulatory mechanism that can be contemplated should lead to an appropriate way of regulating profession, but ideally, shall not result in imposing total prohibition - Art.19(1) (g) of Constitution has granted a fundamental freedom to carry on any profession to our citizens - Such fundamental freedom can be regulated by law in terms of Cl.6 of Art.19.

Determination of what factors constitutes a reasonable restriction can be subjected to judicial review for purpose of ascertaining as to whether restriction imposed is reasonable or unreasonable and as to whether it is necessary or unnecessary restriction upon lawful occupations, rationale behind measure can be tested - When Govt. seeks to override a basic freedom guaranteed to citizen, same may be viewed as reasonable in very exceptional circumstances and within narrowest limits and cannot receive judicial approval as a general pattern of reasonable restriction on fundamental rights - Imposition of restriction on maximum number of notaries to be appointed in each State, has in fact no basis or bearing for any evil that it sought to be checked or remedied - By appointing a large number of Notaries, conceivably there cannot be any problem created for State or administration or citizens - Services of a professional Notary, would only become available to Society in a good measure, should requirement in that regard be felt - Functions liable to be performed by a professional Notary cannot be restricted by imposing a ceiling on total number of notaries that can be appointed for each State - There is no nexus between mischief that is sought to be suppressed and fixation of quota - Sub-Rule 4-A of Rule 8 of Notaries Rules declared as unconstitutional - Writ petitions, allowed - Respondents directed to take up applications of petitioners for appointment as Notaries - Writ petitions, allowed. P.K.D. Prasada Rao Vs. Union of India, 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 162 = 2012(4) ALD 558 = 2012(5) ALT 719.

PARTITION:

—and - REGISTRATION ACT, Sec.17(1) (e) - Suit for partition - Trial Court passed preliminary decree directing partition of suit schedule properties into two equal shares by metes and bounds - Thereafter final decree passed accepting report of Advocate Commissioner and engrossed on non-judicial stamp papers and same forwarded to Sub-Registrar - Meanwhile plaintiff died and his wife filed Application to recognize her as legal representative of deceased plaintiff and insert her name in final decree duly erasing name of her husband in Court order - Trial Court dismissed Application on ground that Court has become functus officio and cannot recognize any representative to deceased, who died subsequent to passing of final decree - In this case, admittedly final decree engrossed on NJ stamp papers and sent to Sub-Registrar - There is a gap of four months between passing final decree and sending engrossed final decree for registration - In meanwhile, though original plaintiff submitted NJ stamp papers on 2-1-2009, he died on 4-2-2009 - In such situation, if name of legal representative is not inserted in final decree in place of deceased original plaintiff, it would result in miscarriage of justice and also render whole exercise of trial in suit, preliminary decree and passing or final decree futile - In such circumstances, even though engrossing of final decree is ministerial act till proper registration is made giving finality to Court proceedings, Court cannot be described as functus officio - If name of petitioner who is admittedly wife of deceased, original plaintiff, is not inserted in final decree, it would result into another proceeding - Court below ought to have exercised its inherent power in dealing with application - Impugned order, set aside - Application is allowed and Court below directed to insert name of petitioner in place of deceased original plaintiff - Revision, allowed. Lakanam Venkata Ramana Rao (died) per L.R Vs. Ponnamanda Alivelamma 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 289.

PARTITION:

---Hindu joint family - Suit for partition and possession of separate of 1/3rd filed against 1st defendant and defendants 4 to 13 who are other alienees of the plaint schedule properties alleging that said alienation are collusive and nominal and not binding on plaintiff - 1st defendant filed detailed written statement admitting relationship but seriously disputed remaining allegations in plaint and that plaint schedule properties are his own and self acquired properties and exercising individual rights alienated properties - Trial Court passed decree for partition holding that D.W.1 not a bona fide purchaser of value and that 1st defendant failed to establish that suit schedule properties are self acquired properties - In a suit of this nature burden is entirely on plaintiff to prove existence of joint family property or at least availability of a nucleus which is sufficient to acquire properties claimed as joint family properties - In present case does not establish either of two- Even existence of joint family is not established by plaintiff and thereby no presumption can be drawn in favour of plaintiff - In this case, admittedly there is clear absence of any ancestral property or nucleus as admitted by plaintiff - 1st defendant has started earning as a coolie initially and then worked on Soda machine by taking it on lease from P.W.3 and later started his own business and earned monies out of same - Contention of plaintiff therefore is itself not established apart from fact that there is no evidence to establish existence of any joint family or any property acquired through funds of joint family - Conclusions of trial Court, therefore that evidence of P.W.1 and P.W.3 is believable and issue no.1 being decided accordingly, are therefore clearly perverse - Lower appellate Court fell into same error - Therefore it is clear and evident that judgments of both Courts below are opposed to settled to legal possession and there are serious errors of appreciation of evidence including error in shifting burden of proof on to defendants than that of plaintiff - Both impugned judgments are perverse and hence, set aside - Second appeal, allowed. B.Nadamuni Chetty Vs. P.Krishna Reddy 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 373 = 2011(2) ALD 828 = 2011(2) ALT 362.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

– Ouster is a weak defence in a suit for partition of family property and it is strong if the defendant is able to establish consistent and open assertion of denial of title, long and uninterrupted possession and exercise of right of exclusive ownership openly and to the knowledge of the other co-owner.

Res judicata – Dismissal earlier suit of wife for possession on the basis of settlement deed executed by husband in her favour will not be a bar for claiming her birth share - Later suit for partition for plaintiff's one-half share in the property is maintainable as cause of action is entirely different. Nagabhushanammal (D) by Lrs. Vs. C.Chandikeswaralingam 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 61 = AIR 2016 SC 1134 = 2016(4) SCC 434 = 2016(3) ALD 92 (SC).

– "Doctrine of pious" obligation plaintiff will be liable even after partition for pre-partition debt of D1 provided if debt was not immoral or illegal and for payment of which no arrangement was made at date of partition.

As loan was borrowed for purpose of improving joint family lands, loan would ipso facto be for legal necessity and it would be joint family debt for which all joint family property would be liable - In such a case only effect of partition was that after disruption of joint family status by partition, the father had no right to deal with the property by sale or mortgage even to discharge an antecedent debt nor was the son under a legal obligation to discharge the post-partition debts of the father.

It can be emphatically said that D3 can enforce the pious obligation against plaintiff and D2 even without making them as parties in the suit filed by him. Running the risk of pleonasm, the debt was a pre-partition debt and it was not tainted with any immorality and as such the share of plaintiff shall also be liable to discharge the said debt.

In view of the above findings, judgment of appellate Court in A.S.No.47 of 1998 insofar as its granting preliminary decree for partition in favour of plaintiff in respect of items 1 and 2 of plaint A schedule is liable to be set aside. Palaparthi Manikyam Vs. Palaparthi Venkata Satyanarayana 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 380 = 2016(5) ALD 791 = 2016(5) ALT 295.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—-Sec.34 - To invoke Section 34 Indian Penal Code, it must be established that the criminal act was done by more than one person in furtherance of common intention of all - It must, therefore, be proved that: (i) there was common intention on the part of several persons to commit a particular crime and (ii) the crime was actually committed by them in furtherance of that common intention - Common intention implies pre-arranged plan - Essence of liability Under Section 34 Indian Penal Code is conscious mind of persons participating in the criminal action to bring about a particular result. Sudip Kr. Sen Vs. State of West Bengal 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—-Secs. 34, 120-B, 201 and 302 - Prosecution has examined PW-1 to PW-30 and marked Exs.P-1 to P-42 - Appellants have not examined any witnesses, but marked Ex.D-1, a portion of statement of PW-16 recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C - On appreciation of oral and documentary evidence, Sessions Judge convicted and sentenced appellants - This is a case based purely on circumstantial evidence - Motive set up by prosecution is founded on alleged extra-marital relationship between A-1 and A-4, the wife of Easwaraiah, who was killed - As motive plays a pivotal role in a case based on circumstantial evidence, Court has to carefully appreciate evidence pertaining to this aspect.

Held, if this Court examine testimony of PW-4 and PW-5 from this perspective, Court strongly feel that these witnesses were evidently tutored to plant theory of illicit intimacy to

A-1 - As noted hereinbefore, while evidence of PW-1, brother of Easwaraiah was vague on this aspect, in their evidence PW-2 and PW-3, another brother and sister of deceased, did not utter a word about this aspect - On contrary, PW-3 has attributed intention of grabbing property of her brother Easwaraiah as reason for A-1 to A-5 to kill him - For all these reasons, this Court feel that it is not safe to believe version of PW-4 and PW-5 on aspect of alleged illicit intimacy between A-1 and A-4 – This Court opinion, prosecution has failed to prove alleged illicit intimacy between A-1 and A-4 and consequently it also failed to prove strong motive for A-1 to A-5 to eliminate deceased.

In instant case, prosecution plea is rested on corpus delecti being established, but it has failed to prove that dead body is that of Easwaraiah - As prosecution has come out with specific plea that dead body is that of Easwaraiah, its failure to prove this plea is fatal to its case - For reasons best known to prosecution, it has failed to send amplified D.N.A. of item Nos.3 to 5 of report dated 14-8-2007 and resultantly expert's opinion and D.N.A. samples could not be secured by prosecution - Thus, prosecution has miserably failed to establish that skull and bones are that of Easwaraiah and thereby it has failed to establish crucial link i.e., corpus delecti.

Only basis on which they were sought to be linked to be that of Easwaraiah was a pair of chappals allegedly found lying near the dead body - The said chappals were said to have been sold by PW-7 who deposed that they were sold to Easwaraiah about four months prior to incident - Court perceive this piece of evidence as wholly incredulous for reason that PW-7 being a shop keeper keeps selling chappals to various customers and it may not be possible for him to remember what type of chappals were sold by him to different customers, that too after a gap of four months after alleged sale.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

As time gap between date of missing of Easwaraiah i.e., 17-7-2005 and 15-8-2005 being 28 days only, if really dead body was that of Easwaraiah, there was no possibility of same getting reduced to state of only skull and bones within such a short duration - All this would lead to reasonable doubt that not being able to trace out Easwaraiah who went missing, Police has planted skull and bones belonging to someone else -Another facet of prosecution case which sounds highly unnatural and improbable is alleged involvement of A-5, wife of A-1, in alleged murder of deceased - As per prosecution theory, motive for murder is alleged extra marital relationship between A-1 and A-4 - If that be so, it is highly unthinkable that A-5, wife of A-1, will be part of conspiracy to do away with husband of A-4 to facilitate her husband (A-1) to continue extra marital relationship with A-4, detrimental to her interests.

Court below has failed to properly appreciate evidence on record and convicted appellants and sentenced them in absence of strong evidence establishing the guilt of appellants beyond reasonable doubt - In the result, Criminal Appeal is allowed. Mekala Muralimohan @ Murali Vs. State of A.P. 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 705.

—Secs.34, 120-B, 420 - Criminal Petition filed under Sec.482 of Cr.P.C. - Contentions in the grounds of the petition seeking to quash the proceedings are that it is purely a Civil dispute and the Criminal proceedings are nothing but abuse of process by influencing police and misusing the position and no criminal offence is made out prima facie - Held, the complainant, by suppressing facts by abusing the process, filed the complaint - Therefore, the complaint proceedings that was filed before the learned Magistrate by the complainant, in turn referring to police for investigation u/Sec.156(3) of Cr.P.C. is outcome of suppression of the material facts and the police also without proper investigation simply relied on his complaint version and filed the charge sheet by converting the civil dispute into a criminal prosecution, which is nothing but abuse of process of law - Accordingly, the Criminal Petition is allowed quashing the proceedings of Magistrate, that was taken cognizance from the police final report by the learned Magistrate against the petitioners/A1 to A3 and also the A4, who is not even a party, for nothing survives even against him because of the proceedings quashed against the petitioners/A1 to A3. Indu Dalmia Vs. State of A.P. 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.)174

—-Secs. 34 and 302 - Sessions Court found accused guilty of offence punishable u/Sec. 302 read with 34 IPC and accordingly, sentenced them to undergo imprisonment for life and to pay fine of Rs. 500/- - According to PW1, while he was returning after purchasing chips, he observed from a distance of 10 feet accused attacking deceased, who was pillion-riding with him - Upon raising hue and cry accused ran away - Deceased fell down on road and it was PW1 who shifted him to local government hospital - Then about 11.30 PM, he went to police station and lodged complaint in which he stated that he had seen 5 or 6 persons, who attacked his brother-in-law (deceased) and that deceased died on spot and that one SG, reporter of Vartha newspaper, was responsible for death of deceased because of defamation case filed against him - It was also alleged that said SG threatened deceased to withdraw defamation case and since it was not done, SG got executed a murder with help of hired killers - Accused filed this appeal against judgment and sentence of Sessions Court.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

Held, burden is lying heavily on prosecution to establish that it is SG, who has hired A1, A2 and A3 for accomplishing the crime - No evidence is produced in that regard - That was missing completely - In absence of any material for suspecting role of accused for commission of offence, it becomes very difficult for Court to believe that it is A1, A2 and A3, who alone have committed the crime - To cover up, PW1 has improved case, by attributing motive for offence to A1 and A2 - Thus the original theory of hired killers, as mentioned in Ex.P1 was changed to that of direct action for a motive - Only repeated answer furnished by PW10 was confession said to have been made by A1 to A3 no sooner they were apprehended around 2.30 PM near APSRTC bus stand, Mahaboob Nagar is so artificial - It does not inspire any confidence in Court mind, for such an event to occur at all in less than 30 minutes of their apprehension at a public place - This apart, a confession said to have been made to a police officer can never be made basis for convicting.

For all above said reasons, we are convinced that prosecution has failed to establish that it is A1 to A3, who have committed offence charged against them and hence, they are entitled to be acquitted.

Accordingly, both appeals are allowed - Judgment and sentence rendered on file of Sessions Judge is set aside. Rajamoori Ram Reddy Vs. State of A.P., 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 15 = 2016(2) ALD(Crl) 91 = 2016(1) ALT(Crl) 227(AP).

—Secs.34, 302, 342 - Theory of 'last seen' of the deceased in the company of Accused Nos.1 and 2 has no credible basis for Court to subscribe to that view - When once theory of 'last seen' together by Accused No.1 with the deceased falls to ground, there is no other circumstance, which could link the death of the deceased to Accused No.1 – Court, therefore of opinion the prosecution has failed to establish guilt of Accused No.1 beyond all reasonable doubt, deserves to be accepted - In the result, the criminal appeals are allowed. Shaik Baji @ Repalle Baji Vs. State of A.P. 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 201

—Sec.84 – EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.105 – Appellant/ accused convicted for offence punishable u/Sec.302 IPC – High Court dismissed Appeal filed by accused - Distinction between "legal insanity" and "medical insanity" – Stated – There is no definition of "unsoundness of mind" in IPC – However Courts have mainly treated this expression as equivalent to insanity – Term "insanity" itself has no precise definition - It is a term used to describe varying degrees of mental disorder – So every person who is mentally deceased, is not ipso facto exempted from criminal responsibility – A distinction is to be drawn between "legal insanity" and "medical insanity" – Court is concerned with "legal insanity" and not with "medical insanity" - In dealing with cases involving defence of insanity, distinction must be made between cases, in which insanity is more or less proved and question is only as to degree of irresponsibility and cases in which insanity is sought to be proved in respect of a person, who for all intents and purposes, appears sane - Mere fact that accused is conceited, odd iraseible and his brain is not quite alright, or that physical and mental ailments from which is suffered had rendered his intellect weak and had affected his emotions and will, or that he had committed certain unusual acts, in past or that he was liable to recurring fits of insanity at short intervals or that he was subjected to getting epileptic fits but there is nothing abnormal in his behavior, or that his behavior was queer, cannot be sufficient to attract application of Sec.84 - In this case, evidence discloses that appellant was calm and quiet and he was neither angry nor was shouting and doctor indicated that appellant accused is normal – Order of trial Court and High Court justified – Appeal, dismissed. Siddhapal Kamala Yadav Vs. State of Maharashtra 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 187.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.96 & 97 - Right of private defence - While complainant preparing boundary damaged by accused in his field, accused variously armed came and gave blows with their weapons to complainant and his father and subsequently father died - Trial Court convicted accused for offence u/Secs.323 & 308 - Appellants contend that evidence clearly established that accused persons were exercising their right of private defence - RIGHT OF PRIVATE DEFENCE - Right given u/Sec.96 to 98 and 100 to 106 is controlled by Sec.99 - To claim right of private defence extending to voluntary causing of death, accused must show that there are circumstances giving rise to reasonable grounds for apprehending that either death or grievous hurt would be caused to him - Burden is on accused to show that he had right of private defence which extended to causing of death - It is a right of defence, not of retribution, expected to repeal unlawful aggression and not as retaliatory measure - In this case, appellants exceeded right to self defence and protection for exercising right of private defence cannot be extended to appellants - Appropriate conviction would be u/Sec.304 Part-1 IPC. Genda Singh Vs. State of U.P. 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 263.

—Secs.96 & 97 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.313 - "Right of private defence" - Appellant and his father were prosecuted for causing death of deceased - Trial Court after marshalling entire evidence came to conclusion that seeing from all angles probabilities of case are much more in favour of defence than in favour of prosecution and prosecution failed to prove its case against accused person beyond any reasonable doubt and benefit has to be given to them and thus acquitted - SCOPE AND FOUNDATION OF PRIVATE DEFENCE AND PRINCIPLES EMERGE ON SCRUTINY OF JUDGMENTS - STATED - High Court reversed trial Court's judgment of acquittal and convicted accused - In this case, High Court in impugned judgment has not followed consistent legal position as crystallized by various judgments of Supreme Court - High Court or Appellate Court would not be justified in setting aside a judgment of acquittal on ground that version given by complainant is more truthful - High Court without properly comprehending entire evidence on record and reversed well reasoned judgment of trial Court - Hence impugned judgment of High Court, set aside and judgment of acquittal of trial Court, restored. Darshan Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2010(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 83.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.96, 97and 302 r/w 34 - Self-defence - Trial Court convicted accused/respondents - High Court acquitted accused accepting plea of exercise of right of private defence - Appellants contend that High Court has acted on surmises and conjectures and has accepted plea of exercise of right of private defence - High Court accepted plea of private defence without any material to substantiate plea and abruptly came to conclusion that right has been exercised and accused persons were acting in self defence - Right of self-defence is a very valuable right, serving a social purpose and should not be construed narrowly - Person facing a reasonable apprehension of threat to himself cannot be expected to modulate his defence step by step with any arthmetical exactitude of only that much which is required in thinking of a man in ordinary times or under normal circumstances - In this case, High Court wrongly interpreted opinion of Doctor and clearly overlooked relevant material so far as aspect of alleged non-explanation of injuries on accused - Evidence clearly shows that though there may be at some points of time exercise of private defence by respondents existed, same has been exceeded - Respondents therefore convicted u/Sec.304 Part-1 IPC. Ram Pyare Mishra Vs. Prem Shanker 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 39.

—Secs.96 r/w 102 & 105, 99 & 302 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.193 & 378 - When deceased asked accused not to graze goats in their land, accused gave a blow of axe on his head causing death - Trial Court convicted accused for offence u/Sec.302 IPC - High Court, set aside conviction - Accused took stand, when they were trying to drive away goats which entered into field of deceased he beat them with lathi that by exercising private defence two blows were given by accused - High Court accepted stand of accused holding that right of private defence is available - RIGHT OF PRIVATE DEFENCE - Burdenof establishing plea of self-defence is on accused and burden stands discharged by showing preponderance of probabilities in favour of that plea on basis of material on record - Accused need not prove existence of right of private defence beyond reasonable doubt - It is enough for him to show as in civil case that preponderance of probabilities is in favour of his plea - Burden is on accused to show that he had a right of private defence which extended to causing of death - Right of private defence commences, as soon as a reasonable apprehension of danger to body arises from an attempt or threat, to commit offence, although offence, may not have been committed but not until there is that reasonable apprehension - Right lasts so long as reasonable apprehension of danger to body continues - No restrictions have been imposed by legislature on powers of appellate Court in dealing with appeal against acquittal - When such appeal is filed, High Court has full power to reappreciate, review and reconsider evidence at large, material on which order of acquittal is founded and to reach its own conclusion on such evidence - Appellate Court has full power to review, reappreciate upon which order of acquittal is founded - CRPC, puts no limitation, restrictions or condition on exercise of such power - High Court rightly held that appellant accused was exercising right of private defence - Appeals, dismissed. Satya Narain Yadav Vs. Gajanand 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 13 = 2008(2) ALD (Crl) 785(SC) = 2008(5) Supreme 647 = 2008 AIR SCW 5562.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.96, 106, 302 and 304 and CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.313 - 'Right of Private Defence' – Statement of Accused - Limitations of Right of Private defence – stated - Limitations of Right of private defence prescribed u/Secs. 96 to 106 of IPC and such right can be exercised only to defend unlawful action and not to retaliate – Circumstances must show that the Court can find that there was apprehension to life or property or of grievous hurt then only right of private defence is in operation – Person exercising right of private defence is entitled to stay and overcome threat - Dimension of injuries may not be serious, it is situs of injuries that would indicate wheather the accused could reasonably entertain apprehension that atleast grievous injuries/hurt would be caused to him by assaulters – Non-explanation of Injuries on person of accused cannot be held to be fatal to prosecution - In this case, evidence on record also does not establish that injuries caused on body of deceased must in all probability cause his death or likely to cause his death – On spur of moment, during heat of exchange of words accused caused injuries on the body of deceased which caused his death – Therefore ingredients of murder as defined in Sec.300 of I.P.C have not been established against the accused – Hence accused is guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder u/Sec.304 I.P.C - In absence of motive and intention to kill accused cannot be convicted u/Sec.302 of I.P.C - Conviction of accused u/Sec.302 of I.P.C set aside, but held him guilty of offence u/Sec.304 of I.P.C and sentenced him to seven years RI with fine – For offence u/Sec.324 and Sec.27 of Arms Act passed by trial Court, affirmed – Appeal disposed of accordingly. Manjeet Singh Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh 2014(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 26

—Secs. 109, 302 - Reason assigned by the leaned Sessions Judge to convict the accused is absolutely a strained one – Court fail to understand the finding recorded by the learned Sessions Judge in paragraph 63 of the judgment rendered by him - The learned Sessions Judge has rightly construed that PW.13 is a crucial witness for unfolding the links between the accused and the crime - PW.13 is working as a Village Revenue Officer (V.R.O) - He was stated to have been summoned by the Circle Inspector of Police, the Investigating Officer and it is in his presence that the accused appear to have made the confessional statement about the offence - It is a pity that this witness has not even spoken that the confessional panchanama has been prepared as per the statement made by the accused - On the other hand, he has categorically stated that the confessional panchanama has been prepared by the police constable to the dictation of the Circle Inspector of Police, the Investigating Officer - Therefore, it is absolutely unsafe to place reliance upon PW.13 for holding the accused to be guilty of the offence - Thus, Court held that the prosecution could not establish the crime to have been committed by the accused/A.1 & A.2 beyond all reasonable doubt for the offences punishable u/Sec.302 read with 34 I.P.C respectively and therefore, the conviction and sentence recorded by the trial Court are unsustainable and the accused are entitled for acquittal - Accordingly, the Criminal Appeal is allowed setting aside the conviction and sentence recorded by the trial Court in its judgment. Madaboina Thuljaram Vs. State of A.P. 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 206

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.120-A - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.32(1) & 10 and 342 r/w Sec.164 Cr.P.C - "Dying declaration" - "Confessional statement" - "Statement of co-accused" - "Extra- judicial confession" - Sessions Judge acquitting accused/appellant for alleged offences u/Sec.302, r/w 120-B and also u/Sec.307 - High Court reversed judgment of acquittal passed by Sessions Judge, taking into account, such as motive behind act as well a statement of bystander - In this case, prosecution has not able to adduce any material evidence to corroborate statements of P.Ws.1 & 2 - Mere circumstantial evidence to prove involvement of appellant is not sufficient to meet requirements of criminal conspiracy u/Sec.120-A of IPC - A meetings of minds to form criminal conspiracy has to be proved by placing substantial evidence and that respondent State has not adduced any evidence which underlines same - DYING DECLARATION - Admissibility - Dying declaration cannot be used as evidence u/Sec.32 of Evidence Act though it was recorded as dying declaration - In this case, at time when P.W.1 gave statement he would have been under expectation of death but that is not sufficient to wiggle into cassette of Sec.32 - As long as maker of statement is alive it would remain only in realm of statement recorded during investigation - When statement is recorded as dying declaration and victim survives, such statement need not stand strict scrutiny of dying declaration, but may be treated as a statement u/Sec.164 Cr.P.C - CONFESSIONAL STATEMENT - Sec.164 Cr.P.C provides guidelines to be followed for taking statement of accused as a confession - One essential condition is that it must be made voluntarily and not under threat or coercion - If Confession appears to Court to have been caused by inducement, threat or promise such as is mentioned in Sec.24 of Evidence Act, it must be excluded and rejected brevi manu - Court should carefully examine confession and compare it with rest of evidence, in light of surrounding circumstances and probability of case - In this case, statement has neither been recorded by judicial Magistrate nor has it fulfilled procedural requirements, including that of certificate to be appended by Magistrate - Hence statement is not admissible against appellant as confession u/Sec.164 - EXTRA-JUDICIAL CONFESSION - Concept of extra-judicial confession is primarily a judicial creation, and must be used with restraint - Such confession must be used only in limited circumstances and should also be corroborated by way of abundant caution - When there is a case, hanging on extra-judicial confession corroborated only by circumstantial evidence, then Courts must treat same with utmost caution - Sec.10 of EVIDENCE ACT - It refers to statement of fellow conpirator that pertains to common intention behind act, and such statement can be used against other conspirators - In present case, prosecution failed to substantiate allegation of conspiracy against appellant - A1 could not be under any circumstances be called a co-conspirator so as to attract provisions of Sec.10 of Evidence Act - A post-arrest statement would not fall within ambit of Sec.10 of Evidence Act - Therefore statement made by A-1 in Police custody cannot be used to implicate appellant in conspiracy to murder deceased - Evidence adduced by prosecution against appellant not sufficient to justify his conviction u/Sec.302 or Sec.307 or u/Sec.120-B of IPC - Decision of High Court reversed - Appeals, allowed. S.Arul Raja Vs. State of Tamil Nadu 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.120-B, 419, 420, 468, 471 – PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1988, Secs.13(2) r/w 13(1)(d) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.239 - Mere violation of internal guidelines which have no force of a statute, not attract penal provisions - It must be noted that there is a marked difference between simple negligence and criminal negligence - Inspite of the guidelines, if a bank panel advocate failed to cause personal searches in the concerned offices and issued legal opinion only on the basis of documents referred to him, he may be attributed with negligence for which lapse bank may dispense with his services or complain to the Bar Council - However, to attribute criminal negligence, there must be an element of mens rea, without establishing which, no penal prosecution can be initiated. State (CBI/SPE,Hyderabad) Vs. K.Jaipal Reddy 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 61

—Secs.120-B, 420, 468, 471 - Offences alleged against petitioners are only u/Secs.120-B, 420, 468 and 471 of IPC - According to charge sheet allegations, in pursuance of criminal conspiracy, petitioners with a dishonest intention applied for loans for establishing poultry units and manufacturing poultry medicines without any lands for poultry units on their own to Andhra Bank, Shamsheergunj Branch, Hyderabad - In connivance with the officials of bank, petitioners obtained loan to extent of 81.25 lakhs under scheme of term loans and OCC facility and by availing said loan, lands were purchased subsequently and those lands were offered as security and thereby caused loss to the bank and obtained wrongful gain for them - Repayment of loan by petitioners began in 1996 and by date of FIR, substantial loan amount was paid back - Total amount paid by way of instalment was 70.29 lakhs and amount paid after settlement was 77.43 lakhs thus a total sum of Rs. 147.72 lakhs was paid and all loan account were cleared by middle of 2003 - Criminal Petition was filed by the petitioners to quash proceedings in C.C - Held, criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominantly civil flavour stand on different footing for the purpose of quashing particularly offences arising from commercial, financial, mercantile, civil and partnership or such like transactions or offences arising out of matrimonial relating to dowry etc., or family disputes - Correspondence between petitioners and Andhra Bank, it is clear that Bank accepted one time settlement and in pursuance of such settlement entire loan amount is paid and there is no grievance to Bank - Though petitioners' earlier petition was dismissed by this court in 2009 in view of several judgments of the Supreme Court, second petition is absolutely maintainable - Considering judgments of

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

Honorable Supreme Court, view that continuation of proceedings against petitioners would be futile exercise, therefore, to secure ends of justice, powers u/Sec. 482 Cr.P.C have to be exercised - For these reasons, Criminal Petition is allowed and proceedings in C.C.No. 3 of 2003 are hereby quashed. T.B.Shankar Rao Vs. C.B.I. State of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 384.

—-Secs.120-B, 504 & 506 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482- Criminal Petition against Order passed by lower court granting permission to police to conduct investigation for the offences - Petition sought quashing of said Order u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C on ground that it was passed without application of mind - Held, the impugned Order refers to according permission to conduct investigation on basis of report given by one person and it does not reflect anything more than lodging of a report - Hence, it cannot be said that impugned Order was passed by Magistrate after applying his mind to facts of case and appears to be case where learned Magistrate in a routine manner accorded permission for registration of a crime and investigation of case - Order under challenge passed without assigning any reasons and same deserves to be set aside - Concerned Magistrate was directed to pass an order showing application of mind to facts in issue while referring case to police for investigation into a non-cognizable offence - Indian Penal Code, Secs.120-B, 504, 506 & Cr.PC, S. 482 - Non-cognizable offence - Reasons have to be given by Magistrate while passing order to police to investigate them. S.Purnachandra Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 348 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 674.

—Secs.143,302, r/w 149 - “Inordinate delay in lodging FIR” - Sessions Judge convicting appellant/accused for causing death of deceased 1 & 2 - In this case, appellants and deceased 1 & 2 and material witnesses belong to different castes and belong to different village of same Gram Panchayat - Disputes arose on account of Panchayat elections - While deceased 1 & 2 proceeding in tractor, appellants formed into unlawful assembly by arming with axes, knives and bombs with common objects to kill deceased - Trial Court convicted appellant/accused relying on evidene P.Ws.1 & 2 and other material available on record - Appellants contend that there is inordinate delay in lodging FIR and also its reaching Magistrate and that oral evidence of P.Ws.1 & 2 is inconsistent with medical evidence and that trial Court ought to have acquitted appellants - It is not proper for Court to arrive at a conclusion that delay becomes fatal to case of prosecution - Delay of what ever duration it might be, if properly explained, cannot be said to be fatal to case of prosecution - In any event, while reappraising evidence of fact that since P.Ws.1 & 2 on whose evidence entire case of prosecution is based being no other than brothers of deceased 1 & 2, their version has to be scrutinized with utmost care and caution - Delay of 12 hours in lodging FIR and further delay in forwarding FIR to Magistrate for which there was no satisfactory explanation by prosecution, delay adversely affects prosecution case - Defence version that only after coming to know about existence of dead bodies on road, P.W.1 after due deliberations and consultations with people of their faction falsely implicated appellants is also quite possible - Trial Court ought not to have placed reliance on evidence of P.Ws.1 & 2 - Conviction recorded by trial Court, not proper - Appellants are entitled for benefit of doubt - Conviction, set aside - Criminal Appeal, allowed. Marella Chalama Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 165.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.147, 148, 364,302, r/w Sec.149 - ARMS ACT, Secs.25(1) (B) & 27 - A.P.P.S. Act, Sec.8(1) - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.40 to 44 - "Acquittal of co-accused" - After completion of investigation, Police filed charge sheet against 23 accused including petitioner - Accused tried in different S.C. numbers i.e. S.C.No.825/04, S.C.Noi.531/06 and S.C.No.177/05 and petitioner tried in separate S.C.No.2/2011 - He contends that since some S.C numbers in which accused are alleged to have committed offence along with present petitioner ended in acquittal after due trial by competent Court, on ground that there was no evidence that accused killed deceased same benefit should be extended to petitioner herein as there would be no purpose in proceeding against present petitioner and that pendency of case against petitioner amounts to abuse of process of law, therefore proceedings against petitioner in present complaint shall be quashed - Prosecution opposed contention of petitioner that acquittal of co-accused in a separate trial cannot be made basis for quashing proceedings against petitioner in present S.C number who is being separately tried and that petitioner has absconded himself from 1999 and after lapse of 10 years, he was arrested and now he is facing trial in S.C number 2/2011 which is likely to be concluded within one month - In criminal cases, each and every case has to be decided on merits of case - In present case, even though it is submitted by prosecution that petitioner was absconding for long time, there is no material to show that he absconded from facing trial and tried to flee from hands of justice - Absconding is word that has to be viewed in a proper manner - Mere absence of person to attend Court or face trial cannot be a ground to say such person is absconding - In this case, since petitioner's wife contested in election in year 2004, contention of prosecution that petitioner was absconding is totally not acceptable - However, whether petitioner is absconding is not question before Court - In all three cases all material witness turned hostile and did not support case of prosecution and more particularly person who lodged complaint has categorically introduced a new version that he has never lodged a complaint and he was asked to fix his thumb impression on a white paper and subsequently some contents were written on it - Close relatives of deceased have deposed that they were not aware of facts whether deceased was kidnapped and murdered and also they were not aware of cause for death of deceased - In these circumstances whether trial has to be proceeded against petitioner or not is question to be considered - While placing reliance on evidence recorded by competent Court, co-accused were acquitted - Evidence of witnesses was against case of prosecution - If evidence of witness is against some of accused then trial can be proceeded against a person who is facing trial - But in this case, witnesses more particularly witnesses those who claim to be eye witnesses to occurrence have turned hostile to entire case of prosecution - Thus in these circumstances pendency of case against petitioner in present S.C.No.2/11 is abuse of process of law and further trial against petitioner is a futile exercise - Proceedings initiated against petitioner/accused in S.C.No.2/11 are quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Pothula Suresh Vs. State of A.P. 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 266 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 181 (AP) = 2011(3) ALT(Crl) 177 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.147, 148,307, r/w Sec.149 - "Appreciation of evidence" - Trial Court convicting accused for offence u/Sec.324 IPC - Sessions Judge allowed appeal in part - Petitioners/ accused contend that they are falsely implicated in this case, in view of quarrels occurred previously and that alleged eye witnesses are closely related and that there is misreading of evidence and therefore judgments of Courts below have to be set aside - Revisional power of High Court should be exercised only when there is some glaring defect in procedure or manifest error on point of law resulting in miscarriage of justice - Normally re-appreciation of evidence is not permissible in Revision - But where in a case justice require interference for a correction of manifest illegality for prevention of gross miscarriage of justice, Revisional Court may re-appreciate evidence - However, in a case of misreading or non-reading of evidence tentamounting to perversity such finding can be certainly interfered in Revision - In this case, a careful reading of evidence of P.W.2 to 4 is parrot like - Both Courts have also not considered whether evidence of P.Ws.2 to 4 is parrot like or not, whether conduct of P.Ws. 2 to 4 is natural or not - Court may not accept a part of evidence of witness and when such part of evidence goes to root of case, Court cannot simply ignore same - Thus it appears to be a clear case of misreading of evidence which resulted in gross injustice and which required to be corrected in revision - Admittedly both Court have categorically held that participation of other accused except A1, A3 & A4 not proved - When it appears that certain accused have been falsely implicated in Criminal case and there appears to be no acceptable evidence or independent evidence to separate chaff from grain it may be just and reasonable to throw out entire prosecution case rather than to convict some of accused - Once it is found that there was an attempt to falsely implicate accused then what is guarantee that some of accused are not falsely implicated - Though it appears that P.W.1 was attacked and some persons caused injuries to him but when it is not possible to separate chaff from grain, all accused are entitled to benefit of doubt - In this case, Courts below have failed to read evidence correctly and when it appears that certain important points were not touched by lower Courts, it amounts to misreading of evidence and when there is misreading of evidence leading to incorrect conclusions, same results in miscarriage of justice - Impugned judgments, set aside - Revision, allowed. Paramata John Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 76.

—-Secs.147,149,302,323,380 & 436 - Member of unlawful Assembly - It is contendended that mere presence of the accused at the place of incident would not amount to their unlawful assembly - Court held that it is not necessary that all persons forming the unlawful assembly must be shown to have committed some overt act, rather they can be convicted u/Se.149, Indian Penal Code. Anup Lal Yadav Vs. State of Bihar 2014(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 56.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.149 – Common object – Interested witness – Trial Court convicting accused primarily placing reliance on evidence of P.W.1, son of deceased and P.W.2 brother-in-law of P.W.1 - High Court dismissing appeal - Merely because eye witnesses are family members their evidence cannot per se discarded – When there is allegation of interestedness, same has to be established – Mere statement that being relatives of deceased they are likely to falsely implicated accused cannot be a ground to discard evidence which is otherwise cogent and credible - "Common object" – "Common object" is different from 'common intention' as it does not require a prior concert and a common meeting of minds before attack – Where common object of unlawful assembly is not proved, accused persons cannot be convicted with help of Sec.149 – Sec.149 consists of two parts – 1st part of section means that offence to be committed in prosecution of common object must be one which is committed with a view to accomplish common object - Distinction between two parts of Sec.149 cannot be ignored or obliterated – Findings of trial Court and High Court - Justified – Appeal, dismissed. Maranadu Vs. State by Inspector of Police, Tamil Nadu 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 113 = 2008(2) ALD(Crl) 766 (SC) = 2008(6) Supreme 677 = 2008 Crl. LJ 4562 = AIR CW 6210.

—Secs.149 & 302 - Trial Court convicting accused for offence punishable for offences u/Sec. 302 r/w Sec.149 & 307 - "Common object" and "common intention" - Meaning of - Word "object" means purpose or design, and in order to make it "common", it must be shared by all - In other words, object should be common to persons, who compose assembly, that is to say, they should all be aware of it and concur in it - "Common object" is different from a "common intention", as it does not require a prior concert and a common meeting of minds before attack - It is enough if each has same object in view and their number is five or more and they act as an assembly to achieve that object. Raj Nath Vs. State of U.P., 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 95 = 2009(2) ALD (Crl) 282(SC) = AIR 2009 SC 1422.

—-Secs. 149 and 302 - According to prosecution version, accused including appellants belonged to one political party and deceased belonged to another political party and there were longstanding political feuds between them - Accused bore grudge against deceased as he gave evidence against appellant in one murder case - They also suspected deceased of causing death of one Usha Prakash - On the day of funeral of said Prakash, while deceased and PW 1,4,5,6,9 and 14 were chitchatting, all accused picked up quarrel with deceased and others saying that they would file a case against deceased for causing death of Prakash - Accused also attacked prosecution witnesses - Police received information and after reaching spot found deceased and nine others with injuries - Inquest of dead body of deceased was held in hospital next day and dead body was sent for post-mortem - Autopsy over dead body of deceased held that cause of death of deceased was due to haemorrhage and shock - Finally a charge sheet was filed in case after receiving all relevant documents.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

Appellant submitted alleged incident for which appellants and others have been prosecuted has not taken place in manner as set up by prosecution, that entire prosecution case falls to ground only reason that though incident has taken place at around 6 PM and information in respect thereof was passed on by P.W.s 1 and 10 over phone to Police, no F.I.R. was registered till 10.00 P.M.

Held, ordinarily, every omission in prosecution case is fatal - But, in a case of this nature, where Ex.P-1 report was prepared, admittedly after confabulations, with a delay of more than three hours, these omissions assume significance and give rise to a serious suspicion whether attack on deceased has taken place, in manner, in which it was projected by prosecution - Applying ratio of the judgment of the Supreme Court in Punati Ramulu, it follows that Ex.P-1 cannot be treated as an FIR, that investigation made by Police based on such report becomes tainted, that accused cannot be convicted based on such tainted investigation, more so, when more than one witness had admitted that discussions and deliberations had taken place before Ex.P-1 was drafted and that whole prosecution theory is untrustworthy as is evident from the fact that there are many material contradictions and omissions in case as projected by it.

In these facts and circumstances of case, Court opinion that due to failure of investigation agency to conduct proper investigation, commencing from time of registration of FIR and various omissions and contradictions in its case, it is not safe to convict the accused - For aforementioned reasons, conviction and sentence recorded against all appellants/accused for respective offences punishable under Section 324 read with Section 149 IPC, Section 148 IPC and Section 302 IPC read with Section 149 IPC are set aside - Criminal Appeal is, accordingly, allowed. Bheemgonda,Vs. State of A.P. 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 261.

—Sec.182 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.195 and 468 - Magistrate took cognizance for offence u/Sec.182 IPC against petitioner/A1 alone though complaint filed against from accused persons - Hence present Criminal petition - Petitioner challenging order of Magistrate on two grounds viz., for taking cognizance under Sec.182 IPC Magistrate has to follow Sec.195 Cr.P.C and that he has not followed - Secondly that offence u/Sec.182 IPC is punishable with imprisonment of six months and as per 468 Cr.P.C., there is a bar to take cognizance of offence prescribing certain limitation for offence under Sec.182 IPC. period of limitation is one year but from allegations from complaint itself it is barred by limitation - From reading of Sec.182, false information with an intention to cause public servant to use his lawful power to injury another person is an offence which is punishable with imprisonment of six months - To attract offence u/Sec.182 there must be material to show that false information was given to a public servant - Limitation as per Sec.468 Cr.P.C for an offence u/Sec.182 is one year - Admittedly it is not filed within that time - It is very clear from Sec.195 that for an offence u/Sec.182 IPC cognizance can be taken only on complaint from a public servant or a subordinate to public servant - Admittedly complainant herein i.e, respondent is not a public servant he is a business man - In this case, admittedly Magistrate took cognizance for offence under Sec.182 IPC though many offences are complained against petitioner herein and other accused - So when a clear bar is there under Sec.195 Cr.P.C taking cognizance on complaint of private individual is not in accordance with law, therefore incorrect - Proceedings in C.C - Quashed - Petition, allowed. Lata Jain Vs. Laxminivas Agarwal Hyderabad 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 147 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 659.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.191/193 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.344(1) - Petitioner is first informant in crime of Police Station relating to offences punishable u/Secs.143,348 etc., of IPC - After investigation police filed charge sheet in crime as CC - After trial Magistrate acquitted all accused - In this case, petitioner was examined as P.W.1 and he turned hostile to prosecution and did not support version contained in F.I.R/ his report Ex.P.1 - After pronoucement of acquittal in CC, trial Court gave show cause notice to petitioner as to why Court should not proceed against him u/Sec.344(1) Cr.P.C for giving false evidence knowingly on oath - Tral Court was of opinion that accused gave false evidence with an intention to help accused - Petitioner contends that since there are no two statements given on oath by same petitioner contrary to or inconsistent or irreconcilable with each other before trial Court, trial Court should not have proceeded against petitioner for trying offence u/Sec.191 punishable u/Sec.193 IPC against petitioner - Petitioner further contends that in absence of any finding of lower Court in judgment of acquittal passed in CC to effect that petitioner P.W.1 gave false evidence and is liable to be proceeded for giving false evidence knowingly in Court and that there is no finding of trial Court in judgment in CC to effect that petitioner gave false evidence before Court; and trial Court also did not express therein any opinion that petitioner should be proceeded with for “perjury” as per Sec.344(1)IPC - Before invoking Sec.344 Cr.P.C it is incumbent on Magistrate or Sessions Court to express opinion in judgment/ final order that witness had given false evidence knowingly or wilfully or had fabricated false evidence - Coupled with said finding, judgment/final order should contain satisfaction of Magistrate/ Sessions Judge as to necessity and expediency in interest of justice that such witness should be tried summarily for giving or fabricating false evidence - In absence of above two ingredients in its judgment, lower Court should not have resorted to procedure u/Sec.344(1) Cr.P.C. - In present case, petitioner as P.W.1 in CC did not subscribe to contents of Ex.P.1 report given by him to Police while giving evidence on oath in Court - It is no offence of perjury as defined in Sec.191 IPC and punishable u/Sec.193 as statement in FIR was not given by petitioner on oath in Court - When procedure prescribed under Sec.344 (1) Cr.P.C was not followed by lower Court and when allegations against petitioner do not attract offence u/Sec.191/ 193 IPC, it follows that registration of C.C in lower Court is nothing but abuse of process of law and petitioner cannot be asked to undergo rigmarole of trial for offence u/Sec.191/193 in that case - Order and registration of C.C against petitioner, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Malayanauru Anantha Anandacharyulu Vs. The State of A.P. 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 9 = 2012(2) ALD (Crl) 232 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.193 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.344 & 482 - "Perjury" - Petitioner/VRO figured as mediator in charge sheet filed by investigating Officer in Sessions case in which accused was tried for offence u/Sec.302 and ultimately acquitted by Sessions Judge on ground that procesution failed to establish guilt of accused - In this case, while rendering judgment, Sessions Judge observed that petitioner/P.W.7 signed on each page of panchanama, knowing that they would be used as evidence in Court in trial of murder case and gave contradictory version in Court - Making said observation Sessions Judge issued show cause notice u/Sec.344 Cr.P.C. against petitioner stating that he gave false evidence and therefore committed offence u/Sec.193 IPC - Mere fact that petitioner deposed contrary to contents of panchanama does not by itself indicate that petitioner gave false evidence - Panchanama cannot be treated as substantive piece of evidence - Unless contents mentioned in panchanama are spoken to by witness to said document, it cannot be said to be proved in course of trial before Sesions Judge - Except evidence of Investigating Officer there was no material before Sessions Judge showing that petitioner gave false evidence - Sessions Judge only indicated in notice that petitioner having signed panchanama gave evidence contrary to contents and therefore resorted to give false evidecene - View taken by Sessions Judge is misconceived and without their being any sufficient material before him had taken steps to prosecute petitioner according to provisions of Sec.344 of Cr.P.C and issued show cause notice - Show-cause notice issued by Sessions Judge, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. V.Bala Peddanna Vs. The State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 268 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 466 (AP) = 2013(3) ALT (Crl) 224 (AP).

—Sec.294, r/w Sec.109 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Petitioner running Bar and Restaurant after obtaining required permission and licences - Case foisted against petitioner u/Sec.294 alleging that management organizing obscene dances in guise of Orchestra - Though Bar and Restaurant is public place, but however there is no evidence which would go to show that any annoyance as such had been caused to others - It is also not case of prosecution that petitioners caused any annoyance to others - Ingredients of Sec.294 r/w Sec.109 IPC are not attracted even if allegation in charge sheet to be appreciated in proper perspective - Proceedings against petitioners, quashed. Seema Dass Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 362.

—Secs. 295-A, 427 & 447 - Admittedly, PW1 made enquiries and took the advice of his superiors before lodging the exhibit P1 report. Despite the said facts, the accused was not named as the culprit responsible for the incident- These aspects cumulatively throw any amount of doubt on the case of the prosecution in regard to the alleged involvement of the accused in the alleged crime - Moreover, the police after investigation did not file charge sheet against the Revenue Inspector or any other accused except the petitioner herein - The withholding of the earliest or the first information by the prosecution goes a long way and this by itself is a circumstance to extend a reasonable benefit of doubt to the accused, in the facts and circumstances of the case. PW1 is not a direct witness to the incident and for the reasons best known, he did not even name the accused as the person responsible for the incident in his belated report under exhibit P1 - Further, both PWs 2 and 3 have stated that there is a street light at or near the scene of offence and that they had identified the accused in the illumination of the said light when the incident had happened on the night of 17th during 10 to 12 midnight. However, the sketch of the scene of offence exhibit P9, exhibited by the investigating officer does not show the existence of any such electrical pole with light in on condition - Their evidence in this regard lays bare their interestedness in showing the complicity of the accused in the crime - Neither the catechist offering prayers or any member of the congregation was examined by the police during investigation and no such witness was examined during the course of trial in support of the version of the PW1 - Viewed thus, this court finds that the prosecution had failed to show that the accused is the person responsible for defiling or damaging the statue of Mary Matha, and hence, it follows that the prosecution had failed to bring home the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt by adducing the necessary evidence of the required standards - In the result, the Criminal Revision Case is allowed and the judgment of the court below confirming the judgment of conviction and sentences against the accused passed by the trial court is set aside in view of the finding that the accused is not guilty of the offence punishable under Section 295 of the IPC. Yeleboina Mariyadas Vs. State of A.P. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 298.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.279 & 304-A - Rash driving - Causing death by negligence - Appellant driver of bus causing death of child by driving bus rashly and negligently - Trial Judge categorically held that bus was being driven at high speed - Admittedly bus did not have any mechanical failure - There is concurrent finding of fact that bus was being driven rashly and negligently - No reason to take a different view - Not possible to re-appreciate evidence - Simple imprisonment for commission of offence u/Sec.304-A and one month simple imprisonment for offence u/Sec.279 IPC cannot be said to be shocking - Appeal, dismissed. B.Nagabhushanam Vs. State of Karnataka 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 222.

—Secs.297, 447, 427, 153-A r/w 34 - A.P.POLICE MANUAL STANDING ORDERS - Under influence of third respondent in W.P.No.7733 of 2015, false complaints were filed against the petitioner through unconcerned persons - Third respondent instigated BPR , MSR and KPR and they lodged false complaints against petitioner

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

in respect of petitioner's property in Sy.Nos.2, 3/2, 4/2 and 5/2 situated at Mallampally village and Station House Officer, Mulugu, Warangal District/fifth respondent in W.P.No.10421 of 2015 and sixth respondent in W.P.No.7733 of 2015 registered Cr.Nos.260/2013 dated 26.11.2013, 12/2014 dated 16.01.2014 and 252/2014 dated 07.10.2014 - Third respondent in W.P.No.7733 of 2015 instigated local rival persons to achieve his unlawful object and consistently put the petitioner in fear of injury in order to commit extortion and demanded huge amount of Rs.50,00,000/- as petitioner's family is well settled with landed properties, doing mining business and running a petrol pump - When petitioner declined to pay such huge amount, he instigated the above three persons and got filed the three false complaints and influenced the Station House Officer, Mulugu to register criminal cases against the petitioner and punish by affecting arrest and to suffer imprisonment by hook or crook with false evidence - Third respondent in WP.No.7733 of 2015 is using influence on revenue and police department to coerce petitioner to surrender and to oblige his unlawful demands - The Deputy Superintendent of Police, Mulugu, influenced the Station House Officer, Mulugu for opening the rowdy sheet and to exhibit the photograph of the petitioner in the rowdy sheets board in Police Station - Pleading above said action is illegal, void, without jurisdiction, violative of principles of natural justice, violative of Articles 14, 19, 21 and 300-A of Constitution of India and violative of Standing Order No.601 of the A.P. Police Manual Standing Orders and while praying to grant compensation of Rs.5,00,000/- to the petitioner herein, the present writ petitions have been filed before this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India - Held, nature of allegations made against the petitioner in the above FIRs against petitioner herein, do not by any stretch of imagination, fall within the parameters of Police Standing Order 601 nor allegations made in the teeth of above factual scenario would attract the ingredients of the said Standing Order - On the other hand, same are purely arising out of property disputes between the parties and no allegation of disturbance to public order and security is involved - In facts and circumstances of case, this Court has absolutely no scintilla of hesitation nor any traces of doubt to hold that impugned action of opening and continuing rowdy sheet against the petitioner is highly illegal, arbitrary and unreasonable and preposterous, iniquitous and reprehensible besides being patent infraction of fundamental rights guaranteed to petitioner herein under Chapter III of Constitution of India. M.Malla Reddy Vs. The State of Telangana 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 34

—Secs.300 & 302, r/w Secs.34 & 201 - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.3, 24 & 27 - "Murder" - "Circumstantial evidence" - "Extra-judicial confession" - Sessions Judge convicted and sentenced accused to suffer rigorous imprisonment for life - Division Bench of High Court affirmed conviction and confirmed sentence passed by Sessions Judge - Appellant/accused contends that trial Judge as well as Sessions Court not appreciated evidence brought on record in proper perspective keeping in view parameters laiddown by Apex Court in various Authorities relating to restriction of conviction on circumstantial evidence and as such, judgments are unsustainable in law - Reliance on extrajudicial confession before ZS & NS is unacceptable in as much as confession was made after 18 days which makes it absolutely dented and there is no earthly reason that appellant would confess before P.W.2 - Respondent contends that circumstance of "extra-judicial confession" cannot be disregarded despite some improvements in version of witnesses, as there is no suggestion that his version is tainted - Quite apart that after abscondance of accused B.S, he came and confessed before Court - Omissions which amount to contradictions in material particulars i.e. go to root of case/materially affect trial one core of prosecution case, render testimony of witness liable to be discredited - In this case, omissions and improvements which have been highlighted are absolutely minor - In this case, there is substantial reason to disbelieve disclosure of statement and recovery of weapon used and it is apt to mention that doctor who has conducted postmartem has clearly opined that injuries on person of deceased could be caused by weapon(blade or such spade) and said opinion has gone unrebutted - In this case, all there circumstances which have been established by prosecution complete chain - There can be no trace of doubt that circumstances have been proven beyond reasonable doubt - Prosecution is not required to meet any and every hypothesis putforward by accused - A reasonable doubt is not an imaginary, trivial or merely possible doubt, but a fair doubt based upon reason and commonsence, it must grow out of evidence in case - If a case is proved perfectly, it is argued that it is artificial; if a case has some inevitable flaws because human beings are proven to error, it is argued that it is too imperfect - Present case, is one where there is no trace of doubt that all circumstances complete the chain and singularly lead to guilt of accused persons - Judgment of conviction and order of sentence recorded by trial Judge, which has been affirmed by High Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Jagroop Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2012(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 13

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.300,302 & 307 - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.32 & 114 - "Bride burning" - "Multiple dying declarations" - Deceased admitted in hospital with 99% burning injuries and died during treatment - Sessions Judge found accused persons guilty and sentenced them for life imprisonment - High Court reversed judgment of Sessions Judge and acquitted accused - Respondents/accused contend that High Court has rightly held that no reliance could be placed on uncorroborated dying declaration - State contends that High Court has failed to notice fact that deceased in custody of respondents/ accused and therefore burden of explaining fact of burning is on accused persons and they have failed to provide any explanation when examined u/Sec.313 Cr.P.C and that High Court has not properly appreciated evidence of accused - In this case, there are not only material contradactions to in both declarations but also inter se descripences in depositions of witnesses as well - So far as evidence of P.W.3 is concerned deceased was only abusing her father-in-law and that was not even corroborated by other P.Ws. and that P.W.3 himself turned hostile - Due to descrapencies and contradiction between two dying declarations and also in absence of any reliable evidence, HIgh Court is justified in reversing order of conviction which calls for no interference - Appeals, dismissed. State of Rajasthan Vs. Shravan Ram 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 177.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302 - Allegation that A1 developed illicit intimacy with A2 and committed murder of her minor daughter by administering poison - Trial Court acquitted A2 and convicted appellant/A1 to undergo imprisonment for life - Contention that there is no direct evidence and circumstantial evidence relied upon by prosecution is shaky, in many respects and that there is inordinate delay of nine hours in submitting complaint - In this case, there is inordinate unexplained delay in filing complaint - None of witnesses have stated that they have seen appellant either procuring poisonous granules, much less administering same to deceased - Motive attributed to A1 is that she developed illicit intimacy with A2 and felt deceased as on obstruction for their affair - Except making a bald allegation that she developed illicit intimacy with A2, none of witnesses have spoken to any particular instance or consequential action in that regard - Though medical evidence suggests that death of deceased was on account of poisonous material, question as to manner in which poison came to be administered, remains almost a mystery - Suggestion made to PW3, brother of appellant that deceased died on account of humiliation and mental agony caused due to desertion of A1 by her father - Prosecution failed to prove charges against appellant - Conviction, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Bandaru Parvathi Vs. The State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 386 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 778 (AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 100 (AP).

—Sec.302 - Motive - Trial Court convicted appellant/accused for alleged commission of death of deceased by pouring kerosene and set her on fire - Prosecution contends that deceased in her statement to police, marked as Ex.P.1 stated that accused came to their house when she was alone and held her hand and asked her to forget, in context of their marriage - When deceased did not agree what was proposed by appellant, he poured kerosene on deceased and set her on fire - Appellant/accused contends that P.W.3 brother of accused and P.W.5 have stated that appellant poured water to extinguish fire on body of deceased, whereas neither in Ex.P.1 nor in Ex.P.31 dying declaration, there is reference to this fact and that other independent witnesses have been declared hostile and virtually nothing on record to hold appellant guilty of offence u/Sec.302 IPC - If dying declaration of deceased has an element of truth and probability, it can constitute basis for convicting accused even in absence of any corroborative evidence - In this case, there is material contradiction between Ex.P.1 and Ex.P.31 - In fact covering body of deceased with gunny bag by P.W.5 was subsequent to pouring of water by appellant/accused and this material fact was however omitted by deceased - Further, deceased did not speak about presence of her brother P.W.3 in both her statements and entire prosecution virtually rested upon evidence of P.W.3 - Under these circumstances it cannot be said that dying declarations are trustworthy - If in fact, intention of accused was to kill deceased, he would not have been first person to pour water and extinguish fire - Prosecution alleged that there was love affair between deceased and accused and motive for accused to have caused death of deceased was, that latter did not agree to forget

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

former - Assuming that appellant did not reciprocate gesture of deceased, one hardly expects him to have resorted to such a heinous crime - It is unthinkable that appellant got enraged only because deceased did not forget him - If he did not like deceased, he would have refused to respond and be done with it - No motive, worth its name, existed for appellant to have resorted to acts attributed to him - Conviction and sentence against appellant, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Nataru Govinda Reddy @ Govindu Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 337 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 539 (AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 124 (AP) = 2008 Crl.LJ 3296.

—Sec.302 - "Extra judicial confession" - Trial Court convicting appellant/accused for causing death of deceased, wife and daughter, basing on alleged extra judicial confession - Appellant/accused contends that there is delay of 18 days regarding alleged extra judicial confession of appellant/accused from date of occurrence; that some culprits might have killed deceased and appellant was falsely implicated and that appellant is nearing septuagenarian and a lenient view is to be taken - In this case alleged confessional statement of appellant was reduced into writing by Panchayat Secretary P.W.11 - Any statement reduced in writing before Police is inadmissible in evidence and such admission cannot be treated as an extra judicial confession and not a valid confession in eye of law - Surprisingly in this case no such extra judicial confession, which was allegedly reduced into writing by P.W.11, was brought on record - Procedure adopted and reasoning accorded by trial Court in this regard giving credence or according status of admissibility to that kind of piece of evidence cannot be sustained - Any confessional statement particularly when it was reduced into writing shall be beyond all reasonable doubt in order to attach unquestionable sanctity to it for purpose of conviction - Alleged confession made voluntarily by appellant, accused before P.W.11 was not on record - Extra judicial confession, which is basically a weak piece of evidence, shall not suffer from any kind of infirmities like doubt, suspicion etc - Since very case of prosecution based on evidence which is treated as extra judicial confession cannot be made as foundation to record an order of conviction - Reasoning assigned by trial Court, liable to be set aside - Hence, conviction of appellant accused, set aside - Criminal appeal, allowed. Srisala Mahalaxmi @ Mahalaxmi Vs. State 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 409.

—Sec.302 - 'Last seen theory' - Accused tried for offence u/Sec.302 and sentenced to undergo imprisonment for life - Appellant/accused contends that except circumstantial evidence that accused was seen in company of accused last by P.W.4, there is no other factor for conviction - In this case, entire question, boils down to whether theory of deceased was last seen in company of accused would be such as, that can fetch successfully conviction of accused or not - From chain of circumstances, time gap between 9 p.m when P.W. 4 as seen deceased in company of accused and retrieval of dead body of deceased at 6 a.m. on following day, acquires lot of significance and importance - Chain of events leading to death of deceased, has not been completely established - Presence of third parties at toddy hut where dead body of deceased found, cannot be ruled out - Hence benefit of doubt should have been given to accused - Conviction and sentence, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Tekulapally Narasimha Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 232.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302 - "Circumstantial evidence" - "Extra-judicial confession" - Sessions Judge convicting sole accused for offence u/Sec.302, causing death of deceased by strangulating with rope in Auto - Appellant/accused contends that except evidence of P.Ws.9 & 10, Deputy MRO and MRO who deposed about extra-judicial confession i.e. Ex.P.7, there is no other evidence to show that accused is assailant of deceased and that there is no immediate impetus for accused to give confessional statement to P.W.10 and that Ex.P.7 was fabricated and pressed in to service at instance of Police and in view of those suspicious circumstances it is not safe to place an implicit reliance on Ex.P7, so as to base conviction - Prosecution contends, unless accused gave statement in Ex.P.7, it would not be possible for P.Ws.9 & 10 to scribe such a lenghty statement as in Ex,P7 that trial Court rightly placed implicit reliance on evidence of P.Ws.9 & 10 and also recitals in Ex.P.7 - CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE - INGREDIENTS - Stated - Circumstances from which conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established and that facts so established should be consistent only with hypothesis of guilt of accused and that circumstance should be of conclusive nature and tendency and there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for conclusion consistent with innocence of accused and must show that in all human possibility act must have been done by accused - EXTRA JUDICIAL CONFESSIONS - Extra judicial confessions are those which are made by party elsewhere than before Magistrate or in Court; this term embracing not only express confessions of criminal, but all those admissions and acts of accused from which guilt may be implied - When witness who gave evidence about extra-judicial confessions, is reliable and words spoken by him are clear and unambiguous, such evidence can be relied upon it should be taken as a whole - It must be credible, cogent, and believable - There is no need for accused to go to Office of P.W.10 to give such lengthy statement especially when several other Govt., Officers are available in and around place, where accused was residing - Barring Ex.P.7, there is no other evidence to show that accused is assailant of deceased - Therefore if Ex.P7is eschewed from consideration, there is no other evidence to show that accused is assailant of deceased - Prosecution cannot be said to be proved its case against accused beyond all reasonable doubt for charge u/Sec.302 IPC - Accused entitled for acquittal - Criminal appeal, allowed. Gellela Thirupalu Vs. State of A.P. 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 209 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 659 (AP) = 2011(1) ALT(Crl) 340 (AP) = 2011 Cri. LJ (NOC) 376(AP).

—Sec.302 - "Eye witness" - "Chance witness" - Appellant/accused charged for offence u/Sec.302, r/w 34 IPC - Trial Court relied upon evidence of P.W.1 & P.W.2 convicted appellants u/Sec.302 r/w Sec.34 and sentenced for life imprisonment - High Court affirmed the conviction and sentence and dismissed appeal - EYE WITNESS - P.W.1 clearly stated that he was present at time of occurrence and has seen appellants with double barrel gun and single barrel gun and a Rifle with cartridges and he has also stated that when appellants fired, deceased who was driving motor cycle and also stated that he found deceased lying dead by gun shot on road and his father was lying by gun shot in paddy field - Evidence of P.W.1 could not have been doubted either by trial Court or High Court - CHANCE WITNESS - Evidence of P.W.2 could not be discarded on ground that he was only a chance witness - Incident took place when deceased were travelling on a motor cycle on road and P.W.2 was also coming on same road on his cycle when he saw incident - When a witness figures as eye witness in FIR he cannot be categorized as chance witness - Once it is accepted that P.W.1 and P.W.2 were present at -place of occurrence and their evidence was reliable, fact that other independent witnesses named in FIR have not been examined before Court cannot be a ground for not believing prosecution case - It is necessary for accused to throw a reasonable doubt that prosecution evidence is such that it must have been manupulated or shaped by reason of irregularity in matter of investigation or that he was prevented by reason of such irregularity from putting forward his defence or adducing evidence in support thereof, but where prosecution evidence has been held to be true and where accused had full say in matter conviction cannot obviously be set aside on ground of every irregularity or illegality in matter of investigation - In other words unless, lapses on part of investigation are such as to cast reasonable doubt about prosecution story or seriously prejudice defence of accused, Court will not set aside conviction - Appeal, dismissed. Hiralal Pandey Vs. State of U.P. 2012(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 40.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302 – Accused was convicted of murder of his daughter by trial Court – Appeal made before High Court against judgment – Held, prosecution witnesses consistent - Circumstantial evidence too corroborates prosecution version - Accused alone in company of deceased by time P1 and P2 (wife and son of accused) left house, accused not coming forward with any version of his own in relation to death of his daughter-even defence has not suggested any possibility of murder of the deceased committed by a third person, age of deceased was such no criminal can kill her in such gruesome manner, going to extent of cutting various parts of her body, that too in broad day light in midst of densely populated area – Conviction by trial Court upheld and appeal dismissed. Sk.Ramjani Vs. State of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 177.

—Sec.302 – Murder - Trial Court sentenced accused to life imprisonment - Appeal against sentence - Confession by accused that he has committed crime and consequently tracing of his torn shirt no doubt raises an element of suspicion against accused, but not conclusive proof, and benefit of it should go to accused - No clinching evidence on this aspect and no other circumstantial evidence - Held, it is difficult to hold that accused committed murder of deceased - Appeal, allowed. Mareppagari Kuppaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 244.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—-Sec. 302 - This Criminal Appeal is filed against judgment, whereby the appellant was found guilty for the offence under Sec.302 of the Indian Penal Code and sentenced to suffer rigorous imprisonment for life and to pay a fine of Rs.500/-, in default, to suffer simple imprisonment for one month.

Held, P.W-5, who is no other than wife of deceased, also testified that her husband and appellant used to move together and they were in friendly terms - If there was illicit intimacy between appellant and wife of deceased, and as a result of this if there was enmity between accused and deceased, P.Ws.1 and 2 being co- coolies, staying together in connection with coolie work outside their native place, would have certainly known this fact - Fact that neither of these witnesses has spoken about alleged intimacy coupled with fact that both have testified that deceased and appellant were in cordial terms would completely belie theory of prosecution that appellant and wife of deceased had illicit relationship and this was root cause for appellant to kill deceased - In a case based on circumstantial evidence, Courts must be circumspect in appreciating and evaluating the evidence.

In a case based on circumstantial evidence, settled law is that circumstances from which conclusion of guilt is drawn should be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature - Moreover, all circumstances should be complete and there should be no gap left in chain of evidence - Further, proved circumstances must be consistent only with hypothesis of guilt of accused and totally inconsistent with his innocence.

Prosecution failed to establish motive for appellant to kill deceased - The circumstantial evidence adduced by prosecution does not establish that all incriminating facts and circumstances are found incompatible with innocence of appellant - For reasons already recorded, even last seen theory also could not be established by prosecution - Therefore, this Court opinion that lower court has committed an error in convicting appellant.

In result, Criminal Appeal is allowed - Conviction and sentence recorded against appellant/accused are set aside. Palapatla Srinivasa Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 105 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 433.

—-Sec.302 - According to prosecution, accused/appellant burnt deceased and she died due to hyporalimic shock, approximately 12 to 16 hours prior to post-mortem examination - P.W.18 has sent seized material objects to Forensic Science Laboratory (FSL), through Sub-Divisional Police Officer, with a letter of advice - Assistant Director of FSL, issued report to effect that no flammable substances were found in material objects sent to them - After completion of investigation, P.W.18 filed charge sheet - The plea of appellant was one of denial - Therefore, prosecution has examined P.Ws.1 to 18 and marked Exs.P.1 to P.27 - No evidence was let in on behalf of defence - On appreciation of oral and documentary evidence, lower Court has disposed of case in manner as stated above.

Held, In face of a specific Rule by the Criminal Rules of Practice in form of Rule 33, which applies to the States of Andhra Pradesh and Telangana, it is incumbent on person who records dying declaration to put preliminary questions in order to know capability of declarant to make a declaration - In absence of such preliminary questions having been put to victim, though declaration cannot per se be treated as invalid, it raises a serious suspicion on its genuineness - Having regard to various suspicious features, as noted above, and in light of fact that all material prosecution witnesses have turned hostile, three declarations allegedly given by deceased do not inspire confidence in Court and it is wholly unsafe to convict appellant based only on these declarations, when nearest relations of deceased, such as her father, brother, sister and her own husband, have themselves turned hostile, and none of them in any way implicated appellant in the offence.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

For the afore-mentioned reasons, this Court of opinion that prosecution failed to prove guilt of appellant beyond all reasonable doubt and therefore conviction and sentence of appellant made by lower Court cannot be sustained - In result, Criminal Appeal is allowed - The conviction and sentence recorded against appellant/accused are set aside. Pathan Shafi Vs. State of A.P. 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 347 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 621 = 2016(2) ALT (Crl) 470.

—Sec.302 - A.P. POLICE MANUAL - A.P. POLICE STANDING ORDERS, 601(A) – "Habitual offender" - The grievance of the petitioner is as to the opening of a rowdy sheet in his name - According to him, he was only involved in one criminal case, which ended in his acquittal, but on the basis of this solitary instance, the police authorities opened a rowdy sheet in his name - Held, the opening of a rowdy sheet in the name of the petitioner on the basis of his involvement in a solitary criminal case was not sufficient to term him a 'habitual offender' under clause (A) of Order, 601 - Further, it is an admitted fact that he stood acquitted in the said case - Despite same, police authorities seem to have continued rowdy sheet in his name - This Court therefore has no hesitation in holding that opening of rowdy sheet in name of petitioner and continuance of the same thereafter was in utter violation of law laid down by this Court - Writ Petition is therefore allowed - Rowdy sheet opened in name of petitioner is accordingly quashed. K.Suresh Babu Vs. Superintendent of Police, Anantapur District 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 184

—Sec.302 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.174 & 313 - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.114 & 118 - OATHS ACT, Secs.4(1) - "Child witnesses" - A2 sister's son of A1/Husband poured kerosene on deceased/wife, A1 set fire toher causing injuries resulting death of deceased - Trial Court convicted A1 and acquitted A2 basing on evidence of child witness P.W.3 - Appellant/A1 contends that except child witness P.W.3 there is no other evidence to show that accused poured kerosene on body of deceased and set fire to her - Admittedly P.W.3 is under care and custody of his maternal grand mother who was examined as P.W.1, possibility of P.W.1 tutoring P.W.3 who is aged 7 years at the time of incident cannot be ruled out and if really A1 is assailant of deceased he would have fled away from scene of occurrence - Prosecution contends that when neighbours came to scene of occurrence A1 was merely standing without trying to extinguish fire, that there was continuous harassment meted out to deceased prior to incident - CHILD WITNESS - There cannot be any dispute that if evidence of child witness is found to be true and trustworthy and not on out come of tutoring or prompting by any relatives it can be acted on - Since children are prone to tutoring, much are and caution should be taken in appreciating evidence of child witnesses - In this case, statement of childwitness is laconically cryptic and tersely and does not reveal anything about sequence of events that took place on date of incident - He did not say as to reason for woke up and further he attributes specific overt-acts against A1 & A2 - When two views are reasonably possible, view which is favourable to accused should be adopted — In this case, circumstances indicate that immediately after incALTident appellant A1 rushed to house of P.W. 1 , and informed about incident - A1 also sustained burn injuries during course of same transaction and it is duty of resolution to cite doctor who examined and treated A1 - Facts of case suggest that he must have made some effort to put off flames on deceased, as result he sustained some burn injuries - Immediate conduct of A1 shows that possibility of deceased committing suicide for reason that she was not keeping good health cannot be ruled out in view of fact that prior to incident that deceased was being treated by sorcery - Therefore due to health problems and unable to overcome health condition, deceased might have committed suicide by setting fire to her- self - In the circumstances, it is not safe, to place an implicit reliance on solitary testimony of P.W.3 alone who is a child witness so as to base conviction - Prosecution miserably failed to establish guilt of A1 beyond all reasonable doubt - Appellant A1 is entitled to acquittal - Criminal appeal, allowed. Rajulapadu Rambabu Vs. State of A.P. 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 287 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 527(AP) = 2011(1) ALT(Crl) 367 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.374, and 293 - CRIMINAL RULES OF PRACTICE, Rule 58 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.62 - "Death by administration of cyanide poison" - Sessions Judge convicting appellant/accused u/Sec.302 to undergo life imprisonment for causing death of deceased by giving them liquor containing cyanide poison - Appellant/accused contends that report of Regional Forensic Science Laboratory does not show that accused as result of cyanide poison not establish and that bottle which was seized from scene of occurrence has not been sent to RFCSL to ascertain whether it contains any substance of cyanide and that important circumstances of motive and accused was in possession of cyanide poison, not establish by prosecution - In this case facts, appear to be in nature of hearsay evidence and it is not his objective observations or analysis - And his opinion is based upon analysis conducted by some other expert -In absence of marking Chemical Examiner report, opinion of Doctor is hit by rule of hearsay - Therefore case of prosecution that deceased consumed alcohol, which contained cyanide poison cannot be said to be proved beyond reasonable doubt - Therefore orgin and genesis of occurrence has been suppressed by prosecution and distorted version was brought on record - In this case, not steps have been taken to identify person from whom cyanide poison was purchased - Except that accused gave brandi bottle to deceased there is no other circumstance to indicate that it is accused and none else, who had given brandi bottle containing cyanide poison - Therefore benefit of doubt should go to accused and this aspect of case had been completely overlooked by trial Court - Prosecution failed to establish guilt of accused beyond reasonable doubt - Conviction and sentence imposed against accused, set aside - Criminal appeal, allowed. Thumma Babul Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 98 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 90 (AP) = 2011(1) ALT (Crl) 250 (AP) = 2011 Cri. LJ 2991 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT - "Evidence of Hostile witness" - "Culpable homicide amounting to murder".

CULPABLE HOMICIDE - "Culpable homicide amounting to murder" - Determination of - Whenever Court is confronted with question whether offence is "Murder" or "culpable homicide not amounting to muder", on facts of case, it will be convenient for it to approach problem in three stages - Firstly whether accused has done an act by doing which he has caused death of another - Secondly for considering whether that act of accused amounts to culpable homicide as defined in Sec.299 - If answer to this question is prima facie found in affirmative, stage for considering operation of Sec.300 of IPC is reached - This is stage at which Court should determine whether facts proved by prosecution bring case within ambit of four clauses of definition of murder contained in Sec.300 - If answer to this question is negative offence would be culpable homicide not amounting murder.

HOSTILE WITNESS - It is settled legal proposition that evidence of prosecution witness cannot be rejected in toto merely because prosecution chose to treat him as hostile and cross examined him - Evidence of such witnesses cannot be treated as effaced or washed off record altogether, but same can be accepted to extent that there version is found to be dependable on a careful scrutiny thereof. Khachar Dipu @ Dilipbhai Nakubhai Vs. State of Gujarat 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 75.

—Sec.302 - EVIDENCE ACT - Appellants accused were convicted for offence of murder of deceased based principally on evidence of P.W.5 eye witness who is elder brother of deceased - Appellants contend that Medical evidence did not match with oral evidence of P.W.5 and it would be unsafe to relay on his oral description of events and that since he was related and interested witness, his testimony should be closely scrutinized and on such close scrutiny it would turn out that he was not a reliable witness - In this case, on reading of FIR it is cler that P.W.1 was present at place of occurrence - Consequently presence of P.W.1 at place of occurrence could not be doubted and he was an eye witness to incident - Difference between "related witness" and "interested witness" - Stated - "Related" is not equalevent to "interested" - A witness may be "interested" only when he or she derives some benefit from result of a litigation; in decree in a civil case, or in seeing an accused person punished - A witness who is a natural one and is only possible eye witness in circumstance of case cannot be said to be interestd - In this case, P.W.5 was present at place of occurrence and was an eye witness to incidnt - His testimony is not unreliable but supported in its essential details by testimony of other witnesses - Evidence of P.W.5 credible not withstanding that he was related and interested witness - Conviction and sentence awarded to appellants by trial Court and confirmed by High Court, upheld - Appeal, dismissed. Raju @ Balachandran Vs. State of Tamil Nadu, 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 104 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 756 (SC) = 2012 AIR SCW 6524 = AIR 2013 SC 983.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302 - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.17,25 & 27 - Sessions Judge acquitting respondent/ sole accused who is charged u/Sec.302 IPC - Prosecution contends that evidence of child witnesses, P.Ws.2 & 3 is very clear that it is accused who caused injuries to accused deceased, that further accused himself went to Police Station and gave statement stating that he committed murder, that all circumstances would go to show that it is accused and none else, who committed murder of deceased - In dealing with order of acquittal, though appellate Court has got full power to re-appreciate, evidence but it will be slow in interfering with same in view of fact that there is presumption under law that accused is presumed to be innocent unless contrary is proved and that presumption of innocence is further strengthened by an order of acquittal - Unless there are compelling or substantial reasons, ordinarily High Court would not interfere with same - A confessional FIR given by accused to a Police Officer cannot be used against him in view of bar u/Sec.25 of Act - No part of confessional statement is receivable in evidence except to extent that ban of Sec.25 of Act is lifted by Sec.27 of Act - When accused went to Police Station and gave statement that he killed his wife, definitely it amounts to a confession - It is not admission made by accused with regard to some other fact because accused admitted his guilt, which amounts to a confession and is not admissible in law - Therefore evidence of P.W.12 and recitals in Ex.P.17 report of accused to Police have no evidentiary value - As seen from evidence also, origin and genesis of occurrence has been suppressed by prosecution - Trial Court, upon consideration of entire oral and documentary evidence on record, rightly acquitted accused - Criminal appeal, dismissed. State of A.P. Vs. Ramancha Laxma Reddy 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 154.

—Sec.302 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.27 - "Circumstantial evidence" - Last seen theory - Sessions Judge convicted accused u/Sec.302 and sentenced to imprisonment for life basing on circumstantial evidence - Accused is husband of deceased - In this case, no eye witnesses to occurrence - P.W.1 is elder brother of deceased and he categorical admits that to his knowledge deceased and her husband lived happily and did not quarrel with each other and the accused did not harass deceased or themselves - None of occupiers of flats examined in this case, spoke about any dispute or differences or quarrels between accused and deceased - Thus prosecution has failed to establish any motive for accused to kill his wife who is deceased - Lower Court also came to conclusion on motive observing that motive may not be relevant even in a case based on circumstantial evidence - Observations of lower Court that motive is not very much essential to be established in a murder case based on circumstantial evidence may not be entirely correct - Establishment of motive is an essential initial ingredient to be established by prosecution in any case based on circumstantial evidence - Admittedly deceased was wearing Manglasutram Chain and black beads chain regularly even as per prosecution case - There were no gold ornaments on dead body of deceased except silver toe rings - Absence of gold jewelry on body of deceased assumes importance and it may be case of murder for gain and that some outsiders who are more than one in number might have committed offence - Thus all circumstances relied on by prosecution have absolutely no relevance and on other hand, no circumstance established by prose-cution is going to drag accused in net - Conviction and sentence, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Thadepalli Srinivasa Murthy Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 222.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—-Secs.302 – INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.32 - It is clearly evident at page 2 of statement that there is a variation in spacing between lines - While ten lines from top have even spacing between them, last six lines were written with less space between them, when compared to spacing left between lines in upper portion - This gives rise to a serious suspicion that statement has been written after obtaining signature of deceased - In his evidence, P.W.7 has stated that he has recorded Ex.P.11 - However, it is endorsed on Ex.P.11 as “Recorded before me, (signed), Tahsildar, Sattupalli.” - Thus, it is clear that statement of P.W.7 that he himself has recorded dying declaration does not appear to be correct - Moreover, there is a perceptible difference in ink between contents of the document and the above quoted endorsement with the signature of P.W.7 - This would further strengthen suspicion that Ex.P.11 would have been prepared by someone else after obtaining signature of deceased.For the reasons best known to prosecution, they failed to file said requisition - In Court opinion, non-filing of requisition would raise any amount of suspicion about genuineness of Ex.P.11., P.W.9 in his evidence has candidly admitted that in his investigation he did not come across statement of deceased recorded by P.W.7 - All these circumstances would vitiate credibility of Ex.P.11 rendering it wholly unsafe to be relied upon.

There are serious inconsistencies between Exs.P.6, P.11 and P.10 on aspect of cause of injuries and also manner in which injuries were suffered by injured - As noted above, in Ex.P.6 it was recorded by the Doctor that patient allegedly suffered burns due to fall on kerosene bottle accidentally - In Ex.P.11 she has stated that her husband as well as her mother-in-law have beaten and poured kerosene on her and lit match stick - In Ex.P.10 she has stated that both accused have poured kerosene and her mother-in-law has lit match stick - Statements contained in Exs.P.10 and P.11 appear to be unduly lengthy and unbelievably narrative not capable of being made by a person who has suffered 90% burn injuries - In our opinion, both these documents appear to have been brought into existence after obtaining signatures of deceased on blank papers For above mentioned reasons, this Court not prepared to believe Exs.P.10 and P.11 in order to form basis for conviction of accused - Apart from above, D.W.1, who is no other than mother of deceased, has not supported prosecution case and on contrary when she was examined as D.W.1, she has categorically stated that her husband was behind deceased making allegations against accused and that unable to bear her stomach pain, deceased has committed suicide - This version of D.W.1 lends credibility to the of defence that accused are innocent and deceased has committed suicide - For all above reasons, appeal is allowed - Conviction and sentence recorded against accused are set aside and accused are acquitted of all charges. Elaprolu Ramesh Vs. State of A.P. 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 299.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—-Sec.302 - MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, Secs.132,184 & 134/187 – Appeal filed against conviction of accused under Sec. 302 of IPC and various sections of M.V.Act of having caused death of a Sub Inspector with his vehicle - There are discrepancies in nature of injuries on deceased and the evidence by police officials is at variance with each other - Held, when there is discrepancy in evidence of police officials themselves, and identity of the accused is far from satisfactory, it is not at all safe to rest conclusion on surmises - Benefit of doubt, as in any other criminal case, needs to be given to accused - Appeal allowed and conviction and sentence against the accused set aside. Gurumeet Singh Vs. State of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 125.

—Sec.302 r/w Sec.32 Secs.506, 507 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.439(2)& 482 - Petitioners A1 to A5 filed this petition seeking to set aside order under Sec.302 of IPC dt. 08-01-2015 in Crl.M.P.No.734 of 2014 passed by learned III Additional District and Sessions Judge, cancelling bail earlier granted by him in Crl.M.P.No. 3362 of 2014 at instance of de facto complainant alleging threat to his life etc. - Held, lower court cancelled bail taking above allegations into consideration - It must be noted that threat allegations are under investigation and persons who allegedly threatened de facto complainant and connection of accused with them if any has to be found out only after thorough investigation by concerned police - However, before that exercise being completed, lower court came to a premature conclusion about the correctness of the allegations and cancelled the bail in a post-haste manner - In considered view of this court, lower court ought to have directed concerned police to complete the investigation in Cr. No. 705 of 2014 expeditiously and basing on the result of the investigation it ought to have passed an appropriate order regarding cancellation of bail - By virtue of order of lower court, personal liberty of accused was jeopardized even before establishing their hand in threat allegedly caused to de facto complainant - Impugned order passed by III Additional District and Sessions Judge, Ranga Reddy District in Crl. M.P.No. 734 of 2014 is set aside and accused are directed to be on bail - Depending on result of investigation in Cr.No. 705 of 2014, de facto complainant is at liberty to move court of III Additional District and Session Judge, for cancellation of bail of accused, in which case, said court shall pass appropriate order on merits - Accordingly, this Criminal Petition is allowed. Syed Abdul Majid @ Majid Vs. M.A.Jabbar 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 100 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 939 = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 5 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302 r/w 34 - Murder - Circumstantial evidence - A-1 is wife of deceased - A-2 developed illicit-intimacy with A-1 - As deceased is an absticle in continuing their illicit-intimacy, A-1 and A-2 decided to do away with deceased - When deceased was in intoxicated condition, A-1 and A-2 killed him - Sessions Judge committed A-1 and A-2 to suffer life imprisonment - Appellant/accused contends that entire case rests upon circumstantial evidence only and that accused and deceased for last seen together by P.W.8, not supported prosecution and to other important witnesses were also declared hostile - LAST SEEN THEORY - Last seen theory alone is not sufficient to prove guilt of accused - Last seen theory comes into play where time gap between point of time when accused and deceased were last seen alive and deceased was found dead was so small that possibility of any person other than accused being author of crime becomes impossible - In this case, evidence goes to show that there was an illegal intimacy between A-1 and A-2 to draw an inference for motive to kill deceased - But said circumstance of illegal intimacy/motive by itself alone is not sufficient to prove guilt of accused and convict A-2 for offence u/Sec.302 r/w 34 - Once prosecution failed to establish that deceased was not in company of A-1 and A-2 and last seen by P.W.8, there is a missing link to connect accused for commission of offence - Mere illegal intimacy between A-1 and A-2 and fact that death of deceased is homicidal are not enough to come to conclusion that accused are responsible for commission of offence - CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE - With a view to base a conviction on circumstantial evidence, prosecution must establish all pieces of incriminating circumstances by reliable and clinching and circumstances so proved must form such a chain of events as would permit no conclusion other than one of guilt of accused - Conviction of accused, set aside - Appeals, allowed. Santhavarapu Venkateshwarlu Vs. Thammishetti Ankiamma 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 187 = 2008(2) ALD (Crl) 226 (AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 265(AP).

—Sec.302, r/w Sec. 34 - Sessions Judge tried case and acquitted accused on ground that though injuries received by A1 in same incident not referred by prosecution during course of trial - Contention that though eye witnesses turned hostile there is sufficient circumstantial evidence in form of medical reports and postmortem report to effect that 1st respondent A1 stabbed deceased and that motive for accused to kill deceased was clearly established and trial Court acquitted accused, by taking hyper technical view of matter and that mere fact that injuries sustained by A1 not referred by prosecution cannot be a factor to acquit accused - In this case, it is a matter on record that A1 sustained injuries at about same time at same place, at which deceased was murdered and police themselves shifted A1 to Hospital - Crime also registered for offence u/Sec.324 IPC against deceased and P.W.1 - In all fairness, they ought to have mentioned said fact in final report and during course of trial - Hence trial Court was left with no alternative, except to presume that version presented by prosecution not truthful one - When there was no reference to injuries sustained by A1 and even according to prosecution he was receiving treatment in Hospital by time of deceased was shifted to same hospital, there does not exist any basis to convict accused - Non-mentioning of injuries sustained by A1 in entire prosecution certainly shake very truthfulness of version of prosecution - Extending benefit of doubt to accused by trial Court - Justified - Criminal appeal, dismissed. Public Prosecutor, Hyderabad Vs. Molli Venkateswara Visweswara Kumar 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 277 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 565 (AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 111 (AP) = 2008 Cri. LJ 1997 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 - Murder - Dying declaration - Sessions Court convicting appellant/accused solely basing on dying declaration recorded by P.W.1, for causing murder of deceased by pouring kerosene and set him ablaze - P.W.1 stated that he obtained signatures of deceased and Medical Officer on dying declaration, but he did not take certificate of fitness from Doctor, whether deceased was in position to give a statement or not and did not obtain endorsement of Medical Officer about consciousness of deceased - Considering dying declaration and manner in which it was recorded, dying declaration recorded by P.W.1 cannot be relied upon and there is no other evidence on record to implicate appellants/accused to incident - From story put up by prosecution whole incident, as is being alleged to have been happened, is wholly improbable and cannot be relied upon - No case made out by prosecution and appellants/accused are entitled for acquittal - Appeal, allowed. Shaikh Rafiq Vs. State of Maharashtra 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 146.

—Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 - Murder - Trial Court convicting appellant/accused for causing murder of deceased - High Court confirmed conviction and dismissed criminal revision filed by complainant claiming compensation to heirs of deceased - Contention that prosecution failed to explain injuries found on person of appellant/accused and his wife and that injuries caused to deceased by appellant in his self-defence and also to protect body of his wife from further assault by deceased and that appellants/accused are entitled to benefit of doubt - In a murder case, non-explanation of injuries sustained by accused at about time of occurrence or in course of altercation is very important circumstance from which Court can draw inference that prosecution has suppressed genesis and origin of occurrence and has thus not presented true version - In present case, prosecution not explained injuries on person of accused and his wife - View taken by Courts below that accused had no right of private defence to his body or to person of his wife, unsustainable - In light of evidence and in view of improbabilities, serious omissions and infirmities, interested nature of evidence and other circumstances, it is clear that prosecution has failed to prove case against appellant/accused beyond reasonable doubt - High Court is in error in brushing aside serious infirmity in prosecution case regarding non-explanation of injuries sustained by accused and his wife - Conviction of accused, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Babu Ram Vs. State of Punjab 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 149.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.302 r/w sec.34 - ARMS ACT, Sec.27 - "Appreciation of evidence" - Sessions Judge convicting appellant accused for offence u/Sec.302 IPC - High Court affirmed conviction - APPRECIATION OF EVIDENCE - Law is fairly well settled that even if acquittal is recorded in respect of co-accused on ground that there were exaggerations and embellishments yet, conviction can be recorded even if evidence is found cogent, credible and truthful in respect of another accused and that mere fact that witnesses were related to deceased cannot be a ground to discard their evidence - In law testimony of injured witness is given importance - When eye witnesses are stated to be interested and enimically disposed towards accused it has to be noted that it would not be proper to conclude that they would shield real culprit and rope in innocent persons - Truth or otherwise of evidence as to be weighed pragmatically - Court would be required to analys evidence of related witnesses and those witnesses who are enimically disposed - If after careful analysis and scrutiny of their evidence, version given by witnesses appears to be clear, cogent and credible and there is no reason to discard same and conviction can be made on basis of such evidence - Trial Court was right in recording finding on charge against appellant on proper appraisal of evidence - High Court concurred with the same and in view of evidence of informant who was eyewitness and I.O's evidence regarding his evidence treating statement of P.W.2 as FIR is perfectly legal and valid - In view of concurrent findings by High Court as well as Sessions Judge and order of conviction and sentence imposed against appellant is on basis of legal evidence on record and on proper appreciation of same - Appeal, dismissed. Umesh Singh Vs. State of Bihar 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 84.

—Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 and S.Cs and S.Ts (PREVENTION OF ATROCITIES) ACT, 1989, Sec.3 (1)(x) and 3 (2) (v) - Trial juge convicting appellants/accused for alleged causing of death of deceased by forcibly administering pesticide to him on account of alleged illicit intimacy with daughter of 1st appellant - Contention that there is neither eye witness account, nor any circumstantial evidence to sustain conviction of the appellants/accused and that trial Court had adopted a far-fetched reasoning, beyond any imagination to connect accused with occurrence and very charge framed against accused was without any factual basis - In this case, some witness have spoken to existence of empty pesticide tin and a sickle, but those items were not treated as material objects - Not a single witness has spoken to various acts attributed to individual accused - None spoke about alleged illicit relations - All same, trial Court had drawn several inferences, and in fact, provided every possible link to connect accused with occurrence - Such approach is impermissible in law - When prosecution miserably failed to examine a single witness to speak to facts mentioned in charge sheet, it is totally ununderstadable as to how trial Court was able to find appellants/accused as guilty - Conviction and sentence ordered against appellants, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Kothapalli Veeranna Vs. The State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 272 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 598(AP) = 2008(1) ALT (Crl) 358 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 and 109 - Murder - Circumstantial evidence - Sessions Judge convicting appellant/accused for commission of offence basing on circumstantial evidence - In a case where offence is said to have been established on circumstantial evidence alone, indisputably all links in chain must be found to be complete - Circumstantial evidence which formed part of records would not be relied upon for arriving at conclusion that appellant/accused is guilty of commission of said offence - In this case, corpus delicti has not been proved - Same need not be but death as a fact must be proved and even death not proved in this case and no piece of mortal remains of deceased was found - No reliable or acceptable evidence that offence has been committed by appellants - Neither any direct nor circumstantial evidence had been brought on record to establish guilt on part of appellant/accused - Impugned judgment, set aside - Appeal, allowed. K.T.Palanisamy Vs. State of Tamil Nadu 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 64.

—Secs.302 r/w 34 & 149 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.313 - "Motive" - "Interested witnesses" - Sessions Court convicted appellants/accused to suffer life imprisonment u/Sec.302 for committing murder - High Court confirmed conviction - Appellants/accused contend that alleged eye witnesses are family members of deceased, as such, are interested witnesses and that prosecution failed to prove motive and also failed to prove its case beyond any reasonable doubt - There is no hard and fast rule that family member can never be true witnesses to occurrence and that they will always depose falsely before Court - It will always depend upon facts and circumstances of a given case - Primary endevour of Court must be to look for consistency - Evidence of witness cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from mouth of a person who is closely related to victim - It is not always necessary for prosecution to establish a definite motive for commission of crime and it will always relatable to facts and circumstances of a given case - It will not be correct to say as an absolute proposition of law, that existence of a strong or definitive motive is sine qua non to holding an accused guilty of criminal offence - It is not correct to say that absence of motive essentially results in acquittal of accused if he is otherwise found to be guilty - When positive evidence against accused is clear in relation to offence, motive is not of much importance - Mere absence of motive, even if assumed, will not per se entitle accused to acquittal, if otherwise, commission of crime is proved by cogent and reliable evidence - Admission or confession of accused in statement u/Sec.313 of Cr.P.C recorded in course of trial can be acted upon and Court can relay upon these confessions to proceed to convict him.

COMMON INTENTION - "Common intention and commission of crime by members of an unlawful assembly" - It is a settled a principle of law that to show common intention to commit a crime it is not necessary for prosecution to establish as a matter of fact, that there was a pre-meeting of minds and planning before crime was committed - It is not even expected of prosecution to assign particular or independent roles played by each accused once they are members of unlawful assembly and have assaulted deceased persons, which resulted in their death - Every person of such an unlawful assembly can be held to be liable - Contentions raised by appellants/ accused are rejected - Appeals, dismissed. Dharmidhar Vs. State of U.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 145.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 & 302, R/w Sec.109 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.25 & 27 - "Private defence" - Sessions Judge convicting A1 for committing double murder and acquitting A2 & A3 rejecting prosecution case that they abetted commission of crime - Appellant, A1 contends that crime occurred at about 10.30 p.m when A1 was in his house along with A2 and A3 and LW3, deceased (D1 &D2)who were strangers intruded into house inspite of request by A1 - Intruders also abused A2 & A3 and provoked - There was no pre-mediation on part of A1, but when deceased attacked, in lawful exercise of right of private defence due to grave and sudden provocation, A1 used knife to safeguard his life and life of A2 and A3 - Non-examination of LW3 and version in confessional statement of A1 to extent it is admissible or strong factors to exonerate A1 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.25 - No confessional made to Police Officer shall be proved as against person accused of any offence - There may be situations where a heinous crime is committed in exercise of right of private defence for protecting life and property - In such cases, accused may himself offer to confess giving incidents leading to exercise of such right or private defence - In such case, no doubt confession is inadmissible against accused, but if such confession favours accused in extricating himself from situation or to justify conduct which might be culpable, does Sec.25 Evidence Act prohibit using such confession to extent it favours accused - In this case, both intruders behaved in a violent manner and they being anti-social elements cannot be ruled out, accused A1 receiving some injuries in scuffle cannot be ruled out - Therefor it is not a culpable homicide amounting to murder as it is covered by fourth exception to Sec.300 IPC - Further, A1 was certainly exercising his right of private defence - Appellant, A1 is convicted u/Sec.304 Part-1 IPC - Criminal appeal, partly allowed. Kandi Venkata Suneel Kumar Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 389.

—Secs.302, r/w 34 & 323 - Trial Court convicting accused for offence of causing death of deceased by assaulting him with lathis - High Court acquitting accused of offence u/Sec.323, r/w 34 while affirming imposition of life imprisonment for offence u/Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 as awarded by trial Court - In this case, it is evident that all accused persons prepared mentally and physically, to assault deceased and in furtherance to their common intention to kill accused - Deceased had suffered number of injuries - Collection of bloodstained earth itself is relevant piece of evidence and provides link in commission and place of crime - Where evidence is clear, cogent and creditworthy; and where Court can distinguish truth from falsehood, mere fact that injuries on person of accused are not explained by prosecution cannot, by itself be a sole basis to reject testimony of prosecution witnesses and consequently, whole case of prosecution - In this case, High Court and trial Court have recorded reasons for returning concurrent findings - It cannot be ignored that extent of participation, even in case of common intention covered u/Sec.34 IPC would not depend on extent of overt act - If all accused have committed offence with common intention and inflicted injuries upon deceased in pre-planed manner, provisions of Sec.34 would be applicable to all - Appeal, dismissed. Mano Dutt Vs. State of U.P. 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 193.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 & 379 - IDENTIFICATION OF PRISONERS ACT, Secs.5, 4 & 2(a) - A.P. IDENTIFICATION OF PRISONERS RULES, 1975, Rules 3, 12 (xxiii) (c) & 2(g) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.2(h) - Murder - "Circumstantial evidence" - "Last seen" "Motive" - "Chance prints and finger prints" - Sessions Judge convicting accused for offences u/Sec.302, r/w Sec.34 sentencing them to undergo imprisonment for life - Admittedly there are no eye witnesses to incident and entire case of prosecution based on "circumstantial evidence" - When case of prosecution is wholly dependent on circumstantial evidence presumption of innocence of accused must have a dominant role - Before recording conviction on basis of circumstantial evidence Court must firmly be satisfied; (a) that the circumstances from which the interference of guilt is to be drawn, have been fully established by unimpeachable evidence beyond a shadow of doubt; (b) that the circumstances are of a determinative tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the accused; and (c) that the circumstances, taken collectively, are incapable of explanation on any reasonable hypothesis save that of the guilt sought to be proved against him - In this case, firstly prosecution failed to prove motive for appellant/accused to kill deceased, - Secondly prosecution also failed to prove fact of accused last seen in company of deceased and evidence of P.W.1 who is roommate of deceased is inconsistent and creates any amount of doubt on credibility and trustworthiness of his evidence and thirdly prosecution failed to prove recovery of MOs. - EVIDENTIARY VALUE OF FINGER PRINT EXPERT - In this case, admittedly P.W.15 finger print expert did not note down length and breadth of broken glass pieces from which chance prints were collected and in view of non taking of length and breadth of chance finger print from broken pieces of beer bottles by expert and there being no recorded evidence produced by him whether chance finger prints were developed from single piece of broken bottle or two pieces of broken beer bottles, evidence of expert cannot be relied upon to connect accused to death of deceased, particularly when there is no evidence produced to show that accused and deceased took liquor just before death of deceased - Hence prosecution failed to prove last circumstance also to connect accused to death of deceased - It is highly hazardous to relay on circumstantial evidence which is brought on record in a very unsatisfactory manner and which does not inspire confidence in mind of Court - Prosecution failed to establish circumstances much less each circumstance connecting accused to death of deceased beyond all reasonable doubt - Conviction and sentence of appellants, accused for charges u/Secs.302, r/w 34 and 379 IPC, recorded by Sessions Judge cannot be sustained and is liable to be set aside - Appeal, allowed. Narne Gopikrishna Vs. State of A.P. 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 137 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 121 = 2012(3) ALT (Crl) 210 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302, r/w 34, Secs.380 & 414 - Benefit of doubt - A-1, A-2 and A-3 charged for murder of deceased - Sessions Judge convicted A-1 and A-2 and acquitted A-3 for lack of cogent and convincing evidence - High Court confirmed conviction and sentence - Appellant/accused contends that High Court committed gross error in convicting appellant/A-1 on basis of highly unbelievable, insufficient and unconvincing evidence led by prosecution and that A-1 falsely implicated in commission of crime - In this case, finding of trial Judge and as accepted by High Court is wholly untenable and cannot be sustained and that confessional statement made by A-1 not found believable and reliable by trial Judge and accordingly they were acquitted of charge u/Sec.380, on same set of evidence was found against A-3 for holding him guilty of offence u/Sec.414 and has been giving benefit of doubt - There are material discrepancies and vital improvements in testimony of some P.W.s in regard to presence of A-1 - Evaluation of findings recorded by trial Court and affirmed by High Court suffers from manifest error and improper appreciation of evidence on record - Thus on basis of evidence appearing on record, two views are possible, A-1 is entitled to benefit of doubt - Conviction and sentence of A-1, set aside. Krishnan Vs. State rep. by Inspector of Police 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 107.

—Sec.302, r/w 34 & 447,504 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.216 & 217 - "POWER OF FRAMING , ALTERING AND ADDING CHARGES" - "PLEA OF PREJUDICE" - Trial Court convicting 2nd accused alone for offences u/Secs.302,447 & 304 appellants/accused causing death of deceased by assaulting him with deadly weapons - High Court allowed State appeal and convicting all 3 accused u/Sec.302 IPC - In this case, evidently both the Courts below after appreciation of evidence available on record came to conclusion regarding participation of all three appellant/accused - It is matter of great regret that trial Court did not proceed with case in correct manner - If trial Court was of view that there was sufficient evidence on record against A1 & A3 which would make them liable for conviction and punishment for offences other than those u/Sec.447 and 504 r/w Sec.34 IPC, Court was certainly not helpless for alter/add requisite charges at any stage prior to conclusion of trial - Sec.216 Cr.P.C empowers trial Court to alter/add charges at any stage before conclusion of trial - However, law requires that, in case of such alteration/addition of charges causes any prejudice in any way to accused, there must be a fresh trial on such altered/new charges and for this purpose prosecution may also be given opportunity to recall witnesses as required u/Sec.217 Cr.P.C - Court must endeavour to find truth - There would be failure of justice not only by unjust conviction but also by acquittal of guilty, as a result of unjust failure to produce requisite evidence - Of course right of accused have to be kept in mind and safeguard but they should not be over emphasised to extent of forgetting that victims also have rights.

PLEA OF PREJUDICE - 'Prejudic' is in capable of being interpreted in its generic sense and applied to criminal jurisprudence - "Plea of prejudice" as to be in relation to investigation or trial and not matters falling beyond their scope - Once accused is able to show that there has been serious prejudice caused to him with respect to either of these aspects, and that same has defeated rights available to him under jurisprudence, then accused can seek benefit under orders of Court - In this case, it is clearly established that appellants/accused did not intend to kill deceased and it all happned in spur of moment upon a heated exchange of words between parties after criminal trespass by appellants/accused on to land of deceased - Therefore it does not same to be a pre-determined or pre-meditated case - Ends of Justice would therefore be met, if all three appellants/ accused are convicted u/Sec.304 Part - I, r/w Sec.34 IPC and sentences are awarded accordingly. Bhimanna Vs. State of Karnatka 2012(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 105.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs. 302 & 84 - Murder - Benefit of protection u/Sec.84 - Trial Court convicted appellant/accused for offence of murdering his younger brother basing on complaint submitted by mother of appellant - Allegation that appellant killed deceased with spade on account of his mental imbalance and family disputes -Contention that evidence of so-called eye witness, P.W.4 is totally unreliable in view of information elicited through him in cross-examination and that serious inconsistency is noticeable even as to manner in which FIR came to be registered and that trial Court formed an opinion as to mental condition of appellant without any basis and material on record - This is one of rare cases where mother has to shoulder heaviest possible task, viz., to accuse one of her sons, of committing of murder of another - No women, even in worst of circumstances, would imagine that she would face such delicate situation - Equally, same, Court is also faced with unenviable situation, of assessing evidence of mother in context of holding one of her sons, guilty of killing another - Trial Court formed opinion that appellant was on sound mind and on that account denied benefit of protection u/Sec.84 IPC - Such an important aspect was dealt with a very callous and indifferent manner - Case of prosecution vested much upon evidence of P.W.4 who is admittedly an old man of 60 years - It is unnatural that people of that age of P.W.4 would walk long distances to answer nature calls at midnight - Presence of P.W.4 at occurrence is totally unnatural and he is a planted witness - Not a single person, either from family or outside was examined to reveal mental status or conduct of appellant/accused - It is not at all safe to convict appellant on basis of incoherent and unnatural evidence - Conviction against appellant/accused, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Gongadi Rama Subbarayudu Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 416 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 753(AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 28 (AP).

—Secs.302 & 107 - 'Suicide' and abatement - Allegation that accused developed physical contact with deceased on false promise of marriage and later wrote letters demanding dowry which caused deep depression and drove deceased to take extreme step of putting and end to her life - Trial Court convicted accused u/Sec.306 IPC - Sessions Judge allowed appeal and set aside conviction - Prosecution contends that letters clearly established persistant demand on part of accused for dowry and letter Ex.P.2 received by deceased on previous day of her committing suicide prove to be last straw on camel's back and drove deceased to take extreme step of ending her life as she was aware that it was impossible for her parents to meet said demand on account of their poverty and therefore said letter written by accused was proximate cause for commission of suicide and therefore writing of such letter by accused amounted to abetment within meaning of Sec.107 IPC - Accused contends that there is no mens rea on part of accused or any intention to instigate or aid or abet deceased to commit suicide and letter Ex.P.2 does not constitute abatment within meaning of Sec.107 IPC and that any amount of humiliation does not amount to causing abatment - In order to establish ingredients of offence u/ Sec.306 IPC prosecution has to show that abatment was of kind has defined in Sec.107 IPC - There is nothing in Ex.P.2 to show that accused in any way instigated or intentionally aided by any acts or omissions in commission of suicide by deceased - Mens rea is necessary to constitute instigation, any amount of abuse or threat or humiliation without necessary intention does not amount to instigation - In present case, letter Ex.P.2 which according to prosecution is proximate cause for commission of suicide does not disclose that accused had in any way induced or instigated or intentionally aided or assisted in commission of suicide by deceased - If deceased felt dejected or disappointed on receiving letter there were so many ways and means remedying sutiation - Resort to extreme step of ending life on saying contends of letter Ex.P.2 is not warranted on part of any person of ordinary prudence - Order of acquittal - Justified - Criminal appeal, dismissed. Public Prosecutor High Court of A.P. Vs.M. Krishnaiah 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 190 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 531(AP) = 2009(1) APLJ 249 = 2009(1) ALT (Crl) 358 (AP) = 2009 Cri. LJ 2342 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Sec.302, r/w Sec.109 - CRIMINAL RULES OF PRACTICE, Rule 33(1) - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.32 - "Dying declaration" - Sessions Judge basing on dying declaration convicting A1 for offence u/Sec.302 and A2 for offence u/Sec.302 r/w Sec.109 - A1 poured kerosene on deceased wife in pursuance of abetment by his mother A2 and set her ablaze - P.W.1 to 9 closed relatives and neighbours and also parents of deceased did not support prosecution and have accommodated in cross-examination that deceased was not conscious and coherent when dying declaration recorded - In this case, there is no direct evidence about commission of offence by accused and alleged ill feeling between accused/deceased and Sessions Judge relied on two DDs, Ex.P.17 and Ex.P.26 which are available on record - Appellant accused contends that conviction cannot be based solely on such D.D.s - In this case, D.D. recorded by Magistrate is not satisfactory and is not in spirit and purpose for which statement is to be recorded - It is specific evidence of P.W.14 who is S.I of Police that he has examined deceased and recorded statement - If that be so, statement recorded by him has got more evidentiary value rather than statement which were drafted and brought by deceased to Police Station which is Ex.P.17 - But, for best reasons known to prosecution said statement which amounts to D.D is not placed before Court - Therefore, view from any angle D.D.s under Ex.P.17 and Ex.P26 are not consistent and statement recorded by Magistrate does not disclose factum of offence - Non-furnishing of statement of deceased recorded by P.W.14, S.I of Police entitles appellants to draw an adverse inference - Accused entitled for reasonable benefit of doubt - Convictions and sentence imposed by Sessions Judge cannot be sustained - Conviction, set aside - Both appeals, allowed. P.T.M. Marappa Vs. State of A.P. 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 223 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 772(AP) = 2011(2) ALT(Crl) 15(AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.302 & 109 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.118 - Child witness - Appellant/A-1 and A-2 tried for offence of murder of deceased - Trial Court convicting A-1 basing on testimony of child witnesses and gave benefit of doubt to A-2 and acquitting him - In this case, P.W.s 1 and 2 are child witnesses, daughter and son of deceased and as per defence version, deceased was practising sorcery and having illicit intimacy with some persons in village and admittedly incident took place in a dark night and none of witnesses spoke as to how they identified assailants in dark night - It is highly difficult and not appropriate to place reliance on testimony of P.Ws. 1 and 2 who are child witnesses - Since they are no other than children of deceased, they are susceptible for tutoring by family members of deceased - Trial Court rightly acquitted A-2 and wrongly convicted appellant on same evidence - Evidence forthcoming is of such a nature that truth cannot be separated from falsehood and is liable to be rejected in toto - Conviction and sentence passed by trial Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Dasarigalla Chandraiah, Central Prison, Cherlapalli. Vs. State of A.P. 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 149 = 2008(2) ALD (Crl) 47(AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 229(AP).

—Secs.302 & 148 - SCHEDULED CASTE AND SCHEDULED TRIBE (PREVENTION OF ATROCITIES) ACT, Sec.3(2)(v) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.21 - Accused tried for an offence u/Sec.302 IPC alternatively u/Sec.3(2)(v) of S.C & S.T Act and trial Court convicted appellants/accused for offence u/Sec.3(2)(v) of Act and Sec.148 IPC - Appellants/accused contend that in absence of any conviction for offence u/Sec.302 IPC, accused cannot be convicted for offence u/Sec.3 (2)(v) of Act on ground that deceased belong to Scheduled caste and that statements recorded u/Sec.161 Cr.P.C neither produced nor furnished to appellants and due to non supply of same accused have deprived of their valuable right to cross-examine prosecution witnesses and that once Sec.161 statement is suppressed a presumption has to be drawn that same is favourable to accused - CR.P.C, Sec.161 - There are discrepancies with regard to manner of assault on deceased in evidence of P.Ws - As such it can safely presume that Sec.161 Cr.P.C statements recorded by Police are not favourable to case of prosecution and they were purposefully suppressed by prosecution - Cross-examination is undoubtedly greatest legal engine ever invented for discovery of truth - Denial of opportunity for cross-examination on earliest statements would result a fatal flaw and also infraction of fair trial under Art.21 of Constitution - Prosecution wantonly suppressed earliest statements recorded, if which produced will not substantiate accusation made against accused - Sec.3(2)(V) S.C & S.T ACT - Unless a person commits any offence under IPC, punishment of imprisonment for life by invoking provisions under S.C & S.T Act does not arise - Conviction can be on offence committed but mere charge for commission of offence does not lead to conclusion that a person committed offence - When a person is acquitted of charge for offence under IPC, by no stretch of imagination he can be convicted for offence u/Sec.3(2)(v) of Act, since commission of offence under IPC has not been established by prosecution beyond reasonable doubt - In this case, trial Court without recording any conviction and sentence for offence u/Sec.302 IPC convicted accused for offence u/Sec.3(2)(v) of Act - When prosecution failed to establish that accused committed an offence u/Sec.3(2)(v) of Act, conviction and sentence recorded by trial Court, unsustainable and liable to be set aside - Criminal appeal, allowed. Gangula Venkateswara Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 284 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 453 (AP) = 2009(1) ALT(Crl) 365 (AP) = 2009 Crl. LJ 1958.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.302, 148,149,307,342,364,506 & 221 and 220-B - ARMS ACT, Sec.30 - Land dispute - Appellant, wanted to take possession of land forcibly from complainant party - One person died due to gun injury - Deceased body of injured person recovered - Trial Court convicted all accused persons u/Sec.302/149 IPC - High Court allowed four appeals filed by convicted persons out of six appeals - Appellants contend that High Court allowed appeals disbelieving theory of conspiracy for taking possession of said disputed land forcibly and that names of appellants not mentioned in FIR and that there was inordinate delay in lodging FIR and dead body was recovered after two weeks of incident and that body was completely in a de-composed as it remained in water for two weeks and there is no material before Court to hold that dead body recovered was that of deceased - State contends that issue of delay in lodging FIR has been fully considered by Courts below and Courts were satisfied that there was no delay at all as complainant/informant remained in custody of assailants and that witnesses fully identified cloths found on person of deceased as they were same at time of incident and at time of recovery of dead body - In instant case, dead body identified by two fellow labourers and medical evidence is same as that of ocular evidence and that issue of identification does not require any further consideration - Findings recorded by Courts below on issue of identification of dead body also does not call for any interference - Appeal, dismissed. Jarnail Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 112.

—Secs.302,149,326 and 324 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.162 and 107 - "Free fight" - In this case there was a free fight between two groups one led by P.W.1 and another group led by A.1 - Sessions Judge convicting some accused and acquitting some accused - Aggrieved by acquittal of some accused State preferred Criminal appeal, where as challenging convictions and sentences recorded against some accused, accused preferred another criminal appeal - In this case, as seen from evidence there was free fight in two groups - There is no dispute with regard to fact that cause of death of deceased was homicidal - None of witneses stated about origin or genesis of occurrence and they simply stated that while they were present in their respective houses they heard some galata from out side and came out and saw all accused armed with weapons - It is not at all case of any one of prosecution witneses that they were armed with any deadly weapons - Prosecution has failed to explain injuries sustained by accused and on other hand P.W.1 who set criminal law in to motion has categorically stated that none of accused sustained injuries - That means prosecution has suppressed origin or genesis of occurrence - Delay in lodging FIR and further delay in sending same by itelf is not a ground to discard testimony of witness, but certainly delay in registering case and also sending same to Court can be taken as one circumstance, so as to doubt prosecution case when there are other circumstances appearing in prosecution evidence - In view of several infirmities in evidence of prosecution, it is not safe to place implicit reliance on their evidence - At best accused persons have to be guilty of individual overt acts - As seen from record, a perfunctory investigation has been conducted by Investigating Officer and he has not conducted investigation in accordance with law and he has not taken effective steps to conduct investigation in correct lines - So, in view of perfunctory investtigation and in view of delay in lodging report and also delay in sending report to Court and in view of fact that witnesses suppressed origin and genesis of occurrence it is not safe to place an implicit reliance on evidence of prosecution witnesses so as to base conviction - Trial Court has given correct finding with regard to "free fight" between two groups - Hence, appellants are found not guilty of charges levelled against them - Criminal Appeal, allowed and conviction and sentences recorded by trial Court against appellants are set aside - Criminal appeal preferred by State, dismissed. Korrai Chilakaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 106 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 280 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.302, r/w 149, 452, 148 and 123 - Sessions Judge convicted accused for offence u/Sec.302 r/w Sec.149 and sentenced for imprisonment for life - High Court dismissed appeal preferred by accused - APPRECIATION OF EVIDENCE - Medical evidence of injuries sustained by deceased assumes significant importance - All eye-witnesses have categorically stated that deceased was injured by use of firearm, whereas medical evidence given by doctor specifically indicates that no firearm injuries were found on person of deceased - While appreciating evidence between medical evidence and ocular evidence, oral evidence of eye-witness has to get primacy as medical evidence is basically opinionative - But when Court finds inconsistency in evidence given by eye witnesses which is totally inconsistent to that given by medical experts, then evidence is appreciated in different perspective by Courts - In present case, medical evidence completely rules out prosecution version of injuries being caused by firearms, coupled with fact that no evidence has been produced by prosecution of any pellet or bullet being recovered from place of incident or from body of deceased in post-mortem - In light of fact that there was enimity between parties and eye-witnesses examined are related to deceased and are interested witnesses - In absence of lantern or torch, in light of which incident was said to have been witnessed, prosecution case as placed before Court is full of doubts, and as such accused/appellants are entitled to benefit of doubt - Judgment of High Court and trial Court, set aside - Appeals, allowed. Kapildeo Mandal Vs. State of Bihar 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 29.

—Secs.302 & 201 - Appellant/accused convicted for committing murder of 11 months old child by throttling its neck - Prosecution alleged that appellant/accused is wife of P.W.6 who is younger brother of P.W.1 and P.W.2 is wife of P.W.1 and P.W.3 is sister of P.W.1 who is living in same house deserting her husband, attributing motive to accused that if deceased is killed, entire property of P.W.1 would also accrue to her husband, since P.W.2 had undergone family planning operation after birth of deceased child - Appellant contends that there is any amount of inconsistency as regards to occurrence and entire family had conspired against appellant to implicate her on account of fact that her parents not able to meet demands of dowry and that there is 4 ½ hours delay in filing complaint and that apart from denying her complicity appellant had explained in detail as to what had happened on date of occurrence and immediately prior thereto and that trial Court did not take same in to account - Theory of P.Ws.1,2,3 & 6 is different and stands belied - Evidence of P.W.3 is at total variance with what was stated by P.Ws. 1 & 2 - This is one of rare cases where appellant had offered a detailed explanation as to what transpired between herself and other witnesses immediately preceding death of child - Even half of what is contained in her statement is true, it is more a case for prosecuting P.Ws.1,2,3 & 6 for offence u/Sec.498-A for harassing appellant - Appellant who hardly crossed age of minority, was victimized in a deep-rooted conspiracy - In this case, deceased aged 11 months and within that period family spent Rs.50,000/- for his treatment and admittedly just 4 days prior to incident child discharged from hospital - Unfortunate ill-health of child was converted as a device by P.Ws. 1,2,3 & 6 to get rid of appellant - Trial Court has unfortunately fallen prey to a cleverly woven story, least realizing that a close analysis of same would have revealed crude design of P.Ws.1 2, 3 & 6 - Very fact that even parents of appellant were not informed till she was arrested discloses design according to which whole show was conducted - Conviction and sentence passed against appellant-accused, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Ukkajigari Vanaja Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 247 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 405(AP) = 2008(1) ALT (Crl) 220 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.302 & 201 - Circumstantial evidence - "Last scene theory" - Trial Court convicting A1 and A2 for alleged killing deceased by stabbing with knife and through dead body on railway track to make it appear as if death was caused to run over by train - Since deceased informed husband of a lady about her illicit intimacy with A1 - Admittedly there is no direct evidence to prove alleged offence and when prosecution depends on circumstantial evidence absence of sufficient motive assumes significance and importance - In present case, it must be held that prosecution failed to establish any motive on part of accused to commit offence and that motive alleged against A1 having been found to be too remote and does not inspite any confidence - Circumstantial evidence - Where prosecution seeks to relay upon circumstantial evidence, it is incubent on their part to establish or necessary circumstances that would form a chain leading to invariable conclusion that offence is committed by accused alone and nonelse - "Last scene theory" - It comes into play where time gap between point of time when accused and deceased were last scene alive and deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than accused being author of it becomes impossible - Even in such a case, courts should look for some corroboration - In this case, prosecution failed to establish circumstances relied upon by them, more importantly circumstances of deceased last scene in company of A1 and A2 and alleged recovery of MOs from house of A2 - Prosecution also failed to establish motive alleged against A1 to cause death of deceased - Evidence produced by prosecution is to scanty to be relied upon on bais a conviction thereon - Impugned judgment, set aside - A1 and A2 are found not guilty of offences. Lan Prabhudas Vs. The State of A.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 199 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 411(AP) = 2009(1) ALT (Crl) 298 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE:

—Secs.302, 304-B & 201 – CRIMINAL RULES OF PRACTICE, Rule 33(4) "dying declarations" – Appellants A1 to A3 charged for offences punishable u/Secs.302, 304-B & 201 OF IPC – Trail Judge convicted accused for offence punishable u/Sec.302 IPC, but acquitted them of charge u/Secs.304 –B and 201 IPC – Hence present Criminal Appeal - Appellant accused contends that every witness examined by prosecution turned hostile and trial Court has rested conviction of accused only upon two dying declarations Ex.P11 & P14 and that they cannot be relied upon, since they were recorded 6 days after incident and that precautions that are stipulated under law were not taken at all and that Pw-14/Magistrate who recorded Ex.P11 admitted that neither he has mentioned in it that person from whom statement was being recorded was conscious, not that was noted down by him was read over to person – Ex.P14 cannot be relied upon, since it was said to have been recorded by police official, that too after requisition was given to Magistrate - In this case no steps were taken to register any crime and at the stage of giving requisition for dying declaration also, no crime was registered and it was only after PW-5 submitted complaint on 4-9-2009 after death of his daughter a crime was registered – Though incident occurred on 30-8-2009, dying declarations Ex.P11& P14 came to be recorded only on 4-9-2009 i.e., after a gap of 6 days – Recording of dying declarations 6 days after incident would have its own impact upon its credibility - It is elicited from PW-14/Magistrate that he did not mention in Ex.P11 that he found person from whom he was recording statement, was conscious and that he did not read over contents of declaration to that person - Rule 33 of Criminal Rules of Practice assumes significance in this regard and sub-rule(4) there of mandates that after statement is recorded it shall be read over to declarant and his or her signature must be obtained there on if possible and it is only then Magistrate shall sign statement – In view of admission of PW-14 in the evidence, legal acceptability of Ex.P11 suffers a serious dent – Ex.P14 was recorded by SHO one hour before Ex.P11 was recorded - Law presumes truthfulness on part of person who is making statement since he or she is virtually at end of life - Not withstanding sympathies which law can exhibit towards a person who lost life, liberty of another person cannot be put at stake unless, valid basis exists therefor - It is only when is dying declaration perfect in all respects and is free from any defect, that it can be treated as sole basis to convict accused – Conviction ordered in this case is unsustainable and conviction and sentence ordered by Sessions Judge, set aside - Criminal Appeal allowed. Konda Ashok Vs. State of A.P. 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 288 = 2014(1) ALD (Crl) 760 (AP).

—Secs.302, 304-B & 498-A - Death of wife within a year of marriage at her husband's house – Both husband and mother-in-law were made accused and charge-sheeted under Sec.304-B – Subsequently sections altered to 302 and 498-A – Trial Court held there are no eye witness nor circumstantial evidence and acquitted accused – Appeal by the State under Sec.378(1) and (3) of Cr.PC against acquittal – Held that alteration of Section was bad in law and S.216 of Cr.P.C. confers power on High Court to alter charge at appellate stage even - Judgment of trial Court is set aside and de novo trial ordered. State of A.P. Vs. Ettekapalli Yellamma @ Yellamma @ Nayom 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 168.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.302 & 307 r/w Sec.149 - Deceased died on account of injuries inflected on vital organs - Appellant/accused contends that no single injury has been found to be sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death as per medical evidence and at best they have only caused an injury which was likely cause to death and therefore no case for an offence u/Sec.302 IPC - Every variation or discrepancy in statement of witness cannot belie case of prosecution per se - In this case, fact that injuries were inflected by collective offence upon deceased and injured witnesses is duly demonstrated not only by medical report but also by statements of Doctors - Thus prosecution has been able to establish its case - Contention of appellants that this is a case, where Court should exercise its discretion to alter offence to one u/Sec.304, Part-II of Sec.326 IPC from that u/Sec.302 IPC, rejected - Appeal dismissed. Atmaram Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh 2012(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 108.

——Secs.302, 307 and 324 r/w Sec.34 - Two appeals arise out of a common case - Prosecution has failed to establish sufficient motive for committing offence as alleged against accused - Express F.I.R. was received by Magistrate more than 12 hrs after it was purportedly registered by police and this gives rise to a serious suspicion that it may have been ante-timed - When a person was stabbed and has received grave injury, it is natural course of human conduct that nearest kith and kin will at first instance attend to person at same place where he has received injuries, more so when such place happens to be his own house and shift him to a nearby hospital without any loss of time - Without taking these measures, nobody is expected to leave a seriously injured person to her fate by placing her on a cot on street like an orphan - From rough sketch, it appears that distance between place occurrence and compound wall on which blood was allegedly found is nearly 40 ft. and distance between cot on which deceased was placed and said compound wall is about 5 ft. to 6 ft. - It is not case of prosecution that deceased was attacked after she was placed on the cot - Therefore, it is impossible to believe that compound wall of deceased was found with blood marks if offence has taken place 40 ft. away from it within the compound of deceased - For all above reasons, Court opinion that offence has not taken place at place projected by prosecution - Prosecution has not seized the blood stained clothes and produced before Court - This lapse makes a huge dent on case of prosecution rendering its version wholly untrustworthy - Failure of prosecution to explain whether bloodstained earth and control earth were seized from place under cot and also its failure to seize cot and send tape to Forensic Science Laboratory throw any amount of doubt on truthfulness of its case - Opinion of P.W. 3-Doctor that if a person falls on a bamboo stick can sustain such injury as caused to deceased probabalizes defence theory that deceased would have accidentally fallen on a bamboo stick in course of altercation and as a result thereof she would have sustained injury.

Oral evidence given by P.Ws. 4, 5 and 6 are also not inspiring confidence and they seem evidently planted witnesses - Case of prosecution suffers from several loose ends and gaping holes casting heavy cloud on its credibility - Court further view that alleged occurrence would not have taken place at scene of offence set up by prosecution and in manner it has pleaded - Probability of deceased sustaining injury in an altercation between two groups could not be ruled out and prosecution failed to prove its case in a convincing manner to enable the court to conclude without any element of doubt in its mind that accused No.1 has caused the death of the deceased and that accused Nos.1, 3 and 4 have also caused injuries to P.W.1 in manner as propounded by it - Therefore, this court feels that all accused deserve benefit of doubt and accordingly, they are entitled to be acquitted - In result, both Criminal Appeals are allowed. Narasapuram Balaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 270 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 331 = 2016(2) ALT (Crl) 449 (AP).

—Secs. 302, 323,324 r/w 34 and 300 Exception-4 - Complainant and appellant accused are closely related and dispute arose because of conflicting claims as to ownership of land - Trial Court convicting accused u/Sec.302 IPC - Appellant/accused contends that they were exercising right of private defence or alternative occurrence took place in course of sudden quarrel and therefore Sec.302 IPC has no application - Where offender takes undue advantage or has acted in a cruel or unusual manner, benefit of Exception-4 of 300 cannot be given to him - In this case, in light of evidence, inevitable conclusion is that occurrence took place in course of sudden quarrel, appropriate conviction would be u/Sec.304 Part-1 IPC. Iqbal Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 48 = 2008(2) ALD (Crl) 641 (SC) = 2008(6) Supreme 329 = 2008 AIR SCW 6368.

—Secs.302 & 324 - Trial Court convicting appellant/accused for offence of killing his step-mother and causing grievous injuries to PWs. 3 & 4 - Alleged accusation against appellant that his father P.W.4 married deceased on ground that appellant's mother deserted him and after marriage P.W.4 effected partition of family properties and when P.W.4 did not agree for allotment of one acre more to appellant and his brother, he nurtured grievance and grouse against his father, P.W.4 and step-mother, deceased - Contention that prosecution has falsely implicated appellant by taking advantage of family disputes and that deceased not at all legally wedded wife of P.W.4 and was not of virtuous character, and murder could have been handiwork of one of her paramours and that there are glaring material contradictions in evidence of alleged eye-witnesses and that medical evidence does not at all corroborate with ocular evidence and that independent witnesses have turned hostile, and it is only interested witnesses, that have spoken about involvement of appellant - In this case, there was no plausible explanation for delayed submission of FIR, and possibility of delay being utilized for deliberations and consultations, cannot be excluded - There are several missing links, inconsistencies and improvements, in case presented by prosecution - Doubt cast upon character of deceased and allegation that P.W.4 had driven out mother of appellant would have their own relevance and significance - When whole episode is shrouded with so much of mistery and doubtful circumstances, it is not at all safe to convict appellant-accused - Benefit of doubt needs to be extended to accused - Conviction and sentence against accused, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Samineni Upender Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 216 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 444 (AP) = 2008(1) ALT (Crl) 288 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.302 & 324 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.154 - Trial Court convicted accused - Accused contend that he has been falsely implicated in this case and that FIR not issued on basis of statements of alleged eye-witnesses who did not give any report to Police - Though Police enquired and obtained their statements FIR not issued on basis of such statements and thus earliest version in this case has been suppressed - Admittedly P.Ws.1,3 & 4 did not give any report to Police - Admittedly no FIR was issued on basis of statements given by P.Ws.1,3 & 4 - Thus allegation that only selected persons have been chosen as eye witnesses lends support from above circum-stances - Admittedly P.W.1 is reisiding 1/2 KMs of scene of offence and P.Ws.3 & 4 are residing at a distance of $1/4^{th}$ KMs from scene of offence - Alleged incident took place at 11.30 pm - Normally, presence of witnessess at scene of offence at relevant time appears to be doubtful - According to P.W.10 blood stained shirt, M.O.7 was hanging to a hanger in house of accused - It appears to be unnatural and improbable to say that accused would keep blood stained shirt to a hanger even after four days after date of offence, though police visited his house before seizure of M.O.7, from his house - "Where two views are reasonably possible on basis of evidence on record, one that favours accused must be accepted" - Trial Judge not considered facts and circumstances and erred in convicting accused - It is not safe to convict accused basing on evidence of P.Ws.1,3 & 4 - Judgment of trial Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Thummala Lovaraju Vs. The State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 95 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 720 (AP) = 2009(2) ALT (Crl) 135 (AP) = 2009(2) APLJ 12 (SN).

—Sec.302, 324 & 304 Part-II - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.162 - "Delay in lodging FIR" - "Authenticity of FIR" – Sessions Judge convicting appellant/accused u/ Sec.304 Part-II for causing death of deceased relying on evidence of P.W.4 wife of deceased and P.W.10 Investigating Officer - Contention that trial Court gravely erred in treating P.W.4 as eye witness and considering evidence of Investigating Officer, despite P.W.7 mediator not supporting his version - If really FIR was not registered soon after Police received information about murder of deceased after arriving at village on same night itself, it certainly raises a serious doubt about truthfulness of prosecution version - AUTHENTICITY OF FIR - Entire fabric of prosecution case would collapse if FIR is held to be fabricated - Registering complaint as FIR after reaching SPOT and after due deliberations, consultations and discussions, complaint could not be treated as FIR, but it would be a statement made during investigation and hit by Sec.162 Cr.P.C. - 'Inordinate delay' in registering FIR in this case creates any amount of doubt in mind of Court that eye witnesses were introduce only as an after thought - FIR looses its authenticity and in strict sence is only a statement made during course of investigation and is hit by Sec.162 Cr.P.C - A careful analysis of evidence of P.W.4, wife of deceased in light of medical evidence clearly indicates that she is not a direct witness to occurrence but was wrongly considered as eye witness by trial Court - When once it is held that P.W.4 not at all eye witness it is not possible to base a conviction even if testimony of Investigating Officer is believed with regard to recovery of weapon of offence - Conviction of accused is based on surmises and conjectures, but not on any legal evidence - Hence, set aside - Appeals, allowed. Munavath Redia Vs. State of A.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 375.

—Secs.302 & 326 r/w Sec.34 - S.C. AND S.T. (POA) ACT, 1989, Sec.3(ii) (v) - Disputes arose between accused/appellants and their father and sister relating to partition of land - Deceased and P.Ws.1 to 4, Members of CPI (ML) group promised to dispossess appellants from land and accordingly picked up quarrel with appellants and hacked A1 with knife on his head, A1 in turn hacked deceased with knife as result of which deceased succumbed to injuries - Charge-sheets filed against appellants/accused and P.Ws.1 to 4 - Sessions Judge convicted accused/appellants - Asst. Sessions Judge acquitted P.Ws.1 to 4 - In this case, entire evidence of P.Ws.1 to 4 is quite contrary to their statements recorded by Police u/Sec.161 Cr.P.C - As many as 24 contradictions were marked on behalf of appellants in 161 statements of P.Ws.1 to 4 and they have been duly proved by defence - Medical evidence does not support prosecution story and it comes into conflict with oral evidence - When there are case and counter case, both must be tried by one and same judge and must be disposed of simultaneously by him, otherwise, it is not possible to arrive at a definite conclusion as to genesis of incident and also fix up aggressor - Admittedly accused also received injuries - When prosecution does not explain injury sustained by accused at about time of occurrence of in course of same transaction, Court can draw inference that prosecution has suppressed genesis and origin of occurrence and has thus, not presented true version - In this case, basic version of prosecution itself is that prosecution party trespassed into land of appellants arming with deadly weapons with a view to dispossess them forcibly from land in their occupation - Therefore undoubtedly they are aggressors - Both cases ought to have been tried and disposed of simultaneously by one and same Court - Evidence of P.Ws.1 to 4 does not stand to legal scrutiny - Trial Court without going into crucial aspects and without analyzing evidence in proper perspective convicted appellants by adopting a mechanical approach which is reprehensible - Conviction against appellants, unsustainable - Appeal, allowed. Adapa Gangadhara Rama Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 378.

—Secs.302, 201,371,411 r/w Sec.34 - Investigation - Appreciation of evidence - Trial Judge convicting accused awarding death sentence for causing death of deceased by strangulating body and thereafter cutting it into pieces and packing same in gunny bags and abandoning same at deserted place - High Court while answering death reference in negative sustained their conviction u/Sec.302, rw/ Sec.34 IPC awarding them rigorous imprisonment for life - Hence present appeal against order of High Court - Appellant contends that some of the witnesses have turned hostile and have not supported case of prosecution - Mere fact that witnesses have turned hostile would not affect case of prosecution adversely - Firstly it is for reason that fact that those witnesses were to prove already stand fully proved by other prosecution witnesses and those witnesses have not turned hostile, instead they have fully supported case of prosecution - It is settled principle of law that statement of hostile witness can also be relied upon by Court to extent its supports case of prosecution.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

DISCREPANCIES IN STATEMENT OF WITNESSES - Undoubtedly some minor discrepancies or variations are traceable in statements of witnesses - But what Court has to see is whether these variations are material and affect case of prosecution substantially - Every variation may not be enough to adversely affect case of prosecution - It is settled principleof law that Court should examine statement of witness in its entirety and read said statement along with statement of other witnesses in order to arrive at a rational conclusion - No statement of witness can be read in part and/or in isolation - No material or serious contradiction in statement of witnesses - There is no material in statement of witnesses which may *g*ive any advantage to accused.

DELAY IN EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES - It would depend upon a number of circumstances - For example, non-availability of witnesses, investigating Officer being pre-occupied in serious matters, investigating Officer spending his time in arresting accused who are absconding - In this case Investigating Officer recorded statements of nearly 28 witnesses - Therefore some delay was bound to occur in recording statements of witnesses.

COMMON INTENTION - Ingredients of more than two persons being present, existence of common intention and commission of overt act stand established in present case - Statement of witnesses clearly show that all 8 accused were present at scene of occurrence and they had demanded money and extended threat of dire consequences, if their demand was not satisfied - Therefore they had altercation with deceased and deceased was strangulated by accused persons and then his body disposed of by cutting in to pieces and packing same in gunny bags and abandoning same at a deserted place - Therefore offence was committed with common intention and collective participation - No reasons to interfere with judgment of High Court either on merits or on quantum of sentence - Appeals, dismissed. Shyamal Ghosh Vs. State of West Bengal 2012(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 160.

—Secs.302, 364 and 201, r/w Sec.34 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.11, 106, 114 and 134 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.386 - Appeals filed against common judgment passed by HIgh Court - High court while dismissing criminal appeals filed by appellants, allowed criminal revision petition filed by wife of deceased and enhanced sentence of four appellants from seven years RI to imprisonment for life u/Sec.364 IPC.

POLICE ATROCITIES: Police atrocities in India always being subject matter of controversy and debate in view of provisions of Art.21 of Constitution, any form of torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment is inhibited - Torture is not permissible whether it occurs during investigation, interrogation or otherwise - Wrong-doer is accountable and State is responsible if a person in custody of Police is deprived of his life except in accordance with procedure established by law - Safety of people is supreme law and safety of State is Supreme law, co-exist - However doctrine of welfare of an individual must yield to that of community.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

ALIBI - Most of appellants had taken alibi for screening themselves from offences - However none of them could establish same - If there is sufficient evidence to show that accused fabricated some evidence to screen/absolve himself from offence, such circumstance may point towards his guilt.

BURDEN OF PROOF - Sec.106 of Evidence Act is not intended to relieve prosecution of its burden to prove guilt of accused beyond reasonable doubt, but section would apply to cases when prosecution has succeeded in proving facts from which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding existence of certain other facts, unless accused by virture of special knowledge regarding such facts failed to offer any explanation which might drive Court to draw a different inference - Sec.106 of Evidence Act is designed to meet certain exceptional cases, in which it would be impossible for prosecution to establish certain facts which are particularly within knowledge of accused.

EVIDENCE OF ACCOMPLICE - Deposition of accomplice in a crime who has not been made an accused/put to trial, can be relied upon, however, evidence is required to be considered with care and caution - Accomplice who has not been put on trial is a competent witness as he deposes in Court after taking oath and there is no prohibition in any law not to act upon his deposition without corroboration.

TESTIMONY OF SINGLE WITNESS - There is no legal impediment in convicting a person on sole testimony of single witness - But if there are doubts about testimony, Court will insists on corroboration.

CORPUS DELICTI - Recovery of - In a trial for murder it is neither an absolute necessity nor an essential ingredient to establish corpus deliti - Death of deceased must be established like any other fact - Corpus delicti in some cases may not be possible to be traced or recorved - What is therefore required in law to base a conviction for an offence of murder is that there should be reliable and plausible evidence that offence of murder like any other factum of death was committed and it must be proved by direct or circumstantial evidence albeit dead body may not be traced.

ENHANCEMENT OF SENTENCE - Suo motu powers of enhancement under revisional juridiction can be exercised only after giving notice /opportunity of hearing to accused - High Court in exercise of its power u/Sec.386 (e) Cr.P.C is competent to enhance sentence suo motu - However such a course is permissible only after giving opportunity of hearing to accused - Judgment and order of High Court - Justified - Appeals, dismissed. Prithipal Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

—-Secs.302 and 379 - Appellants-accused submitted that case is based on circumstantial evidence and prosecution failed to establish all essential links in chain of circumstances so as to hold that it is the appellants-accused who had committed crime - That excepting for alleged extra-judicial confession said to have been made by appellants before PWs 3 to 5, absolutely no evidence is placed before Court by prosecution and that learned Sessions Judge has erred in accepting evidence of prosecution witnesses and convicting appellants - M.Os.4, 5 and 6 were not identified by any of relations - Corpse that was found was not that of deceased and it was in a highly decomposed state, and that as per medical evidence, the deceased died more than 15 days prior to 01.08.2006 when the postmortem was conducted - Conviction and sentence of appellants-accused cannot be sustained - On other hand, based on extra-judicial confession made by the appellants accused before PWs 3 to 5 and their subsequent confession leading to the recovery of material objects, Court below has found appellants-accused guilty and conviction and sentence is based on legally acceptable evidence warranting no interference.

Held, as per Ex.P1-inquest panchanama, in Col.No.7, it was mentioned that dead body was in a highly decomposed state, that skull of deceased was kept in between two legs, having no hair on head, that skin peeled, that body was covered with insects, that bones of both legs were visible, and that stomach and chest portion is inside shirt - That apart, as already stated, deceased disappeared on and from 22.07.2006, but as per condition of body found, apparently it was dead body of a person, who died more than 15 days prior to 01.08.2006 when postmortem was conducted, as spoken to by PW 9-the Medical Officer and borne out from Ex.P9 postmortem report - For foregoing discussion, this Court have no hesitation to hold that prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case, much less beyond reasonable doubt - Neither any motive is established nor is there any evidence to show that Kashiram and appellants were last seen together and the servant of Kashiram, (LW 9) has not been examined - Extra judicial confession said to have been made by appellants is full of discrepancies and inconsistencies and same is therefore untrustworthy - So called confession leading to recovery of M.Os.4 to 6 is also not satisfactorily established - Medical evidence on record has not established identity of dead body as that of Kashiram - Above aspects have not been considered by trial court and therefore, judgment impugned is not sustainable and same is liable to be set aside - In the result, conviction set aside - Criminal Appeal is allowed. Kompala Mallaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 370 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 606.

—Secs.302 & 392, r/w Sec.34 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.114 - "Circumstantial evidence" - Trial Court convicted appellant/accused relying upon circumstantial evidence for causing murder of deceased by robbing ornaments worn by her - High Court maintained conviction of accused - Hence present appeal filed against order of High Court.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE - Care and caution with which circumstantial evidence has to be evaluated stands recognized by judicial precedent - Only circumstantial evidence of a very high order can satisfy test of proof in criminal prosecution - In case resting on circumstantial evidence, prosecution must establish a complete unbroken chain of events leading to determination that inference being drawn from evidence is only inescapable conclusion - In absence of convincing circumstantial evidence accused would be entitled to benefit of doubt - Evidence in this case, produced by prosecution does not in any way establish guilt of accused - Prosecution had endeavoured to prove allegations levelled against accused on basis of circumstantial evidence - Prosecution failed to establish an unbroken chain of events lending to determination that inference being drawn from evidence is only inescapable conclusion - In fact prosecution has not been able to connect accused with alleged crime in any manner what so ever - Appellant/accused is liable to be acquitted of charges levelled against him. Madhu Vs. State of Kerala 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 77.

—Sec.302, 404 & 201, r/w Sec.34 - CRIMINAL RULES OF PRACTICE, Rule 45 - Trial judge convicting appellants/accused basing on circumstantial evidence - Contention that there are no eye-witnesses to offence and circumstantial evidence has several missing links and that there was inordinate delay in conducting test-identification parade and that alleged identification not conducted in accordance with procedure prescribed under Rule 45 and that prosecution failed to establish link between occurrence of incident and appellants - In this case, cause of death, according to prosecution, was on account of stab injuries on body - Post-mortem report, however, discloses something else and confusion is further confounded on account of failure of prosecution to examine doctor who conducted post-mortem - Prosecution failed to construct an uninterrupted chain between murder of deceased and appellants - Conviction and sentence recorded by Sessions Judge against appellants/accused, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Turaka Veerabhadra Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 76 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 381 (AP) = 2008(1) ALT (Crl) 168 (AP).

—Secs.302 & 498-A, r/w Sec.304-B and 201 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.27 - Murder - Trial Court convicted accused (A-1) for murder of his wife - Appellant/A-1 contends that circumstantial evidence relied upon by trial Court not only weak, but also totally untrustworthy and that evidence of P.W.1 father of deceased, is also totally untrustworthy - In this case, circumstance of recovery of ornaments pleaded cannot be said to have been used for strangulation of deceased and does not provide any valid link - Recoveries effected, u/Sec.27 of Evidence Act would become relevant and important, if only recovered items were used in commission of offence - Another significant fact is that after post-mortem was conducted, P.W.1 did not choose to receive dead body, and as result, it came to be handed over to Municipality and as such it is not safe to act upon evidence of P.W.1 - Nothing reliable exists on record to connect A-1 to occurrence and whole incident is shrouded in mystery - Accused entitled to benefit of doubt - Conviction and sentence against appellant/ A-1, set aside - Criminal Appeal, allowed. Onteru Venkata Subba Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 446 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 803 (AP) = 2008(2) ALT(Crl) 89 (AP) = 2008 Crl. LJ 2870.

—Secs.304, 304-A, 504 & 506 - Medical negligence - Complainant/2nd respondent brought his father to appellant's clinic for treatment - Complainant's father died within half an hour after three injections were administered - Appellant threatened complainant to remove dead body immediately and also threatened not to take any action and subsequently threatened with revolver to withdraw complaint - Magistrate issuing process against appellant - High Court dismissed revision preferred by appellant - Appellant contends that complainant's father was suffering from heart ailment and died before he reached clinic and that in exercise of his professional conduct, no criminal liability can be imposed on him - Even if all allegations are taken to be true it is an act of negligence covered by Sec.304-A IPC - In this case, no summons would have been issued to the appellant/ accused for commission of offences punishable u/Secs.304 & 506 IPC - Sec.304-A excludes all ingredients of Sec.299 as also of Sec.300 - Even if averments made in complaint are accepted in their entirety, act in question of giving injections to deceased would not fall within mischief of Sec.304 - Therefore, no process could have been issued against appellant/accused for commission of an offence under said section - In every mishap or death during medical treatment, a medical man cannot be proceeded against in criminal Court – Criminal prosecution of doctors without adequate medical opinion pointing to their guilt would be doing disservice to community at large – If Courts were to impose criminal liability on hospitals and doctors for everything that goes wrong, doctors would be more worried about their own safety than giving all best treatment to their patients – It would also lead to shaking mutual confidence between doctor and patient - So far as issuance of process for offences punishable u/Secs.504 & 506, liable to be quashed – Likewise process for offence punishable u/Sec.304 is ill- conceived and process could only be issued by Magistrate to appellant, accused for offence punishable u/Sec.304-A, IPC. Mahadev Prasad Kaushik Vs. State of U.P. 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.)156 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 261 (SC) = AIR 2009 SC 125 = 2008(7) Supreme 292.

—Sec.304-A - "Test identification" - Accused drove lorry behind deceased without blowing horn, dashed cycle of deceased due to which he fell down and front wheel of lorry ran over back of deceased causing spot death and ran away - Magistrate convicting accused for offence u/Sec.304-A IPC - Petitioner contends that P.Ws 3 & 4 claimed to have witnessed accident had no opportunity to have a good look at accused and as such their evidence that it is accused who drove vehicle on date of accident cannot be accepted and that Investigation Officer ought to have been examined owner of lorry or seized documents of lorry to connect accused with crime vehicle and that rough sketch of scene of offence not prepared by Investigation Officer - In this case, admittedly prosecution witnesses have no prior acquaintance with accused and that lorry stopped at distance of 20 or 25 feet from place of accident and driver after stopping lorry ran away from place of accident, show that witnesses had no opportunity to have a good look at accused - TEST OF IDENTIFICATION PARADE - Primary object of holding a Test of Identification Parade is to enable witnesses to identify persons involved in offence, who were not previously known to them - In this case, as far as identity of accused is concerned, Courts below have not considered issue in proper perspective and same resulted in miscarriage of justice - Hence conviction, set aside - Criminal revision case, allowed. Piginarayi Ranga Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 438 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 971(AP) = 2009(2) ALT (Crl) 128(AP) = 2009 Crl. LJ 3699 (AP).

—Sec.304-A - Accused while driving RTC Bus in rash and negligent manner hit bicycle driven by deceased and caused his death - Trial Court convicting accused for offence punishable u/Sec.304-A to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year - In appeal

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

Sessions Judge confirmed same - Contention that there are no eye witnesses to actual occurrence and admittedly road was under repair and there was no possibility for driver to drive bus at high speed and that mere driving vehicle at high speed is not sufficient and that prosecution must show that vehicle was driven in a rash and negligent manner at high speed - In this case, a careful reading of evidence of P.Ws shows that they did not allege that accused was driving bus in rash and negligent manner - Since bus was stopped only at a distance of 10 feet from place of accident, it appears that bus was in all probabilities not driven at high speed at time of accident - There is no evidence to say how cycle to came in to contact with bus - Whether cyclist slipped and came before bus or whether bus hit cyclist is not clear from evidence - Finding of Courts below appears to be not based on record - No conviction can be placed on mere assumptions or presumptions - Accused is entitled for benefit of reasonable doubt - Conviction and sentence passed by Courts below, set aside - Revision, allowed. G.Kumar Vs. The State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 231 = 2009(2) ALD (Crl) 116(AP) = 2009(3) ALT (Crl) 20 (AP).

—Sec.304-A - CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT, Sec.23 - Medical negligence - Criminal liability - Respondent/complainant suffering from chronic renal failure was referred to Hospital for kidney transplant and was under treatment of Appellant doctor - Since appellant suffering from high fever and after investigation Reports showed serious infection of blood and urinary infection, appellant suggests Amikacin injection and Augmentin Cap. - When respondent complained to appellant that he had slight tinnitus (ringing in ear), appellate alleged that he immediately told respondent to stop taking Amikacin and Augmentin and scored out treatment and discharge card - Subsequently respondent on his own accord joined another hospital and was operated upon for transplant after he ceased to be under treatment of appellant - Evidently respondent did not complain of deafness during this period and conversed with doctors normally - Respondent filed complaint before National Commission claiming compensation of Rs.12 lakhs as his hearing had been affected - Appellant contends that there was no material brought on record by respondent to show any co-relationship between drugs prescribed and state of his health - National Commission nominated Expert who gave his opinion that drug Amikacin administered by appellant as a life saving measure and was rightly used and there has been no negligence on part of appellant - However, National Commission allowed complaint of respondent and awarded Rs.4 lakhs as well as Rs.3 lakhs as compensation - MEDICAL NEGLIGENCE - Explained - Simply because a patient has not favourably responded to a treatment given by a doctor or a surgery has failed, doctor cannot be held straightaway liable for medical negligence - When patient dies or suffers from mishap, there is a tendency to blame doctor for this - Things have gone wrong and therefore, somebody must be punished for it - To fasten liability in criminal proceedings viz., u/Sec.304-A IPC degree of neligence has to be higher than negligence which is enough to fasten liability in civil proceedings - Thus, for civil liability it may be enough for complainant to prove that doctor did not exercise reasonable care in accordance with principles mentioned above, but for convicting a doctor in criminal case, it must also be proved that this negligence was gross amounts to recklessness - PROTECTION TO DOCTORS IN CRIMINAL CASES - Doctors have to be protected from frivolous complaints of medical negligence - Supreme Court has laid down certain rules in this connection: (i) a private complaint should not be entertained unless complainant has produced prima facie evidence before Court (ii) Investigating Officer, should before proceeding against doctor accused of rash or negligent act or omission, obtain an independent and competent medical opinion, preferably from a doctor in Govt., service (iii) a doctor accused of negligence should not be arrested in a routine manner simply because a charge has been levelled against him unless his arrest is necessary for furthering investigation - In this case, evidently that respondent was already seriously ill before he met appellant - There is nothing to show from evidence that appellant was in any way negligent, rather it appears that appellant did his best to give good treatment to respondent to save his life but respondent himself did not cooperate - Hearing loss in renal patients is a complex problem which is a reasult of many adverse and unrelated factors - Generally, state of hearing of renal patient at any time is more likely to be result of multifactorial effect than response to a single agent - Appellant not guilty of medical negligence - Impugned judgment and order of National Commission, set aside - Appeal allowed. Martin F.D.Souza Vs. Mohd. Ishfaq 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 155.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Sec.304-A – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Medical Negligence -Second defendant gave a complaint that her husband died due to rash and negligent act of petitioner, doctor - Police registered case basing on one sentence in complaint that deceased died due to negligent act of petitioner - Complaint doesn't mention in what manner petitioner was directly responsible for death of deceased - Material placed before court falls short to establish that death of deceased is direct result of rash and negligent act of petitioner leave apart gross, rash and negligent act - No post-mortem report - Held, various enunciated principles have not been scrupulously followed before registration of criminal case or taking cognizance of offence against the petitioner - Second respondent is not a competent person to say that her husband died due to negligent act of petitioner - Even if allegations made in the complaint ex facie taken to be true and correct, no prima facie case is made out against petitioner/ accused for the offence punishable under section 304-A of IPC - Hence, Criminal Petition is allowed quashing proceedings against petitioner. Dr.Dommati Siva Kumar Vs. State 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 65 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 866.

—Sec.304-A and 134-B, r/w Sec.187 of Motor Vehicles Act - Deceased, 10th class student while proceeding on cycle, accused had driven lorry in rash and negligent manner dashed against deceased causing her instantaneous death - Magistrate convicted accused - Appellate Court confirmed conviction and modified sentence - Appellant/ accused contends that there are no eye witnesses to accident and evidence of P.W.1 father of deceased, that he had identified accused before Court cannot be believed because for first time he claims to have identified accused after three and half years of accident and that when accused had absconded from scene of offence immediately after accident and when prosecution witness had no prior acquaintance with accused and no test identification parade was conducted, claim of P.W.1 that he identified accused cannot be accepted - Merely because driving licence of accused and trip sheet containing name of accused were seized from lorry, it does not mean that accused himself had driven lorry at time of accident - In this case, once evidence of P.W.1 is excluded from consideration, there remains no evidence against accused - Non arresting of accused immediately after accident create doubt about seizure of documents from accused - When appreciation of evidence results in miscarriage of justice, it is duty of Court to prevent gross miscarriage of justice and for correcting manifest illegality - Prosecution failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and both Courts below grossly erred in believing evidence of prosecution - Conviction and sentence passed against accused, set aside - Criminal Revision case, allowed. Nallapalli Seetharamaiah Vs.State of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 241.

—Secs.304-A, & 201 - Medical Negligence - Criminal Petition filed by Accused/Doctors to quash proceedings against them in lower Court filed by the 2nd Respondent, father of deceased - Both State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission and State Medical Council found no negligence on part of accused and patient died due to Amniotic Fluid Embolism - No Post Mortem examination done - Cause of death not known except presumptions and assumptions of 2nd Respondent - Held, mere negligence is not sufficient and to fasten criminal liability, gross negligence and high recklessness on part of doctors is required - Material relied by petitioners, reasonable and would rule out assertions that are made in complaint against them - Criminal Petitions allowed and proceedings in lower Court quashed - Criminal Procedure Code Sec.482 - Medical Negligence - Supreme Court indicated 4 steps to exercise powers u/Sec. 482, Cr.P.C - Firstly, when material relied on by accused is sound, reasonable and indubitable - Secondly, when material relied upon by accused would rule out assertions contained in charges levelled against the accused - Thirdly, if material is such, as would persuade a reasonable person to dismiss and condemn factual basis of accusation as false and when such material is not refuted by complainant - Fourthly, if proceedings with trial court result in abuse of any process of Court, High Court should persuade to such criminal proceedings by exercising powers u/Sec.482 of Cr. P.C. - Present case is a fit one to exercise powers u/Sec.482 of Cr.PC. Dr.P.Malathi Vs. States 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 367 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 924 = 2014(2) ALT (Crl) 284 (AP).

—Secs.304-A, 337 & 338 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.294 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.3 - Accused A.P.S.R.T.C bus driver drove bus in rash and negligent manner and dashed against cycle causing death of one boy and injuries to another boy - Trial Court convicted accused and same confirmed by lower appellate Court - Petitioner/ accused contends that Investigating Officer neither seized any document nor examined Depot Manager or Traffic Controller to establish that accused was driving bus at relevant time of accident and that Test Identification not conducted and that Panch witnesses have not been examined - Prosecution contends that there cannot be re-appreciation of evidence and that admitted facts need not to be proved and that once document has been admitted it need not be proved - If accused is already known to identified witnesses there is no need to hold Test Identification parade - Evidence of witnesses of also looses importance if accused have already been shown to witnesses before there examination in Court - Test Identification parade should be held at earliest possible opportunity - In instant case, since documents are marked by concerned, they can be received as evidence and can be looked into - Though prosecution witness of case deposed that accused drove bus at high speed, none of witnesses had deposed that driver of bus had driven bus in rash and negligent manner -Mere driving of vehicle at high speed cannot be considered as rash and negligent driving - Inspite of speed-breakers, sign boards and observing school or children, if driver drives bus at high speed same may amount to rash and negligent driving on part of driver of bus - But nothing can be inferred without any legal evidence - No conviction can be based on assumptions and presumptions or any inference can be drawn not basing on legal evidence - Merely because a ghastly accident has occurred resulting in death of some persons, accused cannot be convicted - In this case, there is misreading of evidence resulting in miscarriage of justice and that evidences of witnesses are not based on any legally acceptable evidence - Judgments of both Courts below, set aside - Criminal revision case, allowed. K.Rajaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 421.

—Sec.304-A, 338 & 337 - Petitioner, accused while driving lorry with load of rice, allowed some persons to board and caused accident by driving vehicle in rash and negligent manner - Deceased 1 to 4 were crushed to death beneath rice bags at spot - Trial Court convicted petitioner and appellate Court confirmed conviction - Petitioner contends that evidence on record shows that suddenly a person emerged on scooter from back side of lorry which was parked along with road and came infront of lorry and in above circumstances petitioner applied sudden breaks to save life of scootarist and had petitioner not applied sudden breaks, scootarist would have died - In this case, admittedly lorry proceeding on National Highway on up-gradient road at place of accident - Therefore it appears that though lorry was being driven at speed it may be proceeding with normal speed - Mere driving vehicle at speed cannot termed as driving vehicle in a rash and negligent manner - Rough and negligent driving means driven vehicle rashly in a careless manner — When scootarist suddenly emerged from back side of stationed lorry and came in front of lorry petitioner applied sudden breaks and moved lorry to extreme left and as a result of which lorry fell in rich resulting in major accident - Before a conviction can be sustained u/Sec.304-A a very high degree of negligence must be proved - Negligence which amount to recklessness and utter indifference to consequences and rules of road must be established - Mere driving at high speed or some sort of negligence, which is not criminal rashness or negligence may not prove ingridents of Sec.304-A IPC - Simple, lack of care may result in civil liability, but by itself may not constitute criminal negligence punishable under Sec.304-A -

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

Findings of Courts below not based on record and hence liable to be set aside - Criminal Revision case, allowed. K.Nagaraju Vs. The State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 90.

—Sec.304-B - Allegation that death of deceased, wife was on account of harassment by accused/husband and his parents - Trial Court convicted appellants/accused for offence u/Sec.304-B - Appellants/accused contend that prosecution failed to prove alleged acts of harassment or demanding any amount towards dowry - Prosecution contends that though some of witnesses have turned hostile, circumstances of case clearly disclose harassment for dowry on part of appellants - INGREDIENTS REQUIRED TO PROVE CASE U/SEC.304-B IPC - Stated - Mere making a demand of amount, unless followed by an element of cruelty of harassment does not attract provisions of Sec.304-B - As long as there was no allegation of harassment, physical or otherwise, fact that accused made certain demands for amounts that too for purchase of auto to eak out livelihood, cannot be treated as harassment for dowry, particularly, when such demands are said to have been acceded to without demur - Though in postmortem report, it is indicated that death is on account of "blunt injury in the abdomen" and that no external injuries are found, it becomes difficult to relate death of deceased to any acts and omissions on part of first appellant/accused, husband - Conviction of appellants/accused on unsupported testimony of PWs 1 & 2, father and brother of deceased, unsustainable - Conviction and sentence, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Yallamanda Chand Basha Vs.State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 332 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 809 (AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 113 (AP).

——Sec.304-B – EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.113-B – Deceased, wife committed suicide on account of alleged dowry harassment - Asst. Sessions Judge convicting accused, husband for offence u/Sec.304-B IPC - Appellant/accused contends that there is abnormal delay in lodging FIR and as said delay is unexplained, trial Court ought not to have convicted appellant/accused as if he is guilty of offence punishable u/Sec.304-B IPC and that except interested and discrepant testimony of P.Ws.1 to 4 there is absolutely no other incriminating material to hold that appellant harassed deceased for dowry and on account of which alone deceased committed suicide - No doubt, delay in lodging a report definitely plays a vital role, but every delay cannot be said to be fatal to case of prosecution and it depends on facts and circumstances of case - When an unnatural death of woman had taken place within a span of seven years from date of marriage, a presumption u/sec.113-B of Evidence Act shall automatically be drawn – But such a presumption is not conclusive and it is rebuttle presumption - In this case, a scan of evidence of P.Ws. 1 to 4 does not reveal that there was harassment for dowry soon before death of deceased and on account of said harassment only she had taken extreme step of consuming poison and thus committed suicide - It is unfortunate a woman aged 20 years committed suicide within three years from date of her marriage, but that cannot be a ground to hold that said death was solely on account of dowry harassment and appellant accused alone is responsible for such unnatural death of deceased – Conviction and sentence imposed on appellant, set aside – Criminal appeal, allowed. Dunnapothula Kistaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 319.

—Sec.304-B - PASSPORTS ACT, 1967, Sec.12 (1) (b)- Trial Court convicted accused for offences u/Sec. 304-B IPC and Sec.12 (1) (b) of Passport Act - Charge against accused is that he subjected his deceased wife to cruelty and harassment for additional dowry, on account of which her health got deteriorated and ultimately died - Further charge against accused is that while obtaining passport, he suppressed his marital status and did not mention name of his deceased wife, in application - Accused contends that there was no need for him to suppress any fact for obtaining passport and even if it is accepted that he suppressed facts, it would not go root of case for reason that suppression of fact no way debars him for getting passport - When once Doctor states that death was unnatural and there is no cogent evidence to establish that soon before death of deceased, there was harassment, it is not safe to hold that accused is guilty of offence u/Sec.304-B - If really said harassment is in existence as on date of report, same would have been mentioned in Report - It is not known as to why P.W.1 has not stated all these facts in his report marked as Ex.P.1 - But however as there is no evidence that it is an unnatural death and there is harassment for dowry soon before her death, accused cannot be said to have committed offence falling u/Sec.304-B IPC for reason that he is husband of deceased - Court below erred in coming to conclusion that accused is guilty of offence falling u/Sec.304-B IPC and 12(1) (b) of Act - Conviction, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Dr.Madas Venkat Goud Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 27.

—Secs.304-B & 302 – EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.113-B – Allegedly on ground that insufficient dowry brought by deceased, she was tortured and harassed by accused – Sessions Judge convicted accused for offences punishable u/Sec.304-B of IPC – High Court while dismissing appeal preferred by appellant acquitted other three accused - Appellant contends that Sessions Judge as also High Court committed serious error in convicting judgment as they failed to take into consideration that neither in FIR nor in evidence any allegation made to effect that dowry demanded by appellant and as prosecution not able to show that any dowry was demand soon before commission of offence, impugned judgment liable to be set aside – Cause of action for committing offence appears to an ego problem on part of appellant, namely, deceased had not been coming to her matrimonial home, on her own, while he had been coming to his home on leave - Indian Penal Code, Sec.302 – It might be right in contending that on material on record it was possible for trial Court as also High Court to pass judgment of conviction against appellant u/Sec.302 of IPC as death occurred in matrimonial home – It was a homicidal death – Appellant did not make any statement under Sec.313 Cr.P.C that deceased committed suicide or it was an accidental one - In this case, FIR was lodged against others also - Three more persons being sisters of appellant were also charged for commission of said offence – If deceased was forced to take poison they must have some hand in it – As they have been acquitted it is difficult for Court to come to conclusion that it was appellant and appellant alone who was responsible for her death – Impugned judgment, unsustainable – Hence, set aside – Appeal, allowed. Tarsem Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

—Secs.304-B & 306 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.113-A - Appellant (A-1) tried along with his parents (A2 & A3) - Trial Court convicted appellant u/Sec.306 and acquitted accused A2 & A3 - Appellant/A1 contends that evidence of P.Ws.1 to 4 is only hear say evidence and is not admissible and having accepted contents of Ex.P.-9 suicide note with regard to allegation relating to offence u/Sec.304-B, gave erroneous finding convicting appellant for offence u/Sec.306 IPC, though there is no incriminating material against appellant in Ex.P.9 warranting conviction u/Sec.306 - Trial Court having noticed that deceased did not mention about demand of dowry either in Ex.P.9, suicide note or in Ex.P.10, letter written by her to her father, relied on evidence of very same witnesses on aspect that they were informed by deceased that appellant was keeping deceased at a distance and there was no conjugal life between both - In this case, what all stated by P.Ws. 1 to 3 is only hearsay evidence and trial Court ought to have held same is not admissible - Absolutely there is nothing in Ex.P.10 indicating that appellant was ill-treating or harassing deceased - Entire letter only indicates that deceased was feeling guilty of committing mistake of involving in inter caste marriage for which her parents were unwilling - From contents of Exs.P.9 & P.10 it is obvious that deceased was unable to adjust with appellant, and she is a sensitive girl and was under emotional distress at time of writing both Ex.P.9 as well as Ex.P.10 - Material available on record does not indicate that appellant by his conduct either aided or instigated deceased to commit suicide - Facts and circumstances do not able Court to raise a presumption under Sec.113-A of Evidence Act as to abetment of commission of suicide by deceased against appellant - She was in a desperate condition on account of her dissatisfaction regarding married life and ultimately resorted to extreme step of committing suicide - Conviction, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Karre Mohan Krishna Vs. State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 123.

—Sec.304-B & 498-A and 306 - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Secs.3 & 4 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.113-B - Appellants/Accused A1 to A3 convicted u/Sec.304-B and 498-A for harassing and ill-treatment of deceased who committed suicide because of harassment and illtreatment of accused for additional dowry - In this case, evidence of P.Ws 4 & 5 clearly established that even one day prior to her death, deceased expressed her anguish and wept saying that accused were torturing her for sake of certain amount or three acres of land - Irrespectve of invoking any presumption u/Sec.113-B of Evidence Act, prosecution is able to prove all necessary facts constituting offence “dowry death” against A1 to A3 - Prosecution could not lead acceptable evidence to prove offences u/Secs.3 & 4 of Dowry Prohibiton Act - Prosecution could only prove offence punishable u/Sec.304-B IPC - This is not a case of bride burning - It is not a case of homicide and it is a case of suicide committed by deceased because of harassment of A1 to A3 for sake of certain amount or land - There are no strong reasons for imposing maximum punishment of imprisonment of life in this case - In the interest of justice it is appropriate to impose rigorous imprisonment of seven years instead of imprisonment for life - Appeal partly dismissed, confirming conviction of appellants 1 to 3/A1 to A3 u/Sec. 304-B, but altering sentence of imprisonment alone from life to rigorous imprisonment for seven years. Gorre Dharma Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 376.

—Secs.304-B, 498-A & 306 - DOWRY PROHI-BITION ACT, Sec.4 - Deceased hanged herself and died infront of appellants' house on account of alleged harassment and demand for additional dowry by her in-laws and husband - Appellant/accused contend that trial Court erred in convicting appellants for both offences u/Secs.306 & 304-B IPC, in absence of any evidence to show that there was abetment to commit suicide and also failed to take into consideration contradictions in evidence of P.Ws. 1 to 3 on crucial aspect of time and date of incident and alleged demand for additional dowry - Perusal of evidence of P.W.1 makes it crystal clear that A1 is no other than son of sister of P.W.1 and marriage of A1 and his daughter was settled even in childhood itself and accuse started harassing deceased for additional dowry from two months prior to death of deceased and that alleged demand of additional dowry not reported to any body by P.W.1 and that scrutiny of evidence of P.W.2 is entirely different to that of P.W.1 her husband for all material aspects and that P.W.3 is brother of deceased and son of P.Ws. 1 & 2 - In this case, alleged harassment, according to prosecution, is that trouble started on ground that deceased did not beget children and she did not bring additional demand of dowry - In this regard framing of charge, which is framed on allegation that are not found in charge sheet, is very vague and that evidence of witnesses is not consistent as to quantum of dowry, mode of payment and as to demand for additional dowry - In this case, according to P.W.1 Ex.P.1 Report was written in Police Station and himself and P.W.2 signed document - A perusal of Ex.P.1, it does not contain signature of P.W.2 except P.W.1 - Thus, there are inconsistencies as to presentation of Ex.A.1 and it goes a long way to infer against case of prosecution - Trial Court without appreciating all these aspects and evidence on record in proper perspective simply carried away with arguments of Public Prosecutor and convicted accused without any positive, cogent, convincing and trustworthy evidence - Prosecution miserably failed to prove charges which are very vague and ambiguous, against accused and consequently accused are found not guilty for charges levelled against them and they are entitled to be acquitted - Appeal, allowed. Dontharaboina Sadanadam Vs. State 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 102 = 2012(2) ALD (Crl) 892 (AP).

—Sec.304-II, - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.162 - "Delay in lodging FIR" - "Benefit of doubt" - Sessions Judge convicting appellant/accused for offence u/Sec.304-II - Appellant/accused contends that there is inordinate delay in lodging FIR as well as forwarding same to Magistrate and that alleged evidence of eyewitnesses consists of material inconsistencies and improbabilities and that appellant was falsely implicated at instance of his co-contractors who paid some amount to P.W.1, wife of deceased - When there is no proper explanation in respect of delay in forwarding FIR to Magistrate, same is fatal to case of prosecution - Inordinate delay of 1½ days in sending report to Magistrate after registration of report, said delay contributed to doubtful circumstances surrounding prosecution of case in absence of any explanation thereof - In this case, investigation commenced much earlier to lodging of FIR and therefore it hits by Sec.162 of Cr.P.C and same cannot be treated as FIR in eye of law - Registering FIR much latter to commencement of investigation gives any amount of scope for introducing a concocted and distorted version - In this case, trial Court without properly scrutinizing evidence of P.Ws and without examining impact of delay in lodging of FIR as well as sending same to Magistrate convicted accused - Conviction recorded by trial Court is misconceived and as result of improper appreciation of evidence - Appellant is entitled for benefit of doubt - Conviction, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Lingala Lasmaiah @ Laxmaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 384.

—Secs.306, r/w 34 and 107 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - A1 to A5 are accused for offence u/Sec.306 r/w 34 - Prosecution alleged that deceased consumed pesticide poison and committed suicide as A1 to A5 abused deceased by saying that he is impotent person and allowed his wife to have illicit intimacy with A1 and created harassment and degraded prestige of deceased in locality and Society - Petitioners contend even if above prosecution allegations are taken for granted for sake of argument, they do not satisfy requirements of any of three varieties of abetment contained in Sec.107 IPC viz., instigation, engaging in any conspiracy or intentional aiding - A word uttered in fit of anger or emotion without intending consequences to actually follow cannot be said to be instigation - Apart from mens rea some positive act by accused is essential or constitute instigation of intentional aiding resulting in abetment as per Sec.107 IPC - In this case, there was only one instance in which only one sentence was uttered by A1 to A5 in fit of anger or emotion without intending consequences to actually follow - Even if said imputation alleged to have been made by A1 to A5 against deceased is true, it does not amount to instigation of deceased to commit suicide - Prosecution could not make out offence of abetment to commit suicide u/Sec.306 IPC with reference to ingredients of abetment enunciated in Sec.107 IPC even if prosecution allegations are taken on their face value - Proceedings in P.R.C before 1st Class Magistrate, quashed - Criminal petition allowed. Makkena Balaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 330.

—Secs.306 & 366 - Trial Court framed charges against accused for offences u/Secs.366 & 306 and convicted for offence u/Sec.366 - Sessions Judge dismissed appeal and confirmed conviction - Offence u/Sec.306 contemp-lates abetment to commit suicide and there must be evidence that accused abetted commission of suicide by deceased and there must be some uttrances like inducement to deceased that he/she should commit suicide - It is alleged that accused kidnapped and left her at Hubly by taking her from Markapur and thus accused deserted deceased at Hubly and there was no quarrel at any point of time between accused and deceased and also there was no occasion for accused to express a view that deceased should commit suicide - In this case, deceased offered explanation as to why she did not lodge Police complaint after return to Markapur because accused promised to marry her and that accused is not stranger to family of deceased and he is distant relative of deceased - From the facts and circumstances of case, it is quite possible to cull out that this is a case, where deceased eloped with accused rather than was kidnapped by accused - It is a case of deceased running away with accused by way of elopement and it is unfortunate that deceased ultimately committed suicide - Perhaps she lost her hope about marrying deceased and committed suicide - From evidence that offence of kidnap not made out in view of fact that no point of time deceased or P.W/.1/mother lodged complaint about kidnap till demise of deceased - Prosecution failed to make out either offence u/Secs.366 or offence u/Sec.306 IPC - Accused liable to be acquitted - Revision allowed. Ambadipudi Parasuramudu, Anantapur Vs. State of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 157 = 2012(1) ALD (Crl) 61 (AP) = 2012(1) ALT (Crl) 16 (AP).

—Secs.306 & 376 - "Dying declarations" - Allegation against accused raped deceased - Deceased immolated herself with a view to commit suicide as she could not withstand insult - Trial Judge considered that no case, u/Sec.306 made out and however held that prosecution established guilt of accused beyond reasonable doubt for offence u/Sec.376 and sentenced accused for period of seven years - Sessions Judge reversed conviction recorded by trial Court and acquitted accused - Hence revision petition filed by de facto complainant/husband of deceased - PLURALITY OF DYING DECLARATION - In this case, statements of deceased recorded by MRO,SHO and C.I under Ex.P.12, Ex.P.13 and Ex.P.18 - Petitioner/husband of deceased contends that appellate Court erred in appreciating statements of deceased and recorded acquittal - Accused/2nd respondent contends that statements under exhibits P.12, P.13 and P.18 could not be treated as dying declarations as they were not relating to cause or circumstances relating to death of deceased and inconsistencies in dying declarations, one of which being in favour of accused should lead an acquittal of accused - In Ex.P.12 deceased made statement that she had illicit intimacy with accused since about a years prior to death and that illicit intimacy developed on account of threat from accused that he would kill her unless she accepts for illicit intimacy with accused - Accused contends that it is fantastic for deceased to state that she did not accept to sleep with deceased on one occasion but continued illicit intimacy for period of one year on account of fear and that such a statement was unnatural and could not be swallowed - Where deceased admitted that she had illicit intimacy with accused, carnal acquaintance between accused and deceased would not be rape within meaning of Sec.376 - Accused therefore cannot be convicted for offence u/Sec.376 IPC on strength of Ex.P.12 - There was no endorsement from any competent physician on Ex.P.13 certifying that deceased was in a fit state to make statement and on this ground alone Ex.P.13 deserved to be discarded as dying declaration - In this case, there is no reasonable and proper explanation from prosecution why Ex.P.12 should be discarded - Ex.P.13 and Ex.P.18 cannot be treated as dying declarations since they did not contain endorsement from a competent Medical Officer that deceased was in a fit state to make statement and therefore they become inadmissible - Viewed from any angle benefit of doubt accrues to accused in view of clear admission of deceased that she had illicit intimacy with accused - In light of admission of deceased there cannot be rape of deceased by accused - Consequently accused is liable to be acquitted for offence u/Sec.376 - Criminal revision, dismissed. Thanugula Rajender Vs. State of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 347 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 368 (AP) = 2012(1) ALT(Crl) 96(AP).

—Sec.306, 498-A & 107 - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Sec.3 - Trial Court convicting appellant/accused for inflicting mental and physical torture which prompted her to commit suicide by burning herself, pouring kerosene on her body - In appeal, High Court concurred views of trial Court - "Abetment" - More active role which can be described instigating or aiding doing of a thing it required a person can be said to be abetting commission of offence u/Sec.306 - Courts should be extremely careful in assessing facts and circumstances of each case and evidence adduced in trial for purpose of finding whether cruelty meted out to accused had in fact induced her to end her life by committing suicide - In case of alleged abetment of suicide there must be proof of direct or indirect acts of incitement to commission of suicide - Mere fact that husband treated deceased wife with cruelty is not enough - In this case, in view of back ground facts conviction so far as it relates to Sec.306 IPC, set aside - High Court amply demonstrate commission of offences punishable u/Sec.408-A IPC and Sec.3 of D.P Act - Hence convictions are sustained - But sentence in respect of Sec.3 of D.P Act reduced to three years. Kishangiri Mangalgiri Goswami Vs. State of Gujarat 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 88.

—Secs.306, r/w 511 & 506 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Charge-sheet filed against complainant u/Sec.302 r/w Sec.34 IPC - Afraid of frequent threats complainant consumed poison with intention to commit suicide and treated in hospital and was survived - Petitioners contend com-plainant/2nd respondent attempted to commit suicide and was survived and petitioners cannot be charged for offence u/Sec.306 r/w 511 and unless person aggrieved, makes a complaint, petitioners cannot be proceeded for charge u/Sec.506 IPC - To attract punishment u/Sec.511 IPC, acts should amount to attempt and it was an attempt to commit an offence under Code and offence was punishable with imprisonment and charge should mention both Sec.511 and Principal Section - In view of allegation made in statement of complainant, petitioners cannot be charged for offence u/Sec.306 IPC - Therefore, Sec.511 IPC will not attract in circumstances of case which is a risiduary provision - Hence, allowing impugned proceedings to continue against petitioners wil result in abuse of process of law and unnecessary harassment to petitioners - Impugned proceedings, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. K.Khaleel Vs.State of A.P. 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 173.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.307, 324, 337 and 21 - Asst. Sessions Judge convicting accused for offence u/Sec.307, to undergo R.I for 5 years - Sessions Judge, convicting accused u/Sec.324 I.P.C. by setting aside conviction imposed by trial Court - Petitioner, accused contends that he is working as Typist and never intended to attack P.W.1 and his intention was to attack only P.W.2 because of certain rivalry - In absence of any intention, Courts below cannot find petitioner/accused guilty and that previously also, a false case has been foisted against him and made him to run from pillar to post and pursuant to orders passed by Apex Court, he was reinstated into service - Essential ingredients to make out an offence u/Sec.324 I.P.C should be, that there must be voluntarily causing hurt and also required intention - To constitute an offence of voluntarily causing hurt, there must be complete correspondence between result and intention or knowledge of person who causes said hurt - Lower appellate Court ought not have convicted petitioner for offence punishable u/Sec.324 I.P.C, for reason that said act does not satisfy required ingredients i.e, voluntarily causing hurt or intention - It is true that petitioner is public servant within meaning of Sec.21 I.P.C and there is every likelihood of removing him from service - It is only in cases where moral turpitude is involved then only public servant is to be removed from service and offence punishable u/Sec.337 I.P.C would not involve moral turpitude so as to remove petitioner from service - Conviction and sentence imposed on petitioner by lower appellate Court, set aside - Petitioner convicted for offence u/Sec.337 IPC and sentenced to pay fine of Rs.1000 - C.R.C, partly allowed. Ch.Pitchavadhanulu Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 452.

—Secs.307 & 427, r/w 34 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Police registered crime against petitioners, Engineering students - 2nd respondent/complainant himself attended Court and represented that he wants to withdraw case and requested to get offence compounded by invoking inherent powers u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C - Offence u/Sec.307 is not compoundable - However petition allowed invoking powers conferred u/Sec.482 and crime before Police Station, quashed. Baddam Sandeep Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 299.

—Secs. 323 & 324 - Petitioner sought to quash proceedings in C.C.No. 94 of 2015 on file of Judicial Magistrate of First Class, - Contention of the petitioner was injuries suffered by complainant are simple in nature and accused/petitioner have not used any weapon or instrument for causing injuries to complainant and that being case, an offence under Sec. 323 may at best be maintainable but not Sec. 324 IPC and since offences under Secs. 290 and 323 are non-cognizable offences, police cannot investigate those offences without permission of Magistrate under Sec. 155(2) of Cr.P.C and since investigation completed and chargesheet was laid without such permission, entire proceedings are vitiated and thereby accused deserve quashing of proceedings - Held, report of de facto comp-lainant clearly shows commission of a non-cognizable offence under Sec.323 IPC since no instrument or other substance was used to cause injuries - Hence, at very first instance, police ought to have treated report as non-cognizable case and ought to have followed procedure contemplated under Sec. 155 Cr.P.C. Instead, knowingly FIR was registered for offence under Sec. 324 and 290 IPC and investigation was completed and chargesheet was laid - Therefore, this Court constrained to hold that investigation was hit by Sec. 155(2) Cr.P.C - In light of above discussion, proceedings in C.C. No. 94 of 2015 on file of Judicial Magistrate of First Class, are quashed against all accused - In result, Criminal Petition is allowed. Guguloth Jagan Vs. State of Telangana 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 173 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 165 = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 294 (AP) = 2015 Cri. LJ (NOC) 402.

—Secs. 323,354 & 506 - Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, Sec. 3(1) (x)- Petitioners 3 and 4 are husband and wife - On complaint of husband of fourth respondent, police registered a crime on 12/03/2009 against petitioners 3 and 4 herein for offences alleged u/Secs.344, 383, 506 and 420 IPC - In said complaint it was alleged that accused by wrongfully confining complainant got registered sale deed on 09/03/2009 in office of the Sub-Registrar, in respect of land admeasuring 0.92.236 cents - A chargesheet was filed and in trial judgment came in favour of Petitioners 3 and 4 - On 5/6/2009, fourth respondent, who is wife of complainant lodged a complaint alleging that after obtaining anticipatory bail, accused in said crime, who are petitioners 3 and 4 came to their house and threatened fourth respondent and her husband, and abused them in name of their caste and threatened them with dire consequences - A crime was registered u/Sec. 323, 354, 506 and Sec. 3(1)(x) of SC, ST Act but complaint was absolutely silent as to when exactly offence took place i.e. time and date of occurrence of offence - Complaint is also not clear as to who committed act of outraging modesty of fourth respondent - Petitioners have filed the present writ for quashing of case against them - Held, u/Sec. 3(1)(x) of the Act, two necessary and indispensable ingredients must exist - They are, victim should belong to Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe and there must be humiliation of such person in public view - It is case of the petitioners that fourth respondent belongs to 'Balija' community which is a forward caste - In order to demonstrate same, a caste certificate issued by Tahsildar, is placed on record by learned counsel for petitioners, which unambiguously shows that fourth respondent belongs to 'Balija' community - Genuineness of said certificate is not disputed by any of respondents and on other hand in counter filed by official respondents, it is stated that fourth respondent belongs to Balija community which can never be a Scheduled Caste - Principles laid down in various judgments, voluminous material available before this Court and facts and circumstances of case and various litigations instituted by fourth respondent and her husband, who is a retired employee of Central Excise Department, against petitioners herein drive this Court to an irresistible conclusion that prosecution launched against petitioners is undoubtedly and certainly a patent abuse of process of law, which can neither be permitted to be initiated nor be permitted to be continued, lest citizens lose their faith and confidence in the system of rule of law - Court is also of definite opinion that this is eminently a fit case where extra-ordinary jurisdiction of Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is required to be pressed into service to restrain and avoid and avert abuse of process of law - For above said reasons, Writ Petition is allowed and case in Crime No. 184 of 2009 on file of the II Town Police Station, is hereby quashed. K.Venugopal Reddy Vs. Deputy Superintendent of Police, Ananthapur 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 178 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 1043.

—Secs.354 & 448 - Petitioner convicted for offences under said sections - Appellate Court confirmed judgment of trial Court - Accused seeking permission to compound offence - By virtue of amendment of Code of Cr.P.C in 2009 offence u/Sec.354 is no more compoundable within State of A.P. - However petitioner contends that offences in this case occurred on 9-7-1999 and that offence u/Sec.354 IPC was compoundable by date of offence and that amendment which came into force on 31-12-2009 would apply to case - Offence u/Sec.354 IPC is compoundable within State of A.P. so long as offence was committed prior to 31-12-2009 - In present case, offence occurred in year 1999 - Consequently offence is compoundable - Case remitted to Asst. Sessions Judge to enable petitioner to move Court to compound offence. Pati Ranga Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 174 = 2012(1) ALD (Crl) 171 (AP).

—Secs.364-A and 120-B - "Kidnapping minor for ransom" - "Child witness" - A minor boy studying 4th class kidnapped by accused - Father of boy (complainant) reported matter in Police Station - Later on boys father received telephone calls from unknown persons demanding ransom of Rs.10 lakhs and police registered case against unknown persons - Subsequently caller reduced amount to Rs.7 lakhs threatened complainant with ransom is not paid his son would not remain alive - Again caller reduced amount to Rs.3 lakhs send message to complainant to go to Railway Station with amount wearing block colour shirt - Again complainant received from caller from different places - Later on one of associates of accused was arrested and subsequently two more associates also were arrested - Police filed Charge-sheet against eight accused persons for offence punishable u/Sec.364-A and 120-B r/w Sec.34 IPC - Sessions Judge sentenced seven accused to undergo imprisonment for life and however one accused was acquitted as not found guilty - To attract provisions of Sec.364-A what is required to be proved is; (1) that accused kidnapped are abducted persons; (2) kept him under detention after such kidnapping and abduction; and (3) that kindnapping or abduction was for ransom - To pay ransom in ordinary sense means to pay price or demand for ransom and that demand has to be communicate - It is settled legal position that punishment must fit crime and it is duty of Court to impose proper punishment depending upon degree of criminality and desirability to impose such punishment - As a measure of social necessity and also measure deterring other potential offenders, sentence should be appropriate befitting crime - In this case, victim boy student of 4th class was examined as P.W.2, he being a child witness Court has to satisfy that he is capable of understanding events - Trial Judge, after satisfying his capacity to depose, accepted his evidence to extent that he was kidnapped and detained in a house and another person, made telephone calls demanding ransom and also threatened himon various occasions - Considering alarming raise in kidnapping young children for ransom legislature in its wisdom provided for stringent sentence - In those cases who ever kidnapes or abducts young children for ransom, no leniency be shown in awarding sentence, on other hand, it must be dealt with in harshet possible manner and an obligation rests on Courts as well - High Court was right in maintaining order of conviction and sentence of appellant - Impugned judgment of High Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Akram Khan Vs.State of West Bengal 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 54.

—Sec.376 - Accused faced trial for alleged commission of offence of rape - Trial Court acquitted all accused - In appeal filed by State, High Court set aside order of acquittal observing that version of prosecutrix was sufficient to fasten guilt on accused - Circumstances highlighted by trial Court were not sufficient to warrant acquittal - In this case, trial Court noted that though prosecutrix claimed that she was raped by several persons at several times there was no injury noticed and doctor has categorically stated that there was no sign of rape and in fact there was no injury - It is true that injury is not a sine qua non for deciding whether rape has been committed - But it has to be decided on factual matrix of each case - Where allegation is of rape by many persons and several times but no injury is noticed that certainly is an important factor if prosecutrix's version is credible, then no corroboration is necessary - But if prosecutrix's version is not credible then there would be need for corroboration - If Court finds it difficult to accept version of prosecutrix on face value it may search for evidence direct or circumstantial - In view of factual position in this case trial Court is justified in directing acquittal - High Court's judgment upsetting acquittal is clearly unsustainable - Conviction recorded by High Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Lalliram Vs. State of M.P. 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 69.

—Sec.376 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.154 & 161 - Trial Judge sentenced accused to rigorous imprisonment for 10 years and fine - In this case, prosecutrix/ victim woman was examined as P.W.1 - No eye witnesses to occurrence - Immediately after offence P.W.1 and her husband P.W.2 went to Police Station on same day and gave Report - Accused was arrested and examined for potency test and scene of offence also observed in presence of mediators - Accused contends that all material witnesses in this case, turned hostile to prosecution and there is no incriminating material against accused to warrant his conviction and though prosecutrix/P.W.1 spoke to offence in her examination in-chief, had given gobye to her version in cross examination and denied offence and therefore no reliance should have been placed on examination-in-chief of P.W.1 - Prosecution contends that evidence of P.W.1/victim itself is sufficient to find accused guilty u/Sec.376 IPC and that Court need not expect any corroboration for P.W.1's evidence of this nature - In this case, though P.W.1 was examined in-chief on 25-3-2004, she was cross-examined on 24-6-2004 and that in mean while P.W.1 was gained over by accused - It is a case of crude manoeuvring of witness during period of three months after P.W.1's examination - When P.W.1 was examined in-chief, cross-examination by defence Counsel was reported as Nil - Subsequently after manoeuvring witness petition filed in lower Court to recall P.W.1 for further cross-examination and in said further cross-examination she gave gobye to previous version given in examination-in-chief and deposed in that manner - Since it is a case of winning over witness after her first examination-in-Court - Cross-examination of P.W.1 loses its weight and it cannot be relied upon at all for any purpose as it is tainted one - Apart from P.W.1's evidence and Ex.P.1, Report which has got corroborative value, there is also medical corroboration in this case - Lower Court also placed heavy reliance on oral evidence of P.W.1 only in finding accused guilty of offence u/Sec.376 IPC - No reason put forward as to why P.W.1 launched prosecution of accused if there was no rape - There are no circumstances to disbelieve P.W.1's evidence in this case - Conclusion arrived by lower Court is proper and just - No grounds to interfere with finding of guilt recorded by lower Court - Appeal, dismissed. Narra Peddi Raju Vs. State of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 193 = 2012(1) ALD (CRL) 410 (AP) = 2012(1) ALT (Crl) 59 (AP).

—Sec.376, r/w Sec.109 and Secs.378 & 506 – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.90 – Sessions Judge convicting accused for offence u/Sec.376 of IPC and sentenced to imprisonment for life – High Court allowed appeal holding that prosecution failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and set aside order of conviction - In this case accused being related to prosecutrix used to often visit her house and took advantage of this relationship and kept prosecutrix under misconception that he would marry her and committed rape on her for more than 2 years thereby making her pregnant - He thus invaded her person by indulging in sexual intercourse with her, in order to appease his lust, all time knowing that he would not marry her and he committed an act of brazen fraud leading her to believe that he would marry her - A women's body is not a man's plaything and he cannot take advantage of it in order to satisfy his lust and desires by fooling a woman into consenting to sexual intercourse simply because he wants indulge in it - Accused in this case has committed vile act of rape and deserves to be suitably punished for it - Judgment and order of High Court set aside and conviction and sentencing of accused by Trail Court under Sec.376 of IPC, upheld – Appeal allowed. State of U.P. Vs. Naushad 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 147 = 2014(1) ALD (Crl) 634(SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 6717 = AIR 2014 SC 384.

—Secs.376 & 302 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.313 - Respondent/accused charged for committing rape and murder - Trial Court acquitted accused - Respondent/accused was employed by P.W.1 to do household work as well as work in kiran shop - P.W.1 and his wife gone to another village to settle alliance to their daughter, deceased - Taking advantage of deceased is alone accused insisted to have sex with him and when she slapped him he became furious and hit her with chutney Grinder and thereafter stabbed with knife - Respondent/accused contends that there are several discrepancies and inconsistencies in evidence of P.Ws and prosecution implicated accused without any basis and that being rustic villager he did not think it fit, to offer any explanation during course of examination u/Sec.313 Cr.P.C - In this case, admittedly accused was employed by P.W.1 and deceased was alone in house and accused admitted his immediate presence at scene of occurrence at relevant point of time - Presence of accused at scene of offence stands established - Evidence discloses that accused ran away from that place and very fact of accused found running from scene of occurrence and his cloths contained not only stains of blood, but also semen and failure to explain the circumstances would naturally provide strong circumstance against accused - When a heinous crime of rape on a girl whose marriage was on unveil, followed by her murder, is proved by evidence on record, minor discrepancies on unimportant aspects, cannot basis to let off accused, who has otherwise been proved to have committed offence and such approach would result in failure of justice - Society would not at all be safe, if persons who are otherwise proved to be guilty, are let off on hyper -technical grounds - Respondent/accused found guilty of offences punishable u/Sec.376 and 302 IPC - Judgment of trial Court reversed - Accused sentenced to undergo imprisonment for life - Appeal preferred by State, allowed. State of A.P. Vs. Madala Venkata Narasimha Rao 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 405 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 770 (AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 71 (AP) = 2008 Cri. LJ 1992 (AP).

—Sec.376 r/w Sec.504 - Appellant/accused convicted for a offence u/Secs.376 & 506 - u/Sec.375 IPC that penetration in sufficient to constitute sexual inter course necessary to offence of rape - High Court is right in holding that appellant/accused in guilty of offence of rape and there is no merit in contention of the appellant that there was only an attempt to rape and not rape by appellant - Penetration is not essential ingredient of rape - Legislature requires Court to record adequate and special reasons in any given case where punishment to less than minimum sentence of several years is to be imposed - Conduct of accused at time of commission of offence of rape age of prosecutrix and consequences of rape on prosecutrix on some of relevant factors which Court should consider while considering question of reducing sentence to less than minimum sentence - There are no adequate special reasons to reduce sentence to less than minimum sentence u/Sec.376(1) IPC - Appeal, dismissed. Parminder alias Ladka Pola Vs. State of Delhi, 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 68 = 2014(1) ALD (Crl) 850 (SC) = 2014 AIR SCW 709 = AIR 2014 SC 1035.

—Secs.376(2), 302, 109 & 114 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.161 & 164 - Sessions Judge convicting appellants, accused 1 to 3 u/Secs.376(2) & 302 IPC and A4 u/Sec.376 r/w 109 and A5 u/Sec.376(2), r/w 114 for committing gang rape on deceased which resulted death of deceased - Appellants, accused contend that they are falsely implicated and that there is inordinate delay in lodging FIR and that statements of P.W.4 recorded u/secs.161 & 164 not furnished to accused and therefore, on account of said lapses entire trial is vitiated - In this case, delay in lodging FIR and recording statement of P.W.4 u/Sec.161 Cr.P.C by Investigating Officer is properly explained by prosecution and same is not fatal to prosecution case - As regards non furnishing of statement of P.W.4 recorded by Magistrate u/Sec.164 Cr.P.C that said fact assumes importance only when it is shown that prejudice has occasioned to accused - It is not at all case of prosecution that either A4 or A5 committed any sexual assult on deceased - P.W.4 did not state that either A4 or A5 handedover deceased to A1 to A3 - Prosecution is specific on aspect that A1 to A3 gang raped deceased, which act ultimately, resulted in her death - In this case, that since entire evidence rested on evidence of P.W.4 who is no other than cousin of deceased girl, it is not appropriate for Court to accept or reject entire evidence of P.W.4 - It is highly difficult to believe that either A4 or A5 secured presence of deceased girl who is only aged 9 years on date of incident for satisfying lust of A1 to A3 - From evidence of P.W.4 it is obvious that A1 to A3 did commit gang rape on her and were also responsible for her death - Conviction and sentence passed by trial Court against A1 to A3 confirmed - Conviction and sentence passed against A4 and A5, set aside - Criminal appeal partly allowed. Kallukunta Deva Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 133.

—Secs.399 & 402 - ARMS ACT, Sec.25 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.173 - On completion of investigation charge sheet filed against accused for offences u/sec.399 & 402 and Arms Act, Sec.25 - Trial Court convicted Appellant accused - Accused filed appeal before High Court against judgment of trial Court - High Court affirmed conviction of appellants and reduced sentence u/Sec.399 IPC - Hence, this appeal - Appellants contend that High Court grossly erred in law in not acceptig appeal of appellant Jasbirsingh as prosecution story was completely false on face of it unbelievable and that High Court has failed to reappreciate evidence on record independently - Respondent submits that appellant along with other accused was found planning to commit dacoity and was arrested along with fire arm and at spot, as such, Courts below have rightly found that appellant Jisbirsingh guilty of charge framed agaist him - None of charge in present case, against appellant can be said to have been proved beyond reasonable doubt - In view of fact and circumstances which are apparent from evidence on record this Court find that both Courts below have erred in law holding at prosecution has successfully proved charge of offences punishable u/Sec.399 and 402 IPC and one punishable u/Sec.25 of Arms Act, against appellant Jasbirsingh - This Court of opinion it is a fit case, where appellant is entitled to benefit of reasoable doubt and deserves to be acquitted - Appeal allowed accordingly. Jabir Singh Vs.State of Haryana 2015(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 1

—Secs.405, 409, 418, 423 and 464 - Petitioners are accused 1 and 2 registered for the alleged offences u/Secs.405, 409, 418, 423 and 464 IPC - According to them, petitioner in WP.No.26246 of 2007 purchased an extent of Ac.5-00 cents from the petitioner in W.P.26369 of 2007, by way of a registered sale deed - On complaint made by second respondent, police registered the subject crime - Seeking quashment of said crime, present writ petitions came to be filed.

Held, Hon'ble Apex Court while dealing with an allegation of cheating u/Sec.420 of IPC and necessary ingredients of same, held that in order to bring a case for offence of cheating, it is not merely sufficient to prove that a false representation had been made, but it is further necessary to prove that representation was false to knowledge of accused and was made in order to deceive complaint - In instant case, said indispensable ingredient is conspicuously absent in complaint and allegations contained therein - Therefore, further continuation of prosecution against petitioners undoubtedly amounts to abuse of process of law - For aforesaid reasons, writ petitions are allowed, and F.I.R. is quashed. M.Srinivasulu Reddy Vs. Station House Officer, Vijayawada 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 418 = 2016(3) Law Summary 409 = 2016(1) ALD (Crl) 1014 = 2016(2) ALT (Crl) 369 = 2016(3) ALT 431.

—Secs.406 & 420 - S.C. & S.T. (PREVENTION OF ATROCITIES) ACT, 1989, Sec.3(1)(x) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.156(3), 210 & 482 - Basing on complaint of 1st respondent, charge-sheet filed by women Police Station before Magistrate u/Sec.498-A - 1st respondent subsequently filed another complaint before Magistrate on advise of Investigating Officer under Special Act - Petitioners/accused while denying factual allegations made against them in complaint contend that allegations in private complaint which was registered earlier and charge sheet filed in subsequent CC on completion of investigation into said crime, are identical and advise of Investigating Officer to file another case is illegal, as it is his duty to register case under appropriate sections of law and file a final report u/Sec.173 of Cr.P.C. - 1st respondent contends that earlier charge sheet filed by Police gave an option to her to file a separate complaint under provisions of Special Act and hence she was forced to file separate complaint and that she cannot be deprived of her right to pursue remedies in respect of offences committed against her merely due to non-inclusion in earlier charge-sheet - Petitioners contend that there cannot be two FIRs against same accused in respect of same case, but ultimate object of every investigation was recognized to be to find out whether offences alleged to have been committed and if so by whom and that investigating agency is not precluded from further investigation inspite of forwarding a report u/Sec.173(2) in light of Sec.173(8) of Cr.P.C - It is possible to file a further complaint by same complainant based on material gathered during course of investigation - In present case, though both cases arises out of same incident 1st case did not cover offence under Special Act which could not be investigated by Investigating Officer of first case, due to statutory bar compelling victim to pursue second case - Though petitioners suffer inconvenience, expense, stress, trouble and possibility of adverse verdict twice over for same set of facts which could have been avoided if 1st complaint from 1st respondent itself was compre-hensively investigated into by Police Officer competent to do same and prosecuted before Court of competent jurisdiction at same time, legal right of 1st respondent, complainant against offences covered by her second complaint and pursue same to its logical conclusion, cannot be negatived or nullified on any such equitable consideration - As equities can only supplement and not override legal rights liabilities and as such further proceedings in crime do not appear to be susceptible to any quashing in exercise of inherent powers u/ Sec.482 Cr.P.C - Criminal petition, dismissed. Perugu Gopinath Reddy Vs. P.Sushmitha 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 78.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Sec.406 and 420 r/w Sec.34 – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Complaint filed against A1 to A5 for offences punishable u/Sec.406, 420 & 34 of IPC - Petitioners, A1 to A5 fixed marriage alliance with LW3 daughter of defacto Complainant - Lagnapatrika also prepared and Defacto Complainant spent Rs.1 lakh for celebrating engagement function and presented gold chain and also fixed Kalyanamandapam – Petitioner, A1 informed that he was not willing to marry daughter of Defacto Complainant and advised to perform marriage of his daughter with another boy - Basing on Report of Defacto Complainant Police Registered case against the petitioners/accused - Hence petition filed to quash charge sheet - In this case act complained would not attract any criminal offence – Letdown from a promise to marry does not in any way attract offence u/Sec.420 IPC – Merely because A1 received some gold ornaments presented by Defacto Complainant it does not constitute an offence of Criminal breach of trust - Defacto Complainant since acted on promise made by petitioners, more particularly that of A1, if he had really incurred any expenditure based on assurance of petitioners, he can recover same by way of damages which remedy lies in Civil Law – No criminal offence is made out against petitioners warranting prosecution against them - Criminal proceedings pending against petitioner are quashed – Criminal petition allowed. M.Giriprasad Vs. K.Munikrishna Reddy 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 345 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 52 (AP) = 2014(2) ALT (Crl) 171 (AP).

—-Secs.406, 420, 477-A and 506 – CRIMINAL PROCEDUR CODE, Sec.190 - Fifth respondent in the writ petition/second respondent in the criminal revision, filed a complaint u/Sec.190 Cr.P.C. before lower Court, and the same was referred to Police Station, u/Sec.156(3) Cr.P.C - Thereupon, Crime was registered u/Secs.406, 420, 477-A and 506 of IPC r/w Sec.120-B of IPC on file of said police station.

After investigating crime, police filed a final report referring complaint as of 'Civil Nature' - Aggrieved thereby, fifth respondent filed a petition u/Sec.173(8) Cr.P.C. before Court below to refer case for further investigation to Deputy Commissioner of Police, Central Crime Station, Detective Department - This petition was dismissed - Challenging this order, fifth respondent filed Criminal Revision Petition before the learned Metropolitan Sessions Judge - Criminal revision was allowed and matter was remanded to Court below to consider protest petition afresh and to pass a speaking order in accordance with law - Thereupon, by order, Court below allowed petition and directed Station House Officer, to conduct further investigation and submit a report - Aggrieved thereby, Accused Nos.1, 2 and 6 to 9 in Crime filed Criminal Revision.

In meanwhile, fifth respondent submitted representation to Commissioner of Police, complaining that the Sub-Inspector failed to understand case and had given him notice that he wanted to close case, as he opined that it was of 'Civil Nature', and requested that matter be entrusted to Central Crime Station/Criminal Investigation Department, as a large sum of money was involved and he had faith and trust in said department - Acting thereupon, Commissioner of Police, instructed Inspector of Police, to transfer case to Deputy Commissioner of Police, Detective Department, for further investigation - Thereupon, case was renumbered as Crime on the file of Central Crime Station, Detective Department, by the Inspector of Police, Central Crime Station - However, as S.R. had been allowed by the Court below in the meanwhile, whereby Station House Officer, was directed to conduct further investigation in Crime, but as Central Crime Station, was proceeding with investigation in renumbered Crime, by issuing Notices u/Secs.91 and 160 of Cr.P.C. - Accused Nos.1, 2 and 6 to 9 in Crime also filed Writ Petition before this Court - By order passed in WPMP, this Court took note of the Order passed by the Court below specifically entrusting the investigation to the Station House Officer, and granted interim stay of all further proceedings pursuant to the Notices issued in Crime on the file of the Central Crime Station, Detective Department - Petitions were filed by the police authorities and the fifth respondent to vacate the interim order - However, with consent of learned counsel for the parties, cases are taken up for final disposal.

It was contended that directing further investigation was not justified on facts and in law and so too, entrustment of case to another agency.

Held, there is no indication of any of documents specifically mentioned by Court below having been actually verified - Further, as pointed out by Supreme Court, once Magistrate opined that case was a fit one for further investigation, unless such a conclusion is shown to be wholly without basis, it is not for the revisional Court to exercise jurisdiction u/Sec.397 of Cr.P.C. and set at naught direction to undertake further investigation - Needless to state, such investigation is intended to further ends of justice - In that view of matter, this Court does not find any reason to interfere with order passed by the Court below directing further investigation - Mere use of word 'reinvestigation' in body of order does not detract from final direction which only required investigating agency to undertake 'further investigation' and not 'reinvestigation' - Such a hyper-technical error would not weigh with this Court when intention of Court below was otherwise spelt out in clear terms - Order under revision therefore does not warrant interference.

In light of this concession made by the learned senior counsel that complainant, at point of time when he sought transfer of case to Central Crime Station, stated that investigating officer, who then held office, was not able to appreciate depth of case and react accordingly, but as said officer is no longer in office there would be no necessity to seek transfer of case to the Central Crime Station at this stage - He would therefore state that investigating agency which had earlier filed final report could undertake further investigation as directed by Court below and given fact that order passed by the Commissioner of Police, was contrary to direction passed by Court below and was also at variance with legal position, same cannot be sustained - Central Crime Station, would therefore have no power to undertake such further investigation as it is neither open to police authorities nor Magistrate concerned to direct such further investigation through a particular agency - Notices issued by said agency are therefore set aside.

Writ petition is accordingly allowed and the criminal revision is dismissed - The interim order passed in WPMP shall stand vacated in light of this final order. Yoginder Garg Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 439 = 2016(1) ALD (Crl) 552 = 2016(2) ALT (Crl) 12.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.406, 420 & 506, r/w Sec.34 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Petitioners/accused placed order with complainant for print and supply of Survey Forms - Accused agreed to pay Rs.46,000/- per one lakhs forms and total cost of order was estimated as Rs.3.68 crores - Initially complainant printed 70 lakhs forms, but 50,000 forms were supplied to accused in five consignments costing Rs.25 lakhs - Apart from Forms complainant also supplied stationary worth Rs.2 lakhs to petitioners - Out of said amount of Rs.25 lakhs petitioners paid only Rs.15 lakhs to complainant - Petitioner/accused failed to receive form and pay balance amount Rs.10 lakhs - Hence complaint filed against petitioner u/Secs.406, 420,506 IPC - Petitioner/deceased contend that even accepting allegations in charge sheet to be true no offence is made out u/Sec.420 IPC and that one of main ingredients to constitute cheating is that their should be dishonest intention from inception, lacking in present case - Even offence u/Sec.406 IPC is made out as there was entrustment neither intruistment of property nor was there misapprppriation of property entrusted to accused - A reading of Sec.405 IPC would reveal that to constitute an offence u/Sec.406 IPC there must be entrustment with property and accused must have misappropriated property or diksposed of that property in violation of such trust - Even if placing an order to print material is to be treated as entrustment second limb of Sec.405 of IPC i.e, misappropriation of property entrusted is missing - In this case, prima facie to print 8 crores survey forms which lead to printing of Rs.50 lakhs forms payment of megre amount and thereafter refusing to take material could not fall within meaning of entrustment as defined u/Sec.405 of IPC - Proceedings in so far as offence u/Sec.406 IPC alone are quashed - Criminal petition allowed, in part. V.Ramesh Babu Vs. State of A.P. 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 111 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl.) 731.

—Secs.415, 405 & 406,420 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Appellant/owner of land entered into agreement of sale to sell certain extent of land to 2nd respondent and received advance amount - Since 2nd respondent was unable to pay balance amount of sale consideration, appellant executed sale deed in favour of 3rd party - Respondent contends that appellant executed sale deed without calling upon him to pay balance amount and as such he committed an offence u/Secs.406 & 420 of IPC - Hence FIR lodged by respondent - High Court rejected Application filed by appellant for quashing FIR - "Criminal breach of trust" and "cheating" - Defined - An offence of cheating would be constituted when accused has fraudulent or dishonest intention at time of making promise or representation - A pure and simple breach of contract does not constitute an offence of cheating - If dispute between parties was essentially a civil dispute resulting from a breach of contract on part of appellant by non refunding amount of advance same would not constitute an offence of cheating - High Court may also interfere where action on part of complainant is mala fide - Impugned judgment of High Court, unsustainable - Hence, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Dalip Kaur Vs. Jangar Singh 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 7.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.415 & 420, r/w Sec.34 - CONTRACT ACT, Sec.18 - Civil dispute - Complaint filed against petitioner, GPA and other co-accused for alleged execution of sale agreements with dishonest and fraudulent intention - Magistrate ordered summoning petitioner and other accused u/Sec.420 r/w Sec.34 IPC - Sessions Judge dismissed Revision petition filed against issuance of summons - Single judge of High Court dismissed application filed u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C holding that matters raised triable issues and could only be determined by leading evidence at trial - If at very initiation of negotiations it is evident that there was no intention to cheat dispute would be of civil nature - But such conclusion would depend on evidence to be led at time of trial - Impugned order of High Court cannot be interfered with - SLP, dismissed. S.P. Gupta Vs. Ashutosh Gupta 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 116.

—Secs.417, 420 & 306 - Accused convicted and sentenced for offence u/Sec.417 - Prosecution case is that appellant/ accused and deceased were selected as Sub-Inspectors and when they were undergoing training, they got acquainted with each other and their acquaintance blossomed into love affair and subsequently marriage of accused fixed with another girl - Allegation that deceased took an extreme step of committing suicide being not able to bear deception played by appellant/accused - Contention that even if suicide note is considered in toto, no ingre-dients of Sec.417 IPC are made out and therefore conviction and sentence of appellant recorded for offence u/Sec.417 IPC is not legal and proper and same is liable to be set aside - Sec.417 IPC defines cheating - In definition of cheating there are set forth two separate clauses of acts, which person deceived may be induced to do - In first place he may be induced fraudulently or dishonestly to deliver any property to any person or to consent that any person shall retain any property - Second clause of acts set forth in Section is doing or omitting to do anything, which person deceived would not do or omit to do if he were not so deceived - Mere breach of contract cannot give rise to criminal prosecution under Sec.420 unless fraudulent or dishonest intention is shown right at beginning of transaction, that is time when offence is said to have been committed - In this case, trial Court proceeded to conclude that accused had carnal relationship with deceased since both of them spent a whole night - There is no basis for trial Court to infer that accused had physical union with deceased and even close relations of deceased who have been examined as P.Ws did not speak of accused having carnal relationship with deceased - Suicide note is explicit that she desired to have next birth so that she could be loved by accused - It appears she immensely loved accused without there being no reciprocation from accused - It is nowhere stated in suicide note that accused deceived her and therefore, she became frustrated and resorted to take such an extreme step - Trial Court recorded conviction of appellant/accused for offence u/Sec.417 IPC on mere conjectures and surmises and hence liable to be set aside - Criminal appeal, allowed. K.Ashok Kumar Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 7 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 995 (AP) = 2008(2) ALT (Crl) 202 (AP) = 2008 Cri. LJ 2783.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.418, 426,148 & 506 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.156(3),173,191(b),202 & 204 - Magistrate referred complaint of 2nd respondent for investigation - After investigation Police filed final report u/Sec.173 referring case as civil in nature - Magistrate, after making enquiry into protest petition took cognizance of case against accused including petitioners 1 & 2 - Petitioner contends that when Police referred case without filing Charge Sheet then course open to complainant is to file a second complaint before Magistrate on which Magistrate has to make necessary enquiry contemplated u/Sec.202 Cr.P.C and issue process u/Sec.204 Cr.P.C after taking cognizance of offences against accused - In this case, no doubt basis of complaint is violation of mutual agreement said to have been executed among Family members who are in occupation definite and different portions of same house property and it is alleged that in case of modifications in portions which are in respect of occupation of parties, such modifications shall be carried out upon mutual agreement of all parties - Though original dispute among family members and between parties is civil dispute, it had turned out into criminal proportion because of interference by anti-social elements, brought by A3 & A5 - Therefore lower Court rightly took cognizance of case after recording Sworn statement of complainant/2nd respondent - No grounds in law to quash proceedings in lower Court at this stage - Criminal petition, dismissed. Ch.Venkata Ramana Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 354 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 124(AP) = 2011(1) ALT(Crl) 51(AP).

—Sec.420 - 2nd Respondent, who was a third party, was assured by A-5 in returning the document if the entire loan amount is cleared - Knowing reason for repayment of loan amount, A-5 induced the 2nd Respondent to repay the due amount and having received the entire loan amount of Rs. 7,72,60,862/- from the 2nd Respondent A-5 failed to return the original documents - Said act of A-5 in inducing the 2nd Respondent to part with money caused wrongful loss to him, thereby, prima facie, constituting an offence punishable u/Sec. 420 of IPC - Criminal Petition filed by A-5 partly allowed. Ravinder, Branch Manager, ICICI Bank Ltd. Vs. State of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 434.

—-Sec.420 - REGISTRATION ACT, Secs. 82 & 83 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.173 - A former member of Parliament submitted a complaint to Sub-Registrar, against petitioner herein alleging irregularities committed by him violating provisions of Registration Act - Sub-Registrar served a notice on petitioner for appearance before him and the same was returned unserved - Based on said report, police investigated case and filed chargesheet against petitioner under Sec.173 of Cr.P.C., for offences under Secs.420 of IPC and 82, 83 of Registration Act and same was taken on file by cognizance of offence against accused - It is after taking cognizance before framing of charges under Sec.240 of Cr.P.C as per police warrant case, petitioner filed application under Sec.239 of Cr.P.C. seeking for his discharge and same dismissed by Magistrate which is being challenged in present revision.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

Held, for a complaint, to take cognizance by Magistrate under Sec. 190 of Cr.P.C. procedure is on filing of written complaint and after examination of complainant and witnesses by recording their statements, take case on file - Here, it is not such a report submitted by Sub-Registrar to police crime registered and investigated - Here, the provision is not only for a prior sanction of Registrar to lay a private complaint case but also for instituting prosecution case intimating by report of case within 24 hours of institution and the mandatory requirements of the statutory formalities not complied with, law and fact that was missed in this case in dismissing application for discharge sought by petitioner, suffice to say Court could not have taken cognizance of offence against accused.

Accordingly, in result, Revision is allowed by setting aside discharge dismissal application and accused is discharged for Magistrate has no right to take cognizance. Guniganti Ravinder Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 22.

—Sec.420 - MONEY CIRCULATION & BANNING ACT, 1978, Secs.3,4,5 & 6 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - FIR lodged against appellant,Director of a Company for offence u/Sec.420 IPC, r/w Secs.3 to 6 of MC&B Act - Magistrate issued non-bailable warrants against appellant - Appellant filed petition u/Sec.482 of Cr.P.C seeking to quash proceedings initiated against him - High Court passed orders directing appellant to approach trial Court seeking for order of discharge - Appellant contends that even according to averments of complaint in FIR there were no allegations whatsoever against appellant and that High Court ought to have quashed proceedings against appellant instead of compelling him to approach trial Court for obtaining order of discharge - In this case, appellant contends that he cannot be held liable or responsible for any alleged irregularities committed by Company after he had resigned from Company and he was not Director at relevant point of time - IPC, Sec.420 - "Cheating" - Main ingredients - Stated - Two main ingredients are dishonest and fraudulent intention - In instant case, according to appellant there has been no dishonest intention nor have any allegations as to extent of such dishonest intention been made, in complaint and FIR - In fact no material whatsoever has been produced by complainant which would indicate any such dishonest/fraudulent intention at any stage - Complaint itself expressly stated that offence had taken place only after appellant ceased to be Director of Company - There cannot be any vicarious liability in absence of any allegation and material to show that appellant was incharge or responsible for conduct of Company's business at relevant point of time - Summoning of accused in a criminal case is serious matter - Criminal law cannot be set into motion as a matter of course - In instant case, appellant ceased to be Director of Company at relevant point of time and admittedly there are no allegations against appellant in FIR - Inherent power should not be exercised to stifle legitimate prosecution but at same time no person be compelled to face criminal prosecution if basic ingredients of alleged offence against him are altogether absent - Impugned judgment of High Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed - Proceedings initiated against appellant are quashed. M.A.A.Annamalai Vs. State of Karnataka 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 126 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 494 (SC) = 2010 AIR SCW 6846 = 2011 Cri. LJ 692(SC).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Sec.420 - NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, Sec.138 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.300 - Petitioner/accused entered into agreement with Company traded in commodities and became liable to pay certain amount and towards discharge of said liability, accused issued cheque for said amount in favour of above Company and said cheque was bounced for want of sufficient funds in account of accused and that accused issued cheque with an intention to cheat de facto complainant - Petitioner contends that another complaint was filed by complainant against petitioner alleging offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act and that when it is pending trial, present case for offence u/Sec.420 IPC on same allegations and on same cause of action is not maintainable as petitioner cannot be tried twice on same allegations in view of Sec.300 Cr.P.C. - This is not a case, where petitioner/accused was convicted for one of two offences by any competent criminal Court and thereafter is being tried for another offence on basis of same cause of action - In this case, both criminal cases one for offence u/sec.138 of N.I Act and second one for offence u/Sec.420 IPC are pending trial - Ingredients of above two offences are entirely different - Police are incompetent to register a case for offence u/Sec.138 of N.I Act and investigate into same and to file charge sheet for said offence - Sec.142(a) of N.I Act creates a bar for Court to take cognizance of any offence punishable u/sec.138 except on a complaint in writing made by payee or holder in decourse of cheque - Only allegation is that accused gave cheque in question with an intention to cheat second respondent thus, allegation of deception is on date of issue of cheque and not on date of entering into agreement for trading commodities - In absence of any such basic ingredients of inducement by fraud or deception at inspection of transaction, mere giving of cheque for amount due without their being sufficient funds in account of accused, cannot attract liability u/Sec.420 IPC - Prosecution could not make out any ingredients for maintaining charge sheet u/Sec.420 IPC against accused - Proceedings in CC, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. G.Man Mohan Hari Prakash Vs. State of A.P. 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 16 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 882(AP) = 2011(2) ALT(Crl) 127(AP).

—Sec.420 - NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, Secs.138 &142 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - 2nd respondent is partner of two Finance Firms - Since some partners are not in a position to uphold trust of Managing partner, Firm dissolved and accounts settled - In pursuance of memorandum of understanding petitioner issued cheque to 2nd respondent for Rs.3.85 lakhs - When said cheque presented, 2nd respondent received intimation that account was closed - Hence 2nd respondent lodged complaint against petitioner for offences punishable under Sec.420 IPC,and Sec.138 of N.I Act - Petitioner contends that he had availed loan from Financiers and execute promissory note and issued blank cheque and subsequently he paid entire loan amount, when requested for return of promissory note and blank cheque 2nd respondent stated they are misplaced and that Police not authorized to investigate into case filed for offence u/Sec.138 of Act - Scheme and provisions of Secs.138 & 142 of Act make it clear that it is payee who has to make a complaint in writing and upon such complaint, Court is empowered to take cognizance - As such, giving a complaint to Police and registering a case for offence u/sec.138 of Act, appears to be not contemplated under Act - Time limit prescribed for issuing a Notice, on receipt on information by payee from Bank regarding return of cheque as unpaid, and time limit given to drawer to enable him to make payment and time limit prescribed to payee to file complaint, makes it very clear that no Police investigation is contemplated under provisions of Act - Unless it is specifically alleged that at very inception accused has dishonest intention which are ingredients of sec.415 punishable under Sec.420 of IPC have not been made out - Since there is no allegation that petitioner had fraudulent intention on date of issuing cheque and closed account by date of issuing cheque it appears that ingredients of Sec.420 of IPC have not been made out - Hence proceedings against petitioners , quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. J.Vidya Sagar Vs. State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 194.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Sec.420 r/w Sec.34 – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 – Defacto-Complainant gave original sale deed of his shop room property to petitioners/A1, A2 & A3 to find out intending purchasers – Allegation that petitioners obtained loan from Bank by offering property of Defacto-Complainant by playing fraud on him with out informing him - Hence Defacto-Complainant gave complaint to police - SHO registered case against petitioners u/Sec.420 of IPC - Petitioners filed present petition to quash investigation in said crim - Sale deed was given for loan borrowed by A2 from Bank in the year 2008 - Defacto-Complainant filed present complaint in the year 2012 – Sale deed was with A1 for period of 4 years much prior to 2008 – It is not un understandable as to why Defacto-Complainant kept quiet without asking A1 to return sale deed - Dispute between parties is basically of Civil in nature and it arose on account of non payment of instalments by A2 to Bank – Allegations leveled in compliant inherently improbable and manifestly untrue – If investigation is allowed to continue on basis of said complaint it is nothing but abuse of process of law and ultimately miscarriage of justice - Main object of jurisdiction and powers of High Court u/Sec.482 of Cr.P.C is to prevent abuse of process of law and miscarriage of justice - Criminal petition allowed. Dasari Venu Gopal Vs. State of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 16 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 33 (AP) = 2014(3) ALT (Crl) 134 (AP).

—Secs. 420, 193, 198, 465, 209, 199 r/w 34 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Wife of second respondent filed a criminal case against the first petitioner and it was closed and then the second respondent filed a criminal case under various sections against petitioners including first petitioner and appellants chose to approach the High Court u/S. 482 of Cr.P.C for quashing of proceedings against them in said criminal case -Held, a perusal of allegations made in the complaint clearly demonstrates that the de facto complainants were very much frustrated with the amount awarded to them by the Labour Court and by any means to get some share out of compensation amount awarded to first petitioner, filing of criminal cases by de facto complainants one after the other is nothing but abuse of process of law - One should not be allowed to use criminal Court as instrumentality to take personal vengeance by filing frivolous and vexatious complaints - In present case, registration of Crime No.38 of 2011 against the petitioners herein after referring Crime No. 82 of 2010 as mistake of fact, would certainly amount to abuse of process of law - There is a bar under law to register second FIR in respect of the same incident basing on same incident on same set of facts - Criminal Petition allowed and proceedings in Crime No. 38 of 2011 quashed. Bondi Janaki Vs. State of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 25.

Secs.420, 379, 468, 385 and 506 - Criminal Petition is filed u/Secs.482 Cr.P.C. seeking to quash proceedings against petitioner.

First respondent in a private complaint alleged that he visited his brother's house and after settlement of financial transaction, he has taken back 20 blank promissory notes, blank cheques and two non-judicial stamp papers each duly signed by him from his brother - While first respondent was getting into bus polythene bag in which above referred cheque books, promissory notes and non-judicial stamp papers were kept, was misplaced and he rushed to Police Station and informed same - Subsequently, Station House Officer, issued a non-tracing certificate - First respondent issued a paper ad about same.

On 20.01.2016, petitioner got issued a legal notice to first respondent as if he executed a promissory note in favour of petitioner for an amount of Rs.2.00 lakhs agreeing to repay same with interest @ 24 % p.a. and also issued a cheque for Rs.2,52,000/- - First respondent got issued a reply notice stating that he lost polythene bag at Pamarru bus stand and directed petitioner to handover same - Petitioner demanded huge amount from first respondent for return of above said documents - Petitioner filed case as if first respondent has committed offence punishable u/Sec.138 of Negotiable Instruments Act, taking advantage of custody of signed cheque - Petitioner also filed suit against first respondent for recovery of suit amount as if first respondent executed a promissory note - Immediately first respondent approached SubInspector of Police, Pamarru Police Station and submitted a written complaint but in vain - Hence first respondent was forced to file private complaint before trial Court.

Learned Judicial Magistrate, after examining witnesses, has taken cognizance of offences against petitioner for offences punishable u/Secs.385 and 427 of IPC and issued summons - Hence present petition.

Held, first respondent filed complaint alleging as if petitioner committed offences punishable under sections 420, 379, 468, 385 and 506 of IPC - As stated supra, trial Court, after recording of statements of witnesses, took cognizance of offences against petitioner u/Secs.385 and 427 of IPC even though it is not case of first respondent that petitioner committed offence u/Sec.427 IPC - It is needless to say that Court cannot take cognizance of an offence without there being pleading or prayer - Had trial Court taken a little bit of care and caution, it might not have taken cognizance of offence u/Sec.427 IPC against petitioner - Trial Court, basing on material available on record, arrived at a conclusion that no prima facie case is made out against petitioner for offences u/Secs.420, 379, 468 and 506 of IPC - If really first respondent is aggrieved by action of trial Court in not taking cognizance of offences against petitioner for above referred sections of law, certainly, he would have challenged same by way of filing a Revision Case - Therefore, order passed by trial Court became final so far as taking of cognizance of offences u/ Secs.420, 379, 468 and 506 of IPC are concerned, against petitioner.

Having regard to facts and circumstances of case and also principles enunciated in the case cited supra, Court's considered view that petitioner deserves relief as sought for.

For foregoing discussion, this Criminal Petition is allowed, quashing proceedings against the petitioner. Battula Siva Nageshwar Rao Vs. Jasti Venkateswara Rao 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 127 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 148 = 2016(2) ALT (Crl) 380.

—Ses.420, 463, 464, 465, 468 & 471- No explanation, much less cogent and convincing explanation was offered by 2nd respondent for filing of two complaints - If alleged offence is committed within territorial jurisdiction of Judicial Magistrate of 1st Class, Prathipadu, that Court alone has jurisdiction to entertain complaint - If that is so, filing of second complaint in another Court is not maintainable viewed from factual or jurisdictional aspect - A perusal of record reveals that in order to circumvent procedure contemplated under Cr.P.C, 2nd respondent has taken a plausible plea that 3rd Addl. Judicial Magistrate of 1st Class, Rajahmundry has jurisdiction to entertain complaint - This aspect also clearly indicates that 2nd respondent filed present complaint with an ulterior motive - Court has no hesitation to hold that present complaint is not maintainable either on facts or on law - Criminal petition is allowed. Gullampudi Veera Nagamani Vs. State of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 397 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 320 = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 20 (AP).

—Secs.420, 467 & 471 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.2 (h) & 156 - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs. 45 & 72 - Magistrate convicted petitioner/ accused, working as RTA Office agent in Company for offence committing forgery of registration certificates and other documents issued to customers - Sessions Judge dismissed appeal - Petitioner contends that P.W.1 who lodged complaint died after giving evidence in chief and therefore his evidence was completely rejected and there is no other evidence to show that accused cheated customers of company or fabricated registration certificates and that specimen handwriting and signatures of accused were not taken on directions and in presence of Magistrate and therefore opinion of expert needs to be rejected and no reliance can be placed upon his evidence - INVESTIGATION - Defined - Investigation defined u/Sec.2(h) of Cr.P.C which includes all proceedings under Code for collection of evidence by Police Officer or by any person authorised by Magistrate in this behalf - U/Sec.156 (1) Cr.P.C any Officer in-charge of Police Station may without order of Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case and therefore object of investigation is to collect evidence and that during course of investigation accused person can be called upon by Investigating Officer to give finger impression or signature of specimen of his handwriting because he is not giving testimony of nature of a "personal testimony" - In this case, only evidence available on record is evidence of P.W.11 who was handwriting expert - Evidence of an expert under Sec.45 of Evidence Act is opinion evidence - Basing on expert's evidence alone accused cannot be convicted - At best, it can be taken as corroboration to other evidence if any available on record - These aspects not considered by trial Court as well as appellate Court and therefore findings of both Court are perverse - Conviction of accused, set aside - Criminal Revision Case, allowed. Rathi @ Ramesh Rathi Vs. State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 385.

—Secs.420, 468 & 471 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Petitioner,A1 availed housing loan to be repayable in180 Equated Monthly Instalments - Petitioner paid instalments for total amount of Rs.1,80,600/- and thereafter failed to pay remaining instalments and amount of Rs.10,60,107/- ultimately became due - Bank came to know that link documents are fabricated documents and therefore gave Report to Police against A1 for offence punishable under provisions of IPC - Basing on report Police filed charge sheet against A1 and A2 to A4 mentioning that A1 with the connivance of A2 to A4 obtained house loan from Bank by submitting frabicated documents and that A1 paid some amounts and failed to pay amount relating to remaining instalments and there by cheated Bank - In this case, charge-sheet does not disclose as to how petitioner A1 entered into conspiracy with other accused and that mere making a bold allegation that petitioner-A1 by conspiring with A2 to A4 obtained loan is not sufficient and it must be clearly mention in charge-sheet that there was a dishonest intention on part of petitioner A1 at inception i.e., at time of borrowing loan from Bank - In this case, petitioner A1 could not be able to pay instalments after making payments upto an amount of Rs.1,80,600/- and that Bank lodged report with SHO and that from averments of Report it does not appear that there was any criminal intention on part of petitioner to cheat Bank while borrowing loan - Mere fact that loan borrowed by petitioner became over due does not involve in any criminal liability - In this case, dispute as well as liability of petitioner/A1 is purely a civil dispute and it does not involve any criminal offence - Launching CRIMINAL prosecution in a case of this nature is nothing but abuse of process of law and if prosecution is allowed to continue against petitioner/A1, it would result in miscarriage of justice - Proceedings in CC on file of Metropolitan Magistrate, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. K.Emanuel Vs. State of A.P. 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 51.

—Secs.420 & 506 - CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, Sec.482 - Petitioner filed this criminal petition praying for quashing of C.C No. 508 of 2013 on file of Judicial Magistrate of First Class, Mahabubnagar and FIR in Crime No. 380 of 2013 on file of Mahabubnagar Rural Police Station-2nd Respondent/De facto Complainant alleged in his complaints that Petitioner cheated him having entered into Agreement and Partnership Deed in relation to a property but 2nd Respondent failed to show any material evidence - Held, there is no prima facie proof that allegation would capture deception on part of petitioner right from inception nor is there any criminal intimidation - FIR as well as Calendar Case do not show any substance and prima facie material against petitioner - Petitioner is not even owner of property in respect of which whole sequence of violations allegedly arose - Even if there is any violation on part of petitioner, it is purely a civil dispute of breach of contract - In that view of matter, 2nd Respondent failed to show that there was criminal intimidation on the part of petitioner nor was there any intention to cheat right at inception - Therefore, both cases deserve to be allowed quashing the Calendar Case and the FIR - Criminal Petitions allowed - Both C.C No. 508 of 2013 on the of Judicial Magistrate of First Class, Mahabubnagar and FIR in Crime No. 380 of 2013 on file of Mahabubnagar Rural Police Station are quashed. M.A.Rawoof Vs. State of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 186 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 954.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.423, 426,465,468 and 471 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.311-A (Amendment Act 25/2005) - 3rd respondent-defacto complainant sold 73sq.yards out of 150 sq.yards retaining 77sq.yard - Accused also purchased Plot No.9 from its owner during same time - Owner of Plot No.9 and 3rd respondent jointly executed sale deed and kept pending with Sub-Registrar for some time - During period of pending registration accused with intention to grab remaining 77sq.yards in Plot No.10 changed 73sq.yards into 150 sq.yards with connivance of officials of Sub-Registrar's Office by replacing page nos.2,4,5 and by forging signatures of 3rd respondent on those pages - 3rd respondent came to know about changing of pages and forging of his signature sent - Forensic expert after making comparison gave report that signatures did not tally - As per complaint of 3rd respondent alleged forgery and replacing of pages took place in Sub-Registrar's Office while document kept pending for registration for some period - Even as per prosecution offence took place with connivance of officials of Sub-Registrar's Office - No officials of Sub-Registrar's Office were examined - If really page numbers are to be replaced, then not only officials of Registration Department but also other two executant of 3rd respondent must have colluded with petitioner - None of those joint executants of sale deed along with 3rd respondent is made co-accused along with petitioner - In this case, Investigation Officer stated to have obtained specimen signatures of 3rd respondent during investigation and he did not obtain specimen signature or handwriting of accused to find out whether alleged forged signatures of 3rd respondent were made by accused - Investigation Officer did not follow procedure prescribed u/Sec.311-A Cr.P.C while collecting specimen signatures of 3rd respondent - It would be a matter for evidence during trial of civil dispute to find out and decide whether what was sold by 3rd respondent and what was intended to be purchased by accused was 73 sq.yards or 150sq.yards - In this case, there is also no evidence collected by Investigating Officer to show that it was accused who committed alleged forgery - Prosecution of petitioner, accused for above offences is nothing but abuse of process of Court - It is matter of civil litigation between parties to be decided in an appropriately framed civil suit by civil Court - Proceedings in C.C, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. M.Durga Reddy Vs. State of A.P., 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 185 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 873(AP) = 2011(3) ALT (Crl) 41(AP).

—Sec.437 - Appellant/accused are implicated for offence u/Secs.121, 124 & 120-B of IPC - High Court rejected bail petitions - Supreme Court granted interim bail

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

- GRANT OF BAIL - Principles applicable - In this case, stringent conditions for grant of bail are imposed - Accordingly bail is granted subject to condition that appellant/accused shall report to concerned Police Station once week on every monday to show their presence and that they should be permitted to take along their lawyer and that they shall appear before trial Court on each and every date of hearing and shall not seek exemption except on a particular day they are unable appear because of reasons beyond their control like illness etc., - Appellant/accused also informed Court about their place of stay/residence and disclose to Court as to when there is a change of residence - Further they shall not leave station or travel Abroad without prior permission of trial Court. Lingaram Kodopi Vs. State of Chhattisgarh 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 76 = 2014(1) ALD (Crl) 1023 (SC) = 2014 AIR SCW 1166 = 2014(2) SCC (Cri) 215 = 2014(3) SCC 474.

—Sec.448, 427,506, (Part II), r/w 34 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - HYDERABAD MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT - Municipal Corporation demolished structure of complainant/2nd respondent inspite of service of notice to Corporation by civil Court - 2nd respondent filed private complaint against A1 to A6 describing A1 as Municipal Corporation represented by its Commissioner - Lower Court took cognizance against A1 to A4 - Petitioner contends that what all A1 is alleged to have done in this case was in exercise of powers under Hyderabad Municipal Corporation Act and that therefore taking cognizance of complaint against A1 is illegal as complainant did not obtain prior sanction for prosecution of A1 as required u/Sec.197 of Cr.P.C - Alleged demolition of construction of 2nd respondent/complainant made by A1 and other officials in exercise of their official duties and that therefore sanction for prosecution of A1 u/sec.197 is a pre-requisite for taking cognizance of complaint against A1 - Sanction for prosecution is condition precedent for taking cognizance of such a case against public servant - Sanction has to be previous in point of time and it should be previous to taking cognizance of offence by Court or Magistrate - Subsequent sanction if any obtained cannot cure initial or inceptual defect attached to case - Sanction for prosecution u/Sec.197 Cr.P.C shall be obtained and presented before Magistrate prior to stage of issuing process to accused u/Sec.204 Cr.P.C - At same time, no sanction, u/Sec.197 is required for presentation of complaint or for recording of sworn statement of complainant by Magistrate - Question of applicability of Sec.197 Cr.P.C has to be considered after examination of complainant and his witnesses if any by way of recording their sworn statements by the Magistrate - Prohibition for taking cognizance of offence contained u/Sec.197 (1) Cr.P.C is mandatory prohibition and has to be considered at threshold of case and not at subsequent stage - Therefore cognizance of offence of case against petitioner/A1 by lower Court is not in accordance with law and liable to be quashed - Proceedings against petitioner/ A1 in CC, quashed - Petition, allowed. M.C.H. Visakhapatnam Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 196.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.468, 471 & 260 - A1 is owner of Tourist bus, A2 is driver and A3 is Asst.-cum-agent in office of RTA - Special permit granted to A1 for playing his bus - Allegation that A1 with a mala fide intention to cheat authorites approached A3 and paid amount for preparing a forged permit - Accordingly A3 prepared forged permit with help of counterfeit stamps of RTA and by forging signatures of concerned authorities and handedover same to A1 - Asst. Motor Vehicle Inspector seized documents along with alleged forged permit and lodged Report before SHO - Magistrate convicting A1 nd A3 for offences u/Secs.468,471 & 260 IPC - Sessions Judge modified conviction and sentence passed by trial Court - Hence present two Criminal Revision cases - In this case, from evidence of P.W.4, mediator, police obtained specimen signatures and samples of handwriting of A3 under cover of panchanama for purpose of ascertaining as to whether signatures on alleged forged permit belong to concerned authorities or not - Investigation Officer did not take any steps to satisfy him self about alleged forgery committed by A3 by sending specimen signatures of authorities who issued permit and further hand writing expert also not examined in this case - In any event without obtaining specimen signatures of authorities who issued permit no purpose will be served by taking specimen signatures and hand writing of A3 - Prosecution could not be able to establish any intention or knowledge on part of A1 that forged permit could be used for carrying passengers illegally - Therefore way in which investigation was proceeded creates any amounts of doubt as to whether in fact any such fake permit was founded in bus or whether same was introduced for purpose of falsely implicating accused in this case - In so far as A3 is concerned except confessional statement which is not admissible in evidence no evidence is forthcoming in this case, that he forged permit - Therefore there is no evidence in this case, that A3 forged permit unless it is proved that A1 cheated or dishonestly used forged permit as genuine one or he knows or has reason to believe that permit to be forged one and he is not liable for punishment for using genuine a forged document - Therefore in this case, there is absolutely no legal evidence to convict either A1 or A3 - When courts below recorded conviction without therebeing any legal evidence and evidence on record was not considered with proper legal perspective and when evidence was misconstrued, High Court can re-appreciate evidence, reject same and interfere with concurrent findings recorded by Courts below under revisional jurisdiction - In this case, there is absolutely no legal evidence to convict A1 & A3 and both Courts below were misdirected in appreciating evidence on record and erroneously convicted revision petitioners, A1 & A3 - Conviction, set aside - Criminal cases, allowed. Gunaganti Hanmandlu Vs. State of A.P. 2012(1) Law Summary 228.

—Sec.494,418,r/w 314 – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE Sec. 482 - A1 is husband of defacto complainant, A2 and A3 are parents, A4 is sister and A5 is brother-in-law of A1 - It is alleged that when report lodged by complainant against A1 for offence U/Sec. 498 A of IPC is pending, he had second marriage with connivance of A2 to A5 - Petitioners contend that complainant suppressed material facts and gave a false report to implicate accused and that in fact A1 obtained divorce against defacto complainant from family court and lawfully married second time and accused 2 o 5 have nothing to do with said marriage and defacto complainant has full knowledge about passing of decree and said decree is still in force as complainant has not filed any appeal and obtained stay of said decree and as such present complaint for offence u/Sec. 494 is not maintainable - Defacto complainant contends that divorce decree obtained by A1 was an exparte decree and he obtained same by playing fraud on defacto complainant and therefore, he cannot contact second marriage on the strength of such an exparte decree - To attract offence u/Sec. 494 IPC - Accused must have contacted 1st marriage; 1st marriage must be subsisting and his spouse must be living and accused must have married again during subsistence of 1st marriage – In such scenario, 2nd marriage becomes void – Thus fact of 2nd marriage being void is sin quo non for applicability of Sec.494 IPC - Family Court order shows that court granted an exparte decree of divorce in favour of A1 against defacto complainant and dissolved marriage between both of them – No doubt it is an exparte decree but under law, there is no distinction between expare decree and contested decree – Defacto complainant has not produced any material before court showing that either said exparte decree was set aside by subsequent order by same court or by appellate court – Therefore, it shall be presumed that said decree dt. 6-11-2010 is in force - Report lodged by defacto complainant on 13-6-2014 – Therefore offence u/Sec. 494 IPC has no application – Criminal petition, allowed. Chundi Raghava Rajesh Vs. State of Telangana 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 442 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 145.

—Sec.498-A – "Harassment" and "Cruelty" – Basing on complaint of de facto complainant, wife for alleged harassment of A1, husband and his family members, charge-sheet filed after investigation – Trial Court convicting A1 for offence u/Sec.498-A - High Court on re-appraisal of evidence set aside conviction - State contends that High Court has taken an unreasonable view in acquitting respondent/accused, overlooking his conduct before and after marriage – Respondent contends that where on an appraisal of evidence, adduced in case, Court below has taken a plausible view, appellate Court should not interfere, particularly with an order of acquittal even if different view can possibly be taken - Every "harassment" does not amount to "cruelty" within meaning of Sec.498-A IPC - Definition stipulates that harassment has to be with a definite object of coercing woman or any person related to her to meet an unlawful demand for purpose of Sec.498-A IPC, harassment simpliciter is not "cruelty" and it is only when harassment is committed for purpose of coercing woman or any other person related to her to meet an unlawful demand for property etc., that it amounts to cruelty punishable under Sec.498-A IPC - Delay in filing FIR – A delayed report not only gets bereft of advantage of spontaneity, danger of introduction of coloured version, exaggerated account of incident or concocted story as result of deliberations and consultations, also creeps in, casting a serious doubt on its veracity – It is therefore essential that delay in lodging report should be satisfactorily explained - In present case, FIR in regard to alleged occurrence on 19th April, 1996 was lodged on 22nd May 1996 – Admittedly after de facto complainant discharged from hospital on 22nd April 1996 and went to her parents house and resided there – No explanation worth name for delay in filing compliant with police has come on record - When substratum of evidence given by complainant is found to be unreliable, prosecution case has to be rejected in its entirety – Judgment of High Court, acquitting respondent – Justified – Appeal, dismissed. State of A.P. Vs. M.Madhusudhan Rao 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 204 = 2008(2) ALD (Crl) 917 (SC) = 2008(7) Supreme 641.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Sec.498-A - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.239 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.73 - Magistrate convicting sole accused for offence u/Sec.498-A - Case registered against petitioner/accused basing on report of wife - Trial Court took cognizance of offence against petitioner - Having analysed evidence, trial Court came to conclusion that prosecution has established guilt of petitioner/accused and accordingly sentenced him - Petitioner/accused contends that false case foisted against him as if he committed offence u/Sec.498-A and that marriage between petitioner and de facto complainant was not to liking of complainant and P.Ws.2 & 3 focibly got marriage performed - Main contention of petitioner is that marriage is not to liking of de facto complainant and same established from contents of Ex.D.2, letter written by her stating that she was not liking said marriage and she does not want to lead marital life with petitioner and she does not want to be house of petitioner for reason that petitioner's mother is suffering from incurable disease - In this case, signature of complainant, P.W.1 both in English and Telugu on Ex.P.1 report, tally with her signature in Telugu on Ex.D2, letter and signature in English on her deposition as P.W.1 - U/sec.73 of Evidence Act which deals with comparison of signature, writing or seal with other admitted or proved, states that in order to ascertain whether a signature writing or seal is that of person by whom it purports to have been written or made, any signature, writing or seal admitted or proved to satisfaction of Court to have been written or made by person may be compared with one which is to be proved, although that signature, writing or seal has not been produced or proved for any other purpose - Court thoroughly satisfied that complainant in Ex.P.1 and executant of D.2 letter is one and same - Prosecution has come forward with false case and defence theory appears to be correct - Conclusions of courts below, erroneous - Impugned judgment of trial Court as confirmed by appellate Court, set aside - Petitioner acquitted - Criminal Revision Case, allowed. Naraman Mojes Vs.The State of A.P., 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 350 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 224 (AP) = 2011(1) ALT (Crl) 55 (AP).

—Sec.498-A - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.248(1) - Marriage between petitioner/defacto-complaint and accused performed in year 1986 - Petitioner/defacto complainant filed complaint since accused harassing to bring additional dowry and developed vices like having extra-marital relationship with another woman and coming home late in night, being unable to bear acts of cruelty and torture at hands of accused - Trial Court considering evidence and facts came to conclusion that prosecution failed to prove ingredients of Sec.498-A IPC and acquitted accused for said offence - In this case, petitioner admitted in her evidence that she waited for three years to inform her parents about alleged harassment on part of accused to bring additional dowry and that reason given by her is that it was to safeguard family prestige, which is hard to accept - If, in fact accused had caused harassment to her on account of additional dowry she could have informed her parents about same immediately and she also failed to substantiative extra marital relationship of her husband - In this case, evidence of P.Ws.2 & 4 who are interested witnesses is full of contradictions - Admittedly at time of marriage, customary presentations were only given to accused and such customary presentations cannot be termed as dowry by any stretch of imagination - Judgment of trial Court in acquitting accused for offence u/Sec.498-A IPC - Justified - Not a fit case to order for2 retrial - Criminal revision case, dismissed. Ch.Gangabhavani Vs. State of A.P. 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 134.

—Sec.498-A – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 – Defacto-Complainant and A1 fell in love with each other – Since parents of A1 not agreeing for his marriage, elders performed marriage of Defacto-Complainant with A1 – Subsequently disputes arose between A1 and Defacto-Complainant and A1 filed a case against Defacto-Complainant seeking divorce – Defacto-Complainant filed case against petitioners – Hence present petition by parents of A1 and close relatives to quash proceedings in Criminal Case - In this case facts clearly show that Defacto-Complainant after receiving notice in divorce case, filed case falsely implicating all petitioners - Normally in case of this nature there will be tendency of roping as many relatives of husband as accused in case filed u/Sec.498-A of I.P.C. – There is in ordinate delay of 9 years in filing complaint in question and therefore offence u/Sec.498-A of I.P.C., is barred by limitation and Trial Court ought not to have taken cognizance of case for offence punishable u/Sec.498-A of I.P.C., against petitioners - Entire proceedings in C.C against petitioners are quashed - Criminal petition allowed. Gummallka Satyanarayana Vs. State 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 41 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 25 (AP) = 2014(2) ALT (Crl) 174 (AP).

—Sec.498-A - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Secs. 3 & 4 - Accused A1-A4 have filed this petition seeking quashing of proceedings of Judicial Magistrate of First Class - Learned Magistrate has taken cognizance for offences punishable u/Sec.498-A of IPC and Sects.3 and 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act from the police final report, which is outcome of the report of the 2nd respondent/de facto complainant none other than wife of A-1 - Investigation by police nowhere discloses phone calls de facto complainant received and from which number to which number even to create any part of cause of action on receiving information of phone calls within jurisdiction of Karimnagar District - De facto complainant even served, did not choose to appear - All witnesses are apart from interested nothing is of any independent evidence material collected during investigation - De facto complainant filed complaint in waiting for more than six months to alleged incident set up within jurisdiction of Kamanpur - Police who investigated did not even mention in final report about her giving of report earlier and as to why no crime was registered and any further action taken - Held, thus complaint filed by de facto complainant that was referred to police investigation by Magistrate and police final report filed pursuant there to is outcome from suppression of material fact of earlier deed of divorce between de facto complainant and A-1 through elders amicably and same reiterated referring in settlement executed immediately after 04-06-2014 some settlement arrived earlier at Godavarikhani of Karimnagar District also from the panchayhath held and pursuant to which, items belonging to de facto complainant and her father lying with accused persons were also returned, continuation of criminal proceedings is nothing but abuse of process of law as it is a fit case to quash the calender case - Complaint itself discloses while de facto complainant residing with accused at his place and came out from there i.e., main cause of action besides marriage in occurring some cause of action to maintain complainant at her place of parents not sustainable by referring to Secs.177 and 178 of Cr.P.C. - For all these reasons and having regard to above, Criminal Petition is allowed and thereby, proceedings of Judicial Magistrate of First Class are hereby quashed. Amit Kumar Yadav Vs. State of Telangana rep.by Public Prosecutor 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 246

—-Secs. 498-A, 302 - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Secs. 3,4 - Appeal is filed by appellant/A1 against judgment, challenging his conviction for offences punishable u/Secs.498-A and 302 I.P.C. - Criminal Revision is filed by the de facto complainant/PW.1 against same judgment aggrieved by acquittal of A2 & A.3 of charges u/Secs.498-A, 304-B and 302 IPC and u/Secs.3 & 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act.

Held, upon careful perusal of evidence of Medical Officer PW 9, other evidence on record and opinion of expert, Court have no hesitation in holding that from material on record, it cannot be said that deceased was done to death violently due to smothering, as has been held by learned Sessions Judge - Nothing incriminating has been seized from place where dead body was lying, which suggests that any kind of pressure was applied on neck of deceased who admittedly was an able bodied strong woman, as found by PW 9, medical officer, and also as noticed from photographs - If such a person is done to death violently by one person, several incriminating objects are to be found at place where said act was committed - Admittedly, even according to prosecution witnesses, they reached scene within minutes after incident and none of them noticed anything in room which suggests that any pressure with any material object was applied on deceased which incapacitated her and was thereafter smothered to death - Therefore, this Court unable to concur with view expressed by learned Sessions Judge that medical evidence conclusively established that deceased was killed by A.1 by smothering her.

Evidence of prosecution witnesses on record do not even show that deceased was subjected to any harassment or cruel treatment at hands of accused - On other hand, as noticed above from Exs.D1 and D.2 which are photographs taken just two or three months before death of deceased, it cannot be said that accused subjected deceased to any cruel treatment or harassment - It is also on record that for well being of deceased and for her begetting children, A.2 and A.3, being father-in-law and mother-in-law, worshipped the God and went on pilgrimage to Kasi along with PW 2, mother of deceased - Thereafter, when deceased conceived and was blessed with a son, they named child as “Rama Kasi” - All these circumstances do not show that deceased was subjected to any cruelty or harassment so as to convict appellant/A.1 for offence punishable u/Sec.498-A I.P.C. - It is found that evidence on record does not establish that there was any demand for dowry at time of marriage or subsequent thereto nor was there any harassment for additional dowry - As a matter fact, it is admitted by PW 1 that major part of expenses even for marriage were met by A.1 by himself - There is also documentary evidence to show that around period when A.1 and deceased were married, A.1 was having bank balance of more than Rs.6 lakhs - Nearly 6 years after marriage also bank balance of A.1 was in range of Rs.3 lakhs as spoken to by DWs 1, 7 and 8, who are Bank Officials and who produced Bank statements Exs.D8, D9 & D10 - Evidence of prosecution witnesses does not also show that deceased was killed by A.1. None of prosecution witnesses even remotely say that it is A.1 who has violently killed deceased - On other hand, evidence of prosecution witnesses as well as defence witnesses clearly goes to show that deceased committed suicide by hanging and since child in room cried, A.2 and A.3 and several neighbours assembled there and after forcibly opening the door, they found the deceased hanging, brought her down and having found her still alive, immediately called A.1 and all of them took deceased to Bollineni hospital where she was declared dead - Therefore, acquittal of A.2 & A3 by learned Sessions Judge cannot be said to suffer with any irregularity or illegality or that findings suffer from any perversity warranting interference therewith under revisional jurisdiction of this Court.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

In result, Criminal Appeal filed by A.1 is allowed - Conviction and sentence recorded against appellant/A.1 of charges u/Sec.498-A and 302 IPC are set aside - Consequently, appellant/A1 shall be set at liberty forthwith, if he is not required in any other case or crime and the fine amount, if any, paid by him shall be refunded to him - Criminal Revision filed by the de facto complainant/PW.1 against acquittal of A.2 & A.3 is dismissed. Yerramsetti Satish Vs. State of A.P. 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 112 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 714.

—Sec.498-A - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Secs.3 & 4 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.41 & 41-A - Held, that Police Officers do not arrest accused unnecessarily and Magistrate does not authorize detention casually and mechanically - Supreme Court issued specific directions in case of arrest for above offences both Magistrate and Police Officers are liable for action if any violation of directions. Arnesh Kumar Vs. State of Bihar 2014(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 81 = 2014 AIR SCW 3930 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 779 (SC) = AIR 2014 SC 2756 = 2014(3) SCC (Cri) 449 = 2014(8) SCC 273.

—Sec.498-A - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Secs.3 & 4 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Offences are alleged to have committed in Mumbai but second respondent/wife, after allegedly driven out of her matrimonial home, went to house of her parents at Tenali and filed a complaint and FIR and Charge sheet were lodged there - When petitioners contested matter, it was held that Tenali Courts do not get territorial jurisdiction merely because respondent returned to Tenali, however, question of territorial jurisdiction shall be determined by Trial Court and not in a petition u/

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

S.482 Cr.P.C - Petition is dismissed. Sivangala Thandi Deepak Vs. State of A.P. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 33 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 894.

—Secs.498-A & 302 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.114 (g) - Dying declaration - Appellant/accused charged with offence punishable u/Secs.498-A and 302 - Trial Court acquitted accused for offence u/Sec.498-A, but convicted u/Sec.302 - Contention, that there are several inherent contradictions in oral as well as documentary evidence adduced by prosecution and that there are contradictions in two dying declarations and that statement of deceased recorded by Investigating Officer neither filed nor reasons for not filing same are furnished - If a dying declaration or a statement of deceased is said to have been recorded, but is not placed before Court, it becomes permissible to draw an inference as provided for u/Sec.114 (g) of Evidence Act - Further contradictions, if any in dying declarations would have their own impact on strength of case, particularly when prosecution rests its case exclusively on circumstantial evidence - When so many doubts shroud veracity of case of prosecution, benefit of doubt deserves to be extended to appellant - Conviction and sentence ordered against appellant-accused, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Kadiyamsetty Venkata Rao Vs. The State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 238 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 423 (AP) = 2008(1) ALT (Crl) 273 (AP).

—Sec.498-A, 302 & 324 - Sessions Judge convicting accused no.1 for offence u/Sec.498-A & 302, A2 father of A1 under 498-A and 324 and A3 and A4 u/Sec.498-A for causing death of deceased, wife of A1 and daughter of P.Ws.1 & 2 - Appellants/accused contend that medical evidence in this case is not conclusive on aspect that death of deceased is homicidal, and that evidence on record does not indicate commission of offence punishable u/Sec.302 and also that evidence on record does not warrant any conviction against accused 1 to 4 for remaining offences and seek to set aside conviction and sentences passed against appellants - In this case, most of P.Ws did not support prosecution and they were treated hostile by prosecution - Trial Court rested its decision mainly on evidence of P.Ws.1 & 2 who are parents of deceased and P.W.4 daughter of P.Ws.1 & 2 - However, prosecution could be able to establish by positive evidence of P.W.11 though treated hostile by prosecution that dead body was originally found lying on coat at house of accused No.1, which means that immediately preceding death of deceased she was in company of accused no.1 - This fact was deposed by P.W.11 which remains unrebutted, though he was declared as hostile by prosecution on aspect of extra judicial confession - It is for accused in case of this nature where offence is committed within four walls, to offer plausible explanation as to what had actually happened to deceased - Prosecution has clinchingly established that accused no.1 had subjected deceased to cruelty with a demand to get additional dowry and trial Court is also perfectly justified in convicting accused no.1 for offence u/Sec.498-A IPC - Conviction recorded by trial Court against accused no.2 for offenceunder Sec.324 is proper - In view of fact that accused no.1 and deceased were residing separately conviction and sentence passed by trial Court against accused 2 to 4 for offence u/Sec.498-A cannot be sustained and is liable to be set aside - Conviction against accused no.1 u/Sec.302 & 498-A IPC, confirmed - Appeal, partly allowed. Nimmaraboina Gangaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 323.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Sec. 498-A and 304-B - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.156 - Sessions Judge committing all accused for offence punishable u/Sec.498-A/304-B - High Court partly allowed appeal and conviction against two accused, set aside - Hence remaining three accused preferred present appeal - In this case, Cumulative effect of documentary and oral evidence clearly shows that appellants have been rightly found guilty of offence by High Court - Offence under Sec.304-B r/w 498-A IPC is made out in this case and has been proved by prosecution beyond any reasonable doubt - Concept of reasonable time would be applicable, which would primarily depend upon, facts of a given case, conduct of party and impact of cruelty and harassment inflicted upon deceased in relation to demand of dowry to cause of unnatural death of deceased - In this case marriage itself has not survived even for a period of two years, entire period would be relevant in determining such an issue - Appellant contends that investigating office who took over investigation at subsequent stage upon transfer of investigation to CID, ought to have relied and referred only to statements recorded u/Sec.161 Cr.P.C by earlier investigating Officer and that he had no jurisdiction to record fresh statement of witnesses - It is settled principle of law that statements u/Sec.161 Cr.P.C recorded during investigation are not substantiative piece of evidence but can be used primarily for very limited purpose for confronting witnesses - When case was transferred to CID for investigation it obviously meant that in normal course, authorities were not satisfied with conduct of investigation by earlier investigating Officer and considered it appropriate to transfer investigation to Specialized branch i.e., C.I.D - Appeal, dismissed. Uday Chakraborty Vs. State of West Bengal 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 179.

—Secs.498-A & 304-B - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Sec.4 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.32(1) - Deceased/wife committed suicide by consuming poison within period of 7 years from date of marriage on account of alleged cruelty and harassment by demanding to bring balance dowry amount - Appellants/A1 & A2 contend that they are falsely implicated and that there is no direct evidence for harassment and that hearsay evidence of Police and other witnesses cannot be relied on in view of present legal position - In present case, none of witnesses stated that they have any personal knowledge about harassment of beatings caused by A1 husband and no role has been attributed to A2 mother of A1 except a general statement that accused were harassing deceased - Statements said to be made by deceased to P.Ws were long prior to death of deceased and that is not information about circumstances leading to death of deceased - Such statements do not come within purview of Sec.32(1) of Evidence Act and therefore no reliance can be placed on such statements - In absence of any other material and as evidence of P.Ws is only hearsay evidence, it is not safe to come to conclusion that prosecution proved guilt of accused beyond reasonable doubt - Appellants/accused are entitled to benefit of doubt - Conviction and sentence imposed on appellants/A1 & A2, set aside - Criminal appeal, allowed. Dheshetti Rajesham, Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 88 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 349 (AP) = 2008(1) ALT (Crl) 148(AP).

—Secs.498-A and 304-B and 306 – Appellant/accused tried for offence punishable u/Secs.498-A, 304-B – Trial Court held accused persons guilty of offence punishable u/Sec.498-A and 306, while directing acquittal of charge in terms of Sec.304-B – High Court held that offence u/Sec.306 not made out - Secs.304-B and 498-A of IPC cannot be held to be mutually inclusive - These provisions deal with two distinct offences – It is true that cruelty is a common essential to both sections and that has to be proved – Explanation to Sec.498-A gives meaning of 'cruelty' – In section 304-B there is no such explanation about meaning of cruelty – Meaning of cruelty or harassment is same as prescribed in explanation to Section 498-A under which cruelty by itself amounts to an offence - A person charged and acquitted u/Sec.304-B can be convicted u/Sec.498-A without that charge being their, if such a case is made out and if case is established, there can be conviction under both sections. Balwant Singh Vs. State of H.P. 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 153.

—Sec.498-A, 304-B & 306 - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.113-A & 32 - Appellant/accused was tried under S.C. & S.T Act for offences puni-shable u/Secs.498-A,304-B & 306 of IPC - Trial Court acquitting appellant for offence punishable u/Sec.304-B and convicting u/Secs.498-A & 306 - Contention that false case, foisted against appellant and that if really there was harassment and death of deceased was on account of said harassment, all facts about harassment would have been spoken by P.W.s 1& 2, brother & mother of deceased, but they failed to state any such facts and their deposition is a subsequent development and Court need not give any credence to said evidence and that when said evidence is discarded, there is absolutely no other evidence connecting appellant with said offence - In this case, it may be true that on two or three occasions appellant expressed his unhappiness about dowry he received and was coming late in nights, but from that it cannot be inferred that it was solely on account of same, deceased committed suicide - Trial Court not discussed crucial aspect of non-compatibility between wife and husband - Deceased is graduate, whereas appellant studied only 4th class and there was no compatibility between them and similar circumstances must have forced her to take extreme step of committing suicide, for which appellant cannot be faulted - EVIDENCE ACT, SEC.113-A - PRESUMPTION - It is not case of P.Ws. 1 & 2 that appellant approached and asked for more dowry and similarly they have not stated in their evidence that they have seen appellant beating deceased - There evidence is only to effect that deceased was informing them that appellant was demanding more dowry and was beating her - From this a presumption as provided u/Sec.113-A cannot be drawn - There is no evidence connecting appellant with any offences alleged against him - Prosecution miserably failed to establish guilt of appellant beyond all reasonable doubt - Conviction and sentence imposed on appellant/accused, set aside - Criminal appeal, allowed. K.Amarnath Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 233 = 2008(1) ALD (Crl) 429 (AP) = 2008(1) ALT (Crl) 244 (AP).

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.498-A, 304-B - EVIDENCE ACT, 113-A - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT - Accused chargesheeted u/Sec.498-A/304-B IPC - Sessions Court convicted both accused under said provisions - 1st accused, husband died - If married women dies on account of burns or bodily injury within 7 years of marriage and if it is so that she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relatives and such death is called dowry death u/Sec.304-B IPC and husband or relatives shall be presumed to have caused dowry death - If maried women is subjected to cruelty by husband or his relatives is liable for conviction u/Sec.498-A - It is interesting to note that Sec.498-A was introduced as per Act 46 of 1983 to "suitably deal effectively not only with cases of dowry death, but also case, of cruelty to married women by their in laws" and Sec.304-B was introduced as per Act Sec.43 of 1986 to make penal provisions "more stringent and effective" - Amendments under Evidence Act are only consequential to amendmenrts under Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 and IPC - It is significant to note that u/Sec.113-A expression is "Court may presume" where as u/Sec. 113-B, expression is "Court shall presume" - Being a mandaory provision on guilty conduct of accused u/Sec.304-B it is for prosecution, to first show availability of all ingredients of offence so as to shift burden of proof in terms of Sec.113-B of Evidence Act - Once all ingredients are present, presumption of innocence fades away - In view of mandatory provisions of law u/Sec.304-B of IPC/113-B of Evidence Act, it is obligatory on part of prosecution to estabslish that death occures within 7 years of marriage - Sec.304-B IPC permits presumption of law only in given set of fact and not presumption of fact - Fact is to be proved and then only, law will presume - In present case, prosecution failed to establish crucial facts on death occurring within 7 years of marriage - Conviction of appellant u/sec.304-B, set aside. Gurdip Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 103.

—Sec.498-A & 302 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.161 & 161(3) - "Dying declaration" - Appellant/accused convicted for offence u/Sec.498-A and 302 IPC - for causing death of deceased by pouring kerosene and set fire on her, basing on dying declarations - Appellant/accused contends that two dying declarations are inconsistent as to cause of death - First statement involvement of mother-in-law was also spoken to by deceased and that within half-an-hour thereafter, cryptic statement was given to P.W.15/Magistrate and at that time of recording statement of deceased Ex.P.28, not stated and therefore it must have been fabricated subsequently to suit case of prosecution and that after registration of case P.W.17 examined deceased and recorded statement u./Sec.161(3) Cr.P.C. but that statement was not filed into Court for reason that it was not favourable to case of prosecution and that by deliberate suppression of important document an adverse inference can be drawn that as two dying declarations are inconsistent, it is not safe to place any reliance and that as third dying declaration has not been produced by prosecution, and appellant is entitled benefit of doubt that deceased would not have given such an elaborate statement as in Ex.P.28 - Prosecution contends that once Ex.P.28 and P.W.30 are proved to be true and trustworthy, a conviction can be based there on even without there being corroboration and that these two statements are very clear that appellant/A1 poured kerosene and set fire to deceased and therefore trial Court rightly placed an implicit reliance on statement of deceased, Ex.P.28 & Ex.P.30 and there are absoultely no grounds to interfere with conviction and sentence of trial Court - In this case, P.Ws.1 to 9 who are close relations and material witnesses did not support case of prosecution and entire case rests upon two dying declarations in Ex.P.28 & Ex.P.30 - Dying declaration recorded by Magistrate is very cryptic and does not contain any details except saying that her husband poured kerosene and set fire and presence of mother-in-law is not spoken to by deceased in said dying declarations - Where there were material contradictions in two dying declarations made in a bride-burning case, declarations can be said to be not reliable - DYING DECLARATIONS - There cannot be any dispute that when there are more than two dying declarations, there must be consistency with regard to all dying declarations - If one dying declarations is inconsistent with other no implicit reliance can be placed on dying declarations - In view of fact that two dying declarations are not consistent on material particulars and third dying declaration has been suppressed by prosecution, in such circumstances, two dying declarations required corroboration and there is no such corroboration and this aspect of case has not been considered by trial Court in a right perspective and hence impugned judgment, liable to be set aside - Conviction and sentence recorded against appellant/accused no.1 for offences u/Secs.498-A and 302 IPC are set aside and accused is found not guilty for said charges and accordingly acquitted - Criminal appeal, allowed. Vadde Pallepu Sekhar Vs. State of A.P., 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 271 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 396(AP) = 2011(2) ALT(Crl) 307 (AP).

—Secs.498-A, 304-B and 201 – EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.113-B and 106 – Accused/husband and in-laws of deceased charged for alleged killing of deceased by burning with kerosene and cremating her body – Trial judge convicting accused, in-laws u/Sec.304-B, 498-A and 201 and acquitting husband accepting defence version that he was not in village at time of death of deceased - Single Judge of High Court convicting accused u/Sec.498-A and acquitted them u/Sec304-B on premise that husband had been acquitted and State not preferred appeal against acquittal - NECESSARY INGREDIENTS FOR APPLICATION OF SEC.304-B – STATED – High Court committed serious irregularity by acquitting respondents/in-laws of charge u/Secs.304-B and 201 on premise that husband had been acquitted and state did not challenge same by filing appeal, but that by itself did not justify conclusion that prosecution failed to prove charge u/Secs.304-B and 201 against remaining accused - Single judge of High Court gave undue weightage to minor discrepancies in F.I.R and statement of P.W.1 and acquitted accused ignoring most important factor that deceased suffered injuries in a dwelling unit belonging to her in-laws and in their presence, that she died due to those injuries and that defence failed to offer any satisfactory explanation for injuries on head of deceased - If single Judge of High Court had adverted Sec.106 of evidence Act and correctly applied principles of law, he would not have committed grave error of acquitting respondents - Impugned judgment, set aside – Conviction of respondents u/Secs.304-B r/w 201, restored – Appeal, allowed. State of Rajasthan Vs. Jaggu Ram 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 191.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.498A, 306 & 201 - CRUELTY - Demand of dowry - Trial Court convicted appellants accused u/Sec.398A, 306, 201 and 114 - High Court maintained conviction and sentence - In this case, deceased wife was paind and disturbed as husband was having illicit affair with appellant no.4 and even if it is proved that cruelty as envisaged under first limb of Sec.498A IPC would not get attracted - It would be difficult to hold that mental cruelty was of such a degree that it would drive wife to commit suicide - Mere extra marital relationship, even if proved would be illegal and immoral, but in absence of some acceptable evidence on record that can establish such high degree of mental cruelty, Explanation to Sec.498A which includes cruelty to drive a woman to commit suicide would not be attracted and that allegation of illicit relation with other woman would be illegal and immoral but not cruelty u/Sec.498A - In this case, basing on available evidence it is difficult to sustain conviction u/Sec.306 & 498A - Once this Court hold accused appellants are not guilty of offence u/Sec.306 & 498A IPC, conviction u/Sec.201 IPC is also not sustainable - Conviction and sentence of all appellants accused are set aside - Appeal, allowed. Ghusabhai Raisangbhai Chorasiya Vs. State of Gujarat 36

—-Secs.498-A, 323, 506 - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, 1961 Secs.3 and 4 - In this petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C., petitioners seeks to quash the proceedings of FIR where under the petitioners were charged for the offences under Secs.498A, 323 and 506 IPC and Sections 3 and 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961. The defacto complainant is the wife of A1 - She filed a private complaint before the Judicial Magistrate against A1 to A6 for the aforementioned offences and the said complaint was forwarded to the police under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. and the same was registered as crime and being investigated into - Hence, the instant quash petition at the instance of petitioner/A6.

Held, penal provisions required strict construction and when phrases of a statute are not defined, they have to be understood in natural, ordinary or popular sense - That being so, phrase “relative of the husband” employed in Sec.498-A IPC should be understood as “relatives of the husband’s side” with whom he obtained relationship by way of blood, marriage or adoption - That being so A6 during the relevant period being sister-in-law of complainant, she cannot be said to be “relative of the husband” - It is true by virtue of marriage between A1 and complainant, relatives of one side became relatives of both sides in a general sense - However, for strict construction of penal provision under Sec.498-A, A6 who was relative of complainant, cannot be said to be relative of husband of complainant i.e., A1 - For this reason and also for reason that no allegations of cruelty falling within the meaning of Sec.498-A IPC and allegations touching other offences are made against A6, she deserves quashment of proceedings - In result, this Criminal Petition is allowed and proceedings are quashed against petitioner/A6. Shaik Riayazun Bee Vs. The State 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 314 = 2016(3) ALT (Crl) 70 (AP) = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 576.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.498-A, 494 & 511 - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Secs.3 & 4 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.188, 161 & 162 - Petitioner married daughter of defacto complainant in 2004 at Hyderabad and complaint lodged in 2006 for alleged demand of dowry and planning for bigamy - Investigation Officer registered FIR and examined witnesses and aggrieved party wife not examined by Investigation Officer as envisaged under provisions of Cr.P.C - It is stated in charge sheet that he has contacted said witness and she confirmed contents of complaint, but he has not recorded any statement by examining her personally and also Investigating Agency relied on statement forwarded by said witness attested by notarized public and said procedure and reliance on statement is not legally acceptable - Merely recording statement as stated by witnesses cannot be called as investigation - Investigation includes examination of witnesses, confronting witnesses on basis of material collected by Investigation Officer and also version of person who is aggrieved because of said complaint - Mere production of complaint without proper examination cannot be called as statement recorded during investigation - Entire reading of complaint and charge sheet, it is evident that entire occurrence took place in United States of America - Allegations contained in complaint also regarding occurrences in USA - Of course, offence committed by a person, which is punishable under law in India, he can be prosecuted for offence committed abroad - But at same time Sec.188 of Cr.P.C mandates that no Court shall take cognizance except previous sanction by Central Govt., when an offence is committed out side jurisdiction of India - Mere demand of dowry will not attract an offence u/Sec.498-A IPC - There are two elements in said section which includes explanation which clearly indicates "cruelty" means by way of harassment driving a women to commit suicide or to suffer with injury, second element of said section indicates that harassment should be in connection to demand of dowry - But, entire reading of complaint, above said ingredients are totally not attracted, even based on present complaint, which is in nature of hearsay no offence made out as alleged in charge sheet - Proceedings against petitioners in CC, quashed - Criminal petitions, allowed. Rajesh Gutta Vs. State of A.P. 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 38 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 885 (AP) = 2011(2) ALT(Crl) 96(AP) = 2011 Crl. LJ 3506(AP).

—Sec.498-A, 506, r/w Sec.34 - DOWRY PROHIBITION ACT, Sec.4 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Criminal petition filed by first accused in crime on file of Police Station for offences punishable u/Secs.498-A etc., - After marriage petitioner/A-1 put up family in London and later daughter and son were born - Subsequently misunderstanding arose between petitioner and de facto complainant (R2) and they are constrained to live separately as per orders of Court - In this case, de facto complainant (R2) made a complaint to Police against petitioner and Police after conducting investigation closed file as undected crime - Later petitioner filed divorce case and Country Court at London granted divorce dissolved marriage between petitioner and de facto complainant and subsequently de facto complainant came to India with prior permission of Court and did not go back to London - Petitioner contends that there was no relationship between him and de facto complainant since 2005 onwards and de facto complainant made a complaint in Kanigiri Police Station basing on which Police registered case for alleged offences under provisions of IPC and Dowry Prohibition Act - Petitioner was arrested by Police and subsequently released on bail by Magistrate - Petitioner contends that Kanigiri Police have no jurisdiction to entertain crime as no part of offence and no cause of action arose in their limits - Country Court at London granted divorce and de facto complainant already left UK and there is no relationship between petitioner and de facto complainant - In view of fact that in present case, entire incident even according to de facto complainant took place in London, offence being committed out side India trial in any Court in India cannot be proceeded with beyond cognizance stage without previous sanction of Central Govt., - If de facto complainant suppressed material fact viz., that there was a divorcee of decree passed by Country Court on petition filed by petitioner, dissolving marriage between petitioner and de facto complainant - Further criminal case and also maintenance case against petitioner in London closed as undected crime that she was also refused maintenance - In view of suppression of material facts by de facto complainant Magistrate of First Class Kanigiri, has no jurisdiction to try offence against petitioner without previous sanction of Central Govt., - Proceedings on file of Magistrate's Court at Kanigiri is nothing but abuse of process of law - Hence said proceedings are quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. N.Brahmaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 288.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

——Secs.498-A, 506, 509 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.482, 125 - HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, Sec.24 - Contention of petitioner is that the petitioner is not the legally wedded wife of first respondent and a husband is not entitled to claim maintenance from his wife under Sec. 125 Cr.PC and the proceedings against the petitioner are nothing short of abuse of process of law and therefore it is a fit case to quash the proceedings by exercising inherent jurisdiction under Sec. 482 Cr.PC - Contention of the first respondent is that he is entitled to claim maintenance under Sec. 125 Cr.PC from the petitioner, who is his legally wedded wife and that the order passed clinchingly establishes that the petitioner is legally wedded wife of first respondent.

Held, after reading Sec. 24 of Hindu Marriage Act and Sec. 125 Cr.PC., Court can safely arrive at a conclusion that under Sec. 125 Cr.PC, "husband" is not entitled to claim maintenance even from his legally wedded wife - Question of claiming maintenance by a paramour from a kept mistress or a husband from his second wife is unimaginable - From a perusal of record, it is manifest that first respondent instituted proceedings against petitioner with an ulterior motive to wreak vengeance against her.

Having regard to facts and circumstances of case and also principles enunciated in cases cited supra, this Court of considered view that continuation of proceedings against petitioner would certainly amount to abuse of process of law - Therefore, it is a fit case to quash proceedings against petitioner in order to secure ends of justice - In result, Criminal Petition is allowed, quashing proceedings in M.C. Malleshwaramma Vs. G.S.Srinivasulu 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 171 = 2016 Cri. LJ 4066 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 784.

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

—Secs.499, 500 - Defamation – Notice given by First accused/petitioner in a daily against her father, who is first respondent making imputation against his character was done in good faith and for protection of her interest and also for protection of other accused, hence, it falls within the exception (9) of Sec.499 and it cannot be said that first petitioner or remaining petitioners have committed offence punishable under Sec.500 of IPC – If ingredients of Sec.499 are not attracted, the trial, if conducted against accused would be futile exercise and it is nothing but abuse of process of law ultimately resulting in miscarriage of justice - Criminal petition, allowed. Syed Sameena Tasneem Vs. Sajid Hussain 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 193 = 2014 Cri. LJ 4215 (AP) = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 538.

—- Secs.499/500 and Sec.499, Exception 9 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - 1st respondent filed private complaint against petitioner alleging offence punishable u/Sec.499/500 of IPC on basis of written statement counter and affidavit filed in lieu of examination-in-chief filed by petitioner as defendant in suit relating to removal of compound wall - It is contention of petitioner as 7th defendant in suit that all documents filed by 1st respondent as plaintiff are fabricated and forged using his position as revenue official - Trial Court dismissed suit without giving any finding whether revenue records filed by 1st respondent as plaintiff were genuine and fabricated - Evidently, criminal case is filed by 2nd respondent with a mala-fide intention and with a view to harass petitioner and to coerce him for terms in pending Appeal and also with oblique motive - In this case, except civil litigation, which 1st respondent himself started, petitioner has no other dispute with 1st respondent and therefore it cannot be said that petitioner had any intention to defame 1st respondent or that petitioner maliciously made those allegations in his pleadings and that allegations in petitioner's pleadings and affidavit in suit cannot be termed as defamatory and that it is not a case where alleged defamatory statements were published by way of any public notice or public statement or in any public meeting and they were made in Court proceedings in writing and no outsider had any occasion to read same - Sec.499 of IPC contemplates making or publication of imputation with an intention to harm reputation of other person - In present case, intention of petitioner is evident that he made same with an intention to preserve disputed site to diety and not with an intention to harm reputation of 1st respondent - Alleged imputations contained in pleadings and evidence in civil suit are covered by Exception 9 of Sec.499 of IPC, even assuming that imputations are prima facie defamatory in nature - Proceedings in C.C, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. G.Janardhana Reddy Vs. A. Narayana Reddy 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 32.

—Secs.499, 500 & 505,292 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.199 & 482 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.19(2) - INDECENT REPRESENTATION OF WOMEN (PROHIBITION ACT) 1986, Secs.4 & 6 - 23 Complaints filed against accused/appellant for alleged defamation in respect of imputations against character of Tamil speaking women suggesting that all women in Tamilnadu have engaged in premarital sex - High Court refused to quash proceedings by exercising its inherent power u/Sec.482

(INDIAN) PENAL CODE

on premise that relevant considerations were questions of fact which were best left to be determined by trial Judge - Appellant contends that complainants were not "persons aggrieved" within meaning of Sec.199 (1) (b) and that even if allegations in various complaints are taken on their face value and accepted in their entirety, same do not disclose any offence what so ever and opinion of appellant does not by any means, fall within ambit of Secs.499,500,505 IPC or Secs.3 & 4 Act 1986 - Complainants/respondents contend that in these cases are mostly women belonging to Tamilnadu, who were personally aggrieved by appellant's remarks and that endorsement of premarital sex by a prominent person such as appellant would have a morally corruptive effect on minds of young people and that constitutional protection for speech and expression is not absolute and that it is subject to ressonable restrictions based on considration of "public order", defamation, decency and morality - Defamation - Defined - Definition makes it amply clear that accused must either intend to harm reputation of particular person or reasonably know that his/her conduct could cause such harm - Explanation 2 to Sec.499 further states that it may amount to defamation to make an imputation concerning a Company or an Association or collection of persons as such - In this case, with regards to complaints in question there is neither any intent on part of appellant to cause harm to reputation of the complainants nor can we discern any actual harm done to their reputation - Both elements i.e.,mens rea and actus reus are missing - Even if remarks of complainant in their entirety is considered, nowhere has it been suggested that all women in Tamilnadu have engaged in premarital sex and that imputation can only be found in complaints that were filed by various respondents - It is a clear case of complainants reading in too much into appellant's remarks - Dissemination of news and views for popular consumption is permissible under our constitutional scheme - Different views are allowed to be expressed by proponents and opponents - A culture of responsible reading is to be inculcated amongst prudent readers. Morality and criminality are far from being co-extensive - An expression of opinion in favour of non-dogmatic and non- conventional morality has to be tolerated as same cannot be a ground to penalise author - Various complaints filed against appellant do not support or even draw a prima facie case for any of statutory offences as alleged - Impugned judgment and order of High Court, set aside - Criminal proceedings, quashed - Appeals, allowed. S.Kushboo Vs. Kanniammal 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 54.

—Sec.500 - PRESS AND REGISTRATION OF BOOKS ACT, 1867, Secs.5 & 7 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Nellore Tabloid of Vaartha Daily a news relating to committing of rape by father on his own daughter giving name of culprit as suspended Police Constable VM with Roll no.1219 - 2nd respondent filed complaint that though culprit was Police Constable with Roll No.1299, accused gave number as no.1219 in order to defame de facto complainant/R2 - Inspite of errata published by petitioners/accused, 2nd respondent filed private complaint against A1 to A4 reporter, Desk In-charge, Editor, Managing Editor and Chief Managing Editor respectively - Petitioners contend that when name of person who committed rape on his own daughter as VM and he was described as suspended Police Constable with a wrong Roll no.1219 instead of 1299, there is no possibility of public mistaking 2nd respondent who is a Police Constable with Roll no.1299 as culprit - There is absolutely no averment in complaint that mentioning of wrong roll number by accused in news item was intentional - Executive Editor, Managing Editor and resident Editor cannot be made liable in absence of any allegation against them in complaint that they have any hand in selection of matter that is published in news paper and that presumption u/Sec.7 of Act is available as against Editor only and no such presumption arises as against Executive Editor, Managing Editor and Resident Editor - Since there is no imputation much less intentional imputation in news item in question, private complaint filed by 2nd respondent against A3 also does not stand to scrutiny - Complaint is abuse of process of Court as against A3 and A4 - Proceedings in CC against petitioner 1 and 2/A3 & A4, quashed - Petition, allowed. Tankasala Ashok Vs. State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 254.

PENSION REGULATIONS, 1995:

—Sec.506 - S.C. & S.T. (POA) ACT, Sec.3(1) (x) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.4, 7, 209,427 & 441 - Case registered against petitioner u/Sec.506 IPC basing on report given by 2nd respondent/complainant - Police investigated and filed final report stating that it is fall - On protest petition filed by 2nd respondent Magistrate recorded sworn statement and took cognizance of case against petitioner u/Sec.3(1)(x) of S.C, S.T Act - Since offence is triable by Special Court for offence under POA Act, it has to be committed by Magistrate to said Court - While committing case Magistrate insisted upon petitioner to obtain order of bail from Special Court or any other competent Court - Hence present criminal petition seeking direction to Magistrate - From language of Sec.209, Cr.P.C it does not appear that at time of committing case to Court of Session he must be on bail by Sessions Court -When accused appeared before Court on receiving summons from Court issued after registering PRC and undertakes himself to appear before Magistrate during committed proceeding and also appear before Court of Session/Special Court and accused not being arrested and released on bail earlier in connection with said case, need not be driven to obtain bail from Sessions/Special Court - There is no requirement in law that in each and every case triable by Court of Session accused shall be arrested and released on bail - When only summons were issued to accused to secure his attendance after charge sheet is filed in a case triable by Court of Session accused shall not be compelled to approach Special Court and obtain bail - Magistrate is directed not to insist petitioner to obtain bail from Court concerned for purpose of commitment of PRC to Special Court or Court of Session - Magistrate can commit case, by obtaining personal bond from him to appear before Special Court till conclusion of trial - Criminal petition, allowed. Guddanti Narasimha Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 309.

PENSION REGULATIONS, 1995:

— AND CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.14,16 (1) & 19(1) (g) - Voluntary retirement - Petitioner/Asst. General Manager of Andhra Bank filing application for voluntary retirement on 12-4-2004 and subsequently made another application on 19-4-2004 requesting respondents to treat his earlier application as withdrawn - Second respondent/General Manager of Bank issuing letter dt.21-4-2004 accepting request of petitioner and informed that he will be relieved from service on 11-7-2004 after expiry of notice period of 3 months - Respondents passed order on 9-7-2004 rejecting request of petitioner in second application dt.24-6-2004 - Petitioner contends that since he submitted application requesting respondents to treat his application for voluntary retirement as withdrawn much before expiry of notice period, respondents should not have rejected same and as such, action of respondents in rejecting same is illegal and arbitrary - Respondents submits that petitioner's request for voluntary retirement having been accepted was relieved from service, and he was also paid terminal benefits, and therefore he is not entitled to seek his continuance in service and that petitioner assailed order of rejection of his request for withdrawal of his application for voluntary retirement after lapse of 3 years - In view of ratio laid down by apex Court in number of judgments, it can safely be said that since petitioner was to be relieved from service after expiry of 3 months notice period on 11-7-2004, he shall be deemed to be continued to be employee of respondents-bank upto that date, and as such, he had locus poenitentiae to withdraw his application for voluntary retirement before said date - In this case, petitioner was suffering from health problems, is evident from correspondence placed before Court, which he made to respondents prior to making of his application dt.12-4-2004 for voluntary retirement - Whatever be reasons taken by petitioner for withdrawing his application for voluntary retirement, but such request having been made by petitioner before he was relieved from service on 11-2-2004, 2nd respondent-General Manager should have considered same positively - Petitioner having not assailed order rejecting his application to withdraw his application for voluntary retirement and consequential order retiring him and relieving from service immediately, and he having received all terminal benefits, that petitioner except consequential benefits, like continuity of service and other alleged benefits, is not entitled to claim any monetary benefits - Order passed by 2nd respondent-General Manager rejecting application of petitioner for withdrawal of his application for voluntary retirement and consequential order dt.12-7-2004 relieving from service, are set aside - Respondents are directed to reinstate petitioner into service with consequential but not monetary benefits and petitioner shall return amounts paid to him by respondents pursuant to his retirement - Writ petition, partly allowed. V.Vishnu Vardhan Vs. Andhra Bank, Hyd., 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 142 = 2008(3) ALD 54 = 2008(3) ALT 428.

PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES (EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES, PROTECTION OF RIGHTS AND FULL PARTICIPATION) ACT, 1995:

PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES (EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES, PROTECTION OF RIGHTS AND FULL PARTICIPATION) ACT, 1995:

—Sec.47 - "Alternate employment" - Petitioner/driver of APSRTC, met with accident while returning home from duty and was declared unfit to continue to post of Driver owing to injuries and disability which resulted from accident - Petitioner sought alternate employment in accordance with Sec.47 of Act while disclaiming interest in receiving monetary benefits in lieu thereof - Petitioner filed writ petition aggrieved by continued inaction of APSRTC - Pursuant to interim order in writ petition APSRTC passed order that petitioner had willingly opted for retirement on medical grounds in prescribed proforma, Annexure-1 in view of his health condition and that he was retired from service and in that view of matter, APSRTC decried petitioner's eligibility for alternate employment u/Sec.47 of Act - petitioner filed present writ challenging proceedings, retiring him from service and also order rejecting his request for alternate employment - APSRTC contends that petitioner's accident did not occur in course of employment, but thereafter he was found unfit to continue in service as driver and that petitioner submitted his option in Annexure-A seeking to retire on medical grounds and accepting offer of additional monetary benefits - Clear language of Sec.47(1) and interpretation thereof by Supreme Court leave no room for doubt that APSRTC is under statutory obligation not to dispense with an employee who requires a disability during his service - Contention that as accident due to which petitioner sustained disability was not in course of employment, Act would have no application; not tenable and perspicuous wording of Sec.47 indicates that any disability acquired by an employee "during his service" would bring him within protective umbrella of said provision and it is not necessary that disability should be a direct consequence of or be connected to his employment - A copy of duly filled in printed format contained in Annexure-A submitted by petitioner being a printed format, all that was required to be done was filling in of name and details of petitioner and affixation of his signature - This document is said to embody voluntary waiver of his statutory right by petitioner and this practice on part of APSRTC, in providing a printed format to nullify mandatory benefit conferred by a social welfare legislation to say very least is not only shockingly retrogressive but is a blasphemy against beneficial objectives underlaying Sec,47 of Act - A mere printed format baldly stating to effect that employee was accepting monetary benefits in view of alternate employment u/Sec.47 of Act falls far short of requirements to validate such waiver - Attitude of APSRTC in resorting to such a practice therefore requires to be deprecated in strongest terms - APSRTC cannot bank upon dubious and self-serving "Annexure-A" option obtained by it from petitioner to deny him statutory benefit u/Sec.47 of Act - Action of APSRTC in present case in seeking to rid itself of a disabled employee, petitioner herein is deprecable and warrants condemnation - Proceedings and order are set aside - APSRTC directed to forthwith provide alternate employment to petitioner in a suitable post with same pay scale and service benefits enjoyed by him at time of his retirement from service and if necessary by creating a supernumerary post - Petitioner is entitled for full back wages from date of his retirement from service till his reinstatement in suitable post - Writ petition, allowed. K.Moses Vs. APSRTC, Hyd., 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 416 = 2011(1) ALD 823 = 2011(1) ALT 739.

PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES (EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES, PROTECTION OF RIGHTS AND FULL PARTICIPATION) ACT, 1995:

—Sec.47 - Circular instructions issued by APSRTC on 26-8-2005 - Respondent/petitioner driver of APSRTC met, with accident while returning home from duty rendering him unift to continue in service as driver because of disability sustained in accident - When responent/petitioner got served legal notice, APSRTC responded by calling upon him to receive terminal benefits - Petitioner has instead reiterated his claim for alternative employment - Single judge directed APSRTC to consider petitioner's case for alternative employment in accordance with provisions contained in Sec,47 of Disabilities Act - Since writ petitioner has submitted his option in prescribed format expressing his willingness for retirement on medical grounds and opted for payment of additional monetary benefit in lieu of alternative emloyment - Writ petitioner was accordingly retired from service and hence he is not elgible for alternative employment under provisions of Sec. 47 Disabilities Act - Sec.47 sanctions, injunctions against establishments in which person with disability is employed - It prevents every establishment from dispensing with or reducing in rank any employee who acquires disability during his service and also further mandates establishment, by directing it to shift such a person to some other post with same pay scale and service benefits provided is found not suitable for post he was holding at time of incurring/acquiring disability - Therefore Sec.47 of Act has conceived of protection in absolute terms in favour of persons acquiring disability during course of employment by sanctioning appropriate injunction against employer - Language of Sec.47 is plain and certain casting statutory obligation on employer to protect an employee acquiring disability during service - Employee therefore is under obligation to look up for suitable alternative employment - Expression "during service" found in Sec.47 of Act is not inteded to convey meaning that disability should have been acquired all due to employment, instead it conveays meaning that such disability should have been acquired during currency of contract of employment - Therefore, for securing benefit of provison contained in Sec.47, one does not require to acquire disability all due to employment - Sec.47, it is well to remember, thrust obligation on employer to provide for alternative employment but not on employee to seek alternative employment - If there is no direct or immediately suitable alternative post available a supernumerary post has to be created for accommodating person with diability - Provision contained in Sec.47 is intented to prevent discrimination against persons with diabilities and prevention of discrimination, as is to well known, is one of facets of Art.14 of Constittion itself - It is for employer to provide an alternative employment and it is not required for an employee to solicit or explore all avenues/ opportunities for securing alternative employment - Writ petitioner is directed to refund additional monetary benefit received by him from appellant APSRTC in lieu of alternative employment - Writ appeal accordingly dismissed. APSRTC Vs. K.Moses 2012(1) Law Summary 212 = 2012(2) ALD 772 = 2012(2) ALT 410.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTS:

PETROLEUM PRODUCTS:

—Dealership - Termination of - Petitioner, H.P Dealer in MS, HSD and Turbojet deals through his outlet - Vigilance Team of respondent/Company inspected petitioner's outlet and took samples of M.S and found same not in accordance with Specifications as per Laboratory Report - Petitioner submitted repre-sentation denying allegations in show cause notice and sent sample left with him to laboratory and said sample accorded with standard Specifications - Inspite, respondent/Company terminated dealership of petitioner for alleged adulteration - Petitioner contends that very purpose of leaving a sample with a dealer, whenever inspection is conducted is to ensure transparency in process and that when sample left with it found to be in accordance with specifications very basis for initiation of proceedings against it, disappeared and that impugned order is illegal, arbitrary and capricious - In this case, sample of HSD that was tested on spot did not reveal any variation as to standards - So far as MS is concerned samples were drawn in dead storage and that analysis of sample left with petitioner revealed that it accords with standard specifications - If result of analysis of sample left with petitioner does not indicate, traces of adulteration of product agency or Department must equally respect out- come - Virtually, no reason is stated as to why result of analysis of sample left with petitioner, must be ignored - Impugned order, set aside - Respondent under obligation to restore dealership of petitioner forthwith - Writ petition, allowed. Sri Srinivasa Agencies, HP Dealer, E.G. Dist. Vs. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn., Ltd. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 271.

PETROLEUM RULES OF 2002 FRAMED UNDER PETROLEUM ACT, 1934:

PETROLEUM RULES OF 2002 FRAMED UNDER PETROLEUM ACT, 1934:

—- Rule 144 - ESSO (ACQUISITION OF UNDERTAKINGS IN INDIA), ACT, 1974 - CONSTITUTION O INDIA, Art.226 - Petitioner, partnership Firm purchased land leased out to ESSO Company, in which Petroleum retail out let commissioned through their dealer - Petitioner issued notice to respondents, Company calling upon them to deliver vacant possession of property in view of termination of tenancy and also claimed damages - Respondents have resisted for vacating premises, alleging that action of petitioner's vendor in not extending first option to them or purchase of said land is unjust though there is a clause to that effect in lease agreement - Writ petition filed by petitioner seeking direction, declaring action of respondent in not handing over vacant possession of land as illegal and arbitrary and without any authority of law - Petitioner contents in view of order passed by DRO cancelling No Objection Certificate granted u/Sec.144 of Petroleum Rules, respondent cannot store any petroleum products in site in question and that there is no reason for not delivering possession to petitioner who claimed title under registered sale deeds - Even according to respondents there is no lease for period beyond 1990 and possession of respondents over property is unlawful and illegal - Respondents contend that writ petition filed by petitioner is not at all maintainable having regard to nature of relief sought for and that respondents came into possession pursuant to contractual obligations by entering into lease with predecessor in title to petitioner and in that view of matter to seek delivery of possession, petitioner has to approach common law Court, but he cannot seek any relief in writ petition filed under Art.226 of Constitution and in view of several factual disputes, petitioner is not entitled for any relief in this writ petition - DISPUTED QUESTIONS OF FACT IN WRIT PETITION - ".... that in an appropriate case the writ Court has jurisdiction to entertain a writ petition involving disputed questions of fact and there is no absolute bar for entertaining a writ petition even if same arises out of a contractual obligation and or involves some disputed questions of fact."

POLICE PROTECTION FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF ORDERS

In this case, admittedly there is no lease executed either by LRs of original owner or by petitioner who is purchaser of site and as much as title of petitioner pursuant to registered sale deeds, is not in dispute and therefore there is no basis for to defend possession of respondents - Though petitioner is bona fide purchaser of site in question for valuable consideration which was purchased for making constructions he is unduly deprived of benefit of several years - In view of judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court, in absence of absolute bar this Court can grant relief to petitioner in this writ petition filed under Art.226 of constitution, particularly in absence any semblance of defence to retain possession by respondents by any further period - Writ petition, allowed. Sri Baba & Co. Nellore Vs. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn., Ltd. 2012(1) Law Summary 149 = 2012 (2) ALD 752 = 2012(2) ALT 535.

POLICE PROTECTION FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF ORDERS

—Petitioners contend that they are absolute owners of land, which they inherited from father of 4th petitioner - They alleged that when respondent Nos.7 to 10 were trying to interfere with their possession and enjoyment of land, they filed Suit before Principal Senior Civil Judge, for perpetual injunction - They also filed I.A. seeking temporary injunction pending disposal of suit - The said application was dismissed - Respondent Nos.7 to 10 questioned same in C.R.P.No.517 of 2013 before this Court - The said Revision was dismissed confirming the findings of the II Additional District and Sessions Judge.

The petitioners filed complaints/representations dt.26-05-2016 and 30-05-2016 to respondent Nos.1 to 6 seeking police aid to protect their possession and for implementation of order of temporary injunction granted by Civil Court - When this did not yield any results, they filed W.P.No.17048 of 2016 questioning inaction of respondent Nos.1 to 6 in taking action against respondent Nos.7 to 10 on basis of the complaint by them on 26-05-2016 and 30-05-2016 complaining about illegal interference, criminal trespass etc. into their land and in not providing police protection to enforce injunction order granted in their favour and against respondent Nos.7 to 10 in C.M.A.

At admission stage, the said Writ Petition was disposed of relying on judgment of Supreme Court in LALITA KUMARI VS. STATE OF UTTAR PRADESH, and holding that allegations in complaints referred to above given by petitioners prima facie disclose commission of cognizable offences and respondent Nos.1 to 6 should follow said judgment of Supreme Court and take appropriate steps - As far as relief of police protection is concerned, Court observed that petitioners are always at liberty to avail remedy available under law - Thus, even this Court had held that petitioners are not disentitled to police aid, but granted liberty to petitioners to avail remedy available under law.

Petitioners contended that having regard to order of injunction pending disposal of suit granted in favour of petitioners after contest by the Civil Court, and having regard to the law laid down by this Court and Supreme Court in Satyanarayana Tiwari

POST OFFICE ACT:

Vs. S.H.O.P.S. and P.R. Murlidharan Vs. Swami, respondent Nos.1 to 6 cannot deny police protection to petitioners for enforcement of said order of injunction.

Government Pleader for Home appearing for respondent Nos.1 to 6 did not dispute above legal position or entitlement of petitioners for police aid to enforce injunction order granted in their favour in a Writ proceeding.

Respondent Nos.7 and 8, however, opposed said contentions of petitioners - According to him, petitioners having failed to obtain an order of police aid in W.P.No.17408 of 2016, cannot maintain present Writ Petition for same relief and it should be construed that Court had rejected petitioners' entitlement in getting such relief in said Writ Petition and also sought to rely on certain pleadings of petitioners in Writ Petition, and sought to contend that even petitioners admitted that they have been dispossessed by respondent Nos.7 to 10 - According to him, in light of said pleadings and documentary evidence filed by respondent Nos.7 to 10, petitioners ought not to be granted any relief - The question is whether decision in W.P. 17048 of 2016 bars filing of this Writ petition.

Held, since in present case, prima facie title and possession of petitioners has been established after contest by Civil Court, there cannot be any dispute that they can seek relief of police protection under Art.226 of Constitution of India – Court of opinion, respondent Nos.7 to 10 are bound by findings in C.R.P.No.517 of 2013 wherein this Court confirmed findings in C.M.A. District and Sessions Judge, holding that petitioners were in possession of property and had also a prima facie title - They cannot be allowed to reopen question of possession collaterally in this Writ Petition filed by petitioners seeking implementation of injunction orders granted in favour of petitioners.

This Court in considered opinion, it would be travesty of justice to allow respondent Nos.7 to 10 to violate order of injunction and claim to have dispossessed petitioners from the subject property in violation of the injunction order - Therefore this Court in considered opinion, petitioners have made out a clear case for grant of police aid to protect their possession of land - Though petitioners have alleged certain acts of trespass by respondent Nos.7 to 10, they, however, insist that they are still in possession of property in question.

Accordingly, Writ Petition is allowed, and action of respondent Nos.1 to 6 in not providing police aid in implementation of injunction order granted in favour of petitioners in CMA by District Judge is declared as arbitrary and illegal and direction is given to respondent Nos.1 to 6 to provide police protection for implementation of said orders. A.Bharathi Vs.State of Telangana2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 314.

POST OFFICE ACT:

— Secs.2 (f), 2(i) & 9 - INDIAN POST OFFICE RULES, Rule 30 - Law Journal - Concession of duty of postage - Petitioner take publication of Law Joural Titled "Law animated world" and obtained certificate of registration from Registrar for News Papers of India - Superintendent of Post Offices declining concession of duty of postage as Journal solicited donations - Expressions "news" and "current topics" - Meaning of - Expression

POST OFFICE (M.I.S) RULES 1987:

news need not be confined for purpose of appreciation as only relating to topics of political interests/questions of political debates - Any information on recent events and current affairs is liable to be understood as "news" - When we understand adjective "current" as belonging to present time happenings, it, then, boils down to matters of larger public interest and would comprehend "news" - Therefore, act of reporting of matters relating to current events or passing on information in full or in an abbreviated form from concerning law and its jurisprudential advancements and developments, undoubtedly, attracts sweep of both expressions "news" and "current topics" - Therefore that a Journal, which is sought to be brought about, for purpose of propagating judgments rendered by various Courts is a publicaion of "news" and "current topics" - Sec.9 of Act also permits publication to carry advertisements - Consequently even a solicitation seeking donation is liable to be under stood as one form of advertisement indulged in by publisher - Therefore, objection raised by respondents for registration of publication of petitioner is incorrect - In context of setting of Sec.9 equitable considerations would arise rather than any attempt to deny benefit to one particular class of publication - Therefore putting undue fetters or restrictions which will render very objective to be frustrated and circumscribed - Hence grievance of petitioner - Justified - Respondents directed to register publication of Journal titled "Law Animated World" for according it necessary concession of duty of postage. I.Balamani Vs. Senior Superintendent of Post Offices, Hyderabad 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 348.

POST OFFICE (M.I.S) RULES 1987:

—Rule 12 - POST OFFICE SAVINGS ACCOUNT RULES, R.4, 6(5) - POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANK GENERAL RULES, 1981, Rules 16,17 & 18 - Petitioner's husband deposited Rs.6,18,000/- by opening twelve accounts under Post Office Monthly Incoming Scheme (P.O. M.I.S.) - 1st respondent/Head Post Master issuing proceedings denying interest on deposits made by petitioner beyond limit provided under Rules, deducting interest amounting to Rs.1,27,530/- on ground that interest has been paid on amount over and above Rs.4,64,000/- - Respondents submit that by virtue of Rules 17 and 18 of Post Office Savings Bank General Rules, petitioner is not entitled for interest and 1st respondent rightly deducted interest paid on excess amount and only paid balance amount to petitioner - In this case, petitioner has deposited different amounts into various accounts and none of those accounts has exceeded prescribed deposit limit - Though Rules prescribed that more than two accounts shall not be opened by any person, it was a mistake occurred on part of Post Master also in allowing petitioner to open more accounts contrary to Rules - Had there been any objection at time of opening of accounts or obtaining declaration from depositor that depositor did not open more than two accounts in any Post Office, that would have made petitioner and her husband that they have knowledge about Rules that they should not open more accounts than two - As deposits were not made intentionally after knowing Rules, petitioner cannot be deprived of interest accrued thereon - Respondents directed not to recover amount already paid towards interest and if any amount deducted towards payment of interest to petitioner shall be refunded to him - Writ petition, allowed. K.Susheela Vs. Ministry of Communications Dept., Mancheriyal 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 437.

PREVENTION OF BLACK MARKETING AND MAINTENANCE OF SUPPLES OF ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT, 1980, PRE-CONCEPTION AND PRE-NATAL DIAGNOSTIC TECHNIQUES (PROHIBITION OF SEX SELECTION) ACT, 1994:

—Secs.17,20 and 21 - NATIONAL INSPECTION AND MONITORING COMMITTEE (N.I.M.C.), - Experts Team visited petitioners' Ultrasound Scanning Centres and noticed various contraventions and seized machines from respective Scanning Centres under cover of different panchanamas - Basing on N.I.M.C. Report District Medical & Health Officer passed orders cancelling registration of petitioners Ultrasound Scanning Centres under Act - Petitioners contend that there is failure on part of appropriate authority under Act to give reasonable opportunity to petitioners by way of giving show cause notice and that even though N.I.M.C Team notices certain contraventions under Act there is no allegation against any of petitioners that they were indulging any misuse for sex determination leading to foeticide - Act provides for various regulatory measures by way of checks on genetic counselling centres, genetic laboratories and genetic clinics as well pre-natal diagnostic techniques and when there is non-complacence of regulatory provisions of Act, there is every likelyhood of centres or clinics indulging in such activity which is contrary to object for which Act was passed and as per Sec.20(2) of Act, mere breach of provisions of Act or Rules made thereunder is sufficient ground for cancellation of registration - In this case, Sheet anchor of petitioners' case is failure on part of appropriate authority to follow principles of natural justice in giving reasonable opportunity of being heard - Recording of reasons is sine-qua-non of principles of naural justice and that if no reasons are recorded for dispensing with prior show notice it amounts to violation of principles of natural justice - In present case, DMHO, who is appropriate authority gave a total gobye to statutory safeguards contained in Sec.20(1) & (2) before exercising his power or authority of cancellation of registration of petitioners centres/clinics under Act - There is clear violation of statutory pre-requisits as well as principles of natural justice - Cancellation of registration under Act and without taking advise of Advisory Committee appropriate authority cannot exercise jurisdiction u/Sec.20(2) of Act for cancelling registration of petitioners in these matters and taking advise of Advisory Committee is a condition precedent for either suspending or cancelling registration by appropriate authority - Impugned actions of DMHO are ultra vires and are vitiated by improper exercise of jurisdiction and suffers from violation of not only general principles of natural justice but also statutory provisions relating to natural justice — Orders quashed - Writ petitions, allowed. Venkateshwara Imaging Centre Vs. D.M.H.O , Warangal, 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 273 = 2012(1) ALD (Crl) 993 (AP) = 2012(3) ALD 593 = 2012(5) ALT 554 = AIR 2012 AP 165.

PREVENTION OF BLACK MARKETING AND MAINTENANCE OF SUPPLES OF ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT, 1980,

—-Sec.3(1) & (2) - A.P. STATE PUBLIC DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM (CONTROL) ORDER, 2008, Cl.17 (A), r/w Sec.7 of ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES ACT, 1995 - Petitioners/ detenus are detained u/Sec. 3(1) & (2) of Act 1980, on ground that they have been engaged in clandestine busines of purchasing of commodities meant for publc distribution system by hoardin, diverting and selling same without any licence under Order 2008, r/w Sec.7of E.C. Act.

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1988:

Question is, whether mere purchase of rice meant for public distribution system from card holders unauthorizedly for making unjust enrichment amounts to contravention of any of provisions of 1995 Act or Control Order 2008.

A careful reading of Cl.17(A) of Order 2008 shows that same is attracted if a fair price shop dealer or card holder or any person causes interruption or interferes with a smooth distribution of schedule commodities under public distribution system or other Govt., Schemes at any level right from Food Corporation of India godown to F.P. shop point, till scheduled commodity reaches intended beneficiary - From this unequivocal plain language of this provision it is clear that it gets attracted when there is interruption of food grains from stae of FCI godown till it reaches intended beneficiary i.e, card holders.

Therefore the activity of detenus compleely falls out side Cl.17(A) of Control Order, 2008 - Once there is no prohibition on such activity either under 1995 Act or under Control Order, 2008, which undisputedly is only order that governs distribution and control of rice meant for public distribution system, detenus cannot be accused of committing any offence - Once their activities do not constitute an offence under law their preventive detention under provisions of 1980 act cannot be sustained - Impugned orders of detention are set aside - Writ petitions allowed. Maimuna Begum Vs. State of Telangana 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 65 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 684 = 2016(5) ALT 280.

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1988:

—Secs.7,13(1)(d), r/w 13(2) - Appellant/Site engineer demanded bribe amount from Complainant, Proprietor of Engineering Company and he was trapped by conducting Sodium Carbonate test - Trial Court convicting appellant to undergo rigorous imprisonment for two years - High Court confirmed finding of trial Court, but reduced sentence of two years into one year - Appellant contends that in corruption case demand and acceptance are two most important aspects and both, demand as well as acceptance must be proved by prosecution - In absence of clear evidence of demand and acceptance, conviction in corruption cases cannot be sustained - In this case, appellant had clearly demanded amount from P.W.1/Complainant, Proprietor of Engineering Services Company and accused demanded a bribe amount to be paid to clear final bill - P.W.2, who is an independent witness had corroborated evidence of complainant - It is difficult to accept submission of appellant that there was no demand and acceptance of bribe amount. V.Kannan Vs. State 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 31 = 2009(2) ALD(Crl) 726 (SC) = 2009(6) Supreme 166.

—Secs.7 & 13(i)(d), r/w 13(2) - A.P. TRANSCO EMPLOYEES REGULATION DISCIPLINE AND APPEAL REGULATIONS, Regulation 10(1) & (2) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.311(2) - 1st respondent/Chairman and M.D of A.P.S.P.D.C Ltd., dismissing petitioner/ Asst. Engineer from service consequent on his conviction in criminal case for offences under provisions of Prevention of Corruption Act - Petitioner contends that since sentence has been suspended by appellate Court, conviction recorded by trial Court cannot be based for dismissing him from service - Respondent contends that what is suspended by High Court is only sentence and not conviction of petitioner and therefore, order of dismissal consequent on conviction of petitioner is legal and proper and same not liable to be set aside - When conviction is on a corruption charge against public servant, appellate Court or revisional Court should not suspend order of conviction during pendency of appeal, even if sentence of imprisonment is suspended - Mere fact that an appellate or revisional forum has decided to entertain his challenge and to go into issues and findings made against such public servant once again should not even temporarily absolve him from such findings - Order passed by 1st respondent dismissing petitioner from service consequent on his conviction in criminal case - Justified - Writ petition, dismissed. Ch.Gopala Rao Vs. SPDC of A.P. Ltd. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 254 = 2009(3) ALD ALD 63 = 2009(1) APLJ 309 = 2009(2) ALT 625.

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1988:

—Secs.7, 13(1)(d), 13(2) & 20(1) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.313 - Trial Court convicted appellant/accused Officer a Public Servant for offence of demanding and accepting illegal gratification for doing Official favour - De-facto complainant/transport contractor who transported Officer furniture and records of Office to newly construct building when asked payment of bill, accused/Officer demanded Rs.600/- as bribe for passing Bill - In pre-tap proceedings, trap party recovered tainted amount from accused Officer - Prosecution alleged that accused Officer demanded and accepted illegal gratification for doing Official favour of passing bill - Accused Officer denied demand and acceptance of bribe amount by taking plea that de-facto complainant P.W.1 used to take handloans from him and used to repay same after bills were passed and on date of trap, he repaid Rs.400 towards part payment of loan amount and thus amount received by him was towards repayment of loan and not bribe - Prosecution contends that though there is no evidence regarding earlier demands, in fact situation where amount was found and recovered from possession of accused Officer and his own admission that he received amount, it is sufficient to hold him guilty charged offence - Essential ingredients of Sec.7 of Act are that person accepting gratification should be a Public Servant and that he should have accepted gratification for himself or others and gratification should be as a motive or reward for doing or forbearing to do any official act in discharge of his official duties - Defence of accused Officer is that he received amount, not towards bribe but it was towards repayment of loan amount and he took this plea in his statement recorded u/Sec.313 Cr.P.C - Mere failure to offer spot explanation will not render invalid explanation given u/Sec.313 Cr.P.C. - In this case, P.W.1 defacto complainant admittedly owed accused Officer - P.W.6 in his evidence clearly stated that P.W.1 de-facto complaint used to take hand loans from accused Officer now and then and said evidence not contradicted by prosecution - In view of admission of P.W.1 coupled with evidence of P.W.6, probability of defence that amount was received by accused officer was towards loan and not as bribe, cannot be ruled out - Prosecution failed to prove guilt of accused/Officer beyond reasonable doubt and accused/Officer could rebut presumption raised against him - Conclusions drawn and reasons assigned by trial Court in convicting accused/Officer not tenable - Conviction recorded against accused/Officer is unsustainable - Conviction set aside - Accused Officer stands acquitted - Appeal, allowed. T.S.Laxman Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2012(1) Law Summary 334 = 2012(2) ALD(Crl) 185(AP) = 2012(3) ALT(Crl) 61 (AP).

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1988:

—-Secs.7 & 13(2) r/w Sec.13 (1)(d) - State Government/first respondent by virtue of a Memorandum permitted Anti-Corruption Bureau to file charge sheet against petitioner in Court of law against which petitioner has filed present petition and petitioner is also praying for quashment of proceedings on the file of Court of First Additional Special Judge for SPE and ACB cases.

Held, prosecution under provisions of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 is an extreme action which badly and severely affects and disturbs social life of an individual - Unless Government comes to a conclusion that there is a substantial material to launch prosection, permission for prosecution cannot be accorded in a routine, unreasonable and arbitrary manner - A perusal of impugned order vividly shows that there is absolutely no application of mind at all - Grant of sanction is not a mere formality and there is a solemn and sacred duty cast upon sanctioning authority to exercise this power with great care, caution and circumspection and it cannot be lost sight of that this discretionary power given to the State is a safeguard for innocent employees and is a sword in hands of sanctioning authorities to prevent frivolous complaints.

Hon'ble Apex Court has laid down the law in case of Chittaranjan Das V. State of Orissa, 2011 (7) SCC 167, and in view of that this Court finds no scintilla of hesitation nor any traces of doubt to hold that the impugned action is highly unreasonable and preposterous and cannot stand for judicial scrutiny.

For aforesaid reasons, writ petition is allowed, setting aside Memorandum issued by first respondent State Government and proceedings on file of Court of First AdditionalSpecial Judge for SPE and ACB cases are hereby quashed. Lakshmi Kanth Shinde @ L.K.Shinde Vs. State of Telangana 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 59 = 2016(1) ALD (Crl) 472 = 2016(2) ALT 123.

—Secs.7 and 13(2), r/w Sec.13(1) (d) - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.34 - Accused Officers No.1, Mandal Surveyors and Accused No.2 working as Mandal Revenue Inspector tried for offences punishable under provisions of Prevention of Corruption Act, based on grounds of bribe and trap and found guilty and sentenced to suffer R.I for two years and to pay fine - Essential ingredients of Sec.7 of Prevention of Corruption Act are that person accepting gratification should be a public servant and should accept gratification for himself or another and gratification should be as a motive or reward for doing or forbearing to do any official act in exercise of his Official duties - U/Sec.13(1) (d) of Act, a public servant should have used corrupt or illegal means or otherwise abused his position as such public servant and that he should have obtained a valuable thing or pecuniary advantage for him self or for any other person

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1988:

- In this case, trap was conducted and that amount was handedover to A.O. 2 on demand by A.O. 1 and A.O.2 in turn handed over amount to A.O.3 - Amount was recovered from A.O.3 - Colour test was conducted on both hand figures of A.O.2 and A.O.3 yielded positive result - Post trap proceedings were recorded - Thus according to prosecution accused Officers demanded and accepted illegal gratification for doing an official favour to P.W.1 defacto complainant and thus guilty of charged offence - Accused Officers pleaded not guilty - BURDEN OF PROOF - Initial burden is on prosecution to prove demand and acceptance, de hors plea of alibi of accused - Burden cannot be placed on accused Officr to prove that there was no demand made by him - Burden shifts on accused only after it has been established by prosecution - In this case, there is no evidence either direct or circumstantial to prove demand by A.O.1 - Trial Court which has placed burden on accused/Officer in this regard has drawn inference only on basis of evidence of P.W.1 and Ex.P.1 complaint, is not tenable - On analysis of evidence, it must be held that there was no demand and acceptance by A.O.1 of any bribe amount from P.W.1 - P.W.1 in his evidence clearly admitted that A.2 did not make any demand to pay bribe amount at any point of time - Thus there cannot be any doubt that A2 never demanded bribe amount from P.W.1 - In this case, prosecution did not prove demand and acceptance by adducing any acceptable evidence - Reasons of trial Court in convicting Officers are not tenable - Impugned judgment is liable to be set aside - Criminal appeal, allowed. Chodagudi Sambasivarao Vs. State, rep. by Inspector of Police, ACB 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 110 = 2012(2) ALD (Crl) 201 (AP).

——Sec.7,13(2), 13(1)(d) - Accused has to be served a notice if appeal is preferred against his acquittal after limitation period - Art.113(a) of Limitation Act mutais mutandis applies to Sec.378 Cr.P.C. and therefore State/Central Government has to file appeal within 90 days from date of judgment againt order of acquittal under Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 - Sec.378(3) Cr.P.C - Submission that there is no period of limitation for filing an appeal against acquittal by State/Central Government and that they can avail six months period as provided under Sec.378(5) Cr.P.C cannot be accepted - No period of limitation to apply for leave by State is prescribed u/Sec.378(3) Cr.P.C and it cannot avail period of six months or two months prescribed u/Sec.378(5) Cr.P.C - There are no two different periods of limitation - One for obtaining leave by State and another for filing appeal - Appeal made by State Govt., against order of acquittal under Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 after 176 days was held time barred. State of A.P. Vs. Syed Mohamood Saeed 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 235 = 2015(2) ALT(Crl) 71 (AP) = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 672 (AP).

—-Secs.7, 13(1)(d) r/w 13(2) - Criminal Appeal against judgement of Trial Court convicting accused - Held, prosecution failed to prove demand and acceptance of illegal gratification by accused - Defence can establish its stand through preponderance of probability and not by proving beyond reasonable doubt - Appeal Allowed - Judgment of the Trial Court, set aside.Gundappa Vs. State 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 336.

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1988:

—Secs.12,13 (1) (a) & 13(2) r/w Sec.34 of IPC – Appellant/A1, S.I of Police convicted for demanding and accepting bribe of Rs.5,000/- from P.W.1 – Allegation that appellant/A1 demanded P.W.1 to pay bribe amount of Rs.5,000/- and as per his directions P.W.1 paid bribe amount, (tainted currency notes) to A2 which were recovered at instance of A2 from kit box and sodium corbonate test conducted on hand fingures of A2 proved positive - Appellant contends that since main witnesses P.W.1 & 2 at whose instance trap was organized did not support case of prosecution conviction on appellant A1 based on mediator P.W.4, not sustainable and that nothing was seized from possession of appellant, no phenolphthalein test was conducted on his hands and in absence of any positive evidence it is not at all safe for trial Court to come to conclusion that appellant is guilty of alleged offence - In this case admittedly no phenolphthalein test was conducted on hands of appellant A1 and bribe, tainted amount was also not at all recovered from possession of A.1, but it was seized from possession A2 only - Prosecution miserably failed to bring home guilt of appellant A1 for offence punishable u/Sec.13 (1) (d), r/w Sec.13 (2) of Act and also miserably failed in bring home guilt of appellant for offence u/Sec.7 of Act beyond all reasonable doubt – Conviction of appellant, set aside – Criminal appeal, allowed. K.Giri Vs. State of A.P. 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 254.

—Sec.13(1)(d) & 13(2) - Special Judge sentenced accused/appellant to rigorous imprisonment for one year and also fine for alleged demand of Rs.500 for forwarding seed licence for renewal - Lower Court disbelieved explanation offered by accused/ appellant and recorded finding of guilty of accused - Appellant/accused contends that it is for prosecution to prove demand as well as acceptance of money for doing an official favour - In this case, there is no accompanying witness or shadow witness for P.W.1 either at time of alleged demand of bribe of Rs.500 or for alleged payment of bribe amount to accused - P.W.3 who is actual applicant did not accompany P.W.1 either to office of accused or to house of accused and his evidence is to effect that his father informed him about accused demanding bribe of Rs.500 from him for forwarding application to Joint Director - That part of evidence of P.W.3 is not relevant and admissible as it is in form of hearsay - If really accused demanded bribe of Rs.500/ - from P.W.1 he would have appointed a date for payment and would have available in his office when P.W.1 intended to pay said bribe amount to him - Instead evidence of P.Ws.1,3 and 7 shows that when trap laying party along with mediators and P.W.1 went to office of accused, office was closed and accused was not available in his office - Prosecution evidence shows that prosecution party was almost chasing to locate accused and finally found him at his house - Lower Court did not assess prosecution evidence properly and landed in erroneous conclusion in favour of prosecution - Finding of conviction recorded by lower Court is not sustainable either on facts or in law - Conviction set aside - Appeal allowed. Sanga Reddy Ananda Reddy Vs. State of A.P. 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 84 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 433(AP) = 2011(2) ALT(Crl) 217(AP).

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTARATION ACT, 1954:

—Sec.19 - Accused/respondent working as Asst. Engineer in APSRTC, charged for offences u/Secs. 7, 13 (1) (d)/13(2) - Special Judge ACB found accused not guilty of charges and therefore acquitted - In this case, it is alleged that accused demanded Rs.150 from P.W.1 for forwarding his application to higher authorities for restoration of incentive to him - Except evidence of P.W.1 with regard to demand of bribe by accused and acceptance of tainted cash of Rs.150 as bribe by accused , there is no corroborative evidence for same - Lower Court sought for corroboration of P.W.1's evidence because P.W.1 was with hopeless service record and criminal record and admittedly he was suspended thrice and domestic and Departmental enquiries conducted against him and he was reverted in service - In absence of any corroboration of P.W.1's evidence, lower Court rightly found favour holding that defence version is probable - In so far as sanction for prosecution as required u/Sec.19 of Act, lower Court held that sanction is not valid and legal - APSRTC which came into existence under Road Transport Corporation Act is a Statutory Corporation which manages its own affairs - Therefore it is a separate, independent Entity qua State Govt., - Hence sanction for prosecution in this case, should have been granted u/Sec.19(1)(c) of Act and not under 19(1)(b) of Act - Sanction for prosecution of accused given by State Govt., is bad in law - Appeal, dismissed. S.I. of Police, Anti-corruption Bureau, Visakhapatnam Vs. U.Subrahmanya Sharma 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.)166.

—Secs.19, 7, 13(1) (d), r/w 13(2) - Order of sanction to prosecute - Respondent, employee in Office of Registrar of Firms was put to trial for alleged commission of offence of demanding Rs.300 for grant of certificate - Commissioner of Stamps issued order of sanction to prosecute respondent solely basing on Report of Inspector General of Police - Trial Judge convicting respondent - High Court reversed same holding that order of sanction being illegal judgment of conviction would not be sustained - In this case, sanctioning Authority purported to pass order of sanction solely on basis of report made by I.G of Police - No material placed before sanctioning Authority except report - Before passing order of sanction, entire records containing material collected against accused should be placed before sanctioning Authority - In this case, High Court committed manifest error in proceeding to determine legality or validity of order of sanction having regard to irrelevant factor viz., that offence involved only a sum of Rs.300 - Impugned order of High Court is justified although some observations made by High Court do not laid down correct legal position - Appeal, dismissed. State of Karnataka Vs. Ameer Jan 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 41.

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTARATION ACT, 1954:

—Secs.7 & 10 (2) - In the circumstances, it has to be taken that black pepper in its form is primary food, collection of sample of which is prohibited by proviso to sub-section (2) of Sec.10 of the Act - Apart from that, a reading of provisions of the Act discloses that the Act is intended for prevention of sale of adulterated food, but no offence can be launched against purchaser, who purchased such article of food - If this type of prosecution is allowed, then every person, who stocks adulterated goods, is liable for prosecution and several small hoteliers also would be exposed to such threat - Provisions of Act are intended against manufacturers, who sell adulterated food to other persons as contained in Sec.7 of the Act - Writ Petition is liable to be allowed, and same is, accordingly, allowed quashing proceedings. Mohd.Ali Mirza Vs. State of A.P. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 248 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 102 = 2015Cri. LJ 1211.

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTARATION ACT, 1954:

—Secs.7(i) and 2(ia) (m), r/w Secs.16 (1) (a) (1) and Sec.13 (2) r/w Rule 9(b) of Rules - Food Inspector collected samples of "mixed milk" from petitioner's Hotel and sent to Public Analyst who sent report opining that samples does not conform to standards prescribed for milk - Hence complaint filed against petitioner - Petitioner contends that there is inordinate delay of more than 1 year 8 months in giving notice u/Sec.13(2) of Act and due to such delay in giving notice u/Sec.13(2), right of accused to send second sample to Central Food Laboratory for analysis for obtaining second opinion, virtually defeated - In this case, sample obtained by Food Inspector is described as "mixed milk" and that no standards prescribed for "mixed milk" in Act or Rules framed there under - In fact sample obtained in this case is "mixed milk" meant for preparation of "tea" and Food Inspector should not have obtained sample of such mixed milk meant for preparation of tea - Panchanama also does not disclose that Food Inspector made any stirring of contents of milk before obtaining samples - Hence, proceedings in C.C on file of Magistrate, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Mohd.Yaseen Khan Vs. State of A.P. 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 387.

—Secs.7(i) & 2(ia) (m) and Sec.16(1) (a) (i) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.468 - Food Inspector seized Double filtered Groundnut Oil from petitioner's shop and sent one sample to public analyst and lodged complaint for selling adulterated groundnut oil - Petitioner contends that samples lifted on 29-12-2003 and sent for analysis on 30-12-2003 and complaint filed in year 2007 and therefore is barred by time u/Sec.468 Cr.P.C and that petitioners are deprived of an opportunity to challenge said report by getting it re-examined by Central Food Laboratory in view of delay of more than three years in filing complaint from date of lifting samples - In this case, it is clear that valuable right of petitioners to get sample re-examined by Central Food Laboratory has been lost - No valid grounds to continue criminal proceedings against petitioners - Criminal petition, allowed. Bolisetty Satyanaga Bala Raju Vs. The State of A.P. 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 306 = 2011(1) ALD(Crl) 182(AP) = 2010(2) ALT(Crl) 324(AP).

—Secs.13(2) - Petitioners are accused in Criminal Case for offences committed under provisions of Food Adulteration Act - 2nd petitioner is proprietor of Hotel and 1st petitioner is vendor and agent of 2nd petitioner - Food Inspector purchased 1500 grams of green gram from 1st accused, suspecting same to be adulterated - Since report of Analyst disclosed that sample was adulterated foodstuff prosecution was launched against petitioners - Petitioners/accused contend that report of Analyst did not give any reasons how sample was adulterated Food and that there was a delay of nearly two years between date of report of Analyst and date on which complaint was laid before Court and that notice u/Sec.13(2) of Act not issued and that sample lifted by Food Inspector not meant for sale and that very provisions of Act do not apply - Most important allegation in this case is that very case does not fall within ambit of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act - Provisions of Act would apply in respect of adulterated foodstuff which is sought to be sold - But in present case, that green gram was never intended to be sold to public - In present case, green gram found in premises of restaurant not ment to be sold in shape in which they were found in premises - It was to be converted in to foodstuff in tiffins and meals - In such an event it would not be tantamount to sale of food item for human consumption - In this case, foodstuff purchased by Food Inspector not a food item within meaning of Act - Once sample seized from premises of A2 from custody of A1 is not food item within meaning of Act, whether same is adulterated or otherwise, petitioners cannot be prosecuted for offence under provisions of Act - Prosecution of petitioners is misconceived and liable to be quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Pydi Prasada Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 252 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 185(AP) = 2011(3) ALT(Crl) 168(AP).

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTARATION ACT, 1954:

—Sec.16(1)(a) r/w Sec.7 – Food Inspector inspected jail premises and collected samples of various materials including 'Haldi' and 'Rice' stored for consumption of prisoners - Since samples collected were not found in conformity with prescribed standard and therefore held adulterated Prosecution Reports were filed alleging for commission of offence u/Sec.16 of P.F.A. Act – Magistrate took cognizance - High Court dismissed Applications filed u/Sec.482 of Cr.P.C. - In this case it is not allegation that the appellant had stored 'Haldi' and 'Rice' for sale - According to prosecution Report these food items were not stored for sale, and therefore allegations made do not come within mischief of Sec.16(1)(a) of Act - Allegations made against appellant do not constitute any offence and hence prosecution of appellant for offence u/Sec.16(1)(a) of Act shall be an abuse of process of Court - Impugned orders are set aside - Appeals Allowed. Rupak Kumar Vs. State of Bihar 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 130.

——Secs.16 (1) (a) (i), 7 (i) and (2) (i) (a) - PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION RULES, Rules 14 & 16 - Appellant/Food Inspector filed complaint against A1 and A2/respondents 1 & 2, as sample of ground- nut oil lifted from A1 contained castor oil as per Analyst Report and therefore adulterated - Magistrate acquitted 1st respondent A1 on grounds that Food Inspector failed to observe mandatory provisions contained in Rules 14 & 16 and that despite of 1st respondent handedover bill under which he purchased groundnut oil from 2nd respondent, Food Inspector did not lift any sample of corresponding groundnut oil from premises of 2nd respondent - Appellant contends that evidence is consistent with regard to sampling and sealing process and that report of Analyst revealed that groundnut oil is adulterated since it contained castor oil and that Magistrate ought not to have acquitted A1/1st respondent - 1st respondent contends that his mother is owner of shop and he is student transacting business and cannot be held liable for punishment and that there is deliberate violation of mandatory provisions of Rules 14 & 16 by Food Inspector and evidence of PWs highly discrepant on material particulars - Taking sample by FI amounts to sale and R1 cannot escape liability on ground that licence was in name of his mother and he was transacting business only as she was sick on relevant date and mere fact that licence is in name of mother of R1 does not absolve him from criminal liability under Act, if he is otherwise liable for commission of offence - In this case it is clear from evidence that sampling were not taken once but twice which is not contemplated under Rules and evidence also indicates that Food Inspector took samples without clearing intervening vessel - If sample was taken with impure or contaminated, implements report of public analyst cannot be pressed into service to convict accused person for offence under Act - Rules 14 & 16 are mandatory and Food Inspector while conducting sampling and sealing process has to strictly observe mandatory provisions contain in Rules 14 & 16 and any violation will result in benefit of doubt to accused - In this case, no sample was lifted from shop of 2nd respondent eventhough name of A2 was disclosed on very same day by A1 at time of inspection - P.Ws 1, 3 & 4 gave a different versions with regard to sampling and sealing process - Food Inspector did not strictly follow Rules 14 & 16 - Judgment of acquittal passed by Magistrate, confirmed - Appeal preferred by State, dismissed. Food Inspector, Zone II, MCH, Secunderabad Vs. B.Rama Rao 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 143 = 2008(2) (Crl) 697(AP) = 2008(3) ALT (Crl) 311(AP).

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTARATION ACT, 1954:

—Sec.16(1) (a) (i) & 13(2) - Food Inspector filed complaint against A-1 & A-2, seller and manufacturer for keeping adulterated karam (chilli powder) for sale to public - In this case, sample packets purchased by Food Inspector from A1 on 19-3-2000 and it was dispatched to public analyst for analysis on 21-3-2000 - Report of analyst is dated 19-4-2000 and sanction for launching prosecution issued by Director on 1-5-2002 - Complaint filed on 20-6-2002 - Notice u/Sec.13(2) of Act enclosing public analyst report served on petitioner, accused more than 27 months of obtaining sample packet by Food Inspector informing their right to send second sample to Central Food Laboratory for second report by way of challenge to first report - By time Food Inspector gave notice u/Sec.13(2) of Act to accused, SHELF life of second sample expired long back and is unfit for analysis after more than 26 months of its purchase - Accused would be entitled for out right acquittal because he has lost his valuable defence of obtaining second opinion from Central Food Laboratory to prove that report of public analysist is not correct - Criminal case against petitioner/A2 is liable to be quashed - Proceedings in CC on file of Magistrate, quashed - Petition, allowed. Gurulakshmi Food Products, Guntur Vs. The State of A.P. 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 229.

—Sec.16(1)(a)(i), r/w Secs.7(i)(ii) and (2)(ia)(m) - PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION RULES, Rule 32(b), r/w proviso after Rule 32(f) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Food inspector inspected shop of 1st respondent purchased Cadbury 5 Star Chocolates from 1st petitioner and sent for analysis - Public Analyst issued opinion that sample contained vegetable oil and also contained Benzoic Acid which was not declared on lable and sample was both adulterated and mis branded - Hence case book against petitioners - Petitioners contend that in view of Appendix-B Clause A 25.03 of PFA Rules and in view of Rule 32(b) r/w proviso after Rule 32(f) of P.F.A

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTARATION ACT, 1954:

Rules petitioners are not guilty of committing offenceunder provisions of PFA Act, 1954 - Prosection contends that samples were indeed adulterated as can be seen from report of Analyst and that it automatically is tantamount to injurious to health, so much so offences are made out against accused - In this case, admittedly, seized samples were 5 Star Filled Chocolate Cakes weighing 16 gms each and that A.25.03 of Appendix-B of PFA Rules provides separate specification for a Filled and White Chocolates - That presence of hydrogenated vegetable oils are not permitted in chocolate portion of sample and not in Filled Portion of chocolate and that it would be tantamount to adulteration so long as hydrogenated vegetable oils are found in chocolate portion - In this case, Public Analyst Report did not distinguish between chocolate portion and Filled Portion of Chocolate - It mearly recorded that sample contained hydrogenated vegetable oils which was marked on lable and that sample also contained Benzoic Acid, which was not declared on lable and that consequently sample was tatantamount to adulteration and misbranding in view of clear distinction between white Chocolate and Filled Chocolate Analyst Report cannot be accepted - While so, Analyst Report disclosed that sample contained hydrogenated vegetable oils, but did not state whether hydrogenated vegetable oils were found in chocolate Portion or in Filled portion - Unless Analyst Report specifically disclosed that prohibited vegetable oils were found in Chocolate portion, it cannot be held that sample was adulterated - Admittedly lable did not show sample contain Benzoic Acid and net weight of samples drawn was 16 gms as can be seen from Analyst Report and that labeling envisaged by Rule 32-B is not necessary when net weight of confectionary is 20gms or less - Thus it is clear that petitioners are not guilty of either adulteration or misbranding of sample - Claim of violation under provisions of PFA Act, is misconceived - Prosecution against petitioners liable to be quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. Sanka Ravi Gopal Vs. State of A.P. 2012(1) Law Summary 119 = 2012(1) ALD (Crl) 521 (AP) = 2012(2) ALT (Crl) 49 (AP).

—Secs. 16(1)(a)(i)(a), 7(i) and 2(i) (a) (m) and Sec.17,13(2) & 20 - Petitioner/Manufacturer prosecuted for violations of provisions of Act Offence by companies - Petitioners contend that prosecution is not valid u/Sec.20 of Act and there is violation of mandatory provisions of Sec/13(2) of Act and there is delay and consequently accused entitled for acquittal since there is no proper consent for prosecution - Petitioner further contends, in order to initiate valid prosecution there must be proper consent and in absence of failure to give proper description of accused, prosecution is not valid - It is not necessary for sanctioning authority to consider that person who sold Food Article is owner, servant, agent, partner or relative of owner or duly authorized in this behalf - Scheme of Sec.20 of Act is to give consent to initiate prosecution to competent person and to prosecute offender - “Offence companies” - A reading of Sec.17 of Act clearly shows that if a person is nominee he will be responsible, if not persons who was incharge at time of offence of Company are liable for punishment - Therefore, even if particulars of nominee is not mentioned consent order, still a valid prosecution can be initiated against Company or by alleging as to who was in management of affairs at time of offence - In fact it is duty of company also to inform person incharge of affairs - Therefore, when once concerned order for initiation of prosecution u/Sec.20 of Act refers offender which is Company, it cannot be said that prosecution against Company is not valid for reason that name of nominee was not mentioned - In this case, as consent order for prosecution u/Sec.20 of Act clearly describes offender which is Company it cannot be said that prosecution is vitiated for non mentioning name of nominee - In these two cases at all stages there was delay in prosecuting case and in fact life of sample was only six months and therefore prosecution is to be quashed - Proceedings against petitioner/accused no.4 on files of different Magistrates are liable to be quashed. Hindustan Lever Limited Vs. State 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 280 = 2013(2) ALD (Crl) 694 (AP) = 2012(2) ALT (Crl) 83 (AP).

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTARATION ACT, 1954:

—Secs.16(1)(a) (i), 7(i), 2(ia), (m), 13(2) & 14 - Food Inspector lifted samples of Priya Chilli Powder from Kiran shop of A1 - As per report of Public Analyst, sample found adulterated - Even Director Central Food Laboratory opined that it did not confirm to standards of chillies and capsicum (Lal Mirchi) Powder as per prevention of Food Adulteration Act Rules - Petitioners contend that since there is nothing on record to show that petitioners or their persons, who manufactured samples that were lifted by Food Inspector and sent for analysis and since charge sheet shows that purchased bill, supplier's name and addresses etc., were not furnished, petitioner cannot be made liable for punishment under Act because provisions of Sec.14 of Act are not complied with and so charge sheet against petitioners is liable to be quashed - In this case, petitioners herein were impleaded as accused on basis of label declaration found on packets alleged to have been seized from possession of A1 - In this case, even according to complaint label declaration is to effect that product was manufactured on 1-6-2006 and it is best before 12 months from date of manufacture - Shelf life of product expired on 1-6-2007 and complaint was filed on 20-8-2007 nerely two months after shelf life - Central Food Laboratory examined sample on 7-1-2008, nearly 7 months after expiry of shelf life - Because of delay there must be variations in standards prescribed - As complaint and notice u/Sec.13(2) of Act was given after "shelf life" of product, petitioners could not apply to CFL within period of shelf life - In this case, since A1 did not produce any bill and he has not disclosed name and addresses of supplier of product lifted by Food Inspector from him, it cannot be said that they supplied product to accused No.1 for public sale - Accused No.1 assuming that all allegations in complaint are true petitioners cannot be said to have committed an offence under Act, in view of issuance, of notice u/Sec.13(2) of Act, which was given after shelf life of product was expired - Therefore petitioners could not have been applied for CFL within period of shelf life - Therefore petitioner cannot be said to have committed offence under Act and as such no prosecution could be launched against petitioners only on basis of label declaration and therefore continuance of proceedings against petitioners is nothing but abuse of process of Court - Proceedings against petitioners in C.C, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. P.Gopalakrishna Vs. Food Inspector, Visakhapatnam 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 172 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 565(AP) = 2011(2) ALT(Crl) 241(AP).

PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTARATION ACT, 1954:

—Secs.16(1)(a)(i), 7(i), 2 (i) (a) (m), 13(2) & 13(5) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.258, 482 and 4(2) - Food Inspector inspected shop of accused no.1 and purchased sealed packets of Priya chilli powder and sent samples to Public Analyst - Analyst opined that it was adulterated - Petitioner filed Application u/Sec.13(2) and sample sent to Director Central Food Laboratory for analysis - Director opined that sample confirmed to standards of chillis and capsicum powder as per Prevention of Food Adulteration Act Rules - Pursuant to said report petitioner filed Application u/sec.227 to discharge or dismiss complaint - Magistrate dismissed petition holding that no accused in complaint case can be discharged after taking cognizance - Hence present petition - Petitioner filed petition u/Sec.227 after filing charge sheet - Admittedly petitioner also filed application u/Sec.13(2) of Food Adulteration Act requesting to send sample to Director - Certificate of analysis issued by Director reveals that sample confirms to standards of chillis and capsicum powder - u/Sec.13(5) of Food Adulteration Act, Certificate of analysis issued by Director will supersedes Certificate issued by Public Analyst - As such Certificate issued by Director will prevail certificfate issued by Public Analyst - Consequently report of Public Analyst is of no avail and cannot be considered for any purpose and no offence shall be made out against petitioners-accused - Proceedings in C.C, quashed - Criminal petition, allowed. P.Gopalakrishna Vs. Food Inspector 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 190 = 2011(2) ALD(Crl) 179(AP) = 2011(2) ALT(Crl) 366(AP).

—Secs.16(1)(a)((ii) and 7(1) and (v) and 2(i)(b) – PREVENTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION RULES, 1955, Rule 44(e) – Food Inspector inspected shop of accused and purchased 40 grams of ground nut oil suspecting same to be adulterated – As per Analyst report ground nut oil is adulterated and hence complaint filed against accused - Trial Court convicted and sentenced accused for offence under provisions of Food Adulteration Act - Appellate Court confirmed judgment and conviction of accused - Petitioner/accused contends that prosecution has failed to add wholeseller or manufacturer of alleged adulterated oil as one of accused and same is fatal to case of prosecution and that prosecution failed to secure independent witnesses to act as mediators for raising samples and that copies of information under Exs.P1 to P5 not served on proprietor of shop and A1 is a sales man, as such same also goes to root of case and vitiates trial - In this case, it is a fact that P.Ws.1 & 2 are official witnesses and P.W.3 mediator turned hostile – Trial Court ought to have seen that it was not safe to base conviction on evidence of official witnesses that too when there are discrepancies in their evidence and not corroborating with each other - Prosecution failed to prove case beyond all reasonable doubt and trial Court ought to have acquitted both accused at least by extending benefit of doubt – Impugned judgment of both Courts below, set aside – Criminal revision, allowed. Sriharikota Venkata Ramanaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 344 = 2011(2) ALD (Crl) 193 (AP) = 2011(3) ALT(Crl) 148(AP).

PROTECTION OF CHILDREN FROM SEXUAL OFFENCES ACT, 2012,

PREVENTION OF MONEY LAUNDERING ACT, 2002:

—Petitioner, a Director of two companies registered under the Companies Act was accused in several crimes against those companies – Enforcement Case Information Report (ECIR) was registered against petitioner and others – Petitioner resigned from both companies in 2012 whereas crimes were registered in 2013 – Competent Authority (3rd respondent) directed petitioner to appear before him – Petitioner challenged order – Held, Sec.50(2) of the Act vests power in competent authority to summon any person whose attendance he considers necessary to give evidence or to produce any records during course of any investigation or proceeding under Act – Writ petition, dismissed. Kolakalapudi Brahma Reddy Vs. Union of India 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 163 = 2014(4) ALD 219 = 2014(5) ALT 369.

PROTECTION OF CHILDREN FROM SEXUAL OFFENCES ACT, 2012,

—Sec.42-A - Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, Sec.14 - District and Sessions Judge, invested with power to try offences under Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (POSCO Act) made a reference under Sec.395(2) Cr.P.C. seeking clarification as to jurisdiction of the Court to try case when offences alleged against accused are triable under two legislations i.e., POSCO Act and Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act.

Held, a perusal of Sec.20 of SC/ST Act and Section 42-A of POSCO Act reveal that there is a direct conflict between two non-obstante clauses contained in these two different enactments - If Section 20 of SC/ST Act is to be invoked in a case involving offences under both the Acts, same would be triable by a Special Court constituted under Section 14 of SC/ST Act and if provisions of Section 42-A of the POSCO Act are to be applied, such a case shall be tried by a Special Court constituted under Section 28 of the POSCO Act - When there are two different enactments containing two non-obstante clauses, Court has to see the object and purpose of the two enactments and the legislation which is later in point of time.

A perusal of both enactments would show that POSCO Act is a self contained legislature which was introduced with a view to protect the children from offences of sexual assault, harassment, pornography and other allied offences - It was introduced with number of safeguards to children at every stage of proceedings by incorporating a child friendly procedure - Legislature introduced non-obstante clause in Section 42-A of the POSCO Act with effect from 20.06.2012 giving an overriding effect to provisions of the POSCO Act, though legislature was aware about existence of nonobstante clause in Section 20 of the SC/ST Act - Applying test of chronology the POSCO Act, 2012 came into force with effect from 20.06.2012 whereas SC/ST Act was in force from 30.01.1990 - POSCO Act being beneficial to all and later in point of time, it is to be held that the provisions of POSCO Act have to be followed for trying cases where the accused is charged for the offences under both the enactments - Reference is thus answered holding that where an accused is tried for offences under both the enactments, the appropriate Court to try the offence would be the Court designated under Section 28 of the POSCO Act. State of A.P. Vs. Mangali Yadagiri 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 112 = 2016 Cri. LJ 1415 = 2016(1) ALD (Crl) 314 = 2016(1) ALT (Crl) 101 (AP).

PROTECTION OF WOMEN FROM DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ACT, 2005:

PROTECTION OF WOMEN FROM DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ACT, 2005:

—According to provisions of Act, proceedings have to be held in camera and to be tried summarily and time fixed is sixty days for disposal from date of first hearing - This Act is to provide speedy remedy for deserving aggrieved person and for that reason, a summary enquiry is contemplated - Court cannot go into title dispute and relief of complainant and documents sought to be relied on in this case are in respect of title dispute - Benefits of the Act are not to protect a lady complainant who by her adulterous life caused mental agony and family disorder both for husband and children - Learned Sessions Judge has committed error in setting aside well reasoned order of learned III Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Hyderabad - Criminal Revision Case, allowed. Kolli Babi Sarojini Vs. Kolli Jayalaxmi 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 425.

—All petitioners are residents of Prakasam district whereas the respondent is a resident of Hyderabad - There is nothing on record to show that the present petitioners had any domestic relationship and lived together with the 2nd respondent in a shared household at any point of time - Further, after the proceedings in Crime No. 204 of 2010 were quashed by this Court, by orders dated 04-10-2012, the present DV case was filed by the 2nd respondent - Viewed thus, this Court finds that the petitioners have made out valid and sufficient grounds to quash the proceedings against them in D.V.C.No. 18 of 2012 on file of VI Metropolitan Magistrate, Medchal, Ranga Reddy District - Accordingly, Criminal Petition is allowed - Consequently, proceedings against the petitioners herein are hereby quashed. P.Sugunamma Vs. State of A.P. 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 162 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 305 = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 196 (AP).

—and HINDU MARRIAGE ACT,1955, Secs.5, 11 & 15 - SPECIAL MARRIAGE ACT, 1954, Secs.2 & 13 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.125 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.198(1) & 494 - Appellant (wife) married respondent filed petition seeking certain reliefs including damages and maintenance - Trial Court granted interim maintenance - Sessions Judge affirmed order of trial Court - Hence respondent/husband filed writ petition before High Court - While writ petition pending respondent/husband filed Application seeking recall of order of interim maintenance stating that his marriage with appellant was void on ground at time of said marriage appellant was already married to one RKM by showing certificate of marriage issued by competent authority u/Sec.13 of Special Marriage Act - Trial Court rejected said Application on ground that notwithstanding certificate issued u/Sec.13, proof of existence of conditions enumerated in Sec.15 of Act would still required to be adduced and only thereaftrer certificate issued u/Sec.13 of Act can be held to be valid - Respondent/husband filed Revisions against said order - High Court disposed of both writ petition and revision by impugned common order holding that appellant was not legally wedded wife of respondent and not entitled to maintenance granted by Court below - Appellant/wife filed present appeals against order of High Court - Appellant denied allegation of earlier marriage and even if that marriage between appellant and respondent to be void, parties having lived together, a relationship in nature of marriage had existed which will entitle appellant to claim and receive maintenance under DV Act - Respondent-husband contends that object behind insertion of expression "relationship in nature of marriage" in Sec.2(f) of D.V. Act is to protect women who have been misled into marriage by males spouse by concealment of factum of earlier marriage of husband and that Act is a beneficial piece of legislation which confers protection of different kinds to women who have been exploited or milsed into marriage - In present case, situation is however, otherwise - From marriage certificate it is clear that appellant was already married to one RKM which fact was known to her but not to respondent - Second marriage which is void and also gives rise to a bigamous relationship was voluntarily entered into by appellant without knowledge of husband and therefore appellant not entitled to any of benefits under DV Act - In fact grant of maintenance in present case would amount to conferment of benefit and protection to wrong doer which would go against avowed object of Act -In this case, admittedly both appellant and respondent are governed by provisions of Hindu Marriage Act - Sec.11 of Hindu Marriage Act makes it clear that marriage solemnised after commencement of Act "shall be null and void and may on a petition presented by either party there to against other party, be so declared by a decree of nullity if it contravenes any one of conditions so specified in clause (i) (iv) and (v) of Sec.5" - Though law specifically does not caste obligation on either party to seek declaration of nullity of marriage and it may be open to parties even without recouse to Court to treat marriage as nullity such course is neither prudent nor intended and a declaration in terms of Sec.11 of Hindu Marriage will have to be asked for, for purpose of precaution and/or record - Therefore until declaration contemplated by Sec.11 is made by competent Court, women with whom second marriage is solemnized continues to be wife within meaning of Sec.494 IPC and would be entitled to maintain complaint against her husband - It is only upon a declaration of nullity or annulment of marriage between parties by competent Court that any consideration of question whether parties had lived in a "relationship in the nature of marriage" would be justified - In absence of any valid decree of nullity or necessary declaration Court will have to proceed on footing that relationship between parties is one of marriage and not in nature of marriage - In present case, until invalidation of marriage between appellant and respondent is made by competent Court it would only be correct to proceed on basis that appellant continues to be wife of respondent so as to entitle her to claim all benefits and protection available under D.V Act - Interference made by High Court with grant of maintenance in favour of appellant, not at all justified - Impugned order passed by High Court, set aside - Appeals, allowed. Deoki Panjhiyara Vs. Shashi Bhushan Narayan Azad 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 89 = 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.)

PROTECTION OF WOMEN FROM DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ACT, 2005:

PROTECTION OF WOMEN FROM DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ACT, 2005:

62 = 2013(1) ALD (Crl) 469 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 168 = 2013 Cri. LJ 684 (SC) = AIR 2013 SC 346.

—Secs.2(a), 2(f), 12, 14, 16 and 22 - HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, Secs.5 and 7 - Contents of the complaint would clearly go to show that the first respondent is very much aware that the petitioner was a married person - First respondent is entitled to contract second marriage after 10-11-2009 only in view of judgment and decree passed in O.P.No. 4 of 2009 - In order to constitute a valid marriage under Hindu law, the parties to the marriage have to satisfy the conditions stipulated u/Sec.5 of the Hindu Marriage Act - A married woman marrying another married man during the subsistence of their marital tie with their respective spouses is not valid one - Likewise, a divorced woman is not entitled to marry a man whose marital ties is in subsistence - Even as per the provisions of the Hon'ble Apex Court, relationship between petitioner and first respondent will not come within the purview of 'relationship in the nature of marriage' as defined u/Sec.2(f) of the DVC Act - In the absence of domestic relationship between the petitioner and the first respondent, the first respondent will not be recognised as an 'aggrieved person' as defined u/Sec.2(a) of the Act and this Court has no hesitation to hold the first respondent is not an aggrieved person to claim any relief under the provisions of the Domestic Violence Act against the petitioner - Court can quash the proceedings if the allegations made in complaint are inherently improbable and if continuation of proceedings would amount to abuse of process of court - In the instant case, the allegations made in the complaint are bereft of the basic ingredients of clauses (a), (f) and (s) of Sec.2 of the Act - For the foregoing reasons Court comes to considered view that continuation of proceedings against petitioner is nothing but abuse of process of law and hence liable to be quashed -Criminal Petition is allowed and proceedings against petitioner are hereby quashed. Somarapu Satyanarayana Vs. Vijaya Lakshmi 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 80 = 2015(1) ALT (Crl) 306 (AP) = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 361.

—Secs.2(q),18,19(a) & (b) and 20 (1)(d) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482, - Petition filed for quashing proceedings in DVC filed by 2nd respondent against her husband and parents-in-law for compensation alleging domestic violence - Contention that DVC against petitioners is not maintainable in view of definition of "respondent" in Sec.2(q) of Act, but same can be filed only against any adult male person but not against female persons - 'Respondent' under 2 (q) of Act - Defined - Definition of respondent would clearly go to show that any adult male person can only be shown as respondent when aggrieved person has sought any relief under Act - Proviso which has an expanded meaning, says that when aggrieved wife or female living in a relationship in nature of marriage may also file a complaint against relative of husband or male partner - Complainant shall be necessarily be a woman and respondent also shall necessarily be a male except in cases where complainant is a wife, respondent may be a female relative of husband or male partner - Act do not exclude women altogether in a proceeding initiated under Act - "Respondent" as defined u/Sec.2(q) of Act includes a female relative of husband depending upon nature of reliefs claimed against respondent in DVC. Afzalunnisa Begum Vs. The State of A.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 204 = 2009(2) ALD (Crl) 155(AP) = 2009(2) ALT(Crl) 204 (AP).

PROTECTION OF WOMEN FROM DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ACT, 2005:

—Sec.12, 5 & 9 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Complainant, aggrieved woman filed application u/Sec.12 of Act - Magistrate returned same with an endorsement that complaint is to be filed before Project Officer - Sec.12 is very clear that an aggrieved person or a Protection Officer or any other person on behalf of aggrieved may present Application to Magistrate and said provision does not say that unless an aggrieved person approaches Protection Officer, she cannot file Application u/Sec.12 of Act - Duties of Police Officers and service providers are envisaged u/Sec.5 of Act and u/Sec.9 of Act Protection Officers have to assist Magistrate in discharge of his functions under provisions of Act - Magistrate may utilize service of Protection Officer and call for a report under provisions of Act - Impugned order of Magistrate is without jurisdiction and same is liable to be set aside - Magistrate directed to entertain application filed by petitioner in accordance with law - Criminal petition, allowed. M.Jayamma Vs. State of AP 2012(1) Law Summary 147 = 2012(2) ALD(Crl) 284 (AP) = 2012(2) ALT (Crl) 170 (AP).

—Secs.18 and 22 - All these Criminal Petitions are filed u/Sec.482 of Code of Criminal Procedure seeking to quash the proceedings in respect of Domestic Violence Cases - Held, in view of the remedies which are civil in nature and enquiry is not a trial of criminal case, the quash petitions u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C on the plea that the petitioners are unnecessarily arrayed as parties are not maintainable. It is only in exceptional cases like without there existing any domestic relationship as laid down u/Section 2(f) of the D.V. Act between the parties, the petitioner filed D.V. case against them or a competent court has already acquitted them of the allegations which are identical to the ones levelled in the Domestic Violence Case, the respondents can seek for quashment of the proceedings since continuation of the proceedings in such instances certainly amounts to abuse of process of court - In that view, when the present Criminal Petitions are perused, except Crl.P.No. 7289 of 2014, the other petitions are filed with the plea that there is no domestic violence and the petitioners were unnecessarily roped in the case. Hence, they are held not maintainable and accordingly dismissed. Giduthuri Kesari Kumar Vs. State of Telangana 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 486 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 470.

—Secs.19 & 12 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.39, r/w Sec.150 - Petitioner -wife filed Application before family Court seeking injunction against her husband from dispossessing her from suit schedule property relying on Sec.19 of Domestic Violence Act, contending that said property purchased out of funds given by her family members, in name of respondent/husband - Respondent-husband contends that he purchased schedule property by raising house loan from bank and he is ready to provide alternative accommodation to petitioner - Family Court dismissed petition directing respondent to pay certain amount to wife towards rent - Sec.19 of Act, has to be read along with 12 - Certain reliefs are provided under Sec.19 (2) while disposing of Application under Sec.12(1) and Magistrate can order with respect of possession of household - A sine qua non for order u/Sec.19 is an Application u/Sec.12 before Magistrate and Magistrate has to satisfy himself before passing order u/Sec.19 that domestic violence has taken place - In a suit pending before Family Court, no such relief could be sought as requirements for issue of injunction under Or.39 of CPC are altogether different than requirements u/Sec.19 of Act and that law has provided different fora for different remedies - Revision, dismissed. M.Nirmala Vs. Dr.Gandla Balakotaiah 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 224.

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT:

—Secs.20,22,23 & 26(3) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - 2nd respondent/ wife filed petition against petitioners, husband and in-laws contending that she was alleged to be attempted to be killed by setting fire to cooking gas and petitioners were alleged to be abusing her in filthy language and to be not even attending to her medical need during sickness and that police registered crime u/Sec.498A r/w Sec.307 of IPC against petitioners - Petitioners contend that Magistrate taking cognizance of domestic violence case and proceeding with it is subject of challenge by petitioners that OP on file of senior civil Judge at instance of 2nd respondent for divorce and for a permanent alimony and return of of gold jewelry ended in order on merits directing 3rd petitioner husband to pay Rs.10 lakhs towards value of jewelry etc., and that relief claimed in domestic violence case and in G.P is identical concerning refund of amount paid at time of marriage and competent civil Court adjudicated matter, and domestic violence case is an abuse of process of law and therefore further proceedings in DVC to be quashed - In this case, in so far as reliefs claimed in Domestic Violence Case are concerned, they cover claim towards loss of earning and monetary relief u/Sec.20(2) of act towards maintenance and compensation u/Sec.20(2) of Act are on face of them not such as a case be considered to be not maintainable under provisions of Sec.20 & 22 of Act - Therefore claims to be left for adjudication byMagistrate on merits on evidence of parties than in a summary proceedings like present one restricted to considering applicability of Sec.482 Cr.P.C to take court to inherent powers of High Court to quash proceedings against petitioners - Therefore reliefs claimed in domestic violence case have to be determined on merits in according with law by Magistrate - Therefore further proceedings in DVC No.1 of 2006 on file of Magistrate are quashed in respect of claims made in Annexure C to E annexed to domestic violence petition without prejudice to any other remedies - Petitioners 1 to 3 can apply to trial Court for dispensing with their personal appearance and all future dates of hearing - Trial Court shall also positively consider any request by 3rd petitioner/husband for dispensing with his personal presence on any specific dates of hearing due to his personal obligation. K.Veerabhadra Rao Vs. State 2012(1) Law Summary 8 = 2012(1) ALD(Crl) 761 (AP) = 2012(2) ALT (Crl) 209 (AP).

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT:

—Secs.5 &68 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.1, Rule 10 - Petitioner filed IP against respondents 2 to 4, attached their properties and brought one item for sale - Since

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT:

1st defendant became highest bidder he deposited amount and sale deed executed - Petitioner filed Application to set aside sale on ground that property already sold much before I.P filed - Trial court allowed Application filed by 1st respondent under Or.1, Rule 10 to add him as party - Petitioner contends 1st respondent is already pursuing remedy u/Sec.68 of Act and that Sec.5 of Act excludes applicability of Or.1, Rule 10 to proceedings - Respondent contends that since there is no provision under Act to enable a party to get impleaded in proceedings under Act, Or.1, Rule 10 is very much applicable and that in an Application filed for withdrawal of money deposited by 1st respondent he is necessary party - The effort of 1st respondent to ensure that amount is not withdrawn at least till Application filed by him is disposed of cannot be treated as without basis and if Act provided for any facility through which 1st respondent can become a party to Application, Application filed under Or.1, Rule 10 can certainly be rejected by placing reliance upon Sec.5 of Act - However no such provision is cited - In that view of matter it cannot be said that in facts and circumstances of case, Application under Or.1, Rule 10 CPC is excluded - CRP, dismissed. Poluru Venkata Ratnam Vs. Mandava Venkateswara Rao 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 378 = 2009(5) ALD 251 = AIR 2009 AP 197 = 2009(6) ALT 239.

—Secs.6,9,11 & 13 - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.53 - Creditors I.P - Respondents 1 to 4 filed I.P contending that appellant 5th respondent borrowed substantial amounts from them and to avoid payment he has executed collusive sale deeds in favour of appellant and also in favour of 6th respondent in respect of two items in B schedule - Trial Court allowed I.P and adjudged 5th respondent as insolvent - District Judge dismissed appeal preferred by appellant and 6th respondent - Appellant contends that he is a bona fide purchaser for valuable consideration from 5th respondent and that even assuming that there existed circumstances to adjudge 5th respondent as insolvent, property purchased by appellant ought not to have made subject-matter of proceedings and that appellant not aware of indebtedness of his vendor and he cannot be penalized - In this case, no evidence either oral or documentary was adduced by appellant or respondents 5 & 6 - For all practical purposes trial Court was left with no alternative, except to order I.P, as prayed for, since virtually there was no resistance by appellant and respondents 5 & 6 - By date of sale of property in favour of petitioner and 6th respondent took place, there was no decree against 5th respondent - That however hardly makes any difference - Act is comprehensive enactment, aimed at merely protecting interest of creditors and for equitable distribution of resources that are available with an insolvent - Act enables Court to proceed against all properties that are held by insolvent or for fraudulently transferred - Apart from provisions of Sec.53 of T.P Act, aims at neutralizing plans of fraudulent transfers that are brought into existence to defeat claims of creditors - Courts below have appreciated matter from correct perspective - No substantive question of law arises for consideration in this second appeal - If appellant clears debts due to respondents 1 to 4 it shall be open to them to approach trial Court to modify decree passed by it suitably - Second appeal, dismissed. G.Raju Krishna Vs. P.Rama Devi 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 255.

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT:

—Sec.6(1)(b),9,53,54 r/w Sec.4 - Additional District Judge, in A.S.No. 124 of 2007 delivered judgment adjudging the 1st respondent as an insolvent having found that he had committed an act of insolvency under S. 6(1) (b) of the Provincial Insolvency Act - The respondents preferred the present appeal against the judgment - Held, the trial court exercised its jurisdiction to annul the original of Ex.A-4-Gift deed simultaneously, along with adjudging the 1st appellant herein as insolvent while deciding the petition filed under S.9 of the Act without any application under Ss. 53,54 read with S.4 of the Act, the question of filing application by the Official Receiver will also arise only when the creditors whose debts as per the procedure in Part III and Section 54A of the Act - However, the trial Court simultaneously passed an order annulling the transaction covered by original of Ex.A4 without complying the procedure contemplated under Section 54A of the Act - Therefore, the order passed by the trial Court, confirmed by the appellate Court regarding annulment of original of Ex.A4 is erroneous on the face of it and in view of the law laid down by this Court and other Courts - In view of the foregoing discussion, the trial Court and the appellate Court committed an error in adjudging the first appellant as insolvent and in annulling the transaction covered by original of Ex.A4 and consequently, the orders passed by both the Courts are hereby set aside - Appeal is allowed. Gounda Mohammed Vs. Shaik Sabhb 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 584 = 2015(6) ALD 166.

—Sec.9 - GENERAL CLAUSE ACT, Sec. 35(3) - Limitation - Application filed by appellant to declare respondents Nos.1 & 2 as insolvents on ground that 1st respondent borrowed money from appellant and respondents 1 & 2 have transferred properties to defeat his rights and therefore an act of insolvency was committed - Lower Court allowed Application - District Judge allowed appeal on legal aspect that application is barred by time without going other merits of contention of 1st respondent - Appellant contends that order of lower Court holding that application barred by limitation is not correct - Admittedly as per provisions of Sec.9 of Act application to declare a person as insolvent shall be filed within period of three months from date of insolvency - In this case, evidently act of insolvency is on 8-6-2001 and application was filed on 7-9-2001 - Lower appellate Court has considered period of limitation is 90 days and consequently, application having been filed after period of 90 days is barred by limitation - Calculation made by lower appellate Court in considering period of limitation not proper - There is nothing in provisions u/Sec.9 of Act period of limitation is 90 days - As per Sec.3, sub-sec.(35) of General Clause Act “month” shall mean a month reckoned according to British Calendar and therefore it is not 90 days that has taken to be taken into consideration - Evidently months July and August have got 31 days and consequently, number of days in that month is not criterion and months alone is criterion - Therefore in view of above circumstances, judgment of lower appellate Court holding that petition was beyond period of limitation is not proper and is liable to be set aside - Appeal, allowed. K.Konda Reddy Vs. K.Thirupalamma 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 128 = 2011(6) ALD 527.

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT:

—Secs.9, 53 & 54 - Respondent Nos.2 and 3 in I.P.No.26 of 2004 on the file of Additional Senior Civil Judge, preferred this appeal questioning the judgment and decree in A.S.No.16 of 2009 passed by Additional District Judge, dated 29.04.2011 - Held, by date of filing petition, seeking annulment u/Secs.53 or 54 of the Act, petitioner was not even adjudged as insolvent - So, first condition was not satisfied - Petitioner did not approach the Official Receiver and proved his debt as contemplated under Part-III of the Act and complied Sec.54-A of the Act - Thereby, order annulling sale transaction covered by sale deeds dated 10.03.2004 vide document Nos.2605 of 2004 and 2606 of 2004 passed by trial Court as confirmed by the appellate Court, is erroneous ex facie and contrary to provisions of Act - Hence, orders of trial Court and appellate Court to extent of annulling sale deeds dated 10.03.2004 vide document Nos.2605 of 2004 and 2606 of 2004, is illegal and same is liable to be set aside - Accordingly, Appeal is allowed in part and order of the trial Court and appellate Court to extent of annulling sale deeds dated 10.03.2004 vide document Nos.2605 of 2004 and 2606 of 2004 is hereby set aside while confirming order adjudging first respondent as insolvent. Tadikamalla Venkata Ramana Kishore Vs. Padarthi Santhakumari 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 361

—Secs.28(1) & (2), 9 and 10 - Petitioner filed suit against 1st respondent/father and respondent 2,3 & 4, sons - Suit decreed - Item of immovable property namely, house was attached and steps initiated for sale of property by filing E.P - 1st respondent raised objection in E.P stating that he filed I.P and that all properties of a person declared as insolvent have to be handedover to Official Liquidator and if so advised, petitioner has to seek enforcement of decree in accordance with provisions of Act - Executing Court sustained objection, raised attachment and dismissed E.P by recording a finding that respondents donot have any saleble interest in schedule property - Hence, present Revision - SEC.28(2) OF P.I. ACT - It is evident that once an order of adjudication is passed by Court declaring person as insolvent, entire property of person so declared shall vest in Court or Receiver and shall become devisable among creditors - Order passed in I.P. filed u/sec.9 of Act by creditor cannot be equated to one passed in an I.P filed u/Sec.10 of Act by debtor himself, when it comes to question of consequences provided for u/Sec.28 of Act - Any other different approach would tantamount to give a licence to a debtors to arrange for filing of a collusive O.P u/Sec.10 of Act by fictitious persons and to block all efforts made by real creditors by taking shelter u/Sec.28(2) of Act - Order in I.P would utmost, galvanize 1st respondent - It is not in dispute that respondent 2 to 4 are equally judgment debtors and they had their own right vis-a-vis property, which was sought to be sold - View taken by executing Court - Unsustainable - Impugned order of executing Court, set aside - Revision allowed- Executing Court directed to proceed with sale of attached item of property. Pulipati Anjaneyulu Vs. Polepalli Subbaiah 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 253 = 2013(1) ALD 293 = 2013(3) 291.

RAILWAYS ACT, 1989,

PUBLIC PREMISES (EVICTION OF UNAUTHORISED OCCUPATIONS) ACT, 1971:

—Secs.2(c)& (e), 5-A (1) and (2) & 15 - Respondent Estates Officer A.P.D., Airports Authority passed order u/Sec.5-A (2) for removal of flat in residential complex belonging to petitioner without considering her explanation - Petitioner contends that she availed loan from Bank and having paid said amount to vendor she got constructed flat and is in possession - Respondent issued notice stating that land in S.No.15 acquired for establishment of Airport by then Civil Aviation Department by paying compensation and said land is now in possession of Airport Authority as such land in S.No.15 is public premises and is encroached by Archana apartments - Petitioner contends that as much as apartment is constructed in S.No.19 but not in S.No.15 as claimed by respondents, it is beyond scope of provisions contained under Public Premises Act and that in view of long standing possession of vendor of petitioner and petitioner after constructing of flat in question, and if there is any claim by respondent authority it is for them to approach competent civil Court to establish their claim but at same time, they cannot pass any order unilaterally presuming that property in question is "public premises' within meaning of Secs.2(e) of Act - Having regard to object of Legislation, it is not intended to decide complicated questions of title and possession, and if respondents are having any right over land in question it is for them to approach competent civil Court to establish title - In this case, notices of demand for assessment, issued right from year 1982 and there is also an enquiry notice with regard to non assessment of property tax issued to vendor of petitioner in 1982 and very same premises was assessed to property tax in name of petitioner's vendor under provisions of Hyderabad Municipal Corporation Act - Having regard to objective of said Legislation and provisions contained therein, it is designed and intended for ordering eviction and removal of encroachments in cases where there is dispute with regard to title and possession of property in question - But in cases where there is bona fide dispute with regard to title/boundaries of land belonged to Govt. or its Companies such disputes are out side scope of said Legislation - Said piece of Legislation never intended to give its authorities power to decide such complicated question of title dispute so as to decide same by passing order u/Sec.5 of Act - But, when there is a dispute with regard to title and possession of very public premises, bar created u/Sec.15 of Act would not come in way of respondents to seek declaration with regard to title and possession, in event of any disputes with regard to boundaries of public properties - Respondents are not empo-wered to decide such complicated questions of title and possession - Impugned orders issued u/Sec.5(a)(2) of Act against petitioners are quashed - Writ petitions, allowed. T.Satya Suguna Devi Vs. Estates Officer & A.P.D. Hyderbad 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 203.

RAILWAYS ACT, 1989,

—"Untoward incident" - Bona fide passenger - Deceased aged 35 years while travelling in general compartment of train fell down in station on account of sudden jerk and died of multiple injuries - Railway Claims Tribunal awarded compensation of Rs.4 lakhs to claimants - Appellant/Railways contend that deceased was not a bona fide passenger and he fell down from train on account of his own negligence and carelessness and that no ticket was recovered from deceased and that finding recorded by Tribunal that deceased was bona fide passenger is not supported by evidence - Respondent contends that deceased died in horrrible condition having been run over by train in precincts of Station itself and it is difficult expect ticket with him and that very fact that deceased travelled full length of journey discloses that he was a bona fide passenger and that appellant did not plead any acts of negligence or lack of prudence on part of deceased much less proved same - It is no doubt true that no ticket was recovered from dead body of deceased - Recovery of ticket from body of deceased who died in untoward incident, would certainly prove beyond any doubt that he was a bona fide passenger - However, mere absence thereof does not by itself lead to conclusion to contrary - In this case untoward incident occurred at destination of deceased - Therefore finding recorded by Tribunal in this regard does not warrant interference.

RAILWAYS ACT, 1989,

CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE - Necessary facts that constitute negligence or lack of proper care must not only be pleaded but also be proved by railway administration - No such effort was made by appellant - Since provisions are in nature of social security measures even where two views are possible one that is beneficial to victims must be adopted - Order of Tribunal justified - Appeal, dismissed - Cross-objections, allowed. Union of India Vs. V. Santhabai, 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 183.

—Secs.23 & 124A - Tribunal allowed the claim petition in toto by awarding an amount of Rs.4.00 lakhs as compensation to the applicants - Held, No rebuttal evidence was let in by respondent to demolish stand of applicants that deceased died of untoward incident - Absolutely there is no material on record to establish that death of deceased would fall within Proviso (c) to Sec.124-A of Act - In the above factual scenario, it is not possible to arrive at a conclusion that deceased committed offence punishable under Section 156 of the Act - Having regard to facts and circumstances of case and also principles enunciated in cases cited, High Court considered view that respondent failed to establish negligent act or lack of prudence on part of deceased so as to exonerate its liability by taking aid of Clauses (b) or (c) of Proviso to Sec.124-A of the Act - For the foregoing reasons, it is to be held that death of deceased was due to untoward incident, but not due to his own criminal act or self-negligence, and that respondent is liable to pay compensation to applicants - The Tribunal has assigned cogent and valid reasons to its findings - There are no grounds much less valid grounds to interfere with the well considered order of the Tribunal - In result, appeal is dismissed. Union of India Vs. Koyya Malli Naidu (A.P.) 190

—Secs.123,124-A, 125 - "Untoward incident" - "Jerk of train" - Deceased while alighting from train fell down due to jerk of train and sustained injuries and succumbed to injuries on same day - Tribunal granting compensation of Rs.4 lakhs to claimants - Contention that deceased attempted to alight from train before coming to halt on platform and thereby fell down which amounts to self inflicted injuries and Railways not liable to pay compensation - Respondents/claimants contend that deceased fell down because of jerk resulting after brakes applied to train and therefore it cannot be categorized as self inflicted injury as enumerated in proviso to Sec.124(A) - UNTOWARD INCIDENT - Meaning of - In this case, appellant/Railways did not adduce any evidence that jolt of train after reaching platform is a usual one - In absence of such evidence, it cannot be termed that a jolt of train after reaching platform is a usual one - Deceased sustained injuries in an untoward incident for which he succumbed - Order of Tribunal - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Union of India Vs. M. Siva Parvati 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 71 = 2008(3) ALD 347 = 2008(3) ALT 829 = AIR 2008 AP 145.

—Sec.124-A - RAILWAYS CLAIMS TRIBUNAL ACT, Sec.23 - "Bona fide passenger" - "Untoward incident" - Deceased while travelling in express train by purchasing ticket fell down near Gooty Railway Station on account of heavy jerk and came under wheels and his two legs have been cut and died - Respondent/Railways contends that though deceased was bona fide passenger he died on account of his own negligence - Tribunal dismissed O.A holding that death occurred on account of attempt made by deceased to get down moving train - Appellants contend that view taken by Tribunal that deceased was guilty of offence punishable u/Sec.124-A of Railways Act would only reflect perversity with which matter was examined - In ordinary course, when bona fide passenger suffers injuries or dies in course of travel a presumption is to be drawn that it is on account of untoward incident - It is only when Railways plead specific facts that constitutes contributory negligence on part of such passenger, that a different view can be taken - In this case, only basis for respondent/Railways to plead that deceased died on account of his attempt to get down from moving train is evidence of P.W.1 who is S.I of Police and his statement cannot be taken on its value unless it is corroborated by any independent witness and for best reasons known to it, respondent did not examine any independent witnesses - It is not at all safe to rest conclusion on basis of statement made by Police Official to Court - Tribunal did not at all view matter from angle, in which provision was enacted - On other hand, its discussion centered around penal provision viz., Sec.124-A of Act and went to extent of observing that deceased was guilty of committing a crime, of trespassing in to railway track - There cannot be better instance of perversity, than this - Circumstance of case clearly indicate that deceased is a bona fide passenger and he died on account untoward incident - Appellants are entitled to be paid compensation of Rs.4 lakhs - Appeal, allowed. Ramavatu Decamma Vs. Union of India, 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 219 = 2011(5) ALD 27.

RECORDS OF RIGHTS:

—Form-VIA - Petitioner purchased land under Registered sale deeds in the year 2001 tracing out title to property referring to Registered sale transactions of years 1975 and 1998, and filed Forum-VIA for mutation of her name in record of rights in respect of said land – R3/Tahsildar, rejected Application filed by petitioner on ground that it is Government land and it is covered by laoni-patta – Hence present Writ Petition - Petitioner assailed said order stating that subject land is neither Government land nor covered by laoni-patta and also referred by circumstances of granting of Pattadar Pass Books of her vendor to buttress her claim that subject land is private land – Petitioner also filed copies of sale deeds of years 1975, 1978 and 2001 which proved sale transactions are registered without any objection by registering Authority and she also filed copy of Pattadar Pass Books and Title Deeds issued infavour of her vendor - In this case R3/Tahsildar failed to substantiate subject land was covered by laoni-patta – Even assuming that land was originally assigned under laoni-paatta, unless said patta contains a condition prohibiting alienation, assignee under such patta is entitled to sell land - In this case R3/Tahsildar not pleaded in counter-affidavit that purported laoni-patta contained any conditions against alienation - In the absence of any finding that patta contained condition against alienation very invocation of provisions of Act 9 of 1997 is wholly without jurisdiction - In this case, registered sale transactions taken as many as 3 occasions and the Pattadar Pass Books and Title Deeds are granted to petitioner's predecessors, would establish that subject land was treaded as a free hold land – Having allowed parties to sell property from time to time, respondents have acquiesced in raising plea that subject land belongs to Government Land at this length of time – Impugned proceedings of R3/Tahsildar set aside and R3 directed to mutate name of petitioner in respect of subject land and issue Pattadar Pass Books and Title Deeds – Writ Petition Allowed. Sunkara Sujana Vs. District Collector, Ranga Reddy District 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 257 = 2014(3) ALD 70 = 2014(2) ALT 1.

RECOVERY OF DEBTS DUE TO BANKS AND FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS ACT, 1993

—Secs.1, 18,31,34,19(6) - "Jurisdiction of civil Court" - Plaintiff/Bank filed suit for recovery of amount of Rs.5,01,129/- from defendants basing on equitable mortgage - Defendants filed suit against plaint/Bank for rendition of accounts, recovery of rent and for eviction of plaintiff/Bank - Trial Court by its judgment adjusted claim of Bank from arrears of rent allegedly payable by Bank as tenant to defendants and consequently dismissed suit filed by plaintiff/Bank and decreed suit filed by defendants, directing Bank to pay Rs.7,70,194/- - Division Bench of High Court set aside decree of trial Court and remitted matters back for fresh trial directing trial Court to permit both parties to adduce further evidence and dispose of suits afresh - JURISDICTION - Sec.1 of Act lays down that Tribunal shall have jurisdiction where debt due to bank or financial institution is Rs.10 lakshs or more - Sec.31 lays down that every suit or other proceeding pending in a Court immediately before date of establishment of Tribunal shall stand transferred toTribunal - A bar is created u/Sec.18 excluding jurisdiction of civil Courts in respect of all matters which come under purview of Tribunal - Sec.34 of Act lays down that Act of 1993 shall have over riding effect, over other enactments - In instant case, trial Court passed decree on 30-12-1999 in favour of defendants for an amount of Rs.7,70,194/- - Suit filed by plaintiff was instituted in 1979 where as suit filed by defendants was instituted in year 1981 - No doubt according to proviso of Sub-sec.(1) of Sec.37, provisions relating to transfer shall have no Application to any appeal pending before any Court - However when once matter is remanded by appellate Court setting aside decree passed by trial Court, original suit automatically revives - Once suit is revived, it must, in eye of law, be deemed to be pending before beginning when it was instituted - Suit cannot be treated has one freshly instituted on date of remand order - Otherwise serious questions as to limitations would arise - Since trial Court has not properly addressed issues based on rival contentions matter has to be remitted back to trial Court for fresh disposal according to law - Defendants shall not be deprived of their right to get their suit adjudicated by civil Court - Judgment and decree of trial Court, set aside and matters remanded to trial Court for disposal afresh according to law after affording opportunity to both parties to adduce further evidence. Bank of India Vs. Vegi Venkateswara Rao & Brothers 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 153.

—Sec. 2(g) - JURISDICTION OF DRT — Stated - Appellant-Company entered into agreement with respondents 2 & 3 granting licence in their favour to use premises for certain consideration payable to appellant, along with plant and machinery - Appellant had no knowledge of fact that respondents 2 & 3 had availed certain cash credit facility and hypothecated material and stock to Bank - Appellant took possession of factory premises along with machinery and stock - Respondents also requested appellants that stock should be sold and adjusted towards licence fee and surplus money should be refunded - Bank filed suit against appellants and respondents 2 & 3 and obtained ex parte judgment since appellant did not appear before Tribunal - Tribunal declined to set aside ex parte decree - Order of Tribunal was neither interfered by High Court nor by Supreme Court in SLP preferred by appellant - Appellant filed another application for setting aside decree on ground that Tribunal had no jurisdiction - Appellate Tribunal allowed application accepting contention raised on behalf of appellant on ground that it is claim for damages in tort and was not a 'debt' and also that it was beyond jurisdiction vested in Tribunal u/Sec.17 (1) of Recovery Act - It cannot be said that stand of High Court to be erroneous, of course to some, extent entire suit could not have been decreed against appellant - Cause of action in favour of Bank and against appellant, at best could be limited to hypothecated stock and goods - In this case, it appears that Bank is acting in a manner which is ex facie not in consonance with commercial principles and in a most causal and irresponsible manner - Appellant contends that there was no privity of contract and they were not covered under definition of "debt" and as such, recovery proceedings would not be initiated , much less recovery could be effected from them under provisions of Recovery Act.

"Debt" - Defined - (a) Any liability;

(b) claim as due from any person;

(c) during course of any business action activity under by Bank;

(d) where secured or unsecured

(e) and lastly legally recoverable.

Word "debt" under Sec.2(g) of Recovery Act is incapable of being given a restricted and narrow meaning - In present case, Bank had admittedly granted financial assistance to respondents 2 & 3 who in turn had hypothecated goods plant and machinery in favour of Bank - Goods in question have been sold by appellant without consent of Bank - Claim raised by Bank falls within ambit and scope of Sec.2(g) of Recovery Act and jurisdiction of Tribunal cannot be ousted - Scheme of Recovery Act and language of its various provisions imposes an obligation upon banks to ensure proper, expeditious recovery of its dues and in present there is certainly ex facie failure of statutory obligation on part of Bank and it Officers/Officials - Appellants liable to pay to respondents Bank value of hypothecated stock sold by appellant - Appeal, partially allowed. Eureka Forbes Ltd., Vs. Allahabad Bank 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 120.

—Secs.2(g), 17 & 19 - SECURITASATION AND RECONSTRUCTION OF FINANCIAL ASSETS AND ENFORCEMENT OF SECURITY INTEREST ACT, 2002, Sec.2(ha) - Petitioners operating accounts at 1st respondent Bank and are allowed an overdraft facility - 1st respondent/Bank filed O.As. before Debt Recovery Tribunal against petitioners and 2nd respondent/Officer loans who acted with mala fide intention and committed fraud in connivance with petitioner and other customers - After filing written statements in O.As when matter came up for defence side evidence, petitioners filed I.As to frame preliminary issue with regard to maintainability of O.As before Tribunal and dispose of same on merits by returning for presentation before proper Court for disposal - Tribunal dismissed I.As stating that not only employee but also customer involved in misappropriation of amount in all cases and since this is a liability from employee as well as customer O.As are maintainable - Petitioners contend that limited jurisdiction conferred on Tribunal cannot be enlarged to decide fraud, in view of fact fraud has been played by employee of 1st respondent/Bank i.e. 2nd respondent - Such power is exclusive jurisdiction of civil Court but not by Debt Recovery Tribunal - Issuance of bank drafts is clearly business activity of Bank - Essence of definition of "Debt" in Sec.2(g) of Act is existence of any liability founded on allegation as due from any person; only rider being that liability must be legally recoverable - In this case, respondent/Bank clearly mentioned in all O.As amounts which were credited to account of petitioners and withdrawn by them and demanded for refund of same with specific interest - On failure to reimburse amounts which were withdrawan by petitioners on crediting to respective amounts, O.As were filed for recovery of amounts - Since proceeds are fraudulently deposited to credit of account of petitioners and later withdrawan by them in course of normal banking business, same falls within definition of 'Debt' - Hence jurisdiction of Tribunal not ousted - Writ petitions, dismissed. Lakkavajjula S.S.S. Prasad Vs. Oridential Bank of Commerce,Vijayawada 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 141.

—Sec.19 - Tribunal allowed O.A. and issued Recovery Certificate - Petition filed to set aside order of Tribunal and also Application for stay of recovery proceedings - Application for stay dismissed for default - Tribunal allowed Application and condoned delay in filing Application for setting aside order subject to condition of depositing one-tenth of O.A. claim within 15 days - Contention that condition imposed in impugned order for deposit of one-tenth of O.A claim should be declared arbitrary, stating that when Tribunal restored similar proceedings on payment of Rs. 300/- only, there is no justification to impose condition of deposit of 1/10th of O.A. claim for setting aside order - Undisputedly, the amount due from petitioner/borrower is about more than Rs.45 crores - Therefore discretion exercised by Tribunal in condoning delay caused in filing Application cannot be termed as arbitrary or perverse - In such matters superior Courts will always be extremely loath to interfere with discretion exercised by adjudicating bodies created under Special Acts - Writ petition, dismissed. Dr.Pinna N.R. Vs. M.G. Road, Branch,Secunderabad 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 201 = 2008(3) ALD 681.

—Sec.19 - STATE FINANCIAL CORPORATION ACT, 1951, Secs.29 & 31 - Appellant/ Bank sanctioned working capital loan to borrower Company for which respondent executed deed of personal guarantee - Since borrower Company committed default, appellant filed Application in High Court for attachment and sale of assets of borrower Company to which respondent was not made a party - Appellant filed Application against respondent u/ Sec.19 of Act in Tribunal, praying for issuance of Certificate against respondent for certain amount - Respondent also filed Application for stay of further proceedings in case filed by appellant on ground that rights of appellant against respondent as guarantor did not crystallize till rights of appellant against borrower Company are established - Tribunal dismissed Application filed by respondent holding that appellant cannot be forced to exhaust remedy elsewhere and then to proceed against guarantor and liability of guarantor is co-extensive with that of principal debtor - High Court allowed Application filed by respondent and stayed further proceedings in O.A filed by appellant against respondent - Appellant contends that liability of guarantor and principal debtor are co-extensive and not in alter native - SFC, ACT, SECS.29 & 31 - On a co-joint reading of Secs.29 & 31 it appears that in case of default in repayment of loan or any instalment or any advance or breach of agreement, Corporation has two remedies available to it against defaulting industrial concern, one under Sec.29 and another u/Sec.31 - Since Corporation must be held entitled and given full protection by Court to recover its dues it cannot be bound down to adopt only one of two remedies provided under Act and that doctrine of election is not applicable to this case - Liability of guarantor and principal debtors are co-extensive and not in alternative - High Court, not justified to stay further proceedings - Appeal, allowed. Industrial Investment Bank of India Ltd. Vs. Biswanath Jhunjhunwala 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 42.

—Sec.19 (20) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.34 - Respondent availed loan of Rs.3 crores from appellant, Bank by depositing title deeds with undertaking to repay with interest at PLR of petitioner/Bank+2% with quarterly rests in 72 monthly instalments - As respondent committed default and failed to regularize account, appellant filed O.A before DRT for recovery of amount together with interest pendente lite at 16% p.a with quarterly rests - DRT passed order declaining to grant interest pendente lite but granted post decree interest at 6% per annum - DRAT allowed appeal, to limited extent awarding lump sum interest of Rs.10 lakhs - Hence present writ petition by petitioner/Bank - Petitioner/Bank contends that DRT and DRAT as well were not judicious in their approach to matter of grant of interest pendente lite - Respondent availed loan for commercial purpose and defaulted on repayment schedule - Since respondents not responsive despite several appraisals, petitioner-Bank compelled to seek legal remedies and that neither total waiver of interest as directed by DRT, nor meager interest of Rs.10 lakhs as awarded by DRAT deserve acceptance and interst as agreed is liable to be awarded - Respondents contend that grant of interest pendente lite is a matter within discretion of Tribunal - Undisputedly term loan of Rs.600 lakhs was sanctioned, secured in equitable mortgage of immovable property of respondents and respondents availed said loan jointly and agreed to repay with interest at PLR of Bank+2% with quarterly rests in 72 monthly instalments - From a conjoint reading of observations in judgments and provisions of Sec.19(20) of Act, it is manifest that Tribunal is vested with power to grant interest pendente lite, but such power should be exercised fairly, judiciously and for reasons and not in any arbitrary or fanciful manner - In instant case payment of entire O.A. amount in lump sum after order was passed by DRT is hardly a reason and reasons are lacking as to why interest is limited to Rs.10 lakhs only and why plea of petitioner for agrred rate of interest was rejected - Therefore, impugned order of DRAT is unsustainable - Admittedly loan was for commercial purpose, therefore said loan cannot be treated on par with agricultural loan - By retention of commercial loan during pendency of O.A it is logical to infer that 1st respondent would have earned income from out of amout - Petitioner/Bank cannot be denied interest pendente lite - Petitioner/Bank is entitled for reasonable interest pendente lite - Hence respondent directed to pay simple interest at PLR of Bank without quarterly rests. Andhra Bank Vs. Valluripalli Nagarjun 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 438 = 2011(1) ALD 457 = 2011(2) ALT 202 = AIR 2011 (NOC) 190 (AP).

—Sec.29 - INCOME TAX ACT, 1961, Schedule - II, Rules, Rules 57, 58 - Loan advanced by Bank to Firm on basis of equitable mortgage of properties owned by partners of Firm by deposits of title deeds - Borrower having defaulted in paymen of loan amount respondent/Bank filed O.A. before DRDT - Tribunal passing ex parte decree - Recovery certificate issued in favour of Bank and that properties broought to sale in public auction in which appellants emerged as successful bidders - Appellate/ Tribunal set aside sale with direction to defendants/respondents to deposit entire amount claimed in O.A. - Aggrieved by orders passed by appellate Tribunal appellants/Auction purchasers filed writ petition before High Court which has been dismissed - High Court approached issues from a slightly different angle; for instead of going into question whether appellants were bona fide auction purchasers, it examined validity of auction itself and came to conclusion that auction conducted by Recoery Officers was illegal and void because of non-compliance with provisions of Rule 57 in Second Schedle of Income Tax Act, which were in view of provisions of Sec.29 of RDDB Act - Hence present appeal assails correctness of order passed by High Court - Appellant, contend that even if High Court would examine a ground other than one on which remand had been ordered, it failed to appreciate that provisions of Income Tax Rules set out in Second Schedule of I.T Act were applicable only “as far as possible” and with necessary modification - In this case, application filed by JDR for setting aside sale had been dismissed by Tribunal and inasmuch as there was no challenge to said dismissal order at any stage - High Court ought to have held that condition precedent for setting aside sale namely filing of proper applicaion was not satisfied thereby rendering sale in favour of appellants immune from any challenge or interference - Sec.29 of Act incorporates provisions of Rules found in Second Schedule to Income Tax Act for purpose of realization of dues by Recovery Officer under Act - It is note worthy that Income Tax Rules make provisions that do not strictly deal with recovery of Debts under Act - Such of Rules cannot possibly apply to recovery of debts under Act - Rules 86 and 87 under Income Tax Act do not have any Application to provisions of RDDB Act, while Rules 57 & 58 of said Rules in Second Schedule with process of recovery of amount due and present no difficulty in enforcing them for recoveries under RDDB Act - Contention that use of words "as far as possible" in Sec.29 is meant to give discretion to Recovery Officer to apply said Rules not to apply same in specific fact situations is rejected - It is therefore reasonable to hold that phrase "as far as possible" used in Sec.29 of RDDB Act, can at best mean that Income Tax Rules may not apply where it is not at all possible to apply them having regard to scheme and context of legislation - No reason to hold that Rules 57 and 58 of Income Tax Rules are anything but mandatory in nature, so that a breach of requirements under those Rules will render auction non est in eye of law - Appeal, dismissed. C.N. Paramsivan Vs. Sunrise Plaza TR. Partner, 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 134 = 2013(3) ALD 165 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 1036 = AIR 2013 SC 2941.

—Secs.29 & 30 - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.53 - INCOME TAX (CERTIFICATE PROCEEDINGS) RULES, Rule 11 - "Rights of 3rd party auction-purchaser" - Partnership Firm availed loan from Bank by mortgaging certain properties - Since loan amount not repaid, bank initiated recovery proceedings and attached a plot mortgaged to Bank belonging to one of partners - Recovery Officer passed order for sale of property by way of public auction - Since appellant was highest bidder, Recovery Officer ordered sale of property in his favour and handed over physical possession of property to appellant/auction purchaser and subsequently land in question also mutated in favour of auction-purchaser - Division Bench of High Court passed order in LPA filed by one of partners, objector Bank accepted to finally settled matter subject to condition that objector has to pay certain amount within a particular period and accordingly LPA was adjudicated - In this case, High Court finally concluded that proceedings before Recovery Officer were in flagrant violation of Provisions of Rule 11(2) of Income Tax Rules - Having so concluded High Court set aside proceedings conducted by Recovery Officer including sale of public auction - Appellant/auction purchaser assailed order passed by Division Bench of High Court in LPA, vehemantly contending that in terms of law declared by Supreme Court property purchased by 3rd party/auction-purchaser, in compliance of Court order cannot be interfered with on basis of success or failure of parties to proceeding, if auction purchaser had bonafidely purchased property - In any event, ordinarily a bonafide purchaser for value in auction sale is treated differently than a decree- holder purchasing such properties - In event, even if such a decree is set aside, interest of bonafide purchaser in an auction sale is saved - Law makes a clear distinction between stranger who is bona fide purchaser of property at an auction-sale and a decree-holder purchaser at Court auction - Strangers to decree are afforded protection by Court because they are not connected with decree - Unless protection is extended to them Court sales would not fetch market value or fair price of property - In present case, auction having been confirmed by Court it cannot be set aside unless some fraud or collusion has been proved - No fraud or collusion has been established by any one in this case - It is, therefore apparent that rights of auction-puchaser in property purchased by him cannot be extinguished except in cases where said purchase can be assailed on ground of fraud or collusion - The objection raised by respondent/partner ought to have been rejected on grounds of delay and latches especially because 3rd party rights had emerged in mean-time - More so, because auction purchaser was a bonafide purchaser for consideration having purchased property in furtherance of a duly publicized public auction - Interference by High Court even on grounds of equity is clearly uncalled for - Impugned order passed by High Court allowing LPA, set aside - Right of appellant/auction auction purchaser in the property confirmed - Appeal, allowed. Sadashiv Prasad Singh Vs. Harendar Singh 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 1 = 2014(3) ALD 120 (SC) = 2104 AIR SCW 1083 = AIR 2014 SC 1078.

—and INDIAN ELECTRICITY ACT, Sec.2(c) - General Terms and Conditions of (electricity) Supply, Condition No. 8.4 - Whether Petitioner, who purchased the property of defaulting sick Company under a registered sale deed from auction purchaser can be directed to pay electricity dues of the sick company?.

Held, the responsibility is cast on the seller to clear all dues before selling such property - However, said condition does not disable the Company from recovering dues when arrears become due and before Unit was sold - It is for respondent to take necessary steps for recovery of dues, and if it fails to do so, it cannot enforce same against the purchaser - There was no claim of respondents till petitioner applied for service connection but it was rejected by the respondents - In view of incapacity of seller to comply with Condition No.8.4 coupled with the fact of first respondent not taking steps to recover arrears and long silence till an application is made by the petitioner, order of rejection passed by third respondent is set aside - Writ Petition is allowed - Respondents are directed to continue the electricity supply to petitioner. Dhanalakshmi Iron Industries Vs. Central Power Distribution Co. of A.P. Ltd. 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 168 = 2014(6) ALD 129.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

— and STAMP ACT - "Release deed" - Unregistered, unstamped release deed - Defendants sought to mark document purports to speak about past transactions and that such past transactions in a document do not require registration - Trial Court passing docket order holding that document is admissible in evidence and not required compulsory registration - Petitioners/plaintiffs contend that document refers to past transaction but relates to releasing of rights as of to day and it is not a partition list or a document speaking about past transactions - Present document extinguished rights of executant over his share of joint family properties and consequently document is liable to stamp duty as well as registration - In present case past transactions have been referred to in document in question - However, main purport of document is present transaction of executant relinquishing his right in joint family properties and it being a case of transfer of property, document in question is compulsorily registerable - Docket order of trial Court - Unsustainable and accordingly set aside - CRP, allowed. Laxminarsamma Vs. N.Venkatreddy 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2013(4) ALD 607 = 2013(4) ALT 303.

– Secs.2(6) and 17 – TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec. 54 and Sec.6(c) – Plaintiff/ petitioner filed suit against defendants for declaration of right in schedule passage to reach his lands and for consequential injunctions restraining defendants from interfering with plaintiff's peaceful possession and enjoyment of right in regard to said passage and not to cause any obstruction for ingress and egress - During trial plaintiff intended for marking document in support of his claim in regard to plaint Schedule passage – Defendants raised objections for marking said document on ground that said document discloses an easement by way of passage and creates some interest in property, though no title and ownership are given and said document is inadmissible in evidence as it is unregistered – Trail court upheld objection raised on behalf of defendants and refused to admit said document in evidence - Hence plaintiff filed present Revision.

In this case, under this document license is granted to plaintiff to use same passage which was already in existence and which was provided for – Admittedly no title or ownership over said passage is created under document and created in favour of plaintiff who is beneficiary under the document and therefore in mind of court the document in question created no right in immovable property; and, only irrevocable permission was accorded under it to use existing passage by granting license so to say - Having regard to facts and reason, this court holds that order of court below is liable to be set aside – Trial court is directed to admit document in evidence provided plaintiff pays stamp duty and penalty, if any, payable and said document as per provisions applicable to transaction of license – CRP allowed accordingly. Dwara Satyanarayana Vs. Malladi Bhanumathi 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 82 = 2016(4) ALT 516 = 2016(3) ALD 505.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

Sec.17 - INDIAN STAMP ACT, 1899, Sec.2 (24) - SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1963, Sec.2 (b) - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882 - Unsuccessful plaintiff in O.S. on the file of Court of Subordinate Judge, preferred this appeal challenging decree and judgment, whereby and where under the suit filed by plaintiff for partition was dismissed.

Aggrieved by decree and judgment of trial Court, unsuccessful plaintiff preferred present appeal on various grounds mainly questioning validity of settlement letter marked as Ex.B4, which was withdrawn by issuing notice since defendants did not perform their part of obligation i.e. payment of balance of consideration agreed to be paid, but trial Court, on erroneous appreciation, dismissed the suit - It is further contended that trial Court, placing reliance on Ex.B4 without any registered document of relinquishment, accepted contention of defendants erroneously and negated claim of plaintiff - Ex.B4 letter does not convey or extinguish any right or liability of parties and, therefore, on strength of Ex.B4, plaintiff cannot be non-suited to claim share in schedule property - That apart, under Ex.B4, is still due and, in absence of payment of balance of amount agreed to be paid, claim of the plaintiff cannot be thrown out - However, trial Court, on erroneous appreciation of both fact and law, negated relief of partition without assigning any legal reasoning and prayed to allow appeal to set aside decree and judgment of trial Court and to pass preliminary decree for partition of schedule property into 7 equal shares, to allot one such share with separate possession of the property and render true and correct account of both past and future profits - Defendants argued totally in support of findings recorded by trial Court while contending that Ex.B4 is only a release deed though it was contended before trial Court that it was a settlement deed; said release deed will never extinguish or create any right in immovable property and, therefore, not required to be registered - Thus, trial Court rightly admitted Ex.B4 in evidence - If, for any reason, the plaintiff was not paid Rs.14,500/- after deducting Rs.500/- already paid out of amount agreed to be paid under Ex.B4 by defendants, his remedy is only to recover Rs.14,500/- and not entitled to claim any share in property having given up his share in clear and unequivocal terms under Ex.B4.

Held, releasing right means a person, who had interest in property along with others, giving up his right in the property which enlarges the right of others who had same right in property - If release in favour of a third person having no right in property, it cannot be said to be release and, at best, it may amount to gift as defined under Transfer of Property Act - Plaintiff agreed to receive Rs.15,000 in lieu of his share in joint family property giving up his right in favour of other coparceners who are continuing as members of Hindu undivided coparcenary - On Account of relinquishment of share by the plaintiff, share of other co-parceners is increased. In view of law declared in decisions referred, it is clear that Ex.B4 executed by the plaintiff in favour of defendants is release deed or relinquishment deed but not settlement deed as defined under Sec. 2(24) of Act of 1899 or under Section 2 (b) of Act of 1963 - Trial Court, therefore, rightly concluded that Ex.B4 is relinquishment deed which requires no registration - If Ex.B4 is treated as release deed, it is required to be duly stamped under Article 46 to Schedule I-A of Act of 1899 (A.P. amendment) but Article 46 was introduced by amendment to Schedule I-A of Act of 1899 by G.O.Ms.No. 2045 (Reg. I) dated 28-11-2005 with effect from 01-12-2005. Clause (A) to Article 46 was introduced by G.O.Ms.No. 1129, Rev. (Regn. I) Dept., dated 13-06-2005 but withdrawn by G.O.Ms.No. 1169, Rev. (Regns. I) Dept., dated 15-09-2010 to restore the original stamp duty of 3%. However, these two amendments to Schedule I-A of Act of 1899, by introducing Article 46, have no application to the present facts of the case for reason that Ex.B4 was executed long prior to these amendments - Moreover, trial Court collected stamp duty and penalty and admitted document in evidence - When once document is admitted under the provisions of the Act of 1899, same cannot be questioned at any subsequent stage in view of bar under Section 36 of the Act of 1899 - In present case, stamp duty payable on the document was decided by trial Court and collected penalty and stamp duty - Therefore, question of inadmissibility of Ex.B4 in evidence on account of non-payment of stamp duty does not arise - As discussed above, document of release would not create any independent right but it enlarges right in immovable property and, therefore, it is not required to be registered under Sec.17 of Registration Act as held by the Apex Court.

If total attending circumstances are taken into consideration, it is evident that the plaintiff relinquished or given up or released his undivided 1/7 th share in Hindu undivided coparcenary in favour of the defendants and it was acted upon too - Consequently, plaintiff is only entitled to recover amount due under Ex.B4 i.e. Rs.14,500/- with interest if any - Thus, trial Court, after appreciation of entire evidence on record, rightly concluded that Ex.B4 was executed by plaintiff, acted upon and, therefore, plaintiff is disentitled to claim any share in Hindu undivided coparcenary - On reappraisal of entire evidence with reference to law laid down by Apex Court and this Court, find no legal infirmity warranting interference of this Court - Hence, the finding of trial Court on Ex.B4 is hereby confirmed holding these two points in favour of defendants and against the plaintiff.

The plaintiff is ceased to be a member of Hindu undivided coparcenary after execution of Ex.4 as he relinquished or given up his right in property of Hindu undivided coparcenary - Consequently, question of rendering true and correct account of income from property of joint family does not arise - Thereby, defendants are not under obligation to render true and correct account of income - Accordingly, the point is answered in favour of the defendants and against the plaintiff - In view of foregoing discussion and findings, Court find no ground warranting interference with findings recorded by the trial Court and, consequently, Appeal deserves to be dismissed as it is devoid of merits.

In result, Appeal is dismissed confirming decree and judgment passed in O.S. on the file of Court of Subordinate Judge. Pasagadugula Narayana Vs. Pasagadugula Rama Murty 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 80 = 2016(1) ALD 238.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

—-Secs. 17,48 and 49 - This Appeal has been preferred aggrieved by the orders passed by the High Court of Judicature of Andhra Pradesh wherein and whereby the learned Judge has dismissed the Revision Petition preferred by the Appellants/Defendant Nos. 1 & 2 by confirming the orders passed of Principal Senior Civil Judge - Both the Trial Court and the High Court upheld the objection raised by the plaintiff/ respondent No.1 and came to a conclusion that two recitals i.e. Exhibit B21 and Exhibit B22 are not evidencing the past transaction, but they prima facie disclose the partition of the property and relinquishment of rights by one of the parties - As such, both documents require stamp duty under the Indian Stamp Act, and registration under the Registration Act, - As Exhibits B21 and B22 are unregistered and unstamped documents, they are not admissible in evidence - Trial Court gave a specific finding that even both the exhibits are not admissible for collateral purpose also - Aggrieved by that, the present appeal is filed.

Held, it is well settled that the nomenclature given to the document is not decisive factor but the nature and substance of the transaction has to be determined with reference to the terms of the documents and that the admissibility of a document is entirely dependent upon the recitals contained in that document but not on the basis of the pleadings set up by the party who seeks to introduce the document in question - A thorough reading of both Exhibits B-21 and B-22 makes it very clear that there is relinquishment of right in respect of immovable property through a document which is compulsorily registerable document and if the same is not registered, becomes an inadmissible document as envisaged under Section 49 of the Registration Act - Hence, Exhibits B-21 and B-22 are the documents which squarely fall within the ambit of Sec.17(i)(b) of the Registration Act and hence are compulsorily registerable documents and the same are inadmissible in evidence for the purpose of proving the factum of partition between the parties - This Court is of the considered opinion that Exhibits B 21 and B22 are not admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving primary purpose of partition.

In a suit for partition, an unregistered document can be relied upon for collateral purpose i.e., severancy of title, nature of possession of various shares but not for the primary purpose i.e., division of joint properties by metes and bounds - An unstamped instrument is not admissible in evidence even for collateral purpose, until the same is impounded - Hence, if the appellants/defendants want to mark these documents for collateral purpose it is open for them to pay the stamp duty together with penalty and get the document impounded and the Trial Court is at liberty to mark Exhibits B-21 and B- 22 for collateral purpose subject to proof and relevance.

Accordingly, Civil Appeal is partly allowed holding that Exhibits B-21 and B-22 are admissible in evidence for collateral purpose subject to payment of stamp duty, penalty, proof and relevancy. Yellupu Uma Maheswari Vs. Budda Jagadheeswara Rao 2016(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 26 = 2016(1) ALD 40 (SC) = 2015 AIR SCW 6184.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

—Secs.17 & 49 - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit for partition and separate possession claiming 1/3rd share in suit schedule property - Defendants filed written statement resisting claim of plaintiff that she relinquished her rights over suit schedule property - When defendant produced copy of relin-quishment deed and sought to mark it on his behalf, plaintiff raised objection on ground that relinquishment deed is compulsorily registerable document u/Sec.17 of Registration Act - Trial Court overruled objection and marked relinquishment deed as Ex.B1 - Petitioner/plaintiff contends that contents of document go to show that rights have been relinquished under document "in praesenti" and therefore it cannot be treated as recording a past transaction, whereunder rights have already been relinquished over movable and immovable property of joint family - Since document sought to be received in evidence on behalf of respondent/defendants is not properly stamped, same cannot be received even for purpose of proving collateral transaction - Defendants contend that plaintiff had already relinquished her share in joint family properties, movable and immovable, document is only evidence in past transaction and therefore it is not a compulsorily registrable document - Since document sought to be marked on behalf of respondents, defendants is relinquishment deed and since same is not properly stamped and unregistered it is inadmissible in evidence - Trial Court erred in receiving document and marking it as Ex.B-1 - Docket order of trial Court, set aside - CRP, allowed. Vangala Laxmamma Vs. Pasham Narsi Reddy 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 419.

—Secs.17 & 49 - "Collateral purpose" - Collateral transaction - Respondent filed suit for declaration and permanent injunction against petitioner/defendant - During trial petitioner/defendant sought to produce unregistered sale deed for purported collateral purpose, namely, to prove possession of property - Trial Court declined permission to mark document on ground that since sale deed is compulsorily registerable as per Sec.17 of Act and same did not admissible in evidence even though it is impounded - Purport of phrases collator "collateral transaction" and "collateral purpose" - Explained - From the principles laid down Supreme Court and various High Courts - It is evident that

1. A document required to be registered is not admissible into evidence under Section 49 of the Registration Act;
2. Such unregistered document can however be used as an evidence of collateral purpose as provided in the Proviso to Section 49 of the Registration Act;
3. A collateral transaction must be independent of, or divisible from, the transaction to effect which the law required registration;
4. A collateral transaction must be a transaction not itself required to be effected by a registered document, that is, a transaction creating, etc. any right, title or interest in immoveable property of the value of one hundred rupees and upwards;
5. If a document is inadmissible in evidence for want of registration, none of its terms can be admitted in evidence and that to use a document for the purpose of providing an important clause would not be using it as a collateral purpose."

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

On a compendious reference of case law discussed the following conclusions emerge;

i) A document, which is compulsorily registrable, but not registered, cannot be received as evidence of any transaction affecting such property or conferring such power. The phrase "affecting the immovable property" needs to be understood in the light of the provisions of Section 17(b) of the Registration Act, which would mean that any instrument which creates, declares, assigns, limits or extinguishes a right to immovable property, affects the immovable property;

ii) The restriction imposed under Section 49 of the Registration Act is confined to the use of the document to affect the immovable property and to use the document as evidence of a transaction affecting the immovable property;

iii) If the object in putting the document in evidence does not fall within the two purposes mentioned in (ii) supra, the document cannot be excluded from evidence altogether;

iv) A collateral transaction must be independent of or divisible from a transaction to affect the property i.e., a transaction creating any right, title or interest in the immovable property of the value of rupees hundred and upwards;

v) The phrase "collateral purpose" is with reference to the transaction and not to the relief claimed in the suit;

vi) The proviso to Section 49 of the Registration Act does not speak of collateral purpose but of collateral transaction i.e., one collateral to the transaction affecting immovable property by reason of which registration is necessary, rather than one collateral to the document;

vii) Whether a transaction is collateral or not needs to be decided on the nature, purpose and recitals of the document.

When the above crystallized legal position to the facts of this case, that unregistered sale deed is admissible in evidence for collateral purpose to limited extent of showing possession of plaintiff - Therefore for limited purpose of proving petitioners, possession unregistered document, which is impounded is admissible in evidence - Order of trial Court, set aside - CRP, allowed. K.Ramamoorthi Vs. C.Surendranatha Reddy, 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 49 = 2012(6) ALD 163 = 2012 (6) ALT 786.

—Secs.17 & 49 - STAMP ACT, Sec.3 - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit for eviction of petitioner/defendant basing on unregis-tered document - Inspite of objection by petitioner, trial Court marked document - Petitioner/defendant contends that since document is lease deed and it is a compulsorily registerable document u/Sec.17 of Registration Act and that R.1/plaintiff intends to relay upon said document for purpose of establishing factum of landlord and tenant relationship and such document cannot be marked for collateral purpose - In this case, on careful reading of document in question, a recital had been incorporated to effect that lessor and lessee here by agree to get lease deed with above terms and conditions executed and registered when demanded by either of parties - In light of same trial Judge was of opinion that document would fall under agreement in furtherance of which a further lease deed to be executed and in light of same such documents can be received in evidence and be marked on behalf of plaintiff - Impugned order of trial Court - Justified - CRP, dismissed. Pullella Lakshminarayana Vs. Maddimsetti Mukteswara 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 329 = 2009(4) ALD 59 = 2009(1) APLJ 373 = 2009(4) ALT 567.

—Secs.17 & 49 proviso - INDIAN STAMP ACT, Sec.47-A - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit for relief of specific performance of agreements of sale - During trial when petitioner sought to file agreements objection raised stating that agreements not properly stamped and not registered and therefore petitioner filed Application to send documents to Collector under Stamp Act for collection of Stamp duty and penalty - Authority to whom documents were marked refused to impound them by observing that property covered by agreements belongs to a Mutt and sought to enforce Sec.22-A of Registration Act as amended by A.P. - Trial Court refused to receive documents observing that person who executed agreements of sale himself did not have title and that though there is a mention as to delivery of possession, agreements not registered as required u/Sec.17 of Act - Admittedly agreements are not registered and question as to whether they required to be registered and objection about admissibility on ground that documents are not sufficiently stamped was raised at an earlier stage - Obviously, to get defect cured petitioner/plaintiff filed Application seeking reference of same to Collector under Stamp Act - If authority conferred with power to cure defect refused to do so, party cannot be pushed to a state of helpless ness - Readiness on part of concerned party to pay deficit stamp duty and penalty before competent authority can be treated as a sufficient ground to receive documents in evidence, if concerned authority expresses inability or refuses to cure defect - This may sound a bit abnormal and departure from normal practice and same is however resorted to, lest entire proceedings get locked up in an inextricable or vicious circle - Facility created under proviso to Sec.49 of Registration Act cannot be lost sight of and said proviso carves out two exceptions to principle that if document which is otherwise required to be registered cannot be received in evidence, unless it is registered - First is when it is relied upon in a suit for specific performance and second is when it is sought to be used for collateral purpose - Since suit on hand is one for specific performance, bar contained u/Sec.49 of Act cannot be applied - Therefore view taken by trial Court as to admissibility of document is unsustainable - Documents in question shall be received in evidence subject to proof and relevance - Since Collector expressed view that deficit stamp Duty cannot be receive on ground that property is recorded in name of Mutt, trial Court shall insist on petitioner/plaintiff to implead Mutt as one of defendants and proceed further - CRP, allowed accordingly. Kukku Venkataratnam Vs. K.Sujilabai, 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 247 = 2013(4) ALD 125 = 2013(3) ALT 249.

—Secs.17 & 49 & 17(1A) - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.53-A - Suit filed by plaintiffs seeking declaration of title and perpetual injunction in respect of suit schedule property - Defendants sought to mark in evidence unregistered sale deeds - Trial Court disallowed same holding that said documents are compulsorily require registration u/Sec.17 of Registration Act and as they are not so registered, they are inadmissible in evidence - Under proviso to Sec.49 of Registration Act, an unregistered document affecting immovable property requiring registration can still be received as evidence of contract in specific performance suit and as evidence of any colleteral transaction not required to be effected by registered instrument - As regards receiving such a document in evidence of part performance u/Sec.53-A of T.P Act, statutory amendment of 2001 make position clear in so far as documents executed thereafter are concerned - Sec.17(1A) of Act inserted in statute by Act 48 of 2001 - Provision speaks only of compulsory registration of documents of conveyance for consideration executed after commencement of Act 48 of 2001 for purpose of Sec.55-A of Act - Therefore subject documents, being unregistered sale deeds of year 1996 would fall within ambit of protection afforded by aforestated section they would continue to be governed by unamended Sec.53-A - Defendants would be entitled to mark in evidence these two unregistered sale deeds of year 1996 for purpose of proving any colleteral transaction not required to be affected by a registered document and as evidence of part performance of contract u/sec.53-A of Act - Order of trial Court, set aside - Trial Court directed to permit defendants to mark two unregistered sale deeds - CRP, allowed. M.Manjula Vs. Gajam Chandriah (Died) 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 133 = 2011(6) ALD 109 = 2011(6) ALT 217.

—Sec.17(1)(b) - "Family settlement arrangement" - During course of evidence defendant sought to present two documents styled as "family settlement arrangement" and "arrangement" - Plaintiff objected to marking of documents on ground that they are in nature of settlement deeds which creates rights in parties and therefore they require stamp duty and registration - Trial Court sustained objection with reference to family settlement arrangement and rejected objection relating to arrangement - Defendant contends that document in question is mere family arrangement which was reduced into writing what family members of defendant have earlier agreed to and such an agreement, though reduced into righting is not liable for payment of stamp duty and registration - Recitals in document refer to creation of rights in favour of plaintiff and his family members in past itself and purpose of this document is only to reduce said arrangement in to writing and these document therefore is intended to record past arrangement - Document in question clearly shows that title already came to be resided in plaintiff and husband of other family members and that past arrangement was merely reduced into writing to avoid dispute in future - Document is a family arrangement which merely reduced into righting previous arrangement made by family members of defendant and that it does not required any registration - Impugned order, set aside - Trial Court directed to admit document in his evidence. Bandikatla Padmavathi Vs. Bandikatla Veera Brahma Chari, 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 229 =2013(3) ALD 249 = 2012(4) ALT 10.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

—Secs.17(1)(b) & 49 - INDIAN STAMP ACT, 35(a) - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit seeking declaration of title and perpetual injunction restraining respondents/defendants from interfering with peaceful possession of land and for correction of entry in revenue records relating to pattadar column by deleting name of one R and substituting name of plaintiff -Respondents/defendants 1 to 3 filed written statement opposing claim of petitioner/plaintiff - When petitioner/plaintiff sought to mark a document filed as Kharidnama - Respondent objected on ground that said document is compulsorily registrable u/Sec.17 of Registration Act, as it extinguishes title of executant in respect of property of value more than Rs.100/- - Trial Court passed docket order holding that said document required registration and therefore, it cannot be admitted and marked in evidence and thus rejected request of petitioner - Petitioner contends that impugned order of trial Court is contrary to law and that document in question is a sale deed which had already been impounded by trial Court and penalty was collected; therefore u/Sec.35(a) of Stamp Act, it is admissible in evidence and trial Court ought not to have refused to admit/mark document - Trial Court has rightly held that document is in question is not admissible in evidence as it is document which is compulsorily registrable under Registration Act - Merely because stamp duty and penalty have been paid and provisions of Indian Stamp Act have been complied with, it would not automatically make said document admissible in evidence, if as per law, said document is also required to be registered and that admissibility of document cannot be left open and hanging by trial Court and should be decided as and when such objection is raised - In this case, questioned document is a compulsorily registrable document under provisions of Registration Act and this being so, there was no necessity for trial Court to keep issue hanging till final stage of suit and decide issue of admissibility of document just prior to delivery of judgment - Supreme Court only indicated that there is no illegality if objection as to admissibility is postponed to a final stage, but Court did hold, as a matter of law, that in all cases where objections as to admissibility are raised, they should be decided at final stage and cannot be decided as and when they are raised - Order of trial Court justified - CRP, dismissed. Golla Dharmanna Vs. Sakari Poshetty 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2013(5) ALD 490 = 2013(6) ALT 205.

—Secs.17(1)(g) & 49 - SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1963, Sec.21 - Under proviso to Sec. 49 of Act, an unregistered document, which is compulsorily registerable, is still admissible in evidence under two circumstances, viz., (1) If such document is filed in a suit for specific performance; and (2) The same is sought to be filed as evidence of any collateral transaction not required to be effected by registered instrument - Present case falls under second limb of the proviso because suit being one for recovery of damages, even assuming that document requires registration, same can be admitted in evidence for collateral purpose i.e., for recovery of money and not for specific performance of agreement of sale - Lower court has overlooked these crucial aspects in refusing to mark document - C.R.P., allowed. P.Veerraju Vs. Lakkaraju Indira Bai 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 394 = 2015(1) ALD 472 = 2015(2) ALT 507.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

—Sec.17(1)(g) & 49 - Sec. 17 (2) (v) AS AMENDED BY A.P. STATE LEGISLATURE - Petitioners filed suit for refund of advance amount paid by them to the respondents under agreement of sale - Lower Court refused to mark said document on ground that suit agreement is compulsorily registerable in view of amendment to clause (g) sub- Sec.(1) of Sec. 17 of Act and that as suit is not filed for specific performance of agreement of sale, benefit of proviso to Sec. 49 of Act is not available to petitioners. - Document in question being an agreement of sale simplicitor falls under sub clause (v) of sub Sec. (2) of Sec.17 of Act and further as relief claimed in suit is only for refund of advance money paid under agreement of sale document can be looked into for collateral purpose under Second exception contained in proviso to Sec. 49 of Act and that lower court has completely overlooked this aspect – Civil Revision Petition, allowed. V.S.Ravinder Raj Vs. Siddala Narasimha 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 403 = 2015(3) ALT 221 = 2015(3) ALD 227.

—Secs.19-B & 47-A - Sub-Registrar initiated proceedings for collection of deficit stamp duty by issuing notice - Sec.47A & 19B provide for penalty - A statute of limitation conferring jurisdiction upon statutory authorities to impose penalty must, therefore be construed strictly - A penal statute, unless expressly provided, cannot be given a retrospective effect - Under Sec.47A date of knowledge would be starting point for computing period of limitation - Proceedings, if any, have to be initiated within a period of two years - However, in terms of Sec.19B of Act, period of limitation provided was four years from date of registration and not from date of knowledge. C.J. Paul Vs. District Collector 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 37.

—Sec.21(a) (1) as amended through A.P Act 4 of 1999 - Petitioner wanted to sell away land in Sy.No.36/2 to which he is granted settlement patta by Asst. Settlement Officer - When petitioner approached Sub-Registrar with a request to furnish market value, stamp duty and registration charges etc., Registrar refused to furnish particulars since said land included in list appended to Notification, dt.31-5-2005 issued by Govt. - Petitioner contends that once settlement patta was granted, question of it being treated as AWD does not arise and inclusion of land assigned to him or his predecessors in list of assigned lands is untenable - 3rd respondent/Thasildar stated that part of land covered by Sy.No.37, was assigned to beneficiaries, land claimed by petitioner which is subject matter of present writ petition is adjacent to said assigned land also included in same G.O issued by Govt., dt.4-5-2005 - In this case, statement of 3rd respondent, Thasildar compled with non denial of fact that land in Sy.No.36/2 was not assigned, much less was held by Govt., not denied - Hence said land in Sy.No.36/2 in respect of which petitioner was granted patta cannot be treated as Govt., land, much less prohibition contained u/Sec.22-A of Act would apply to it - Writ petition allowed. K.Ramatulasi Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2012(1) Law Summary 179 = 2012(3) ALD 8 = 2012(3) ALT 292 = AIR 2012 AP 98.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

—Sec.22-A -Sub-Registrar refusing to receive document presented by petitioners for registration on ground that category of document mentioned u/Sec.22-A cannot be registered and that lands belonging to Govt. falls in one of categories mentioned in said provision - Petitioners contend that name of their grand father was mutated in revenue records and after his death his son succeeded to properties and pattadar pass books issued in his favour and that petitioners are claiming said property as lineal descendents of his father - There is overwhelming evidence in respect of petitioners' plea that lands are treated as private lands and registered transaction has taken place as far back as 1947 and revenue records such as pattadar pass books and title deeds were issued in favour of petitioners father - Stand of respondents treating property as Govt., land, cannot prima facie be appreciated - Sub-Registrar directed to receive documents and register same - Writ petition, allowed. Shaik Ali Vs. District Collector, Chittoor 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 106 = 2011(2) ALD 48 = 2011(1) ALT 474 = AIR 2011 AP 80.

—-Sec.22-A – After considering the judgments passed by learned Judges relating to Sec.22-A of Registration Act, this Full Bench issued the following directions:-

(i) The authorities mentioned in the guidelines, which are obliged to prepare lists of properties covered by clauses (a) to (d), to be sent to the registering authorities under the provisions of Registration Act, shall clearly indicate the relevant clause under which each property is classified.

(ii) Insofar as clause (a) is concerned, the concerned District Collectors shall also indicate the statute under which a transaction and its registration is prohibited. Further in respect of the properties covered under clause (b), they shall clearly indicate which of the Governments own the property.

(iii) Insofar as paragraphs (3) and (4) in the Guidelines, covering properties under clause (c) and (d) are concerned, the authorities contemplated therein shall also forward to the registering authorities, along with lists, the extracts of registers/ gazette if the property is covered by either endowment or wakf, and declarations/orders made under the provisions of Ceiling Acts if the property is covered under clause (d).

(iv) The authorities forwarding the lists of properties/lands to the registering authority shall also upload the same to the website of both the Governments, namely igrs.ap.gov.in of the State of Andhra Pradesh and registration. telangana.gov.in of the State of Telangana. If there is any change in the website, the State Governments shall indicate the same to all concerned, may be by issuing a press note or an advertisement in prominent daily news papers.

(v) No notification, contemplated by sub-section (2) of Section 22-A, is necessary with respect to the properties falling under clauses (a) to (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 22-A.

(vi) The properties covered under clause (e) of Section 22-A shall be notified in the official gazette of the State Governments and shall be forwarded, along with the list of properties, and a copy of the relevant notification/gazette, to the concerned registering authorities under the provisions of Registration Act and shall also place the said notification/gazette on the aforementioned websites of both the State Governments. The Registering authorities shall make available a copy of the Notification/ Gazette on an application made by an aggrieved party.

(vii) The registering authorities would be justified in refusing registration of documents in respect of the properties covered by clauses (a) to (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 22-A provided the authorities contemplated under the guidelines, as aforementioned, have communicated the lists of properties prohibited under these clauses.

(viii) The concerned authorities, which are obliged to furnish the lists of properties covered by clauses (a) to (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 22-A, and the concerned Registering Officers shall follow the guidelines scrupulously.

(ix) It is open to the parties to a document, if the relevant property/land finds place in the list of properties covered by clauses (a) to (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 22-A, to apply for its deletion from the list or modification thereof, to the concerned authorities as provided for in the guidelines. The concerned authorities are obliged to consider the request in proper perspective and pass appropriate order within six weeks from the date of receipt of the application and make its copy available to the concerned party.

(x) The redressal mechanism under Section 22-A(4) shall be before the Committees to be constituted by respective State Governments as directed in paragraph-35.1 above. The State Governments shall constitute such committees within eight weeks from the date of pronouncement of this judgment.

(xi) Apart from the redressal mechanism, it is also open to an aggrieved person to approach appropriate forum including Civil Court for either seeking appropriate declaration or deletion of his property/land from the list of prohibited properties or for any other appropriate relief.

(xii) The directions issued by learned single Judges in six judgments referred to above or any other judgments dealing with the provisions of Section 22-A, if are inconsistent with the observations made or directions issued in this judgment, it is made clear that the observations made and directions issued in this judgment shall prevail and would be binding on the parties including the registering authorities under the Registration Act or Government officials or the officials under the Endowments Act, Wakf Act and Ceiling Acts.

(xiii) If the party concerned seeks extracts of the list/register/gazette of properties covered by clauses (a) to (e) of Section 22-A (1), received by the registering officer on the basis of which he refused registration, it shall be furnished within 10 days from the date of an application made by the aggrieved party.

(xiv) Registering officer shall not act and refuse registration of a document in respect of any property furnished to him directly by any authority/officer other than the officers/authorities mentioned in the Guidelines.

(xv) Mere registration of a document shall not confer title on the vendee/alienee, if the property is otherwise covered by clauses (a) to (e), but did not find place in the lists furnished by the concerned authorities to the registering officers. In such cases, the only remedy available to the authorities under clauses (a) to (e) of sub-section (1) of Section 22-A is to approach appropriate forums for appropriate relief. Vinjamuri Rajagopala Chary, Guntur Vs. Prl. Secy. Rev. Dept., 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 138 = 2016(1) ALT 550 = 2016(2) ALD 236.

—Sec.22-A - A.P. ASSIGNED LANDS (PROHIBITION OF TRANSFERS) ACT, 1977, G.O.Ms.No. 1142, Dt:18-6-1954 - Petitioners, who are presently in possession and enjoyment of assigned lands, approaching Sub-Registrar to ascertain stamp duty for effecting sale of said lands, who insists 'No Objection Certificate' from Revenue authorities - RDO forwarding recommendations of Tahsildar for issuing certificate, to District Collector who in turn addressed letter to Sub-Registrar stating that lands belong to Govt., and NOC cannot be issued - Respondents contend that once Govt. assigns lands, condition prohibiting alienation continue to operate and subsequent alienation would not make any difference and even if lands cannot be resumed to Govt., under provisions of Act, prohibition contained u/Sec.22-A of Registration Act, operates - When Govt., itself incorporated conditions prohibiting alienation for first time in year 1954, it is just unimaginable as to how same condition would operate for assignments made two decades earlier thereto and that a purchaser of assigned lands virtually enjoys possession adverse to interest of Govt., with expiry of 30 years stipulated under Limitation Act, he acquires ownership rights by way of prescription - Law does not provide for issuance of any NOC from Revenue authorities - It is almost a matter of convenience - Taking advantage of that, all possible things are dug of and rights of citizens are sought to be trampled, without there being any material - In this case, after thorough verification and enquiry Tahsildar certified that Govt., cannot claim any rights over said land and recommended for issuance of NOC - Writ petition, allowed. K.M.Kamulla Basha Vs. District Collector, Chittoor District 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 335 = 2009(3) ALD 385.

—Sec.22-A - A.P. ASSIGNED LANDS (PROHIBITION OF TRANSFERS ACT) 1997 - Petitioners purchased land from different persons through different sale deeds in year 2006 and 2008 and intended to dispose of said land - 3rd respondent Sub-Registrar refused to accept documents on ground that 2nd respondent/Tahsildar addressed letter to District Collector stating that as per revenue records land belongs to Govt - Admittedly from year 1932 onwards, several transactions have taken place and land is recorded as patta and it is in possession of private individuals - However, by making mention to an R.S.R. of year 1909, it is sought to be pleaded that land belongs to Government - In this case, evidently respondents have not only recognised sales, which took place from year 1932, but also have made entries in revenue records depicting land as patta - Obviously respondents aware that almost for one century, land is treated as patta land under enjoyment of private individuals - Action of 3rd respondent in not accepting documents presented by petitioners would constitute a typical example of arbitrariness of very high order - 3rd respondent directed to entertain sale deeds presented by petitioners - Writ petitioner, allowed. P.Suresh Vs. The A.P. State, rep.by District Collector, Kadapa 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 421 = 2009(3) ALD 802 = 2009(2) APLJ 178 = 2009(3) ALT 419.

—Sec.22-A - A.P. ASSIGNED LANDS (PROHIBITION OF TRANSFERS) ACT, 1977 - LOANI RULES - Petitioner/Private Ltd., Company acquired land in various sub-divisions of Sy.No.103 through different sale deeds for real estate purpose - When petitioner requested R2/Sub-Registrar to furnish information as to stamp duty, registration etc., R2 refused to furnish particulars on ground that land is "assigned" in character and resumed by Govt. - Petitioners contend that its vendor granted Loani pattas on payment of consideration determined by Revenue Authorities in year 1952 and provisions contained u/Sec.22-A of Registration Act or A.P. Assigned Lands Act, 1977 are not applicable - Respondents contend that lands assigned were resumed to Govt., by initiating proceedings under A.P. Assigned Lands Act, 1977 and lands are vested with Govt., and that vendors of petitioner not entitled to transfer lands in view of restriction placed under relevant provisions of Loani Rules - Petitioner further contends that pattas were granted under Loani Rules, on payment of consideration and that no condition prohibiting alienation of lands was corporate in pattas and that even where assignment of lands was made in favour of landless poor, policy decision to impose condition prohibiting alienation of such assigned lands was taken only in year 1958 and since assignments made in instant case were much prior to that, respondents are not entitled to enforce prohibition retrospectively - Once availability of land is ascertained, Tahsildar has to determine value thereof and is only on payment of such value, patta is granted - Hence for all practical purposes it is a sale by Govt., may be purely discretionary - Loani Rules do not provide for stipulation of prohibiting alienation of lands by purchaser or transferee - Respondents also plead that assignment in favour of vendors was cancelled - Records, however, does not support plea - No orders of cancellation have been placed before Court - Orders that have been passed by R5 Tahildar are in respect of different sub-Division Sy.No.103 - Once it is emerged that no orders of resumption have been passed on lands proposed to be purchased by petitioner nor there exists a condition prohibiting alienation of lands, 2nd respondent/Sub-Registrar cannot refuse to receive documents much less refuse to furnish particulars - 2nd respondent/Sub-Registrar is directed to furnish necessary information pertaining to lands in question and entertain documents that may be presented in accordance with law, without treating lands as owned by Govt., or assigned lands - Writ petition, allowed. Sri Manarupa Meadows Pvt. Ltd. Vs. The District Registrar, R.R. Dist., 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 17 = 2012(4) ALD 418 = 2012(4) ALT 169.

—Sec.22-A - ENDOWMENT ACT, Sec.87 - Petitioners purchased land and divided same in plots and executed a sale deed in respect of one plot - When presented same for registration, 1st respondent/Sub-Registrar refused to register on ground that land belongs to temple - Petitioners contend that except making a bald claim 2nd respondent did not place any material before 1st respondent to establish that land belongs to temple and that there was no basis to invoke Sec.22-A of Act - Endowment Department contends that land was endowed to temple and prohibition contained u/Sec.22-A (1)(c) of Act squarely gets attracted - Petitioners insist that unless there is a clear determination, or adjudication in favour of temple as regards land, Sec.22-A cannot be invoked - Once registering authority come to know, or is informed that subject matter of document presented before him for registration is a land, falling into any categories mentioned in clauses (a) to (e) of Sec.22-A (1), he has no option, except to desist from registering document - He cannot embark upon or undertake any enquiry as to validity, legality or propriety of claims vis-a-vis land or its character - Only alternative to petitioners is to seek adjudication as to nature and character of even title over land and that can be either by filing a suit by instituting proceedings u/Sec.87 of Endowments Act - Writ petition, dismissed. Hanumanthu Krishna Rao Vs. The Sub-Registrar, Panduru 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 66 = 2009(4) ALD 249 = 2009(2) APLJ 339 = 2009(4) ALT 511.

—Secs.22-A, 22-A (1) (b) and 22-A (1) (e) and 71 - G.O.Ms.No.786, Revenue (Registration -I) Dept., dt. 9-11-1999 - Sub-Registrar refusing to entertain documents for registration on ground that registration in respect of said land was prohibited - Petitioner contends that his land is neither Govt., land nor assigned land and that prohibition in respect of registration could not be applied to it - Hence present writ petition - 3rd respondent/ Sub-Registrar contends that when petitioner applied for information as to market value of land, Office informed him that subject land was Govt. land and therefore no value exists in respect thereof in basic value Register and that District Collector furnished with list of Govt., lands and as per said list that particular survey number notified as Govt., land and that notwithstanding substitution of Sec.22-A of Act under Act No.19 of 2007, notification issued under erstwhile provision would still continue to operate and that petitioner not presented his document for registration and therefore no cause of action for filing present writ petition - Govt., contends that it is not necessary for Govt., to issue a notification u/Sec.22-A(2) of Act, as it presently stands and that once Govt., land is involved, Sec.22-A(1)(b) would apply and not Sec.22-A (1)(e) of Act and that notification issued under erstwhile Sec.22-A of Act vide G.O.Ms.No.786 would continue to operate in view of validating clause in Act No.19/2007 and therefore prohibition put in place thereunder in respect of said survey number would continue to be operative not withstanding substitution of provision - Where State Govt., stakes a claim that a particular land belongs to it seeks to put in place a prohibition with regard to registration of document in respect thereof same would invariably fall within Sec.22-A (1)(e) of Act alone and Govt. must necessarily publish notification u/Sec.22-A (2) of Act giving full description of property concerned - Sanctity of such notification is spelt out by Sec.22-A(3) of Act, which places an embargo upon registering officers from registering any document falling within ambit of notification - In present case, undisputedly no such notification has been published u/Sec.22-A of Act in respect of subject land - Stand taken by respondents that subject land, should be treated as land in respect of which documents cannot be entertained for registration, notwithstanding fact that no notification has been issued u/Sec.22-A (2) of Act in respect thereof, cannot be countenanced - Sub-Registrar directed to receive, register and deliver documents in accordance with due procedure - Writ petition, allowed. T.Yedukondalu Vs. Principal Secretary to Government 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 175 = 2011(4) ALD 43 = 2011(4) ALT 82 = AIR 2011 AP 132.

—Sec.22-A, 22-A(1)(b) & 22-A(2) - G.O.Ms.No. 237 (wrongly mentioned as G.O.Ms.No.240), dt:5-3-2004 - Sub-Registrar refused to register document presented by petitioner who is absolute owner and possessor of subject land and that his ancestors were in ownership with possession thereof for more than 100 years - Govt. of A.P. issued impugned G.O. in exercise of powers conferred by Sec.22-A(1) of Registration Act - Petitioner aggrieved by said G.O in so far as it categorized his land as Govt., land and prohibited registration of document relating thereto on ground of public policy, contends that as Act of 1999 was struck down by High Court, impugned G.O., which was issued there under would also not survived and therefore impugned G.O is ultra vires and illegal and that refusal by 2nd respondent, Sub-Registrar to register documents presented by him in respect of subject land, relying upon said G.O., is also illegal and arbitrary - Sub-Registrar contends that subject land was a poromboke (Govt., land) as per information furnished by Tahsildar under letter dt:13-2-2012, and that after Act of 1999 was struck down by High Court, new Sec.22-A was incorporated in Registration Act 1908 under A.P. Amendment Act, 19 of 2007 w.e.f.20-6-2007 and that registration of documents relating to subject land was prohibited u/Sec/22-A (1)(b) of Act, as it stand presently - It is admitted fact that no notification has been issued u/Sec.22-A of Act as it now stands - Significantly ground of public policy available in earlier Sec.22-A of Act no longer figures as reason for prohibiting registration of documents under present provision - Thus presently there is no notification issued under existing 22-A(2) of Act 1908. prohibiting registration of documents relating to subject land - Documents executed by persons other than those statutorily empowered to do so are subjected to prohibition of registration thereunder - Only a list of persons who are statutorily empowered to execute documents on behalf of Govt., would be commu-nicated to registration authorities under this provision and not a list of properties allegedly belonging to Govt., - Such a list could only be furnished to notification u/Sec.22-A(2) r/w Sec.22-A (1) (e) of Act - To interpret these provisions otherwise would make said 22-A(2) wholly redundant - Admittedly Govt., is still in process of finalizing proposals for issuing notification under existing Sec.22-A (2) of Act 1908 and there is no sanction presently for it to put into effect a prohibition of registration of documents in relation to lands included in such proposals and to ask registration authorities to act upon same - In absence of Notification u/Sec.-22-A(2) of Act, 1908, there is no legal basis for refusal by registration authorities to receive and register documents presented by petitioner in respect of subject land - G.O.Ms.No.237, Revenue (Registration-

1), dt:15-3-2004, declared as illegal - Writ petition, allowed, accordingly. Syed Zakir Hussain Vs. The State of Andhra Pradesh 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 151 = 2013(5) ALD 30 = 2013(4) ALT 671.

—Sec.22-A Clauses (a) to (e) - 1st Petitioner executed sale deeds in favour of 3rd petitioner - 2nd petitioner sold said property to 4th petitioner - When documents presented for registration before Sub-Registrar he refused to register documents on ground that he received information from Inspector Wakfs,5th respondent, to effect that said lands are owned by Wakfs Institution - Petitioner contends that in recognition of their rights, ryotwari patta under A.P. Inams Act, and pattadar pass books also were issued in their favour - Petitioner further contends that there is no basis for 5th respondent to claim right or title as regards said land; much less for 3rd respondent to refuse registration of documents - In this case, principal ground urged onbehalf of respondent 4 and 5 is that relief claimed in suit was only for recovery of possession and there was no occasion to examine question of title and this may not be correct - Relief of recovery of possession is larger in scope than one for mere declaration of title - It is only when plaintiffs in a suit establish their title that they can seek recovery of possession - Once relief of recovery of possession was denied, respondents 4 & 5 cannot still assert title in property - 3rd respondent/Sub-Registraor is directed to receive documents presented by petitioner and process same in accordance with law, without applying prohibition contained under Sec.22-A of Act. Inampudi Hari Babu Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 245 = 2012(3) ALD 378 = 2012(3) ALT 789.

—Sec.22-A(1)(b) - Petitioner, Construction Company presented sale deeds for registration after construction of residential Complex - Sub-Registrar refusing to register documents on ground that RDO & Tahsildar addressed letters that land on which building constructed belongs to Govt - Undisputedly building cons-tructed over a plot of land on which there existed house from year 1967 - RDO & Tahsildar made claim on strength of certain entries in Revenue Records - Undisputedly when Govt., did not enjoy any rights of possession for past four decades, much less did it make any claim for it, RDO & Tahsildar cannot be permitted to prevent registration - Apart from entries from Revenue Records there must factual basis for prohibition contained in Sec.22-A (1) (b) of Act to operate - Record does not disclose that RDO & Tahsildar ever issued any notices against petitioners - Sub-Registrar directed to process documents without reference to objection raised by RDO & Tahsildar - Writ petition, allowed. T.Radha Bhai Vs. The District Collector 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 373.

—22-A(1)(c) and (1)(e) - A.P. CHARITABLE AND HINDU RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS ENDOWMENTS ACT,1987, Secs.6(c) (1) and 29 - Trustees of Trust property passed resolution authorizing Life Trustee to execute sale deeds in respect of Trust lands in favour of 3rd parties - 1st petitioners's father purchased certain extent forming part of land by separate registered sale deeds and he is in continuous uninterrupted possession and also perfected his title to said land - After death of 1st petitioner's father petitioners 2 to 5 purchased land under agreement of sale from 1st petitioner and paid substantial amount - When they have approached 1st respondent/Sub-Registrar for registration of regular sale deeds, he informed them that subject land is shown in list of properties prohibited for registration in view of letter addressed by Executive Officer representing Trust - Petitioners contend that there was unionmous resolution by trustees authorizing life Trustee to execute sale deeds in respect of said Trust land and therefore subject land does not belong to Endowments Department so as to include same in list of prohibiting Registration u/Sec.22-A of Registration Act - Commissioner of Endowments contends that Trustees published u/Sec.6(c)(1) of Endowment Act and since then Trustees under administrative control of Endowments Department and that Executive Officer has been looking after day to day administration of Trust and as sales effected without prior approval of Commissioner of Endowments, such sales are null and void - In this case, as sale deeds were executed by life Trustee in respect of Trust land pursuant to resolution of Trustees, subject land is no more property of Trust - Basing on letters of respondents 3 & 5, Commissioner addressed letter to 1st respondent/Sub-Registrar - In absence of any Notification under 22-A (1) (e) of Registration Act, it is not open for Sub-Registrar to refuse document for registration of subject land - When Trust land was transferred by way of sale deeds as early as in year 1981,83 & 85 by putting purchasers in possession and in absence of taking any steps to nullify such sale deeds or to take back possession of trust land, it is not open for respondents to plead that 5th respondent/trust still continues to own subject land covered by that particular survey no - In this case, claim of 1st petitioner in respect of subject land is bonafide pursuant to registered sale deeds in year 1981,83 & 85 and therefore Govt., any Religious Institution cannot claim subject land is still owned by them and respondents cannot prevent transfer of subject land in favour of petitioners 2 to 5 - Complicated questions with regard to title and possession cannot be gone into by respondents by preventing transfer of lands in exercise of powers u/Sec.22-A of Registration Act - When there is a bone fide claim by private person in respect of immovable property of Govt. or Religious Institutions or Local Body to approach to competent Form or Court to establish their right - But claim of bona fide purchasers cannot be deprived of , by preventing transfer of lands making communications to Registering Authorities - There is no basis or authority for respondents 3 & 5 to address letters to 1st respondent/Sub-Registrar for prohibiting transfer of subject land - 1st respondent/Sub-Registrar directed to receive documents presented by petitioners - Writ petition, allowed. P.Srinivasulu Vs. Sub-Registrar, Renigunta,Chittoor Dt. 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 179 = 2012(6) ALD 260.

—-Sec.22-A, 22-A(1) (a to e) - Petitioners intended to sell a part of land in Sy.No.383/2 and approached 2nd respondent/Sub-Registrar with a request to furnish particulars of market value, stamp duty, registration fee etc - 2nd respondent refusing to furnish particulars on ground that land in said Sy.No was included in list of Govt., properties and he is enforcing prohibition contained u/Sec.22-A - Petitioners contend that at no point of time, land was held by Govt., and that not only names of their ancestors were shown in Khasra pahani for year 1954-55, but also they were issued pattadar pass books and title deeds recently by concerned revenue authorities - 1st respondent/ District Collector contends that in land in said Sy.No. sub-division was done contrary to prescribed procedure and that entries in revenue records were not properly made and that land continues to be held by Govt. - Sec.22-A of Act was introduced recently with a view to prohibit registration of documents in respect of properties owned by Govt, - Initially purpose of Section was that any document which affects public interest cannot be registered and Govt., was clothed with power to issue a G.O., showing list of properties held by them - Execution of any document in respect of land mentioned in G.O., was to be treated per sea as opposed to public policy - That provision was set aside by High Court of A.P., following judgment rendered by Supreme Court - In place of said provision which was struck down by High Court, State Legislature enacted Sec.22-A of Act with a different context - It prohibits registration of documents pertaining to properties which fall in five categories i.e., clauses (a) to(e) of Sub-Section (1) - One such item is properties owned by State or Central Govt., and that registering authority would naturally be guided by particulars furnished by revenue authorities as regards iden-tification of properties owned by Govt. - Though objective underlying Sec.22-A of Act is laudable, in quite large number of instances, citizens are put to hardship and made to go around Courts in matter of effecting transfer of their properties - In this case, names of petitioners ancestors were mentioned in phanies, of year 1951 and same entries were repeated for year 1954 to 1955 and also ultimately pattadar pass books and title deeds were issued by revenue authorities themselves - If revenue authorities do not respect entries made by them as well as pattadar pass books and title deeds, issued by them, they cannot expect other organs of State to have any respect for them - A situation is emerging as though sweet will of an individual would prevail over entries made under Statutes - Writ petition, allowed with costs of Rs.10, 000/- payable by 1st respondent/District Collector to School of Visually Disabled Persons. S.Laxma Reddy Vs. District Collector, 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 144 = 2012(5) ALD 232 = 2012(4) ALT 534.

—Secs.22-A(1)(c), 22-A(2) and 22-A(1)(e) - Commissioner/Endowment Department issued proceedings to registration Authorities indicating particulars of immovable properties allegedly belonging to particular Maths to desist from entertaining registration of documents in connection with these properties and accordingly issued communication under Secs.22-A (1)(c) - Petitioner contends that basing on Communication Joint-Sub-Registrar, Tirupathi, refused to receive documents as said lands was indicated in the list appended to proceedings as properties of Maths - Joint Sub-Registrar contends that subject lands were classified as properties belonging to Endowment Department, registration of documents pertaining to subject land was prohibited u/ Sec.22-A(1)(c) of Act and as long as lands were included in list of endowment properties he had no option except to refuse registration of documents pertaining thereto - Communication addressed by Commissioner of Endowment Department proceeds on a complete misconception and misunderstanding of scope of above provision - In event Religious/Charitable Endowment/Wakf institution seeks to assert any right over a property, prohibition as to registration of documents relating to such property can operate only if a notification is issued u/Sec.22-A (2) of Act in connection with Sec.22-A(1)(e) thereof - In absence of a Notification u/Sec.22-A(2) it is not open to Endowment Department to communicate a list of properties allegedly owned by religious institutions by way of letter and trace power to do so to Sec.22-A (1)(c) of Act - Communication addressed by Commissioner Endowments is without jurisdiction and unsustainable and accordingly set aside - Joint Sub-Registrar, Tirupati is directed to receive and process documents presented by petitioners - Writ petition, allowed. Pasuparthi Jayaram Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 135 = 2013(5) ALD 785 = 2013(4) ALT 541.

—Secs.22-A, 22-A(1)(e), 71 & 72 of 1908 - Sec.22-A Reintroduced by A.P. State Legislature by passing Act 19 of 2007with different phraseology and this inserted section 22-A became breeding ground for litigation, as Revenue Authorities have been preparing "lists of prohibited properties for registration" and sending same to Sub-Registrars concerned and said Registering Authorities have been strictly following "lists" and refusing even to receive documents leave alone registering them, if transactions under documents pertain to immovable properties included in "prohibitory lists" - Notwithstanding legal position settled by High Court Registering Officers have been ignoring these judgments and driving parties to approach High Court again and again - In order to see litigation of this nature is curbed once for all it is not only appropriate but imperative to issue following directions which shall be general application throughout State of A.P. and govern all transactions of registration to take place, in future;

"(A) The Registering officers shall not insist on production of NOCs as a condition for receiving the documents for registration.

(B) The Registering officers shall not refuse to receive the documents for registration only on the ground that the properties were included in the prohibitory lists sent by the Revenue authorities, for reasons such as that the ownership column of the RSR contains dots, or that the lands are shown as AWD lands in the Revenue Records or that the lands are assigned lands.

(C) In cases of entries in RSRs containing dots or describing the lands as AWD, unless a notification has been issued under Section 22-A(2) of the Act, the Registering officers shall not refuse to receive and register the documents. The registration of such documents, however, shall be without prejudice to the right of the Government and its functionaries to initiate appropriate proceedings for recovery of possession of the properties covered by such documents, if in their opinion they belong to the Government.

(D) In cases of assigned lands, if there is clear proof to the effect that such assignments were made prior to the issuance of G.O.Ms.No.1142, dated 18-6-1954 in the Andhra Area and G.O.Ms.No.1406, dated 25-7-1958 in the Telangana Area, the Registering officers shall receive and register the documents, notwithstanding the fact that the properties were included in the prohibitory lists sent by the Revenue authorities. In respect of the documents involving properties assigned subsequent to the issuance of the above mentioned G.Os., in view of the embargo contained in Section 5(2) of the A.P. Assigned Lands (Prohibition of Transfers) Act, 1977, the Registering officers shall make an endorsement while refusing to receive the document specifying the reason. If the parties feel aggrieved by such orders, they are entitled to avail appropriate remedy as available in law.

(E) Wherever there is no specific evidence that assignments of lands were made subsequent to the issuance of G.O.Ms.No.1142, dated 18-6-1954 in the Andhra Area and G.O.Ms.No.1406, dated 25-7-1958 in the Telangana Area, benefit of doubt should be extended in favour of the parties who intend to transfer the lands. In such cases, the Registering officers shall write to the Revenue authorities to produce proof of the fact that the assignments were made subsequent to 18-6-1954 or 25-7-1958, as the case may be, within a stipulated time. If within such time, the Revenue authority concerned fails to send such proof, the Registering officers shall register the documents.

(F) In cases of documents pertaining to assignments made to Ex-servicemen and Freedom fighters, the Registering officers must consider whether ten years period has expired from the date of assignment and shall register the documents if the said period has expired. In other cases, the Registering officers shall pass an order under Section 71 of the Act and communicate the same to the parties concerned.

(G) In cases pertaining to assignments made to Political Sufferers, the assignees or the persons claiming through them are entitled to transfer the lands by sale or otherwise without any restrictions and the Registering officers shall receive and register the documents whenever they are presented.

(H) Where assignments are made on payment of market value, the Registering officers shall not refuse to register unless the assignment deed stipulated any period during which the land shall not be sold and the stipulated time has not expired.

(I) In cases of alienation of properties which are claimed to belong to Religious and Charitable Endowments falling under the A.P. Hindu Religious Institutions and Endowments Act, 1987, or Wakfs falling under the Wakfs Act, 1995, unless relevant material is available before the Registering officers to show that they are owned by such Institutions, registration of the documents shall not be refused. Even if evidence is available to show that the properties sought to be alienated belong to the Institutions referred to above, the Registering officers shall receive the documents, pass orders assigning reasons for rejection and communicate the same to the parties concerned, who shall be free to assail such orders by availing the remedy of appeal under Section 72 of the Act.

(J) In cases where notifications are issued under sub-section (2) of Section 22-A(1) of the Act prohibiting registration of the documents pertaining to the properties falling under clause (e) of sub-section (1) of Section 22-A of the Act, the Registering officers shall make an endorsement while refusing to receive the document specifying the reason for such refusal. Needless to observe that if the parties feel aggrieved by such rejection orders, they can avail appropriate remedies as available in law. "

Above directions shall bind all Revenue Authorities and Registering Officers in State of A.P. - Violation of above directions by Officers concerned will be viewed as contempt of Court. Raavi Satish Vs. State of A.P. 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 118 = 2013(2) ALD 1 = 2013(1) ALT 774.

—Sec.22-A & 72 - 2nd respondent/Sub-Registrar refused to register sale deed sought to be presented by petitioner on ground that 3rd respondent/Tahsildar informed him that subject property is included in list of prohibited properties - Petitioner contends that land was initially assigned to private property to private party in year 1993 and that legal heirs of assignee sold same under Registered sale deed in year 2000 in favour of one SSR who constructed subject building over said land by availing loan from S.B.I and that in view of default committed by SSR, owner of property, same was put to auction in which one RVR has purchased it under registered sale deed in year 2008 executed by Bank - Subsequently said purchaser obtained loan from Bank and committed default and that for recovery of loan amount, property was once again put to auction in which petitioner purchased it - When petitioner and Bank presented sale deed for registration consequent on auction, 2nd respondent/ Sub-Registrar passed impugned order of refusing registration - Mere inclusion of properties in prohibitory list by Revenue Authorities would not deter registering officers from registering document and that such prohibitory list cannot be elevated to status of statutory notification u/Sec22-A(2) of Registration Act - High Court also held that if assignments were made prior to 18-6-1954 on which date G.O.Ms.No.1104 was issued envisaging prohibition of transfer of assigned lands for first time, Registering Officers shall not refuse to register documents only on ground that lands covered by said documents are assigned lands - In the present case, State and its executive apparatus have allowed the property to be transferred under two register sale deeds dated 6-9-2000 and 31-5-2008 and sale deed last registered was as recent as 2008 - Revenue Authorities need to show proper responsibility in preparing so-called prohibitory list and they cannot be oblivious of previous history of property and solely guided by so-called entries in record such as Re-servay and Settlement Register - In this case, both respondents 2 & 3 Sub-Registrar, Tahsildar have not only ignored settled legal position but also ground realities in dealing with property in question - 2nd respondent Sub-Registrar is directed to register sale deed executed by Bank in favour of petitioner in respect of questioned property subject to parties complying with provisions of Registration Act and Indian Stamp Act - Writ petition, allowed. Pasupuleti Bala Gangadhar Vs. State of A.P. 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 315 = 2013(4) ALD 426 = 2013(3) ALT 610.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

—Sec.22-A (1), (2) - Writ petitioners complained against inclusion of Survey No.242 as property belonging to Mutts/ Institutions, as illegal and without factual or legal basis - Petitioners alternatively canvass that unless a notification under Section 22-A of Act is issued for any property, registration of document for such property cannot be prohibited or refused by the 4th respondent/Sub Regisrar - In short, legal objection stated is that unless a notification under Section 22-A (2) of Act is issued, prohibition or refusal to register property is illegal and unauthorized - Legal grounds urged against alleged refusal to receive or register document by 4th respondent are that Section 22-A of Act prescribes prohibition from registration of certain categories of land and to attract prohibition from registration of document, properties should be notified in gazette under Section 22-A (2) of the Act - As Survey No.242 is not notified in gazette under Section 22-A (2) of Act, the 4th respondent cannot rely upon details submitted by Revenue and Endowments Departments and refuse to receive or register documents covering properties in the list forwarded by these departments - Such refusal to receive or register is illegal, arbitrary, contrary to Act and violative of Article 300-A of Constitution of India - Hence, the writ petitions.

Held, list of properties held by institutions is communicated to Sub-Registrar to apply Section 22-A(1)(c) of the Act - Properties prohibited by Section 22-A (1) (a) to (d) are not properties where these entities claim avowed or accrued interest, but claim proprietary rights in law and by record - For prohibiting registration of documents for properties already held by an institution, a notification for any purpose is a surplusage - A particular immovable property is treated as a property belonging to an institution under an act, grant etc - Insistence upon notification to prohibit registration of properties belonging to religious endowment or wakf property negates the plain meaning of Section 22-A (1) (c) of the Act - Likewise, ceiling surplus (agriculture/urban) stood vested in the Government and by communicating the list of such properties, Government informs details of surplus ceiling land to Registration Department - By insisting upon notification for all instances covered by 22-A(1)(a) to (d), this Court would be firstly defeating very purpose of A.P. Amendment Act 19 of 2007 and mischief is sought to be prevented by Legislature - For situations covered by Section 22-A (1)(a) to (d), in this Court considered view, no notification under sub-Section (2) of Section 22-A is required for prohibiting registration of documents covered by these sub sections - For reasons stated supra, this Court is in agreement with ratio laid down in Guntur City Housing Construction Cooperative Society's and P.Srinivasulu's case that a notification is not required for the prohibition contemplated under Section 22-A(1) (a) to (d) of the Act and a notification under Section 22-A (2) is required for purposes of Section 22-A(1)(e) of Act - Writ petitions are ordered accordingly. C.Radhakrishnama Naidu Vs. Govt of A.P. 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 530 = 2015(4) ALT 1.

—-Sec.22-A (1) (c) - This writ petition is filed seeking writ of mandamus declaring the action of the respondent No.2 vide proceeding in Rc.No. DP2/27164/2013, dated 15.01.2014 and subsequent action in invoking Section 22 (A) (1) (c) of the Registration Act vide letter No.N2/10868/2014-1, dated nil-5-2014 and proceedings Rc.No.A5/2088/2013, dated 06.09.2014 as illegal and arbitrary - Held, normally writ petition will not be entertained when alternative remedy is available and learned Assistant Government Pleader also pleaded same while citing judgments. But in view of fact that 'order in W.P.No.32162 of 2012 has become final, wherein it is held that subject land is a private patta land and also in view of Judgment rendered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Peddinti Venkata Murali Ranganatha Desika Iyengar and others v. Government of Andhra Pradesh and another (supra), this Court do not see any reason to relegate the petitioner to avail alternative remedy - W.P, allowed. Vykunta Veera Anjaneyulu Vs. State of A.P. 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 500 = 2015(6) ALD 110 = 2015(5) ALT 333.

—-Secs.23, 25 & 77 - Sale deed executed and presented for registration in 1979 - Sub-Registrar refusing to register sale deed on ground of non-enclosure of certificate from Urban Land Ceiling Authority - Petitioner again produced document for registration in year 2003 after obtaining certificate from vendor, after lapse of 24 years, contending that registrar is under obligation to find whether document is registerable or not and if document, which is presented for registration, is returned and later it is directed to be registered it would relate back to date of earlier presentation - Order of Sub-Registrar refusing to register document cannot be faulted for reason that petitioner not complied with statutory obligation of production of ULC certificate - It is always open for registering authority to insist for payment of stamp duty on present market value if he decides that document submitted for registration shall be treated as having been submitted only in 2003 - SCOPE AND OBJECT - SECS.23 & 25 - Stated - Document shall not be accepted for registration unless it is presented within four months from date of its execution - Admittedly, present document presented within four months from date of execution, but, presented without enclosing certificate of ULC - Therefore Sub-Registrar cannot be faulted in refusing to register document - Registrar has no jurisdiction to register document if it is presented after four months without accounting for delay and delay can be condoned u/Sec.25 of Act provided Registrar is approached within four month i.e., within eight months of execution of document - If Registrar condones delay it can be presented for registration - But if Registrar is approached after expiry of period of eight months of execution he has no jurisdiction to condone delay u/Sec.25 of Act - When once party fails to present document within eight months it cannot be presented at any time subsequently - In this case, petitioner once again presented document after expiry of 24 years which is beyond scope of Sec.23 & 25 of Act - Impugned orders passed by respondents/registering authorities are in accordance with law and they are neither illegal nor arbitrary - Writ petition, dismissed. G.Kadambari Vs. District Registrar of Assurances, Hyderabad 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 313 = 2008(2) ALD 662.

—Secs.24 and 34 - Whether the document requires registration or not but when the document is presented for registration, the same shall be within a period of eight months from the date of execution - If a document is presented beyond the period of registration or all the executants do not present themselves within a period of eight months, the Registrar under the Act has no power to accept the document for registration - For the Registrar to complete registration the document shall comply with all the requirements of law - In the case on hand, Respondents Nos.13 and 21 are admittedly executants and not presented within 8 months - They are required to be present for accepting the document for registration and also endorsing the act of registration - Unless and until all the executants appear before the Registrar for accepting the document for registration, the Registrar on his own accord cannot register the document by excluding Respondents 13 and 21 herein - When such course is impermissible before the Registrar, by applying the principle of severability, this court cannot exclude respondents 13 and 21 for any purpose and save the registration insofar as others are concerned - Either the registration is fully compliant or not is the question for decision - If the registration is not conforming to the requirements of law, the registration of document is illegal - For the above reasons, the writ petition is allowed as indicated above. G.Krishna Reddy Vs.Govt. of A.P. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 69 = 2015(1) ALT 579 = 2015(2) ALD 474.

—Secs.34, 35 (3), 58,59,60,72,73,76 & 77 - Sub-Registrar refusing to register documents presented by petitioners treating "admission of execution under threat as denial of execution" - Petitioners contend that when once document is executed in presence of registering Officer, same cannot be kept pending without registration and even subsequently person who executed document denies execution, Registering Officer has no choice, but to register - Respondents contend as per Secs.34 & 35 of Act and Rules 26 & 58, mere presentation of document for registration does not amount to admission of execution - Registration can be refused when person by whom document purported to be executed denies execution or person, who purportedly is dead - If any objection is raised, Registering Officer has to consider whether parties appearing before him are not parties they profess to be, whether document is forged and whether document is presented without proper authority by representative, and whether executing party is dead or not - In case, Registering Officer is not satisfied, he can refuse registration - Registering Officer is bound to examine document, conduct enquiry and satisfy himself as to identity of property, identity of person executing document and as to compliance with Stamp Act and other provisions of Registration Act- Unless such an exercise is done, Registering Officer cannot certify that documet is registered and only after such certification, registration becomes valid - In this case, 4th respondent issued a telegram and also appeared before Sub-Registrar alleging that her signatures were obtained without her consent by threatening - As such execuution not proved or admitted in accordance with Sec.35 (3) (a) of Act, r/w Rules 26 & 58 of Rules - Therefore impugned order is justified - After order passed u/Sec..73, r/w Secs.75 & 76 of Act, person aggrieved can file a suit for decree directing document to be registered within 30 days of passing such decree - Hence Petitioners are at liberty to apply to District Registrar u/Sec.73 of Act and also file a suit thereafter - Writ petitions, dismissed. Jasti Bhujangeswara Rao Vs.Sub-Registrar, Repalle 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 452 = 2009(2) ALD 719 = AIR 2009 AP 78 = 2009(3) ALT 804.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

—Sec.49 - "Collateral purpose" - Respondent fled suit for declaration of title and for recovery of possession contending that their ancestor, VRC purchased suit property through unregistered sale deed in year 1960 and since then, he and thereafter, they were in uninterrupted possession of same and thereby perfected their title through adverse possession and that defendants 1 and 2 State of A.P and Tahsildar, ought not to have granted assignment in favour of petitioners/defendants 3 & 4 - During course of evidence plaintiff sought to introduce unregistered sale deed in evidence, which was opposed by defendants 3 & 4 on ground that document is in nature of sale deed, is unregistered and hence same is not admissible in evidence - Trial Court rejected objection holding that proviso to Sec.49 of Registration Act, even on unregistered document affecting immovable property can be received for collateral purpose - Hence present CRP filed by defendants 3 & 4 - In this case, plaintiffs have claimed two main reliefs in suit which appear to be mutually contradictory viz., declaration of tile through adverse possession and for recovery of possession and they sought to rely upon unregistered sale deed for purpose of establishing their possession eventually to get their title declared through adverse possession - In present case, unregistered document was not pressed into service for seeking declaration of plaintiff's title and same is sought to be relied upon for purpose of establishing possession of their ancestor - This by itself cannot be said to be main purpose which is directly relatable to main relief claimed by plaintiff.

Supreme Court laid down: "…Under the law a sale deed is required to be properly stamped and registered before it can convey title to the vendee. However, legal position is clear law that a document like the sale deed in the present case, even though not admissible in evidence, can be looked into for collateral purposes….".

Ratio laid down by Supreme Court applies even though nature of one of reliefs claimed in present case, is at variance with that claimed in case before Supreme Court, therefore, irrespective of whether plaintiffs in case on hand sought for recovery of possession obviously as an alternative relief, ratio laid down by Supreme Court will still apply to present case - Order of trial Court in admitting unregistered sale deed - Justified - C.R.P. dismissed. Doma Govinda Raju Vs. Vanimisetti Papa Rao 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 287 = 2012(5) ALD 257 = AIR 2012 AP 126.

—Sec.49 - "Colleteral purpose"- 1st Respondent/plaintiff filed suit for permanent injunction against petitioner/D1 and Respondents 2 to 9 - During evidence of petitioner/D1, he sought to mark document, possessory agreement of sale in order to show that R1/ /plaintiff is not in possession of suit property and on contrary he is in possession of property - Trial Court declined to receive said document in evidence only on ground that purported agreement of sale is in nature of possessory agreement evidencing delivery of possession and that as same is not registered it cannot be looked into evidence - Even if petitioner is not a party to said document still to prove his plea regarding possession he can relay upon said document - Trial Court has committed serious jurisdictional error in not admitting possessory agreement of sale into evidence for collateral purpose, viz., to determine possession of parties - Impugned order of lower Court in I.A. set aside and said document is directed to be marked in evidence subject to its proof and relevancy - CRP, allowed. Kancherla Sivaramaiah Vs. Musunuru Venkata Krishna Rao 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 416.

—Sec.49 – STAMP ACT, Sec.2 (15) – Petitioner filed suit for partition and separate possession – Respondents/defendants opposed suit by taking plea of prior partition – Petitioners taking objection when defendants sought to introduce a document as to its admissibility – Trial Court dismissing Application filed by petitioners - Petitioners contend that though there is a mention about prior exercise of partition, it is through document that right to enjoy properties mentioned therein is vested on parties thereto, and thereby document answers description of partition deed and once document confers right upon parties, either of enjoyment or of ownership, it is required to be registered and stamped - Even where unregistered document can be received in evidence under proviso 2 Sec.49 of Registration Act, requirement as to stamp, cannot overlooked – In this case, document clearly makes a mention that one year prior to date on which it was written, properties were devided between parties thereto - Once principal recital is there, subsequent elaboration does not make much of difference in context of registration – First recital is that parties have partitioned their properties, one year prior to date of document and therefore document cannot be said to be a partition deed – Order of trial Court dismissing Application - Justified – Revision petition, dismissed. Vaka Venkata Chalapathi Vs. Pemma Jayalakshumma 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 262 = 2009(1) ALD (NOC) 7.

—Sec.49 - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Secs.107 & 108 - Appellant filed suits for declaration of title and for eviction of respondents/tenants from suit premises - Respondent/ Company contends that tenancy was taken for providing residential accommodation to its Officer and even if suit premises vacated by said Officer tenancy of respondent continued and said agreement is illegal and invalid and against Statute - Suits of appellant dismissed - High Court also dismissed Appeals - Appellant contends that lease agreement creating tenancy from month to month in respect of suit premises not compulsorily registerable and as such prohibition contained in Sec.49 not applicable - Even if agreement in question compulsorily registerable even then purpose of letting specified in agreement was 'collateral purpose' and accordingly it can be looked into under proviso to Sec.49 and said term did not extinguish tenant's right under Act - A document required to be registered is not admissible into evidence u/Sec.49 - However such unregistered document can be used as an evidence of collateral purpose - If a document is inadmissible in evidence for want of registration, non of its term can be admitted in evidence and that to use a document for purpose of proving an important clause would not be using it for collateral purpose - In this case, Cl.9 of agreement which requires respondent to use suit premises only for its particular named Officer, cannot be looked into even for collateral purpose - CHANGE OF USER - Although suit premises leased out exclusively for named Officer of respondent, fact that respondent sought to use it for some other Officer would not constitute "change of user" within meaning of Sec.108 (o) of T.P Act, therefore respondent cannot be evicted for violation of said provisions - Appeal, dismissed. K.B.Saha & Sons Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Development Consultant Ltd. 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 149 = 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 218 = 2008(6) ALD 92 (SC) = 2008 AIR SCW 4829 = 2008(4) Supreme 360.

(INDIAN) REGISTRATION ACT

—Secs.49 & 17 - "Collateral purpose" - Plaintiff/petitioner filed suit against respondents/ defendants seeking a decree for declaration of title inrespect of suit property and for permanent injunction - Defendants filed written statement contesting suit claim - During his evidence plaintiff/petitioner sought to mark unregistered original sale deed under which he claims to have been purchased property sought to mark unregistered original sale deed who have purchased suit property - Defendants/Respondents raised objection to admissibility of sale deed on ground that it is unregistered document - Trial Court passing order that unregistered sale deed is inadmissible in evidence - Plaintiff/petitioner contends that not with standing fact that document in question is unregistered same could have been received in evidence for collateral purpose - Respondents/defendants contend that an unregistered sale deed cannot be received in evidence in suit for declaration of title to property even for collateral purpose under proviso to Sec.49 of Registration Act.

COLLATERAL PURPOSE - As per well-settled principle of law per Apex Court any purpose other than one which relates to establishment of title to property can be treated as collateral - In this case, it is clear that plaintiff intends to relay upon document in question to prove his title to suit schedule property, but not for any other purpose - Therefore, contention that document can be looked into for collateral is without substance - CRP, dismissed. Vengalapudi Manga Vs. Paluri Kannabbai 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 180 = 2013(5) ALD 170 = 2013(4) ALT 710.

—Sec. 49 (c) & 17(1) - This Civil Revision Petition is filed aggrieved by orders passed by Senior Civil Judge, in O.S.No.230 of 2010 dated 09.02.2012 wherein the Court below declared suit settlement agreement dated 10.06.1997 as inadmissible in evidence for want of Stamp Duty and Registration.

Held, no doubt, in view of proviso to Section 49 of Registration Act, 1908, unregistered document is admissible in evidence in a suit for specific performance, but in present case, trial court held that document is a settlement deed and it is not properly stamped and moreover, it is hit by Section 25 of the Indian Contract Act - As such instrument which is chargeable with stamp duty, shall not be admitted into evidence unless it is properly stamped - Admittedly, suit settlement document is not properly stamped - In view of above facts and circumstances, this Court do not see any illegality or infirmity in the order passed by Court below. Madala Jyothi Vs. Karanam Tirupalaiah, 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 496 = 2015(5) ALT 472 = 2015(5) ALD 587.

—and A.P. RULES, framed under Registration Act, Rule 26 - A.P. ESTATES (ABOLITION AND CONVERSION INTO RYOTWARI) ACT - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.39, Rule 1 & 2 - Petitioner purchased plot of 164 Sq. yards in R.S.No.171 through sale deed - When 5th respondent sought to interfere with possession of petitioner he filed suit and obtained ad interim injunction - 3rd respondent/Tahsildar executed deed of cancellation vis-a-vis said plot referring an order passed by District Collector/1st

respondent in which Collector took note of fact that Patta was granted in respect of an extent of Ac. 0.21 cents of lands in R.S.No.171 in favour of Labour Co-operative Society by Settlement Officer and on finding that Society violated conditions of Patta, RDO, 2nd respondent passed order cancelling Patta followed by change of classification of land and restoration of same to Govt. - 1st respondent also directed 4th respondent/ Sub-Registrar to execute deed of cancellation as per Rule 26 of A.P. Rules framed under Registration Act - Hence present writ petition - 5th respondent contends that he is in possession of land referred above and his representation for regularization is pending - Petitioner contends that Patta was granted in favour of Society by Settlement Officer under Estate Abolition Act and that 2nd respondent/RDO has no jurisdiction to cancel it and in case, 1st respondent/District Collector, wanted to take any action in relation to land, she ought to have issued notice to affected parties, but instead, order has been passed straightaway in violation of principles of natural justice and though order of Collector was general in terms in respect of Ac.0.21 cents, third respondent/Tahsildar was selective in executing deed of cancellation and that whole exercise smacks arbitrariness - Being Head of Revenue Administration Collector ought to have satisfied herself before taking further steps on basis of orders passed by 2nd respondent/RDO and at any rate notice ought to have been issued to Society and other persons who derived rights from it before patta was cancelled - However, even putting a premium upon patent illegality committed by 2nd respondent/RDO, Collector issued further directions to Tahsildar to execute deed of cancellation violating principles of natural justice - 3rd respondent, Tahsildar was choosy and he has executed a deed of cancellation only in respect of 164 Sq.yards in relation to sale deed executed in favour of petitioner/Society - It is fundamental that he ought to have issued notice to petitioner before he sought to annul sale deed and evidently at every level patent violation of principles of natural justice has taken place and effort was made to ensure that 5th respondent is conferred with benefit over land - Impugned orders are set aside - Writ petition, allowed - Authorities under enactments are at liberty to take steps in accordance with law. Jasti Purna Chandra Lakshmi Sujatha Vs. District Collector 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 264 = 2013(1) ALD 575 = 2013(2) ALT 231.

—and A.P. RULES FRAMED UNDER REGISTRATION ACT, Rule 26(k) - CANCELLATION OF GIFT DEED - Petitioners and respondent no.4 are brothers - 4th Respondent executed gift deeds in favour of petitioners in respect of building and possession delivered - Subsequently 4th respondent executed deeds of cancellation which are registered by 2nd respondent/Sub-Registrar - Petitioner challenge action of Sub-Registrar in registering deeds of cancellation, contending that absolute title in respect of property stood transferred in their favour with the execution of gift deeds and acceptance thereof and that Sub-Registrar ought not be have registered deeds of cancellation unless they are executed with participation of all parties to transaction - 4th respondent contends and that gift deeds were conditional and since petitioner violated condition to maintain 4th respondent, he has cancelled gift deeds - Petitioner further contends that registration of documents

REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1951:

by sub-registrar is contrary Rule 26(k) of A.P. Rules framed and that once transfer of immovable property by way of gift is complete, it can be cancelled only with participation of both parties - When a gift deed is executed, it is almost a unilateral transaction - It is devoid of any consideration and donor chooses to transfer his title in favour of donee out of love and affection - Participation of donee is not at all contemplated till deed is executed - Donor is entitled to cancel gift deed as long as gift is not accepted by donee - Once gift is accepted right of donor to unilateraly cancel gift deed ceases to exists - In case, 4th respondent felt that there exist circumstances warranting cancellation of documents he could have filed suit for cancellation of gift deeds, in Court of law - Govt. of A.P. framed Rule 26(k) of Rules which prohibits registration of documents through which previous transactions are sought to be cancelled unilaterally - Recently Supreme Court also in Civil Appeal held that cancellation of sale deed or other deeds of transfer without participation of all parties to it cannot be sustained in law - Writ petition, allowed. Garagaboyina Radhakrishna Vs. District Registrar 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 242 = 2012(5) ALD 228 = 2012(6) ALT 49.

REGISTRATION OF BIRTH AND DEATH ACT, 1969:

—Sec.14 - Petitioner filed representation requesting to issue date of birth certificate to his son to apply for VISA for further studies in foreign countries - 2nd respondent rejecting the request stating "birth of a baby child was registered in our records without the name of the child, since you are furnishing the information regarding the name of the Male Child beyond 15 years prescribed time. Therefore your request for registration and issue of Birth Certificate cannot be considered as per Section 14 of the Registration of Birth & Death Act, 1969" - Petitioner contends that rejection of his representation to issue date of birth certificate to his son is illegal and violation of natural justice and there is nothing in Act which precludes or prohibits registering authority to enter name of person in birth certificate even at a subsequent stage - He further averred that his son's date of birth recorded in official register without mentioning his name an if 2nd respondent had not entered his son's name in Register and not issued birth certificate to his son, he would be prevented from higher studies - Respondent is directed to issue certificate to petitioner's son and enter name of his son in birth certificate after satisfying himself that certificate relates to person whose name is sought to be entered. Md.Hasnuddin Vs. State of A.P. 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 161.

REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1951:

—Secs.21,22 & 23 - "Revision of Voters' List" - Petitioners' names were deleted on ground that they are not ordinary residents of village - Petitioners contend that they are very much residents of village and their names are included in voters' list on being satisfied about their residence and that Enumerating Officials have deleted their names without following procedure prescribed by law - Deletion of name of an individual from electoral rolls visits him with serious consequences - For all practical purposes, he is excluded from democratic process and is denied of any role in election process - Sec.22 of Act itself mandates that concerned person shall be given "reasonable opportunity of being heard" - 3rd respondent/Electoral Registration Officer ought to have ensured that affected persons are put on notice - Evidently respondents did not give petitioners adequate opportunity and their objections have not been considered - Order of 3rd respondent, deleting names of petitioners from electoral rolls, set aside - 3rd respondent directed to give opportunity of being heard to petitioners on fixed date and take appropriate action in accordance with law - Writ petition, allowed. Darla Rama Devi Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 326 = 2009(2) ALD 826.

REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1951:

—Sec.100(1) (iii)&(iv) and Rules, 1961, Rule 63 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.14, Rule 1 and Or.8, Rule 2 - "Conditions for counting of votes" - "Applicability of CPC to election petitions" - Stated - Pursuant to Notification, appellant as well as respondent filed their nominations - Counting of votes took place and appellant secured 62216 and respondent secured 62215 votes - At request of election agent recounting took place and result remained same - Appellant declared duly elected by margin of one vote - In this case, evidently from pleadings that case has been limited only to 6 tendered votes and there had been no pleading in respect of remaining 4 tendered votes either in election petition or written statement filed by appellant - High Court rejecting Application for summoning tender votes on ground that none of parties had taken pleadings nor an issue had been framed in respect of these tendered votes and thus it is not permissible to lead any evidence on fact which is not in issue - Procedure provided for trial of civil suits under CPC is not applicable in its entirety to trial of election petition - Procedure prescribed in CPC applies to election trial with flexibility and only as guidelines.

CONDITIONS FOR COUNTING OF VOTES - Stated - (i) The Court must be satisfied that a prima facie case is established; (ii) The material facts and full particulars have been pleaded stating the irregularities in counting of votes; (iii) A roving and fishing inquiry should not be directed by way of an order to recount the votes; (iv) An opportunity should be given to file objection; and (v) Secrecy of the ballot requires to be guarded.

It is neither desirable nor required for Court to frame an issue not arising on pleadings - Court should not decide a suit on matter/point on which no issue has been framed - There may be an exceptional case where in parties proceeded to trial fully knowing rival case and lead all evidence not only in support of their contentions but in refutation thereof by other side - In such eventuality, absence of an issue would not be fatal and it would not be permissible for party to submit that there has been mis-trial and proceedings stood vitiated - Court cannot travel beyond pleadings and issue cannot be framed unless there are pleadings to raise controversy on particular fact or law - It is therefore, not permissible for Court to allow party to lead evidence which is not in line of pleadings - Therefore in this case, election petitioner/respondent has claimed only that there has been irregularity/illegality in counting 6 tendered votes and case squarely falls within ambit of Sec.100 (1) (d)(iii) of Act - Admittedly, in this case there is no reference to 4 tendered votes either in election petition or written statement - Said four tendered votes neither had been relied upon in reply by appellant nor had been entered in list of documents - Judgment of High Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Kalyan Singh Chauhan Vs. C.P.Joshi, 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 88 = 2011(3) ALD 90 (SC) = 2011 AIR SCW 1061 = AIR 2011 SC 1127.

REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1951:

—Sec.127-A – A.P. MUNICIPALITIES ACT, 1965, Sec.342-E - Police registered a crime u/Sec.127-A of Representation of People Act, and Sec.343-E of A.P. Municipalities Act, on report given by Town Planning Officer, Municipality who was the official of Model Code of Conduct Team-IV alleging that the petitioner/accused published a pamphlet and circulated by keeping the same between the folders of a Telugu daily on 10-03-2014 without disclosing the particulars of printer and publisher of the said pamphlet and thus violated election code - Petitioner/accused seeks to quash the proceedings in Cr. No.51 of 2014.

Held, when the meaning of "election pamphlet or poster" is perused and applied to the impugned pamphlet, the impugned pamphlet does not contain any material in promoting or prejudicing election of a candidate or group of candidates relating to Municipal Election - As already stated, the petitioner through the pamphlet only appeals to the voters of the Assembly Constituency to give him an opportunity in the forthcoming State Assembly Elections - Therefore, he has not violated the Code of Conduct in vogue in respect of the Municipal Elections - So far as the violation of Code of Conduct relating to Assembly Elections is concerned, same was not in vogue by 10-03-2014 since Notification was yet to be given by then - Therefore, continuation of criminal proceedings in Cr. No. 51 of 2014 would certainly amount to abuse of process of law - In the result, this Criminal Petition is allowed and proceedings in Cr. No. 51 of 2014 are hereby quashed. B.Naveen Nischal Vs. State of A.P. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 494 = 2015(3) ALT (Crl) 212 = AIR 2015 Hyd. 161 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 951.

-and CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.6, Rl.16 r/w Sec.151 and Or.7, Rl.11 r/w Sec.86 - Main averment in the aforesaid petitions is that the election petition does not disclose any cause of action and it is bereft of material facts and material particulars - In election petition 1st respondent has not demonstrated as to how order of Returning Officer was incorrect or wrong - On other hand, he raised same objections and filed election petition - Therefore, there is no cause of action for election petitioner - Since election petition is bereft of material facts showing how order passed by Return Officer is wrong, averments made in paras 2, 9 to 11 of election petition are liable to be struck out and since there is no cause of action election petition is liable to be rejected - The 1st respondent filed common counter in above two petitions wherein he referred five objections filed by him before 8th respondent and tried to justify how those objections were legally valid and how 8th respondent erred in rejecting his objections and as such how instant petitions are not maintainable.

Held, cumulative effect of paras-2, 9 to 11 is nothing but again lampooning order of 8th respondent as erroneous without demonstrating as to how his order was factually and legally perverse and wrong - Even mentioning of judgment in Resurgence India 's case and allegation that petitioner suppressed Rs.21 lakhs from total assets, Court will presently see, will not constitute any material facts so as to strengthen allegations in paras-2, 9 to 11 - Therefore, pleadings in paras-2, 9 to 11 being frivolous and vexatious and not containing any material facts and cause of action are liable to be struck off.

REVENUE RECOVERY ACT:

Thus, none of objections raised by 1st respondent before 8th respondent and repeated in his election petition merit consideration - Apart from above, 1st respondent in para-10 of election petition has taken a new ground to effect that petitioner has concealed Rs.21 lakhs worth of movable assets of his wife and showed his gross total value as Rs.2,79,67,680/- instead of Rs.3,00,67,680/- - It must be held that this objection also does not hold water - In Item No.VII petitioner has shown item wise movable assets of his wife and showed their gross total value as Rs.2,79,67,680/ - - However, total value comes to Rs.3,00,67,680/- - It is only a mistake in totalling items of movable properties - Since there is no concealment of any item, clerical error in totalling cannot be taken as a felony - Thus, on a conspectus, election petition is liable to be dismissed in limini without necessity of conducting trial for two reasons— firstly, petition is bereft of material facts and cause of action and secondly, objections raised before 8th respondent and repeated in election petition do not merit consideration, which can be and in fact, have been, decided without necessity of conducting trial.

So, at the outset, two petitions filed by petitioner deserve to be allowed and consequently election petition is liable to be dismissed in limini.

E.A. relating Or.6, Rl.16 is allowed and Paras-2, 9 to 11 in Election Petition are ordered to be strike out for being frivolous and vexatious and not containing material facts and cause of action therein - E.A relating Or.7, Rl.11 r/w Sec.86 C.P.C. seeking dismissal of Election Petition is allowed and E.P. is rejected in limini. Peddireddigari Ramachandra Reddy Vs. Madiraju Venkata Ramana Raju 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 203 = 2016(6) ALD 299 = 2016(5) ALT 655.

REVENUE RECOVERY ACT:

—Sec.5-A & 9 - Deceased, AP during his life time executed Gift Settlement deed in favour his sister/3rd. respondent, and her name is not mutated in revenue records - Subsequent to death of AP name of his wife who acquired said land by way of succession was mutated in revenue records - Wife of AP executed registers sale deeds in favour of petitioners and basing on said sale deeds petitioners names are entered into revenue records and subsequently pattadar pass books and title deeds were issued - Thereafter 3rd.respondent made application for mutation of her name in revenue records on base of Gift Settlement deed and since revenue officials fail to consider application 3rd. respondent filed writ petition which was allowed by High Court with direction to revenue officials to enter name of 3rd respondent on basis of Settlement deed - In pursuance of directions of High Court 3rd respondent made another application and MRO, issued proceedings entering name of 3rd respondent in revenue records - Proceedings of MRO are set aside with a direction to conduct fresh enquiry on ground that before passing order petitioners are not given opportunity accordingly 2nd respondent/Tahsildar taken up fresh enquiry and passed order that matter required adjudication by competent civil Court as both parties claimed title by gift of settlement

RIGHT TO INFORMATION ACT, 2005:

deed and registered sale deeds - 3rd respondent filed Revision u/sec.9 of ROR Act, against orders of 2nd respondent/Tahsildar - 1st Respondent/Joint Collector allowed revision holding that registered Gift deed executed by original pattadar AP in year 1979 being 1st transaction and same should be implemented in revenue records - Hence said order of R.1/Joint Collector assailed in present writ petition - Petitioners contend that 1st respondent/Joint Collector committed grave error in going into question to title claimed by rival parties and that revision u/Sec.9 of ROR Act, against order of R.2 not maintainable at all since remedy of Appeal is available against said order - 3rd respondent contends that since title acquired by her in respect of said property upheld by competent civil Court there is no need for compelling 3rd respondent to get her title declared in civil Court and therefore 1st respondent/Joint Collector is justified in setting aside 2nd respondent order and directing mutation of 3rd respondents name in revenue records - Law is well settled that revenue authorities exercising jurisdiction under ROR Act cannot go into serious questions of title - In instant case, though Gift deed under which 3rd respondent is claiming title is stated to have been executed prior to sale deeds under which writ petitioners are claiming title and admittedly there has never been any enquiry with regard to validity of said Gift deed and there is adjudication with regard to title claimed by 3rd respondent under Gift deed - In facts and circumstances, 2nd respondent rigtly held that matter requires adjudication by competent civil Court - 1st respondent/Joint Collector committed grave error in entertaining revision petition though remedy of appeal is available u/Sec.5 (5) of ROR Act, which 3rd respondent failed to exhaust - Absolutely no justifiable reason could be shown in present case for invoking revisional jurisdiction straightway without exhausting remedy of appeal - Impugned order is unsustainable and same set aside - Writ petition, allowed. Vanga Narsa Reddy Vs. Joint Collector, Adilabad 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 189 = 2012(5) ALD 576 = 2012(6) ALT 6.

RIGHT TO INFORMATION ACT, 2005:

—Secs.2(f)(i), 3, 8(1)(e), 8(1)(g),8(3), 10 and 10 - "Information" - Defined - Evaluation of answer book of examination - Respondent appeared for SSC examination and disappointed when he got mark sheet - Though he had done well in examination, but his answer books not properly valued and that improper valuation had resulted in low marks - Definition of "information" in Sec.2(f) of RTI Act refers to any material in any forum which includes records documents opinion papers among several other enumerated items - Term "record" is defined in Sec.2 (i) of Act as including any document, manuscript or file among others - When a candidate participates in examination and write his answer book and submits it to Examining Body for evaluation and declaration of result, answer books is a document or record and therefore evaluated answer book is also as "information" under RTI Act - Provision barring inspection or disclosure of answer books are re-evaluation of answer books and restricting remedy of candidate only to retotaling is valid and binding on examinee - Position may however be different if there is superior statutory right entitling examinee as a citizen to seek access to answer books as information - This right is claimed by students not with reference rules or byelaws of Examining Body, but under RTC Act which enables them and entitles them to have access to answer books as "information" and inspect them and take certificate copies thereof - In a phylosophical and very wide sence, examining bodies can be said to act in a fiduciary capacity, with reference to students who participate in examination as Govt., does while governing its citizens or as present generation with reference to future generation while preserving environment - Duty of Examining Bodies is to subject candidates who have completed a course of study or a period of training in accordance with its curricula to a process of verification/examination/ testing of their knowledge, ability or skill, or to ascertain whether they can be set to have successfully completed or fast course of study or training - When examining body, if it is a public authority entrusted with public functions is required to act fairly, reasonably, uniformly and consistently for public good and public interest - Once examiner has evaluated answer books he ceases to have any interest in evaluation done by him - He does not have any copy right or proprietary right, or confidentiality right in regard to evaluation and therefore it cannot be said that Examining Body holds evaluated answer books in a fiduciary relationship, qua examiner - Hence Examining Body does not hold evaluated answer books in fiduciary relationship and exemption u/Sec.8(1) (e) is not available to Examining Bodies with reference to evaluated answer books - As no other exemption under Sec.8 is available in respect of evaluated answer books, Examining Bodies will have to permit inspection sought by examinees.-Right to information is a cherished right - Information and right to information are intended to be formidable tools in hands of responsible citizens to fight corruption and to bring in transparency and accountability - Provisions of RTC Act, should be enforced strictly and all efforts should be made to bring to light necessary information under Cl.(b) of Sec.4(1) of Act which relates to securing transparency and accountability in working of public authorities and discouraging corruption - Order of High Court directing Examining Bodies to permit examinees to have inspection of their answer books is affirmed, subject to clarifications regarding scope of RTI, Act and safe guards and conditions subject to which information should be furnished. Central Board of Secondary Education Vs. Aditya Bandopadhyay, 2011(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 118 = 2011(6) ALD 38(SC) = 2011 AIR SCW 4888.

RIGHT TO INFORMATION ACT, 2005:

—Secs.2(f), 2(h),2(j) & 2(n),3,4,7 (7), 8(1) (d) & 11(1) - 2nd respondent, member of Society filed application before petitioner/Co-operative Building Society for supply of information regarding (a) up-to-date list of total members of Society with addresses (b) list of members who are allotted plots and registered along with addresses (c) and list of members who paid amounts and awaiting for allotment by way of lottery - Since information not supplied, preferred appeal before 1st respondent who negatived objection raised by petitioner Society that it is not public authority and hence provisions of RTI Act are not attracted to it - Petitioners contend that RTI Act does not enable information available with private body that petitioner to be furnished or made public and that RTI Act is intended only for securing check on activities of public authorities and that it has no role to play in matters of information either gathered or available with private bodies and that until and unless body falls within definition of public authority in terms of Sec.2(h) of Act, right to information could not be enforced against it at all - Information concerning private body also undoubtedly forms part of "information" for purpose of this enactment provided such information is liable or capable of being accessed by public authority under any other law in force, for time being - Therefore, right to information is one which is capable and accessible under RTI Act provided information is held by or under control of any public authority - Various provisions of Co-operative Societies Act which clearly disclosed controlling power and reach of access of Registrar of Cooperative Societies appointed and constituted as such u/Sec.3 of Societies Act - Therefore, even from perspective of expression "right to information" as defined by RTI Act, Registrar of Cooperative Societies who answers definition of "public authority" - Therefore information sought for by 2nd respondent relating to writ petitioner society is liable to be furnished and it is not one which is falling in any one of exceptions contained u/Sec.8 of Act - Writ petition, dismissed. Sri Bhavana Rishi Co-op. Society Vs. A.P. Information Commission 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 151.

RIGHT TO INFORMATION ACT, 2005:

—Secs.2(f) & 3 to 11 of Chapter – II – EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.74 – "Muntakhab" – Petitioner/ Public Information Officer refusing to give certified copy of "Muntakhab" on ground that 2nd respondent's name does not figure in said 'Muntakhab' nor she produced legal hair certificate issued by competent civil Court establishing her succession - 2nd respondent contends that 'Muntakhab' is a public document u/Sec.74 of Evidence Act and petitioner cannot deny supply of certified copy of same and that petitioner cannot claim any privilege nor supplying of copy of said document is prohibited u/Sec.8 of RTI Act - Chapter – II contains Secs.3 to 11 which deal with citizens' right to information and obligation of public authorities, which is heart and soul of RTI Act – If information is available with public authority, unless and until it is one of categories mentioned in Sec.8 (1), there should not be any objection for furnishing information subject to procedural compliance under RTI Act – Even information regarding private persons can also be made available after Sec.11 of RTI is complied with - Theory of 'implied bar' does not apply to law, which is made to give full scope to fundamental rights - Even if a 'Muntakhab' is considered as privileged document u/Sec.74 r/w Sec.123 of Evidence Act, still public authority as defined u/Sec.2 (h) of RTI Act can not refuse - By reason of Sec.22 of RTI Act, provisions of RTI Act shall have effect not withstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law – Writ petition, dismissed. Public Relation Officer Hyd., Vs. A.P. Information Commissioner 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 8.

—Secs.2(f), 2(h), 2(i) & 2(j), 6, 8(1)(b) and 24 - JUDGES PROTECTION ACT, 1985 - Trial Court granting interim injunction in suit filed against petitioner - District Judge, R4 passed order dismissing CMA preferred by petitioner and said order has become final since not challenged before any higher Court - Administrative Officer/R1 rejecting Application filed by petitioner u/Sec.6 of Information Act seeking information as to why certain documents and arguments were not considered by District Judge while considering CMA - Registrar General/appellate authority rejected appeal and Govt., also dismissed second appeal - Hence petitioner filed present writ petition impleading

RIGHT TO INFORMATION ACT, 2005:

District Judge as respondent No.4 - Petitioner contends that respondent Nos.1 to 3 wrongly rejected application filed by petitioner on ground that correctness or otherwise of judicial order or judgment cannot be questioned under Right to Information Act and that right to information is a fundamental right of a citizen and citizen cannot be deprived of right on ground that judicial officers are not amenable to Act - Respondents submit that in his Application petitioner wanted to know mind of judge for rejecting CMA, and not material, which in any form was available in records and therefore 1st respondent/ A.O rightly rejected application of petitioner - Words "information", "public authority", "record" and "Right to Information" - Defined - A citizen has a right to receive "information", which is in any form, including records, documents, e-mails etc., and information in relation to any private body which can be accessed by a public authority under any other law for time being in force - Information does not mean every information but it is only such information which is recorded and stored and circulated by public authority - In this case, petitioner under guise of seeking information had virtually asked to know as to why and for what reason R4, Judicial Officer had come to a particular conclusion which was against petitioner - Under provisions of Act a citizen can seek only information which is available on record with public authority in material form, but cannot seek clarification by raising queries as to what was in mind of Judge when he decided case - For said purpose he has to read judgment and if he is aggrieved by judgment for any reason he has to file appeal - Under provisions of Act, a public authority is having an obligation to provide such information which is recorded and stored but not thinking process, which transpired in mind of authority which had passed order on judicial side - Respondent Nos.1 to 3 had not given any discriminatory treatment to petitioner so as to do undue favour to respondent No.4 and they have only acted in terms of Act and passed orders rejecting application of petitioner - Petition, rejected. Khanapuram Gandaiah Vs.The Administrative Officer,R.R. Dt. 2009(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 49 = 2009(4) ALD 113 = 2009(4) ALT 184 = AIR 2009 AP 174.

—Secs.5,6,7,8 & 19 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.19 - Petitioner submitted Application to PIO requiring information relating to ten items of particular subject - Reply was given complying with information only on one item observing that rest of items do not come under definition of information - Commissioner dismissed Appeal - Petitioner contnds that person who makes Application u/Sec.6 cannot be required to disclose purpose for which he needs information - INFORMATION - Defined - Applicant cannot be required to give reasons for requesting information - Act has comprahensively defined word "information" - It takes in its fold, large verity of sources of information including documents, emails, opinions, press releases, models and data material etc - Common feature of various categories, mentioned in definition is that they exists in one form or other and PIO has only to furnish same, by way of copy of description - Reason are basis as to why a particular state of affairs exists or does not exists cannot be treated as a source or item of information - Act is an effective device, which if utilize judiciously and properly would health citizens to become more informed - It no doubt relieves an applicant from obligation to disclose reason as to why he wants information - However indescriminate efforts to secure information just for sake of it, and with there being without any useful purpose to serve, would only pur enormous pressure on limited human resources that are available - In this case effort of petitioner appears to have been directed mostly in relation to administrative action or inaction, without specifying actual grievance and it is well neigh impossible for any one to accede to request of petitioner within scope of act and rules - Order passed by respondents, justified - Writ petition, dismissed. Divakar S.Natarajan Vs. State Information Commissioner, Hyd. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 181 = 2009(2) ALD 644 = 2009(2) ALT 500 = 2009(1) APLJ 299.

RIGHT TO INFORMATION ACT, 2005:

—Secs.6,7,8,19 & 20 - Petitioner, Medical practitioner filing Application before PIO (Municipal Manager) seeking information relating to land in a particular survey number, as to possession and enjoyment of number of persons - Since petitioner failed to get information Appeals filed before 1st and 2nd respondents - In this case, it is not even remotely evident as to why petitioner wanted that information, muchless, that he has any grievance about various acts and omissions mentioned in Application - Obviously, respondents 2 & 3 caught up in a tangle, if they furnish information according to their knowledge and assumption it amounts to exercising powers not conferred upon them and reason is that it is only Revenue Authorities under relevant provisions of law or Courts, that can certify or pronounce upon possession of individuals over land - In this case, for all practical purposes petitioner treated respondents 2 & 3 as his subordinates, if not, servants to blindly obey all his directions - Petitioner has resorted to gross misuse of provisions of Act - Writ petition, dismissed. A.Sudhakar Reddy Vs. The State Information Commission 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 382.

—Sec.8 (1) (h) & 19 (5) - 2nd respondent made Application before petitioner/Public Information Officer, Syndicate Bank under RTI Act seeking information regarding accounts of Industrial Unit - Petitioner rejected application on ground that Bank has initiated proceedings under SARFAESI Act, for recovery of dues from 2nd respondent and therefore information sought for by him false within exempted category u/Sec.8(1) (h) of Act - 2nd respondent filed Appeal against orders of 2nd respondent before GM of Bank who partly allowed appeal - Feeling aggrieved by said order 2nd respondent filed appeal before Central Information Commission who allowed same by holding that onus to prove that denial of information is justified, is on Public Information Officer u/Sec.19(5) of Act and that since he failed to to offer any such information appeal deserves to be allowed - Hence Public Information Officer filed present writ petition - Scheme of Act would reveal that every Public Information Officer nominated as such under Act has dual role to play viz., as Officer of Public authority and also Public Information Officer - While such Officer is loyal who is employer while acting in his role as Officer, he acts as a quasi-judicial authority while disposing of request made for furnishing information - It is only either public authority, against whom directions are given, or any other party who feels aggrieved by such direction, that can question orders passed by appellate authorities - As such Public Information Officer who filed present writ is wholly incompetent to question order of appellate authority and writ petition filed by him is not maintainable - However what is exempted u/Sec.8(1)(h) is information, which would impede process of investigation or apprehension or prosecution of offenders - It is not pleaded case of Bank that any investigation or apprehension or prosecution of respondent no.2 will be impeded by furnishing information sought by him and even if information relates to a pending dispute before Court or Tribunal, that would not fall u/Sec.8(1) (h) of Act - Writ petition, dismissed. Public Information Officer Vs. Central Information Commission 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 340 = 2012(1) ALD 433 = 2012(2) ALT 348.

RIGHT TO INFORMATION ACT, 2005:

—Secs.8(1) (j) & 6(2) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.19 (1) (a) & 21 - Pursuant to advertisement issued by ONGC, 1st petitioner and several others applied for post of Field Officer - 1st petitioner not selected - 2nd petitioner practicing Advocate filed Application on behalf of 1st petitioner seeking information regarding number of S.C candidates selected, name of authority who selected candidates and date of issue of posting orders to 285 candidates and their dates of joining and also made request to furnish qualification certificates submitted by selected candidates - 1st respondent furnished information on all aspects and so far as furnishing of qualification certificates is concern he took view that it is exempted u/Sec.8 (1) (j) of Act - 3rd respondent/ appellate authority passed order upholding stand taken by 1st respondent - Petitioners contend that 1st respondent was under obligation to furnish copies of qualification certificate furnished by selected candidates and that certificates referred to above do not fall with in ambit of Sec.8(1)(j) - From perusal of Sec.8, evidently exemption gets attracted under two circumstances viz., (a) if information is personal in nature and has no relationship to any public activity or interest and (b) furnishing of same would cause unwarranted invasion of privacy of individual - Right to information is treated as a facet of fundamental rights guaranteed under Arts.19 & 21 of Constitution of India - That, however, would be in respect of information which relates to functioning of Government and public activity - Information which relates to individual cannot be compared with or equated to one of public activity - Even while exercising right of freedom of speech and expression an individual can insist that information relating to him cannot be furnished to others unless it is in realm of public activity or required to be furnished under any law - Though Sec.6(2) of Act enables every individuals to seek information without disclosing purpose, information that can be furnished to him is subject to restriction placed u/Sec.8 of Act - No exception can be taken to impugned orders - Writ petition, dismissed. Kunche Durga Prasad Vs Public Information Officer,Rajahmundry 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 236.

—Secs.18 & 19 - Second appellant filed Application u/Sec.6 of Act for obtaining information from State Information Officer relating to magisterial enquiries initiated by Govt., - As there is no response, appellant filed complaint u/Sec.18 of Act before State Chief Information Commissioner who directed second respondent to furnish information within 15 days - Said direction challenged by State in present writ petition - As no response received appellant filed complaint u/Sec.18 and same was disposed of by an order directing disclosure of information forthwith - Said order was also challenged by way of writ petition by respondents - Single Judge of High Court dismissed both writ petitions upholding order of Commissioner - In writ appeal, Division Bench held that u/Sec.18 of Act Commissioner has no power to direct respondent to furnish information and such power has already been conferred u/Sec.19 (8) of Act on basis of exercise u/Sec.19 only and further held that direction to furnish information is without jurisdiction and directed Commissioner to dispose of complaints in accordance with law - Procedue under Sec.19 of Act when compared to Sec.18 has several safe guards for protecting interest of person who has been refused information he has sought Sec.19(5) in this connection may be referred to - Sec.19(5) puts onus to justify denial of request on information Officer and therefore it is for Officer to justify denial - There is no such safe guard in Sec.18 - Procedure u/Sec.19 is a time bound one, but no limit is prescribed u/Sec.18 - A right of appeal is always a creature of statute and is a right of entering a superior forum for invoking its aid and interposition to correct errors of inferior forum and it is a very valuable right - Therefore when statute confers such right of appeal that must be exercised by person who is aggrieved by reason of refusal to be furnished with information - Impugned judgment of Divison Bench - Justified - Appellants therefore directed to file appeals u/Secs.19 of Act in respect of two requests by them for obtaining information - If such appeal is filed following statutory procedure by appellants same should be considered on merits by appellate authority without insisting on period of limitation - Right of respondents to get information in question must be decided on basis of law as it stood on date when request was made - Appeals are disposed of accordingly. Chief Information Commr. Vs. State of Manipur 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 41 = 2012(3) ALD 1 (SC) = 2012 AIR SCW 651 = AIR 2012 SC 864.

SCHEDULED CASTES AND SCHEDULED TRIBES (PREVENTION OF ATROCITIES) ACT, 1989:

—Sec. 2(a), 3(1) (X) - Substance of allegations made in complaint is that petitioners herein denied promotions to Dr. Y. Kiran Kumar as he belongs to Schedule Caste - Held, there is no allegation in the complaint that petitioners have intentionally insulted or intimidated appellant in his presence in name of his caste and in a place within public view and even if allegations made in complaint ex facie taken to be true and correct, petitioners never insulted the appellant in name of his caste so as to attract alleged act of petitioners within ambit of Sec.3(1)(x) of Act - Even assuming but not admitting the allegations are true and correct, same will not fall under anyone of provisions enumerated under Sec.3 of Act - When alleged act of petitioners is not punishable under Sec. 3 of Act, by any stretch of imagination, it cannot be presumed that the alleged act of petitioners will come under the purview of 'atrocity' as defined under Sec. 2(a) of Act - Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 Sec.2(a), 3(1)(X)-any dispute pertaining to inter se seniority or service matter falls outside the purview of provisions of S.C. and S.T. (PoA) Act - This is a fit case to quash proceedings for two reasons viz., - 1) Allegations made in complaint do not constitute offence alleged to have been committed by the petitioners under Sec.3(1)(x) of S.C. & S.T (POA) Act; and 2) Entrustment of investigation to police in nothing short of abuse of process of law - Hence proceedings deserve to be quashed - Criminal Petitions, allowed. Dr.I.V.Rao Vs. State of A.P., 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 150 = 2015(1) ALD (Crl) 806 = 2015 Cri. LJ 652.

—-Sec.3(1)(X) - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.342 & 509 and 506 r/w Sec.34 - Originally, Crime was registered for the offences punishable u/Sec.3(1)(x) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 and Secs.342, 509 and 506 r/w Sec.34 of IPC on the report of the de facto complainant against five accused persons - Caste of A.1 to A.3 is shown as Yatha and the caste of A.4 and A.5 is shown as Gavara and they are not the scheduled castes or scheduled tribes and the de facto complainant shown his profession as Church Pastor and still as S.C. Mala in report - Police after investigation filed final report referring case as mistake of fact and a notice is also issued to de facto complainant - After receipt of notice, de facto complainant raised protest application - In course of investigation by police as many as seven witnesses were examined - Very report of de facto complainant vis-à-vis statement of him recorded during investigation clearly speaks that he is working as Pastor of Christ Sangam Church from year 2004 - The de facto complainant stated that he constructed the Church having purchased land and firstly he erected Church in a thatched shed and later in year 2007-08 he constructed a slabbed Church building and he further saying there is mettu way to go to Church from road - Neighbors are picking up quarrel with him for using way and that is root cause for present crime.

Petitioners there from sought for quashing of the private P.R.C. pending for committal supra besides saying complaint engineered with false allegations to implicate them by abusing the socalled concession as if available under his impression, though otherwise not even available to invoke Sec.3(1)(x) of the Act as if member belongs to SC/ST - Other contention is there are no worth ingredients from the case propounded by complainant to attract Secs.506 or 509 or 342 IPC against any of the five accused - Counter filed by the 2nd respondent-de facto complainant speaks, from the material papers while not in dispute, mere conversion to Christianity and/or professing Christianity no way ceases his original birth caste and thereby the proceedings are not liable to be quashed, for offences taken cognizance by learned Magistrate and hence to dismiss quash petition.

Held, once he is ceased to be a member of Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe by conversion into Christianity from words discussed particularly from the Order, 1950 amended by Act 63 of 1956 and later by Act 15 of 1990 and covered by Three-Judge Bench's well considered expression in Soosai's case that was not even referred to conclusion in another Three-Judge Bench expression in Chandra Mohanan's case, de facto complainant for no longer continues as a member of Scheduled Caste from facts supra and when not entitled to benefit of Sec.3 of the Act, prosecution invoking Sec.3(1)(x) of the Act is unsustainable and cognizance taken as P.R.C. is unsustainable and liable to be quashed.

Even coming to other penal provisions by Secs.149, 323, 342, 352, 506 and 509 of IPC are concerned (protest petition against five accused), prima facie there is no wrongful confinement defined u/Sec.341 of IPC punishable u/Sec.342 of IPC as from very say in report to police what was alleged, is they were obstructed by disputing entitlement to proceed from their alleged property to enter into Church from road, there is nothing to say wrongful restraint or wrongful confinement there in - Even undisputedly this is a matter of Civil dispute seized by Civil Court - Coming to Secs.323 or 504 or 352 of IPC, Court finds that these allegations are included to make a claim mainly to rope under substantial allegation of abuse on caste name as an after thought to civil litigation and thereby cognizance taken for other offences also liable to be quashed - It is needless to say, paramount consideration u/Sec.482 of Cr.P.C. irrespective of any allegations made to decide is, in rendering substantial justice and not mere enforcement of law - Having regard to above, Court is constrained to quash P.R.C. proceedings to sub-serve the ends of justice - Having regard to above, Criminal Petition is allowed and all proceedings relating to P.R.C. are quashed. Chinni Appa Rao Vs. State of A.P. 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 246 = 2016(1) ALD (Crl) 545.

—Secs.3(1) (ix) (x) and 4 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.156(3) & 200 & 482 - 2nd respondnet filed Private complaint against petitioner/accused stating that petitioner A1 made her to stand in front of her putting her legs in chair and treated her indiscrimination intentionally as she belongs to Schedule caste and also insulted her in name of caste and that petitioenr did not allow her to sit in her classes and whenever she forcibly sits in class, A1 would say that "if this lady (complainant) is sitting in my class I dont take class)" - Magistrate referred case, u/Sec.156(3) Cr.P.C to SHO of Police Station for investigation - Petitioners 1 to 5/A1 to A5 contend that they are working in cadre of Associate Professor, Professor and Director of N.I.T. Warangal, and are leading respectable life in Society and they are falsely implicated in this crime even though they are nothing to do with alleged offence - Petitioners/ accused further contend that entire complaint does not even remotely suggest attraction of any provisions of Act, much less ingredients of Secs.3(1)(ix)(x)& 4 of Act, and that 2nd respondnet/complaint has taken help of Media for redressal of her grievance by falsely attributing mala fides and later went on relay hunger strike in order to pressurize Authorities of N.I.T to give her promotion contray to Guide lines and Scheme and when she could not succeed in all her attempts, he lodged present complaint taking advantage of caste that there is no provision for anticipatory bail undr Act and therefore present complaint filed by 2nd respondent is vxatious and frivolous and if prosecution against petitioners is allowed to be cotinued it is nothing but abuse of process of law - 2nd respondent/complainant contends that basing on private complaint, Magistrate having found prima facie material forwarded to same to police u/Sec.156(3) Cr.P.C for investigation and acordingly investigation was startd and same is in progress, and number of witnesses were examined and therefore, at this stage, Court cannot go into merits of case and that averments of complaint squarly fall under definition Ses.3 (1) (ix)(x) of Act and that inherent powers u/Sec.482 Cr.P.C cannot be exercised as complaint will not come under exceptional case sand any finding on subject matter at the stage is premature - In this case, complainant has not annexed her caste certificate and also did not enclose earlier Representations said to have been made to higher Authorities and it is also alleged in complaint that she went on hunger strike against Administration of petitioners - Filing of private complaint afer went on hunger strike shows that conduct of complainant and that filing of complaint and referring to Police on same day as requested by complainant is very strange and that Magistrate simply forwarded and did not scrutinize even contents of complaint and truly a silent spectator at time of forwarding complaint to Police u/Sec.156(3) for investigation - Present case is a classic illustration of non-application of mind by Magistrate - Even prima facie, allegations in privte complaint do not constitute offence under which complaint is filed - In this case, allegations made in complaint are so absurd and inherently impropable more particularly in this case, 2nd respondent-complaint set criminal law in motion with a view to harass petitioners and arrayed them as accused in complaint which is nothing but abuse of process of law - Proceedings against petitioners A-1 to A-5 in Crime are quashed - Criminal Petition, allowed. Dr.B.Lakshmi, Warangal Vs. State of A.P. 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 122 = 2012(2) ALD (Crl) 655 (AP) = 2012(3) ALT (Crl) 149 (AP).

—Sec.3(1)(x) – INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.306 & 107 – Deceased was in love with A1 and moved together for three years and subsequently A1 refused to marry stating that she belongs to “Madiga” caste and his parents also refused to perform marriage – Allegation that accused abeted deceased to commit suicide and also abused her and her parents naming their caste – Special Judge convicting accused - Appellant/Accused contends that there is no consistency in ‘dying declarations’ and admittedly father of deceased is Balija by caste and his offspring would be none other than Balija and will not get status of ‘Madiga’ and very charge u/Sec.3(1)(x) of Act is bad in law - Prosecution contends that it is only on account of refusal to marry, deceased had taken extreme step of committing suicide and such refusal is intentionally aiding, which definitely amounts to abetment, within meaning of Sec.107 IPC – Since P.W.1 admittedly belongs to Madiga caste deceased also belongs to Madiga caste and therefore conviction of accused for offence u/Secs.306 IPC and 3(1)(x) of Act, sustainable - In this case, cause for deceased to take extreme steps of committing suicide is refusal by A1 to marry and on account of refusal is suicide by deceased, and thus there is a cause and an act, - If it can be said that cause is end result of death/suicide, then it can definitely be said that it is intentionally aiding - It is true that suicide by deceased was solely on account of 1st accuused’s refusal to marry – That may be cause for her to take extreme step of committing suicide, but it cannot be said that 1st accused has intentionally aided or abeted deceased to commit suicide – There may be so many reasons for individual to take extreme step of committing suicide - In instant case, definitely that cause for deceased to commit suicide is refusal of accused to marry her but it cannot be said that said refusal is intentional aiding, as defined u/Sec.107 IPC – Contention that refusal amounts to intentional aiding cannot be accepted and accused cannot be held to be guilty of offence u/Sec.306 - When once father of deceased is admitted to be a member belong to Balija caste, it cannot be said that deceased is Madiga by caste so as to attract provisions of Act – Appellants/accused are not guilty of offences for which they are tried - Trial Court erred in finding them guilty – Conviction, set aside – Appeals, allowed. M.Ramesh Vs. State of A.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 57 = 2009(1) ALD (Crl) 22 (AP) = 2009(1) ALT (Crl) 286 (AP).

—Sec.3(x) & Sec.3(1)(iv) - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - Petition to quash FIR - 2nd respondent belong to Erukala Caste lodged complaint against petitioners who are adjacent owners of their land, alleging that they entered into their land abused them in filthy language in the name of their caste and threatened them - Basing on said complaint Police registered case against petitioners for offence punishable u/ Sec.3(x) - In this case, there is nothing on record to show that no offence is made out as per allegations made in FIR - Authorities and Police Officers must consider that Sec.3(1) (iv) of Act envisages that who ever not being Member of Schedule Caste and Schedule Tribe wrongfully occupies or cultivates any land owned by or allotted to, or notified by any competent authority to be allotted to member of Schedule Caste or Schedule Tribe or gets land allotted to him transferred, shall be punishable with imprisonment under provisions of Act - Therefore, whereever a Schedule Tribe or Schedule Caste is wrongfully dispossess or where any interference is made with their enjoyment of rights over land should register case under relevant provisions of Act - No merits in petition - Criminal petition, dismissed. Nerella Veeranjaneyulu Vs. State 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 183 = 2012(1) ALD (Crl) 287 (AP) = 2012(1) ALT (Crl) 42 (AP).

—Secs.3(1) (x) - SCHEDULED CASTES AND SCHEDULED TRIBES (PREVENTION OF ATROCITIES) RULES, 1995, RULE 7 - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.323 - Appellants A1 to A3 who are father and sons belong to Reddy community convicted for abusing P.W.1/victim touching his "mala" caste and causing injuries - Appellants/accused contend that when offence took place at a public place on road near drinking water well, there is possibility of persons moving around scene at time of offence and failure of prosecution to examine independent witnesses is fatal to prosecution - Genesis of this incident appears to be unauthorized entry and movement of P.W.1 across garden land belonging to A1 and when A1 questioned P.W.1 about same P.W.1 became aggrieved and went away and after two days he gave Exhibit P.W.1 Report alleging abuses in name of his caste - Even as per prosecution case at place of incident, A-1's Agricultural land is there - In those circumstances lower Court did not appreciate evidence on record with reference to genesis of incident and came to erroneous conclusion in favour of prosecution - Reasoning and finding of guilt recorded by lower Court, not justified - Conviction and sentence, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Mogili Seshi Reddy Vs. Station House Officer, Jonnagiri P.S. Kurnool District 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 130 = 2012(1) ALD (Crl) 1 (AP) = 2012(1) ALT (Crl) 4 (AP).

—Sec.3(i)(x) – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.202 & 482 - Petitioner working as Controller Administration in NGRI & Second respondent working as Section Officer in finance of NGRI – Basing on Report of 2nd respondent complainant alleging that petitioner picked up quarrel with her and abused her in her cast name - Crime Registered punishable u/Sec.3(i)(x) of Act - Assistant Commissioner of Police investigated into case and referred case as "Lack of Evidence" - Hence complainant filed protest petition purportedly u/S.202 of Cr.P.C., and Magistrate took cognizance of offence and issued summons to petitioner and posted matter for evidence of complainant - Hence present petition filed by petitioner to quash entire proceedings in PRC - In this case considering all aspects investigating officer arrived at a conclusion that complainant bore grudge against petitioner and lodged a Report with police with exaggerated facts and with a delay of more than 24 hours without mentioning any reasons for said delay and that witnesses examined by him in course of investigation did not support version of complainant.

Cr.P.C. Sec.482 – Apex Court has laid down time and again the powers u/Sec.482 can be excised to quash Criminal Proceedings:

1) Where the allegations made in the First Information Report or the complainant, even if they are taken at their face value accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

2) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused; and

3) Where a criminal proceedings is manifestly attended with mala fide and / or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge - Therefore for purpose of arriving at a conclusion as to weather complaint or FIR can be quashed, High Court has to scrutinized allegations made in complaint or FIR with care and circumspection.

In the present case, facts and circumstances obviously appear that complainant lodged with intension to wreak vengeance against accused because of enmity with petitioner/accused and if this kind of criminal cases are allowed to continue, it would result in miscarriage of justice since allegations made in complaint are so absurd and they inherently improbable - Proceedings against petitioner in PRC on file of Magistrate are quashed - Criminal petition allowed. Ch.Srinivasa Rao Vs. State 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 315 = 2014(1) ALD (Crl) 749 (AP) = 2014(3) ALT (Crl) 85 (AP).

—Sec.3(1)(x) - Petition is filed under Sec. 482 of Cr.P.C seeking to quash proceedings in FIR No. 270 of 2014 - Police registered FIR basing on a report given by one Jatoth Gutta of Kistuthanda Chinnavangara, belonging to Scheduled Tribe.

SCHEDULED CASTES AND SCHEDULED TRIBES (PREVENTION OF ATROCITIES) ACT, 1989:

Held, so from referred judgments, it is clear that irrespective of the place of offence being a 'public place' or 'private place', it must be within 'public view' i.e. member/members of public present and witnessed incident to constitute an offence under Sec. 3 (1)(x) of SC & ST Act - Coming to the instant case, the complaint allegations would read as if the offence took place in house of petitioner/accused, but it is not mentioned about 'public view'. As such, from the facts, it must be held that offence under Sec. 3 (1)(x) of SC & ST Act is not made out as per law and continuation of investigation will thereby amount to abuse of process of law - In the result, this Criminal Petition is allowed and proceedings in FIR are hereby quashed. P. Bhaskar Raju Vs. The State of Telangana, 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 325

—Sec.3(1)(x) – CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 – Petitioners /A1 to A3 filed suit against Defacto-Complainant for declaration and Injunction in respect of certain extent of land, Defacto-Complainant contesting same - Defacto-Complainant filed private complaint against petitioners alleging that while he was conducting agricultural operations in said land, petitioners came with a tractor and tried to plough land and when Defacto- Complainant obstructed, petitioner abused him and his people in name of their caste and threatened with dire consequences - Magistraten forwarded case to police for investigation and crime registered by police - Hence Criminal petition to quash investigation - Admittedly Civil suit is pending in respect of said land between Defacto- Complainant and petitioner – Whenever there is dispute between parties in relation to property and complaint is made u/Sec3(1)(x), Court is under duty to scrutinize allegation with care under circumspection - To attract offence under Act utterances made must be in name of cast and should be with intention to humiliate or intimidate person belonging to Scheduled Cast and Scheduled Tribe in place with public view - In this case it is highly difficult to gather such an intention on part of petitioners under utterances cannot said to be made in place with a public view – Hence it does not attract offence punishable u/Sec.3(1)(x) Act - If Investigation is allowed to continue in case of this nature it is nothing but abuse of process of law and ultimately it would result in miscarriage of justice - Criminal petition allowed. Parsa Somaiah Vs. State of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 125

—Sec.3 (1) (x) - INDIAN PENAL CODE, Secs.354 & 323 CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.482 - "Quashing of FIR" - 2nd respondent /De facto complainant gave Report that petitioners/accused 1,3 & 4 outraged modesty of his wife and abused him touching upon his community - Petitioners/accused 1, 3 & 4 filed present petition seeking for quashment of FIR registered against them u/Sec.354 IPC as well as u/Secs.3 & 5 of S.C & S.T. Act - In this case, there is no any specific overt act against any of accused and that sweeping statement that accused molested wife and outraged her modesty is not making out prima facie case against petitioners for offence u/Sec.354 IPC - Hence complaint is liable to be quashed in so far as case is u/sec.354 IPC - There is no evidence that any person witnessed incident to consider that offence under Sec.3(1)(x) of Act occurred within "public view" - In body of complaint also, no averment was made as to who witnessed incident apart from accused and victim, defacto- complainant and his wife - Accused and victims cannot be considered to be "public" within meaning of Sec.3(1)(x) - Private complaint is liable to be quashed as against petitioners- Petition, allowed. J.Chinna @ Naresh Kumar Vs. The State of A.P. 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 90 = 2012(2) ALD (Crl) 686 (AP) = 2012(3) ALT (Crl) 296 (AP).

—Sec.3(1)(x) – INDIAN PENAL CODE, Sec.506 – Second Respondent de-facto complainant Sarpanch of village belonging to Madiga community alleged that petitioner/ Panchayat Secretary taking advantage of his innocence made him to put is signatures on some cheques and other papers withdrew funds of Gram Panchayat and utilized them for his own purposes and when requested to reimburse misappropriated public fund petitioner abused him in filthy language touching his caste - Subsequently second respondent lodged written Report to police and on such report case registered against the petitioner for offence punishable u/Sec.506 of I.P.C and Sec.3(1)(x) of SC & ST Act - Petitioner contend that second respondent misappropriated funds of Gram Panchayat and on representation by villagers District Panchayat Officer caused enquiry and subsequently Collector also issued notice to second respondent that he misused his powers and misappropriated certain amounts and failed to give explanation to show-cause notice and therefore he has to repay the said amount within seven days from date of receipt of notice - In this case most crucial aspect which requires consideration is that long prior to lodging of Report second respondent, De-facto complainant threatened petitioner to implicate him in false cases under provisions of Act and this fact also was brought to notice of Collector Panchayat Wing by petitioner – Therefore there is documentary proof in regard to statement made by petitioner and obviously threats were hurled by second respondent to implicate petitioner in false charges under provisions of Act - In this case petitioner was never directed to repay any amount - Therefore, version that when second respondent De-facto complainant asked misappropriated amount altercations between both of them and in course of said altercation petitioner abused de facto complainant seems to be inherently improbable and ex facie false and it would clearly appear that certain allegation was invented by de facto complainant for purpose of fixing petitioner under false charge under Act - Main object of exercise of powers u/Sec.482 of Cr.P.C is to prevent abuse of process of law and miscarriage of justice for such purpose can certainly subject allegations leveled in FIR/Charge sheet to find as to wheather there is falsity or absurdity which is inherent in very allegations – In this case, allegations made in FIR and also Prima facie absurd and false and if on basis of said allegation, petitioner who is a Panchayat Secretary is forced to undergo ordeal Sessions trial, it is nothing but abuse of process of law - Charge sheet Quashed - Criminal Petition allowed. Punugoti Naga Kiran Kumar Vs. State of A.P. 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 141 = 2014(2) ALD (Crl) 39 (AP).

—Secs. 4,3 & 18 - CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE. Secs.2(a),26(b)(ii), First Schedule and Sec.438 - "Anticipatory bail" - Petitioner/accused is alleged to have given a depressing picture in investigating cases registered under provisions of SC & ST, Act and therefore, registered case against him for offence punishable u/sec. 4 of Act - Petitioner filed application u/sec. 438 of Cr.P.C. seeking anticipatory bail - State contends that application is not maintainable in view of bar u/Sec. 18 of Act and also on ground that offence u/Sec. 4 of Act is bailable - Sec.18 of Act states that nothing in Sec. 438 Cr.P.C. shall apply in relation to any case involving arrest of any person on an accusation of having committed an offence under Act - From reading of Sec. 18 of Act, it is clear that bar under Sec. 438 Cr.P.C. shall apply when a person commits offences under Act in which he is liable to be arrested. Arresting a person would arise only if he commits an offence which is non bailable – Since punishment prescribed u/Sec. 4 of Act is an imprisonment up to 1 years and in view of First Schedule to Cr.P.C, said offence has to be treated as bailable - Ergo, though offence under Sec. 4 of Act is made punishable with maximum imprisonment of one year and triable by Special Court, presided over by Sessions Judge, same has to be treated as bailable offence - Hence Application u/Sec.438 Cr.P.C. cannot be entertained - Criminal petition, dismissed. Thati Venkata Nagaraju Vs. State of A.P. 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 438

SECURITIZATION AND RECONSTRUCTION OF FINANCIAL ASSETS AND ENFORCEMENT OF SECURITY INTEREST ACT, 2002

—Petitioner, a successful bidder of the auction conducted by respondent No.3, filed the instant writ petition praying to declare the action of respondent No.3 in forfeiting the amount deposited by him, on the ground that when the e-auction notice, dated 22-09-2012, was issued by respondent No.2/Indian Overseas Bank, pendency of S.A. before the Debts Recovery Tribunal is not notified therein - Held, the respondents not only failed to mention about pendency of the S.A. before the DRT in the e-auction notice, but also when the auction was held on 25-10-2012, on which day, petitioner deposited Rs.6,62,500/- towards 25% of sale price, he was not made known about pendency of S.A. Only when respondent No.3 issued letter, dated 6-11-2012, confirming sale of the property in favour of petitioner for a total sale consideration of Rs.26,50,000/-, a clause was incorporated therein that sale confirmation was subject to outcome of the S.A. pending before the DRT - This conduct of respondents is sufficient enough to accede to request of the petitioner in setting aside forfeiture letter, which respondent sought to construe that it was an order of forfeiture, dated 06-02-2013 forfeiting amount of Rs.6,62,500/-, which was deposited by petitioner towards 25% of sale price of bid and direct respondents to return said amount to petitioner - With above directions, writ petition is allowed. K.Chandrasekhar Vs. Govt. of India 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 298 = 2015(6) ALD 185.

—and SECURITY INTEREST (ENFORCEMENT) RULES, 2002: —When the Tribunal has got power to stay the proceedings, it has also got power to impose conditions, as it may consider appropriate and necessary - Contention of the learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner is that prima facie finding operates as res judicata - Certain observations or findings made while disposing of the interlocutory application, cannot be said to be a finding or ratio laid down - If the ratio is laid down in the interlocutory order, then such a ratio can be said to operate as res judicata in subsequent proceedings - If it is a final decision, parties are refrained from re-agitating same point at the subsequent stage of proceedings - Therefore, under no stretch of imagination it can be said that finding of observation given by this court at interlocutory stage has finally determined rights of parties - It is a prima facie view taken by this court for purpose of disposal of miscellaneous petition in writ petition - Therefore, contention that prima facie finding operates as res judicata cannot be accepted - Sec.17 of the SARFAESI Act can be invoked by the debtor – Sec.18 deals with a different situation, where any order passed by the Debts Recovery Tribunal is appealable before the appellate authority - So, both provisions are two independent provisions and they cannot be read together - Therefore, when a dispute has been finally resolved, notwithstanding fact that appellate authority has got a power, debtor has got power to file an appeal before appellate authority.....there is an effective alternative remedy available to the petitioner as contemplated under Sec.18 of the Act. .....it is not such an extraordinary case where pleading of petitioner can be struck down because direction of Tribunal or direction of this court has not been complied with, and it cannot be a ground to arrive at a conclusion that it is a case to strike down pleadings of writ petitioner. .....similarly order of this court has also not been complied with even after lapse of one year - Can it said to be an abuse of process of court, when writ petitioner for a variety of reasons may not be in a position to pay the amount - It is not case of 2nd respondent that in spite of having liquidated cash available with petitioner, it is not paying the amount wilfully or wantonly to avoid its liability - Under those circumstances, it cannot be said that it is an abuse of process of court. Deccan Chronicies Holing Ltd. Vs. Debt Recovery Tribunal, 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 339 = 2015(1) ALD 236 = 2015(3) ALT 40.

—Sec. 13(2) - Since the borrowers failed to repay the loan, steps were initiated under Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 - A demand notice u/Sec.13(2) of the Act was issued on 02.05.2006 followed by a possession notice on 06.08.2006 - Later on, an auction notice was issued on 22.02.2007 which was published in Indian Express and Prajasakthi on 28.02.2007 fixing the auction on 30.03.2007 - Three bidders participated in the auction and the bid of the 2nd accused was found to be highest and sale certificate was issued in his favour on 02.06.2007 - After adjusting the amount outstanding to the loan amount, balance amount was put in fixed deposit at request of 3rd respondent on 03.06.2007 - Thereafter, at the request of the 3rd respondent, the fixed deposit proceeds were transferred to the account of the 3rd respondent at Bangalore on 17.12.2007 - The 3rd respondent initially filed a complaint before the Banking Ombudsman and the same was rejected on 06.11.2007 on the ground that the complaint requires consideration on elaborate documentary and oral evidence - Thereafter, the 3 rd respondent filed petition before the District Consumer Disputes Redressal Forum, and the same also dismissed on 27.07.2009 - It appears that when said complaint was pending, he filed a complaint on 30.06.2008 before the Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate at Secunderabad, against the petitioner as accused No.3, the then Chief Manager/ Authorized Officer as accused No.1 and the auction purchaser as accused No.2 alleging that they committed offences u/Secs.420, 415, 418, 464, 477(A), 506 and 409 of Indian Penal Code - Learned Magistrate referred the complaint to the 2nd respondent for investigation and the same was registered as FIR - 2nd respondent issued a notice to Chief Manager of Bank on 26.02.2009 to attend police station in person - Chief Manager attended police station and explained case - Thereafter, the 2nd respondent issued a letter on 18.07.2009 to furnish information on loan account and same was furnished to him on 07.08.2009 - Another letter was issued on 07.11.2009 calling for various documents and same was also furnished on 05.01.2010 - Again letters dated 25.03.2010 and 27.03.2010 were issued calling for some more documents - At that stage, this writ petition was filed on 06.04.2010 - This writ petition was admitted on 07.04.2010 and stay of all further proceedings in FIR was granted - Held, facts unfold a case of harassment of the officers of the Bank for discharging their lawful duties - There may be procedural lapses or irregularities which can be remedied in the regular channels provided under provisions of the SARFAESI Act - Invocation of the criminal proceedings is surely not an alternative remedy except for the purpose of harassing the officers - Very complaint is not maintainable and its reference to Police is unwarranted - Learned Magistrate should have looked into the allegations in the complaint and should not have ordered for investigation in a routine manner - This is a clear case of non-application of mind by the learned Magistrate who ought to have taken the legal provisions and binding precedents into account - In view of the above facts, clear legal provisions and the case law on this aspect, the FIR is liable to the quashed and accordingly quashed - Writ Petition is allowed. State Bank of India Vs. State of A.P. 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 320 = 2015(6) ALD 665.

—Secs.13(2) & 13(12) - SECURITY INTEREST (ENFORCEMENT) RULES, 2002, Rule 3 - Possession notice - Petitioner availed loan from 1st respondent/Bank by mortgaging immovable property - Since financial asset transferred treated loan as nonperforming asset (NPA), respondent got issued notice of demand u/Sec.13(2) - Since petitioner failed to comply with notice of demand respondent issued possession notice u/Sec.13(4) informing that secure asset has been taken possession and general public were cautioned not to deal with property - Petitioner contends that basis for possession notice being notice of demand issued by Advocate of second respondent who is not authorized Officer entire proceedings are unsustainable or vitiated - Respondents contend that when notice is counter signed by authorised officer of second respondent, action initiated under Act is not vitiated - Any person aggrieved, has to necessarily approach DRT having jurisdiction u/Sec.17(1) of Act and if any adverse order is passed such person can even approach DRT - In this case, however, though possession notice was issued by authorised person of second respondent, same is based on a notice of demand issued by advocate of 2nd respondent which is without jurisdiction and ultra vires - Impugned order, set aside - Writ petition, allowed. Sampoorna Battu Vs. ICICI Bank 2012(1) Law Summary (AP) 302 = 2012(3) ALD 245 = 2012(3) ALT 418.

—Secs.13 (2) & 17 (7), R/W RULE 4 OF SECURITY INTEREST (ENFORCEMENT) RULES - GUIDELINES ISSUED BY RESERVE BANK OF INDIA - Petitioner availed loan from respondent/Bank and committed default in payment of instalments - Pursuant to notice from Bank, petitioner paid all amounts and approached Bank to liquidate remainder of liability - Inspite, respondent/Bank insisted for payment of further amount towards securitisation expenses incurred by it and impugned notice got published inviting sealed bids for sale of security assets - Petitioner contends that tender notice published inviting bids has not bothered to verify as to whether account has become a non performing asset (NPA) and that Bank has no authority to reject to receive balance outstanding amount from borrower until and unless securitisation expenses are also paid up simultaneously - Respondent/Bank contends that though petitioner has paid substantial amounts after issuance of notice u/Sec. 13(2), his liability was outstanding together with costs of Rs.1.9 lakhs as claimed by Recovery agent and that Bank is legitimate and justified in demanding amount towards securitisation expenses - Sec.13(7) - A mere look at provision contained under sub-sec.7 would indicate that all such costs, charges and expenses which have been properly incurred by secured creditor and any other expenses incidental thereto to be recovered from Banker - In this case, substantial amount has already been charged to borrower - One can perhaps understand these amounts representing proper expenditure - These expenses have been incurred by respondent/Bank for securing realization of secured asset by way of its sale - Therefore, they can legitimately pass muster in terms of Sec.13(7) - However, what baffled is statement made in counter affidavit filed by respondent/Bank that borrower is liable to pay further sum of Rs.1.9 lakhs for payment to Recovery agent - Respondent/Bank has intended to outsource services of Recovery agent or Enforcement agent as supplementing measure to efforts of recovery which Bank Officials themselves are required to undertake - A very handsome commission of not less then 10% recovery amount has been indicated has payable towards commission to these professional recovery/Enforcement agents - Granting of exorbitant amount of commission to recovery agents and enforcement agents at minimum rate of 10%, is too excessive and disproportionate to nature of work liable to be performed by them - Claim of respondent/Bank that sum of Rs.1.9 lakhs payable to Recovery agent held as exorbitant and unreasonable - Petitioner directed to pay sum of Rs.15,000/- towards proper expenses in this regard - Bank not justified in proposing to charge petitioner a further sum of Rs.1.9 lakhs in terms of Sec.13(7) - Since petitioner liquidated entire liability, directed respondent/Bank to treat petitioner to have been freed from all further obligations - Writ petition, allowed. Badugu Vijayalakshmi Vs. Authorised Officer & Chief Manager, SBI, Chirala 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 119.

—Secs.13(4),17, 34 & 35 - Respondents 1 to 3 - Fruit processing partnership Firm availed financial assistance for its business purpose by pledging property belonging to 4th respondent who is son partner in partnership Firm - Appellant initiated proceedings under Act and has taken possession of mortgaged property through its Authorize Officer - Respondents 1 to 3 filed suit contending that there is title dispute as such civil Court has jurisdiction and obtained temporary injunction from civil Court against appellant restraining Bank from taking steps for sale of the properties under Securitisation Act - Appellant contends that in view of provisions u/Sec.34 of Act, civil Court has not having any jurisdiction either to entertain suit or to grant injunction orders restraining appellant Bank from taking action in pursuance of power conferred under Act for recovery of debt and if respondents/plaintiffs are aggrieved of steps taken by u/Sec.13(4) of Act there is remedy of appeal u/Sec.17 of Act before DRT and without availing remedy of appeal by-passing same - Respondent approached civil Court and inspite of bar of suit, trial Court granted injunction - In view of judgment of Supreme Court considering scope of Provisions u/Sec.13, 17 & 34 of Act, case of appellant to accept bar u/Sec.35 of Act and also overriding effect of Provisions of Act given u/Sec.35 coupled with remedy provided to aggrieved parties u/Sec.17(2) of Act - Order of injunction, granted by civil Court, set aside - CMA, allowed. Canara Bank, Khammam Branch, Vs. Jetti Samba Siva Rao 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 221 = 2014(3) ALD 92 = 2014(2) ALT 588 = AIR 2014 AP 67.

—Sec.14 - These writ petitions are posted before Full Bench to answer question framed in order of reference, which is as under:

"Whether the Chief Judicial Magistrate exercising his jurisdiction in Corporation area can assist secured creditor in taking possession of secured asset and pass an order in favour of secured creditor for the purpose of taking possession or control of any secured asset?"

Held, intention of Legislature was to achieve speedier recovery of dues without intervention of Tribunals of Courts and for quick resolution of disputes arising out of action taken for recovery of such dues - Ergo, by conferring jurisdiction on an authority to exercise power of assistance, which, his counterpart in a Metropolitan area, is exercising, Court is not interpreting provision in a different manner so as to negate intent of Legislature - Giving jurisdiction to Chief Judicial Magistrates in non-metropolitan area, who are exercising same functions as that of Chief Metropolitan Magistrates in metropolitan areas, would not in any way abrogate or contradict words used in Sec.14 of the SARFAESI Act, thereby causing prejudice to any of parties - On other hand, it would hasten process of rendering assistance to secured creditors to recover possession of their assets thereby achieving object for which SARFAESI Act has been introduced.

For the aforesaid reasons, Bench answer reference holding that nomenclature "Chief Metropolitan Magistrate" referred to in Sec.14 is inclusive of "Chief Judicial Magistrate" in non-metropolitan area and as such Chief Judicial Magistrate in a non-metropolitan area gets jurisdiction to entertain an application u/Sec.14 of the SARFAESI Act, 2002 - These writ petitions are directed to be placed before appropriate Bench for hearing on merits in light of observations made in this judgment. T.R.Jewellery S.P.S.R. Nellore Dt. Vs. State Bank of India 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 253 = 2016(2) ALD164 = 2016(2) ALT 226.

—Secs.17 & 34 - Bank of India advanced loan to 10th respondent./Auto Mobiles under equitable mortgage - Since respondent committed default in repayment, Bank auctioned said property - Appellant/auction purchaser became highest bidder and property settled in his favour - Some other respondents filed suit claiming property as Joint Family property - DRT dismissed suit - Respondents filed suit in civil Court and same upheld by High Court holding that Civil Court has jurisdiction since properties are joint family properties - Any matter inrespect of which an auction may be taken even later on, Civil Court shall have no jurisdiction to entertain any proceedings thereof - Bar of Civil Court applies to all matters which may be taken cognizance of DRT - Civil Court jurisdiction is completely barred, so far as "measure" taken by secured creditor u/Sub-sec.(4) of Sec.13 of Act - In instant case, Bank proceeded only against secured assets of borrowers on which no rights of respondents have been crystalised before creating secured interest in respect of secured assets - High Court is in error in holding that only civil Court has jurisdiction to examine as to whether measures taken by secured creditor under Act are legal or not - Judgment of High Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Jagidish Singh Vs. Heeralal 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 256 = 2014(1) ALD 46 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 6378 = AIR 2014 SC 371.

—Secs.17(1) & (7), 18(1) & (2)m 36 & 37 - RECOVERY OF DEBTS DUE TO BANKS AND FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS ACT, 1993 - LIMITATION ACT, Sec.29 & 24 - Appeal and I.A preferred before Debt Recovery Appellate Tribunal (DRAT) against order of Debt Recovery Tribunal (DRT), questioning the possession taken over by respondents/ Bank with regard to security asset - Petitioner preferred appeal before DRAT along with application seeking condonation of delay of 16 days in filing said appeal - DRAT dismissed I.A placing reliance upon decision of Madhya Pradesh High Court holding that u/Sec.18 of SARFAESI, Act, 2002, Appellate Tribunal DRAT has no power to condone delay in presentation of Appeal - Hence present Writ Petition - Though Sec.17 of SARFAESI Act styled as a right to appeal, it is, in fact, a forum for original proceedings against security measures - Sub-Sec.7 of Sec.17 provides that any Application made u/Sec.17 of SARFAESI Act shall be disposed of in accordance with provisions of DRT Act and Rules made there under - Sec.18 of Act provides right to appeal to DRAT against orders of DRT passed under Sec.17 of SARFAESI Act - Such appeal is also required to be disposed of in accordance with provisions of DRT Act and Rules made thereunder - Tribunal and appellate Tribunal while discharging there functions exercise same powers as are vested in civil Court under CPC, while trying a suit in respect of specified as above - There is no express exclusion of Limitation Act under SARFAESI Act and so far as DRT Act is concerned under which DRT and DRAT function and entertain original and appellate proceedings under SARFAESI Act, clearly exercise powers of civil Court under CPC and in addition, Limitation Act is expressly made applicable u/Sec.24 of DRT Act - In view of that Sec.29(2) of Limitation Act is clearly attracted and thereby Sec.4 to 24 (inclusive) of limitation Act would be applicable to proceedings u/Sec.17 and 18 of SARFAESI Act before DRT as well as DRAT - Consequently therefore order impugned passed by DRTA rejecting petitioners application for condonation of delay for want of jurisdiction is liable to be set aside - Provisions of Sec.5 of Limitation Act are applicable to proceedings before DRAT u/Sec.18 of SARFAESI Act - Impugned order, set aside - DRAT directed to consider petitioner's application for condonation of delay afresh on merits and pass appropriate orders in accordance with law - Writ petition, allowed. Sajida Begum Vs. State Bank of India, SARC Nampally, Hyderabad 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 187 = 2012(6) ALD 69 = 2012(6) ALT 130.

——and Rule 8(1) of the Security Interest (Enforcement) Rules, 2 - Petitioner alleged that 7th respondent failed to deposit 25% of bid amount on day of auction and also failed to deposit balance 75% within fifteen days - Petitioner further contended that sale was contrary to mandate of SARFAESI Act and the Rules of 2002 - Significantly, petitioner raised issue of postponement of sale from 01.07.2015 to 15.07.2015, but same was brushed aside on ground that petitioner, being applicant therein, was fully aware of extension of date of auction and Tribunal held that sale could not be set aside on this ground - Tribunal seems to have been of opinion that as petitioner and his family members were not coming forward to pay bank's dues, technical issue as to extension of date of auction did not warrant quashing of sale - Before this Court, petitioner again contended that bank had no power or authority to postpone sale from 1-7-2015 to 15-7-2015 without issuing a fresh sale notice - Therefore, Petitioner herein called in question said order given by Tribunal.

In its counter-affidavit, bank stated that after issuance of auction sale notice dated 29.05.2015 to borrowers under Rule 8(6) of Rules of 2002, it published same in newspapers on 30.05.2015, notifying date of auction as 1-7-2015 - The bank further stated that as bidders had problems logging in due to non-availability of digital signatures, its Authorised Officer extended date of auction sale to 15-7-2015 - Publication of postponement of auction sale was carried out in Newspaper on 1-7-2015 - The bank stated that on 15-7-2015, sale was knocked down in favour of 7th respondent and a sale certificate was issued on 13-8-2015 - The bank however admitted that actual possession of secured asset sold was not taken despite issuance of sale certificate.

SECURITIZATION AND RECONSTRUCTION OF FINANCIAL ASSETS AND ENFORCEMENT OF SECURITY INTEREST ACT, 2002

Held, Authorised Officer of bank could not have resorted to postponing date of auction even by 15 days by taking recourse to Rule 15 Schedule-II, Part-1 of Income Tax Act, 1961 - Once sale did not take place on 1-7-2015, due to a reason not at all attributable to petitioner, bank necessarily had to take recourse to proceedings afresh from the stage of Rule 8(6) of the Rules of 2002 - The auction sale held on 15-7-2015 was therefore incurably tainted by illegality and cannot be sustained - Once said sale is held to be illegal, consequential steps taken, by way of confirmation and issuance of a sale certificate, would be equally unsustainable in law - In present case, bank admits that sale was held on 15-7-2015 but strangely goes on to state that confirmation thereof took place on next day, i.e., 16-7-2015 - This methodology was itself alien to procedure contemplated under Rule 9 of the Rules of 2002 - Provision clearly and categorically posits that purchaser must immediately pay 25% of sale price on day of sale itself - Further, if balance purchase price is not paid on or before 15th day from confirmation of sale, time can only be extended as agreed upon in writing by parties.

According to bank, 7th respondent/auction purchaser sought extension of time under its letter dated 29-7-2015 and same was granted by the bank up to 12-8-2015 - Perusal of bank's letter dated 29-7-2015 granting such extension does not reflect petitioner being taken into confidence or his consent being obtained for granting such extension. Polisetty Harinadh Vs. Authorized Officer, IOB, Visakhapatnam 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 180 = 2016(6) ALD 409 = 2016(6) ALT 59.

—and SECURITY INTEREST (ENFORCEMENT) RULES, 2002 - RECOVERY OF DEBTS DUE TO BANKS AND FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS ACT, 1993, Sec.3 - Petitioner herein sought for a Writ of Mandamus for declaring E-auction notice issued by Authorised Officer, proposing to sell immovable property, as illegal being contrary to provisions of the Securitization and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 and Rules 8(6) and 9 of Security Interest (Enforcement) Rules, 2002.

Principal borrower has committed default in making repayment of loan and other financial assistance availed by him - In those set of circumstances, 1st respondent–Bank has classified loan account as 'non performing asset' and hence initiated measures for securitisation of loan under Sub-section (2) of Section 13 of Act - Demand notice has not produced desired result as borrower and its two guarantors have not repaid outstanding liability of approximately of Rs.1.50crores - In those set of circumstances, authorised officer of 1st respondent–Bank, 2nd respondent herein, has drawn a notice under Sub-section (4) of Section 13 read with Rule 8 (6) of Security Interest (Enforcement) Rules, 2002 informing principal borrower and two guarantors, including petitioner herein that possession of secured asset described in schedule to sale notice enclosed thereto has been taken under Sub-section (4) of Section 13 of Act and hence authorised officer has proposed to sell assets through e-auction mode, for which purpose a last and final opportunity to discharge liability in full has been accorded to principal borrower and two guarantors, failing which sale of secured asset would be processed and undertaken - It is this notice, which triggered present writ petition.

Held, Supreme Court has clearly enunciated that a reading of sub-rule (6) of Rule 8 and sub-rule (1) of Rule 9 of Rules together, service of individual notice to borrower specifying a clear 30 days time gap for effecting sale of immovable secured asset is a Statutory mandate - Hence, use of expression 'or' found in Rule 9(1) of Rules is only appropriate to be read as 'and', as that alone would be in consonance with sub-section (8) of Section 13 of the Act - Court may also add that a notice of intended sale by providing a clear 30 days time to borrower preceding any decision to sell away secured asset would, in fact, be in consonance with mandate of provision contained in sub-section (8) of Section 13 of the Act, as it is too well known that Rules made under a Statute are only essentially intended to secure effective implementation of provisions contained in Statute - Court opinion, therefore, putting borrower on notice of 30 days duration by secured creditor conveying intention to put secured asset to sale is mandatory - Such notice would be applicable even if secured creditor later on decides to adopt any one of those four methods provided in clauses (a) to (d) of sub-rule (5) of Rule 8 of the Rules - As was already noticed supra, in cases of obtaining quotations from persons dealing with similar secured assets and also by entering into a private treaty, may not require publication of intended sale in newspapers - Hence, without, first of all, putting borrower on notice, threatening that prospects of liquidation of secured asset by any of methods specified under sub-rule (5) of Rule 8 of Rules would not only sub-serve object behind sub-section (8) of Section 13 of Act, but would, in fact, enhance efficacy of realising/securitising secured asset - As was already held by Court, secured asset is liable to be sold only in event of default persisting in liquidating liability - In other words, only when borrower commits a default in payment of outstanding liability, in spite of notice threatening with intended sale of secured asset, actual sale notification can follow, but not otherwise.

In instant case, secured creditor has put borrower on one single notice of sale, which was also published in two newspapers, but, he has not put borrower on a separate individual notice prior to deciding on mode of sale of secured asset - For this reason, Court opinion that sale undertaken pursuant to sale notification is vitiated for want of not providing opportunity of 30 days clear time before undertaking the actual sale.

Hence, allow writ petition, set aside sale, but however, Court preserve liberty to secured creditor to proceed further now by undertaking sale of secured asset, if borrower is still in default in clearing outstanding liability, by publishing afresh sale notification in accordance with sub-rule (6) of Rule 8 r/w. sub-rule (1) of Rule 9 of Rules.

M.Amarender Reddy Vs. Canara Bank 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 221 = 2016(5) ALD 354 = 2016(4) ALT 193.

SERVICE LAWS:

SERVICE LAWS:

—Bus Conductor - Removal from service - Traffic Inspector on checking found that respondent/conductor not issued tickets to some passengers and charged money to unused tickets and not mentioned destination and boarding places of passengers in waybills in order to misappropriate public money - Regional Manager passed order dismissing respondent from service and forfeited salary for suspension period - General Manager dismissed appeal filed by respondent - Asst. Managing Director dismissed second appeal - Labour Court set aside order of dismissal considering that punishment and penalty imposed on respondent was harsh in comparison to quantum of misconduct and it was reduced to stoppage of to increments in salary - High Court dismissed writ petition on ground that presumption that punishment of removal/dismissal from service is excessive - Contention that Labour Court and High Court had unnecessarily given consideration to amount involved without appreciating fact that conductor holds a post of trust and therefore punishment of removal from service awarded cannot be considered dis-proportionate - High Court passed order without appreciating fact that termination of service is very appropriate to seriousness of charge levied against respondent in view of fraud and misappropriation of money by respondent - Labour Court and High Court not justified in holding that punishment awarded was dis-proportionate - Punishment awarded by disciplinary authority as upheld by appellate authority, restored - Appeal, allowed. Uttaranchal Transport Corporation Vs. Sanjay Kumar Nautiyal 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 64.

—Bank Employee - Disciplinary action - Enquiry Officer submitted Report holding that charges framed against petitioner/employee are proved - 3rd respondent/disciplinary Authority disagreed with findings on one of charges and ultimately dismissed petitioner from service - 2nd respondent partly allowed appeal converting order of dismissal into one of removal from service - Petitioner contends that 3rd respondent committed procedural lapses and that order of dismissal does not contain any reasons, worth their name and that 3rd respondent has straightway recorded a finding contrary to Report of Enquiry Officer, even before submission of explanation - In this case, controversy is about one charge and it is always open to disciplinary authority to disagree with findings recorded by Enquiry Officer - Evidently 3rd respondent not only disagreed with findings of Enquiry Officer, but also held that another charge is prove and he did not give opportunity to petitioner before he held a charge proved, in disagreement with enquiry report - Such a course is totally impermissible in law - 3rd respondent, disciplinary authority is discharging administrative, if not quasi-judicial functions - Law requires that conclusions arrived at by authorities must be supported by reasons - Absence of reasons is prone to pave way per arbitrariness and subjectivity in whole exercise - 3rd respondent has disagreed with findings of enquiry officer on a charge and proceeded to hold same as proved, without inviting explanation or objection about it from petitioner - Order of dismissal passed by 3rd respondent, unsustainable since it is totally bereft of reasons - Modification of punishment of dismissal into one of removal hardly of any solace to petitioner - A semblance of relief granted by appellate authority cannot cure serious defect and a glaring illegality in hands of disciplinary authority - Impugned orders of disciplinary authority and appellate authority, set aside - Matter remanded to 3rd respondent for fresh consideration and disposal - Writ petition, allowed. B.V.Bhaskar Reddy, Kadapa Vs. State Bank of India 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2008(4) ALD 344 = 2008(3) ALT 592.

SERVICE LAWS:

—CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.226 - Petitioner/employee of SBI, in-charge of gold loan Accounts, dismissed from service for alleged conduct of non-accounting of some amount remitted to gold loan account - Enquiry Officer submitting report holding that charge against petitioner not proved - 2nd respondent/disciplinary authority passed order imposing punishment of dismissal - Contention that 2nd respondent misdirected himself, firstly when he straight away disagreed with findings of enquiry officer and secondly, when he stuck to his earlier stand, by stating certain reasons which are totally opposed to record - Having issued show cause notice, as to why he cannot disagree with findings of enquiry officer, 2nd respondent did not assign any reasons worth its name, and has reduced entire exercise, to a formality - Even while issuing show cause notice to petitioner directing him to explain as to why punishment of dismissal shall not be inflicted upon him, 2nd respondent observed that there are no extenuating circumstances warranting lessor form of punishment - Except he wanted to inflict punishment upon petitioner he was not mindful of record or evidence - When Presenting Officer himself was of view that petitioner cannot be said to have resorted to any act of misconduct, 2nd respondent improved upon entire matter - This is one of rare cases, where disciplinary authority disagree with findings of enquiry officer and held that charge is proved, though neither complainant was examined, nor complaint was made part of record - 2nd respondent acted in a most capricious, arbitrary and irrational manner and marred career of petitioner for no fault of his - Impugned order, set aside - Petitioner shall be reinstated into service forthwith with all attendant benefits and back wages - Writ petition, allowed. K.Suresh Babu Vs. Deputy General Manager 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 27 = 2008(5) ALD 479 = 2008(5) ALT 426.

—CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.226 - Charge-sheet filed against petitioner, driver of APSRTC for causing accident by hitting motor cyclist - Petitioner attained age of superannuation and charge-sheet issued before he retired and disciplinary proceedings continued and ultimately 2nd respondent imposed punishment of reduction of pay of petitioner by one incremental stage with cumulative effect - Petitioner contends that by time impugned order was passed, petitioner retired from service and question of reducing his pay by one incremental stage does not arise and that impugned order cannot have any effect upon retirement benefits of petitioner - Punishment of this nature would carry any meaning, if only an employee is in service, it does not result in any recovery of amount which has already been earned by employee in form of emoluments - Once petitioner had retired from service punishment of reducing his basic pay by one incremental stage is almost futile exercise - 2nd respondent not realized this and imposed punishment in routine manner - Respondents directed to release all retirement benefits to petitioner without any deduction. M.T.Rao Vs. A.P.S.R.T.C. Vizianagram 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 409 = 2008(5) ALT 10 = 2008(5) ALT 650.

— "Regularisation" - "Termination"-Appellants are appointed on daily wages in connection with some projects - Representation of appellants for regularisation of their services rejected and they are terminated from services - High Court dismissed writ petition filed by appellants - No person who is temporarily or casually been employed could be directed to be continued permanently - Appeal, dismissed.C.Balachandran Vs. State of Kerala 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 73.

SERVICE LAWS:

—Dakshin Bharath Hindi Prachara Sabha, Service Regulations, Regulation 20 - Petitioner Grade-1 Clerk of Sabha handed over letter of resignation to Manager of Office out of emotion on ground that Secretary insulted her before all staff members - Secretary issued proceedings accepting of resignation - Petitioner contends that competent authority of accept of resignation is only Board and Secretary not competent with power to accept resignation and that Regulation 20 stipulates, that a notice of 3 months for a permanent employee is necessary and there is no provision for waiver thereof - In this case, petitioner did not handover resignation to Secretary and he is not appointing authority - For all practical purposes Secretary provoked, if not forced her, to submit resignation and having been successful in his effort, he accepted it in utter violation of law and his action is highly objectionable and deplorable - Petitioner is permanent employee and termination of services at her instance could have been brought about, only by delivery of notice of not less than three months and there is no provision under regulations of waiver of this requirement - Therefore acceptance of resignation of petitioner is totally untenable and cannot be sustained in law - Respondent directed to reinstate petitioner forthwith - Writ petition, allowed. P.Gayathri Vs. The Secy., 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 97.

—Petitioner joined service of CISF in year 1981 as a washer- man submitting caste certificate issued by Police Patel to effect that he belongs to “Chakali” community - Respondents undertook verification of genuinity of certificate and about a quarter century thereafter required petitioner to obtain caste certificate from Competent Authorities - MRO issued certificate in year 2004 to effect that petitioner belongs “Chalaki-BC-A community” - Deputy Commandant CISF Unit issued Article of charge to petitioner alleging that he submitted incorrect caste certificate at time of recruitment and said charge was elaborated through statement of imputation - Petitioner contends that there is inconsistency between Article of charge on one hand and in statement of imputation on other and that there is clear error apparent on face of record in asmuch as allegation of submitting false certificate is made in it though no such averment was made in Article of charge - Respondents contend petitioner was appointed against post earmarked for SC category and that he made a representation to effect that he belongs to SC category - Petitioner contends that there is clear inconsistency in version of respondents and error apparent on face of record, since it is not explained as to how an individual who produces a caste certificate to effect that he belongs to a particular caste, can be appointed against a vacancy reserved in favour of a different category - Allegation against petitioner that he claimed status of SC candidate could have been substantiated, if only he made a specific representation in that regard, particularly through application - If there did not exist any Notification, nor did petitioner submit any application it was ununderstandable as to how respondents have drawn inference that petitioner made a representation to effect that he belongs to SC community - Even according to respondents, appointment was made in a course of a "Recruitment Rally" and that respondents are not clear about existence of any SC reservation of such post - In this case, respondents did not keep in view, basic tenet that disciplinary proceedings can be initiated in context of social status, if only, representation made at time of recruitment by an individual has turned out to be false,in subsequent verification - Post held by petitioner is that of Dhobi "washer-man" - He belongs to caste, known after that profession - He served organization in menial post for about three decades and at fag end of his service, he is being hounded with irrelevant, baseless and perverse proceedings and such a course cannot be permitted, in a country governed by Rule of Law - Impugned proceedings, set aside - Writ petition, allowed. P.Kumaraiah Vs. Union of India, 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 292 = 2012(1) ALD 608 = 201(1) ALT 139.

SERVICE LAWS:

—Petitioner joined in service of CISF as Constable and worked at various places throughout Country - Subsequently petitioner appeared Departmental Competitive Exami-nation and was selected and got appointed as Sub-Inspector - However within two weeks 4th respondent issued proceedings rejecting candidature of petitioner on ground that he did not meet eligibility criteria and therefore petitioner was required to return order of appointment - Hence, present writ petition challenging said order - Petitioner contends that he was selected and appointed as Sub-Inspector on basis of his performance in written examination and on valuation of service record and that there was absolutely no basis for 4th respondent in withdrawing order of appointment and that impugned order of 4th respondent is violative of principles of natural justice since neither show cause notice was issued to him nor any reasons are mentioned in it - Respondent contends that a candidate must have good record for a period of four years preceding selection, and that in case of petitioner, it emerged that in year 2008 verbal counselling was given to him and on basis of same, his performance for period 1-3-2008 and 31-12-2008 was assessed as "average" and this would disable petitioner from being considered and that mere issuance of order of appointment does not confer any right on petitioner and withdrawal of same on realizing mistake cannot be treated as punishment - Impugned order is blissfully silent as to why candidature of petitioner was rejected, and what are eligibility criteria, which he did not meet - In case order of appointment is found to be irregular in any manner, candidate so appointed must be put on notice and he be given an opportunity to explain as to why order of appointment be not cancelled or withdrawn - If order is not preceded by any showcause notice it becomes violative of principles of natural justice - It becomes illegal and arbitrary, if it is bereft of reasons - Order impugned suffers from both vices - In this case, no Rule is sited in support of contention of respondents that if assessment or evaluation of performance of candidate is "average" it would disentitled him from being copnsidered under LDCE - Appointment of petitioner to post of Sub-Inspector with a dint of heard work cannot be permitted to be taken away on basis of non-existent reasons and in violation of principles of natural justice - Impugned order, set aside - Writ petition, allowed. Mahesh Gopalan Vs. Central Government of India, New Delhi 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 314 = 2012(1) ALD 494 = 2012(1) ALT 158.

—CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.136 - "Claim for compassionate appointment" - When 5th respondent aged 16 years his father who was working as Peon, in school died in harness - When 5th respondent's mother applied for compassionate appointment, she was informed by Deputy Director (Education), that respondent would apply to Management for appointment as and when he attained majority - Petitioner accordingly applied for appointment as Sanskrit Teacher, since he had requisite qualification for appointment against said post - Inspite of direction from DEO, Manager of Institution appointed in favour of appellant in preference claim made by respondent - High Court disposed of Writ petition permitting 5th respondent to accept offer made to him by Manager as Peon and to file separate petition for redressal of grievance, if he continued to feel aggrieved - Accordingly his appointment as Peon thus remained without prejudice to 5th respondent claim against post of Sanskrit Teacher in School - Single Bench of HIgh Court allowed petition filed by respondent quashing appointment of appellant directing Manager to appoint 5th respondent in his place - Writ appeal filed by appellant dismissed by High Court - Hence, present SLP - Appellant contends that appointments on compassionate basis are made only to give succour to a family in financial distress on account of untimely death of earning member - Such appointment cannot therefore be made where family concerned has managed to survive for several years before claim for appointment is made by some one who was eligible for such appointment and that claim for appointment in instant case had been made nearly five years after demise of father of 5th respondent was liable to be rejected on ground of being highly belated - Compassionate appointment Scheme itself permits applications to be made within two years from date of death of Govt. servant - In case of minors permissible period for making applications is three years from date of minor attains majority - In this case, 5th respondent filed Application for appointment as Sanskrit Teacher was made within three years of his attaimg majority - Since 5th respondent satisfied other conditions stipulated in Govt., order - Therefore High Court justified in holding prayer for appointment made by 5th respondent should have been allowed - 7th respondent has not been allowed despite the order passed by High Court and salary for period appellant had worked could be paid to him and appointment of 7th respondent shall in that view be effective be from date is actually appointed by Manager of Institution - Appeal, dismissed. Shreejith Vs. Deputy Director, Education Kerala 2012(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 1.

—CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.309 – Departmental enquiry against Bank employee for alleged irregularities - Disciplinary authority passed final orders confirming proposed punishment of dismissal of employee from Service - Appellate authority reduced punishment of dismissal to that of removal from service - Single Judge allowed petition filed by employee observing that though disciplinary authority disagreed with findings of enquiry Officer in respect of charge C.2 (i), he did not give opportunity to original petitioner to defend his case and remanded matter for fresh consideration after giving fresh show- cause notice - Appellant/Bank contends that respondent had not placed any material before learned single Judge to show that any prejudice caused to respondent while differing from finding of enquiry Officer on charge C 2(i) and as no prejudice was caused to respondent delinquent, single Judge ought not to have quashed and set aside order of removal which is otherwise just and legal - "Right to be heard" being a constitutional right of employee, cannot be taken away by any legislative enactment or service Rule including Rules made under Art.309 of Constitution of India Undisputedly, disciplinary authority had not given any opportunity before coming to conclusion on charge covered by C 2 (i) contrary to findings recorded by enquiry Officer - It is true that principles of natural justice cannot be put to straight jacket formula and if no prejudice is caused to any one by not following principles of natural justice very scrupulously, order violative of principles of natural justice need not become void in all cases - However, in view of seriousness of charge on C 2 (i) contention of appellant/Bank that no prejudice was caused to employee inspite of not giving notice by disciplinary authority before coming to different conclusion than one arrived at by enquiry Officer, cannot be accepted - Order of learned single Judge justified. State Bank of India Vs. B.V. Bhaskar Reddy 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 69.

SERVICE LAWS:

—Judiciary - G.O.Ms.No.164 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.14 & 16 - In response to Notification for 98 posts of Junior Civil Judges, petitioner, practicing Advocate appeared for written test as well as interview and was provisionally selected - Govt., issued G.O approving selection of 94 candidates for appointment as junior civil judges and that petitioner's name not included in said G.O., since her husband who is a practicing Advocate, is having close links with CPI (Maoist) Party, which is a prohibited Organization - Petitioner contends that neither there is any case registered against her husband nor she has taken up any case pertaining to Maoist party and that though there is no material against her, she has been unjustly denied appointment - Verification of character and and anticidents, however shows that confidential intrinsic intelligence collected recently has brought to notice of Govt., that petitioner and her husband are having close links with CPI (Maoist) Party and are also in touch with under ground cadre of CPI (Maoist) Party - Merely being in select list would not give any legal right to a person to claim appointment - Appointing authority has discretion to consider such selected candidates from stand point of all circumstances, reports and anticidents - Post to which appointment is sought to be made being a responsible and sensitive post of a Judge, association with unlawful organizations or political affiliations or relevant circumstances which, 1st respondent/Govt., took into consideration while exercising its discretion - Discretion exercised by 1st respondent/Govt., in not appointing petitioner cannot be said to be arbitrary, or unreasonable - Writ petition, dismissed. K.Vijaya Lakshmi, Markapur, Prakasam Dt Vs. Govt. of A.P., 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 430 = 2009(3) ALD 168 = 2009(2) APLJ 52 = 2009(3) ALT 544.

SERVICE LAWS:

—G.O.Ms.No.342, Dt.4-8-1997, Clause 3(iv) (a) (ii) & 3 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Arts.162 & 309 - Stoppage of increments of employee - Consideration for promotion - A.P. Administrative Tribunal passed order directing petitioner Govt., to consider case of promoting respondent, employee who suffered penalty of stoppage of increments - Govt., filed writ petition questioning order of Tribunal - In this case, respondent, employee was appointed as Agricultural Officer - Enquiry was ordered against him for certain irregularities and punishment imposed withholding three annual grade increments with cumulative effect - As per clause of G.O., 342, respondent, employee, who suffered penalty of stoppage of three increments with cumulative effect is not entitled to be considered for promotion/appointment by transfer for twice period for which increment(s)/are stopped with cumulative effect both for selection as well as non selection posts - Period of six years completes by 10-12-2007 and thus respondent is not entitled for promotion up to 10-12-2007 - Respondent contends that his case not considered for a year 2005-06 and he should have promoted on par with his juniors as three increments period is already over by withholding three increments by 1-10-2004 as per clarification issued by Govt., in Circular Memo No.34633/Ser.C/99, G.A (Ser.C), Department dt.4-11-1999- Respondent contends that as per said Circular Memo which was in force as on date of panel year 2005-06, is entitled for promotion - Govt., issued another Circular Memo No.5074/Ser.C/A1/2009-1, dt.9-2-2009 clarifying earlier Circular dt.4-11-1999 bringing into effect Govt. order in G.O.Ms.No.342 - As per G.O.Ms.No.342 respondent is not entitled to be considered for promotion till 10-12-2007 - However, respondent's case immediately considered after punishment was over and subsequently promoted on 30-8-2009 - Tribunal failed to consider effect of G.O., and erroneously relied on clarification Memo dt.4-11-1999 - Order of Tribunal, set aside - Writ petition, allowed. State of A.P. Vs.K.Abhimanyudu 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 222 = 2009(6) ALD 636.

—"Alteration of date of birth in Service Register" - Petitioner, retired Trolley Man, aged 73 years, filed O.A., before Central Administrative Tribunal, Hyderabad Branch, questioning letter dated 28-6-2006 issued by South Central Railway seeking recovery of certain amount with allegation that petitioner received over payment for four years beyond age of superannuation due to alteratin of date of birth in Serice Register - Tribunal dismissed O.A - In this case, petitioner entered in Railway as Trolley Man on 30-11-1953 and his date of birth was entered as 7-10-1932 and later stage it was corrected as 7-10-1936 - As per date of birth entered at initial stage petitioner ought to have retired on 31-10-1990 on attaining age of superannuation i.e., 58 years - However Railway Administration allowed petitioner to continue to work till 24-10-1994 on basis of corrected date of birth - Hence impugned proceedings issued requiring petitioner to pay back Rs.99,994/- and as matter of fact said amount was recovered from gratuity payable to petitioner - Admittedly petitioner was an illeterate man was appointed as Trolley Man attending to hard labour work - Service record and registers are always maintained by Railway Administration and they were in their custody -

SERVICE LAWS:

Petitioner also addressed letters pointing out discrepancy in entry as to date of birth - Even if date of birth is taken as 7-10-1932, there was no fault on part of petitioner in continuing service beyond age of superannuation as per that date - If at all any thing it were authorities, who are required to maintain records that were not vigalent - Petitioner cannot be made to suffer on that account - In absence of evidence of fraud or misrepresentation, salary already paid for service beyond actual age of retirement cannot be recovered - Amount was already recovered by respondents from gratuity payable to petitioner - It is therefore just and necessary that petitioner be compensated following principle of restitution - Impugned letter dated 28-6-2004 issued by respondents - Quahsed - Respondents directed to refund amount recovered from petitioner - Writ petition, allowed. Laxmaiah Vs. South Central Railway, rep. by its GM., 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 297 = 2014(2) ALD 384 = 2014(1) ALT 289.

—VRS - "Revised Pay Scales" - Petitioners 1 & 2 were retired in service 15-10-1998 and 10-5-2000 respectively and contend that they are entitled to monetary benefits from 1-1-1997 under Revised Pay Scales till their respective - Central Govt., has been applying its Rules to Central Public Sector Under takings (PSUs) through various mechanisms including Presidential directive - It is contended that when petitioners retired from service under VRS concession of mode of employment cannot change benefits to which they would have been entitled to had they been in service and that petitioners are entitled for claculation of ex gratia taking into consideration Revised Pay Scales together with monetary benefits from 1-1-1997 and shall pay same to petitioners - Respondent contends on account of amalagamation, that ex gratia was paid to petitioners once and for all on account of implimentation of VRS and that petitioners cannot seek for payment of additional ex gratia towards monetary benefits on account of Revised Pay Scales - Contention of petitioners that in fact Dearness Allowance and gratuity were revised after petitioners retired from service through VRS and revision regarding Dearness Allowance and gratuity were in fact implemented in favour of petitioners and that petitioners are entitled to such benefit in respect of other benefits as well - Revised Pay Scales in 3rd respondent/Company are applicable to every employee that retired from service after 1-1-1997, so much so same is applicable to petitioners and that action of respomdent in not extending revised pay scales is arbitrary - Respondents directed to extend Revised Pay Scales to petitioners - Writ petitions, L.Venkateswara Sastry Vs. The Union of India, 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 97 = 2013(6) ALD 369.

—Dismissal of an Employee by HPCL - Writ Petition filed by Respondent/employee - Writ Petition allowed by Single Judge - Writ Appeal filed against Order of Single Judge - Held, Principles of natural justice have their own importance in administrative law - Once notice of hearing was issued and requests for adjournments were acceded to, an employee, who was determined not to participate in enquiry cannot complain of violation of principles of natural justice - Principles of Natural Justice - Once a person has remained ex parte, he cannot complain of denial of opportunity, much less, violation of the principles of natural justice - Setting aside the order of dismissal, on such grounds, would amount to putting premium on irresponsible and challant conduct of an employee, who is already facing charges - Writ Appeal Dismissed. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn., Vs. V.Srinivasa Rao 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 295 = 2014(5) ALD 335 = 2014(5) ALT 374.

SERVICE LAWS:

—"Administrative Laws" – "Rules framed are prospective" - Petitioners, working in Mumbai Municipal Corporation prayed their promotions to vacant post according to Rules framed under M.M - Corporation Act - Promotions made prior to 28-4-2011 under extant Rules promoting petitioners – A Rule becomes effective only from date of promulgation by publication in Official Gazette on 28-4-2011 – Appeals allowed. Municipal Corporation of Greater Mumbai Vs. Anil Shantaram Khoje 2014(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 158.

—"Change of date of birth" - "Superannuation" - "Suppression of fact" - Respondent/ employee joined service by recording his date of birth as 20-2-1942 - Competent Authority rejecting Application of respondent for change of his date of birth from 20-2-1942 to 15-1-1948 - Trial Court decreed suit filed by respondent relying upon date entered in birth certificate issued by a Municipal Corporation holding that correct date of birth of respondent is 15-1-1948 - 1st appellate Court allowed appeal and reversed judgment of trial Court - High Court also dismissed 2nd appeal - Respondent employee got his date of birth recorded as 15-1-1948 by producing copy of judgment of trial Court - Appellants contend that once decree passed in favour of respondent/ employee was set aside, finding recorded therein will be deemed to have become non-existent and same could not be made basis for entertaining respondent's claim that his date of birth was 15-1-1948 and that copy of birth certificate issued by Corporation cannot be taken into consideration for deciding controversy relating to respondent's date of birth because if he is treated to have been born on 15-1-1948, then he would have been a minor as on 27-5-1965 onwhich date respondent appointed as LDC and as such after securing employment on basis of date of birth as 20-2-1948, respondent is estopped from claiming his correct date of birth as 15-1-1948 - In this case, respondent instead of relying upon birth certificate he produced copy of judgment of trial Court and got his date of birth recorded as 15-1-1948 by suppressing fact that lower Court had reversed judgment of trial Court - Therefore Division Bench of High Court committed serious error by setting aside orders passed by Single Judge - In this case, respondent also did not question Report of enquiry Officer who found him guilty in all charges and disciplinary Authority imposed penalty of 10% cut in basic pension - Impugned judgment of Division Bench, set aside - Appeals, allowed. Lakshmibai National Institute of Physical Education Vs. Shant Kumar Agrawal 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C) *181

—Master and Servant – Employer and Employee – Relationship – Determination of – Principles – Stated - In order to determine the existence of employer-employee relationship, correct approach would be to consider as to whether there is complete control and supervision of the employer, Company - The prima facie test for determination of relationship, master and servant is existence of right in master to supervise and control the work done by servant not only in matter of directing what work the servant to do but also the manner in which he shall do his work. National Aluminum Co., Ltd. Vs. Ananta Kishore Rout 2014(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 88.

SPECIAL MARRIAGE ACT:

—Sec.1954, Secs.27,36 & 37 – "Maintenance" and "support" – Medical reimbursement – Allegedly wife sustained injuries on account of appellant/husband pushed her – Though appellant/husband not responsible for injuries sustained by wife a false claim was put forward by her against husband for reimbursement of medical expenses - Appellant/husband contends that petitioner filed by wife was not maintainable as she was gainfully employed and not entitled to amount from him and she had already received amount from Insurance Company and he is not liable to pay anything to her – Trial Court directed husband to pay certain amount – High Court partly allowed petition, observing that trial judge did not commit any error of law or of jurisdiction in ordering appellant/husband to pay medical reimbursement - PERMANENT ALIMONY AND MAINTENANCE - Wife is entitled to "maintenance" and "support" and two terms "maintenance" and "support" are comprehensive in nature and of wide in amplitude – Decision or reasoning of Courts below – Justified – Appeal, dismissed. Rajesh Burmann Vs. Mitul Chatterjee (Burman) 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 12 = 2009(1) ALD 102 (SC) = AIR 2009 SC 651 = 2008(8) Supreme 358.

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

—Respondent filed suit against appellant for relief of specific performance of agreement of sale, contending that, appellant in his capacity as Manager of Joint family he agreed to sell certain extent of land for consideration of certain amount and amount was also paid on date of agreement that appellant was under obligation to execute sale deed with participation of his sons by receiving balance of consideration - Respondent got issued notice and filed suit for specific performance - Appellant filed written statement, contending that agreement pleaded by respondent was forged one and that even according to recitals in agreement, or notice suit land is his ancestral property and it could not have been sold, except for family necessities and that recitals in agreement or notice do not support case of respondent - Trial Court decreed suit - District Judge dismissed appeal - Hence second appeal - Appellant contends that trial Court and lower appellate Court have misunderstood and misinterpreted ExA.1 and A.2, agreement and notice and proceeded as though suit property is exclusively owned by appellant and it was sold for family benefit and that his contradictions cannot be reconciled, and that they are not in conformity with recitals in agreement and notice - Trial Court proceeded as though sale was effected for benefit of family, where as in agrement Ex.A.1 it was clearly mentioned that alleged sale is for personal benefit of appellant - Respondent/plaintiff contends that conduct of appellant shows that he went on changing stands as and when suited to his convenience - At one stage he disputed execution of Ex.A.1, and later on, he made an attempt to fall back upon theory of coparcenary property, interests of family and non- joinder of necessary properties - Trial Court and lower appellate Court were convinced that agreement is proved and inescapable legal consequences is that suit be decreed and that no substantial question of law arises for consideration - In this case, at threshold of plaint itself, it is pleaded that appellant is Kartha of joint family and he executed Ex.A.1 for sale of an item of immovable property for family necessity - However a perusal of agreement presents a different picture - In that it is mentioned that property is one that has accrued to appellant from his ancestors and that sale is effected to meet his own expenses and in Ex.A.2 notice also respondent/plaintiff mentioned that appellant is manager of Joint family and for benefit of joint family necessities he offered to sell property - When there is serious dispute as to very character of property, enforceability of transaction suffers corresponding weakness - However when objection raised to effect that property belongs to joint family and that in absence his sons and other co-parceners it cannot be completed and that respondent is under obligation to implead other co-parceners and as matter of fact Ex.A. 1 itself provides for that - Inspite of these facts respondent plaintiff did not take steps to implead other co-parceners - Decree passed by trial Court and affirmed by lower appellate Court, set aide - Second appeal, allowed. Jala Anjaiah Vs. Ramisetty Anjaiah 2012(1) Law Summary 107.

—Sec.2(b), 3 and 34 – LIMITATION ACT, Sec.34 and 38 – CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rule 31(1)(a) - Settlement Vs. Will - Mere stray sentence in the document cannot defeat the very purpose of the document - Mere using of the sentence that the deed will come into force after the death of the executant would not change the very nature of the document - Finding of the First Appellate Court that documents are settlement deeds, upheld - Suit for declaration with inadequate or irrelevant consequential relief would undoubtedly fall within the ambit of proviso to Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act - Plaintiff instead of asking the relief of injunction ought to have asked the relief of recovery of possession of the plaint schedule property which he is not in possession of - Held, plaintiff not entitled for the relief of declaration - Plaintiff's right to sue accrued in 1984 and the limitation period to file a suit is until 1987 but the plaintiff filed suit 1991 - Held, suit barred by limitation – Grant of relief does not arise - Trial Court opinion upheld and First appellate court's grant of relief of declaration unsustainable – Second Appeal by the defendant No. 6, allowed. V.Nagamanemma Vs. V.Nagulu Naidu 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 250 = 2014(5) ALD 486.

—Sec.14(b) - Personal services - Respondent/plaintiff/workman of Tyre Copany filed suit for reliefs of wages and all other consequential benefits of service from defendant's Company - Defendant filed Application stating that civil Court has no jurisdiction - Trial Court allowed Application and dismissed suit - 1st appellate Court reversed judgment and decree of trial Court, holding that civil Court has no juridiction to entertain dispute - High Court confirmed order of 1st appellte Court - In this case, reliefs claimed by plaintiff are clearly seeking enforcement of contract of personal service and civil Court has no jurisdiction to grant such reliefs - High Court and 1st appellate Court were clearly in errer in holding that civil Court has jurisdiction - Impugned judgment of High Court and appellate Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Apollo Tyres Ltd. Vs. C.P. Sebastian 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 109.

—Sec.16 - Plaintiff filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale contending that he paid advance amount of Rs.50,000/- towards sale consideration of Rs.3.5 lakhs and took possession of schedule property and constructed room for watchman and always ready and willing to perform her part of contract, but defendant changed his mind due to increase in value of land alleging that plaintiff not ready and willing to perform her part of contract and cancelled agreement of sale forfeiting advance paid by plaintiff - Trial Court decreed suit in favour of plaintiff directing defendant to execute sale deed - As seen from terms and conditions of agreement, there is no default clause or clause for forfeiture of amount and also not mentioned that time is essence of contract - Plaintiff also mentioned in reply notice that defendant after receiving part of sale consideration made plaintiff to spend considerable amount to clear encroachments and now cannot unilaterally cancel agreement, muchless forfeit advance amount and that she is always ready and willing to perform her part of contract - In this case, plaintiff ascertaining from beginning that she is ready and willing to pay balance sale consideration and there was evidence to effect that she offered amount to defendant, but he refused to receive same on account of hike in prices of land and in view of explanation given by plaintiff and in view of her offer to pay balance sale consideration, it cannot be said that plaintiff is not ready and willing to perform part of her contract - No exclusive substantial question of law to be considered, except that time is essence of contract and Courts below specifically mentioned that there was no default clause or that there was no clause that time is essence of contract and in absence of such clause, stipulation of period for payment of balance of sale consideration by itself cannot be treated as time is essence of contract - Second Appeal, dismissed. K.Mahadeva Rao Vs. Smt.Vaztha Tabassum Ghouse 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 293 = 2008(4) ALD 781 = 2008(5) ALT 44.

—Sec.16 - Suit is filed for specific performance of agreement of sale dated 10.08.1963 - Defendant is not under any legal obligation to execute any sale deed in favour of plaintiff and plaintiff had never demanded defendant to execute sale deed prior to the filing of suit - Defendant, who is owner of suit lands, is at liberty to sell his share to any person after 14.12.1964 - Before instituting suit, plaintiff had not issued any notice - There is no enforceable agreement to sell - Findings in former suit do not operate as res judicata as it is only a simple suit for perpetual injunction - After full fledged trial and on merits, trial Court had decreed suit of plaintiff - Aggrieved defendant had preferred first appeal and same was allowed by District Judge - Therefore, sole plaintiff had preferred this second appeal - Since, sole plaintiff/appellant had died during pendency of this appeal, his legal representatives were brought on record as appellants 2 to 4; and, they are prosecuting this second appeal - It is also pertinent to note that sole defendant also had died during pendency of this second appeal and his legal representatives were brought on record.

Held, Court below is justified in holding that plaintiff who had set up a false plea of payment of consideration is not entitled to equitable relief of specific performance and that plaintiff, who is not ready and willing to perform his part of contract by not paying the balance sale consideration within one month i.e., before 10.09.1963 is not entitled to relief - In view of narrow compass of two substantial questions of law raised in second appeal, contentions raised by appellants do not merit consideration - Even otherwise, no valid and sufficient grounds as required under law are made out to over turn well reasoned findings of fact recorded by court below - In view of provision of law, Court below is right in not granting relief of refund of earnest money and part of sale consideration paid as no relief alternatively for refund of said amounts was claimed by plaintiff - Plaintiff did not also make an attempt even during pendency of first appeal to seek an amendment of plaint; the plaintiff had thus failed to seek the alternative relief - This Court accordingly holds that plaintiff is not entitled to aforementioned alternative relief - Viewed thus, this Court finds that there is no merit in second appeal and that there is no substance in substantial questions of law and hence, second appeal is liable to be dismissed - In result, Second Appeal is dismissed. Narayana Reddy (died) per Lrs. Vs. Khaja Guam Mustafa (died) per Lrs., 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 546

—Secs.16 & 20 - Suit filed basing on agreement of sale executed by appellant/defendant - Defendant took specific stand that agreement of sale cannot be enforced since plaint schedule property is joint family property of appellant/defendant and his sons are not parties to agreement - Trial Court decreed suit holding that in light of recitals in agreement that plaint schedule property is self acquired property of appellant/defendant and hence non-joining of sons in execution of agreement may not seriously alter situation - Appellant/defendant contends that theory of blending as laid down by Hindu Law had not been considered in proper perspective and that plaint schedule properties were never treated as seperated properties of appellant/defendant and this is a case of absence of title and hence relief of specific performance cannot be granted - Respondent/plaintiff contends that sons of defendants are not necessary parties since property is self acquired property and that as plaintiff always has been ready and willing to perform his part of contract and that trial Court arrived at correct conclusion in decreeing suit - Findings of trial Court relating to granting of specific relief on strength of agreement of sale directing to execute registered sale deed and delivery of possession of plaint schedule property to plaintiff, are confirmed - Appeal, dismissed. Akella Venkata Rama Subrahmanya Sarma Vs. Annangi Sreeramamurti 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 81 = 2008(5) ALD 534 = 2008(5) ALT 369.

—Sec.16(c) - Appellants/plaintiffs filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale in respect of suit schedule property - Trial Court dismissed suit - District Judge dismissed appeal by confirming judgment of trial Court - Hence, second appeal filed contending that both Courts below failed to appreciate evidence and other material on record in proper perpective and came to erroneous decision in dismissing suit and appeal - Trial Court failed to consider that it has passed common order in I.As granting injunction against defendants and directed plaintiffs to deposit balance amount of consideration of Rs.3 lakhs in to Court and accordingly said amount was deposited by appellants/plaintiffs - However, trial Court without there being any material support has observed that late CNR, original purchaser during his life time had never approached D1 offering balance amount of sale consideration in order to obtain sale deed as such D1 had already intimated him that he had cancelled agreement of sale for non-payment of balance amount of sale consideration - Cl.3 of Ex.A1 agreement reads that vendor shall obtain encumbrance certificate on property for period of 13 years and Cl.8 of Ex.A.1 reads that execution and registration of sale deed shall be completed within one year from date of recording names of vendors in revenue records - Therefore observations made by trial Court are absolutely baseless when seen in light of such clauses in agreement of sale - When terms of Ex.A.1 agreement are crystal clear, D1 was under obligation to do certain acts under said agreement and plaintiffs cannot be said to be not in a position to comply with conditions of agreement - In fact plaintiffs have capacity to pay balance amount of sale consideration and they are ready and willing to perform their part of contract - Plaintiffs further contend that in circumstances it can be presumed that when agreement of sale was not terminated, as required in common paralance of law, how could a Court decline to grant relief of specific performance stating that plaintiffs are not entitled to such relief - Comment of 1st appellate Court is erroneous in light of plaintiff depositing Rs.3 lakhs balance amount of sale consideration into Court - Therefore contention of defendants that Ex.A.1 agreement was cancelled orally should have no legs to stand - Further observation of 1st appellate Court that due to increase of price of lands in surrounding area, plaintiffs are not entitled to perform agreement of sale is erroneous and that escalation of real estate price was no ground for denying specific performance relief when other side tries to wriggle out of contractual obligations - Question of time being essence of contract is concerned, once it is admitted that agreement was orally cancelled in absence of any particular date it is to be inferred that time stipulated becomes unconfined, whereupon onus lies on defendants to show that they terminated agreement lawfully - Since it is case of plaintiffs through out that they were ready and willing to perform their part of contract and as such, they are protected by provisions of Sec.16(c) of Act as well as explanation thereto - In this case, contention of defendants that their father D1 cancelled Ex.A.1 agreement of sale orally not corroborated by examining any independent witness and further, no prescribed procedure is followed or steps were taken to cancel Ex.A.1 and that defendants nowhere in proceedings have stated date of cancellation of Ex.A.1 by D.1 - It is settled proposition of law that escalation of real estate price is not a ground to deny specific relief - So far as readiness, willingness and capacity of plaintiff are concerned, having regard facts and circumstances of case Court is of view plaintiffs are ever ready and willing to perform their part of contract and that their capacity to pay balance sale consideration particularly having regard to fact that they deposited balance sale consideration of Rs.3 lakhs into Court - In this case, having regard to material available on record questions raised by plaintiffs are substantial questions of law and they are proved and Court is of view that Courts below have committed error in deciding suit and 1st appeal in favour of defendants - Therefore judgments of 1st appellate Court and trial Court are set aside - Second appeal admitted and allowed. Chama Radamma Vs. Chama Venu Gopal Reddy 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 47 = 2012(3) ALD 690 = 2012(4) ALT 384 = AIR 2012 AP 169.

—Sec.16(c) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.100 - Second appeal - Respondent/ plaintiff filed suit against appellant/defendant for specific performance of agreement of sale contending that defendant agreed to sell plaint schedule property for certain amount and received some amount as advance and also agreed to handover possession after registration of sale deed - Since defendant failed to execute sale deed, legal notice issued to which defendant gave reply denying execution of agreement and receiving of advance amount - Hence, filed suit - Appellant/derfendant contends that he is an illiterate and not worldly- wise and that he was under influence of plaintiff's husband who by playing fraud obtained thumb mark of defendant on white paper and subsequently created agreement of sale - Since agreement of sale is forged one, same is not enforceable - Trial Court decreed suit holding that plaintiff has proved payment of advance amount and execution of agreement - Appellate Court confirmed judgment of trial Court, however holding that burden lies on defendant to show that contents of agreement were not read over to him before he affixed his thumb impression observing that plaintiff clarified in her evidence that as usual practice scribe referred in agreement that possession of land was delivered to plaintiff though possession was not delivered on date of agreement - Hence, present second appeal challenging same - In this case, High Court found that both Courts below mechanically recorded a finding that agreement is true and that plaintiff is ready and willing to perform his part of contract - Phrase "substantial question of law" as mentioned in amended in Sec.100 CPC is not defined in Code - Word substantial as qualifying "question of law", means - of having substance, essential, real, of sound worth, important or considerable - Findings of Courts below appears to be perverse and not based on evidence on record and appears to be as a result of non-application of mind - In this case, admittedly defendant is an illiterate person - A perusal of recitals of agreement clearly go to show that matter was adjusted by writing closely about thumb impression and schedule of property was closely written - It clearly suggests that matter was written so closely on paper to adjust same above thumb impression which was already thereon agreement - Any person with open eye on perusal of agreement can come to reasonable conclusion that first thumb impression was obtained and subsequently matter was written on agreement - It is duty of Court to examine entire material placed before it in proper perspective - Evidence has to be analyzed and conclusions have to be drawn based on sound reasoning - Plaintiff failed to adduce any sufficient and satisfactory evidence to show that defendant had put his thumb mark in presence of P.Ws. and also payment of advance amount to defendant - Courts failed to appreciate that there was inconsistency with regard to delivery of possession in pleadings of plaintiff and in her evidence - Burden of proof - Appellate Court observed that burden lies on defendant to show under what circumstances he had put to thumb impression - Heavy burden lies on party who is relying on document executed by an illiterate and rustic villager to prove that contents of document were read over to that person and he understood same, that means if it is not mother tongue of that person contents of document are truly translated to that man in his mother tongue and after understanding contents of same he had to put his thumb impression on such document - A duty is cast upon Courts to keep in mind strict rule of law in respect of onus where executant happens to be ignorant illiterate - In this case, admittedly, agreement of sale is dated 30-1-1991 and suit was filed on 21-3-1994 i.e., beyond period of three years, therefore it is clear that suit not filed within reasonable time - That delay in approaching court also should be taken into consideration in a suit for specific performance of contract - In this case, that Courts below have wrongly placed burden on defendant instead of placing it on plaintiff with regard to proof of execution of agreement - Courts below also gave perverse finding that plaintiff proved payment of advance amount to defendant and executed agreement - Impugned judgments, set aside - Second appeal, allowed. Ayithi Appalanaidu Vs. Petla Papamma, 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 204 = 2011(5) ALD 393 = 2011(3) ALT 735 = AIR 2011 AP 172.

—Secs.16(c) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.6, R.3, r/w Forms Nos.47 & 48 of Apendix -A of CPC - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.45 - 1st respondent/plaintiff filed suit demanding 1st defendant to execute sale deed after accepting balance sale consideration - Defendants denied specifically that plaintiff never demanded specific performance of forged contract of sale - Trial Court decreed suit rejecting plea of forgery on ground that opinion of expert not corroborated and no steps are taken by 1st respondent in that direction - Appellant/ 2nd defendant contends that expert evidence is offered before Court, corroboration is not required and that trial Court committed error in rejecting of evidence of expert and that signature of 1st defendant on agreement is a forged signature and that requirements u/ Sec.16 (c) of Act and Or.6, R3 r/w Forms 47 & 48 of CPC are mandatory and that plaintiff not specifically make a demand in writing by sending Notice - Opinion given by expert is a relevant fact and expert himself becomes a witness - In such an event, merely because witness is not corroborated, Court cannot throw away opinion of expert (relevant fact) and evidence given in relation to such relevant fact, (evidence of expert) - Trial Court erreneously applied law ignoring binding precedents of Supreme Court and therefore finding of trial Court cannot be sustained - Ex.A.1 not binding as signature of 1st defendant is forged - Reading Form Nos.47 & 48 of CPC together and Sec.16(c) of Specific Relief Act, it has to be held that ordinarily requirement of law is issuance of registered notice by plaintiff demanding, accepting of balance sale consideration and execution of sale deed by vendor - Therefore suit for specific performance has to comply requirements prescribed in Sec.16(c) of Act and Forms 47 & 48 of Apendix-A of CPC - In this case, even oral demand has not been proved and plea of oral demand does not carry case of plaintiff any further - Therefore suit is barred and is liable to be dismissed - Appeal, allowed. Baddam Prathap Reddy Vs. Chennadi Jalapathi Reddy 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 357 = 2008(5) ALD 200 = 2008(5) ALT 192 = 2008(3) APLJ 30.

—Secs.16 (c), 10, 21 & 23 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.3, Rules 1 & 2 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.20 - Respondent filed suit represented by his attorney holder for specific performance of agreement of sale against appellant - Defendant resisted suit contending that plaintiff not ready and willing to perform contract by paying balance of sale price and get sale completed and he was not entitled for specific performance in view of breach committed by him and earnest money amount paid by him stood forfeited and that suit not maintainable as it was not filed by duly authorized person - Trial Court held that time was not essence of contract and defendant failed to prove agreement was rescinded and that plaintiff proved that he was ready and willing to perform his part of contract and that suit not barred by time and therefore plaintiff entitled to specific performance - District Judge dismissed appeal filed by defendant affirming finding recorded by trial Court - High Court dismissed 2nd appeal - Appellant contends that plaintiff did not sign agreement nor sign plaint nor gave evidence - Plaintiff's attorney holder who represented plaintiff initially not examined - 2nd attorney holder not personally aware of transaction and therefore no acceptable or valid evidence about readiness and willingness - Trial Court ought to have dismissed suit by drawing presumption that plaintiff's case was false for non-compliance with Sec.16(c) - In a suit for specific performance plaintiff should not only plead and prove terms of agreement, but should also plead and prove his readiness and willingness to perform his obligation under contract - Under Rule 2 of Or.III of CPC word "acts" used does not include act of power of attorney holder to appear as witness on behalf of party - Power of attorney holder of a party can appear only as witness in his personal capacity but he cannot appear as a witness on behalf of party - In this case, an attorney holder who signed plaint and instituted suit but has no personal knowledge of transaction can only give formal evidence about validity of power of attorney and filing of suit and therefore, evidence of P.W.1 plaintiff's attorney holder is therefore of no assistance in suit for specific performance except to prove that he was authorised by plaintiff to file suit - It is evident from Sec.23 of Act even where agreement of sale contains only provision for payment of damages or liquidated damages in case of breach and does not contain any provision for specific performance, party in breach cannot contend that in view of specific provision for payment of damages and in absence of provision for specific performance, Court cannot grant specific performance, but where provision naming an amount to be paid in case of breach is intended to give to party in default an option to pay money in lieu of specific performance, then specific performance may not be permissible - In this case, none Courts below have referred to relevant evidence or significance of plaintiff not tendering evidence - They have merely gone by evidence of attorney holder to hold that plaintiff was ready and willing and defendant committed breach - Material on record shows that respondent/plaintiff committed breach - Therefore, earnest money forfeited and respondent is not entitled for refund of earnest money - Judgments of Courts below, set aside and dismissed suit for specific performance - Appeals, allowed. Man Kaur (Dead) by Lrs.,Vs. Hartar Singh Sangha 2010(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 140.

—Secs.16 (c) & 20 - Reconveyance - Suit property belongs to plaintiffs, two brothers and their grant-mother - When plaintiffs were minors, grand-mother executed registered sale deed for consideration and delivered possession to defendant/vendee - Defendant paid part of sale consideration and executed agreement of reconveyance agreeing to reconvey suit house to late grand-mother and plaintiffs after receiving amount with interest - Since defendant failed to perform contract inspite of notice, plaintiffs filed suit for specific performance - Trial Court decreed suit with direction to plaintiff to pay balance amount, holding that plaintiffs are entitled to get reconveyance deed - High Court dismissed appeals filed by both parties - However in SLPs judgments are set aside and cases remanded back to single Judge for deciding matter afresh - High Court set aside decree passed by trial Court holding that plaintiffs failed to make averment and lead evidence to prove their readiness and willingness to perform their contract and no steps were taken by plaintiffs on their part to show their readiness or willingness - Plaintiff must aver performance of, or readiness and willingness to perform, contract according to its true construction - Compliance of requirement of Sec.16(c) is mandatory and in absence of proof of same that plaintiff has been ready and willing to perform his contract suit cannot succeed - In this case, from entire tenor of plaint, it is clear that plaintiffs have pleaded for their readiness and willingness to perform their part of contract as per agreement but other agreement referred to only for purpose of accounting to be made for payment of consideration for resale of property - In evidence also there is no specific statement made by plaintiffs in their evidence they were ready and willing to pay entire consideration amount for reconveyance of suit house - In absence of pleadings or proof by plaintiffs as to their willingness and readiness to perform their part of contract and get sale deed executed in their favour on payment of amount, no case is made out by plaintiffs for specific performance contract of reconveyance - Appeal dismissed. Bal Krishna Vs. Bhagwan Das (Dead) 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 93 = 2008(3)ALD 27(SC) = 2008(2) Supreme 752 = 2008 AIR SCW 2467 = AIR 2008 SC 1786.

—-Sec.19 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.96 - The appellant herein instituted O.S. for specific performance of agreement of sale or in alternative for refund of advance amount with interest and costs - Plaint schedule property is an extent of Ac. 6-27 cents - Defendants 1 to 26 are owners of various extents of lands out of plaint schedule property and Defendant No.27 is their General Power of Attorney holder - Defendants/ respondents resisted suit by filing written statements - The learned Senior Civil Judge, by way of impugned judgment and decree dismissed suit for specific performance and ordered refund of advance amount with interest - This appeal is directed against that judgment and decree.

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

Held, in instant case, plaintiff neither proved existence of any privity of contract with defendants nor it adopted procedure as contemplated under clause (e) of Section 19 of Specific Relief Act - It is evident from a reading of clause (c) of Section 16 of Specific Relief Act that a person who fails to aver and prove his due performance and fails to prove his readiness and willingness to perform his/her part of contract is not entitled to equitable relief of specific performance of contract of sale - PW 1 admitted absence of any documentary proof to show availability of amount in credit of Trust and on other hand, he categorically stated that he was not having any documentary evidence to show that said amount was available with Trust - PW 1 also admitted the non-availability of amount at present also - It is also not evidence of PW 1 that balance sale consideration was available - In instant case also, except advancement of pleading in written statement that plaintiff has always been ready, plaintiff did not make any attempt to substantiate its claim by adducing either oral or documentary evidence - Therefore, in absence of compliance of mandatory requirements of Section 16 of Specific Relief Act, plaintiff trust is not entitled for any equitable relief of specific performance of agreement of sale.

In instant case, according to Exs.A1 to A6, it is incumbent on part of General Power of Attorney i.e., defendant No. 27, to secure lay out and to make land into plots before sale and without being preceded by same, Ex. A7 was executed - Therefore, on that ground also Ex.A7 cannot be given any credence.

The compliance of mandatory provisions of Clause (c) of Section 16 of Specific Relief Act is a condition precedent for grant of relief in favour of person applying for - In present case, except pleading that plaintiff has always been ready and willing to perform contract, plaintiff did not adduce any cogent and convincing evidence to substantiate said pleading - Proof of availability of funds is also an indispensable factor which needs to be demonstrated by person pleading so - In instant case, evidence of PW 1 shows vividly absence of same at all relevant points of time - Solvency of persons cannot be equated with willingness of parties unless such solvency translates into reality as per provisions of Section 16 (c) of the Act.

For aforesaid reasons and having regard to principles and parameters laid down in judgments referred this Court does not find any valid reason to meddle with well considered judgment and decree rendered by learned Senior Civil Judge - Accordingly, Appeal stands dismissed, confirming judgment and decree passed by court below. Sri Raghupathi Venkata Ratnam Naidu Trust Vs. Karri Veera Swami(died), per L.Rs 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 270.

—Secs.19,20 & 21 – TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.52 – Petitioner filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale stating that he purchased suit property on assurance given by 1st respondent that it is free from all encumbrances – Trial Court declined to order execution of said agreement on ground that 3rd party rights intervened as 3rd respondent purchased without knowledge or notice of prior sale and he is not affected by Sec.52 of T.P Act – High Court gave finding that agreement between petitioner and 1st respondent not binding on 3rd respondent since 1st respondent has no marketable title to suit property and endorsed view of trial Court – However enhanced interest from 9% to 18% in view of steep rise in price of immovable properties - Petitioner contends that findings of both trial Court and High Court regarding petitioner's readiness and willingness to conclude sale was contrary to evidence adduced and is therefore liable to be set aside and suit liable to be decreed for specific performance in respect of suit land – Respondent contends that on date of agreement 1st respondent has no power or authority to execute agreement, since Power of Attorney executed by 2nd respondent was revoked - Granting relief of specific performance is purely discretionary and is dependent on provisions of Sec.20 of Act and Court u/Sec.21 has power to award compensation for breach of contract instead of decreeing suit for specific performance – Judgment of trial Court as well as High Court – Justified – SLP, dismissed. S.Abdul Khader Vs. Abdul Wajid (D) by Lrs. 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 100.

—Sec.19(b) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.1, Rule 10 - 1st respondent filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale, exhibit A-1 and for declaration that sale deeds exhibits A2 and A5 executed in favour of appellants as null and void - Respondents 2 to 5 remained ex parte - Appellants alone contested suit - After suit decreed, respondents 2 to 5 have executed sale deeds and latter 1st respondent divided land into plots and soled in favour of 75 persons - Appellants filed Application under Or.1, Rule 10 and got impleaded purchases as respondents 6 to 82 - Appellants contend that suit is not only untenable in law but also defective and that Ex.A1 purposely brought into existence and that no reference was made to Ex.A.1 in notices that were exchanged between parties and that every attempt was made to defraud appellants - 1st Respondent/plaintiff contends that appellants were very much aware that respondents 2 to 5 are joint owners of property and still Exs.A2 and A5 were obtained only from respondents 2 and 3 and that they did not even plead that they are bona fide purchasers without knowledge and in that view of matter they are not entitled for any exemption u/Sec.19(b) of Specific Relief Act and that alleged ratification said to have been made by respondents 4 & 5 does not by itself create or convey title in favour of appellants - In suit for specific performance, proof of agreement of sale assumes significance and best persons to speak about are those who executed agreement of sale - Admittedly respondents 2 to 5 are joint owners of property and for best reasons known to them, they remained ex parte - No legal bar for execution of Ex.A.1 was pleaded by any one including appellants - Sec.19 enables a plaintiff in a suit for specific performance to claim relief against transferee, subsequent to suit contract - If subsequent transaction is for value in good faith without notice of original contract, appellants could have availed benefit u/Sec.19(b) - In this case, admittedly respondents 4 & 5 did not execute any sale deed in favour of appellants - A person other than one who is vested with right to transfer cannot execute sale deed, acting on behalf others - Respondents 4 & 5 did not authorize any one to execute sale deeds on their behalf - For all practical purposes their did not exists anything for respondents 4 & 5 to ratify - Therefore Exs.B5 & B6 are of no legal consequence - Even assuming that prayer in relation to Exs.A2

& A5 was defective, it cannot be a ground for interference at stage of Appeal - Appeal, dismissed. A.Pramoda Vs. D.Komaraiah 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 279.

——Sec.19(b) – CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.99 - First respondent filed suit for relief of specific performance of an agreement of sale said to have been executed in his favour by respondent Nos.2 to 5 (defendant Nos.1 to 4) - Relief was also claimed to effect that sale deeds dated 30.05.2002 executed in favour of appellants herein, be declared as null and void - It was pleaded that respondent Nos.2 to 5 inherited suit schedule property from late Pentaiah and they have agreed to sell same to first respondent, for a consideration of Rs.9 lakhs - He stated that a sum of Rs.2 lakhs was paid as advance and on same day, agreement of sale was executed - A further sum of Rs.5 lakhs is said to have been paid later - It was alleged that in spite of repeated offers to pay balance amount of Rs.2 lakhs and request for execution of sale deed, respondent Nos.2 and 5 did not reciprocate - It was further averred that the respondents 2 and 3 have clandestinely and in violation Agreement of Sale, have executed sale deeds, in favour of the appellants and that same cannot be sustained in law - Respondents 2 to 5 remained ex parte - Appellants alone contested suit - They pleaded that Agreement of Sale was brought into existence with collusion between first respondent and respondents 2 and 5 only to defeat rights of the appellants under Exs.A.2 and A.5 - It was urged that Exs.A.2 and A.5 were initially executed by respondents 2 and 3 and that respondent Nos.4 and 5 have executed deeds of ratification on 03.04.2004, Exs.B.5 and B.6 - They further pleaded that ever since the date of sale, they are in possession and enjoyment of the property - Trial court held all issues against appellants and decreed the suit - After suit was decreed, respondents 2 to 5 have executed sale deeds in favour of first respondent - Latter, in turn, is said to have divided land into plots and sold same in favour of about 75 persons - Appellants filed A.S.M.P.No.485 of 2008 under Order 1 Rule 10 of CPC with a prayer to implead them as respondents - Application was ordered and purchasers are impleaded as respondents 6 to 82.

It was contended by appellants that the suit presented by plaintiffs, was not only untenable in law but also was defective and that relief of cancellation of sale deeds in favour of petitioners was not prayed for, and at a later point of time, it was inserted and Ex.A.1 was brought into existence only with an attempt to cast doubt upon the legality and validity of the sale deeds executed in favour of appellants and that this is evident from fact that no reference was made to Ex.A.1, in notices that were exchanged between the parties - It was also contended that trial Court has drawn certain inferences, which are not at all supported by pleadings or evidence and that Ex.A.1 is inadmissible in evidence, since it was not registered.

First respondent submitted that only persons, who could have disputed execution or existence of Ex.A.6 are D.W.s 2 to 5 and they have chosen to remain ex parte and that the appellants were not sure as to their case, or the manner in which they are said to have derived title - It is argued that appellants were very much aware that respondents 2 to 5 are joint owners of the property and still, Exs.A.2 and A.5 were obtained only from respondents 2 and 3 - Further, alleged deeds of ratification, said to have been executed by respondents 4 and 5 hardly bring about any change and that the appellants made a vain effort to plead the existence of an agreement of sale in their favour, in respect of suit land, anterior in by time; and having taken a specific plea in written statement and made a mention in the evidence, they have not filed same into Court - Further, Sec.99 of CPC bars grant of any relief in favour of appellants and that appellants did not even plead that they are bonafide purchasers without knowledge, in that view of matter, they are not entitled for any exemption under Sec.19 (b) of Specific Relief Act - Alleged ratification said to have been made by respondents 4 and 5 does not by itself create or convey a title in favour of appellants.

Held, very preamble of judgment discloses that the relief was not only as regards specific performance of an agreement of sale, but also to declare the documents executed in favour of appellants, as null and void - Therefore, doubt expressed by petitioner as to accuracy of decree, is without basis.

If law requires or permits that a particular transaction can be brought into existence through a prescribed procedure, a procedure different from what is prescribed can never bring the same result - Ratification can never be resorted to, for adding legality to a transaction, which does not exist, or one which has not taken in accordance with law - We are immediately concerned with transaction of sale - A sale can take place only with participation of vendor either personally or through agent - There cannot be expost facto approval of sale - Admittedly, respondents 4 and 5 did not execute any sale deed in favour of appellants - A person other than one, who is vested with right to transfer, cannot execute sale deed, acting on behalf of others - Respondents 4 and 5 did not authorize any one to execute sale deeds on their behalf - Only possibility to import theory of ratification, in case of sale transaction is where deeds are executed by a power of attorney and principal puts a seal of approval for it by way of ratification, if any doubt was expressed about authorization - For all practical purposes, there did not exist anything for respondents 4 and 5 to ratify - Therefore, Exs.B.5 and B.6 are of no legal consequence - Result of above discussion is that sale in favour of appellants is not saved by law.

In case on hand, no formal defect, as such, is noticed - Even assuming that prayer in relation to Exs.A.2 and A.5 was defective, it cannot be a ground for interference at stage of appeal - Trial Court has framed an issue, touching controversy - Parties adduced evidence in relation thereto, and a specific finding was recorded - Alleged defect did not effect merits of the matter. A.Pramoda Vs. D.Komaraiah 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 49.

—Sec. 20 - JUDICIAL DISCRETION - In a suit for specific performance of a contract, the Court has to keep in mind Section 20 of the Specific Reliefs Act -This Section empowers judicial discretion to Courts to grant decree for Specific performance - Court is not bound to grant specific performance merely because it is lawful to do so - Court should meticulously consider all facts and circumstances of the case and to see that it is not used as an instrument of oppression to have an unfair advantage not only to the plaintiff but also to the defendant. K.Nanjappa Vs. R.A.Hameed 2015(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 1 = AIR 2015 SC 3389 = 2015 AIR SCW 5172 = 2015(6) ALD 41 (SC).

—Sec.20 – Provides that the jurisdiction to decree specific performance is discretionary, and the court is not bound to grant such relief merely because it is lawful to do so. Ramesh Chand Dead Through Lrs Vs. Asruddin(Dead) 2015(3) Law Summary(S.C.) 36

—Sec.20 - LIMITATION ACT, Sec.15(5) - Readiness and willingness - Suit filed for specific performance of agreement dt.12-12-1970 - Plaintiff paid Rs.50,000/- to defendant as against price fixed under agreement for Rs.3.75 lakhs - Trial Court passed decree, appellate Court reversed judgment of trial Court on ground that plaintiff's suit was barred by limitation - Appellants/plaintiffs contend that conclusion has been reached by appellate Court on an apparent mis-interpretation of provisions of Sec.15(5) of Limitation Act and that claim of plaintiff that letter dt. 9-9-1971 had been sent by defendant to plaintiff requesting for further sum of Rs.1 lakh for purpose of furnishing Bank Guarantee in favour of Income Tax Authorities and alleged refusal/failure of plaintiff to comply said request not borne out by evidence on record and consequential findings on question of readiness and willingness of plaintiffs are plainly incorrect and that in such a situation, notwithstanding expiry of long efflux of time, when plaintiff was no way at fault a decree of specific performance should follow, if required suitably enhancing value of property and that plaintiff indicated willingness to offer an amount of Rs.6 crores for property in question as against Rs.3.75 lakhs as mentioned in agrement dt.22-12-1970 - Respondent contends that meanings sought to be attributed to provisions of Sec.15(5) of Limitation Act is wholly unacceptable and that law does not countenance situation where initiation of civil action can be postponed, till availability of defendant in India which would be virtual effect of Sec.15(5) of Limitation Act if contention made on behalfof appellants on this Court are to be accepted - In this case, ultimate question that has now to be considered is, whether plaintiff should be held to be entitled to a decree for specific performance of agreement of 22-12-1970 - Long efflux of time (over 40 years) that has occurred and galloping value of real estate in mean time or twin inhibiting factors in this regard - However same have to be balanced with fact that plaintiffs are in no way responsible for delay that has occurred and their keen participation in proceedings till date show live interest on part of plaintiffs to have agrement enforced in law.

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, Sec.20 - Discretion to direct specific performance of agreement and that too after elapse of a long period of time, undoubtedly, has to be exercised on sound, reasonable, rational and acceptable principles - Parameters for exercise of discretion vested by Sec.20 of Specific Relief Act cannot be entrapped within any precise expression of language and contours thereof will always depend on facts and circumstances of each case - Ultimate guiding test would be principles of fairness and reasonableness as may be dictated by peculiar facts of any given case, which features experienced judicial mind can perceive without any real difficulty - However that efflux of time and escalation of price of property, by itself, cannot be a valid ground to deny relief of specific performance - In this case, ends of justice would require to intervene and set aside findings and conclusions recorded by High Court and to decree suit of plaintiff for specific performance of agreement dt.22-12-1970 and that sale deed that will now have to be executed by defendants in favour of plaintiffs will be for market price of suit property as on date of present order - As no material what soever is available to make correct assessment of market value of suit property as on date, trial Judge of High Court is requested to undertake such exercise with such expedition as may be possible in prevailing facts and circumstances - Appeals allowed, accordingly. Satya Jain(D) LRs Vs. Ans Ahmed Rushdie(D) Tr.L.RS. 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 55.

—Secs.20 &12 (2) - CPC Or. 41, Rule 27 - "time is essence of contract" - Plaintiff filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale pleading that defendant executed agreement of sale agreeing to sell property to total consideration of Rs.10.5 lakhs and received Rs.5 lakhs towards advance on date of agreement and subsequently Rs.50,000/- and agreed to receive remaining balance sale consideration within 1 ½ months from date of agreement at time of delivery of possession and also agreed to settle dispute including 26 sq.yds abutting area agreed to be sold - Defendant contends that since plaintiff failed to pay balance sale consideration within stipulated period, suit agreement automatically stood cancelled and that Municipal Corporation acquired 54 sq.yds for widening of road and that he gave consent by surrendering 54 sq.yds and constructed four new mulgies on part of site occupied by old existing shed by investing Rs.3 lakh and that therefore plaintiff not entitled to discretionary relief in view of subsequent development - Trial Court dismissed suit holding that plaintiff is not entitled for specific performance of agreement of sale and entitled only for refund of Rs.4.5 lakhs from defendant with interest and in view of acquisition of 54 sq.yds of land by Municipal Corporation and construction of four new mulgies by defendant, plaintiff not entitled to discretionary relief of specific performance - Appellant/plaintiff contends that time is not essence of contract where immovable property is involved and that defendant not justified in forfeiting amount of one lakh and that acquisition of part of property and construction of mulgies thereon by defendant would not disentitle plaintiff from claiming relief of specific performance of agreement of sale and in such case Sec.12(2) of Act cannot be invoked against plaintiff, but it can only for benefit of purchaser - Defendant contends that plaintiff has failed to pay balance sale consideration within 1½ months as agreed - Even as per terms of agreement, failure on part of plaintiff to pay amount within 1 ½ months not only entitles defendant for cancellation of agreement but also forfeiture of one lakh out of advance amount and when it is specifically agreed that "time is essence of contract", plaintiff is not entitled to discretionary relief of specific performance - "Time is essence of contract" - Intention to treat time as essence of contract may be evidenced by circumstance which should be sufficiently strong to displace normal presumption that in a contract of sale of land stipulation as to time is not essence of contract - In this case, a combined reading of clauses in agreement, makes it clear that parties intended to complete transaction within 1 ½ months from date of execution of agreement and that sale deed should be executed by paying balance sale consideration and possession of property will be delivered at time of execution and registration of sale demand that failure to pay balance sale consideration by vendee within a period of 1 ½ months agreement stands cancelled and in such an event vendor is entitled to forfeit Rs. 1 lakh and refund balance and that it shows that parties intended to be time is essence of contract - In view of same, plaintiff is not entitled to discretionary relief of specific performance of agreement of sale - Appeal, dismissed. Syed Quadri Vs. Syed Mujeebuddin 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 32 = 2009(5) ALD 682 = 2009(5) ALT 502.

—Secs.20 & 16 - Appellant/plaintiff filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale - Respondent/defendant contends that very purpose of offering land for sale, was to clear debts payable to Bank and that having undertook to pay balance amount within 15 days, appellant did not make any payment and as such he was compelled to transfer properties of his close relatives to discharge liability towards bank and that time is essence of contract and appellant lost his right to seek specific performance of same - Concept of "Time being essence of contract" has a close proxmity with point of time, at which relief is prayed for, and this, in turn would have a direct bearing upon manner in which discretion of Court is to be exercised - Courts concede some latitude to parties in matter of seeking remedies, where time is not essence of contract - Extent of latitude would depend upon purpose for and circumstances under which transction came into existence - In this case, very first sentence in agreement discloses that respondent agreed to sell land to clear loan due to Bank and to other creditors and agreement also provided for payment of amount by appellant directly to bank on or before particular date - Neither from pleadings nor from agreement, it is evident that appellant made any efforts to remit amount and bank refused to receive same - Very fact that appellant did not remit amount with bank, upto date of filing of suit, which is more than two years from due date, is strong indication that he was not ready or not willing to discharge his obligation - Present case is a typical one, where discretion of Court vested u/Sec.22 of Act, must be exercised to refuse relief of specific performance in favour of appellant/plaintiff - Judgment of appellate Court - Justified - Second appeal, dismissed. Shaik Mahaboob Sahab Vs. K.Nageswara Rao 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 24 = 2008(2) ALD 624 = 2008(3) ALT 144 = AIR 2008 AP 55.

—Sec.22(2) - Suit for specific performance of agreement of sale - Appellant/defendant contends that since no relief is sought for partition of undivided 1/6th share of joint family property, no decree can be passed contrary to Sec.22(2) of Act - Held, that plaintiff has sought only for specific performance of larger relief and therefore bar u/

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

Sec.22(2) of Act could not deprive him from seeking that relief - Appeal, dismissed. Pasupuleti Rangamma Vs. Pasupuleti Ranganayakulu 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 138 = 2014(4) ALD 496 = 2014(4) ALT 749 = AIR 2014 AP 98.

—Sec.26 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.6, Rule 17 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.227 - Suit for specific performance of agreement for sale and permanent injunction - Trial Court allowed Application seeking amendment not only of plaint but also agreement to sell - High Court allowed writ petition and set aside order of trial Court on grounds of expiry of limitation and if such amendment is allowed nature of suit would change - Appellant contends that in view of nature of amendment sought for in plaint as well as in agreement, High Court was not justified in rejecting prayer for amendment of plaint and agreement and also that in view of Sec.26 of Act it is open to appellant to apply for amendment of agreement of sale - Neither nature and character of suit would be changed nor question of limitation could arise - Respondent contends that if description of suit property needs to be corrected, it can only be corrected by instituting suit for correction or rectification of deed and that neither prayer for amendment of agreement nor prayer for amendment of plaint could be allowed even though said amendment relates only to change of part of description of suit property - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, ART.227 - Power of High Court - High Court ought not to have interfered with order of trial Court when order of trial Court was passed on sound consideration of law and facts and when it cannot be said that order of trial Court was either without jurisdiction or perverse or arbitrary - Impugned order of High Court, set aside - Order of trial Court restored - Application for amendment of plaint as prayed for, allowed. Puran Ram Vs. Bhaguram 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 85.

—Sec.26 & 16 - EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, Sec.5 & 103 - "Burden of proof" - "Admissibility of documents and its probative value" - "Undue influence" - "Rectification of deed" - Late BPS settled his two properties in favour of son and daughter by registered deed - Subsequently son and daughter exchanged properties by way of executing unregistered deeds - Son filed suit for effecting rectification of deed and where as daughter filed counter suit - Trial Court decreed suit filed by son and dismissed suit filed by respondent/daughter - High Court allowed appeals filed by daughter - During pendency of appeals appellant sold property to 2nd respondent - Hence present appeals - Sec.26 of Specific Relief Act has limited application and is applicable only where it is pleaded and proved that through fraud or mutual mistake of parties, real intention of parties is not expressed in relation to an instrument and such rectification is permissible only by parties to instrument and by non else.

FRAUD AND UNDUE INFLUENCE - "...in cases of fraud and undue influence and coercion if parties pleading with must set forth full particulars and case can only be decided on particulars as laid- If there are facts on record to justify inference of "undue influence" omission to make an allegation of undue influence specifically, is not fatal to plaintiff being entitled to relief on that ground; all that Court has to see is that there is no surprise to defendant and that mere lack of details in pleadings cannot be a ground to reject a case for reason that it can be supplemented through evidence by parties.

"BURDEN OF PROOF" - When fraud, mis-representation or undue influence, is alleged by a party in a suit, normally burden is on him to prove such fraud, undue influence or misrepresentation, but when person is in fiduciary relationship with another and latrer is in a position of active confidence burden of proving absence of fraud, misrepresentation or undue influence is upon person in dominating position, he has to prove that there was fair play in transaction and that apparent is real and that transaction is genuine and bona fide.

View taken by High Court holding that document being unregistered document could not have been relied upon and it had wrongly been admitted, is not legally correct - Even though document may be admissible, still its contents have to be proved and in instant case, as appellant did not examine either attesting witnesses of document nor proved its contents, no fault can be found with judgment impugned before Court - Sec.26 of Specific Relief Act provides rectification of a document, if parties feels that they have committed any mistake - Mere rectification by parties herein does not take case within ambit of Sec.26 of Act - High Court reached correct conclusion - Appeals, dismissed. Joseph John Peter Sandy Vs.VeronicaThomas Rajkumar 2013(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 199 = 2013(5) ALD 22 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 2604 = AIR 2013 SC 2028.

—Sec.28 – CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Secs.47 & 151 - Suit for specific performance filed by petitioner in 2002 - In 2008, decree to execute a sale deed passed against defendants by collecting balance sale consideration within two months - Petitioner again filed E.P. in 2011 stating that though he offered to pay balance sale consideration within that time, respondents refused to receive same and have also avoided execution of sale deed - E.A was filed by respondent/defendant against E.P. of Petitioner - E.A. was allowed by Executing Court in 2012 - As a result, Executing Court dismissed E.P - Petitioner filed present revision.

Held, there was nothing on record to indicate that he (respondent) ever made any effort to collect or demand balance of consideration from petitioner, within that time - Plea of petitioner that when he offered amount, respondents refused to receive remained unrebutted - 1st respondent did not file any rejoinder to counter-affidavit (filed by petitioner) - Executing Court did not record any evidence of parties - Therefore, the finding recorded by trial court, in this behalf, cannot be sustained - When valuable rights accrued to a party, on account of suit for specific performance being decreed, they cannot be taken away on basis of such an untenable finding - Court must ensure strict compliance with conditions stipulated in a provision, which has effect of nullifying a decree - Even where two views are possible on facts of case, the one, which would sustain decree must be adopted - The revisions are allowed and orders under revisions are set aside. K.S.Venkata Raman Vs. Prem Jeevan 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 302 = 2015(2) ALD 207.

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

—Sec.28(1) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.158 - "Limitation" - Petitioner filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale against respondent - Respondent was set exparte and ex parte decree passed by trial Court with stipulation that petitioner shall deposit balance sale consideration amount in Court within one month from date of decree - Petitioner did not deposit balance sale consideration as per said condition but however filed IA for condoning delay of 1417 days and extension of time for deposit of balance sale consideration - Petitioner has averred in his Application that he has left to his native place in Maharashtra and that his Advocate was not aware of his whereabouts, due to which he could not comply with decretal condition regarding deposit of balance sale consideration and that he was under impression that suit was pending and his advocate was looking after suit proceedings and that recently he came back and came to know about passing of ex parte decree - Respondent resisted petitioner's Application - Trial Court dismissed Application of petitioner on ground that averments in his application are not supported by any evidence and that petitioner failed to give satisfactory explanation for inordinate delay of 1417 days in filing application and therefore declined relief as per amended provision of Sec.148, that Court cannot enalrge time beyond 30 days - Petitioners contend that trial Court is vested with power to extend time for payment of balance sale consideration u/ Sec.28(1) of Specific Relief Act and that therefore lower Court has misdirected itself in holding that he has no power to extend time beyond 30 days as stipulated u/Sec.148 CPC - Relief of specific performance is purely a discretionary relief and Court is not bound to grant same merely because there was a valid agreement of sale - It is an equitable remedy which lies purely in discretion of Court, which of course has to be exercised according to settled principles of law - Trial Court is completely justified in dismissing petitioner's Application for extension of time for deposit of balance sale consideration, on ground of inordinate delay - CRP, dismissed. Ali Jaffar Vs. V.Venkat Reddy 2012(1) Law Summary 189 = 2012(3) ALD 220 = 2012(3) ALT 202 = AIR 2012 AP 102.

—Secs.31 - Sec.26(K(i) of Rules framed by State of A.P under Registration Act - Govt., alienate Hill Poramboke land in favour of petitioner on payment of market value for construction of Cottages for "Aged people and Orphans" on payment of market value at Rs.45 lakhs per Acre - Tahsildar also executed registered deed of conveyance in favour petitioners - Subsequently 2nd respondent/District Collector addressed letter dt.20-7-2012, to respondents 4 & 5 not to approve/release layout and building plans, if any submitted by petitioner until further communication - Hence present writ petition filed for Mandamus to set aside letter of District Collector - Petitioners contends that land having been allotted to petitioner and registered conveyance deed having been executed in favour of petitioner by Tahsildar, concerned on behalf of Govt., 2nd respondent/ District Collector has no power or authority to interfere with right of petitioner to use said land for purpose for which it was allotted and that respondents have no power to interfere with or curtail rights of petitioners without getting registered conveyance deed cancelled by competent civil Court - Person who seeks cancellation of registered document has two remidies available to him under law, viz., i) to seek invalidaion of registered document by competent Court of law u/Sec.31 of Specific Relief Act ii) to seek cancellation of registered document by following procedure prescribed u/ Sec.26(k)(i) of Rules framed by State of A.P. under registration Act and except those two remedies, no person or authority has right to unilaterally invalidate a registered document on any ground - However that so long as allotment made to petitioner under registered sale deed executed in its favour remain in force, none of respondents has power or authority to interfere with right of petitioner to utilize land for purposes it was allotted and sold - If at all 2nd respondent/Collector opines that allotment itself is vitiated by any illegalities, he can only initiate appropriate proceedings against petitioner in accordance with law - Till such proceedings are initiated and appropriate orders are passed by competent authority 2nd respondent/Collector has no right to address impugned letter - Hence impugned letter, set aside - Writ petition, allowed. Hayagreeva Farms & Developers Vs. Govt of A.P. 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 251 = 2014(2) ALD 250 = 2014(3) ALT 3.

—Secs.31, 34 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rule 33 - Contention that sale deed obtained from plaintiff by coercion threat and by playing fraud and also obtained promissory notes - Plaintiff filed suit for declaration and injunction contending that defendants have no capacity to purchase land - Defendants filed written statement denying allegations about claim of plaintiff - Trial Court decreed suit of the plaintiff - Learned single Judge allowed appeal preferred by defendants and dismissed suit of plaintiff - Division Bench dismissed LPA filed by plaintiff and as against dismissal order plaintiff preferred SLP - Supreme Court set aside judgment in LPA holding that order under challenge needs to be heard in greater detail and remanded matter - There is nothing to show that document is invalidated by mere fact that consideration was not paid before Sub-Registrar - Failure of defendants to produce discharged promissory notes as found by lower Court is irrelevant - Evidently, when a promissory note has been discharged it will be given back to the executants of promissory note and it will not be kept with holder of promissory note - Therefore when consideration under promissory note was given discharge under sale, promissory note will be returned to plaintiff and there is absolutely no reason for examining scribe or attestars or to produce said promissory notes by defendant - In this case, all circumstances against 1st plaintiff or further crystallised by single fact that suit was filed in year 1979 merely one year after realization of fraud and coercion, even without issuing any notice - It is quite clear that order to explain and attempt to avoid liability on sale deeds, theory of coercion fraud and confinement for six months was developed by plaintiff - Power under Or.41, Rule 33 are wide and poses no doubt about power of appellate Court to reassess evidence and pass appropriate orders - LPA, dismissed. Suraneni Lakshmi Vs. B.Venkata Durga Rao 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 361= 2011(3) ALD 721 = 2011(2) ALT 501.

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

—Sec.34 - SUCCESSION ACT, Secs.217 & 227 - Appellant filed suit for declaration and permanent injunction contending that suit properties are joint family properties - Respondents/defendants filing Application raising preliminary objection stating that after probate has been granted in respect of suit properties, civil Court has no jurisdiction to proceed with suit for declaration of title and permanent injunction - Trial Court dismissed suit - High Court affirmed order of civil Court holding that suit not maintainable after grant of probate by competent probate Court - Functions of probate Court are to see that Will executed by testator is actually executed by him in a sound disposing state of mind without coercion or undue influence and same is duly attested and therefore it is not competent for probate Court to determine whether testator has or has not authority do dispose of suit properties which he has bequeathed by his Will - Probate Court is also not competent to determine question of title to suit properties and cannot go into question whether suit properties bequeathed by Will are joint ancestral properties or acquired properties of testator - High Court as well as trial Court had acted illegally in dismissing suit of appellant on sole ground after framing preliminary issue - Judgment of High Court as well as of trial Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Kanwarjit Singh Vs. Hardyal Singh Dhillon 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 82.

—Sec.38 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.100 and Or.41, Rule 27 - Appellant/plaintiff filed suit for permanent injunction against Municipality - Trial Court dismissed suit - Appellant/plaintiff filed certain documents before 1st appellate Court as additional evidence in proof of their possession of suit property - Though said documents are marked appellate Court refused to rely on document on ground that they relate to period subsequent to filing of suit - Municipality categorically admitted possession of appellants in counter filed by it in writ petition filed by appellants earlier - In this case, 1st appellate Court had fallen in to grave error in holding that documents received as additional evidence are not useful for considering as evidence in relation to possession of appellants - Respondent-Municipality not filed any written statement before trial Court and pleadings of appellants were not contraverted or denied by respondent Municipality - Moreover respondent/municipality admitted possession of appellants over suit property - In absence of any plea by respondent/Municipality that parties were at issue as to whether appellants were in possession suit property and there was no basis for 1st appellate Court to hold that suit barred by res judicata - It is not at all case of appellants that at any point of time respondent took possession of suit property from them and absolutely no proceedings have been brought on record by respondent/Municipality showing steps taken by them to remove alleged encroachment made by appellants - Both Courts below were totally unjustified that act of demolition by respondent/Municipality indicates their exercising right of dispossession of appellants from suit property - Evidence on record clearly reveals that appellants are in settled possession of suit property since long time prior to filing of suit and they were never dispossessed of property by respondent/Municipality - A person who is in settled possession of property is entitled for relief of injunction irrespective of fact whether he succeeds in proving his title to property or not - Since evidence in proof of possession of plaintiffs available on record is totally ignored by both Court below and findings rendered are contrary to settled legal principles, they are liable to be set aside in present second appeal - Suit filed by appellants seeking permanent injunction, decreed - Second appeal allowed. Mohd. Khasim Vs. Municipal Corporation Warangal, 2012(1) Law Summary 333 = 2012(2) ALD 94 = 2012(2) ALT 665.

—Sec.38, r/w 2-A - 1st plaintiff filed suit for perpetual injunction basing of agreement of sale and subsequently obtained registered sale deed in favour of his wife/2nd plaintiff and hence she is entitled to pursue suit as it was instituted for her benefit - Defendants contend that plaintiff did not show plaint schedule property correctly with correct measurements and boundaries and that 1st defendant purchased suit property about 20 years back and was put in possession and that there is no cause of action to suit and that document executed by vendors of plaintiff not true, valid and binding on defendants and that 1st defendant perfected his right by adverse possession - Trial Court negatived relief in plaint holding that D1 was able to prove prima facie his adverse possession - Appellate Court reversed decree and judgment of trial Court, holding that plaintiffs had been in possession of suit property as on date of suit - ".....(1) A suit for permanent injunction without prayer for declaration of title is maintainable (2) When title is specifically denied and cloud cast on title to be cleared, it would be safe to pray for relief of declaration in such suit (3) In a suit for permanent injunction, question of title may be incidentally gone into....." - Factum of possession predominantly is a finding of fact - Appellate Court had taken nature of defence taken by contesting defendants into consideration and also subsequent events and granted decree of perpetual injunction - In this case, order impleading 2nd plaintiff attained finality - Merely on ground that it is a subsequent cause of action to drive such a party to yet another litigation would be further making litigation more complicated and paving way to multiplicity of proceedings - Finding recorded by appellate Court, confirmed - Second appeal, dismissed. Surampudi Sudarsana Rao Vs. Nanduri Venkata Seetha Ramanjaneyulu 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 134 = 2008(4) ALD 505 = 2008(6) ALT 676 = 2008(2) APLJ 141.

—Sec, 42 - Plaintiff filed suit for declaration of title and permanent injunction restraining defendant from interfering with their possession and enjoyment of suit property - Defendant contends that he purchased property for valid consideration under registered sale deed from Manager of joint family for maintenance of joint family - Trial Court dismissed suit - Appellant/plaintiff contends that Manager of joint family at best, could have alienated his half share and not that of other coparcener and therefore he is entitled for declaration of title at least for half extent of suit property - It is no doubt true that u/ Sec.42 of Act suit for declaration of title without claiming possession not maintainable - However relief sought in present suit was not merely for declaration of title but was also for permanent injunction restraining defendant from interfering with possession and enjoyment - As such preliminary objection to maintainability of suit must fail. Nagamma Vs. G. Kamalamma 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 104 = 2008(2) ALD 794 = 2008(1) ALT 281.

– and CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.41, Rule 27 - Defendants preferred instant appeal aggrieved by Judgment and Decree, granting specific performance decree in favour plaintiff - Trial Court having regard to evidence of PW1-plaintiff, PW2-one of attestors of Ex.A.1 and Pw.3-Bank Manager stating about passing of Rs.5,500/- from account of Pw.1 to D-4, has come to conclusion that agreement of sale was genuine - In this process, trial Court disbelieved contention of defendants that Ex.A.1 was fabricated after obtaining signatures of defendants on blank papers - Trial Court also disbelieved contention of defendants that they were not absolute owners of suit property and accordingly decreed suit as prayed for - Hence, present appeal by defendants 1, 3 and 4.

Held, precedential jurispru-dence on legal issue tells us that mere attestation of a document is not a proof of attestor knowing contents and consented - Such proof is to be independently established - In instant case, as already pointed out supra, documents spelled out as if D-4 and his wife alone are owners of subject matter of sale and they alone were shown as executants - No doubt, PWs.1 and 2 deposed that all defendants and wife of D-4 were present and executed document but that is not a sufficient explanation for question as to why other defendants were made to affix their signatures and thumb impression when they were not allegedly owners of property - Trial court made an endeavor by presuming that D-4 and his wife are owners of 1/4th of joint family property and hence they were shown as executants and other defendants as consenting parties - When that fact is not borne out either in pleadings or in oral and documentary evidence, Court considered view, court cannot make such presumption.

Merely because plaintiff is ready and willing to perform her part of contract, that itself is not sufficient to grant equitable relief particularly when she failed to establish that defendants are fullfledged owners of property and that other defendants have consented for transaction and further, allowing specific performance cause undue hardship to defendants - Hence, plaintiff is not entitled to specific performance.

In result, this appeal is allowed and decree and judgment is set aside and D-4 is directed to refund advance amount of Rs.27,000/- to plaintiff with interest @ 6% p.a. from date of filing suit till realization. K.Bhudamma Vs. Vidyadevi 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 431 = 2016(3) ALD 351 = 2016(2) ALT 543.

—and EVIDENCE ACT, Sec. 45 - LIMITATION ACT, Art.54 - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.53-A - Respondents filed suit for declaration of title and perpetual injunction against defendant, Bogi Reddy, basing on gift deeds executed by their grant-father Jaffer Saheb - Defendant filed suit for specific performance basing on agreement of sale executed by Jaffer Saheb as regards same property - Trial Court through common judgment decreed suit filed by respondents and dismissed suit filed by defendant - District Judge through common judgment dismissed appeals - Appellants contend that evidence on recorded clearly demonstrates that agreement of sale Ex.B.1 proved and possession of appellants was admitted by Jaffer Saheb himself and they perfected their title by way of adverse possession and that suit for injunction filed by respondents not tenable when possession has already been parted - Respondents contend that suit filed by appellants barred by limitation since filed nearly decades after date of alleged agreement of sale - Agreement, Ex.B.1 said to have been executed by Jaffer Saheb contained thumb impressions - Trial Court sent document to handwriting expert for comparison - Expert's report discloses that thumb impressions on agreement and thumb impressions of Jaffer Saheb taken by trial Court on plain paper are identical - Jaffer Saheb in his statements before Revenue Authorities have clearly admitted execution of Ex.B.1 and also delivery of possession to Bogi Reddy - In view of this clinching evidence, hardly their exists any doubt that exhibit B.1 was proved and possession of land is with Bogi Reddy or his legal representatives - In this case, Courts below mistook Survey number in 10 (1) adangal and gave finding that appellants failed to prove their possession - In fact 10 (1) adangal contained only one Survey number and name of wife of Bogi Reddy was written against it - Therefore findings recorded by trial Court are clearly perverse - Suit filed by plaintiff for declaration of title and perpetual injunction without relief of recovery of possession is untenable - Admissions of Jaffer Saheb clinchingly established that appellants perfected their title through adverse possession - LIMITATION - Starting point for computing period is dates specified for performance of agreement, or date on which refusal is communicated - Continuous possession over suit property discloses that appellants did not face any resistance from respondents or Jaffer Saheb - There is nothing to disclose that intention communicated to appellants - Soon after receiving notice in suit filed by respondents, appellants filed suit for specific performance - Therefore it cannot be straightaway said that their existed clear starting point of limitation and suit was barred - Appellants perfected their title through adverse possession and relief claimed by them in their suit becomes redundant - Suit filed by respondents stand dismissed and suit filed by appellants stand decreed as prayed for - Second appeals, allowed. Musalreddygaru Subbamma Vs. Mulla Ismail 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 294 = 2008(2) ALD 61 = 2008(3) ALT 532.

—and TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.55 (1) (b) & (c) - Appellant/plaintiff filed suit for specific performance of agreement to sell - Trial Court dismissed suit for specific performance holding that appellants not ready and willing to perform their part of contract and also that time was not essence of contract - High Court affirmed decree of trial Court and held that time was essence of contract - T.P Act, Sec.55 (1) (b) (c) - Applicability - This section deals with rights and liabilities of buyer and seller - Sub-sec.(b) clearly says that it would be open to buyer to ask seller to produce for examination of all documents of title relating to property which are in possession of seller and buyer - So far as present case is concerned, condition regarding clearance or exemption from endowment Department is not a document of title relating to property which would benefit buyer for examination for purpose of completing agreement for sale - Section applicable only in absence of contract to contrary - In this case, there is admittedly a contract for sale which clearly lays down terms and conditions to govern sale transaction - In a suit for specific performance of contract for sale it has to be proved that plaintiff who is seeking for decree for specific performance of contract for sale must always be ready and willing to complete terms of agreement for sale and that he has not abndoned contract and his intention is to keep contract subsisting till it is executed - In this case, not only trial Court as well as High Court on concurrent findings of fact and on consideration of evidence on record came to conclusion that appellants were not ready and willing to perform terms and conditions of sale - Concurrent findings of fact arrived at by High Court and trial Court on question of readiness and willingness to perform their part of obligation, so far as appellants are concerned cannot be interfered with - Appeal, allowed. A.K.Lakshmipathy (dead) Vs. Rai Saheb Pannalal H Lohti Charitable Trust 2009(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 142 = 2009(6) ALD 139(SC) = 2009 AIR SCW 7144 = 2009 (7) Supreme 201.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Sec.2 (5) - "Bond" - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit for recovery of certain amount basing on a document - Petitioner/defendant taking objction to mark document that it does not answer description of "promissory note" or "bond" - Trial Court passing order treating document as bond - Petitioner contends that so called document is neither dated nor attested and does not answer description of bond as defined u/Sec.2(5) of Stamp Act - BOND - Defined - First category of documents which are defined as bond or those which obligate an individual to pay an amount on occurrence or non-occurrence of an event - Berift of condition or contingency, obligation under document does not make it a bond - No such condition is present in document in question - Second category of documents are those which are attested by witness and not payable to order or bearer - Here again document does not hit to definition - Third category is totally different altogether and disputed document does not come under it - In this case, there is no privity of contract between petitioner and 1st respondent/plaintiff - Document does not contain any date - Mere fact that petitioner paid one instalment under document does not make it admissible in law if it is otherwise not - Order passed by trial Court in relation to said document, set aside - CRP, allowed. K.Veera Nagi Reddy Vs. Shaik Idayathullah 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 197.

—Secs.2(5) and 2(23) - "Bond" and "receipt" - Defined - Respondent filed suit against petitioner/defendant for recovery of certain amount basing on document described as 'receipt' - Petitioner/defendant took plea that document is in nature of bond and having not been properly stamped not admissible in evidence - Trial Court after considering recitals of document, rejected said plea of petitioner - Hence present CRP - In document it is stated that a sum of Rs. 1 lakh with interest at Rs.2.50ps. was received by petitioner from respondent and document is attested by two persons - Undisputedly recitals contained in suit document do not contain any such obligation on part of petitioner to pay money to respondent - It is case of respondent that petitioner has received money which he has acknowledged by executing suit document - Even if "receipt" was attested by two witnesses that by itself does not constitute "bond", unless executant of document has undertaken obligation to pay money thereunder - Order of lower Court, justified - CRP, dismissed. Menda Joga Rao Vs. Varanasi Harinadham 2011(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 130 = 2011(4) ALD 303 = 2011(4) ALT 14 = AIR 2011 (NOC) 338 (AP).

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Secs.2(5) and 2(23) - "Bond" - "Receipt - Respondent filed suit to recover certain amount from defendant basing on document executed by defendant - When plaintiff sought to mark said document raised objection by defendant on ground that document is not "receipt" but is a "bond" as defined and unless it is impounded and penalty is levied thereon, it is inadmissible inevidence - Trial Court overruled objection of defendant on ground that requirements of "bond" are absent and documents amounts to only acknowledgment of defendant to pay amount to plaintiff - Hence present revision preferred by defendant - STAMP ACT, Sec.2(5) - "BOND" - Defined - To answer Description of Bond, instrument must evidence; (1) person obliges himself to pay money to another, on condition that said obligation shall be void if specified act is performed or is not performed as case may be; (2) an instrument where by a person obliges himself to pay money to another and is attested by witnesses but said money is not payable to order or bearer; (3) any witness attested by witness whereby a person obliges himself to deliver grain or other agricultural produce to another - Undisputedly document in question has been attested by as many as seven witnesses and recitals clearly disclose obligation undertaken by defendant/petitioner to refund amount without interest to plaintiff/respondent - Crucially there is no undertaking contained in said document that amount is payable to order or bearer of plaintiff - Therefore Cl.(b) of Sub-Clause 5 of Sec.2 is squarely attracted to instrument in instant case.

2(23) RECEIPT - Defined - Definition of receipt discloses that (1) where any money or any bill of exchange, cheque or promissory note is acknowledged to have been received or (2) Where any other movable property is acknowledged to have been received in satisfaction of debt (3) where any debt or demand, or any part of debt or demand is acknowledged to have been satisfied or discharged (4) where instrument signifies or imports any such acknowledgment and where same is or is not signed with name of any person, then alone, such instrument can answer definition of "receipt" - Suit document which squarely attracted conditions contained in Cl.(b) of Sub-Clause (5) of Sec.2 - In that view of matter suit document is chargeable as a "bond" in as much as it did not contain any recital that money payable to order or bearer of plaintiff and suit document liable to be construed as "bond" but not "receipt", since it contained something more than a mere acknowledgment of money and consequently liable to be charged to duty accordingly. Undeela Gownadh Vs. Mutyam Anil Kumar 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 185 = 2011(6) ALD 693.

—Secs.2(5), 36 & 61 - 1st respondent/plaintiff filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale and produced a document marked as Ex.A.1 - Initially suit filed against 2nd respondent as sole defendant and as he has stated in his written statement that suit schedule property was sold to petitioner, latter was impleaded as defendant

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

no.2 in suit and by time petitioner was impleaded suit document was marked as Ex.A.1 - After his impleadment, petitioner has filed I.A for impounding exhibits A.1 & A4 as said documents require payment of stamp duty and penalty - Trial Court while holding Ex.A.1 is only agreement of sale and not bond as pleaded by petitioner/ defendant no.2 and also held that Ex.A.4 could be admitted into evidence for collateral purpose - Hence petitioner/2nd defendant filed CRP against order of trial Court to extent it relates to Ex.A.1 - Petitioner contends that trial Court committed serious error in construing Ex.A.1 as agreement of sale and not as agreement of bond as defined u/Sec.2(5) of Stamp Act - 1st respondent contends that trial Court has not committed any error in construing Ex.A.1 as an agreement of sale and that since u/sec.36 of Act there is an absolute bar on raising of any objection over document which is admitted in evidence, petitioner is not entitled to raise objection - Provisions of Sec.36 of Act or in peremptory terms and they do not admit of any exceptions except to extent of Sec.61 of Act - A statutory provision requires to be reasonably construed keeping in view object with which same is made and object behind Sec.36 of Act is to see that parties do not raise objections as to admissibility of instruments already admitted in evidence again and again - However in this case, petitioner was not on record when exhibit A.1 was admitted in evidence and therefore, ordinarily, petitioner should have been entitled to raise objection dispute admission of Ex.A1 in evidence, provided, he, as defendant no.2, is asserting his rights dehors respondent no.2/defendant no.1 - When 2nd respondent/1st defendant has not raised any objection to marking of document, petitioner, stepped into former who shoes and is claiming title through him, cannot plead that he is entitled to raise objection with respect to admissibility of A1 once again - Bar u/sec.36 of Act is squraly attracted in case of petitioner - CRP, dismissed. N.S.Ramanjaiah Setty Vs.T.Krishna Bhagavan 2012(1) Law Summary 245 = 2012(4) ALD 466.

—Sec.2(5)(b) - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit for recovery of certain amount against petitioner/defendant - During evidence respondent/plaintiff sought to mark document stated to have been executed by petitioner/defendant in favour of respondent/plaintiff - Defendant filed IA to determine true nature of document in question and not to admit same till it is properly stamped and impounded - Trial Court accepted plea of plaintiff holding that document in question can be considered as agreement and not as bond which does not require deficit stamp duty.

"BOND" - Defined - As petitioner allegedly oblized to pay money to respondent/ plaintiff, instrument clearly falls under definition of bond - Trial Court, therefore, committed a jurisdictional error in totally misconstruing instrument as agreement and not requiring additional stamp duty - Impugned order, set aside - Trial Court directed to treat document in question as bond and take appropriate steps in accordance with provisions of Act, if it is found that same is not sufficiently stamped - CRP, allowed. Nareddi Mohan Reddy Vs.Siripuram Mallaiah 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 125 = 2012(6) ALD 745.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Sec.2 (5) (b) & Art.13 - "Memorandum of understanding" - Suit for recovery of certain amount - During trial, plaintiff sought to mark document styled as "memorandum of understanding" - Trial Court refused to receive document unless stamp duty is paid - Petitioner/plaintiff contends that document sought to be marked not 'bond' as defined u/ Sec.2(5) of Act and there is no obligation created under document and that in order to constitute bond it must be executed by one party in favour of other and create obligation to pay, whereas both parties have subscribed their signatures on document now sought to be marked and liability under it is pre-existing - Respondent contends that payment of amount is contemplated under document and mere affixing of signature by plaintiff will not take away character of 'bond' - Merely because document is styled as 'memorandum of understanding', it does not lose character of 'bond' or 'promissory note' - Nomenclature of document will not decide rights and obligations of parties to document concerned - In this case, 100-rupees non-judicial stamp paper purchased in name of plaintiff and document is styled as 'memorandum of understanding' setting out terms and conditions - Covenants, intention and conduct of parties are necessary to know character of document - That apart, plaintiff asserting his right on basis of document, which cannot be permitted if it is inadequately stamped - When plaintiff created obligation for defendant to pay certain amount to him and terms reduced to writing on stamp paper and attested by witnesses, document styled as 'memorandum of understanding' to come within definition of 'bond' as stipulated in Sec.2 (5) (b) of Stamp Act - Requiring petitioner/plaintiff to pay stamp duty under Art.13 - Order of trial Court - Justified - CRP, dismissed. P.Srinivasa Babu Vs. AMR Consultants Ltd., 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 321 = 2008(4) ALD 747 = 2008(4) ALT 759.

—Secs.2(12) and 16(b) and 47-A - REGISTRATION ACT - SUITS VALUATIONS ACT - Suit for partition - Assessment of Stamp duty on instrument of partition - Trial Court directed petitioner who is not party before Court to complete registration on basis of stamp duty as per suits valuatgion - Suit decreed on compromise - When decree presented before petitioner/Sub-Registration same objected to by petitioner observing that there is no proper valuation for purpose of Registration - Civil Judge took view once valuation has fixed by Court, Registrar cannot make an attempt to reassess same - High Court dismissed petition preferred by District Sub-Registrar - Hence, present SLP - Once Court had made exercise to fix Market value of a property, same can be reopened or alter only in a process known to law - That is not situation in instant case, where a partition was filed in year 1999, compromised in year 2001, stamp value assess on basis of suit valuaion and decree presented by Registration in year 2007 - Market value for purpose of Indian Samp Act, is not same as suit valuation for purpose of jurisdictionand Court fee - Procedures are different for assessment of Stamp duty and for registration of instrument - Suits valuaion Act and Indian Stamp Act operate in different fields - Registering authority cannot be compelled to follow in variably value fixed by Court for purpose of suit valuation - Order of High Court and order of Civil Judge are set aside - Civil Judge is directed to consider matter afresh after affording opportunity for hearing to petitioner and pass appropriate orders with reference to stamp duty for purpose of registration of partition deed. Addl. Dist.Sub-Registrar, Siliguri Vs. Pavan Kumar Verma 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 108.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Secs.2 (15), 35, Art.40, Schedule 1-A -A.P. (AMENDMENT) ACT, Act.17 of 1986 - REGISTRATION ACT, Sec.49 - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit for declaration and injunction contending that they are absolute owners of suit schedule property - Respondent/ defendants contend that property belonging to defendants' family since 90 years and they have been in possession and enjoyment of same - Defendant sought to mark unregistered document titled as "Pampaku jabitha" (partition list) - Trial Court permitted defendants to mark document inspite of objection raised by plaintiff that document is neither written on proper stamp paper nor registered and it is partition deed not admissible in evidence - Nomenclature used for describing document is of no consequence and nature and character of document has to be discerned only from its contents - A close reading of entire document would disclose that though document is captioned as partition list it is not a partition list simplicitor which merely contains list of items of property that fell to share of each of persons, but is a document whereunder partition of vacant cites is sought to be made - Finding of trial Judge that it is only partition list and not partition deed is, unsustainable - STAMP ACT, Sec.2(15) - "Instrument of partition" - Defined - A memorandum regarding past partition is also brought within definition of 'instrument of partition' by A.P. (Amendment) Act, 17 - By virtue of said amendment a memorandum regarding past partition also amounts to instrument of partition requiring same duty as a bottomry bond for amount or market value of separated share or shares - Sec.35 of Indian Stamp Act contains a bar against admissibility of such document in evidence and bar contained in Sec.35 being an absolute one, document even assuming to be a memorandum of past partition, still coming within definition of 'instrument of partition' u/Sec.2(15) of Stamp Act, is inadmissible in evidence for any purpose including collateral purpose - In this case, defendants sought to produce and relay on disputed document not for collateral purpose but for main purpose of proving their alleged title to suit property and thereby non-suit plaintiffs - Therefore, document is inadmissible in evidence in view of bar contained u/Sec.35 of Stamp Act as being insufficiently stamped, and also in view of Sec.49 of Registration Act - Impugned order permitting admission of document, set aside - CRP, allowed. Pariti Suryakanthamma Vs. Saripalli Srinivasa Rao 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 223.

—Secs.2 (23) and 2(5) – Distinguishing features between "bond" and "receipt" – Stated – Petitioner filed suit for recovery of certain amount on strength of a document treating it as receipt - Respondent contends that document answers description of bond – Trial Court passing order holding that document is bond - Petitioner contends that document in question is a receipt and it does not contain ingredients of bond and that respondent had acknowledged receipt of amount and no condition is incorporated in it - Respondent contends that apart from acknowledgment receipt of amount, respondent had undertaken to repay amount and was attested by two witnesses, and there by it deserves to be treated as 'bond' - From perusal of definitions, a 'bond' manifest an obligation to pay – A receipt on other hand does nothing more than acknowledge, factum of receiving money – It does not connote any obligation for repayment or return of what is received under it – Distinguishing feature between these two documents is presence or absence of obligation to pay – If obligation can be discerned from document, it answers description of 'bond' - In present case, document not only acknowledged receipt of amount but also contains an obligation to repay it within period of three years from date of document and there is no provision for interest and it is attested by two witnesses – Therefore it is too difficult to treat document as mere 'receipt' – Order of trial Court – Justified – CRP, dismissed. K.Shaik Mahaboob Basha Vs. Shaik Ameer Saheb 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 233.

—Secs.2(23), 2(22) and Sec.35 (prior to amendment) - NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, Secs.4 & 13(1) - "Receipt" - "Promissory Note" - Negotiable instrument" - Defined - Plaintiff filed suit for recovery of certain amount basing on document described as "receipt" - Defendant filed written statement maintaining that said document is rank forgery and he never executed suit receipt in favour of plaintiff - When plaintiff sought to mark said document defendant raised objection taking stand that document is promissory note and not receipt - Trial Court upheld objection and further held that as document in question was executed prior to coming into force of amendment to Sec.35 of Act, it cannot be impounded and same is not admissible in evidence - Negotiability of document is main feature of promissory note where certainty of sum payable and an unconditional undertaking signed by maker are other two important requirements to be satisfied for document to fall within description of promissory note - In this case, true translation of document in question is, "on 7-5-2005 I have borrowed Rs.5,00,000/- from B. Jayaraghava Naidu, S/o Tirupalu, I wil repain in 6 months" - A close and careful examination of document in question would reveal that same contains two sentences - In first sentence, fact of defendant receiving sum of Rs.5 lakhs on 1-7-2005 from plaintiff is acknowledged - In second sentence which is rather cryptic, it is mentioned that he will pay amount in six months - While requirements of sum being certain and an unconditional undertaking are satisfied, it needs to be examined whether it satisfied most vital aspect of negotiability of document - In instant case, document does not refer to person to whom defendant has undertaken to pay, though it was acknowledged therein that amount was received from plaintiff - Therefore, essential requirement of undertaking to pay to a certain person is absent from document - As such it cannot be said that document satisfies ingredients of promissory note - If document contains something more than what is required to be mentioned in receipt, same does not cease to be a "receipt" merely by addition of certain other words so long as document does not fall in any other category of documents such as promissory note, bond etc., - Document in question falls within definition of "receipt" in Sec.2(23) of Act - Trial Court committed error in holding that same is promissory note - As receipt is liable for being impounded under Act, trial Court, is directed to refer same to competent Authority for this purpose - CRP, allowed. B.Jaya Raghava Naidu Vs. B. Rama Subba Reddy 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 12 = 2011(2) ALD 49 = 2011(2) ALT 24 = AIR 2011 AP 62.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Sec.2(24) - Appellant/plaintiffs filed suit basing on family settlement Ex.A.6 - Trial Court decreed suit partly holding that Family Settlement cannot be acted upon since it is neither registered nor properly stamped - Relief granted to 1st appellant and claim of 2nd appellant rejected - Appellants contend that Family Settlement is not required to be registered and that trial Court committed error in taking view that it cannot be acted upon for want of registration and deficiency of stamp duty - Indian Stamp Act, 24(2) - "Family settlement" - Defined - From this provision it is clear that Settlement particularly within a family need not be restricted to members of family upto a particular degree - Therefore irresistible conclusion is that a Family Settlement can be among not only heirs of particular class, but also can take in its fold persons outside purivew of succession - A settlement which does not create any right "in praesenti" cannot be treated as inadmissible, on ground that it is not registered - Partition of property can be only among parties who have a pre existing right to a property - In instant case, 2nd appellant did not have any pre-existing right de horse, Ex.A.6 - She has specifically based her claim on that document - In absence of Ex.A6 their would not have been any occasion for appellants to claim rights, as they did, in relation to property - Ex.A.6 has created a legal right in parties and in particular, 2nd appellant and she is certainly entitled to seek partion on strength of it - Judgment and decree of lower Court, set aside and preliminary decree is passed in terms of Ex.A.6 - Appeal, allowed. Zaheda Begum Vs. Lal Ahmed Khan 2009(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 126 = 2009(6) ALD 432 = 2009(6) ALT 565.

—Sec.2(24) and Art.49-A(b) of Schedule-I-A - "Settlement" - Petitioner created a family Trust, titled " K.G.K. Family Private Trust" and beneficiaries of Trust are petitioner, his wife and two sons by appointing N.V. and V.K as Trustees for administration of Trust - Petitioner thereafter executed settlement deed settling all his properties in favour of Trust- When said Settlement deed presented for registration Sub-Registrar issued Memo to pay deficit stamp duty of Rs.4.65 lakhs treating document as one covered by Art.49-A(b) of Schedule 1-A - Hence petitioner filed present writ petition - Petitioner contends that as beneficiaries of Trust are none other than his own family members, registration authorities should not have classified Settlement deed as one falling under Art.49-A(b) and ought to have treated it as one coming within ambit of 49-A(a) of Schedule-I-A of Act - In this case, by subject document petitioner settled his absolute property in favour of a Family Trust created for himself, his wife and two sons and that settlement is essentially for distributing property of settler amongst his family members - Sub-Registrar directed to treat settlement deed as one falling under 49-A(a) of Schedule 1-A of Indian Stamp Act and collect stamp duty thereon accordingly - Writ petition, allowed. Kolli Venkata Raja Sekhar Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 59 = 2013(6) ALD 189.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Secs.6 & 41(b) and Art.20 of Schedule 1-A and Art.41-C of Schedule 1-A - Petitioner/ partnership Firm established in 1970 with 15 partners - 12 partners retired upto 2004 - On 27-8-2009 3rd petitioner joined as a partner and a fresh deed of partnership was executed - On next day i.e., 28-8-2009 two existing partners, respondents 4 & 5 retired by receiving sum of Rs.4 corers each and deed of retirement executed on that day was presented for registration before 1st respondent/Sub-Registrar by paying stamp duty as provided under Art.41-C of Schedule 1-A - 1st respon-dent/Sub-Registrar and 2nd respondent District Registrar took view that document is one of "conveyance" and petitioners paid stamp duty of Rs.30 lakhs under protext. under Art.20 of Schedule 1-A - Petitioners contend that view taken by 2nd respondent that deed of "retirement" is to be treated as deed of "conveyance" is contrary to law and that consequences that flow from retirement of partners cannot be equated to those of conveyance and that there was no justification for respondents 1 & 2 in demanding stamp duty on that basis - 1st respondents contends that recitals in document clearly discloses that rights of retiring partners were transferred by receiving consideration and that same amounts to a transaction of sale - Petitioners contend that separate Article is incorporated in Schedule-1-A to Act to deal with documents pertaining to partnership or retirement therefrom and that respondents were not at all justified in treating simple deed of retirement as deed of conveyance or sale deed and that receipt of consideration by out going partners does not at all change character of transaction - Respondents/Govt., further contends that though document is named as deed of retirement, in effect it is nothing but deed of conveyance and that recitals in document, and in particular factum of receipt of consideration would clearly demonstrate that title outgoing partners were conveyed to remaining partners and thereby transaction of sale has taken place - Govt. further contends that where deed is capable of being treated under various Articles, one which attracts higher amount of stamp duty must be applied u/Sec.6 of Act - But possibility or occasion for applying principle under lying Sec.6 of Act would arise, if only a document is capable of being treated under two different provisions - Document in question is one of retirement from partnership and it is specifically dealt with under Art.41-C of Schedule 1-A to Act, it cannot at all be treated as Conveyance and therefore there does not exists any possibility to apply principle underlying Sec.6 of Act - Impugned proceedings issued by respondents 1 & 2 treating document is deed of conveyance, set aside - Writ petition, allowed.Kamal Wineries Vs. Sub-Registrar of Assurances 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 170 = 2012(4) ALD 662 = 2012(5) ALT 435.

—Secs.12,12(2),12(3) and 35 – 1st respondent filed suit against petitioner and 2nd respondent for recovery of certain amount, seeking to relay upon a promissory note - Petitioner raising objection for admissibility of document since not properly stamped contending that R.1 lifted cancelled stamp from another document and pasted on suit promissory note and signature on stamp did not spread over to document and as such there is no valid cancellation as provided u/Sec.12 of Stamp Act – Trial Court overruled objections - Sec.12 of Act mandates that whenever any adhesive stamp is affixed on document, it must be cancelled to ensure that it is not used for any other purpose – Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.12 directs that if stamp is not properly cancelled document has to be treated as one, which is not stamped at all and as a result document becomes inadmissible u/Sec. 35 of Act - Even where two parallel lines are drawn across stamp fixed on document it would amount to cancellation u/Sec.12 of Act – But in instant case, neither such lines are drawn nor any signature was put across stamp extending to paper – Therefore non-compliance with Sec.12 of Act comes to be established – Impugned order unsustainable in law – Document not admissible in evidence - Revision petition, allowed. Mohd. Jani Miya Vs. Koriginja (Varala) Ramesh 2008(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 207 = 2009(1) ALD 732 = AIR 2009 AP 14 = 2009(3) ALT 457.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Secs.12 & 35 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.13, Rule 3 - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit for recovery of money under promissory note - Respondent/defendant filed written statement contending that suit promissory note was fabricated by affixing stamps removed from some office records - Defendant filed I.A u/Sec.35 of Stamp Act with prayer to reject suit promissory note alleging that it was inadmissible in evidence - Trial Court allowed I.A filed by defendant holding that there was no cancellation of adhesive stamps as required under Stamp Act - In this case, alleged signature of defendant on adhesive stamps affixed on it did not commence with or extend to suit promissory note i.e., paper on which document was executed and alleged signature of defendant was confined only to adhesive stamps affixed - U/Sec.12 of Stamp Act, it is clear that cancellation of adhesive stamps affixed to any instrument chargeable with duty is mandatory so as to ensure that same are not used again for any other purpose - Sub-sec.2 of Sec.12 further made it clear that in absence of such cancellation, instrument shall be deemed to be unstamped - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.13, Rule 3 - Rejection of inadmissible document under Or.13, Rule 3 of CPC can be at any stage of suit proceedings, however, reasons for such rejection shall be recorded - In instant case, a specific plea was raised in written statement itself that suit promissory note was fabricated by affixing used adhesive stamps which were removed from office record - Said objection taken by defendant at earliest point of time - Trial Court is justified in rejecting document in question as inadmissible in evidence - Revision petition, dismissed. Chaganti Venkata Bhaskar Vs. C.Chandrasekhar Reddy 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 435.

—-Secs.33 & 35 - REGISTRATION ACT, Sec.49 - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit against petitioner/defendant seeking perpetual injunction in respect of plaint schedule property contending that plaintiff and his brothers are absolute owners of plaint schedule property and defendant has nothing to do with plaint schedule property and however he is proclaming that he will trespass into plaint schedule property - Petitioner/derfendant contends that he is in possession and enjoyment of plaint schedule property under unregisrtered mortgage deed and denied ownership and possession of respondent/ plaintiff of said property - Trial Court dismissed petition filed by defendant u/Sec.35 of Stamp Act requesting Court to impound petition mentioned unregistered mortgage deed, on main ground that boundaries of plaint schedule property and mortgaged property are different - Admissibility and relevancy are two tests for approval of evidence tendered by a party and Court shall apply these two tests before admitting the document into evidence - Evidence must be relevant to facts in issue in one of ways prescribed u/Secs.5 to 55 of Evidence Act and thus admissibility and relevancy are two different concepts - In instant case, since mortgage deed in issue is not duly stamped and registered it is inadmissible in evidence and is liable to be impounded u/Sec.33 of Indian Stamp Act and Court shall impound mortgage deed and collect requisite stamp duty and penalty u/Sec.35 of Stamp Act - So, at that stage defendant has to convince to satisfaction of trial Court that property covered by plaint schedule and mortgage deed in fact one and same and it is relevant for purpose of proving his case, and further same is admissible in evidence for collateral purpose - Hence what is pertinent at this stage is only to impound document and collect proper stamp duty and penalty under relevant provisions of Stamp Act and therefore impugned order is liable to be set aside - CRP, allowed - Trial Court is directed to impound mortgage deed and collect stamp duty and penalty under relevant provisions of Stamp Act. Trinadha Patro Vs. Lingaraj Rana, 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 418.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

——Secs.33 & 35, r/w Art.47-A, Schedule IA - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit for specific performance of agreement of sale - Petitioner/defendant took objection when respondent wanted to mark agreement as exhibit A1, stating that document contains clause regarding delivery of possession and it requires payment of stamp duty as well as registration - Trial Court overruled objection on ground that respondent/plaintiff purchased stamp worth Rs.35000/- for purpose of executing registered sale deed by revision petitioner - Hence present revision petition - Petitioner contends that agreement of sale which is sought to be marked as exhibit A.1 contains clause regarding delivery of possession and as such payment of stamp duty is required under Art.47-A of schedule IA - When once document is one of sale and liable for payment of stamp duty, unless necessary stamp duty and penalty is paid by impounding document same cannot be received under evidence u/Sec.35 of Act - Respondent contends that since already amount of Rs.35000 is deposited by way of challan for purchase of stamp papers to get registered sale deed, trial Court found that there is no necessity for impounding document - In this case, admittedly agreement of sale contains a clause regarding delivery of possession - When once agreement of sale contains a Clause regarding delivery of possession, it attracts Art.47-A of schedule IA - Procedure is envisaged u/Sec.33 of Act for impounding document and since document is not duly stamped and same cannot be admitted in evidence unless procedure u/Sec.33 of Act is followed - In view of law laid down by High Court as well as Apex Court, agreement of sale requires stamp duty and accordingly same cannot be admitted in evidence unless necessary stamp duty is paid under Art.47-A of Schedule I-A of Act - Objection raised by revision petitioner/defendant sustained - CRP, allowed.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

Veesarapu Padma Vs. Rangineni Anitha, 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 223 = 2014(1) ALD 162 = 2014(1) ALT 216.

—Secs.33 & 35 - REGISTRATION ACT, Sec.49 - Appellant/plaintiff filed suit for recovery of certain amount basing on agreement executed by respondent which is sought to be registered as sale deed - Trial Court passed order directing to impound agreement - High Court refusing to interfere with orders of trial Court - Appellant contends that said unregistered deed of sale was sought to be put in evidence not for purpose of enforcement of contract but only for purpose of recovery of amount of consideration, which undisputably has been paid to respondent and such a purpose being a collateral one, provisions of Secs.33 & 35 of Act not to be attracted - Sec.33 of Act casts a statutory obligation on all authorities to impound a document - Court being an authority to receive a document in evidence is bound to give effect there to - Contention that document is admissible for collateral purpose is not correct - There is no prohibition u/Sec.49 of Registration Act to receive an unregistered document in evidence for collateral purpose - But document so tendered should be duly stamped or should comply with requirements of Sec.35 of Stamp Act, if not stamped, as a document cannot be received in evidence even for collateral purpose unless it is duly stamped or duty and penalty are paid u/Sec.35 of Stamp Act - Appeal, dismissed. Avinash Kumar Chauhan Vs. Vijay Krishna Mishra 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 35 = 2009(1) ALD 109 (SC) = 2009(1) Supreme 58 = AIR 2009 SC 1489.

—Secs.33, r/w Sec.40 - Petitioner filed suit for partition against respondents No.4 to 10 - District Registrar rejecting petitioner's Application for impounding and receiving of deficit stamp duty on a purported partition deed considering objections of respondents to genuineness of document - Petitioner contends that neither of reasons assigned by respondent No.3, District Registrar are germane as they fall completely outside scope of provisions of Indian Stamp Act, Secs.33 r/w Sec.40 of Act, leaves no discretion with Collector except to impound document and collect deficit stamp duty if he is of opinion that such instrument is not duly stamped - Govt. contends that in view of objections raised by respondent Nos.4 to 10, respondent No.3/District Registrar has refused to impound document and collect deficit stamp duty and that civil suit is already pending and therefore parties need not establish the genuineness of document before civil Court before seeking impounding of document and get it validated - Scheme underlying Sec.33,38 & 40 of Act would only provide for ensuring payment of proper stamp duty on every instrument executed between parties - No mechanism is laid down under scheme of Act to hold an enquiry in to genuineness or otherwise of documents nor any such requirement is laid down for competent authority to get satisfied about such genuineness before collecting stamp duty - Though 3rd respondent placed reliance on Circular issued by Inspector General of Registration and Stamps that Circular cannot over ride specific statutory provisions - 3rd respondent/District Registrar directed to receive deficit stamp duty from petitioners and release document to them - Writ petition, allowed. T.Purushotham Rao Vs. State of A.P. , 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 138 = 2011(3) ALD 664 = 2011(4) ALT 745.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Secs.34,35 & 37 - STAMP RULES, Rule 2 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.45 - SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, Sec.20 - Appellant/plaintiff filed suit for specific performance alleging that first defendant executed agreement of sale and delivered possession and subsequently executed sale deed in favour of 2nd defendant - Defendant denied all allegations contending that D1 executed a valid sale deed in favour of D2 and delivered possession - Trial Court dismissed suit holding that agreement of sale was false - First appellate Court allowed appeal filed by plaintiff holding that agreement of sale proved and decreed suit - High Court allowed second appeal and dismissed suit holding that first appellate Court wrongly placed onus on defendants to prove negative and as first defendant denied execution of agreement, burden of establishing execution of document was on plaintiff - Contentions that agreement of sale executed on two stamp papers purchased on different dates more than six months prior to date of execution not valid and that first appellate Court not justified in comparing disputed thumb impressions with admitted thumb impressions and recording finding about authenticity of thumb impression - Stamp Act, Sec.54 - Stipulation of period of six months prescribed is only for purpose of seeking refund of value of unused stamp papers and not for use of stamp papers - Sec.54 does not require person who has purchased a stamp paper to use it within six months and therefore there is no impediment for a stamp paper purchased more than six months prior to proposed date of execution, being used for a document - Even assuming that use of such stamp papers is an irregularity, Court can only deem document to be not properly stamped, but cannot, only on that ground, hold document to be invalid and same is admissible in evidence on payment of stamp duty and penalty u/Sec.35 or 37 of Act - Evidence Act, Sec.45 - When there is no bar to a Court to compare disputed finger impression with admitted finger impression, it goes without saying that it can record an opinion or finding on such comparison, only after an analysis of characteristics of admitted finger impression and after verifying whether same characteristics are found in disputed finger impression - Where Court finds that disputed finger impression and admitted thumb impression are clear where Court is in a position to identify characteristics of finger prints, Court may record a finding on comparison, even in absence of an expert's opinion - First appellate Court lost sight of fact that party who propounds document will have to prove it - In this case, plaintiff came to Court alleging that D1 had executed agreement of sale in his favour - D1 having denied it, burden is on plaintiff to prove that D1 had executed agreement and not on D1 to prove negative - Decision of High Court reversing decision of first appellate Court - Justified - Appeal, dismissed. Thiruvengada Pillai Vs. Navaneethammal 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 177 = 2008(3) ALD 112(SC) = AIR 2008 SC 1541 = 2008 AIR SCW 1684.

—Sec.35 - REGISTRATION ACT, Sec.49 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.32 - A.P. RIGHTS IN LAND AND PATTADAR PASS BOOKS ACT, 1971, Sec.5-A - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.54 - Suit for injunction - Document styled as "Illu Vikraya Dasthaveju Pramana Patram" i.e., house sale deed affidavit - Trial Court took document as a mere affidavit and not conveyance and held that said document does not require any stamp duty - Disputed document is stated to be engrossed on stamp paper worth Rs.50/- and it was notarised by a Notary public and said document reads that executant of document earlier executed a simple sale deed(?) for property in question under which plaintiff purchased same for consideration of Rs.1,25,000/- and it further reads that vendor confirms said sale deed by way of disputed document - Virtually document is stated to be record of past transaction between plaintiff and vendor for suit property and said document was sought to be marked during interlocutory proceedings for interim injunction - When plaintiff relied upon disputed document styled as sale deed affidavit, it requires stamp duty and penalty as original document, since disputed document intends to record earlier transaction and since it contains all terms of original white papers sale deed - Even if deficit stamp duty and penalty are paid on disputed document, it can be marked in evidence only for collateral purpose under proviso to Sec.49 of Registration Act and it cannot be received for proof of terms and contents of that document, since it is a document which is compulsorily registerable u/Sec.17 of Registration Act - Respondent contends that document is liable to be marked as affidavit in interlocutory proceedings like any other affidavit - This is not an affidavit given by party for purpose of pending suit or interlocutory proceedings, but it is document which is stated to have been given recording earlier transaction and this is not an affidavit deposed by deponent for purpose of suit - Disputed document is totally inadmissible even as an affidavit of earlier transactions, since affidavit of living person is no evidence as it is hit by Sec.32 of Evidence Act - Impugned order of trial Court is erroneous in law - Order of trial Court, set aside and directed to mark disputed document only on payment deficit stamp duty and penalty as evidence of conveyance and mark same for collateral purpose and not proving terms and contents of said document - Impugned order of trial Court, set aside - Revision petition, allowed. Uppula Ramesh Vs. Elagandula Harinath 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 16 = 2014(1) ALD 1 = 2014(1) ALT 700.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Secs.35 & 38(2) - REGISTRATION ACT, Secs.49 & 17 - Suit for partition - During course of examination defendants filed document captioned as agreement - Trial Court passed order holding that document is relinquishment deed which is compulsorily registerable - Defendants filed Revision against said order - Thereafter trial Court dismissed petition filed by defendants u/Sec.35 of Stamp Act stating that since document held to be reqlinquishment deed and as such it is compulsorily registerable and the earlier order has become final - Defendants also filed another CRP against said order - Petitioner contends that Court wrongly came to conclusion that document is relinquishment deed and Application for sending document to District Registrar for assessment and collection of stamp duty cannot be dismissed since Sec.38 (2) Stamp Act clearly shows that Application filed for sending document for compounding has to be allowed and that document also would be relied upon by revision petitioners for collateral purpose u/Sec.49 of Registration Act - No infirmity in order passed by trial Court regarding aspect that it is a relinquishment deed and compulsorily registrable document and as such order is confirmed and CRP is liable to be dismissed - When petition is filed for sending document for impounding, Court cannot compel party to pay stamp duty and penalty and same can be referred to Collector u/Sec38(2) Indian Stamp Act for assessment and collection of stamp duty - Defendants filed petition only for sending document and if respondent/plaintiff have any objection, same can be raised at time of marking or exhibiting document in evidence - In view of same trial Court should have allowed petition for sending document to District Registrar for impounding - Trial Court erroneously dismissed same holding that document was held to be relinquishment deed and it is compulsorily registerable document - Even though document is registerable document same can be sent to Registrar for impounding - CRP, allowed. K. Gopal Reddy Vs. M.Buchamma 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 172 = 2014(1) ALD 316 = 2014(2) ALT 508.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Secs.35 and 47-A - Once the issue is limited to the extent of deficit stamp duty payable by the parties, the 2nd respondent (Joint Sub-Registrar) has to act according to Sec.47-A of the Stamp Act read with Rule 7(4) of the Rules - At any rate to prevent loss of revenue, the 2nd respondent has no authority either under the Registration Act or the Stamp Act to return a duly executed document to one of the parties without putting the other on notice of such decision - The counter affidavit of 2nd respondent is silent about the date of issue of notice either to the Petitioner or 3rd respondent for payment of deficit stamp duty - If the 2nd respondent acts on oral request of 3rd respondent and in his over enthusiasm returns the document to 3rd respondent, this court is compelled to hold that the action of 2nd respondent is illegal, unauthorized and unjust - The 3rd respondent also acted contrary to the terms of contract and condition agreed at the time of execution and registration of sale deed namely to return the document to petitioner - For the above reasons, the writ petition is allowed by declaring that without registration return of pending document to 3rd respondent by 2nd respondent is illegal and without jurisdiction. Peddi Koteswari, Karimnagar Vs. District Registrar of Assurances 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 154 = 2015(2) ALD 660 = 2015(1) ALT 627.

—Sec.36 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.151 - I.A. was filed by petitioners in lower court regarding marking of documents that before admitting documents filed by P.W.1 in evidence, the date for hearing objections as to their admissibility should be given and there should be judicial determination of the same; and since such an opportunity was not given prior to marking of documents, and they are inadmissible documents, court below should provide an opportunity to both sides before marking documents and judicially determine their admissibility - I.A. was dismissed by court below stating that documents were already been marked, therefore this application has become infructuous and is liable to be dismissed and that the objections of petitioners, if any, would be considered during arguments - Present revision is filed challenging that order.

Held, after amendment of the Code of Civil Procedure brought into effect in 2002, a new procedure hitherto unknown, has been introduced by amending Order XVIII

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

Rule 4 CPC permitting filing of affidavits in lieu of chief-examination - Therefore, affidavits in lieu of chief-examination are being filed through witnesses referring to certain documents in the said affidavits in support of the case of respective parties - Therefore, neither the court nor the opposite party has an opportunity to scrutinize the admissibility or proof of such documents - Since objections as to admissibility of documents on the ground of insufficiency of stamp duty or registration or otherwise would have a bearing on the merits of the case, it is not open to the trial court to mark the documents which are mentioned in the affidavit in lieu of chief-examination straight away without giving opportunity to other party to dispute their admissibility - Therefore, impugned order dt. 21-06-2007 in I.A. No. 339 of 2010 in O.S. No. 18 of 2007 is set aside; the said I.A. is allowed - Civil Revision Petition is accordingly allowed. B.V.Ramana Reddy Vs. Ceylon & India General Mission Church 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 327 = 2014(2) ALD 183.

—-Sec.36 and Sec.4-A of Schedule 1-A - REGISTRATION ACT, Sec.17(1) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Order XVIII, Rule 4 - Revision petitioner is the 4th defendant, respondent No.1 is plaintiff and respondents 2 to 4 are defendants Nos.1 to 3 before trial Court - Case of petitioner is that at the time of marking possessory agreement of sale as Ex.A.1, objection could not be raised as it was marked in affidavit filed u/Order XVIII, Rule 4 of CPC in lieu of examination in chief and learned counsel was sick on that day and therefore, questioning admissibility of possessory agreement of sale, learned counsel for revision petitioner, filed memo bringing to notice of Court that document is inadmissible, in view of 47-A of Schedule 1-A of the Indian Stamp Act and 17(1) of the Registration Act - Trial Court, considering objection based on memo, passed an order holding that when document is received in evidence, marked as exhibit without any objection, same cannot be agitated at subsequent stage, Raising several contentions and one among other is that mere marking of document as exhibit without applying mind, does not amount to admission of document in evidence and revision petitioner is entitled to challenge admissibility of document at any time and Sec.36 of Indian Stamp Act, 1899, is not applicable to present facts of case - But trial Court committed a grave error in exercising jurisdiction conferred on it - Therefore, it warrants interference of this Court and prayed to set aside order.

Held, a co-joint reading of Sec.36 of Indian Stamp Act and Order XII Rule 3 of CPC, there is little conflict as to rejection of any document which is already marked on ground that document is irrelevant or inadmissible in evidence after recording reasons - If really bar contained in Sec.36 is absolute which preclude Court to entertain any objection as to admissibility at any subsequent stage, after document is marked in evidence, Order XIII Rule 3 become redundant - When Court did not determine judicially as to admissibility of possessory contract of sale and marked same as Exhibit, without applying its mind, admissibility of document can be decided judicially and reject if Court find that document is inadmissible in evidence or reject document at any stage of proceedings - Hence, trial Court did not exercise its jurisdiction under Order XIII Rule 3 of CPC, consequently liable to be set aside.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

No doubt, powers of Court under Article 227 of the Constitution are supervisory in nature and when trial Court did not exercise jurisdiction which is conferred on it or where trial Court exercised its jurisdiction excessively or admitted inadmissible evidence or when Court exercised its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity this Court can interfere with order under challenge - In present facts of case, Court failed to exercise its jurisdiction so vested on it to decide admissibility of the document and thereby order of the trial Court warrants interference of Court since it is against settled law - Therefore, finding the trial Court is hereby set aside - In the result, the Civil Revision Petition is allowed. Syed Yousuf Ali Vs. Mohd. Yousuf 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 395 = 2016(3) ALD 235 = 2016(2) ALT 557.

—Secs.38 (2) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.107 (2) - Suit for specific performance of agreement of sale - In view of objections for impounding for marking agreement, trial Court impounded document and directed petitioner to pay deficit stamp duty and ten times penalty - Petitioner/appellant filed Application to send document to District Registrar and Collector under Stamp Act to pay stamp duty and get endorsement- Respondent contends that purpose of paying stamp duty and penalty of impounding is for purpose of marking document and that question of marking document would not arise at stage of second appeal and that Sec.38(2) of Act cannot be made applicable at appellate stage - In this case, there is some delay on part of petitioner - But however, on careful analysis of series of events, may be that because appellate Court had reversed decree and judgment of Court of first instance and allowed appeal, petitioner had chosen to file present application at this stage - It is no doubt true that normally marking of documents would be before trial Court, but for certain exceptions - It is needless to say that first appeal or second appeal, are continuation of original proceedings i.e. original suit - Though application had been filed at a belated stage, petitioner to be permitted to pay stamp duty and penalty - Petition, allowed. P.Ramesh Vs. Shaik Begum Bee 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 77 = 2009(2) ALD 334 = 2009(1) APLJ 43 (SN).

—Secs.40, 19-A & 18 - A.P. RIGHTS IN LAND AND PATTADAR PASS BOOKS ACT, 1971, Sec.5-A - District Registrar issuing certificate validating agreement of sale after collecting certain amount under provisions of Stamp Act - There is no provision either under Stamp Act or under Registration Act which empowers any authorities thereunder to validate document, witnessing any transaction - Such powers are conferred only upon revenue authorities u/Sec.5-A of A.P. Rights in Land and Pattadar Pass Books Act, 1971 - Proceedings issued by District Registrar validating document under Stamp Act, set aside. H.Agarwal Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 428.

—Secs.41-A and 47-A - Circumstances contemplated by Sec.41-A of Act are entirely different and distinct from circumstances envisaged by Sec.47-A of Act - If re-determination u/Sec.41-A is admitted in favour of department then the object of both sections in recovering deficit stamp duty is lost - The lis is taken up for decision on the reference of sub Registrar - Therefore, Sub Registrar is required to make out a full and complete case including suppression or fraud for decision by 2nd respondent - Had it been a case where without reference to determination u/Sec.41-A of Act registration of document is completed, then Sec.47-A of Act is attracted - In view of aforesaid discussion, this Court of view that 2nd respondent acted without jurisdiction in re-determining his own valuation - Proceedings dated 16-10-2000 as confirmed by 1st respondent in proceedings dated 20-03-2001 are set aside and the Writ Petition is allowed. K.Rameswara Reddy Vs. Chief Controlling Revenue Authority 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.)186 = 2015(2) ALD 634 = 2015(2) ALT 692.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Secs.41-A, 47-A & 33 - Petitioner and others presented partition deed before 2nd respondent,Sub-Registrar who referred matter to 1st respondent/District Registrar and Collector, since he found stamp duty paid on document not adequate - 1st respondent, in turn, issued notice informing petitioners that some amount is payable towards deficit stamp duty - On receipt of notice, petitioners submitted representation to respondents stating that in case, document cannot be registered, they would withdraw document and cancel transaction - However, 1st respondent issued proceedings u/sec.41-A of Act requiring petitioner to pay certain amount towards deficit stamp duty and registration fee - Hence petitioner challenges said proceedings, contending that occasion for respondents to levy any deficit stamp duty, did not exists once petitioner and others to document have decided not to proceed with transaction and that Sec.41-A can be invoked only when document is registered - Respondents contend that Act confers wide powers on respondents to levy deficit stamp duty and registration charges, whenever such deficit is noticed and that Sec.33 of Act empowers respondents to impound document and in present case, deficit stamp duty and registration charges alone are levied - Exercise u/Sec.47-A can be undertaken only when party insists on document being registered and in case party, that presented document gives up idea of getting document registered, registering authority or Registrar cannot insist payment of amount found to be deficit - Provisions of Sec.41-A would get attracted only when (a) a document is already registered but concerned authority notices that proper stamp duty was not paid and (b) fact that proper stamp duty was not paid is noticed within a period of five years from date of registration - In this case, document not presented at all and in fact it was presented for registration - Therefore question of invoking Sec.41-A of Act does not arise - Writ petition, allowed. Prajay Engineers Syndicate Ltd. Vs. District Registrar & Collector 2012(1) Law Summary 292 = 2012(3) ALD 317 = 2012(3) ALT 639.

—-Sec.47-A - REGISTRATION ACT, Sec.47, r/w Sec.49 - Original suit was filed by sole plaintiff for specific performance of contract of sale which was maintained against three defendants - In course of trial, when sought for exhibition of documents in question, objection raised by defendants for its marking on ground of deficit stamp duty - Objection was overruled by impugned order against which defendant No.2 and defendant No.3, filed this revision petition.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

Held, from this now coming back to Sec.47-A, explanation inserted by Amendment Act, 21 of 1995, to make it liable as an agreement to sell followed by or even evidencing delivery of possession of property agreed to be sold shall be chargeable as sale - Explanation very clearly speaks so unambiguously, not followed by, even if evidencing in any form delivery of possession later even that requires stamp duty to impound as a sale, even though it is styled as a mere agreement - Here, last one para of Page 3 of document speaks delivery of possession contemporaneous with execution from same wording as "meeku vikrainchi meeku swadheenam cheyadamaindi" - No doubt, terms of document speaks further for obtaining sale deed and payment of balance consideration to say it is a possessory sale agreement within meaning of sale - However, trial Court rejected said objection covered by impugned order - In fact, expression of Division Bench of this Court in B.Ratnamala V. G.Rudramma, which is crystal clear in lending law in this field, particularly in total interpretation of expression saying evidencing delivery in any form even subsequently document though styled as agreement once evidencing possession, it is within definition of explanation to Sec.47-A of Act as a sale for liability of stamp duty to impound without which it cannot be admitted.

It is made clear that document is within meaning of sale defined by Sec.47-A of Act and without payment of stamp duty and penalty, if at all seek to impound by Court unless file an application to refer to District Registrar for impounding as laid down by this Court in Chintam Kantam V. Dhulipudi Venkateswara Rao and it is only on collection of stamp duty, if at all impounded by Court with penalty for ten times or if at all referred to District Collector and duly certified on original as duly stamped to act upon it, subject to any requirement of registration of main purpose, as case may be, within meaning of Sec.47 read with Sec.49 of Indian Registration Act including the A.P. Amendment Act 4 of 1999 with effect from 1-4-1999, which no doubt will override first proviso to Sec.49 of Registration Act in a suit for specific performance - Accordingly, revision is allowed. Penupothula Hanumantha Rao Vs. K.V.Narsimha Jogendra Sreshti 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 370.

—Sec.47-A - WEALTH TAX, Sec.7 - Petitioner-Society entered into agreement of sale for purchase of Ac.49.23 of land in year 1982 and sale deeds were executed in its favour in respect of Ac.40.90 upto December, 1990 for balance extent of Ac.9.04 cents, sale deeds executed in 1991 and presented for registration - 1st respondent-Sub-Registrar referred matter to 2nd respondent-District Registrar who passed order determining value at a far higher rate - Senior civil Judge dismissed appeal filed by petitioner-Society - Petitioner contends that lands covered by sale deeds are already burdened with agreement of sale in year 1982, and possession thereof, already delivered to petitioner and value must be ascertained, keeping in view these factors and since land was already agreed to be sold and possession was parted by owner, land would not fetch normal rate, if offered to 3rd party - It is not at all concern of Registering Authorities to assess advantage or disadvantage of a property in context of determining stamp duty and registration charges and Sec.47-A is very clear in its purport, and it does not permit of any such exercise - Any inroads made into process of ascertaining market value on basis of advantages or disadvantages, would lead to disastrous consequences and whole objectivity would be wiped off - Analogy drawn by petitioner between Sec.47 on one hand and Sec.7 Wealth Tax not impressive as one relates to transfer of title, other relates to levy of tax - Writ petition cannot be treated as further appeal against order passed by civil Court, in appeal preferred u/Sec.47-A - Writ petition, dismissed. Matrusri Educational Society Vs. Sub Registrar, Medchal 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 257 = 2008(2) ALD 354 = 2008(3) ALT 247.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Sec.47-A of Schedule 1-A and 35 - Suit for specific performance of agreement of sale and delivery of possession - Trial Court directing petitioner/plaintiff to pay stamp duty and penalty on agreement of sale and until stamp duty and penalty is paid document is inadmissible in evidence - Petitioner/plaintiff contends that he has specifically averred, in plaint, that possession was not delivered under agreement and since there was specific pleading that possession was not delivered and execution of agreement was denied in written statement, case falls outside scope of Art.47-A of Stamp Act - A pedantic approach(thumb rule) cannot be made to say that once document recites as to delivery of possession, whether possession was delivered or not stamp duty requires to be paid as if it was a sale and in facts and circumstances of case, it must be treated that agreement in question is a simple agreement and question of paying stamp duty does not arise - Respondents contend that agreement relied upon by plaintiff seeking decree of specific performance of agreement and delivery of possession, itself recites that possession was delivered to plaintiff under agreement - In this case, admittedly there is recital in agreement of sale on basis of which suit is filed - Therefore necessarily it has to be charged as a sale with stamp duty and thus it requires impounding and that unless stamp duty and penalty if any are paid, it cannot be admissible in evidence - Further, pleadings of parties have no relevance whatsoever - Recital in document as to delivery of possession itself is enough to invoke provisions of Art.47-A of Schedule 1-A of Act - Where agreement holder is not in possession of property under agreement of sale, even though there is recital in agreement as to delivery of possession, he need not pay proper stamp duty as required - It shall be treated as a simple agreement of sale falling outside scope of Explanation 1 to Art.47-A of Schedule 1 of Stamp Act - Purpose of Act is to see that a person, who is in physical possession and enjoyment shall not avoid to pay proper stamp duty as required under Explanation 1 to Art.47-A of Stamp Act - Otherwise document shall not be admissible in evidence as required under Sec.35 of Stamp Act - Impugned order of trial Court, set aside - Agreement of sale is ordered to be admitted in evidence - CRP, allowed. B.Bhaskar Reddy Vs. Bommireddy Pattabhi Rami Reddy, 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 138.

—Sec.47-A & Art.63, Schedule 1-B - TRANSFER OF PROPER ACT, Secs.54 & 105 - “Noida” allotted land to several Housing Co-operative Societies by execution of lease

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

deeds - In view of clause contained in lease deed they must be compulsorily registered - Members of Noida Association executed various agreements for transfer of leasehold rights with the Co-Operative Societies and from its members from 1988 on- wards - Said agreements for transfer of lease hold rights were denoted as agreements of sale - When document presented for registration Sub-Registrar informed that stamp duty to be fixed on documents should be as applicable to conveyance under Art.23 of Schedule1-B of Act - Writ petition filed before High Court challenging decision of Sub-Registrar, dismissed - Object under laying of Sec.47-A of Act is to neutralize effect of under valuation of immovable property under registered instrument of sale or exchange or gift or partition or settlement - It is not enough for authorities for purpose of invoking Sec.47-A that consideration amount stated in instrument of sale is less than prevailing market value but they must be satisfied that there is an attempt of under valuation - SECS.54 & 105 OF T.P ACT - From a plain reading of these provisions there cannot be any doubt that in case of lease there is a partial transfer and right of reversion remains with lessor - Where as in case of sale, there must be an absolute transfer of ownership and not some rights only as in case of a lease - Such being position, it is amply clear that document in question presented for registration was in fact a lease and transfer to members of association was assignment of leasehold rights - Buildings and all other appurtenants attach to land become a part of assigned transfer through lease and not separate sale - ART.63 OF SCHEDULE-1-B OF ACT - A plain reading of provision shows that stamp duty chargeable to a document is not on market value of property on consideration indicated in same - If Art.63 of Stamp Act is to be applied, duty shall be paid on consideration of amount of consideration shown in deed itself and not on market value of land or construction thereon - In this case, consideration would be that which has been mentioned in lease deed at date of agreement to enter into same and there is no scope for looking into market value of property under provisions of Act in case of an assignment by way of transfer of lease under Art.63 of Schedule-1-B of Act - Judgment of High Court, set aside - Consideration to be mentioned in the document would be market value of property on date when agreement was entered into and not when it was presented for registration. Residents Welfare Association, Noida Vs. State of U.P. 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 46.

——Arts. 6, 47-A of Schedule 1-A – CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.13, Rule 3 - Petitioner herein is the plaintiff and he filed suit for specific performance of an agreement of sale - Lower Court observed that the recitals in Ex.A1-agreement of sale disclose that the deceased first defendant agreed to sell the land of an extent of Ac.7-00, received an amount of Rs.20,000/- as advance and delivered possession to the plaintiff - Ex.A2 is another agreement of sale - It was also noticed that there was a specific recital in Exs.A1 and A2 that possession of land was delivered to vendee - If the agreement of sale coupled with delivery of possession was executed, the document has to be executed on a stamp paper as specified under Article 47-A of Schedule 1-A of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 and since the penalty was collected under Article 6 instead of Article 47-A of the Act, both the documents were held to be insufficiently stamped documents - It was held by trial Court that, though, defendants did not raise objection at time of marking of documents, they can raise objection with regard to admissibility at a later point of time and, accordingly, allowed application, by an order - Challenging said order, present Civil Revision Petition is filed.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

Held, a learned single Judge of this Court considered case of an unregistered agreement of sale and following judgment of Full Bench of this Court held that objector can raise an objection with regard to admissibility of a document on ground that it has been not duly registered despite fact that said document has already been exhibited and admitted in evidence - Court have considered elaborately issue with regard to marking of document and it was held that it is the duty of a Court of Law to exclude all irrelevant or inadmissible evidence even if no objection was taken by opposite side - In view of above legal position, order of the trial Court is sustainable and it does not warrant interference - However, if document does not require registration and it is only insufficiently stamped, trial Court can take necessary action under provisions of Stamp Act as aforesaid - Accordingly, Civil Revision Petition is dismissed subject to above observations. Srinivasa Builders Vs. A.Janga Reddy 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 379 = 2016(3) ALD 343 = 2016(2) ALT 321.

—Art.6(B) of Schedule 1-A - Revision petitioner/plaintiff filed suit against respondents/ defendants for specific performance of agreement of sale and construction - Defendants raised objection when plaintiff sought to mark agreement on ground that it was insufficiently stamped - Trial Court upheld objection raised by defendants and directed plaintiff/petitioner to takes steps for payment of proper stamp duty and penalty under Sec.6(B) of schedule 1-A - Admittedly document in question was executed on stamp papers worth Rs.100/- and said document was titled as "agreement of sale and construction" - Specific case of plaintiff is that he paid Rs1 lakh on date of agreement itself and that inspite of repeated requests defendant failed to complete construction of flat within time agreed upon amd went on postponing registration of sale deed - Hence suit filed for specific performance of contract - In this case, on careful reading of recital of suit agreement it is clar that it is nothing but simple agreement for sale of Flat to be constructed by defendant and it is also not in dispute that possession of said Flat has not yet been delivered to plaintiff/revision petitioner - Art,6(B) is applicable only to agreement for development/sale in relation to construction of house or building including multi-unit house or building - Suit agreement sought to be marked by plaintiff as Ex.P.1 is not agreement for any of purposes mentioned under Art.6(B) and it is only a simple agreement to sell one of Flats proposed to be consructed by defendant - Hence, trial Court committed errer in holding that document in question was insufficiently stamped - Order of trial Court, set aside and directed trial court to receive agreement in evidence without insisting payment of additional stamp duty - CRP, allowed. K.Sudhakar Reddy Vs. Sudha Constructions 2012(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 17 = 2012(1) ALD 615 = 2012(3) ALT 93.

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

—Schedule IA, Art.7(a) & 35 (b) - TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.58(b) - Petitioners executed instrument titled as "Memorandum conferming deposit of title deeds" in favour of 4th respondent/Bank in connection with a loan transaction - When instrument presented for registration 3rd respondent issued notices calling upon petitioners to deposit deficit stamp duty by treating instrument as simple mortgage deed - Petitioner contends that instrument is a document evidencing deposit of title deeds and not a simple mortgage as defined u/Sec.58(b) of T.P Act - Govt. contends that instrument presented by petitioners falls under Art.35 (b) of Schedule IA and not under Art.7(a) of Act - Under "Mortgage by deposit of title deeds", mortgager delivers to creditor or his agent documents of title to immovable property with intent to create a security thereon - Mere mentioning of word "Mortgage" not change character of instrument inasmuch as even deposit of title deeds also, is one kind of mortgage - If instrument pertains to deposit of title deeds, Art.7 of Schedule IA is attracted, while in case of other mortgages, Art.35(b) is applied - Instrument in question attracts Art.7 of Schedule IA of Act and therefore petitioners are not liable to pay stamp duty demanded by respondents - Respondents are directed to register instruments by collecting stamp duty as per provisions of Art.7 of Schedule IA of Act - Writ petition, allowed. Nirmala Baldwa Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 406 = 2011(1) ALD 619 = 2010(6) ALT 653 = AIR 2011 AP 26.

—Art.31 of Schedule 1-A - "Deed of rectification" - Petitioener submitted application for establishment of outlet of HPC Ltd., by taking required extent of land on lease for period of 15 years through a document by paying stamp duty of Rs. 2,46,300 and registration charges of Rs.8,210/- - HPC insisted that lease must be for period of 30 years - In view of this, petitioner obtained a deed of rectification from lessors for period of 30 years - When document presented by petitioener for registration before 3rd respondent/Sub-Registrar for registration, instead of collecting stamp duty, and registration charges for extended lease period of 15 years, 3rd respondent/Sub-Registrar has collected stamp duty for entire 30 years period - Hence writ petition, seeking direction for refund of stamp duty and registration charges collected in excess from him - Petitioner contends that stamp duty for lease deed is payable under Art.31 of Schedule 1-A of Act and same was paid for period of 15 years when earlier lease deed was executed and that in light of extension of lease for further period of 15 years Sub-Registrar is supposed to collect differential amount and not entire amount covered by earlier original lease deed - Govt., contends that deed of rectification has effect of bringing about a fresh lease and that fact there existend a lease deed may be for period of 15 years does not make any difference in this regard - Necessity has arisen for petitioner to seek rectification of lease in context of period of lease and therefore a deed of rectification, just mentioning period as 30 years even while keeping other terms of lease in tact, was executed and presented for registration - Sub-Registrar calculated stamp duty payable for lease deed for period of 30 years in respect of said property at Rs.5,29,335/- and registration fee at Rs.12,295/-,

(INDIAN) STAMP ACT:

Had lease deed for period of 30 years has been executed for first time, there would certainly have been justification for Sub-Registrar in levying entire amout referred to above - Very deed of rectification discloses that there existed lease deed for period of 15 years and rectification has effect of extending term of lease by another 15 years - Sub-Registrar at most could have collected stamp duty and registration charges for extended period in terms of Cl.(v) of Art.31 of Act - Once petitioner paid stamp duty and registration charges for lease period of 15 years same was required to be taken into account and there was no justification for Sub-Registrar in collecting stamp duty for entire period on deed of rectification - Sub-Registrar is directed to refund stamp duty and registration charges paid on rectification lease deed - Writ petition, allowed. L.Gopal Singh Vs. Inspector General Stamps & Registration 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 148 = 2012(5) ALD 226 = 2012(4) ALT 563 = AIR 2012 AP 189.

—Art.47-A of Schedule-1A - Explanation - Art.6-(B) in schedule -1A - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit for perpetual injunction stating that he is absolute owner of plaint schedule property basing on settlement deed executed by her grand father - Respondents/ defendants filed written statement contending that petitioner entered into agreement of sale with first respondent and handed over possession to respondents after receiving sale consideration amount - When respondents sought to mark said agreement of sale petitioner/plaintiff raised objection to marking of said document contending that as per explanation -1 to Art.47-A of Schedule-1A of Act agreement needs to be stamped as regular sale deed and therefore same is not admissible in evidence - Trial Court overruled objection holding that agreement of sale not required payment of stamp duty and penalty under Art.47-A - Hence present revision - Petitioner contends that order passed by trial Court is contrary to law and that agreement of sale was followed by delivery of possession of property agreed to be sold and as such it shall be chargeable as sale under Art.47-A and unless deficit stamp duty and penalty is paid as per Act it cannot be admitted in evidence - Respondent contends that order of trial Court is correct in law and that after introduction of Art.6(B) in Schedule 1-A to Act situation has underwent a change and High Court held that Art.6-B does not applied in respect of agricultural land and would apply only in respect of Urban properties and therefore CRP be dismissed - Subject agreement of sale cannot be received in evidence unless proper stamp duty and penalty are paid as per Explanation-1 of Art.47-A of Act and that agreement of sale attracts said Explanation and has to be stamped as a “sale” as admittedly possession was delivered after receiving balance sale consideration as per it’s terms - Order passed by trial Court, unsustainable - CRP, allowed. Vanapalli Jayalaxmi @ Venkata Jayalaxmi Vs. A.Kondalarao, 2013(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 257 = 2014(1) ALD 491 = 2014(1) ALT 356 = AIR 2014 AP 1.

STANDARDS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES ACT, 1976:

STANDARDS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES ACT, 1976:

—STANDARDS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES (ENFORCEMENT) ACT, 1985 - STANDARDS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES (PACKAGE COMMODITIES) RULES, 1977, Rules 2(1) & 6(1) - Inspector of Legal Metrology (Weights and Measures) seized SIM cards and recharge coupons for alleged violation of Act and Rules - Petitioners contend that SIM (Subscriber Identity Module) cards and recharge coupons are not of "pre-packed" commodities of said Acts and Rules and that petitioners are holders of licence and are permitted to carry on operations of providing Mobile Cellular Telephone services within A.P., Circle and are governed by provisions of Indian Telegraphic Act and Indian Wireless Telegraphy Act and that petitioners instal and run applicable systems and services provided by them to subscribers are at rates fixed by Telecom Regulatory Authority of India and that petitioners are offering above cards and coupons which contain necessary software packages at various commercial establishments, dealer outlet shops etc and there is sale of neither product nor commodity, it is only a charge for service to be provided, collected in advance from subscribers and that amounts paid for pre-paid cards and re-charge coupons are paid in advance for services offered by petitioners in future - Respondents contend that pre-paid and post-paid cards and re-charge coupons contain necessary software packages and that package contains SIM card which is computer software generated chip inserted in handset Cellular or Mobile phone to activate card or services of phones net work and that SIM card is a pre-paid commodity or article within meaning of Rule 2(1) of Rules and that chip has definite pre-determined value in terms of air time used for conversation based on which charges are levied and that since SIM card is pre-paid commodity or article, it is liable to comply with requirements of Rule 6(1) and Rule 2(1) of Rules and that by adding administration fees of Rs.50/- to MRP declared on package which is inclusive of all taxes, petitioners have violated those Rules - Respondents justify actions of inspectors of Legal Metrology in making inspections and effecting seizures of SIM card packets - Software is intellectual property and inspite of it, when once it is contained in medium which is bought and soled, it is an article of value - What is essential for an article to become goods is its marketability - If a cannd software otherwise is goods, Court cannot say it is not because it is an intellectual property - Except SIM card serving as a medium or modem containing software to facilitate customer to have access to service provider's net work, SIM card has no intrinsic value at all - Whether service provider is assessed to sales tax or service tax in relation to transactions of sale of SIM card or re-charge coupon, neither SIM card nor re-charge coupon can be termed as commodity having any commercial value - In view of matter, either SIM card or re-charge coupon of petitioners who are Cellular Phone Service Providers are neither commodities nor pre-packed commodities for purpose of 1976 Act or 1985 Act or Rules - Writ petitions, allowed. Tata Cellular Limited Vs. Govt. of A.P. 2012(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 206 = 2012(4) ALD 469 = 2012(5) ALT 105.

—Secs.3(1) (a) and 39 - STANDARDS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES (PACKAGED COMMODITIES), RULES 1977, Rules 4, 6 (1) and 23(1) - Notification Vide GSR No.620(E), dt.26-9-1977 - Inspector, Legal Metro-logy seized Dates Fruit packets on ground that the packets do not bear declaration of name and letters of manufacturer as required by Act and Rules - Petitioner contends that Provisions of Act and Rules do not apply to product being marketed by it as they are not covered by definition of Packaged Commodities - Respondent contends that Date fruits plucked from palm trees and is processing them, it is but a "process of manufacturing" and so name and address of manufacturer has to be declared on packges of seedless Dates fruits being marketed by it , as goods are packed and not re-packed as claimed by petitioner and that all kinds of fruit packages come under purview of Rules and as products seized do not contain declaration, petitioner is not entitled relief sought for - As Dates, which admittedly are fruits are grown on trees and are natures bounty, question of noting name of manufacturer of Dates on packets does not arise - As packages contained name of petitioner as re-packer it cannot be said that there is any violation of either Rule 6(1) (a) of Rules or Sec.39 of Act - Proceedings of seizure of goods belonging to petitioner liable to be quashed - As seizure seems to have been made with an ulterior motive by Officer who seized products of petitioner is liable to pay costs to petitioner in his individual capacity - Writ petition, allowed. Lion Dates Pvt., Ltd. Vs. The Inspector, Legal Metrology, Hyderabad 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 462 = 2008(6) ALD(NOC) 91 = 2008(3) ALT 265 = AIR 2008 AP 188.

STREET VENDORS (PROTECTION OF LIVELIHOOD AND REGULATION OF STREET VENDING) ACT, 2014:

STREET VENDORS (PROTECTION OF LIVELIHOOD AND REGULATION OF STREET VENDING) ACT, 2014:

—Petitioners are street vendors doing their business of selling Ice-creams, Fast Foods, Fruit Chats, Chat Bandar etc., near the children park in Kurnool - According to petitioners, they were granted licences as early as in year 1995 and they have been doing this business to eke out their livelihood all through - They were granted licences by Municipal Corporation and collecting annual licence fee from petitioners - Petitioners have subsisting licences - While so, Municipal Corporation is trying to forcibly dispossess them from the business premises, near children park even though licences were subsisting - Hence, this writ petition.

Held, though petitioners sought a vague relief, categorical assertion of the respondent corporation that they have been removing street vending units of the petitioners wherever they attempt to vend near children park, substantiate their contention that petitioners are harassed and prevented from carrying on street vending by unlawful means - Thus, the action of the respondent Corporation in removing petitioners vending units from the children park area is ex facie illegal and the writ petition deserves to be allowed - Footpaths are meant for pedestrians and they have a right to use them - Petitioners shall ensure that they do not occupy the footpaths by blocking the right of way of pedestrians - They shall not put up any permanent structures and shall not make seating arrangements blocking the footpaths - It is also the responsibility of the petitioners to maintain hygienic conditions - If petitioners violate any of these conditions, it is open to respondent Corporation to take appropriate action as warranted by law by following due process of law and observing principles of opportunity of hearing - Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed. R.Prashanti, Kurnool Dt. Vs. State of A.P. 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 48 = 2015(6) ALD 400.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

—Sec.3 – Municipal Authorities dispossess petitioners by demolishing shops/temporary structures – Town Veding Committee has not identified petitioners as street vendors – Municipal Authorities alleged that petitioners are doing business at non-vending zone and that they are not street vendors.

Under sub-sec.(3) there of, no street vendor shall be evicted or, as the case may be, relocated till survey specified under sub-sec.(1) has been completed and certificate of vending is issued to all street vendors.

Held, unless vending zones are identified, no person can be accused of doing business in non-vending zone – Hence Municipal Authorities is directed to issue identity cards and also direct to identify the vending zones as per provisions of Act and relocate all the street vendors in those vending zones subject to limit prescribed u/Sec.3 of Act. Keerti Rajesham Vs. State of Telangana 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 243 = 2016(3) ALD 114.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

—"Holographic Will" - Proof of - Suit for partition - plaintiffs filed suit for partition - Plaintiffs/daughters of deceased KSM filed suit against sons for partition - Defendants denied rights of plaintiffs for partition and claiming on fabricated unregistered will to have been executed by deceased KSM - During pendency of suit 4th defendant wife of deceased KSM died and subsequently 5th defendant came on record basing on will said to have been executed by 4th defendant in her favour - Trial Judge decreed suit, discarding will - Hence present appeal.

PROOF OF HOLOGRAPHIC WILL - STATED - In this case, plaint proceeded on premise that will was fabricated one and forged one and there is nothing casting any aspirations on attestors on will and therefore reasons given by trial judge in discarding Ex.B1 will are not valid and it has to be held that will is proved and proved to be valid and binding on parties - Plaintiffs are entitled for equal share in item no.5 conveyed under will Ex.B.1 by their father

"Mesne profits" - Trial Judge has directed that enquiry shall be conducted separately regarding mesne profits - Court has got power to grant future mesne profits even without asking same Court by itself can award same or order separate enquiry - This power can also be exercised by appellate Court, since power of appellate Court is coextensive with power of original Court and when appeal is pending suit is deemed to be pending - Hence it is a fit case where without any further enquiry mesne profits can be directed to be paid by appellants to plaintiffs. Kautarapu Ganapathi Rao Vs. Vangara Kameswaramma 2011(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 103 = 2011(6) ALD 753 = 2011(6) ALT 519.

—Secs.57, 141,74 to 111 - "Will" -"Construction of" - Interpretation of will" - "Mufussil will" - In present case Muffssil will executed in year 1920 - Since subject Will is not covered by any clauses Sec.57 Part 7 of Act 1925 is not applicable thereto- Court must put itself as a far as possible possession a person making will in order to collect testators intention from his expression - Will must be construed and as a whole to gather intention of testator and endeavour of Court must be to give effect to each and every dispossession and every dispossession of testator contained in will could be given effect to as far as possible consistent with testator's desire - In this case, female folk were left in lurch with no male member to lookafter - in view of predominant desire that his grand daughter should have his properties and that his properties did not go out of family, testator desired that his daughter adopted a son with consent of her husband and his grand daughter married that boy - On construction of will and in circumstances it must be held that no legacy came to be vested in particular person, therefore plaintiffs did not acquire any right title or interest in properties of testator - Persons not claiming legacy for 19 years after death of testator - Never claimed any legacy under subject Will - "The distinction between a repugnant provision and a defeasance provision is sometimes subtle, but the general principle of law seems to be that where the intention of the donor is to maintain the absolute estate conferred on the donee but he simply adds some restrictions in derogation of the incidents of such absolute ownership, such restrictive clauses would be repugnant to the absolute grant and therefore void; but where the grant of an absolute estate is expressly or impliedly made subject to defeasance on the happening of a contingency and where the effect of such defeasance would not be a violation of any rule of law, the original estate is curtailed and the gift over must be taken to be valid and operative." Siddamurthy Jayarami Reddy (D) by LRs. Vs. Godi Jaya Rami ReddY 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 162.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

— Secs.57, 213 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, 1872 - Will, proof of, for a legal representative - Lower court held that legatee has to obtain probates of will in order to be impleaded as a party in the suit - Held, it is not necessary based on the following principles:

(1) It is not necessary for the executor or legatee of a Will to obtain Probates of the Wills in the State of Andhra Pradesh (Also in the Telangana State after its formation).

(2) For considering an application to come on record as the legal representative of a deceased party, the Court need not undertake a roving enquiry on the validity of the Will(s). A summary enquiry into the claim of execution of the Wills is enough for the Courts to permit a person who claims to be the legal representative of the deceased party to come on record for the limited purpose of continuing the proceedings.

(3) The burden lies on the executant or legatee to prove the Will(s) propounded by him in the suit or final decree or other proceedings, as the case may be, as per the provisions of Chapter V of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, if he asserts any right over the property of the party based on the Will(s) after his coming on record.

Lower Court committed a grievous error in dismissing petitioner's application contrary to settled legal position - Hence, the order under revision is not sustainable. Naram Bhoomi Reddy (died) Vs. Naram Venkat Reddy, 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 41 = 2014(6) ALD 63 = 2014(5) ALT 270.

—Sec.63 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.68 - "Will" - Proof of - Suspicious circumstances - Petition filed for granting of letters of administration - Respondents alleged suspicious circumstances - Trial Court ordered and decreed for issuance of letter of administration in favour of petitioner - High Court allowed appeal holding that evidence of P.W.2, one of attesting witnesses is vague - Appellant contends that High Court has lost sight of fact that P.W.2 deposed in Court after long lapse of time and merely because omitted to say certain things that cannot be a ground to discard evidentiary value of his evidence and that High Court should not have interfered with order of trial Court - Having regard to provisions of Sec.68 of Evidence Act and Sec.63 of Succession Act, a Will to be valid should be attested by two or more witnesses in manner provided therein and propounder thereof should examine one attesting witness to prove Will - Attesting witness should speak not only about testator's signature or affixing his mark to Will but also that each of witnesses had signed Will in presence of testator - In this case, no issue was framed regarding validity of Will - Evidence of P.W.2 does not in any way support claim of due execution and attestation of Will - On contrary, it clearly establishes that he did not sign in his presence, he did not know what was nature of document - There was no attesting witness who has signed in his presence and therefore requirements of Sec.68 of Evidence Act have to be complied with in order to show that two persons who claimed to have signed as attesting witness can be really treated as attesting witnesses - Appeal, dismissed. Yumnam Ongbi Tampha Ibemma Devi Vs.Yumnam Joykumar Singh 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 88.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

—Secs.63 & 61 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.68 - "Will" - "Execution" - "Proof" - "Validity" - "Burden of proof" - Suspicious circumstances - Appellant contends that house property purchased from joint family funds but on date of purchase of house property in name of deceased/ plaintiff under registered sale deed there was no family property and that deceased plaintiff purchased property from selling gold ornaments given by her parents - Appellant further contends that deceased received head injury and shifted to hospital to treatment and appellant brought her to his house and treated her cordially and made her to executive will by cancelling another Will - Will being a document has to be proved by primary evidence except where Court permits by documentary evidence to be proved by leading secondary evidence - Since it is required to be attested as provided in Sec.68 of Evidence Act, it cannot be used as evidence until one of attesting witnesses, at least has been called for purpose of proving its execution - In order to assess as to whether Will has been validly executed and is a genuine document propounder has to show that Will was signed by testator and that he had put his signatures to testment of his own free Will that he was at relevant time in a sound disposing state of mind and signed in presence of two witnesses who attested in his presence and in presence of each other - One these elements are established, onus which rests on propounder is discharged - Where there are suspicious circumstances, onus is on propounder to remove suspicion by leading appropriate evidence - Burden to prove that Will was forged or that it was obtained under undue influence or coercion or by playing fraud is on person who alleges it to be so - In this case appellant also tries to impress upon Court with regard to validity of Will executed in his favour on ground that he has large family and has no shelter which made deceased plaintiff to bequeath property standing in her favour - In this case, after deceased plaintiff was brought from hospital to her own house, she survived only for ten days - It is highly improbable for any one to believe that for ten days service even if assumed that appellant and his family members served deceased/ plaintiff she would change her mind and take away life interest conferred on her husband who has been by her side throughout her life - Therefore contention of appellant cannot be accepted - Trial Court appreciated evidence brought on record in right perspective and recorded finding that appellant failed to substantiate his plea that property is being purchased by deceased plaintiff out of joint family income and that said property fell to his share oral partition - Appeal, dismissed. Gadepalli Jayaprakash Vs. Gadepalli Saraswati (died) pr L.Rs 2010(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 400.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

—Secs.63 & 63(c) - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.45,47,67 & 68 - "Will" - Proof of - Suspicious circumstances - Appellant filed suit against his brothers respondents 1 & 2 for declaration, possession and permanent injunction basing on Will executed by his father - District Judge decreed suit - Single Judge of High Court allowed appeal filed by respondents 1 & 2.

WILL - proof of - It would prima facie be true to say that will has to be proved like any other document except as to special requirements of attestation prescribed by Sec.63 of Succession Act - Test to be applied would be usual test of satisfaction of prudent mind in such matters - However, there is one important feature which distinguish Will from other documents - Unlike other documents Will speaks from death of testator and so when it is propounded or produced before Court - Ordinarily when evidence adduced in support of Will is disinterested, satisfactory and sufficient to prove sound and disposing state of testator's mind and his signature as required by law, Courts would be justified in making a finding in favour of propounder - Onus of propounder can be taken to be discharged on proof of essential facts indicated - In this case, it is clear that appellant succeeded in discharging onus of proving that Will had in fact executed by his father and he had signed same in presence of attesting witnesses who also appended their signatures in his presence - Fact that testator was in sound state of health physically and mentally is established from statement of 2nd respondent - Even from statement of respondent no.1 it is established that Will was signed by his father.

SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES - Single Judge came to conclusion that execution of Will was shrouded with suspicion and appellant failed to dispel suspicion - Single misread statement of D.W.3 and recorded something which does not appear in statement - While P.W.3 categorically stated that he had signed as witness after testator had signed Will, portion of his statement extracted in impugned judgment gives an impression that witnesses had signed even before executant had signed Will - Single Judge committed patent error relating to issue of validity of Will by assuming that both attesting witnesses were required to append then signatures simultaneously - Sec.63(c) of Act does not contain any such requirement and it is settled law that examination of one of attesting witnesses is sufficient - While recording adverse finding on this issue single Judge omitted to consider categorical statements made by D.3 and D.4 that attestator had read out and signed Will in their presence and thereafter they had appended their signatures - Fact that appellant was present at time of execution of Will and that testator did not give anything to respondents 1 & 2 from his share in joint family property one not decisive of issue relating to genuineness or validity of Will - Evidence produced by parties unmistakably show that respondent no.2 had separated from family in 1965 after taking his share and respondent no.1 also got his share in second partition which took place in 1985 - Neither of them bothered to look after parents in their old age - Atitute of respondent Nos.1 and 2 left their father and his wife with no choice but to live with appellant who along with his wife and children took care of old parents and looked after them during their illness - Therefore,their was nothing unnatural or unusual in decision of testator, father to give his share in joint family property to appellant - Any person of ordinary prudence would have adopted same course and would not have given anything to ungrateful children from his/her share in property - Single Judge clearly in error in reversing well reasoned finding recorded by trial Court on issue of execution of Will - Impugned judgment of single Judge, set aside and judgment of trial Court restored - Appeals, allowed. Mahesh Kumar (Dead) By L.Rs. Vs. Vinod Kumar 2012(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 174 = 2012(4) ALD 71 (SC) = 2012 AIR SCW 2347.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

—Secs.63 & 64 - EVIDENCE ACT, Secs.90,71 - Will - Proof of - Suspicious circumstances - Respondents/original plaintiffs filed suit basing on Wil executed by "N" testator contending that said Will was a document which was more than 30 years old - Appellants/defendants disputed validity of Will on various circumstances - Trial Court accepted submissions of appellants/defendants and held that plaintiff had failed to prove Will since it had not come in evidence that testator "N" executed Will in presence of witnesses - Trial Court dismissed suit and first appellate Court also took same view and dismissed appeal - In second appeal Single Judge of High Court decided question of law in favour of respondents//original plaintiffs - Hence present appeal by Special leave.

EVIDENCE ACT, SEC.30 - Presumption u/Sec.90 of Indian Evidence Act, regarding documents 30 years old does not apply to a Will - A will has to be proved in terms of Sec.63-C of Succession Act, r/w Sec.68 of Evidence Act - In present case, there is no dispute that requirement of Sec.68 of Evidence Act is satisfied, since one attesting witness P.W.2 was called for purpose of proving execution of Will and he has deposed to that effect - As he has stated that he has signed Will in presence of Testator N and N also signed Will in his presence.

VALIDITY OF WILL - Property mentioned in Will is admittedly ancestral property of Testator N - She had to face litigation initiated by her husband to retain her title and possession over property - Besides she could get amounts for her maintenance from her husband only after Court battle, and thereafter also she had to enter into correspondence with appellant to get those amounts from time to time - Appellant is her step son whereas respondents/plaintiffs are sons of her cousin and that she would definitely desire that her ancestral property protected by her in litigation with her husband does not go to stepson, but would rather go to relatives on her side and this context cannot be ignored while examining validity of Will - In view of factual and legal position, held that plaintiffs respondents had proved that "N" had executed Will in favour of plaintiffs and bequeathed suit properties to them and got Will registered on next day - Accordingly civil Appeal, dismissed - Suit filed by respondents/defendants will stand decreed and hereby granted declaration of their title to suit property and for permanent injunction restraining defendants from interfering with possession thereof.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

M.B. Ramesh (D) By LRS Vs. K.M. Veeraje Urs (D) By LRS. 2013(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 161 = 2013(4) ALD 104 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 2732 = AIR 2013 SC 2088.

—Sec.63(c) - Will - Proof of - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.68 - Appellants and respondents filed Applications for grant of probate basing on two different Wills - District Judge granted probate in respect of Will propounded by respondents and dismissed Application for grant of probate propounded by appellant - Appellant contends that a Will having regard to provisions contained in Sec.63(c) of Succession Act, is required to be attested by two or more witnessess and furthermore, although in terms of Sec.68 of Indian Evidence Act, it is permissible to examine one witness, who must testify to prove valid execution and attestation of Will, i.e., both witnesses have signed in presence of testator or testator has either signed in presence of one or acknowledged his signature before other - As in this case, said legal requirement had not been complied with, Will in question cannot be said to have been proved - If attesting witness examined besides his attestation does not, in his evidence, satisfy requirements of attestation of Will by other witness also it falls short of attestation of Will atleast by two witnesses for simple reason that execution of Will does not merely mean signing of it by testator but means fulfilling and proof of all formalities required u/Sec.63 of Succession Act - Where one attesting witness examined to prove Will u/Sec.68 of Evidence Act fails to prove due execution of Will then other available attesting witness has to be called to supplement his evidence to make it complete in all respects - Where one attesting witness is examined and he fails to prove attestation of Will by other witess there will be deficiency in meeting mandatory requirments of Sec.68 of Evidence Act - Impugned judgment, unsustainable and hence set aside - Appeal allowed.
Lalitaben Jayantilal Popat Vs. Pragnaben Jamnadas Kataria 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 155 = 2009(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 52 = 2009(2) ALD 19(SC) = 2009(1) Supreme 339 = AIR 2009 SC 1389.

—Secs.276, 283 (e) and 213 - T.T.D EMPLOYEES SERVICE RULES, 1989, Rule 4 - A.P. REVISED PENSION RULES, Rule 48 - HINDU MARRIAGE ACT, 1956, Sec.16 - Appellants/plaintiffs 1,2 & 3, 2nd wife and children of deceased, driver of T.T.D filed suit basing on Will seeking declaration that they alone are entitled to death-cum-retirement benefits of deceased - Respondents/defendants 1, 2 & 3, 1st wife and children contend that deceased executed Will bequeathing all benefits due to him from T.T.D to them - Trial Court disbelieved both Wills relied on by plaintiffs and defendants, held that plaintiffs 2 & 3 and defendants 1,2 3 are entitled to death-cum-retirement benefits of deceased and that defendants are also entitled to succession certificate - Hence appeal filed by plaintiffs - Since marriage of 1st plaintiff with deceased, during subsistence of marriage of deceased with 1st defendant, is void, plaintiffs would not become members of family of deceased and so first plaintiff, first wife in any event not entitled to share in death-cum-retirement benefits of deceased - Children of void marriage also would be legitimate in view of Sec.16 of Hindu Marriage Act, plaintiffs 2 & 3 would be legitimate children of deceased and as property of male Hindu dying intestate, as per Hindu Succession Act devolves on his widow and children, in any event plaintiffs 2 & 3 are entitled to share family pension, death-cum-retirement benefits and gratuity payable to deceased - Admittedly deceased executed Will in favour of the plaintiffs nominating 1st wife to receive pensionary benefits along with her sons and produced Will before TTD and it is difficult to believe that deceased would have executed Will in favour of defendants and as such trial Court rightly disbelieved Will relied on by defendants - It is not case of plaintiffs that deceased and 1st plaintiff were living together even prior to coming into force of Hindu Marriage Act - So, status of 1st plaintiffs can only be that of a concubine, but not wife of deceased - Issuance of succession certificate in view of decree passed in suit would be redundant, because as per Sec.383 (e) of Indian Succession Act, certificate granted thereunder would stand revoked and decree or order in suit or other proceeding with respect to effects comprising debts or securities specified in certificate - Decree of civil Court over-rides the succession certificate - So, issuance of succession certificate when there is a decree of civil Court is redundant and unnecessary - Appeal, dismissed - CMA, allowed. G.Bharathi Vs. G.Pramela 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 52 = 2008(2) ALD 444 = 2008(1) ALT 319.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

—Secs.372 & 127 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.68 - Respondents 1 & 2 filed O.P for grant of Succession Certificate in their favour in respect of estate of deceased, basing on Will - Appellant/3rd respondent denied averments of 1st respondent that she lived with deceased as wife or that she gave birth to 2nd respondent - He contends that deceased who is his uncle died intestate and unmarried and his estate devolved upon his paternal grand-mother who is impleaded as 2nd respondent in O.P who executed Will in his favour and he also challenged validity and legality of Will executed by deceased in favour of 1st respondent and that there are many suspicious circumstances surrounding said Will - Appellant further contends that very facts pleaded by respondents untenable and said Will originates from an immoral act of illicit relation between 1st respondent and deceased and even if it is held to be proved, it cannot be acted upon since it promotes immoral acts and that there was no necessity or occasion for deceased to execute Will, when he was 32 years of age - Respondents contend that though execution of will by a person at age of 32, may appear to be unusual, situation and circumstances that prevailed in family, nothing abnormal about it would appear and that Will was proved beyond any reasonable doubt and hardly their exists any suspicious circumstances - Sec.127 of Act does not invalidate Will, as long as it does not contain a condition that requires legatee to commit further criminal or immoral act - Object underlying Sec.127 of Act is to prohibit a Will, from being used as device to promote illegal and immoral acts - In instant case, testator did not require legatees to do or abstain from doing any acts, much less, those, which are illegal or immoral and that Will executed by him not loaded with any conditions - Once Will is held proved by examining an attesting witness, mere failure to mention same in one of proceedings, cannot by itself be a suspicious circumstance - Deceased admitted his fatherhood of 2nd respondent, one does not require a greater proximity, than this, to make a bequest, equally same is sympathy towards 1st respondent - Respondents 1 & 2 have proved execution of Will and have explained suspicious circumstances - Though deceased was unmarried, he admitted that he is father of 2nd respondent - School register clinchingly proved this aspect - In insurance policy name of 2nd respond was clearly mentioned as daughter of deceased - Order of lower Court - Justified - CMA, dismissed. L.Hariprasad Vs. Lagadapati Suryakumari (Died) Per LRs 2010(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 147.

(INDIAN) SUCCESSION ACT, 1925:

—and - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.100 - "Validity of certified copy of Succession certificate" - Plaintiff/appellant filed suit basing on promissory note executed by defendant in favour of one AN, adopted mother of plaintiff - Defendant pleads discharge of amount to original holder AN and trial Court disbelieved plea of discharge but dismissed suit on ground that Ex.A.3, succession certificate in favour of plaintiff is invalid - Lower appellate Court dismissed appeal on ground that Ex.A.3 being certified copy of succession certificate no decree can be passed on its basis - Hence present second Appeal - Plaintiff/appellant is adopted son of AN who is payee under suit pro- note - In this case, in fact plaintiff impleaded no party at all in proceedings relating to Succession certificate as there are no rival claimants for Succession certificate - Defendant who is not a party to succession certificate proceedings and who is not a rival claimant for estate of deceased AN, is not entitled to question succession certificate - Succession certificate is only an instrument which confers right on holder thereof to receive amounts give on pronote or other security which are mentioned therein and to give valid discharge to person liable to deceased creditor; and nothing more - Since defendant is only debtor and has no claim over estate of AN, he has no jurisdiction either to plead or in question validity of Ex.A.3, succession certificate and only plea of defendant in suit was one of discharge and it was disbelieved by trial Court and it has become final - When succession certificate covers several debts and several securities, single original certificate cannot be filed in all suits - Therefore plaintiff/appellant obtained certified copy from another suit where it was filed and filed same in trial Court to prove his entitlement of suit debt on behalf of deceased AN - Trial Court as well as lower appellate Court erred in non suiting plaintiff on ground that Ex.A.3 Succession Certificate is invalid - On basis of mere succession certificate, plaintiff is entitled to obtain decree in suit, when there is no dispute about Ex.A.1 pronote and when discharge pleaded by defendant is disbelieved - second appeal, allowed. Alla Nagireddy Vs. G.Narayana Reddy 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 21 = 2013(4) ALD 49 = 2013(4) ALT 442.

SWATANTRA SAINIK SAMMAN PENSION SCHEME, 1980:

—Cls.2.1,to 2, 2.2 and 2.3 - Petitioners are freedom fighters participated in Anti-Nizam movement for merger of Hyderabad State in to Union of India - Petitioners 1 & 2 submitted Applications to respondent Union of India in year 1992 and 3rd petitioner submitted his Application in year 1997 - Respondents contend that since pension was given on basis of benefit of doubt, petitioners are entitled for same prospectively only - In this case, petitioners 1 & 2 made Application in year 1992 where as 3rd petitioner submitted his application for grant pension in 1997 - In case of petitioners 1 & 2 warrants of arrest were issued on their claim is based on primary evidence as such consideration of their cases by giving benefit of doubt is contrary to very Scheme by Central Govt., - Petitioners 1 & 2 cannot be categorized as persons entitled under benefit of doubt and it is categoric case of petitioners and that arrest warrants were issued against them and they remained underground for more than six months - Apex Court and HIgh Court of A.P. categorically held that standard of proof applicable in participation of freedom movement is on basis of preponderance of probabilities. but not on touchstone of test of probability beyond reasonable doubt - Freedom fighters who sacrificed their lives, wealth, health and valuable young age for liberation of Country are entitled for pension as a matter of right and it is not a grace nor a charity for them on other hand it is a recognition of their sacrifices - Petitioners 1 & 2 are entitled for pension from date of receipt of their Applications - However third petitioner is not entitled to said benefit as his claim is based on secondary evidence and as such writ petition is dismissed to extent of 3rd petitioner. Kesireddy Ramachandra Reddy Vs. Union of India 2014(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 139 = 2014(3) ALD 129 = 2014(2) ALT 150.

TELANGANA PREVENTION OF DANGEROUS ACTIVITIES OF BOOTLEGGERS, DACOITS, DRUG OFFENDERS, GOONDAS, IMMORAL TRAFFIC OFFENDERS AND LAND GRABBERS ACT,

—-Secs. 2(3), 2(b) - The Commissioner of Police, Hyderabad City, passed an order of detentionexercising the power available to him under sub-section 2 of Section 3 of Telangana Prevention of Dangerous Activities of Bootleggers, Dacoits, Drug Offenders, Goondas, Immoral Traffic Offenders and Land Grabbers Act on ground that detenue was a Bootlegger as defined in Section 2(b) of the Act and that he has been acting in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order - Order of detention passed by the Commissioner of Police, Hyderabad City was approved, within the time limit of '12' days provided for under Section (3) of the Act, by the State Government through their orders contained in G.O.Rt.No.1357 General Administration Department - State Government has also placed matter for consideration of the Advisory Board, which tendered its opinion and taking the same into account and consideration, the Government passed orders through their G.O.Rt.No.2335 General Administration (Law & Order) Department fixing period of detention as '12' months commencing from date of his detention i.e., 23-6-2015 - Petitioner seeks a writ of Habeas Corpus for setting at liberty Naresh Singh @ Dabba Naresh.

TELANGANA PREVENTION OF DANGEROUS ACTIVITIES OF BOOTLEGGERS, DACOITS, DRUG OFFENDERS, GOONDAS, IMMORAL TRAFFIC OFFENDERS AND LAND GRABBERS ACT,

Held, in instant case, very basis for formation of opinion of detaining authority having not been communicated to detenue in Hindi language while communicating translated version of detaining order and grounds of detention, it has rendered further detention of detenue illegal - Therefore, Court allow this Writ petition holding the further continuance of detention of the detenue is illegal - Hence, Court set-forth at liberty detenue, if his detention is not called for any further in connection with any other cases. Malathi Bai Vs. State of Telangana 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 329 = 2016(1) ALD (Crl) 846 = 2016(4) ALT 5 = 2016(2) ALT (Crl) 303 (AP).

—-Sec.3(1) r/w Sec.2(a) & (b) - A Writ of habeas corpus is sought by the wife of the detenu to declare the order of detention dated 19.10.2015, passed by the Collector and District Magistrate, under Section 3(1) read with Section 2(a) & (b) of the Telangana Prevention of Dangerous Activities of Bootleggers, Dacoits, Drug Offenders, Goondas, Immoral Traffic Offenders and Land Grabbers Act, 1986 as being arbitrary and illegal - In ground (f) of the affidavit, filed in support of the Writ Petition, the petitioner stated that the material submitted, along with the order of detention, did not give details of all the relevant documents, including the bail orders pursuant to which the detenu was released; and the detaining authority did not look into the bail orders to find out for how many days the detenu was in judicial custody - In reply to ground (f) it is stated by the detaining authority, in the counter-affidavit filed by him, that the petitioner was arrested in the said crimes, and he was released on bail; and he (i.e., the detaining authority) did not look into the bail orders.

Held, As the order of detention is liable to be set aside on grounds that the orders granting bail to the detenu were not placed before the detaining authority when he passed the order of detention, and copies of the bail orders were not furnished to the detenu along with the grounds of detention which resulted in denial of his right to make an effective representation, it is unnecessary for us to examine whether order of detention should also be set aside for other grounds urged for the petitioner, for it is well settled that even if one of the grounds or reasons, which led to the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority, is non-existent or misconceived or irrelevant, the order of detention would be rendered invalid.

The detention order, and continued detention of the detenu, stand vitiated for failure of detaining authority to consider orders whereby bail was granted to detenu, and in not furnishing copies thereof to detenu along with grounds of detention respectively - Writ Petition is allowed, order of detention is set aside, and detenu shall be set at liberty forthwith provided he is not required to be kept in custody in connection with any other case/cases registered against him. Angoth Renuka @ Rena Vs. State of Telangana 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 1 = 2016(2) ALD (Crl) 98 = 2016 Cri. LJ 4511 = 2016(2) ALT (Crl) 359 = 2016(3) ALT 418.

—-Secs. 3(1) & (2) - Section 7-A r/w Sec. 8 of the A.P. Prohibition (Amendment) Act, 1997 - A Writ of Habeas Corpus is sought by wife of detenu seeking release from Central Prison, after declaring his detention, by order of 2nd respondent, as illegal and unconstitutional.

Held, while submission urged on behalf of petitioner that ordinary laws would have sufficed to act as an effective deterrent, and it was unnecessary to resort to preventive detention under Act, cannot be said to be without merit, it is unnecessary for us to dwell on this aspect, as order of detention must be set aside on short ground that failure to furnish copies of bail orders to detenu, while he is in preventive custody, would vitiate order of detention itself.

As continued detention of detenu stands vitiated, for reason of detaining authority's failure to furnish detenu copies of the bail orders relied upon in grounds of detention, Writ Petition is allowed, order of detention is set aside, and detenu shall be set at liberty forthwith, provided he is not required to be kept in custody in connection with any other case/cases registered against him. I.Dhanalaxmi Vs. State of Telangana 2016(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 196.

—-Section 3 (1) read with 2 (a) and (b) - Detenu was subjected to preventive detention under Section 3 (1) read with 2 (a) and (b) of Act - Wife of said detenu, filed present writ petition seeking a Writ of Habeas Corpus to produce detenu before this Court by declaring detention order, as illegal and unconstitutional - Consequential relief was sought for release of detenu forthwith from Central Prison, where he is lodged - The detention of petitioner's husband was approved by Government - Thereafter, matter was referred to the Advisory Board under Section 11(1) of Act 1 of 1986; and, after consideration of report submitted on by Advisory Board, Government confirmed detention of the petitioner's husband for a period of twelve months from date of his detention.

Held, Constitution of India, therefore, vests a person subjected to preventive detention with right to make a representation against order of detention - To facilitate exercise of this constitutional right, detaining authority is required to communicate to detenu grounds on which order has been made and also material documents like conditional bail orders, so as to afford him an earliest opportunity to make such a representation.

From ratio in decision, it is clear that non-supply of conditional bail orders by sponsoring authority to detaining authority and failure to refer to same in order of detention and grounds of detention, and non-consideration of such vital and relevant material, invalidates detention order - The law laid down in Vasanthu Sumalatha's case which was recently affirmed by us in W.P.No.4805/2016 to effect that failure to supply documents relied upon by detaining authority would result in denying an opportunity to make an effective representation as guaranteed under Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India, would squarely apply to the instant case.

On this short ground alone, writ petition is to be allowed and detention order deserves to be set aside. Gattu Kavita Vs. The State of Telangana 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 246.

TELEGRAPHS ACT, 1885:

—-The detenu was detained by respondent No.2 in exercise of his powers under the provisions of Act by terming him as a 'goonda'. In support of his satisfaction that detenu was a 'goonda', respondent No.2 has relied upon four criminal cases instituted against former for offence under Section 420 of Indian Penal Code besides referring to eight earlier cases in detention order - The substance of accusation against detenu is that though illiterate, he masqueraded himself as an Ayurvedic Doctor and established an ayurvedic medicine shop under name and style of 'Siddhi Vinayaka Ayurvedic Bandar' in Kapadia Towers, Bapubhag Colony, Secunderabad and has been cheating several members of public by promising cure of diseases such as Cancer and Spondylosis etc., and collecting huge amounts from them.

The detention order has been questioned on multiple grounds, all of which do not need a reference having regard to ground on which this Court has chosen to dispose of writ petition - The ground, which appealed to this Court and, argued by learned counsel for detenu in writ petition is that while order and grounds of detention were transcribed in Kannada and furnished to detenu, several other documents relied upon by respondent No.2 were in language of either Telugu or English, which detenu cannot understand.

Held, as regards confessional statement, same being self-inculpatory is not admissible in evidence and, therefore, they cannot even be looked into by any Court except to extent of statement which led to discovery of anything during course of investigation - Therefore, alleged statement of detenu cannot be relied upon by State in support of its plea that he is an illiterate - As per affidavit of his wife, as reproduced above, detenu, is a Kannadiga and he knows only Kannada language - Other than alleged confessional statement, State failed to produce any material before this Court to show that detenu cannot read or write Kannada language - Therefore, averment of wife of detenu, made in her affidavit, filed in this writ petition, deserves acceptance.

As, admittedly, detenu was not supplied some of documents in Kannada language, he was deprived of his valuable right of making effective representation against his detention and, therefore, following settled legal principle laid down in aforementioned judgments, impugned detention order, as approved and confirmed by respondent No.1, is liable to be and, is, accordingly set-aside - The detenu is directed to be released forthwith - In result, writ petition is allowed. Renu Kumar Bagalakoti Vs. The State of Telangana 2016(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 241.

TELEGRAPHS ACT, 1885:

—Secs.7-B & 9 - Petitioner subscriber of telephone received inflated bills for three months - Petitioner filed suit seeking declaration that inflated amount as illegal and also for consequential permanent injunction restraining defendants from disconnecting telephone and subsequently amended plaint seeking for direction to refer matter to an arbitrator for arbitration u/Sec.7-B - Suit partly decreed with direction to appoint

(INDIAN) TELEGRAPH RULES, 1951:

arbitrator within one month - 2nd respondent appointed 1st respondent as arbitrator beyond time stipulated in decree - Inspite of objection taken by petitioner and called upon respondents to recall appointment, 1st respondent proceeded with arbitral proceedings and passed award and held that petitioner liable to pay amount - Hence writ petition - Petitioner contends that since 2nd respondent failed to appoint arbitrator within stipulated time, waived his right to appoint arbitrator and that petitioner could not proceed in arbitration proceedings as he raised jurisdictional objection and awaited ruling on this issue and that award is violative of principles of natural justice - Respondent contends that 2nd respondent, dehors decree, is competent u/Secs.7-B of Act to appoint arbitrator and that appointment of arbitrator and that arbitration award as well are legal and valid - In this case, petitioner raised dispute and challenged correctness of demand on ground of malfunctioning of telephone line and such dispute is an arbitral dispute falling under provisions of Sec.7-B of Act - Award passed u/Sec.7-B of Act shall not be questioned in any Court, thus giving finality to award - In this case, petitioner however did not participate in arbitration proceedings - As soon as he received orders appointing 1st respondent/arbitrator under bonafide belief that appointment is violative of decree and also raised objection as to his jurisdiction to conduct proceedings - 1st respondent should have ruled his jurisdiction and called upon petitioner to enter his defence - As 1st respondent failed to do so, it is to be held that petitioner has no opportunity to defend his case on merits - Arbitration award, set aside - Writ petition, allowed. Maddala Rama Prasad Vs. P.V.V.V. Prasada Rao 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 181.

(INDIAN) TELEGRAPH RULES, 1951:

—Rules, 2 (pp) & 443 - Disconnection of Telephone lines stand in name of husband for non-payment of telephone dues inrespect of wife's telephone - Appellant obtained two telephone lines to his residece, one in his name and another in his wife's name and third telephone installed in his name at business premises - For non-payment of telephone dues in connection with telephone of wife, other two tele-phones of appellant at residence and business premises were disconnected - Contention that telephone in name of appellant would not have been disconnected for default in payment of dues in connection with telephone line in name of his wife - Rule 2(pp) of Telephone Rules covers housewife who is economically dependant on her husband - A person who is economically dependant on another who is paying his telephone bills, telephone line in name of such other relative on whom subscriber is dependent can be disconnected for non-payment of telephone bills of nominal subscriber - Rules 443 - Interpretation of - Intention of Rule has to be seen - Intention obviously is that payment of telephone dues should be made promptly otherwise Telephone Department will suffer - Telephone line in name of person who is really paying bill in connection with telephone line in name of another person who is economically dependent on former can be disconnected for non-payment of bills in connection with telephone connection in name of latter - Such an interpretation would effectuate intention of Rule 443, which is that telephone bills should be paid promptly - Interpretation has to be given to subserve intention of Rule which is that telephone bills should be promptly paid,

TENDERS:

otherwise Department will be short of funds needed for financing telephone services which are to be rendered to consumers - After all, salary of employees of Telephone Department have to be paid, telephone equipment has to be maintained, repaired and kept up-to-date - Hence word 'subscriber' in Rule 2(pp) has to be given a wider meaning - Appeal, dismissed. Surjit Singh Vs. Manager Telephone NIgam Ltd. 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 44.

TENDERS:

—E-procurement tender notification was issued by the Panchayat Raj Department for the work - The last date for submission of tender forms was 06.06.2014 - Petitioner, 4th respondent and another person submitted tenders - On 06.06.2014, the technical bids were opened at 4.30 P.M. - Technical evolution Committee of Superintending Engineers have scrutinized technical bids and declared 4th respondent as ineligible - While so, on 11.07.2014, the Engineer in Chief directed the Superintending Engineer to consider the price bid submitted by 4th respondent also - At that stage, this writ petition is filed.

Held, it is to be noted that consideration of price offered by a bidder could arise only if he is qualified in technical bid - Consideration of price bids is restricted to qualified bidders only - Therefore, price offered by unqualified bidder has no relevance - It is always open to employer to reject offers of qualified bidders also and go for fresh tenders but cannot induct, at last minute unqualified bidder.

In the facts of this case, it cannot be said that authorities of State acted reasonably, fairly and in public interest - Transparency and fairness in awarding contracts by State is in public interest - Decision of Engineer-in-Chief validating 4th respondent technical bid is wholly illegal and amounts to arbitrary exercise of power - It was clearly intended to favour 4th respondent - Process adopted is arbitrary and irrational - For reasons aforesaid, the writ petition is allowed - Decision of respondent authorities in validating technical bid of 4th respondent is declared as illegal and respondent authorities are directed to consider participants whose technical bids are declared valid and finalize tenders as expeditiously as possible, preferably within four weeks. Krishna Constructions Vs.The State of A.P. 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.)155

TENDERS - BIDS - Respondents could not finalise the tender process within the bid validity period - Petitioner on its own, through letter, dated 12.7.2011, extended the bid validity period up to 31.10.2011 - Having waited for three months thereafter, the petitioner has addressed another letter, dated 12.10.2011, to respondent No.2, wherein it raised the concerns about completion of the contract as the monsoon was approaching and also delay would cause rise in material costs - On receipt of said letter, respondent No.2 has sent a reply, stating that as petitioner has extended bid validity period up to 31.10.2011 and approval of bid is under process, its request cannot be considered - A week thereafter, respondent No.2 has addressed letter informing petitioner that its offer of execution of contract is accepted - Petitioner was, therefore, called upon to attend office of respondent No.2 along with documents within 15 days, failing which, its Earnest Money Deposit (EMD) will be forfeited and further action will be initiated - This letter was followed by another letter whereby respondent No.2 has forfeited the petitioner's EMD by placing reliance on Clause-11(c) of G.O.Ms.No.94, Irrigation and CAD (PWOOD) Department, dated 01.7.2003 - This writ petition questions this letter.

Held, if a tenderer is provided freedom not to extend bid validity period and is allowed to take back his EMD after expiry of bid validity, in event of his refusal to extend bid validity, Court do not find any reason as to why a tenderer who has voluntarily extended bid validity period shall be denied freedom to withdraw his offer of extension or confine extension of bid validity only to a particular period, before his bid is accepted - Admittedly, by time petitioner's letter, dated 12.10.2011, restricting its extension of bid validity period up to 07.10.2011, was received by respondents, its tender was not accepted - Therefore, under tender conditions, there is no prohibition on petitioner from withdrawing its offer of extension of bid validity at any time before its tender was accepted - Having failed to seek extension of bid validity by respondent No.2 or even respond to petitioner's voluntary offer of extension of the bid validity, it is wholly arbitrary on part of the respondents to accept the petitioner's offer after it has withdrawn its voluntary offer of extension of bid validity and forfeit EMD on ground that latter has refused to enter into agreement - Such an action also is unconscionable and capricious - For above-mentioned reasons, the Writ Petition is allowed as prayed for. RSR Infra Works (India) Pvt Ltd Vs. State of A.P. 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.)283

TRANSFER OF CASE FROM ONE COURT TO OTHER COURT

- Petition by wife for withdrawal and transfer of O.P. filed by husband for restitution of conjugal rights pending with Family Judge's Court, Ranga Reddy District to the Judge, Family Court, Vijayawada to be tried along with O.P. and M.C.C.F filed by her.

Petitioner/wife and respondent/husband married legally and settled in Hyderabad - A girl was born to them - Afterwards, as per petitioner, her husband started harassing her to bring money from her parents - She filed a complaint in Vijayawada on that - Thereafter, respondent filed O.P. on file of Judge, Family Court, Ranga Reddy District at for restitution of conjugal rights - Petitioner also filed maintenance case at Vijayawada - On grounds that she has a nine-month old girl and her parents were permanent residents of Vijayawada, she sought transfer of O.P. filed by her husband - It was countered by her husband on ground that the Court is not vested with jurisdiction to transfer the case pending in State of Telangana to State of Andhra Pradesh.

Held, as submitted by learned Advocate Generals of both the States, Section 24 (1) (b) (2) of CPC empowers this Court to withdraw any suit, appeal or other proceeding pending in any court subordinate to it and transfer same as per Section 24(1) (b) (ii) of C.P.C. for trial or disposal to any court subordinate to it and competent to try or dispose of same - Admittedly, both Courts are subordinate to this High Court - As such, it cannot be contended that this Court has no power to transfer this CMP.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

Coming to merits of case, petitioner has small child and she has filed M.C. before Family Court, Vijayawada, and she states that she is dependant on her parents and it is difficult for her to travel all way from Vijayawada to Ranga Reddy District - Respondent has to attend cases, which were filed by petitioner at Vijayawada - The Supreme Court in Sumita Singh v. Kumar Sanjay AIR 2002 SC 396, held that while considering transfer petitions in matrimonial proceedings, convenience of a wife is to be looked into - In view of above facts and circumstances, this Court feel that it is just and proper to withdraw O.P. from file of Family Court, Ranga Reddy District and transfer same to Family Court, Vijayawada, since M.C. and O.P. are already pending on file of Family Court at Vijayawada - The presence of respondent is dispensed with in the O.P.G.L. and M.C. on each and every date of adjournment except on dates of cross-examination or on any other date as specifically required by Court - Accordingly, Transfer CMP is allowed. Chalasani Deepthi Vs. Chalasani Krishna Chaitanya (A.P.) 339 = 2016(5) ALD 165.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

—Sec.3 - INDIAN EVIDENCE Act, Sec. 68 - Document Ex.A-1 is a simple sale deed and it is not required to be attested under law - Therefore, question of applying test of attestation to such a document does not arise - Indian Evidence Act itself provides for presumption of certain degree, in favour of the documents that are required to be attested and once the registration of a document and execution thereof by the executants are not disputed, document cannot be ignored - Lower appellate court itself took note of such an important factor pertaining to document - In Para 14, it is clearly mentioned that respondent has stated that he did not verify signature of his father on Ex-A-1, much less did he take steps to get the signature verified through an hand - Writing Expert - Further, except the self-serving statement of the respondent, there was no other evidence to doubt, let alone to disprove Ex.A-1 - Therefore, substantial question of law, viz., "whether the parameters that are relevant for attestation of a document can be applied to in the context of proof of a document, which is not required in law to be attested," arises and the said question is answered in the negative - It is found that lower appellate court committed an error in reversing decree passed by the trial Court - Second Appeal is, accordingly, allowed - Judgment and decree of lower appellate court is set aside. Pathan Sabirabi Vs. Shaik Rasool 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 111 = 2014(6) ALD 695.

—Sec.3 - EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.68,69 and 90 - Will unregistered – Attestation - Validity of - If the attesters are alive Sec.68 must be complied with if not, Sec.69 must be complied with to prove Will - It is only on proof of such contents of the documents, they become enforceable - Plaintiff obtained agricultural loan on Will Property - Defendant too got a passbook on property - Therefore defendant cannot be said to have proved Will as required under law - Hence Second Appeal allowed and judgment and decree passed by two lower courts set aside. Muppala Veeraiah Vs. Chaganti

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

Jaya Lakshm 2014(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 230 = 2014(4) ALD 645 = 2014(5) ALT 756 = AIR 2014 AP 120.

—Sec.41 - A.P. COOPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT, Sec.61 (1) (b) - Petitioner, lives in USA is Member of Society at Hyderabad, paid entire cost of plot and corresponding with Society for allotment of alternative plot - Society informed petitioner that his membership and his plot were transferred to his sister 4th respondent basing on his letter and notarized Affidavit - Shocked by letter of 3rd respondent/Society, petitioner wrote back informing that alleged letter and affidavit were forged with malafide intention to grab his plot and that 4th respondent is neither his sister nor in any way related to him, requesting to restore his membership and cancel transfer made in favour of 4th respondent - On receipt of copy of legal notice of petitioner sent to Society, 4th and 5th respondents filed affidavits for transfer of plot in favour of 5th respondent - Petitioner initiated arbitration proceedings before Co-operative Sub-Registrar and obtained award in his favour - Tribunal allowed appeal filed by Society questioning award - Petitioner contends that whole approach of Tribunal in reversing award passed by Arbitrator is fundamentally erroneous and that documentary as well as circumstantial evidence clinchingly established fraud played by 3rd and 4th respondents and that neither 4th respondent nor 5th respondent who is subsequent transferee derived any legal right over plot in question - 3rd respondent/Society supports findings of Tribunal - 5th respondent contends that he is bona fide transferee from 4th respondent, who is ostensible owner, for consideration and that he took reasonable care to ascertain that transferor has power to make transfer and acted in good faith - In this case, approach of Tribunal clearly suggests that it proceeded with pre-conceived notions and evidently desperate in reversing Arbitrators's award on jejune and non-existent grounds and that findings on facts are diametrically contrary to record - Casual and flippant manner in which Tribunal overturned Arbitrator's award lent support to blatant fraud played by respondent Nos.3 &4 - T.P ACT, SEC.41 - To Attract this provision, 5th respondent should satisfy two conditions, viz., that petitioner who is person interested in plot in question gave his consent expressly or impliedly to 4th respondent who claimed to be ostensible owner and 4th respondent transferred property to 5th respondent and 5th respondent also should satisfy that he being transferee has taken reasonable care to ascertain that 4th respondent had power to make transfer and acted in good faith - Admittedly 5th respondent cannot claim to be a bona fide transferee - Not only, that he did not take any care to know about bona fide nature of transfer made in favour of 4th respondent with reference to available record, but also by filing a false Affidavit he did not act bona fide - 5th respondent therefore not entitled to invoke provisions of Sec.41 of T.P Act - Transfer of plot and petitioner's membership in favour of 4th respondent initially in favour of 5th respondent later is vitiated by fraud played by 3rd respondent/Society and 4th respondent - Order of Tribunal in reversing Arbitrator's award - Illegal and injudicious - Hence order quashed - Writ petition, allowed. Dr.S.K. Singh Vs. Cooperative Tribunal Hyd. 2009(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 405 = 2009(2) ALD 474 = 2009(2) ALT 244.

—Sec.53-A - LIMITATION ACT, Schedule, Arts.64 & 65 - Appellant/plaintiff filed suit for declaration of title, recovery of possession and ascertainment of mesne profits, contending that he inherited suit property from his mother and that respondent/defendant dispossessed him from suit land - - Respondent/defendant filing written statement contending that plaintiff sold suit land to him under agreement of sale in 1957 and ever since he is in continuous and uninterrupted possession of suit land - Trial Court decreed suit - First appellate Court reversed judgment and decree of trial Court - Hence, Second appeal - Appellant contends that once respondents admitted title of plaintiff, it is not open to them to take plea of adverse possession and that respondents did not take any plea u/Sec.53-A of T.P Act and he also flatly denied execution of agreement of sale - In this case, respondents-defendants categorically admitted title of mother of appellant and after her death appellant succeeded to same - Unless there is valid conveyance of suit property in favour of respondents, appellant does not get divested of his title and therefore title continued to vest with appellant - ADVERSE POSSESSION - Burden of proof - Burden to prove plea of adverse possession squarely rests upon one, who raises it - Plea of adverse possession must be inconsistent with title of original owner, and if party taking plea of adverse possession admits title of his opponent, he cannot be extended benefit thereof - In this case, agreement not registered and it deserves to be treated as an agreement of sale and respondent could have resisted plea for recovery of possession by taking plea u/Sec.53-A of T.P Act - In suit for declaration of title and recovery of possession, only thing a plaintiff has to satisfy Court is about existence of title - Appellant is entitled for relief of recovery possession - Judgment and decree of first appellate Court, set aside - Second appeal, allowed. Eerappa Vs. Golla Nagaiah 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 227 = 2008(2) ALD 349 = 2008(2) ALT 416 = AIR 2008 AP 191.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

—Sec.54 - Where a person claims title to the property by way of purchase even if he has failed to prove his purchase, but once it is clear from evidence that he denied title of original owner, possession of such person should be treated as adverse to the original owner - It appears that even if such person fails to prove his title as per law i.e., by not obtaining any registered sale deed and by not applying Sec.54 of T.P. Act his long and continuous possession, hostile possession, denying title of owner is sufficient to prove that he has proved adverse possession – Second appeals, allowed. Gorige Ailamma Vs. Utkoori Somaiah 2015(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 43

—Sec.54 - MOHAMMEDAN LAW, Sec.226 - Right of pre-emption on ground of vicinage - Respondents/plaintiffs who are adjoining owners of suit property and are entitled to pre-empt suit property - When appellant about to sell suit property on basis of registered agreement and refused to sell to respondents, they filed suit restraining appellants from executing sale deed - Trial Court dismissed suit and first appellate Court dismissed appeal - High Court allowed second appeal holding that in light of amendment to Constitution, law of pre-emption on ground of vicinage cannot be held to be unconstitutional and void - Where parties enter into a mere agreement to sell, it creates no interest in suit property in favour of vendee and proprietary title does not validly pass from vendor to vendee and until that is completed no right to enforce pre-emption arises - Therefore unless title to suit property has passed in accordance with Act, no right to enforce pre-emption arises - There are no equities in favour of pre-emptor whose sole object is to disturb a valid transaction by virtue of rights created in him by statute - It would be open to pre-emptee, to defeat law of pre-emption by legitimate means which is not fraud on part of either vendor or vendee and a person is entitled to steer clear of law of pre-emption by lawful means - Right of pre-emption is a weak right and is not looked upon with favour by Courts and therefore Courts cannot go out of their way to help pre-emptor - Judgment and decree of High Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Kumar Gonssab Vs. Sd. Mohammed Miyan Urf Baban 2008(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 33 = 2008(5) ALD 72(SC) = 2008(6) Supreme 122 = 2008 AIR SCW 6311.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

—Sec.55 - STATE FINANCIAL CORPORATION ACT, Sec.29 - Earnest money - Forfeiture of - Pursuant to advertisement issued by appellants/Corporation for sale of various Units including land - Respondent offered Rs.50 lakhs and became highest bidder and deposited earnest money Rs.2.5 lakhs - Respondent could not deposit balance amount of 25% of bid amount within stipulated time on account of issue of passage to units - Appellants, Corporation issued fresh tenders and forfeited sum of Rs.2.5 lakhs deposited by respondent as earnest money - Divison Bench of High Court set aside order of forfeiting earnest money and directed appellant, Corporation to refund amount along with interest - Appellant Corporation contends that respondent visited site and he would have known exact situation of passage and also aware of exact nature of land being purchased by him and that appellants/Corporation are entitled to forfeit security amount in view of terms and conditions for sale of property as contained in advertisement - A mere perusal of Sec.55 (1) (a) (b) of T.P Act will show that it is incumbent upon appellants/Corporation to disclose respondent about non-existence of independent passage to unit it is also duty of appellants/ Corporation to inform respondent that passage mentioned in revenue records not fit for movement of vehicles - Appellant also failed to produce buyer entire documets as required by Sec.51 (1) (b) of T.P. Act - Reliance on Sec.29 of State Financial Corporation Act is wholly misplaced - Corporation is directed to refund forfeited amount with interest - Appeal, dismissed. Haryana Financial Corpn. Vs. Rajesh Gupta 2010(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 24.

—Sec.55(1) (a) - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art. 226 - Petitioners participated in auction of plots in venture named “Golden mile” started by HUDA and emerged as highest bidders and deposited amounts at various stages - Since litigation surfaced challenging rights and title of Govt., over land sales did not reach finality - Hence petitioners filed writ petitions for refund of amount deposited by them - Petitioners contend since the respondents HUDA failed to furnish correct information about their title to land and failed to disclose factum of pendency of litigation, they are under obligation to refund amount deposited by them with interest - Respondents contend that petitioners participated in the auction being fully aware of pending litigation and are deemed to have waived objections, if any, in this regard and that transactions between petitioners and respondents is purely commercial in nature governed by various terms and conditions, writ petitions not maintainable, as regards such disputes - Petitioners further contend that there was a clear infraction of Sec.55(1) (a) of T.P Act by respondents and that they did not disclose defect in title and pendency of litigation in respect of land and when upset price itself was quoted at Rs.4.5 crores per acre it was obligation of respondents to ensure that their title is clear, and there is not a semblance of litigation - On a careful analysis of precedents referred and other pronouncements akin to them, it emerges that High Court cannot decline judicial review, just because lis in a writ petition arises out of contract - Much would depend upon nature of contract and obligation of parties arising out of it, if there does not exist much dispute as to facts or any contraversy as to interpretation of clauses, parties cannot be driven to Civil Courts and to spend their time and money in litigating before civil Courts - When a substantial develop-ment has taken place in form of litigation raising doubt and casting in cloud on title of respondents, they were under obligation to inform petitioners and other prospective purchasers of same, so that parties would have decided whether or not to proceed with bids - Therefore there was a failure on part of respondents in disclosing defect or cloud upon their title as required u/sec.55(1)(a) of T.P Act, at least as on date of auction - Respondents are under obligation to refund amount deposited by petitioners - Writ petitions, allowed. IBC Knowledge Part Pvt. Ltd. Vs. HUDA, Secendrabad 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) *1.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

—Sec.58 - "Mortgage of title deeds" - Plaintiff filed suit against defendants 1 to 10 for recovery of certain amount - Defendants 2 to 4 are partners of 1st defendant Firm and 6 to 9 stood as guarantors and Defendant No.10 executed mortgage on 12-4-1978 covering all transactions for purpose of creation of mortgage and deposited title deeds in respect of certain properties - Defendants 1 to 9 remained ex parte and suit contested by defendant 10 alone contending that she is not aware of loan transactions between plaintiff and defendant no.1 and that she never created any mortgage and that so called mortgage note is fabricated and forged one and that it has no connections what ever monitory transactions between plaintiff and defendant no.1 - Trial Court decreed suit by recording finding that existence of mortgage against defendant No.10 is proved - Appellant/10th defendant contends that even according to averments in plaint loan transaction between plaintiff and defendant No.1 was in year 1981, where as so called mortgage note is of year 1978 and that defendant No.1 colluded with plaintiff in bringing about so called mortgage note and suit was filed and that collusion between plaintiff and defendant No.1 is evident from fact that defendant No.1 to 9 remained ex parte and burden to oppose suit fell upon defendant No.10 alone.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.58 - "Scope of mortgage" - From perusal of first part of Section 58 it is evident that mortgage can be in relation to money advanced or to be advanced by way of loan - However, what becomes important is that it must be in relation to "payment of money" - Such payment can be of any which is already advanced or is agreed to be advanced; by way of loan - Either way it must be of a clear and definite amount - Unless amount is stipulated, there cannot exist any valid mortgage - Sec.58 does not enable a party to create a mortgage, which resembles a blank cheque - Existence of ascertain amount and agreed amount becomes relevant in context of pursuing further remedies or democrating right of parties - In this case, it is pertinent to note that even by date, loan was not advanced - When there is no reference to any amount in exhibit A.32, list of title deeds said to have been submitted by defendant No.10, question of there being even a future mortgage for that does not arise - It was only on 20-3-1981, defendant no.10 and its partners submitted an application under Ex.A.22 with a request to open Account to avail cash credit facility - That being case existence of mortgage in year 1982 in relation to transaction does not arise and facts are fitted into inescapable conclusion is that there is no valid mortgage - In this case, trial Court was mostly carried away by fact that defendant No.10 did not enter into witness box and one person examine as P.W.1 - That hardly makes any reference - Burden squarely rested heavily on plaintiff to prove existence of mortgage and they have miserably failed in this front - Decree passed by trial Court, set aside - Appeal, allowed. Sita Bai Vs. South Indian Bank Ltd. 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 255 = 2013(4) ALD 677.

—Secs.58 & 34 - Appellants/plaintiffs borrowed money from respondents by executing mortgage with condition to re-purchase - Since respondent/defendant failed to receive consideration and reconvey lands, appellants/plaintiffs filed suit - Respondent/defendant contested suit alleging that plaintiffs had never been willing to perform their part of contract nor they had paid money within stipulated period of three years as contained in agreement and, as such plaintiffs have lost their right of reconveyance - Trial Court decreed suit - Lower appellate Court allowed appeal and set aside judgment and decree of trial Court - High Court dismissed appeal, holding that there was no material to show that consideration amount was offered within stipulated time of three years - If sale and agreement to re-purchase are embodied in separate documents, it cannot be a case of mortgage and in such cases relating to reconveyance time is always essence of contract - " In case of agreement of re-purchase, condition of re-purchase must be construed strictly against original vendor and stipulation with regard to time of performance of agreement must be strictly complied with as time must be treated as being of essence of contract in case of agreement of re-conveyance" - In this case, there is an agreement of reconveyance with specific stipulation for reconveyance of lands within period of three years which was admittedly not complied with by plaintiffs/appellants - Suit filed after expiration period of limitation - Appeal, dismissed. Gauri Shankar Prasad Vs. Brahma Nand Singh 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 241 = 2008(5) ALD 33 (SC) = 2008(5) Supreme 201.

—Sec.58 (c) - Mortgage by conditional sale - Predecessor in interest of respondent, owner of property of land entered into conditional sale deed with appellant - Since appellant/defendant did not accept offer of return of amount on premise that he acquired absolute title, respondent/plaintiff filed suit for redemption of mortgage - Trial Court and appellate Court gave concurrent finding that it is sale and not mortgage - High Court by reason of judgment opined that transaction constituted a mortgage and not an out and out sale - Whether transaction is a sale or a mortgage not only would depend upon language used in deed, but also circumstances attending thereto - When an absolute transfer of property is made, it cannot be limited to a period - In this case, transaction shows that appellant was to have title in property for period of five years and was to remain in possession thereof only for said period - Plaintiff/respondent is entitled to tender amount not only at expiry of said period but even prior thereto - On tender of such amount, appellant is required to execute a deed of reconveyance in favour of plaintiff/respondent - No doubt document is styled as a deed of conditional sale, but it is not conclusive of matter - Having regard to terms of transaction that High Court is correct in its opinion that transaction evidenced a mortgage and not a sale - Appeal, dismissed. Vishwanath Dadoba Karale Vs. Prisa Shantappa Upadhye (D) Th.Lrs., 2008(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 79.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

—Sec.58(c) - Mortgage transaction with condition that land is to be returned to defendant/ purchaser after receiving sale consideration with in 5 years, -Defendant also put in possession - Plaintiff alleged that period of 5 years is only nominal as there was no condition that after five years sale would become final - As defendant avoided to redeem suit property, plaintiff issued notice calling upon defendant to redeem suit property after accepting amount - Defendant contends that transaction in question is not mortgage transaction but outright sale and denied relationship of mortgagee and mortgagor - Considering pleadings and evidence of parties trial Court did not consider it to be a sale transaction and held it to be a mortgage transaction by conditional sale - Suit of plaintiff for redumption accordingly decreed declaring plaintiff is entitled to redeem suit property after paying amount to defendant - District Judge allowed Appeal holding that there was no relationship of debtor and creditor between parties and thus transaction in question was an absolute sale with condition to repurchase but plaintiff failed to get land reconveyed within stipulated period - High Court justified findings recorded by first appellate Court - In this case, alleged sale document was executed in year 1967 transfering suit property by way of sale subject to one stipulation/condition that on receiving sale amount within 5 years land was to be returned to plaintiff/vendor - Admittedly defendant also came in possession and used and enjoyed suit property as absolute owner - It was only after 11 years plaintiff/appellant filed suit alleging that suit property was mortgaged in favour of defendant/respondent with a condition to reconvey land - High Court justified in not interfering with findings of fact recorded by first appellate Court - Appeal, dismissed. Vanchalabai Raghunath Ithape (d) by Lr. Vs. ShankararaoBaburao Bhilare 2013(3) Law Summary (S.C.) 173 = 2013(5) ALD 56 (SC) = 2013 AIR SCW 3993 = AIR 2013 SC 2924.

—Secs.105, 108, r/w Sec.52 - EASEMENT ACT, Sec.52 - DELHI MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT, Secs.119,120(2) - Distinction between “lease” and “licence” - Stated - A licence may be created on deal or parole and it would be revokable - However when it is accompanied with grant it becomes irrevocable - A mere licence does not create interest in property to which it relates - Licence may be personal or contractual - A "licence" without grant created a right in licensor to enter into land and enjoy it - "Lease" on other hand would amount to transfer of property - There is a marked distinction between "lease" - Sec.105 of T.P Act defines a lease of immovable property as a transfer of right to enjoy of such property made by certain time in consideration for a price paid or promised - U/Sec.108 of said Act lessee is entitled to be put to in possession of property - A lease is therefore a transfer of interest in land - Interest transferred is called lease hold interest -Lessor parts his right to enjoy property during term of lease, and if it follows from it that lessee gets that right to exclusion of lessor - Sec.52 of Easement Act - Licence defined - If document gives only a right to use property in a particular way or under certain terms while it remains in possession and control of owner thereof, it will be a licence - Legal possession, therefore continues to be with owner of property, but licensee is permitted to make use of premises for a particular purpose - It is quite clear that distinction between "lease" and "licence" is marked by last clause of Sec.52 of Easement Act as by reason of licence no estate or interest in property is created - A licence can be revoked at any time at pleasure of licensor - Even other wise unless parties to agreement add in intention to enter into a deed of lease Administration would not have agreed to demise premises on payment of rent in lieu of grant of exclusive possession of demised land and further stipulated service of three months notice called upon either party to terminate agreement. Pradeep Oil Corpn., Vs. Municipal Corporation of Delhi 2011(1) Law Summary (S.C.) 199.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

—Sec.106 - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, Illustration(f), GENERAL CLAUSES ACT, Sec.27 – Tenancy - Ex.A-1(notice of termination) sent by registered post with acknowledgment due satisfies requisites of Sec.106 of Transfer of Property Act, construes that there has been valid termination of Tenancy.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, Sec.106 - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Or.XXXIX, Rule 10 - The court below granted relief in I.A. No. 980 of 2012 that has not been asked for - Held, hitherto, Order XXXIX Rule 10 of CPC used to come to rescue of landlords/plaintiffs for giving protection against defendant/tenant during pendency of suits to pay mesne profits/damages for use and occupation with limitation that such direction was limited to extent of payment of admitted amount/rent only, which is now obviated by introduction of Order XV-A of CPC clothing Court with insignia of power to give direction to defendant to deposit such amount as Court may direct, of course, through process of adjudication - In the instant case, Court below has resorted to passing relevant orders in I.A. No.980 of 2012 and I.A. No.1877 of 2012, which do not suffer from any infirmity - Appeal partly allowed by reducing amount of Rs.75,000/- per month to Rs.60,000/- per month towards damages granted by Court below and in all other respects judgment and decree of Court below is confirmed. Ramesh Charties Vs. R.Ratna Sudha 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 76 = 2014(6) ALD 543 = 2014(6) ALT 8.

—Secs.106 & 116 - Respondent/plaintiff filed suit for eviction and for recovery of arrears of mesne profits and damages for use and occupation - Appellant/defendant contends that he agreed to enhance rent and that there is dispute between Housing Board and plaintiff in respect of suit premises and therefore he has no right to evict him - Trial Court ordered eviction and directed appellant to vacate premises within 3 months - Lower Appellate Court, dismissed Appeal - Appellant contends that respondent is not properly authorised person to file suit and that proceedings initiated by him seeking eviction of appellant from suit premises are to be declared as bad in law and that in view of letter addressed by Housing Board to appellant calling for his willingness to purchase suit premises, respondent/plaintiff is no more landlord of premises and that suit is liable to be dismissed and that since respondent accepted rent subsequent to termination of tenancy, it amounts to waiver - Respondent contends that appellant/defendant having taken premises on lease from respondent, is estopped from disputing title of plaintiff-Association u/Sec.116 of T.P. Act - In this case, plaintiff-Association filed suit by its Secretary and after expiry of term he became Special Secretary and authorised to institute proceedings on behalf of plaintiff-Association and as such contention of appellant that plaintiff -P.W.1 is not authorised to sign and give evidence on behalf of plaintiff-Association, untenable - Whatever payment appellant/defendant makes after receipt of notice, it would be received by plaintiff-Association under protest - Mere acceptance of amount after issuing of eviction notice does not efface default committed by appellant/defendant - Judgment of trial Court as confirmed by lower appellate Court - Justified - Second appeal, dismissed. Nazeer Khan Vs. Vijayanagar Welfare Association 2008(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 62 = 2008(1) ALD 828.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

—Secs.122,125 & 126 - "Gift" - "Settlement" - "Gift settlement" - "Cancellation" - Plaintiff filed suit for declaration of title and for injunction and for recovery of possession of item no.2 of suit property basing on Will executed by one KVGM contending that 1st defendant is an orphan without any right and taking advantage that she worked as maid servant for some time in house of KVGM forcibly took possession of item no.2 of suit property - 1st defendant filed written statement disputing the Will and that allegation that she is orphan is defamatory and it is coined for purpose of suit and it is nothing but blasphemy to call daughter of KVGM as a maid servant and she became absolute owner of plant schedules properties after death of her father KVGM.

Trial Court found that 1st defendant is daughter of late KVGM and holding that settlement deed relied on by 1st defendant has been cancelled and Will in favour of plaintiff is true and decreed suit with regard to item no. 1 for injunction and for recovery of possession of item no.2 – 1st appellate Court held that 1st defendant is not daughter of KVGM. and possession of proved and dismissed appeal.

TRANSER OF PROPERTY ACT, SEC. 126 - SUSPENSION OR REVOCATION OF GIFT – Suspension revocation of gift deed – Appellants/defendants contend that when once a valid gift has been executed without any reservation of right for cancellation, cancellation is not valid and consequently plaintiff cannot get rights in suit property and Will executed by KVGM cannot supersede gift deed and therefore cancellation and deed cannot be a valid document.

Plaintiff contends that gift is not valid as there is no delivery of possession of property and it was a conditional gift of maintaining deceased KVGM and as promise has failed gift deed was cancelled and consequently, appellants have no right in property and further contends that was conveyed under gift deed is future interest and there is no delivery of possession of property and as such gift is not valid.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT:

Sec. 122 of T.P. Act is very clear that it never postulates delivery possession of property as condition precedent for gift and that law is also well settled a gift of vested remainder can be validly made keeping life interest to donar – Judgment and decree passed by lower Courts against law and gift deed cannot be cancelled and rights of 1st defendant cannot liable to – Judgments of lower Courts liable to be set aside – Plaintiffs suit, dismissed – 2nd appeal, allowed.Pagadala Bharathi Vs. J.Radhya Krishna 2013(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 41 = 2013(2) ALD 373 = 2013(3) ALT 467.

—Sec.123 - Cancellation of gift - Petitioner and respondent no.7 are sons of respondent nos.5 & 6 - Respondents 5 to 7 executed a deed of gift in year 2004 in favour of petitioner transferring an item of immovable property and petitioner accepted gift and made several improvements to property by incurring expenditure - 5th respondent executed deed of cancellation of gift in year 2011 and same was admitted to Registration - Petitioner challenges action of 2nd respondent/Sub-Registrar in registering document - Petitioner contends that deed of cancellation can be accepted by registering authority only when it is executed with consent of parties to transaction - 5th respondents contends that though property exclusively belongs to him gift deed was executed by himself and respondents No.6 & 7 and that gift in favour of petitioner conditional and necessity to cancel gift deed had arisen on account of violation of conditions by petitioner and that prohibition contained under Rue 26 of A.P. Rules under registration Act would operate only in respect of sale deeds - In this case, it is 7 years after gift was made that 5th respondent has executed deed of cancellation and it is not at all competent for him to unilaterally cancel gift deed without participation of other executants viz., respondents 6 & 7 and that registration of deed of cancellation presented by one of executants of gift deed and not consented by donee, is contrary to law - Writ petition, allowed. Kapuganti Jagannadha Gupta Vs. District Registrar, Srkakulam 2012(1) Law Summary 329 = 2012(3) ALD 404 = 2012(4) ALT 435.

—Secs.222 & 223 - Interpretation of - Apex Court observed that the delivery of possession is not an essential prerequisite for the making of a valid gift in the case of immovable property - There is indeed no provision in law that ownership in property cannot be gifted without transfer of possession of such property. Renikuntla Rajamma Vs. K. Sarwanamma 2014(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 109 = 2014(5) ALD 173 (SC) = 2014 AIR SCW 4256 = AIR 2014 SC 2906.

—and SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT - Appellants/plaintiffs filed suit for specific performance of agreement - Defendant contends that sale deed was to be executed within six months from date of contract as he was in dire need of money for construction of house and therefore time is essence of contract, but plaintiffs not in a position to pay balance consideration and complete contract and hence plaintiffs not entitled to discretionary relief - Trial Court decreed suit holding that defendant failed to prove that time is essence of contract and plaintiffs are ready and willing to perform their part of contract - Single judge of High Court allowed appeal of defendant and dismissed suit - In case of sale of immoveable property, there is no presumption as to time being an essence of contract - In instant case, though parties agreed that sale deed is to be executed within six months, in last paragraph of agreement they made it clear that in event of failure to execute sale deed, earnest money will be forfeited - In such circumstances, clauses mentioned in agreement of sale would render ineffective specific provision relating to time being essence of contract - It is true that defendant in his written statement made a bald claim that time was essence of contract - Even if recital in agreement of sale is accepted that sale deed has to be executed within a period of six months, there is an express provision in agreement itself that failure to adhere time, earnest money will be forfeited - In such circumstances and in view of recital pertaining to forfeiture of earnest money makes it clear that time was never intended by parties to be of essence - Mere fixation of time within which contract is to be performed does not make stipulation as to time as essence of contract - Judgment and decree of High Court, set aside and confirm decree granted by trial Court - Civil appeal, allowed. Balasaheb Dayandeo Naik, Vs. Appasaheb Dattatraya Pawar 2008(1) Law Summary (S.C.)124

.

UNLAWFUL ACTIVITIES (PREVENTION) ACT, 1967:

—Secs. 43(D) (2)(A) - Present revision is filed against order passed by VII Additional Metropolitan Sessions Judge, in Crl. M.P.No. 308 of 2015 in Crime No. 338 of 2014 of P.S. Gopalapuram/SIT, Hyderabad, wherein and whereunder the bail granted to the petitioners was cancelled - Held, in case on hand, there is no report submitted by the Public Prosecutor and on other hand an application seeking extension of remand beyond the prescribed period came to be filed at instance of the investigating agency - Though accused are alleged to have committed offences, which according to prosecution, endanger security of State, but at same time compliance of mandatory provisions cannot be ignored and the indefeasible right which got accrued to the accused cannot be defeated - For the aforesaid reasons there is no other option for this Court except to allow the Revision - Accordingly, Criminal Revision is allowed and order impugned is hereby set aside. Shah Mudassir Vs. State of Telangana 2015(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 132 = 2015 Cri. LJ 4208 = 2015(2) ALD (Crl) 351 = 2015(2) ALT (Crl) 202 (AP).

USURIOUS LOANS ACT — and CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.34 - Appeal questioning scaling down of interest by lower Court as usurious in a pronote - Held, lower Court went wrong in concluding that pronote is a mere renewal and also putting burden on the plaintiffs/appellants to prove rate of interest not usurious, though burden is on defendant to prove it as usurious - Regarding prelite interest, Loan advanced for commercial transaction and defendant failed to discharge burden of showing contract rate being substantive rate is usurious, it has to prevail for nothing to scale down from said contract rate at 27% per annum even under Usurious Loans Act - When it comes to pendent lite and post lite interest as per proviso to Sec.34 of CPC can exceed 6% per annum and fixed as 9% per annum - Appeal allowed and decree of lower Court, modified. Malladi Krishnayya Vs. Tadikonda Siva Suryaprakasa Rao, 2014(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 104 = 2014(6) ALT 696 = 2015(2) ALD 34.

WAKF ACT:

WAKF ACT:

—Secs.5 & 6 - A.P. BUILDINGS (LEASE, RENT AND EVICTION) CONTROL ACT - INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, Sec.116 - This appeal, by unsuccessful defendant is directed against decree and judgment passed in first appeal - Learned Additional Chief Judge while dismissing said appeal of defendant had confirmed decree and judgment of Rent Controller passed filed by sole plaintiff for recovery of possession of premises, for mesne profits and costs and had further directed defendant to vacate and handover vacant possession of said property to plaintiff.

Held, admittedly defendant was inducted as a tenant of plaint schedule property by plaintiff - Except a claim by defendant that Wakf Board is owner no evidence was adduced to show that plaintiff had lost her title to disputed properties - In view of ratio in decision of Supreme Court, it is clear that landlady and tenant relationship exists and therefore, there is no substance in substantial question of law raised and said question is devoid of merit.

This brings Court to next question on jurisdiction of civil Court in view of contention that A.P Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act was amended by Act 7/2005 enhancing jurisdiction of Rent Controller - Counsel for defendant would contend that buildings whose rents are up to Rs.3,500/- in municipality areas continued to be covered by Rent Control Act and, therefore, defendant is entitled to protection of Rent Control Act and he cannot be evicted by having resort to a civil suit for eviction - However, Counsel for plaintiffs would contend that suit was instituted in year 2001 and even as per contentions of defendant amendment to Rent Control Act was by virtue of Act 7/05 and, therefore, amended provisions which have no retrospective effect have no application to case on hand as suit for eviction was instituted on 1-3-2001 - Supreme Court held that suit(s), appeal(s), revision application(s) or execution case(s) which are pending for determination under General Law are not affected by amended Sec.32 and will continue to be decided in accordance with General Law - By this judgment, Supreme Court upheld judgment (majority) of this Court insofar as it related to prospective operation of Sec.32(c) and its effect on pending proceedings and finding of majority decision of this Court in regard to clause (b) of G.O.636 dated 29.12.1983 declaring said part of GO as redundant is declared bad in law and had set aside said finding - It is also held in this decision that exemption granted by State Government u/Sec.26 of Act by GO 636 dated 29.12.1983 has over riding effect over rest of provisions of Act - In view of facts of instant case and settled legal position, contention that

WAKF ACT:

Rent Control Court is having jurisdiction and that General Law is not applicable to facts of case is devoid of merit - Accordingly, this Court finds that there is no substance in this substantial question also - Having regard to reasons, this Court finds that substantial questions raised do not merit consideration as there is no substance in said questions and that second appeal, which is devoid of merit is liable to be dismissed - In result, second appeal is dismissed. Mohd. Saber Vs. Rafiunnisa Begum (Died) 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 37 = 2016(4) ALD 308.

—- Sec.54/(1) and 83,83(5),83(7) & 83(9) - CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, Sec.115 - Petitioner/plaintiff filed suit for declaration that construction made by 1st defendant on grave yeard land is illegal and for perpetual injunction restraining D1 from interfering with grave yard and for mandatory injunction for removal of construction made on grave yard land - 1st defendant contends that plaintiff is not present Muthavalli and has fabricated story of encroachment and there is no encroachment of any part of grave yard - 1st defendant also filed suit against plaintiff and others - Tribunal after considering entire evidence dismissed both suits by common judgment - Hence petitioner filed present revision against dismissal of his suit - Petitioner/plaintiff contends evidence of P.W.1 and D.W.5 & 6 is sufficient enough for decreeing suit contending that though several issues were framed, Tribunal had not at all discussed with reference to evidence adduced and documents marked, though there is clear direction in order passed by High Court in C.R.P to consider evidence and dispose of according to law and that Tribunal had not properly appreciated scope and ambit of Sec.83 of Act and totally erred in holding that plaintiff failed to establish his case by producing record showing extent of land attached to Wakf Institution - 1st Respondent/1st defendant contends that scope of revision u/Sec.83(9) of Act is very limited, High Court cannot interfere with findings of fact arrived at by Tribunal and that there cannot be any re-appreciation of both oral and documentary evidence available on record like in appeal as Sec.83(9) of Act clearly bars appeal against decision of Tribunal and only revision is provided, that too, to examine correctness, legality or propriety of such determination and that High Court cannot extend scope of revision and deal with it like an appeal, when legislature itself has barred provisions for appeal - In view of number of decisions it is held that scope of revisional jurisdiction u/Sec.83(9) of Act, is not like that of appeal, since legislature itself barred appeal provision, but however it is wider than revisional jurisdiction u/Sec.115 CPC - But for satisfying as to correctness, legality or propriety of such determination, Court can examine facts in each case where decision is entirely improbable and perverse and Court below has followed procedure contemplated under law - In this case, Tribunal has not considered evidence on record with reference to issues framed and pleadings on record and same needs interference within scope of revisional jurisdiction u/Sec.83(9) of Act - Tribunal also not understood scope of Sec.83(5) of Act, and as per this section, Tribunal shall be deemed to be a civil Court and shall have same powers as may be exercised by civil Court under CPC while trying suit or executing a decree or order and as per Sec.83(7) of Act decision of Tribunal shall be final and binding upon parties to application and it shall have force of decree made by civil Court - Judgment and decree of Tribunal, set aside - CRP, allowed - Matter remanded to Tribunal for fresh disposal. Mohammed Abdul Hameed @ Khursheed Vs. Zulfikhar Ahmed 2013(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 199 = 2013(5) ALD 402.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1923:

—Secs.64(5), 64(3) and 70, r/w Rule 24 - CONSTITUTION OF INDIA, Art.226 - Appellant claims to be mutavalli of institution containing a Mosque sought for writ of mandamus inter alia assailing correctness of proceedings passed by Chief Executive Officer placing petitioner under suspension contending that entire proceedings are without jurisdiction and even without alleged show cause notice is bereft of any valid material or basis to warrant any such proposed action - Admittedly impugned orders not being initiated and having any inception from competent authority viz., Board, same would not hold good in law - Board asserting there is due compliance of necessary requirement since Special Officer has approved entire proceedings and therefore there is nothing illegal nor there is want of jurisdiction - Having regard to nature of seriousness of allegation, order of suspension is perfectly sustainable and enquiry is rightly initiated - There is no dispute to fact that power to initiate action is left with board and in absence of regular Board, Special Officer who has to act, no doubt, CEO does not find plays anywhere under provisions of Act and Rules made thereunder - Role played by CEO is mere a immaterial and administrative and not a final word - In this case, there is no denial to fact that note put up by CEO has been approved by Special Officer and therefore first objection does not hold any water - Appeal, dismissed. M.A.Azeem Baig Vs. Chief Executive Officer 2010(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 116.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1923:

——"Compassionate appointment" -This writ petition was filed assailing action of the Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Limited (RINL), in not considering petitioner for compassi-onate appointment to a Class IV post and to set aside proceedings issued by the Deputy Chief Personnel Manager, RINL, rejecting her request for such appointment.

Petitioner's husband was a permanent employee, died in a road accident while on his way to attend to his duties - Petitioner thereupon submitted a representation seeking compassionate appointment in RINL as there was no other earning member in family - Pursuant to this order, impugned proceedings were issued by the Deputy Chief Personnel Manager, RINL, stating that as per the Personnel Policy Circular, dependent of an employee who meets with a fatal accident arising out of and in course of employment alone would be entitled to compassionate appointment and as the petitioner's husband met with a fatal road accident while on his way to attend duties, it was not an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment - She was therefore held disentitled to be considered for compassionate employment in terms of the Circular - Aggrieved thereby, she filed present case.

Held, it is clear that this is a case where the RINL denied compassionate appointment on wholly untenable grounds, be it in terms of its contradictory actions under the Policy Circular No.25/90 dated 11.10.1990 or in terms of its 'Employees' Family Benefit Scheme' - Only ground put-forth by the RINL in impugned proceedings therefore does not stand to reason - Having wrongfully denied petitioner such appointment pursuant to order passed by this Court directing consideration of her case, after maintaining a studious silence in face of her many representations, it is not open to RINL to take advantage of its own delay and wrongful actions and cite passage of time as a ground to deny compassionate appointment at this stage - This Court finds that reasons justifying exception to rule by way of a compassionate appointment of a dependant of deceased employee still continue to hold good in so far as petitioner is concerned.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1923:

As petitioner who was in her 20's at time she sought compassionate appointment has now attained age of 48 years and her unmarried daughter is eligible for seeking such appointment under rules, this is a fit case for the RINL to consider her candidature for such appointment in terms of its 'Employees' Family Benefit Scheme' and the Circular dated 11.10.1990 - Daughter of petitioner is therefore permitted to make an application in this regard with supporting documents within two weeks from date of receipt of a copy of this order - Upon receipt of such application, respondents shall consider same in accordance with rules and in light of observations made supra and take appropriate action in matter within four weeks thereafter - Writ petition is allowed to extent indicated above. Pulagam Ratnavathi Vs. The Chairman-cum-M.D, Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 462.

—Learned Commissioner arrived at a conclusion that deceased died out of and in course of his employment and allowed application in part by awarding compensation of Rs.3,29,300/- with interest at 9% per annum from date of filing of application - Feeling aggrieved by the order of Commissioner, opposite party/Insurance Company preferred present appeal - Held, burden of proof lies on insurer:- (1) to establish that driver of crime vehicle or deceased workman was not having valid and effective driving licence at relevant point of time; and (2) insured intentionally and wilfully entrusted vehicle to driver/workman, who has no driving licence, at time of accident - As observed earlier, opposite party failed to discharge burden shouldered on it to establish that deceased was not having valid and effective driving licence at relevant point of time and that opposite party No.1 intentionally and wilfully entrusted auto to the deceased knowing fully well that he was not having driving licence - Fact remains that at time of accident, deceased was attending calls of nature - In such circumstances insisting production of driving licence of deceased has no relevancy at all in order to ascertain whether opposite party No.1 had violated the terms and conditions of policy - Viewed from this angle also, stand taken by opposite party No.2 has no legs to stand - Having regard to facts and circumstances of case and also principles enunciated in cases cited supra, Court unable to accede to contention of learned counsel for opposite party No.2 that opposite party No.1 had violated terms and conditions of policy so as to absolve opposite party No.2 from its liability - Findings recorded by learned Commissioner are supported by evidence much legally admissible evidence - Commissioner has assigned cogent and valid reasons to his findings - There are no grounds much less valid grounds to interfere with the well-considered order of the Commissioner - There is no substantial question of law in this appeal which warrants interference of this court - Appeal lacks merits and bona fides - Accordingly, points are answered - In result, civil miscellaneous appeal is dismissed. United India Insurance Co. Ltd Vs. Sri Mohd. KhaleelKhan 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 533

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1923:

—Sec.2(1)(1), Proviso, Part-I, Schedule-1 and Part-II, Schedule - I - "Permanent disablement" - Workman, driver of lorry while driving, lorry met with accident, received serious injuries and subsequently his right leg amputated - Commissioner awarded compensation of Rs.1.22 lakhs holding that workman suffered permanent partial disability in accident in course of employment - In appeal, workman contends that though disability was assessed at 50% permanent partial by Orthopedic Surgeon, as he cannot drive any vehicle for ever due to amputation of his right leg below knee, it shall be treated as 100% disability and compensation has to be awarded on that basis - There is no dispute that workman is incapable of performing his duties as driver, which he was performing prior to accident, as such his case has to be considered to be one of total disablement, but Sec.2(1)(1) of Act contemplates that total disablement shall be deemed to result from every injury specified in Part-I of Schedule - I or combination of injuries specified in Part-II of Schedule-I and there is also no dispute that appellant/workman did not suffer injuries in Part-I of Schedule-I or combination of injuries as mentioned in Part-II of Schedule – I - Court's discretion to award compensation is not controlled by injuries contained in Parts - I and II of Schedule - I "...Inspite of there being no sufferance of injuries mentioned in Part - I of Schedule - I or combination of injuries as mentioned in Part - II of Schedule - I, if there is 100% disability to do work, workman was doing earlier, it has to be treated that workman has suffered 100% disability".Pamarthi Subba Rao Vs. H. Rama Rao 2008(2) Law Summary (A.P.) 156 = 2008(3) ALD 650 = 2008(3) ALT 68.

—Secs.2(1)(1) & 30 - "Total permanent disablement" - "100% Loss of earning capacity" - Items 4 and 5 of Part-I of Schedule - I of Act - Claimants in both appeals are injured drivers - Contention that while assessing compensation payable, disability suffered by injured as certified by Doctor or Medical Board is relevant and that unless disability can be described as total permanent disablement as appended u/Sec.2(1) (1) of Act, such disability cannot be treated and assessed at 100% loss of earning capacity - Respondents/claimants contend that under definition of total permanent disablement as appended u/Sec.2(1) of Act, test for assessing disablement is whether workman is capable of performing work, which he was doing at time of accident and that drivers in both appeals are now rendered unfit to work as drivers and that keeping in view of nature of profession of work which they were carrying on at time of accident and on account of disablement suffered, they are not in a position to carry out same work or profession thereby Commissioner has rightly assessed disability as 100% - So far as first case is concerned claimant/driver was examined by conducting necessary test and as certified that his right eye optic otrophy with divergent spirit with chronic dacryo cystitis, where as left eye is normal as per schedule injury which has been certified that claimant suffered 30% disability which is permanent though it is certified that claimant can drive Auto but he cannot drive perfectly as he used to dive - In second case, it is found that claimant on examination clinically as well as radiologically establish as per certificate that he was having intertrochantic fracture of right femur with non-union resulting in 2" inches shortening of leg and restriction of movements of right hip and that claimant also had a fracture of ileum which is united but claimant cannot squat properly, cannot walk with out help of crutches for long distances having pain in sitting position on account of pelvic compression - Though doctor certified injury as a disability to extent of 50% Commissioner has assessed loss of earning capacity to 100% - In both cases, claimants are professional drivers - Their capacity to drive vehicle as professional driver is so seriously affected, as it is not possible for either of them to carry on their profession as drivers - Keeping in view, fact that both claimants are professional drivers and now they are not in a position to undertake said professional work any more, irrespective of disability certified by doctors concerned, loss of earning capacity of respective claimants is 100% - Findings of Commissioner assessing loss of earning capacity at 100% - Fully justified - Appeals, dismissed. United India Insurance Co. Limited Vs. Y.Ananda Rao 2012(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 95 = 2012(6) ALD 33.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1923:

—Secs.3 & 30 - 1st respondent's husband aged 28 years, who is driver of Auto owned by second respondent and insured with appellant,while driving auto two persons stabbed him causing his death - Commissioner of Labour awarded compensation of Rs.1,58,929/ - as against claim of Rs.2 laksh - Appellant/insurance Company contends that it is not liable to pay compensation since death did not occur on account of accident - Though accident may be one of causes it cannot be said that if injury or death occurs otherwise than through accident, but in course of employment, compensation cannot be awarded - Order of Commissioner, justified - Appeals dismissed. Oriental Insurance Co.,Vs. K.Karuna 2012(1) Law Summary 93 = 2012(2) ALD 1 = 2012(2) ALT 420.

—Sec.4-A(3), First Schedule - MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988, Sec.168 - "Motor accident"- In this cases claimants suffered injuries in motor accident and applicability of provisions of M.V Act and Workmen Compensation Act for determination of compensation in respect of claimants who suffered disability – Stated - Amount of compensation is to be determined in terms of provisions of respective Acts - Where as in terms 1923 Act, Commissioner who is quasi judicial authority is bound to apply principles and factors laid down in Act for purpose of determining compensation, Sec.168 of 1988 Act enjoins Tribunal to make award determining amount of compensation which appears to be just - Both statutes provide for mode and manner in which percentage of loss of earning capacity is required to be calculated - They provide that amount of compensation in cases of this nature would be directly relatable to percentage of physical disability suffered by injured vis-vis the injuries specified in First Schedule of 1923 Act - Where there are more injuries than one, aggregate amount of compensation has to be taken but same should not exceed amount which would have been payable in case of permanent total disablement - Function of Commissioner is to determine amount of compensation as laid down under Act - Even if no amount is claimed Commissioner must determine amount which is found payable to workman - Even in cases arising out of 1988 Act, it is duty of Tribunal to arrive at just compensation having regard to provisions contained in Sec.168 thereof. Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd., Vs. Mohd. Nasir 2009(2) Law Summary (S.C.) 123.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1923:

—Secs.4,4A, 3, 4A(1) - MOTOR VEHICLES ACT - "Motor accident" - Commissioner for Workmens's Compensation awarded compensation of Rs.3,35,600/- to claimants of deceased against owner of accident vehicle and not against insurer - Appellants, claimants contend that Commissioner should have awarded compensation as against insurer also and that Commissioner should have awarded interest from date of accident - Admittedly, deceased was working as driver under 1st respondent/owner of accident vehicle, though in fact he was not actually driving vehicle at time of accident - There will be two drivers and for some time one driver would drive vehicle and after some time 1st driver takes rest and second driver takes steering for driving vehicle and for that reason deceased was in vehicle at time of accident - Therefore presence of deceased in accident vehicle was neither unauthorised nor unwarranted - Therefore, 2nd respondent/Insurance Company cannot avoid payment of compensation in this case, by way of indemnifying 1st respondent injured - Sec.4A(3) of Act postulates awarding of interest as well as penalty - As per said section, compensation u/Sec.4 shall be paid as soon as it falls due - Insurance Company is liable to pay compensation amount together with interest - Though Insurance Company is not liable to pay penalty for default in payment of compensation - 2nd respondent/Insurance Company is jointly and severally liable to pay compensation amount along with 1st respondent as determined by Commissioner together with interest - Appeal, allowed. Shaik Murthuza Vs. Nadella Kutumba Rao 2011(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 341 = 2011(4) ALD 561 = 2011(4) ALT 507.

——Sec.30 - Claimants, who are legal representatives of deceased workman, had filed a WC case before Commissioner claiming compensation, from employer of deceased-cum-owner of auto trolley and insurance company, for loss sustained by them on account of untimely death of said deceased out of and during the course of his employment as driver on said vehicle, which was insured with insurance Company - Insurance company, AW1 was examined and exhibits A1 to A5 were marked - AW1 was not cross-examined - In fact, when the exhibits were marked, there was no representation for the opposite parties 1 and 2; and as cross-examination of AW1 was not done, opposite parties 1 and 2 were set ex parte; and, arguments on side of applicants were heard by Commissioner and matter was reserved for judgment - Allowing application of applicants and awarding compensation with interest were passed - Against said orders, Insurance company did not prefer any appeal as contemplated under provision of Section 30 of Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 (presently known as Employees' Compensation Act, 1923) - However, Insurance company had filed an interlocutory application for setting aside the ex parte order passed in the WC case - Commissioner, had dismissed said Interlocutory application - Feeling aggrieved of said dismissal orders passed by Commissioner, present writ petition is filed by Insurance Company.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1923:

Held, it is to be noted that order passed in an interlocutory Application is not an independent order and even that order is also not challenged independently by availing the remedies, which law permits, and it was only challenged in this writ petition, wherein order passed in main case is also assailed - Effect of order of dismissal passed in interlocutory Application is that order granting compensation in main case is maintained - Therefore, ultimately writ petitioner/Insurance company is now challenging order in WC case - For entertaining an appeal u/Sec.30 of the Act, appellant would be required to make a pre-deposit of entire amount awarded as compensation - Further, an appeal against orders of Commissioner would be entertained only when a substantial question of law is involved and otherwise not - Court is in respectful agreement with view of the High Court of Punjab and Haryana at Chandigarh that if a writ petition like present one is entertained, it would amount to anomalous results and would defeat object of the Act - Having regard to reasons, Court finds that writ petition is not maintainable and is liable to be dismissed. Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner for Workmen Compensation 2016(1) Law Summary (A.P.) 270 = 2016(3) ALD 336.

—-Sec.30 and Sec.2(dd) - MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 1988, Secs.2(9) and 2(10) - This appeal under Section 30 of the Workmen's Compensation Act,1923 (presently known as Employees Compensation Act), by the unsuccessful 3rd opposite party - Held, having regard to the facts and the evidence it can safely be concluded that there was a policy under exhibit B1 in existence and that there was a valid transfer for consideration of the mini Lorry/vehicle by the 2nd opposite party in favour of the 1st opposite party coupled with the delivery of possession of the vehicle and that the 1st opposite party is exercising peaceably the ordinary rights of ownership; and, under law there was also a deemed transfer of the policy in favour of the 1st opposite party, who was the employer of the deceased/driver; and, further, in view of the precedential guidance in the decision of the Supreme Court in Prembai Patel's case and in the light of the statutory provisions, it can safely be held that the learned Commissioner was justified in holding that the 3rd opposite party/appellant is liable to pay the compensation awarded to the applicant as per the provisions of the M.V. Act and the Workmen's Compensation Act - Though it is contended that the age of the deceased was not correctly determined, a plain reading of the impugned order shows that when it was suggested to PW1 that her husband was 36 years of age, she had denied the suggestion and that the learned Commissioner had relied upon the crime records in fixing the age of the deceased as '31' years at the time of his involvement in the accident - Hence, the said approach cannot be found fault - This Court, thus, on a careful examination finds that the compensation was correctly determined having regard to the facts and on proper appreciation of the evidence brought on record and that therefore, the order impugned calls for no interference - The points are accordingly answered against the appellant/3rd opposite party holding that the impugned order of the learned Commissioner is sustainable, both under facts and in law - In the result, the appeal is dismissed. National Insurance Co., Vs. Smt. T.Sabitha 2015(3) Law Summary (A.P.) 124

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1923: